 Medical and scientific extracts, and a selection of the daily increasing number of Testimonials, together with the Price List, are embodied in pamphlet, "Nature's Chief Restorer of Impaired Vital Energy," sent post-free on application to the sole inventor and Patentee.
J. L. PULVERMACHER,
GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT,
 194, REGENT-STREET, LONDON, W.

LADIES' ELASTIC SUPPORTING BANDS, for use before and after Accouchement. Instructions for measurement and prices on application to POPE and PLANTÉ, 4, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, London.

WATER CUSHIONS for INVALIDS (HOOPERS), affording instant relief from pressure, and effectually preventing bed-sores by their ease, softness, and elasticity. Illustrated price-list free by post.—Hooper, Manufacturer of Water Mattresses and Water Cushions to the Queen, 7, Pall-mall East, S.W.; and at 55, Grosvenor-street, W.

BEST FOOD for INFANTS.
 "Resembling mother's milk as closely as possible."—Dr. E. Barker on Right Foods.
 "The Infant Prince thrives upon it as a Prince should."—See. 3d. Rev.
 "Highly nourishing and easily digested."—Dr. Hamall.
 No Boiling or straining required.
 Tins, 1s., 2s., 3s., and 10s. Prepared by SAVOY and MOORE,
 143, New Bond-street, London.
 Frequentable of all Chemists and Italian Warehousemen.

BRAGG'S CELEBRATED CHARCOAL BISCUITS are recommended by the highest medical men of the day. They speedily remove worms, and keep the stomach and bowels in a pure and healthy condition. No family should be without them. Sold by all Chemists, in Tins, 1s., 2s., 3s., and 6s. each, and by J. L. BRAGG, Sole Manufacturer, 14, Wigmore-street, Cavendish-square, London, W.

D. R. DE JONGH'S (Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium)
LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL.
 The only real test, medical experience during the last twenty-four years in all parts of the world, has conclusively proved
DR. DE JONGH'S COD-LIVER OIL to be THE PUREST,
 THE MOST PALATABLE,
 THE MOST EASILY DIGESTED,
 and
 THE MOST RAPIDLY EFFICACIOUS
 of all kinds.

As the Remedy for
CONSUMPTION and DISEASES OF THE CHEST,
DR. DE JONGH'S COD-LIVER OIL stands pre-eminent.

As the Restorative in
DEBILITY OF ADULTS and CHILDREN,
DR. DE JONGH'S COD-LIVER OIL is unequalled.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

SIR G. DUNCAN GIBB, Bart., M.D., LL.D., Physician to the Westminster Hospital.
 "The experience of many years has conclusively proved the truth of every word said in favour of Dr. DE JONGH'S Light-Brown Cod-Liver Oil by many of our first Physicians and Chemists, thus stamping him as a high authority and an able Chemist whose investigations have been carefully examined."
 "I have found Dr. DE JONGH'S Oil a remedy of great power in the treatment of many affections of the throat and larynx, especially in consumption of the latter, where it will sustain life when everything else fails."

DR. MORELL MACKENZIE, Physician to the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat.
 "As you have called my attention to the fact that for many years in prescribing Cod-Liver Oil I have specially indicated that sold at your establishment, I cannot refuse to state my reasons for having done so."
 "These are as follow:—
 "1st. That I have found your Light-Brown Oil much more uniform in character than any other Cod-Liver Oil. 2ndly. That I have found it more uniform in the children, and 3rdly. That I have found it more easily digested than any other Cod-Liver Oil."

DR. WHITMORE, Medical Officer of Health, St. Marylebone.
 "If I were asked for an explanation of the marked success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. DE JONGH'S Light-Brown Cod-Liver Oil, I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, digestive, and restorative properties, which are found to exist in such other medicines that I am acquainted with, in such uniform combination."

DR. HARDWICK, Medical Officer of Health, Paddington.
 "In the class of tubercular diseases, including Consumption, so prevalent in our great centres of population, the use of Dr. DE JONGH'S Light-Brown Cod-Liver Oil is attended with manifold advantages; and I know of no therapeutic agent which, in connection with the other Cod-Liver Oil, is better calculated to stay the ravages of these great consuming plagues of the British Islands."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold ONLY in capuled IMPERIAL Half-Pints, 2s. 6d.; Pints, 4s. 6d.; Quarts, 8s.; by all respectable Chemists and Druggists throughout the world.
 SOLE CORRESPONDERS,
 ANSAR, HARFORD, and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON.

HOOPING-COUGH.—ROCHE'S HERBAL EMBOCCATION. The celebrated Herbarial Cure without Internal Medicine. Wholesale Agents, EDWARD D. BARNES, 23, Old Change, London. Sold retail by most Chemists. Price 4s. per bottle.

RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO, Gouty Affections, Palsy, Numbness, Paralysis, Spasms, and Chilblains.—Established nearly a Century.—WHITEHEAD'S ESSENCE OF MUSTARD, after an extensive and successful experience of nearly a century, is confidently recommended as a remedy of extraordinary efficacy. The Essence of Mustard is, perhaps, the

THE LATE MRS. ALFRED GATTY.

TRIANON-BOUS-BOIS, WHERE MARSHAL BAZAINE IS DETAINED A PRISONER.

THE FOUR SWANS, BISHOPSGATE-STREET.

The Extra Supplement.

TRIAL OF MARSHAL BAZAINE.

The scene represented in a large Engraving, which forms the Extra Supplement of this week, is the sitting of the court-martial in the hall of the Grand Trianon palace at Versailles, for the trial of Marshal Bazaine on the charges of misconduct in his command and surrender of the French army and fortress of Metz. An account of this procedure, which is likely to be continued many weeks from day to day, will be found in the letters of our Paris Correspondent. The members of the court-martial are his Royal Highness the Duke d'Aumale, president, and nine other French general officers, who sit at a curved green-baize table, having before them the defendant, with his two counsel and his aide-de-camp, at a separate table on the left hand; while the counsel for the prosecution, and General Rivière, author of the report of a Committee of the National Assembly by whom it was ordered, have their places on the right hand of the court. In the sketch by our Special Artist, from which the Engraving is drawn, the spectator's view is taken from the reporters' box, also on the right-hand side, and the foreground is occupied by their desks and chairs. One of them is a German, reporter for a Berlin journal. The stout, bald, elderly man, with black eyebrows and moustache, attired in a Field Marshal's uniform, with the broad ribbon of the Legion of Honour, is the unlucky Marshal Bazaine. He sits perfectly still, unless spoken to, with his left hand supporting his chin, attentive to all that is said or done, but seldom interfering with it. His counsel, sitting at his left hand, are Maître Lachaud, the full-faced, red-haired barrister, with double eye-glass stuck upon his nose, who is reading the brief held upright in his hands; and the son of Maître Lachaud, placed next his father; while Colonel Villette is next the younger barrister, to aid them with facts of military detail. Behind the table of the Judges, and at the back of the president's chair, is a topographical plan of Metz and its environs upon a small table, which can be moved forward. The accommodation for mere spectators is limited, but a few may be seen at the lower end of the hall.

The Grand Trianon and the Petit Trianon, the former built by Louis XIV., the latter by Louis XV., are situated within the park or gardens of Versailles, near the Grand Canal, but a mile from the Versailles Palace. The Grand Trianon was the residence of Madame de Maintenon; the Petit Trianon was the favourite retreat of Queen Marie Antoinette. They are to Versailles, in a manner, what Frogmore is to Windsor Castle. In a separate house, called the Trianon-sous-Bois, the Marshal now upon his trial is kept prisoner, but of course with ample means of personal comfort and freedom to receive the visits of his friends.

THE LATE MRS. ALFRED GATTY.

This estimable and accomplished lady, whose death was recorded last week, has long been known as one of the best authors of wholesome and pleasant reading for young people. She was a daughter of the Rev. Dr. Scott, Lord Nelson's Chaplain on board the Victory at Trafalgar. Margaret Scott, afterwards Mrs. Alfred Gatty, was born, in 1809, at her father's rectory of Burnham, in Essex. In 1839 she became the wife of the Rev. Alfred Gatty, D.D., Vicar of Ecclesfield, near Sheffield, and Sub-Dean of York Cathedral. After her marriage, and with her husband's assistance, she brought out, in 1842, the "Life of Dr. Scott," her father, which had something of an historical character. Mrs. Gatty's first independent work appeared from the press in 1851, being a graceful mélange of fanciful stories, entitled "The Fairy God-mothers, and other Tales." In 1855 she followed up this first success with the earliest of the five volumes of her "Parables from Nature." The rest followed at uncertain intervals, until the fifth series, completing the whole, appeared, just two years ago, in 1871. Mrs. Gatty, in 1856, published her "Worlds not Realised," and a year afterwards her "Proverbs Illustrated." Her next production was a tale, issued from the press in 1858, and called "The Poor Incumbent." In the same year she laid before her increasing number of readers a volume of "Legendary Tales," which were embellished by Phiz. "The Human Face Divine, and Other Tales," published in 1860, was illustrated, as were several of her subsequent volumes, by the pencil of Miss C. S. Lane. A little over a twelvemonth afterwards Mrs. Gatty brought out, in 1862, the good-humoured record of a holiday excursion in Ireland during the previous autumn, under the whimsical title of "The Old Folks From Home." During that same year she edited "Melchior's Dream," having done the like good office in 1860, when seeing through the press, this time in association once more with her husband upon the same titlepage, "The Travels and Adventures of Dr. Wolff, the Missionary." Just ten years ago, in 1863, Mrs. Gatty first brought out her work on "British Seaweeds," reprinted last year in two quarto volumes. A twelvemonth afterwards she translated, in 1864, from the French of Professor Macé, "The History of a Bit of Bread." Mrs. Gatty was by this time beginning to extend her reputation as a writer for children. "Aunt Judy's Tales" had been originally published in 1858. "Aunt Judy's Letters" still further popularised the sobriquet. From the later collection there appeared in a separate form, in 1865, "Aunt Sally's Life"—the indefatigable writer producing within the last-mentioned twelvemonth, her "Domestic Pictures and Tales." In the May of 1866 she began her well-known monthly organ for children, entitled Aunt Judy's Magazine. Selected and reprinted from "Mission Life," she passed through the press in 1869, first "The Children's Mission Army," and afterwards "Mission Shillings." During the year 1870 she penned "Waifs and Strays in Natural History," and in 1871 put together "Aunt Judy's Song-Book for Children." Three works came from her hand only last year—"A Book of Emblems, with Interpretations Thereof," a charming compilation, called "The Mother's Book of Poetry," adorned with engravings; and a sort of archaeological autograph, entitled "The Book of Sun-Dials."

The portrait of Mrs. Alfred Gatty is engraved from a photograph by Messrs. Maull and Co.

THE FOUR SWANS, BISHOPSGATE-STREET.

The tavern-life of Old London can now scarcely be traced, save in a few antiquarian records and pleasant gossip, ranging from Bishop Earle to Samuel Johnson. These thrones of human felicity, as our great lexicographer termed "tavern chairs," for ages lined the main thoroughfares of London, particularly the great leading roadway from High street, Southwark, to the northern extremity of Bishopsgate, and that still more important "main artery" which follows the course of the river from London Bridge, by way of Cheapside, Fleet-street, and the Strand, to Westminster. To the former of these localities, Bishopsgate, the accompanying illustration takes the reader. The Swan will be recollected as one of the most ancient among our signboards. For more than 500 years a house of public entertainment; for in 1323 Rose Wrytall bequeathed "the tenement of olde tyme, called the Swanne on the Hope, in Thames-street," in the parish of St. Mary-at-Hill, to maintain a priest at the altar of St. Edmund, King and Martyr, "for her soul and the souls of her husband, her father, and mother;" Eleanor Cobham, Duchess of Gloucester, in 1440, in her public penance for witchcraft and treason, landed at Old Swan, bearing a large taper, her feet bare; and Stow, in 1598, mentions the Old Swan as a great brewhouse. In the scurrilous cavalier ballad of Admiral Deane's funeral by water from Greenwich to Westminster, in June 1653, it is sung—

The Old Swan, as he passed by,
Said she would sing him a dirge, lye down and die;
Wilt thou sing to a bit of a body? quoth I,
Which nobody can deny.

The Old Swan Tavern and its landing-stairs were destroyed in the Great Fire, but rebuilt. Its token, in the Beaufoy Collection, is one of the rarest of large size. In its catalogue we find several references to "Swan" signs. This brings us to "the Four Swans" Bishopsgate, reputed to be the oldest galleried inn remaining in London.

Bishopsgate abounded with taverns of note in olden time, commencing with the London Tavern, built upon a more ancient foundation. The White Hart, Old Bethlehem, has been rebuilt in our time, and a portion of the Sir Paul Pindar remains, preserving its olden associations with the rich Knight's history, although appropriated to more humble cheer. The reader will recollect that one of the Bishopsgate inns was the London inn of Hobson, the Cambridge University carrier, who had the honour of two epitaphs written upon him; and a curious portrait of Hobson, mounted on a black nag, which was preserved for many years at his London inn, the Bull, in Bishopsgate-street. There are several engraved portraits of Hobson—that representing him in a cloak, grasping a bag of money, which print is, most probably, from the fresco figure at the Bull inn, which, in Chaloner's "English Poets," 1810, is stated as likely to be seen; but it has long since disappeared, and the Bull was more modernised than either the Green Dragon or the Four Swans Inns at a few houses distant. The Green Dragon has its outer galleries remaining, but modernised and inclosed with glass. The Four Swans is still more perfect, and is, perhaps, the most entire galleried inn which remains in the metropolis, and shows how well adapted were the inns of old for the representation of stage plays. In a gossiping volume, published in 1815, it is described as "the Four Swans, No. 83, Inn and Tavern, has good accommodation, principally for travellers."

The Four Swans was closed in June last, and has since been taken down. It contained much timber, some of the floors being three feet in thickness. Its latest appropriation was for railway traffic. Upon the site, we understand, will be erected chambers and warehouses.

That the Bull was indeed used for the purpose we have stated we have evidence, the yard having supplied a stage to our early actors before James Burbage and his fellows obtained a patent from Queen Elizabeth for erecting a permanent building for theatrical entertainments. Tarlton, the famous clown, often played here (Collier's "Annals" and Tarlton's "Jeats," by Halliwell). Anthony Bacon (the brother of Francis) lived in Bishopsgate, not far from the Bull Inn, to the great annoyance of his mother, who dreaded that the plays and interludes acted at the Bull Inn might corrupt his servants; but on her own son's account objected to the parish, as being without a godly clergyman.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

This year what is termed the "volunteer year" will, in accordance with the new regulations of the force, terminate one month earlier than formerly—viz., the 31st inst., instead of Nov. 30. On that date the returns of the strength and efficiency of every regiment in the kingdom will have to be forwarded to the War Office.

The Secretary of State for War has approved of a special capitation allowance of £2 10s. being granted on account of each officer or sergeant of volunteers, not including the permanent staff, who holds a certificate of proficiency for every year in which he earns the ordinary capitation allowance of £1 10s.

The twentieth half-yearly prize meeting of the Pimlico division of the Queen's (Westminster) was held at Wormwood-scrubbs on Monday. The challenge vase and gold medal and £3 were won by Lieutenant Laybourn; second, Private G. J. Booty; third, Lieutenant Dennis. For the money prizes, Private Hollon made seven consecutive bull's-eyes at 500 yards, and won the first prize; Lieutenant Falwasser, tying him in the aggregate score, took second prize; Private A. Black, third; Private Grover, fourth; Private Mundell, fifth; Corporal Tovey, sixth; and Private James Clothier, seventh.

The annual prize meeting of the 4th Administrative Battalion Kent Volunteers was held last week, at Sittingbourne. Forty prizes, amounting in the aggregate to about £80, were offered for competition. The weather was unfavourable for shooting. The first prize, of the value of £10, was won by Private Clayton, a recruit from the 36th (Wingham) Corps; and the second, of the value of £8, by Colour-Sergeant Honeyball, of the 16th (Sittingbourne) Corps. The remaining prizes were pretty equally divided among the representatives of the different corps of the battalion. The prizes were afterwards distributed by the commanding officer, Major Plumtre.

The annual rifle contest of the 2nd City of London was brought to a close last week at the Rainham ranges. Appended are the principal results:—Battalion prizes, value, £50—Private Holt, first; Colour-Sergeant Millard, second; Corporal Rothan third; and Corporal Green and Lance-Sergeant Brown, the fourth and fifth. The battalion challenge clock was won by B company. In the company contests the principal prizes were won as follow:—A company, Private Richardson, Colour-Sergeant Long, and Private Butler; D company, Colour-Sergeant Ellis, Sergeant Bird, and Sergeant Cheesman; F company, Lieutenant Hardy, Colour-Sergeant Froggatt, and Sergeant Lloydnock; G company, Lieutenant Brown, Staff-Sergeant Franklyn, and Corporal Hindenberg; H company, Staff-Sergeant Auley, Private Reeves, and Corporal Green; K company, Messrs. Hamilton, Harris, and Sharp.

At the prize meeting of the Ulster Rifle Association, the Clandeboy Gauntlet, presented by the Countess of Dufferin, was won by Mr. R. S. Joyce, Belfast. The Belmont Cup, presented by Mr. Thomas McClure, was carried off by Mr. Clews, of the Clydesdale Long Range Club, Scotland.

At the Hunts Quarter Sessions, on Monday, the deputy-chairman read a letter from Colonel Duncombe, M.P., wherein he tendered his resignation as chairman. The appointment of a new chairman was deferred.

Lord Aberdare, yesterday week, presented the prizes to the successful pupils in the Bristol Evening Class Association, in the Colston Hall; and on the same day the Earl of Dartmouth opened an exhibition in connection with the Huddersfield Naturalists' Society.

CURIOUS WILLS.

Among the twenty-eight thousand wills annually admitted to probate there are every year some which may fairly be called "curious wills," curious from the peculiarity and conditions of the bequests or directions. Some of these bequests or directions are simply humorous, and some are the outcroppings of the affections or antipathies of the testator. It has happened that a testator has set out in his will his opinion about some one else in so strong a manner that it amounts to a libel, but in these cases the Court has ordered the libellous matter to be expunged, so that it appears neither in the probate nor on record. Some wills are curious from their brevity, some from their prodigious length, some from being in rhyme; some testators bequeath property which they have not, in order to enable them to enjoy, while living, the considerate attentions of the expectant legatees. A Welsh gentleman, for the reason, as recited, that he might give way to the unfair importunities of his wife, secretly assigned, subject to his life interest, all his property by deed, and afterwards gracefully gave way to his wife's solicitations and made a will in her favour, which, of course, at his death, turned out unoperative. There are testators who think it necessary that posterity should not be in any doubt as to their religious belief, and accordingly occupy a page or two of their wills with an elaborate statement on the subject; some even think it necessary to set out their pedigrees at full length. Some wills are curious only from the method or arrangement of the paper or the document they are written on, and require an inspection to appreciate their peculiarity. The many ingenious ways in which, neglecting the plain way, the requirements of the Wills Act have been complied with, make up a very interesting body of cases. In writing a few articles on curious wills we shall endeavour to take our illustrations from the records of the last twenty or thirty years, and, as far as possible, to classify them; many, however, defy classification, and will in this have to form a class by themselves.

There are few wills made without some directions being given either as to the place or the manner of burial; frequently the testator desires to be buried in the same grave with his wife or some other member of his family. We remember one case where the testator directed that he should be buried in the space left for that purpose between the graves of his first and second wives, so that he should lie with one on his right hand and the other on his left. More frequently still, the direction limits the expense of the funeral; in some cases no carriages are to be used, in others the body is to be carried to the grave by persons employed on the deceased's estate; in one instance the persons so to be employed were labourers, and they were required on the occasion to wear clean white smockfrocks, and were to be paid one pound each for their trouble.

Mr. Zimmerman, whose will was proved in 1840, accompanied the directions for his funeral, in case they were not carried out, with something like a threat. In his will he says, "No person is to attend my corpse to the grave, nor is any funeral bell to be rung, and my desire is to be buried plainly, but in a decent manner; and, if this be not done, I will come again—that is to say, if I can." The Countess Dowager of Sandwich, in her will, written by herself at the age of eighty, proved in November, 1862, expresses her "wish to be buried decently and quietly—no undertaker's frauds or cheating, no scarfs, hatbands, or nonsense."

Mrs. Kitty Jenkyn Packs Reading, although evidently possessed of sufficient means, appears by her will, proved in April, 1870, to have been very anxious that one part, at least, of the expenses attending her funeral should be kept as low as possible. After saying she is to be placed first in a leaden and then in a wooden coffin, she provides that if "I die away from Branksome I wish my remains, after being duly placed in the proper coffins, to be inclosed in a plain deal box so that no one may know the contents, and conveyed by a goods-train to Poole, which will cost no more than any other package of the same weight, from Poole station said box to be conveyed in a cart to Branksome Tower." The contrivance of sending her remains in a plain deal box by a goods-train, so that it will cost no more than any other package of the same weight, and "said box" afterwards to be conveyed in a cart, sounds rather oddly in connection with the dignified name of its destination, Branksome Tower. Mrs. Reading seems to have considered the details of her funeral with much minuteness; among other things, she states "the easiest way to convey my coffin out of the house will be to take the window out of the dining-room."

Some people—we do not know whether they would rather not die—certainly would rather not be buried. Mr. J. L. Greffulhe, of Winchester-street and Cornhill, merchant, whose will was proved in October, 1867, thus directs as to the disposal of his body:—"I do not wish to be buried. I enjoin my nephews to cause my body to be embalmed and placed in a coffin, the top of which shall be glazed and net nailed down, so that the body be not deprived either of air or daylight. Subsequently to cause it to be burned, if that can be legally done." It could not be from a motive of economy, as the personal property in England was sworn under half a million sterling, and he left 400,000*l.* to be laid out in works of beneficence and charity.

Mr. William Kensett, by his will, proved in October, 1855, seems to have been of the same opinion as the members of a recently-formed club, who have pledged themselves, for sanitary reasons, to have their bodies burned at their deaths, for he recites that, "believing in the impolicy of interring the dead amidst the living, and as an example to others, I give my body, four days after death, to the directors of the Imperial Gas Company, London, to be placed in one of their retorts and consumed to ashes, and that they be paid ten pounds by my executors for the trouble this act will impose on them in so doing. Should a defence of fanaticism and superstition prevent their granting this my request, then my executors must submit to have my remains buried, in the plainest manner possible, in my family grave in St. John's-wood cemetery, to avoid in poisoning the living in that neighbourhood." Generally, the curious wills are home made. The will of Mr. Kensett was made by a solicitor.

Baroness Burdett-Coutts has sent £200 to the fund for providing better boats and fishing gear for the distressed fishermen of Baffin and Shark Islands, in the county of Galway, Ireland; and also £50 towards the fund required to defray a portion of the expenses of building a boat-slip on Shark and a pier on Baffin Island. It appears that at the former place the fishermen have to haul their boats up a cliff nearly thirty feet high.

In reply to the accusation that the sanitary arrangements of Cambridge are in the hands of a body who have taken no steps to introduce an efficient drainage scheme, the Commissioners have resolved to inform the Local Government Board that the matter has engaged their attention for years, and that they are waiting for legislative sanction to a new scheme affecting the relations of the town and University before proceeding with the diversion of the sewage from the Cam.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

As a rule it is only to conquerors, whether military or political, to whom triumphs and tributes, and what nowadays are called testimonials, are awarded. It has not been usual to celebrate a defeat by eulogistic orations and the presentation of some solid symbol of sympathy. But recently, at Tiverton, a group of Devonshire and neighbouring members assembled to feast and to present to Mr. Walrond a piece of plate of considerable value for not having succeeded in being returned for that borough at the election caused by the accession of Mr. Denman to the judicial bench. There were Sir Stafford Northcote, Sir John Kennaway, Mr. Neville-Grenville, and Mr. R. Paget, the two last coming over from Somersetshire, and they all spoke in bold strain, evidently inspired by the influence of that Conservative reaction in the existence of which they avowed their belief. Indeed, the speech of Sir Stafford Northcote, who presided, was an elaborate delivery of what may be called a negative opposition policy, which seems to consist, to use a familiar phrase, in giving the present Ministry rope enough, and in the meantime winning as many elections as possible, and in particular wresting Tiverton from the domination of the Liberals. At a gathering at Chorlton, near Manchester, last week, Mr. Birley, the Conservative member for Cottonopolis, was on the whole rather facetious on the re-entry of Mr. Bright into the Ministry. According to him, so minute is the business of the Chancellorship of the Duchy of Lancaster, that its habitat is only one very small room, with one clerk and one chair, so that when the Chancellor takes his seat in the office his solitary henchman is obliged to stand. It seemed as if Mr. Birley meant to insinuate that the position of Mr. Bright was not magnified by his possession of such a post, and that it would have been better if he had been an influence in the Cabinet without nominal office. One other thing was said by Mr. Birley which was noticeable—namely, that he was preparing himself for meeting Mr. Gladstone as a competitor in the representation of Manchester at the coming general election.

It is a tradition that the reason why a space of time not inconsiderable is allowed to enable Parliament to come together was because of the voyages and travelling difficulties to which what may be called the Ultima Thule members for Orkney and Wick must be subjected in getting to London. Nowadays, a fewer number of hours than are the days granted would suffice to enable the representatives of the Orkades and so on to reach Westminster; but membership in those regions is even now not without its dangers. At any rate, the other day Mr. Pender, who had gone down to visit his constituents at Wick, was nearly lost during a boat voyage that he was taking. However, he passed through the peril, and duly presented himself before the electors. Being a Scotsman born, of course he has a sort of right to represent a Scottish constituency; but in going to Wick he has gone so far north as, considering the greater part of his antecedents, to engender a doubt of the compatibility of the association. Certainly, if the people of Wick like an unobtrusive member, they are fitted to a nicety just now. This, however, is perhaps doubtful, if the proceedings at the meeting in question are to be a test, for it is recorded that, though his speech was received quietly, no decided feeling for or against him was exhibited while he was speaking. But, when the usual cross-examination on matters of political opinion came on, to use a mild term, the assembly became demonstrative, and the demonstration so expanded itself that the proceedings were brought to an abrupt conclusion, which is not generally the culmination of these gatherings when sufficient accord exists between representative and represented. Few private members in the House, in a quiet way, have a better position than Mr. Magniac. He does not think it necessary to babble about every subject, whether he knows anything about it radically or not; but he contents himself with coming in on appropriate occasions with practical suggestions, set forth in neat language, and with proper sequence, and, above all, he is never long realising, as it were, the saying that the man who cannot say what he wants to say in a quarter of an hour or twenty minutes knows little or nothing of his subject. Last Session, Mr. Magniac, for a short while, occupied a decidedly conspicuous attitude in the House; for when the Juries Bill was in Committee he moved an amendment, no matter what, which raised the whole question of local taxation. Thereupon there ensued a series of discussions, almost the most angry of the Session; and the Government were hard put to it, in a contest in which, so to speak, Mr. Magniac led the opposition, and showed considerably what stuff he had in him, which was very good stuff. To such a constituency as that of St. Ives he must be valuable, inasmuch as his representation of the borough adds to its importance in the Parliamentary scale.

There are many gentlemen in the House, who, physically speaking, are conspicuous figures, and whose appearance is as well known as that of the Speaker or either of the leaders of the two great political parties, but with whom the public is not at all familiar. Such a member is Sir H. Fergusson Davie, who has sat for the Haddington Burghs for some twenty-five years, who is a regular attendant, a steady Liberal vote, and most entirely taciturn. His aspect is remarkable, suggesting ideas of Don Quixote, but without anything of the ludicrous element. For, though the figure is tall and gaunt, there is in the demeanour and expression of face something which indicates the possession of that chivalric spirit with which Cervantes has toned down the comic side of his Don, while the quick, energetic movement denotes that in his day he may well have been a smart soldier. The other day Sir Fergusson Davie met some of his constituents at Jedburgh, and showed that if he has been silent in the House it is not because he is unfacile of speech, for he went through and dealt with the topics of the day, after the manner of out-of-Parliament addresses, with spirit and point. It is evident that "the old man hath much blood in him" yet. Towards the end of last Session Mr. J. Farley Leith, who since last year has sat for Aberdeen City, made some tentative speechlets. He was evidently trying his wings before attempting a long flight, for each of his addresses was more expanded than the other, and at the last he nearly reached the point of a long speech. His rhetoric is slightly rotund; but he is more earnest than lawyer members generally are in the House; and, as may be supposed, with his training, he is not likely to talk on a subject on which he was not fully informed. In the course of a circuit that he has been making amidst his constituents he was subjected to a catechism of portentous extent. As it were, he was asked to give his opinion categorically on almost every subject of legislation of the day, and he made his responses in such a manner as to justify more than usual the vote of confidence which is passed on these occasions.

It may seem almost an outrage on his dignity to speak of an Attorney-General as a pilot-balloon, but that simile somehow arose out of consideration of the recent speech of Sir John Coleridge to his constituents at Exeter. Apart from the evident desire to be pleasing and fascinating—to be, so to speak, as "silvery sweet" as possible—which characterised his address, he suggested the idea that he was charged with the deliverance of a message to the country in a matter which has been exercising the minds of those who interest themselves in it—namely, the prospects of a dissolution of Parliament. Protestating a little too much, perhaps, that he knew nothing, and that, if he knew, he could not tell, he argued demonstratively that the present Parliament was not moribund, at least so far as next year and the intentions of the Ministry were concerned. He did not, however, hint at the intentions of the Opposition and the extreme Liberal members in the House, which are quite another thing. As the question of dissolution was, at least at one time, said to turn on the success or non-success of the new Solicitor-General at Taunton, it would seem that the law officers of the Crown have been, as it were, intrusted with political and party missions of unusual importance.

MUSIC.

The second of the new series of Crystal Palace concerts, on Saturday last, was distinguished by several specialties. The fine performance of Beethoven's "Eroica" symphony, although no novelty, was in itself enough to throw a lustre over the programme. This noble work, the third of nine such compositions, is the first of them in which Beethoven exhibits entire freedom from those antecedent influences which are more or less observable in his previous orchestral works. The clear design and symmetrical proportions of the Mozart school, which had hitherto so largely governed Beethoven's style, here give way to that bold independence and vastness of expression which constantly progressed until the attainment of the climax of symphonic grandeur in the colossal No. 9, the "choral" symphony. The "Eroica" is specially interesting as illustrating Beethoven's uncompromising political principles, the work having been composed as a tribute of admiration at the early career of Napoleon Bonaparte, whose name originally formed the title of the symphony, the leaf bearing which was indignantly destroyed by Beethoven on his learning that the man whom he had supposed to be the champion of political freedom had grasped the sceptre of Imperial power. Saturday's execution of the work was in every way worthy of its merits. The concert referred to brought forward a new "Meditation" by Gounod, for violin and orchestra. This is not, like a previous piece of the kind, constructed on one of Bach's preludes, nor, indeed, on any other borrowed basis, but is an original "song without words" for a solo violin, with orchestral accompaniments. On this occasion the violin part was played by all the sixteen performers of the Crystal Palace band, affording a test of their admirable proficiency, such as has before been given by a multiplied execution of solo parts. Mdlle. Plateau, a violoncellist from the Brussels Conservatoire, made a highly successful first appearance, having been received with great and deserved applause in the execution of a fantasia by Servais. The lady produces a pure, liquid tone, and her bowing and execution are highly skilful. The vocalists were Mdlle. St. Alba, Madame Deric-Lablache, and Mr. Werrenrath. The concert commenced with Weber's overture to "Oberon," and concluded with that by Mr. J. F. Barnett, written in illustration of "A Winter's Tale," and produced at the British Orchestral Society's fifth concert, in February, when its successful performance was noticed by us.

Music, of course, formed a part of the proceedings at the military fête given at the Crystal Palace on Monday. "The Daughter of the Regiment" (in an English version) was appropriately chosen as the operatic performance on the occasion, when Mr. H. Guy, of the Royal Academy of Music, made his stage debut, and met with a favourable reception. For Thursday Sir J. Benedict's "Lily of Killarney" was announced.

M. Rivière's promenade concerts show no sign of diminished attraction. On Monday Herr Meyer Lutz's cantata, "A Legend of the Lys," was repeated; Tuesday was a "Meyerbeer night;" Wednesday, a "Beethoven night;" Thursday was rendered tributary to Sir Henry Bishop; and to-night (Saturday) is to include a selection from the works of Mr. Arthur Sullivan—Friday having been appropriated to the benefit of Mr. Carter.

The Wagner Society has just issued its prospectus of a second series of concerts, which will comprise orchestral and choral performances, to include extracts from the works of Richard Wagner, besides pieces by the great musical classics, from Bach to the present time. The excellence of the concerts given in February and March was commented on by us at the time, and their success can scarcely fail to ensure a similar result for those which are about to commence. As before, the musical direction and conductorship will be in the hands of Mr. Edward Dannreuther, whose previous admirable fulfilment of the duties proved him to possess special qualifications for them in addition to his previously known excellence as a pianist. The concerts are to take place on Nov. 14, Dec. 12, Jan. 23, Feb. 13, March 13, and April 10.

Six oratorio performances at the Royal Albert Hall, conducted by Mr. W. Carter, have been announced, to commence, on Wednesday next, with "Elijah."

M. Gounod's new series of five choral and orchestral concerts will not commence until next year. The first is announced for Feb. 7, and they will be given fortnightly. As previously stated, the composer's new music to the drama "Jeanne d'Arc" will be performed; besides various other works by him, vocal and instrumental.

We have already given the details of the arrangements for the Bristol Musical Festival, which commences on Tuesday next.

THEATRES.

OPERA COMIQUE.

On Saturday Madame Ristori appeared in a new part and a new play, entitled "Renée of France and the Huguenots" ("Renata di Francia e gli Ugonotti"). The new drama consists of five acts and a prologue, and is written by Paolo Giacometti, who has evidently a vein for historical pieces. But we cannot greatly congratulate him on his successful working of the same, for he fails to show that restraint and reticence on which so much of the result of art depends. Our own Shakespeare stands at the head of all historical dramatists, and his method of operation is altogether different from that of Giacometti, who rather resembles our great poet's predecessors than himself. We allude to the chronicle playwrights whose popularity induced Shakespeare to improve upon the hint, and to produce such dramas as "King John," "Richard II.," the two parts of "Henry IV.," "Richard III.," and "Henry VIII." Signor Giacometti resembles more the unknown writer of the three parts of "Henry VI.," which are included in Shakespeare's works, but were merely adopted by him, and perhaps slightly touched up, for performance at his theatre, in pursuance of his duties as manager. Their popularity having demonstrated that historical subjects were likely to be successful, he naturally proceeded on the suggestion, and, in the works we have mentioned, left us an example of how it should be carried out. He skilfully mingled with them the ideal element, and left room for individual portraiture, such as that of Falstaff, thus modifying the fact by the addition of illustrative fiction, and of characters simply introduced for dramatic purposes. Signor Giacometti has no notion of this, but confines himself to historic persons and situations, intending nothing more than their representation on the stage. Moreover, he writes in prose, and makes no attempt at poetic elevation, either in language or sentiment. His characters appear in groups, and are subordinate to the events. The individuality of the former have therefore to be suggested by the actors, each of whom has his place on the canvas, as a portion of the picture, and no more. Great pains are taken to explain the historical situation, and the dialogue for the most part is accordingly of the narrative sort. All this is doubtless done with a certain degree of skill; but it is not poetry, it is not drama—it is merely an acted chronicle. Six acts of such matter inevitably try the patience of an audience, and, though it may instruct, can scarcely amuse them. The part which Madame Ristori supports is itself interesting: it is that of Renée, Duchess of Montargis, who, as the victim of Catherine de Medicis, is made to promote, unconsciously, the conspiracy against the Huguenots which that infamous woman had contrived, in complicity with Charles IX., whose hypocrisy is broadly intimated by word and gesture. This wily monarch is admirably impersonated by M. Edoardo Majeroni, whose tall figure and stately action give dignity to the various situations in which he assists. The next character of importance is that of Jane of Albrete, Queen of Navarre (Madame Gilda Lucchini), to whom Renée is made to bear a fatal present—a pair of perfumed gloves, which poison her while she smells at them. The death of this personage, and Renée's anguish in consequence, occur at the end of the third act, which closes with decided effect. What follows, giving the horrible details leading up to the massacre and attending it, in a series of stage evolutions, is not calculated to please. The lesson, however, which the whole play is designed to teach may be needed at this moment, when much of reaction is attempted, both in this country and others. If, however, the lesson is to be taught by this drama, nothing can be clearer than that it should be condensed, abridged, and in great part rewritten. The play, such as it is, has been nobly placed on the boards, and is nobly acted by a well-chosen company, each member of which strove to the utmost for the prosperity of the performance. The play itself is not a good one, though it contains the materials for a better.

A new piece by Arthur A'Beckett was produced at the Court Theatre on Tuesday, entitled "On Strike." It claims to be "an entirely new and original social problem." Its novelty, we take it, is like that of the New River, and its originality such as pertains to comic writing in general—only by very fine degrees to be distinguished from the very old and much worn, when about to be transformed by its transmigration into a fresh and probably less worthy vehicle. Its treatment is life-like, but extremely literal. Mr. Byron's comedy, "About Town," preceded, and it was followed by "The Happy Land," which last, however, is announced to be withdrawn in a few nights.

We have to record the reading from memory of "Hamlet," on Monday, at the Hanover-square Rooms, by Mr. Faed, who comes before us with testimonials from the provinces, and performs wonders as a reciter. At the Queen's Concert Rooms Mr. Mark Twain was engaged by Mr. George Dolby to deliver a lecture of a humorous character, the subject being "Our Fellow-Savages of the Sandwich Islands." Mr. Twain states that he has spent several months in the islands, and describes them with that wit and point which have already contributed so much to his celebrity. His lecture was attended on Monday by a very numerous and fashionable audience.

APPLE HARVEST IN NORMANDY.

The gifts of the bountiful soil are apt to be gathered by rustic mankind with peculiar demonstrations of festive gratitude when they administer something to drink. It is the vintage, even more than the wheat harvest, that invites the village youth and lusty manhood of a southern country to kick up their heels with joy and to indulge in customary frolics of the season. Hop-picking, as we have heard from travellers in Kent, is likewise attended with a good deal of fun, inasmuch as hops go to make beer, and beer goes to make people jolly; and there is a fine old English song about "the free and bearded barley," which is declared to be "the monarch of them all." But take boat from Southampton or Newhaven to cross the Channel, and ask your neighbours in Normandy what they would like to drink! Some degenerate Normans, or rather Frenchmen, would bespeak the petit verre de cognac—nay, the more pernicious absinthe might be chosen for a passing sip at the café table; but we should expect that the genuine peasantry, their country's pride, would choose a cool, deep draught of their country's cider; and we hope it will do them good! There must and shall be cakes and ale in this world, or some of us will know the reason why, in spite of the annual meeting, last Tuesday, of the "United Kingdom Alliance for the Suppression of the Liquor Traffic." But we are in Normandy just now, helping to pick up the apples for cider-making, as the other day we assisted in Burgundy to carry off a load of ripe grapes for the manufacture of generous wine. Beer, indeed, is our national beverage, and we are not ashamed to own it; yet cider has its servants and votaries in the western shires of England, as well as beyond the Channel. The scene which our illustration brings to view is only the feast and revel after the apple-gathering in a Norman village. We shall give some representations of the process of cider manufacture.

The Duke of Cambridge, on Tuesday, held a review of the troops at Woolwich, and this was followed by an inspection of the gentlemen cadets at the Royal Military Academy, and by an award of commissions in the scientific corps. The Empress Eugénie was present with her son. The Duke, in addressing the cadets who are about to receive commissions, told those who were destined for the Royal Artillery that no artillery in the world could for efficiency be compared with our own. The regulation sword for exemplary conduct and the Pollock gold medal were awarded to Mr. M. Sankey as the most distinguished cadet. The Commander-in-Chief afterwards remained in conversation with Prince Louis Napoleon, while a gymnastic display was in progress. The following cadets were recommended to receive commissions in the order of merit as given:—For Royal Engineers: M. H. P. H. Sankey, Hon. M. H. Talbot, A. L. Mein, F. N. Maude, H. L. Mulholland, S. A. E. Hickson, G. C. P. Onslow, W. F. H. Stafford, E. A. Waller, A. H. Kenney, R. A. Wahab, W. A. E. St. Clair, G. A. Tower, E. S. E. Childers, C. V. Wingfield-Stratford, C. Maxwell, and W. Coles. For Royal Artillery: T. S. Baldock, Hughes E. Vaughan, W. A. G. Saunders, J. A. Grieve, B. O. Cochrane, W. F. Cleeve, T. S. Lett, F. C. Farmer, E. Gunner, E. Hardy, St. J. St. G. Ord, A. Burton, H. Burton, E. G. Edwards, A. M. Carden, W. R. M. Daunt, J. H. Whipple, F. Waldron, G. W. B. Howard-Vyse, J. D. Wright, R. A. Rigg, E. V. Blachett, W. C. Brown, H. R. Ross, W. G. De Jersey, and E. J. K. Priestley. Cadets T. S. Baldock, Vaughan-Hughes, and Saunders obtained sufficient marks to entitle them to receive commissions in the Royal Engineers, but they elected to be appointed to the Royal Artillery.

A BUSY DAY IN NORMANDY AFTER THE APPLE HARVEST.

THE TRIAL OF

MR. RUSSELL BAZAINE.

THE ARTISTS' CORNER IN THE CRYPT OF ST. PAUL'S: THE GRAVE OF LANDSEER.

FUNERAL OF SIR EDWIN LANDSEER, R.A.

The funeral of this eminent artist, whose portrait and memoir appeared in our last, took place, on Saturday, in the crypt of St. Paul's Cathedral. His body was there laid near those of Reynolds, Opie, West, Fuseli, Lawrence, Turner, and other painters; Vandyke also was buried in old St. Paul's, but his tomb was destroyed by the Great Fire of London.

The funeral procession started at a quarter past ten from Sir Edwin Landseer's house in St. John's-wood; it was four mourning-coaches. The first was occupied by Sir Edwin Landseer's brothers and sisters, Mr. Charles Landseer, R.A., Mr. Thomas Landseer (Associate Engraver of the Royal Academy), Miss Landseer, and Mrs. Mackenzie; the second by Mr. Edwin Mackenzie, Mr. Landseer Mackenzie, and Mr. John Webb; and the third by Dr. Humby, Mr. Hills, Mr. Arnold White, and Mr. John Pye. In the fourth coach were Colonel the Hon. A. Liddell and Colonel the Hon. A. Ellis, representing her Majesty and the Prince of Wales. The hearse and these mourning-coaches proceeded by Portland-place and Regent-street to Trafalgar-square. Some of the Regent-street shops were partially closed, and the blinds of many houses were drawn down. The print-sellers, dealers in artists' colours, furriers, and other tradesmen, had placed mourning-shutters against their shop windows; and flags were displayed half-mast high. Waterloo-place, where several carriages joined the procession, as well as the east end of Pall-mall, was filled with people waiting to see the hearse pass. A black line of twelve mourning-coaches was drawn up in Trafalgar-square before the National Gallery, to receive the Royal Academicians, who entered them as they arrived, and sat waiting till the hearse came. Here the concourse was great; the crowd was thick upon the steps of St. Martin's Church. At last the hearse and its following entered Trafalgar-square; the bell of St. Martin's tolled; the Academicians, in their mourning-coaches, fell into the procession, which moved on. The dead hand of Landseer was carried past its mighty work—the lions which guard the column; they had mourning-wreaths in their jaws.

The cathedral had filled with people, all dressed in black, long before twelve o'clock. The choir was thronged with the painter's personal friends, but the crowd was great under the dome and all the way to the great west doors, which stood wide open. Along the way kept clear through the centre of the cathedral was visible the white group of cathedral clergy and choristers waiting by the great doors to receive the coffin. This did not enter the cathedral till half-past twelve, but at last the chant of the choristers told that the coffin was moving between the crowds of people towards the choir. The procession moved slowly up the great aisle of the cathedral and across the space under the dome. The men and boys of the choir, singing from their books, walked first, then Bishop Claughton, Canon Gregory, and Minor Canons Webber, Milman, Povah, Calvert, and Simpson. Behind the surpliced procession rose the black-palld coffin, followed by the long line of mourners. The pall was carried by Sir Francis Grant, as President, and by Mr. Webster, Mr. Redgrave, Mr. Cope, and Mr. Marshall, as the five senior members of the Academy present. A long double line of Academicians and Associates, clad in heavy scarves and weepers, followed the mourners of Sir Edwin Landseer's family, whom we have named. Upon the black pall of the coffin lay a heap of flowers, a great cross of white camellias, and wreaths of violets and immortelles.

Two of the wreaths were laid there for the Queen and Prince of Wales by Colonel Liddell and Colonel Ellis, who walked next to the mourners of the family. The wreath sent by her Majesty bore the following inscription:—"A Tribute of Friendship and Admiration for great Talents. From Queen Victoria." The Royal Academy was present in the persons of Sir Francis Grant, its president, and not less than twenty-six of its Academicians, fifteen of its Associates, and its two Associate Engravers—forty-four members in all, out of a total of sixty-three. The Academicians present were—Sir Francis Grant, Messrs. Cope, Cooke, Cooper, Calderon, Dobson, Elmore, Frith, Fied, Frost, Goodall, Herbert, Horley, Charles Landseer, Lewis, Marshall, Millais, Pickersgill, Redgrave, Richmond, Smirke, Sant, Street, Stocks, Webster, Weekes, and Wells. The Associates present were—Messrs. Le Jeune, Stephens, Pettie, Yeames, Durham, Armitage, Leslie, Orchardson, Poynter, Cole, Marks, Walker, Woolner, Sir John Gilbert, Mr. Shaw, and the two Associate Engravers, Messrs. Thomas Landseer and Barlow. Among the other persons were noticed Mr. Robert Browning, Lord Granville, Lord Westminster, Lord Hardinge, and Sir William Codrington. As the procession entered the choir the singing ended, and the great organ took up the service with deeper music. The closing of the great west doors sent a shade through the cathedral, and, while the organ pealed, the flower-laden coffin was set down on the bier before the altar-steps, where a grave-like aperture, descending to the crypt, had been lined and surrounded with black cloth. Bishop Claughton having read the Lesson, the choir chanted the mournful sentences beginning, "Man that is born of a woman," and then a crowd of undertakers' men surrounded the coffin; the pall, lettered silver on its black with the monogram "E. L.," was taken away, and the polished oak and silver handles of the coffin were seen. The flowers were again heaped on the lid, which bears a silver plate, inscribed—

HOGARTH'S HOUSE AT CHISWICK.

EDWIN LANDSEER,
Born March 7th, 1802,
Died October 1st, 1873,

and the coffin was lowered down the black opening till it rested on a bier in the crypt. Standing by the grave before the altar, Bishop Claughton read the words beginning, "Forasmuch as it hath pleased Almighty God," a verger with a crape-wrapped mace throwing the usual three handfuls of earth at the words, "Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust." The clause, "I heard a voice from heaven," was taken up by the organ and choir. The prayers and collects followed, and, after an anthem, Bishop Claughton gave the blessing. The service was over, but for some time the organ played, rolling through the cathedral the wailing music of the Dead March in "Saul." The chief mourners were admitted first to the crypt, and Sir Edwin Landseer's friends looked down into his grave. It is distant but a few feet from those of Sir Joshua Reynolds, Sir Thomas Lawrence, and Joseph Mallord William Turner; it is not far from that of Sir Christopher Wren.

The service was admirably conducted, the singing being excellent, and the choir including Mr. Walker and the whole musical staff of the cathedral. The anthem was "His body is buried in peace, but his soul liveth for evermore." Dr. Stainer and Mr. Cooper were the organists, and gave Croft and Purcell's music with beautiful effect. The crowd round the cathedral and on Ludgate-hill was great, but was quiet and orderly, and easily managed. Messrs. George Smith and Son, of Great Portland-street, were the undertakers.

HOGARTH'S VILLA, CHISWICK.

The truthful English artist of the last century, who painted the common life and manners of his countrymen with a pencil and colours, as Chaucer had done in the fourteenth century, with the same humorous shrewdness, in his pleasant Canterbury Tales, and as Charles Dickens has again done for us in his delightful stories—William Hogarth is the artist we mean—was not interred in St. Paul's. His tomb is in the old churchyard of Chiswick, with an epitaph written by his friend David Garrick; there lies the mortality of him who created those powerful scenes and figures, the sincerest and most faithful efforts of moral satire, which exposed Vice in all her coarseness, foulness, and baseness, helping good Samuel Johnson, and good John Wesley, and gentle Goldsmith and Cowper to bring Virtue into fashion during the reign of George III. The painter of "Marriage à la Mode," of "The Rake's Progress," and of "The Two Apprentices," he who did more than a dozen bishops of that day for the cause of true religion and morality, and for the cause of patriotism as much as Lord Chatham, is not yet forgotten like mere Academician artists. William Hogarth, it is well known, was a thorough Londoner, born in St. Bartholomew's parish in 1697, and bred in the City; he usually dwelt, when he had grown prosperous and famous, in Leicester-fields, near Sir Joshua Reynolds, and near Captain Coram, the benevolent founder of the Foundling, whose portrait Hogarth loved to draw, for he loved the noble charity of that tender-hearted English sailor. But Hogarth had bought a small house at Chiswick in 1750, and here he used to spend the summer months; he remained here during a greater part of the year as his life declined, and retirement became more congenial to him; here, too, he met the engravers who came to retouch his favourite plates; and from this house, on the day before his death, Oct. 25, 1764, he was removed, to die in Leicester-fields, now called Leicester-square. The funeral procession, as we have observed, did not convey his body to St. Paul's Cathedral, where it would still have been neighbour to Reynolds, but carried it home to quiet Chiswick; and this was just as well, for Hogarth never liked pomp and fussy grandeur. His widow lived on, twenty-five years after him, in the little house at Chiswick, which is preserved, and has its place among the subjects of our illustrations this week. Perhaps the next generation will like to remember the houses where John Leech once lived, in Brunswick-square and in Kensington, and that of George Cruikshank, in Hampstead-road, Camden Town.

SYNODS.

The English Synod of the United Presbyterian Church was opened at Sunderland on Monday. The Rev. Geo. Bell, Newcastle, in his opening address as Moderator, treated exhaustively the question of union, and advocated the formation of an Imperial Council of the three Churches of England, Scotland, and Ireland, to meet annually in London, Edinburgh, or Dublin; the object of which would be to promote united action on all important questions. Presbyterianism had had no small share in throwing off the yoke of Popery in the past, and, for the furtherance of this work in future, such a council would be a great assistance.

The business meetings of the Congregational Union of England and Wales were begun, on Tuesday morning, in Tackett-street Chapel, Ipswich, in the presence of 500 delegates and a large gathering of the public. The chairman for this year—the Rev. Eustace R. Conder, M.A., of Leeds—after devotional preliminaries, delivered the opening address. Having referred to the new ground which the Union occupies this year, the rev. gentleman dealt a blow at Ritualism, "which had a more serious name among their fathers," and then went on to speak of the decay of systematic theology. The theology of the future must, he said, be human, harmonising with all true science.

The Baptist Union of Great Britain and Ireland has held its autumnal session this week in Nottingham. About 500 delegates were present. On Monday evening the Rev. J. Clifford, M.A., LL.B., of London, preached the customary preliminary sermon to a large congregation, in Derby-road Chapel. The proceedings were carried on from day to day, ending, on Friday morning, at a public breakfast, given by Mr. W. Foster, the Mayor of Nottingham.

The Presbytery of Edinburgh had before it, on Thursday week, the case of the Rev. Dr. Wallace, Professor of Church History in Edinburgh University. The Presbytery agreed to take no further action, at the same time cautioning Dr. Wallace to be careful to use language that could not be liable to misconception.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of the Right Hon. Augusta Ann Countess of Kenmare, of No. 11, Belgrave-square, widow, was proved on the 6th inst. by the Right Hon. Valentine Augustus, Earl of Kenmare, the nephew, the sole executor, the personality being sworn under £25,000. Subject to some legacies, the deceased Countess has given all her property to her said nephew.

The will and codicil of Lady Caroline Murray (daughter of the third Earl of Mansfield), late of Ashurst Lodge, Sunninghill, Berks, were proved on the 28th ult. by Lady Elizabeth Anne Murray, the sister, Henry David Erskine, and the Earl of Yarmouth, the nephew, the executors, the personality being sworn under £25,000. After giving legacies to her sister, nephews, nieces, and other relations, the testatrix leaves the residue to her sister, the said Lady Elizabeth Anne Murray.

The will and codicil of Mrs. Anne Ayrton, late of No. 4, Arundel-gardens, Kensington, were proved on the 1st inst. by the Rev. George Percy Badger and Edward Lambert, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £70,000. The testatrix bequeaths to each of her daughters £10,000, to Mr. Badger £10,000, and there are a few other legacies. The residue of her estate she leaves to her son Frederick Ayrton.

The will, with three codicils, of Lady Isabella Mary Ann FitzGibbon, late of No. 35, Lowndes-square, was proved on the 11th inst. by Elizabeth Catherine Baroness de Cetto, Robert Hunt, the Dowager Baroness Cremorne, and the Countess of Kimberley, the surviving executors, the personal estate being sworn under £70,000. There are very numerous legacies, both pecuniary and specific, among the former being one of £50 to the Rev. R. Burgess for the poor-box of St. Luke's, Chelsea. The residue of her property testatrix gives to her niece the Countess of Kimberley.

The will and codicil of the Rev. Charles Steers Peel, Rector of Rousham, Oxford, were proved on the 11th inst. by the Rev. Francis William Peel, the brother, and William Peel, the executors, the personality, including leaseholds, being sworn under £35,000. The testator provides that, in the event of his leaving any children, his property is to go in the same way as it would have done if he had died intestate; but if he leaves no children, then he leaves to his widow £2000 and the income of the rest of his property for life; and at her death, subject to some legacies to his sisters, his nephew Frank Steers Peel takes the freehold, copyhold, and leasehold, and a moiety of the personal, and his nephew Spencer William Peel the other moiety.

The will of Mrs. Jemima Mary Bacon Ciocci, formerly the wife of Raffaele Ciocci, late of Yarmouth, Norfolk, was proved, on the 25th ult., under £25,000.

The will of Colonel Charles James Robarts has been proved under £20,000.

POST-OFFICE NOTICES.

On Nov. 1 next and thenceforward money orders may be obtained at any money-order office in the United Kingdom on the post office of Port Louis, in Mauritius, at the same rates of charge and under the same regulations as those already in force with other colonies between which and this country money-order business is transacted. Money orders may also be obtained at the post office of Port Louis on any money-order office in the United Kingdom.

The packets of the Pacific Steam Navigation Company will, for the present, touch at St. Vincent, Cape de Verd, on their voyages from Liverpool to South America. Advantage will, therefore, be taken of the opportunity to forward mails for St. Vincent by these packets, and they will be made up in London on Tuesday evening, until further notice. The rates of postage will be the same as by packet, via Southampton.

Copies of a new book of the tariff and regulations applicable to telegrams sent from the United Kingdom to foreign parts, together with a list of foreign telegraph stations, can be had on application to the secretary of the General Post Office, London, price 2s. a copy, or by post 2s. 3d.

Glasgow is this year to have a musical festival, the profits of which will be devoted to paying off the debt on the new infirmary in that city.

Tuesday, which was the last or added day of the Feast of Tabernacles, and was the day distinguished by the title of Feast of the Law, closed the season of the Jewish festivals, which began with the first day of the civil year on the 22nd ult.

Sommambulism has been pleaded as the excuse of a sentry at Woolwich Arsenal for absenting himself from his post and marching four miles in the direction of Bexley Heath, in full uniform, and carrying his rifle at the trail.

In the Mansfield Townhall, on Tuesday, the Duke of St. Albans presented the prizes to the successful students of the night art-class connected with the Mechanics' Institute. There was a crowded audience, including many ladies. His Grace was accompanied to the platform by Mr. Henry Cole, C.B.

The deerstalking season at Invercauld was wound up last Saturday by a grand deer drive in the forest. Viscountess Folkestone again proved herself the crack shot of the party, and singled out and brought down some beautiful stags with her rifle as the herd drove past. The company were entertained at dinner in the evening at Invercauld House by Colonel Farquharson. During the week no fewer than twenty four fine stags were shot.

All who have been intimately connected with the fine arts during the last thirty years will regret to learn that the widow of the late Mr. Henry Murray is in destitute circumstances. Mr. Murray was a well-known art-critic, and for several years the esteemed honorary secretary of the Graphic Society. Mr. Murray's long-declining health required the unremitting and devoted attention of his wife; this was given, and everything gradually sacrificed to pressing need. An attempt is now being made to raise a fund for Mrs. Murray, and subscriptions will be received by John Foley, Esq., R.A., 10, Osnaburgh-street.

The annual meeting of the United Kingdom Alliance was held on Tuesday at Manchester. The general council met in the Free Trade Hall, in the forenoon, under the presidency of Sir W. C. Trevelyan, and received the annual report of the executive committee, which stated that the only object of the Alliance is to secure the enactment of a measure prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors. The financial position of the organisation was reported to be satisfactory, the income being £27,500 and the expenditure £22,500. Sir Wilfrid Lawson, in moving a resolution reaffirming the conviction of the Alliance as to the justice, the policy, and the necessity of the legislative suppression of the liquor traffic, said it was the duty of the Alliance from its headquarters, whenever there was a chance of doing so, to give their friends throughout the country a fair opportunity of supporting their principles. The resolution was passed, as were also resolutions thanking Sir Wilfrid Lawson and those members of the House of Commons who supported the motion for the second reading of the Permissive Bill.

WORK, WAGES, AND PRICES.

Both masters and men in the Staffordshire iron trade have agreed that wages for the next three months shall remain at their present rate.

Mr. Rupert Kettle, arbitrator in the ironworkers' wages question, has decided against the reduction of 12½ per cent claimed by the masters on the ground of the bad prospects of trade, remarking that the employers have not satisfied him that a reduction is economically right or commercially expedient. Dear coal and pig-iron have affected a few works which are disadvantageously placed with their contracts, a risk which the capitalist must take. Mr. Kettle finds the average price of finished iron higher than in April. The downward movement in the iron trade, he states, which is so much dreaded as a result of high prices, has not begun. His award, therefore, is that the present rate of wages continue over the current quarter.

At the Miners' Conference at Bristol, yesterday week, a discussion took place upon the hours of work, and it was resolved that the matter be referred to the executive to urge upon every district to carry out the Regulation of Mines Act for boys, whose hours are restricted to fifty-four per week, and to bring the Act into operation with respect to the men. Resolutions were adopted on Saturday in favour of an alteration of the special rules of the Mines Act, payment of wages in coin, abolition of "truck," payment of compensation for injuries in mines, the repeal of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, and the amendment of the Masters and Servants Act. On Monday Messrs. Halliday and G. Pickard were appointed as delegates to attend the Sheffield Trades Congress in January of next year. A resolution in favour of the formation of boards of conciliation and arbitration was passed. The proposal to found a mining school was again brought forward by the president, who advised that each miner should give 1s., with another 3d. per head annually for scientific teachers. Mr. Handel Cosham, a local colliery proprietor, suggested that in each district there should be a small school. He said he had had the eight-hours system and the weighing machine in operation for twenty years, and found them work admirably. He strongly condemned the discharge-note system. It was resolved that, in the event of a general election taking place before the next conference, Mr. T. Halliday and Mr. W. Pickard be brought forward as candidates of the working man. On Tuesday the delegate from St. Helens stated that the proprietors of the Evans Colliery, Haydock, had refused to adopt the system of weighing the coal; and, after a discussion, an amendment was carried instructing the men, who number nearly 600, to strike, after giving fourteen days' notice, in the event of the firm refusing to come to a satisfactory arrangement with them on this matter. It was stated that one hundred men were at present on strike for this reason at Radley's collieries, St. Helens. With regard to the Burnley strike, it was intimated that the executive of the miners' association would do all they could to help the Cornish men who had gone to that town to leave as soon as their contracts were fulfilled, and a resolution was carried by acclamation that subscriptions should be raised for the Burnley miners and distributed to them at once.

A slater at Dundee who had gone to Barrow-in-Furness, where his employers had a contract, without receiving permission from his brother unionists, was fined £3 and expelled from the union for so doing. His employers having no fault to find with him, however, the expelled unionist remained in their employment until twenty of his fellow-workmen compelled the firm to dismiss him by threatening to strike if he was retained in their service. The injured man caused summonses to be served on the leading office-bearers of the slaters' union in an action for damages; and the unionists have thought it prudent, in the circumstances, to receive him back into the union and pay the whole costs of the proceedings that had been taken, which are said to amount to between £30 and £40.

Sir Stafford Northcote presided, on Monday, at an agricultural meeting near Torrington, and spoke at length on questions of public interest. He urged the farmers to co-operate in efforts for self-protection, without looking to Parliament or the Government. He advised the production of a greater quantity of meat to supply the increasing demand caused by the prosperity of the country. He did not overlook the labour question—in reference to which another telegram states that a large number of labourers and artisans have left Exeter, intending to work in the Lancashire collieries at 7s. per day.

Statute fairs, though yearly becoming obsolete, are still held in England, and one of these antiquated labour markets, at which young men and women stand in rows to be hired, was held on Monday at Warwick. The attendance was smaller than usual; but the increased wages demanded by the raw lads and lasses did not, in spite of recent agitations by the union, meet the acquiescence of employers.

The Emigration Commissioners have, by the desire of the Colonial Secretary, published a notice respecting the return of British emigrants from Brazil. Thirty-six families, consisting of 164 persons, have had a free passage home, after having met with much suffering and disappointment.

Ten sailors have been sentenced to seven days' imprisonment by the Southampton magistrates for refusing to work on Sundays on board the steamer Liffey while on a voyage from Brazil to Southampton. They pleaded that under the Act of Charles II. they were prohibited from following their employment on Sundays, but this plea was rejected. Notices of appeal, however, was given on behalf of the men.

The Board of Trade surveyors at Liverpool have reported that the fore-castle of the Mary Ida, which five seamen complained of as unfit to live in, is not constructed according to the Board of Trade requirements, and that it is badly lighted and ventilated and has no drainage. The vessel will be kept in the river until the necessary improvements are made.

During a Board of Trade inquiry at Liverpool, on Tuesday, into the loss of the schooner Coquette, bound from Ramsay for Workington, it was stated that, though her registered tonnage was only forty, she was laden with seventy-five tons of iron ore, and leaked badly when she left.

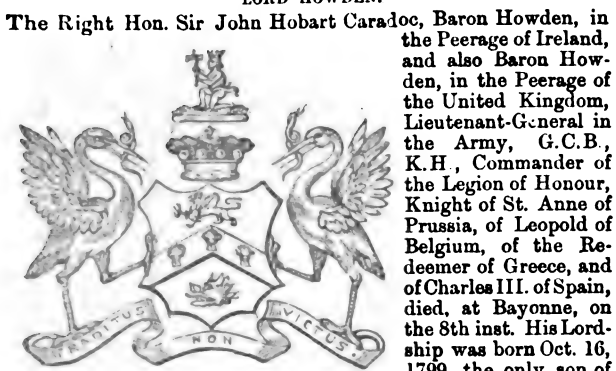

Messrs. William Adams and Son were the architects of the North Cambridgeshire Cottage Hospital at Wisbech, of which we gave an Engraving last week.

Last Saturday the foundation-stone of the new Roman Catholic Church of St. James was laid in Church-street, Pendleton, by Dr. Vaughan, Roman Catholic Bishop of Salford. It will be in the Early English style of architecture, and will seat about 700 people. In connection with the church will be a house for the clergy, a sacristy, and a choristers' vestry, and the estimated cost is between £5000 and £6000.

Differences of opinion arose at an Amnesty and Home Rule meeting in Cork on Sunday. The Nationalists were disinclined to hear the arguments of the Home Rulers, and the only sort of harmony between the two sides was in their combined opposition to the advocates of Communism, one of whom, a Mr. Maroney, "of London," was driven from the platform by Home Rulers and Nationalists in a determined body.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

LORD HOWDEN.

The Right Hon. Sir John Hobart Cradock, Baron Howden, in the Peerage of Ireland, and also Baron Howden, in the Peerage of the United Kingdom, Lieutenant-General in the Army, G.C.B., K.H., Commander of the Legion of Honour, Knight of St. Anne of Prussia, of Leopold of Belgium, of the Redeemer of Greece, and of Charles III. of Spain, died, at Bayonne, on the 8th inst. His Lordship was born Oct. 16, 1799, the only son of the well-known General Sir John Francis Cradock (son of Dr. Cradock, Archbishop of Dublin), by Theodosia Sarah Frances, his wife, daughter of John, first Earl of Clanwilliam. Sir John Cradock, created G.C.B. for his distinguished services in Egypt, was made a peer of Ireland in 1819, and of the United Kingdom in 1831. The nobleman whose death we record succeeded to those honours at the death of his father, July, 1839. He entered the Army in 1815, and acted as A.D.C., first, to the Duke of Wellington with the army of occupation in France, and afterwards to Viscount Beresford in Portugal. In 1827 he was present, as Military Commissioner, and was wounded, at the battle of Navarino; and in 1832 he served, also as Military Commissioner, at the headquarters of the French army at the siege of Antwerp. His diplomatic services extended over several years; after having been employed at Berlin and Paris, he was sent, in 1847, as Envoy to the Emperor of Brazil; and, in 1850, as British Minister to Spain, where he remained till 1858. For twenty years his Lordship was Equerry to the late Duchess of Kent. Lord Howden married, Jan. 11, 1830, Catherine, Princess Bagration, daughter of Paul, Count Skavronsky and great-niece of Prince Potemkin, but was left a widower, without issue, June 2, 1857. By his Lordship's decease his Peerage honours become extinct.

GENERAL HAY.

Lieutenant-General Charles Craufurd Ruse Hay, Colonel of the 93rd Highlanders, commanding H.M. forces, Cape of Good Hope, and Lieutenant-Governor, died, on the 27th ult., at Freshwater, Isle of Wight, aged sixty-four, shortly after his return from the Cape. General Hay was a son of the late General Sir James Hay, K.H., and belonged to a junior branch of the family of Hay, of which General the Marquis of Tweeddale, K.T., G.C.B., is the chief. He entered the Army in 1824, as Ensign in the 19th Regiment, and retired in 1854. His commissions bore date as follows:—Ensign 1824, Lieutenant 1825, Captain 1826, Major 1837, Lieutenant-Colonel 1842, Colonel 1854, Major-General 1858, Lieutenant-General 1867, and Colonel 93rd Highlanders 1868. From 1854 to 1867, he held the appointment of Inspector-General of Musketry and chief of the new school of musketry at Hythe. The General married, in 1844, Ellen Frances, daughter of the late Major-General Sir Charles Ashworth, K.C.B., by whom he leaves two sons and three daughters.

MAJOR-GENERAL FYLER.

Major-General Lawrence Fyler, C.B., who died recently, at Tunbridge Wells, had served with distinction in the 16th Lancers, the 3rd Light Dragoons, and 12th Lancers—in India with the 16th during the campaign in Afghanistan; at the battle of Maharajpore (Dec. 29, 1843); during the campaign on the Sutlej in 1846; and at the battles of Buddiwal and Aliwal, at which last he was severely wounded. He went through the Punjab campaign, in 1848-9, with the 3rd Light Dragoons, and was in the Crimea with the 12th Lancers from May 17, 1855. In recognition of his military services he received, in 1869, the decoration of C.B., and was one of the officers receiving the rewards for "distinguished and meritorious services." Major-General Fyler was second son of Samuel Fyler, Esq., of Twickenham, by Margaret, his second wife, daughter of Hugo Arnot, Esq. He married, in 1836, Amelia, daughter of the Hon. John Byng, and had one daughter.

MR. GEORGE ORMEROD.

George Ormerod, Esq., of Sedbury Park, in the county of Gloucester, and Tyldesley, in the county of Lancaster, D.C.L., F.R.S., F.S.A., died on the 9th inst., at his seat, Sedbury Park, near Chesham. This gentleman, the author of "The History of Cheshire," was known for more than fifty years as one of the most accomplished and learned of county archaeologists. His celebrated work on Cheshire was published in 1819, and is considered one of the most important of our great county histories. Mr. Ormerod, who represented a junior branch of the ancient family of Ormerod of Ormerod, was born Oct. 20, 1785, the only child of George Ormerod, Esq., of Bury, by Elizabeth, his wife, daughter of Thomas Johnson, Esq., of Tyldesley. He was educated at Brasenose College, Oxford, and at an early period showed his tastes for heraldry and topography. He married, Aug. 2, 1808, Sarah, eldest daughter of John Latham, M.D., F.R.S., of Bradwall, Cheshire, by whom (who died April 11, 1860) he had seven sons and three daughters. The eldest son, the Ven. Thomas Johnson Ormerod, M.A., J.P., Archdeacon of Suffolk, born July 27, 1809, married, Jan. 25, 1838, Maria Susan, eldest daughter of Sir Joseph Bailey, Bart., M.P., of Glanusk Park, and has issue.

MR. PICKERSGILL-CUNLIFFE.

John Cunliffe Pickersgill-Cunliffe, Esq., of Portland-place and Hooley House, Coulsdon, Surrey, died, on the 6th inst., from the results of an accident on the railway at Caterham junction on the 22nd ult. The unfortunate gentleman was born March 28, 1819, the second son of the late John Pickersgill, Esq., of Netherne House, Surrey, and Tavistock-square, London, by Sophia, his wife, daughter of John Cunliffe, Esq., of High House, Addingham, Yorkshire. In 1867 he assumed by Royal license the additional surname and arms of Cunliffe. For many years at the head of the influential American banking firm of John Pickersgill and Sons, he retired not very long back, with a large fortune. He married, Jan. 30, 1849, Helen Hutton, second daughter of the late Rev. Canon Dale, of St. Paul's Cathedral, and leaves a large family.

Lieutenant-General Sir A. J. Lawrence presided at a largely-attended meeting in the Western Hall, Guildford, on Monday night, in aid of a proposed Soldiers' Institute at Portsmouth. Addresses in favour of the movement were delivered by the chairman, General Wilmot, Miss Robinson, of Guildford (who is well known from her efforts for the moral and religious improvement of the soldiers engaged in the late autumn manoeuvres), Major Elliott, Dr. Monnell, the Rev. Messrs. Hart and Trimmer, and Mr. Macdonald. A liberal collection was made in behalf of the movement.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed "To the Editor of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS," &c., and have the word "Chess" legibly written on the outside of the envelope.
R. H. H. V., Vossler, A. Wood, and Others.—See notice to R. D. B., M. A., and others in our last.
C. Cooke; D. O. W., Ipswich.—It shall be examined.
D. M. E.—At any time, with much pleasure.
The Solution of Problem No. 1545 has been received from Taffy—C. B.—L. S. D.—Mercurio—H. E.—Signa—Box and Cox—Ingh—Rev. M. Clare—Idie—Jerry—J. W. of Canterbury—W. Furnival—Bison—E. T. H.—Ferdinand and Miranda—A. Wood—R. D. T.—T. Wilson Morris—W. V. G. D.—J. Allaire—J. C. W.—M. P.—Q. R. D.—H. Bee—W. Acton—Newbold of Sheffield—W. Alroy—Queen's Kt.—C. J. P. D.—E. G. Brook—R. B. Searle—Amphletton—G. M. D.—Phiz—Hermes—Iota—Pangloss—Ralph and Mabel—Simcox—Latimer—A. W. Addison—Peterkin—Manfred and Man Friday—Emile Frau.
* We have not space this week to answer a title of our Chess correspondents.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1546.

WHITE.	BLACK.	WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Q to K R 7th	K to Q 4th*	3. P takes P (ch),	K to K 5th, or
2. Q to Q B 7th	P to Q B 4th, or	or Q to K B	K to Q 4th
	K to K 5th	4th (ch)
		4. Q to K B 4th	or K 5th. Mate.

*1. Q to K R 7th P to K 4th†
2. Q to K B 7th P takes P (ch), or P to Q B 4th
3. R takes P (ch), or P takes Q B P, K to K 4th, or K dis. ch
4. B to K 5th, or Q to Q 7th. Mate.

†1. P takes P, dble ch P to Q B 4th K to K 4th
2. P takes P, dble ch K to K 4th 3. Q to K B 7th K to K 5th
4. Q to K B 4th. Mate.

PROBLEM NO. 1547.

By the Rev. H. BOLTON.

In compliance with the request of several correspondents we propose to reprint a few of Mr. Bolton's least known compositions.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

This position first appeared in a collection made by Mr. Lewis in 1827.

VIENNA CHESS TOURNEY.

The following is one of the Games between Messrs. BLACKBURNE and ROSENTHAL in the last round.—(Allgaier Gambit.)

WHITE (Mr. B.)	BLACK (Mr. R.)	WHITE (Mr. B.)	BLACK (Mr. R.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th	12. Q takes B P	P to Q B 3rd
2. P to K B 4th	P takes P	13. Kt to K B 5th	Q to K 3rd
3. Kt to K B 3rd	P to K Kt 4th	14. B to K 2nd	P to Q 4th
4. P to K R 4th	P to Kt 5th	15. B to K Kt 4th	Q to K B 3rd
5. Kt to K 5th	Q to K 2nd	16. P to Q 4th	B takes Kt
		17. B takes B	B to Q 3rd
		18. Q to K Kt 4th	R to K B sq
		19. Q to K R 5th (ch)	Q to K B 2nd
		After this move White has no resource. His game is altogether irretrievable.
		20. B to K Kt 4th	Q takes Q
		21. R takes Q (ch)	K to Q 2nd
		22. B to K R 6th	Kt to Q R 3rd
		23. B to K Kt 4th (ch)	Kt to Q B 2nd
		24. B takes R	R takes B
		25. Kt to K 2nd	Kt to K Kt 6th
		26. K to Q 2nd	Kt to K B 3 (ch), and Black wins.

An interesting variation on the routine defences of this gambit:
6. Kt takes K Kt P P to K B 4th
7. Kt to K B 2nd P takes P
8. Kt to Q B 3rd Kt to K B 3rd
9. Kt to K Kt 4th Kt to K R 4th
Mr. Rosenthal's play in this game, as in several other games of this tournament, is of a very high character.

BRISTOL AND CLIFTON CHESS ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the members of this body was held, a few days since, at the Fine Arts Academy—the Rev. A. C. Rowley in the chair.
Mr. E. M. Bantfield, the hon. secretary, read the report, which said:—"The Committee of the Bristol and Clifton Chess Association have much pleasure in announcing to the members that the second year of the club's formation, just closed, has been highly satisfactory. We have had many new members. We now number ninety-eight. The committee have to regret the loss the club has sustained by the death of two members—General Goodwyn (president of the Bath Club, and originator of the friendly matches that have taken place with that club) and Mr. R. E. Ferrier (one of the oldest members of the Bristol Chess Club); and also by the removal of several from Bristol. Perhaps there has never been such a year for chess in Bristol before. The season was opened by a match with the Bath Club, which resulted in favour of your association by nine games; and in the return match, played at Bath, in February, the Bristol players were again victorious, scoring thirty-five games, against twenty-seven scored by their opponents. The annual soiree, in December, was in every way the most prosperous one that has ever been held in Bristol. The annual tournament commenced in January; twenty-six members entered, and some capital play took place. There have been also two other tournaments during the year, for which the club are indebted to the kindness of the Rev. J. Greene and Mr. Lee, who presented the prizes. The Counties' Chess Association met here in August, and it was the largest and most successful meeting they have ever had. Play was commenced on Monday evening, Aug. 4, and continued on each evening during the week. Three members of the association entered the first class, Mr. W. Thomson, Mr. J. Burt, and the Rev. A. C. Rowley; Mr. Thomson tied with Mr. Minchin for the third prize. In the second class there were eight entries; Mr. L. Moseley won the first prize (scoring eleven games and a half out of twelve played), Mr. W. Berry won the third, and Mr. W. Tribe the fourth. In the third class there were only four entries, and, consequently, only one prize, which was won by Mr. W. Hibbins."

Mr. W. Tribe, the treasurer, read the accounts.
The report and accounts having been adopted, some alterations were made in the rules.

Mr. Burt then suggested that the committee should invite the Counties Chess Association to hold their 1875 meeting in Bristol; should endeavour to continue the matches between the Bath and Bristol clubs; and should institute a champion prize and a circulating library in connection with the association.

Mr. Berry suggested that the association should invite the British Chess Association to visit Bristol in the same year as the meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science would be held in Bristol.

Various other suggestions were made.
The committee and officers for the ensuing year were then elected, and thanks to the chairman closed the proceedings.

CITY OF LONDON CHESS CLUB.—The members of this numerous and spirited club gave a dinner to the English chess representatives at the Vienna Chess Congress on Wednesday last. The report of this entertainment reached us too late for publication in the present number, but it shall be noticed in our next.

MATCH BETWEEN THE EAST AND WEST OF SCOTLAND.—A contest between the players of the East and West of Scotland has been arranged, and is to come off in Edinburgh next month. There are to be twelve competitors on each side. The exact date of the tournament has not been fixed, but it will be made known next week.

ELECTION NEWS.

The polling for Taunton took place on Monday, when 1711 electors recorded their votes. Of these 899 exercised the franchise in favour of the Solicitor-General, while the supporters of Sir Alfred Slade numbered 812. On leaving Taunton, the Solicitor-General received a spontaneous demonstration of goodwill from his constituents, who escorted him to the railway station with banners, cheering him loudly as the train departed.

The writ for Birmingham was received on Tuesday night by the Mayor, who has fixed the nomination for Saturday (to-day), when it is expected that Mr. Bright will be returned unopposed. It is announced that Mr. Bright will address his constituents next Wednesday. The meeting at which he will speak will be held in Bingley Hall, the largest building in Birmingham. Mr. Bright has appointed Mr. Carmichael, of the Admiralty, to be his private secretary. Mr. Carmichael held the same appointment under the late Chancellor, Mr. Childers.

The writ for Hull arrived on Tuesday. Saturday (to-day) has been fixed for the nomination, and the election will take place on Wednesday next.

Mr. Forsyth, the defeated candidate for Bath, has issued an address of thanks to his supporters, in which he bids them a respectful farewell. He attributes his defeat to the fact that many electors did not keep their promise to vote for him.

The return of Mr. Alsopp as Conservative member for East Staffordshire was celebrated at Lichfield, on Tuesday night, by a banquet, at which several members of Parliament were present. Colonel Dyott, M.P., was in the chair.

Mr. H. W. Ripley, who was returned for Bradford in 1868, and unseated on petition early in 1869, has issued an address, offering himself as a candidate for the representation of that borough in case of a general election.

The banquet given by Mr. E. Samuelson, the Mayor of Liverpool, to the Earl of Derby, on Thursday, was on a magnificent scale, but did not partake in the least degree of a political character. The object was to pay a compliment to a nobleman who has always evinced a warm interest in the concerns of the town and port, and who is one of the largest landowners in the district. About 300 guests were invited, including the Lord Mayors of London, Dublin, and Cork, the High Sheriffs of Lancashire and the adjoining counties, and the leading magistrates of the neighbourhood.

The Attorney-General responded to the toast of "The House of Commons" at a luncheon given on Saturday by the Exeter School Board to celebrate the laying of the foundation-stones of four new schools in that city. The learned gentleman, speaking of the generally accepted idea that the present was a "dying Parliament," reminded his hearers that it was elected as lately as November, 1868, and therefore had still two years of constitutional life in it. He ventured to predict that it would survive the termination even of the Tichborne trial. The Education Act of 1870, Sir John Coleridge said, was the work of the entire House of Commons, without distinction of party. That statute had traced the outlines and laid the foundations of a great system of national education, and it had done something to allay an obvious danger and wipe away the greatest scandal of this age and of this country. Whatever of injustice there may be in the Act (Sir John added), let it be made out by fair argument, only let it be sustained with reason, and neither House of Parliament will willingly let an injustice remain. It would be impossible for any Government either to put forward, or, if it put forward, to carry, an absolute Parliamentary prohibition of the element of religion of some kind in the national schools of this country.

Mr. Baxter, M.P., addressed a public meeting at Dundee, on Monday evening, taking for his subject "The Best Way of Developing Improved Political and Commercial Relations between Great Britain and the United States." Its substance consisted of an essay, written in 1868, in response to an offer of a gold medal from the Cobden Club for the best composition on this question. Mr. Baxter was one of the competitors, and in his paper he advocated, inter alia, a series of remedial measures for the distress and the discontent which had become almost chronic in Ireland—measures calculated to obliterate the memory of former wrongs, and to show the world that England was earnestly solicitous to atone for the past, and to act justly, liberally, and generously in the future. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to the right hon. gentleman.

A new life-boat, named the John Keble, the cost of which has been defrayed by members of the family of the late author of "The Christian Year," has been stationed at Dunwich.

An Order in Council, published in the Gazette, approves a recommendation of the Lords of the Admiralty that the number of Lieutenants of the Navy to be allowed to retire on exceptional terms be increased, in consequence of the large number of applications sent in—from 80 to 110—such retirements to take effect from the 1st inst.

THE ASHANTEE WAR.

The preparations in our military arsenals for the expedition to the Gold Coast of West Africa have been carried on with the diligence before observed. In the Laboratory of the Royal Arsenal at Woolwich, under the superintendence of Colonel Milward, R.A., C.B., are now erected a series of ingeniously contrived machines for manufacturing buck-shot by pressing and punching them out of cold lead, instead of casting them in moulds, the means by which the first supply was obtained. The cast shot were found to be not always true to gauge, and consequently the cartridges into which they were made were not so accurate in size and form as they were required to be. Lathes used for other purposes have consequently been re-adapted—first, for rolling the metal into long rods; secondly, for compressing these rods into bands, with the little bullets stamped in relief upon them; thirdly, for punching out these bullets, which is the prettiest process of the whole; fourthly, for rolling them between steel plates until they are correctly rounded and of exact size; and, finally, for polishing them and giving them a coat of black lead. The machines are erected and at work in the section of the huge factory where the conical expanding rifle bullets have been manufactured for many years past, and are still being made. Nine million cartridges for the Martini-Henry rifle have been ordered upon this occasion. Our illustrations of the breechloading-cartridge-making machinery represent four processes: first, that of the lead-squirting machine to produce the coils of lead which are to be cut into bullets; secondly is shown the front of a bullet-punching machine, in the first operation; thirdly, the same machine in the second operation; fourthly, the front of the machine in which the bullet is softened by warming it, while the plug, to aid its expansion when the shot is fired, is pressed into the base of the bullet. This breechloading-rifle ammunition is for the use of the British troops, while the buck-shot, to be fired from old-fashioned smooth-bore muskets, will do very well for the Houssas and Fantees in our service.

The men of the Royal Engineers who have volunteered to serve in this war are clothed in the new uniform adopted for the expedition—a tunic and trousers of the Elcho grey tweed and gaiters, in which they much resemble the London Scottish Volunteers. They wear the new-pattern helmet, designed for the service by an officer at the Royal Army Clothing Depot at Pimlico, and mainly composed of cork and canvas. The helmet weighs a little over six ounces, and is provided with an inner isolated cone to fit the head, outside of which there is a space for ventilation, an object further ensured by a perforation at the top. All the British soldiers employed in the expedition will be provided with this outfit, and puggerees and cap-covers of white linen, padded with wadding, to protect the head and neck. They will have no fatigue-cap, except their own regimental one, which they may wear at pleasure, but every man will have two suits of clothing. The tunic introduces a novelty into the uniform of the army, in the shape of outside pockets, of which there are three, one on each hip and one on the left breast, wide, deep, and strong.

The garment fits loosely about the neck and chest, it is confined at the waist by a belt of its own material, there is no stiffness in the collar, and it is a comfortable and serviceable dress. The soldiers who have been fitted with it highly approve of the pockets.

The country of the Ashantees, beyond the dense forest which secludes the interior of West Africa from the British settlements on the Gold Coast, has been described by travellers as possessing many natural advantages of position, soil, and climate, with abundant mineral wealth. Coomassie, its chief town, and the capital of King Kofi Kankali, is distant from Cape Coast Castle but 133 miles in a horizontal line, or 187 miles by the forest path. This town is built on high ground encompassed with marshes or creeks of a river; the town itself, defended by an earthen wall, is about a mile and a half long by a mile broad. The streets are wide, the houses are mostly uniform in structure, and built in blocks or squares. The side next the street is called a public seat, the floor of which is raised two or three feet above the street level, and open to it, so as to afford persons walking through the town ready protection from the rain or sun. The front is also ornamented with rude geometrical figures in relief, coloured with red, and above the ground floor whitewashed. At one side of the public seat is a door communicating with the inner square. The rooms on three sides of this are open on the inside, and occupied day and night by the several members of the household. The open space of the square is used for cooking and other domestic purposes. The framework of the house is of sapling timber, fastened together with cordage made from climbing plants, and thatched with bamboo leaves woven into a kind of matting. The Ashantees are not an utterly savage race, but have lately gained some knowledge of the useful arts from their Mohammedan neighbours to the north. We present a view of the market-place at Coomassie, and some drawings of a collection of West African native utensils, implements, weapons, and articles of dress, which do not all belong to the Ashantee nation.

The following description of a visit to the King of Ashantee some years ago has recently been published:—
When a stranger of any distinction arrives in Coomassie, the King gives him what is called a public reception, and the writer received this mark of honour from his Majesty Quaco Duah, in the centre of the town. When the stranger arrived upon the spot he found the King seated upon an artificial turret of earth, surrounded by a few of his principal chiefs and some thousands of the people. The King and chiefs sat each under a large umbrella, five or six feet in diameter, made of cloth of divers colours, the one used by the King being made of silk velvet. Some of them have small flaps attached to the edges, and diminutive mirrors fastened to the flaps, reflecting inwardly, whether for ornament or use is not known. These umbrellas are not only a protection from the sun and rain, but are also badges of authority or rank, as they are surmounted by a kind of armorial bearings, in the shape of rudely-carved and gilt figures of animals and other objects. Each chief was fanned by two slaves, one on each side, and the whole company was seated in a semicircular form, in the midst of which a narrow open space was left for the stranger to pass and pay his respects to the chiefs. This was done in the Ashantee manner, by putting out his right hand; when opposite the King he uncovered his head and bowed in the English manner. Arriving at the outskirts of the crowd, he took his seat, when the King sent some palm wine for the stranger to drink his health, and, this being done, the whole company marched past: the chiefs returned the salutation; some of them bade him welcome, and one of them honoured him with a war-dance, during which he frequently flourished his sword in the air—sometimes too near to be at all agreeable, but which, however, was obliged to be borne, as it was to do him honour. At last the King passed by, bowing and smiling right royally. In the procession were carried the chairs or thrones of the deceased monarchs of Ashantee, which were profusely ornamented with gold and silver, various articles of European manufacture—as richly inlaid boxes, silver vases, and, among other things, the portrait of Queen Victoria, beautifully framed in gilt, and carried in an upright position between two men. Each chief, as well as the King, had his body-guard around him, with their muskets and martial music, consisting of gong-gongs, drums, horns, and cymbals. These retainers called over the names and rehearsed the mighty deeds of their several masters. There was also in each chief's company a death-drum, ornamented with skulls and various other parts of the human skeleton, and clotted all over with the blood of the numerous victims whose death-signal it had given. Some of the horns (made from the tusks of elephants) had human jaw-bones fastened upon them. The whole scene was rude and barbarous in the extreme, and well calculated to excite the nervous system. When the public reception had been given and received, the stranger was allowed to move freely about the town.

OLD CALABAR, WEST COAST OF AFRICA.

OLD CALABAR.

The Upper Guinea coasts of West Africa being connected at this time with so frequent a topic of discussion as the Ashantee war, there is something opportune in our view of Old Calabar, though an interval of some ten degrees of longitude, near the Equator, where such degrees are widest, separates this place from Cape Coast Castle. It is in the Bight of Biafra, near the island of Fernando Po, around which that vast angular recess of the African Continent from the Atlantic Ocean, which is called the Gulf of Guinea, bends from its upper line of west-and-east to take a north-and-south direction in the shore of Lower Guinea. The Calabar river, like other rivers on this coast, which reach the sea through a maze of mangrove swamps, has several different mouths and channels in its lower course. It meets the Atlantic in latitude 4 deg. 30 min. N., and longitude 8 deg. 50 min. E. The main stream, formerly called the Cross River when the inland country was less known, is navigable by steamers 200 miles; but the Old Calabar River can only be ascended thirty miles from the sea. Duke Town, with 2000 inhabitants, is six miles up, and Creek Town five miles beyond; here the European traders buy palm oil of the negroes, while the missionaries preach to them, and teach them to read the Bible; which dealings, in both cases, are better at any rate than the slave trade, once the great business of Old Calabar. The soil is loose and sandy, but fertile of most tropical products. There are few trees, but abundance of brushwood: in this river is bred that singular animal, the manatee, with its odd flippers and enormous head. What is called New Calabar, a hundred miles west of Old Calabar, is but one of the mouths of the Niger or Quorra; another is the neighbouring river of Bonny. These places are quite out of the reach of Ashantee hostilities; they are nearer to the large native kingdom of Dahomey, but do not properly belong to the Gold Coast.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1782.—VOL. LXIII.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1873.

WITH
EXTRA SUPPLEMENT {SIXPENCE.
By Post, 6d.

MARSHAL BAZAINE COMING FROM HIS TRIAL AT THE GRAND TRIANON, VERSAILLES.

BIRTHS.

On the 17th inst., at Portreath, Cornwall, the wife of the Rev. Vyvyan Wallis Popham, of a daughter.

On the 18th inst., at Oporto, the wife of Augustus Joseph Shore, of a daughter.

On the 20th ult., at Candilli, on the Bosphorus, the wife of George H. Clifton, Esq., of a son.

On the 18th inst., at Markgate-street, near Dunstable, the wife of Norman S. Kerr, M.D., F.R.S., of a daughter.

On the 20th inst., at 41, South-street, Park-lane, Viscountess Downe, of a daughter.

On the 18th inst., the Countess of Normanton, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 22nd inst., at St. Peter's, Eaton-square, Chamberlain Brabazon Ponsonby, late of the 10th Hussars, to the Hon. Mary S. E. Plunkett, eldest daughter of Lord Dunsany.

On the 20th inst., at the Pro Cathedral, Kensington, James FitzGerald Leonard, J.P., Chevalier Legion d'Honneur, Southill, Upper Rathmines, Dublin, to Sarah, eldest daughter of the late Michael Barry, Esq.

DEATHS.

On the 20th ult., at his residence, Beaulieu, Jersey, Francis Bertram, Esq., aged 93 years.

On the 17th inst., at 23, Royal York-crescent, Clifton, Isabella Frances, the beloved wife of Anthony Cliffe, Esq., of Bellevue, in the county of Wexford, Ireland, aged 77 years. R.I.P.

On the 20th inst., at her residence, Crofton Court, Orpington, Kent, Ann, the relict of John Francis Skeggs, Esq., of Farnborough and Orpington, Kent, after fifteen months' great suffering, borne with exemplary patience. Regretted by those who knew her sterling worth and her many thoughtful and kind acts.

On the 17th inst., at Breacat Lodge, in the county of Antrim, Ireland, Sir Francis Hawtry Cox, Bart., aged 57.

* The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOV. 1.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 26.
Twentieth Sunday after Trinity.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., the Rev. W. G. Humphrey, Prebendary, Vicar of St. Martin-in-the-Fields; 3.15 p.m., the Right Rev. Bishop Clifton; 7 p.m., the Rev. Canon Alfred Barry, Principal of King's College.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., the Rev. Canon Conway; 3 p.m., the Rev. J. W. Reeve, Chaplain to the Queen.
St. James's, noon, the Rev. Robinson Duckworth.
Whitehall, 11 a.m., the Rev. W. F. Erskine Knollys; 3 p.m., the Rev. Francis Garden, Sub-Dean of the Chapels Royal.
Savoy, closed.
Temple Church, 11 a.m., probably, the Rev. Dr. Vaughan, Master of the Temple; 3 p.m., the Rev. Alfred Ainger, Reader at the Temple.
French Anglican Church of St. John ("La Savoy"), Bloomsbury-street, services in French, 11 a.m. and 3.30 p.m., by the Rev. F. B. W. Bonverie, Incumbent.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 27.
Dudley Gallery, Exhibition of Oil-Paintings opens.
Medical Society, 8 p.m.
French Plays begin at the Holborn Theatre.
St. Thomas's Choral Society, commencement of season, 8.30 p.m. (Randelger's "Fridolin").
Photographic Society's Exhibition, open daily till Nov. 15.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 28.
St. Simon and St. Jude, Apostles.
Streatham Races, October meeting.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 29.
Moon's first quarter, 0.10 a.m.
Hare-hunting begins.
Oxford Poultry and Pigeon Show (two days).
Lincoln Races, autumn meeting (three days).
St. George's Hall, 8 p.m., "Musical Evening."
Dr. B. Behr on German Literature at Willis's Rooms, 8 p.m.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 30.
Asylum for Idiots, Earlswood, autumnal election at London Tavern, noon.
Dramatic Authors' Society, 2.30 p.m.
Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, 8 p.m. (Handel's "Theodora").
Lincoln Races, autumn meeting.
Meeting at the Mansion House respecting elections to charities, 2.0 p.m.
London Church Choir Association, festival at St. Paul's, evening.
Crystal Palace: "Il Trovatore," 3 p.m. Great Fireworks.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 31.
Luis I., King of Portugal, born, 1838.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1.
All Saints.
National Gallery reopens.
Royal Horticultural Society, promenade, 2 p.m.
Crystal Palace: Fifth Saturday Concert, 3 p.m.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE
NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.
Lat. 51° 28' 6" N.; Long. 0° 18' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF			THERMOM.		WIND.		General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.	Inches.	In.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Minimum, read at 10 a.m.	Maximum, read at 10 p.m.
October	15 29.952	43.8	42.7	76	6	31.9	54.5	SW. SSW.	73	.030
	16 30.045	44.7	41.3	79	1	36.4	58.0	SSW.	49	.000
	17 30.050	46.6	44.4	73	4	33.1	58.4	SSW. SW.	115	.000
	18 30.010	52.3	49.1	70	8	44.2	50.3	SSW. W.	111	.000
	19 30.162	50.4	48.7	74	10	48.6	52.6	NNE.	183	.085
	20 29.865	47.4	34.5	74	7	53.5		SW. WNW.	283	.000
	21 29.662	44.5	42.4	78	10	37.2	53.0	WSW. SW.	468	.214

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten a.m.:

Barometer (in inches) corrected	29.974	30.059	30.139	30.008	30.218	29.813	29.855
Temperature of Air	46.0	42.7	47.0	54.7	49.3	52.6	46.3
Temperature of Evaporation	43.9	42.4	45.8	52.1	48.4	52.7	45.9
Direction of Wind	SW.	SSW.	SSW.	SSW.	W.	WSW.	W.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER IN LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 1.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
4 32	4 50	5 10	5 32	5 55	6 22	6 52
10 10	10 15	10 15	10 15	10 15	10 15	10 15
4 32	4 50	5 10	5 32	5 55	6 22	6 52

STEAM.—LONDON TO CALCUTTA Direct, via Suez Canal.—CARLISLE BROTHERS and CO'S DUCAL LINE OF STEAMSHIPS. These magnificent, full-powered steamships have been built expressly for the trade, and will be found on inspection as fine and substantial vessels as have ever been built in this country. The cabins are elegant, light, and commodious, with every convenience for tropical climates, and are placed amidships, where there is the least motion. Each steamer is provided with bath-rooms (hot and cold water) and lee-houses, and carries a surgeon and stewardess.

	Tons.	Captain.	To Sail.
Duke of Argyll	3015	Barrie	Oct. 31.
Duke of Devonshire	3015	—	Nov. 30.
Duke of Buccleuch	3015	—	—
Duke of Lancaster	3015	—	—
Duke of Sutherland	3015	Edward	Sailed.

The Duke of Argyll will leave the Victoria Dock on Nov. 1; last shipping day, Oct. 31. Rates of passage, for first-class passengers, 40s., 50s., and 55s., according to the accommodation required. For further particulars apply to Messrs. D. & W. Greenfield, and Co., No. 1, East India Avenue, Leadenhall-street, London, E.C.; and No. 2, Drury-lane, Liverpool.

DORE'S GREAT PICTURE of "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRETORIUM," with "The Night of the Crucifixion," "Christian Martyrs," "F. Anceca di Rimini," "Neophyte," "Andromeda," &c., at the DORE GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Ten to Six. Admission, 1s.

WILL CLOSE ON SATURDAY, NOV. 1.

ELIJAH WALTON.—EXHIBITION, including "A Storm at Sea" and "A Sand Storm in the Desert," and many New and Important Drawings, Alphas and Eastern, NOW OPEN at BURLINGTON GALLERY, 191, Piccadilly. Ten to Six. Admission, with Catalogue, 1s.

NINTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS BY BRITISH AND FOREIGN ARTISTS is NOW OPEN at T. M'LEAN'S NEW GALLERY, 7, Haymarket. Admission 1s., including Catalogue.

L. R. J. SIMMS, the Author, will deliver an Illustrated FREE LECTURE on PHYSIOGNOMY in WESTBOURNE HALL, Westbourne, Baywater, W., London, on MONDAY EVENING, OCT. 27, at Eight o'clock. The lecture will be given on the evening of the week. Physiological Charts and Diagrams of the face given daily in the Hall after Monday.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Bateman. Every Evening, at Eight, RICHELIEU—Richelieu, Mr. Henry Irving; Messrs. Henry Clayton, Beaumont, Henry Forrester, J. B. Howard, F. Charles, Carter, F. F. Edgar, and Conway; Miss Le Thiere and Miss Le Thiere. Scene by Messrs. C. F. and H. Cuthbert. Music by Mr. Robert Stoeckel. Preceded, at Seven, by SIX MONTHS AGO—Mr. John Clayton, Mr. Webber; and Miss St. Ange. Conclude with SIMPSON AND CO.—Messrs. Beveridge, Carter, Miss Pannecott, Miss Le Thiere, and Miss St. Ange. Box-office open from Ten till Five.

LYCEUM.—RICHELIEU.—MORNING PERFORMANCE. In compliance with the expressed wish of many distinguished and influential families, a Morning Representation of Lord Lytton's Play will take place on SATURDAY NEXT, NOV. 1. Doors open at 1.30; commence at Two o'clock precisely. Places can now be secured at Box-office and Libraries. Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Bateman.

THEATRE ROYAL DRURY-LANE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, F. B. Chatterton.—MORNING PERFORMANCE on MONDAY, NOV. 10. ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA.—Triumphant success of "Antony and Cleopatra," unanimously pronounced by the public press to be the grandest and most gorgeous spectacle ever witnessed on the stage of Old Drury.—On MONDAY NEXT, and during the Week, will be performed Shakespeare's Tragedy of ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA, concentrated into Four Acts and Twelve Scenes by Mr. Andrew Halliday, illustrated with New and Characteristic Scenery by Mr. William Beverly. The cast will include Mr. James Anderson, Messrs. Ryder, H. Russell, A. Glover, Reynolds, Dolman, J. Morris, Shore, Ford, Lockford, Milton, Sargent, H. Clifford, and Mr. Sinclair; Miss Wallis, Modestine Banks, E. Stuart, Melville, Adeline Gadda, &c. The performance will commence with a Farce Musical Extravaganza, in one act, entitled NOBODY IN LONDON. To conclude with the Farce of MY HEART'S IN THE HIGHLANDS. Prices, from Sixpence to Five Guineas. Doors open at Half-past Six, commence at Seven. Box-office open from Ten till Five daily.

NATIONAL STANDARD THEATRE, Bishopsgate. Last Nights of the eminent Tragedian, Mr. Creswick, who will appear each evening with his son, Mr. Charles E. Creswick, and Mrs. Charles Viner, in a Legitimate Play. The Adelphi Drama, THE WANDERING JEW, on MONDAY, NOV. 3. Adelphi Artists, Secenery, and Appearances.

S. T. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly. Every Night at Eight; Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays, Three and Eight. ALL THE YEAR ROUND. THE LONGEST ESTABLISHED AND MOST POPULAR ENTERTAINMENT IN THE WORLD. THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS. NOW IN THE NINTH YEAR OF ONE CONTINUOUS SEASON AT THIS HALL, an event altogether unparalleled in the history of the world's amusements. NO FEES OR EXTRA CHARGES. LADIES CAN RETAIN THEIR BONNETS IN ALL PARTS OF THE HALL. New and Luxurious Private Boxes, acknowledged to be the finest in London, 21 li. 6d. to 12 li. 6d.; Parterres, 5s.; Sofa Stalls, 2s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Tickets and places at Mitchell's, 35, Old Bond-street; Ollivier's, Old Bond-street; and at Austin's, St. James's Hall, from Nine a.m. till Ten p.m.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY. Conductor, Mr. Barnby. THURSDAY NEXT, OCT. 30, at Eight o'clock, Handel's THEODORA (with additional accompaniments by Dr. Ferdinand Hiller). Madams Otto-Ashford, Miss Julia Elton, Miss Dimes, Mr. W. H. Cummings, and Mr. Thurlay Bosc. Tickets, 1s. to 5s.; Boxes, 10s. to 12s. 6d.; and 12s. 6d. to 15s. 6d.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets at Novello's, 1, Berners-street, and 55, Poultry, the usual agents, and at the Royal Albert Hall.

MONTHLY POPULAR CONCERTS, Brixton.—Fifth Season.—Director, Mr. RIDLEY PRENTICE.—FIRST CONCERT, TUESDAY EVENING, OCT. 28. Hear strains, Mrs. Hale, &c. Tickets—Season, 21s., 12s. 6d.; Single, 5s., 2s. 6d., 1s.; of Mr. Ridley Prentice, 30a, Wimpole-street, W.

NOW READY,
THE
ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK
FOR 1874,
PRICE ONE SHILLING, FREE BY POST, 1s. 2d., CONTAINING
SIX COLOURED PICTURES,
PRINTED BY LIGHTON BROTHERS' CHROMATIC PROCESS;
TWELVE ILLUSTRATIONS OF MARRIAGE CUSTOMS,
AS READINGS TO THE CALENDAR, BY J. JACKSON;
TWELVE FINE-ART ENGRAVINGS;
ASTRONOMICAL DIAGRAMS OF REMARKABLE PHENOMENA,
WITH EXPLANATORY NOTES;

The Royal Family of Great Britain; the Queen's Household; her Majesty's Ministers; Lists of Public Offices and Officers; Bankers; Law and University Terms; Fixed and Movable Festivals; Anniversaries; Acts of Parliament passed during the Session of 1873; Revenue and Expenditure; Obituary of Eminent Persons; Christian, Jewish, and Mohammedan Calendars; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Government Duties; Times of High Water; Post-Office Regulations; together with a large amount of useful and valuable information, which has during the past twenty-nine years made the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK the most acceptable and elegant companion to the library or drawing-room table; whilst it is universally acknowledged to be by far the cheapest Almanack ever published.

The unprecedented demand for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK year after year stimulates the Proprietor to still greater exertions to secure for this Almanack a reception as favourable as that which has hitherto placed its circulation second only to that of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is inclosed in an elegant cover, printed in Colours by the same process as the SIX COLOURED PLATES, and forms a charming and pleasing ornament to the drawing-room table.

The SHILLING ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is published at the Office of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 198, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1873.

As the very bold but extremely doubtful experiment which is designed to lay a basis for the future constitution, government, and policy of France draws to its final crisis, uncertainty and excitement very naturally agitate the minds of all classes of the nation. We take the true bearing of that experiment to be whether the French community, as a whole, will submit to the imposition upon it of a sovereignty to which its assent has not been asked, and, if asked, would assuredly be refused. It may be that the course resolved upon by the Parliamentary partisans of Monarchy may suit the present circumstances, and may hereafter win the sympathy and loyalty of the French people. It may be that the understanding arrived at between the Comte de Chambord and his supporters in the National Assembly comprehends a rational guarantee of all the civil, social, political, and religious liberties which the laws of France, as they now stand, are supposed to secure. It may be that the sincere purpose, both of those who presume to give away the Crown and of him who ventures to accept it at their hands, is to govern the affairs of that great nation in accordance with those general principles of policy which may be said to have received the stamp of European sanction. No one interested in the wellbeing of France will be otherwise than delighted to find that in the progress of events this desideratum is realised. Nevertheless, it is always a dangerous thing to prescribe for a nation, in direct defiance of its own wishes, what shall be its future political constitution, and by what organic institutions, and with a view to what primary objects, it shall be permanently ruled. The responsibility is vast, the success is doubtful; and failure, if failure should ensue, will bring with it calamities which may extend into the experience of two or three generations.

The real question which is now agitating France, its centre is one which goes far deeper than to forms of government—deeper, perhaps, than most of those which are taking a zealous part in its discussion appear to have discerned. There is nothing in hereditary Monarchy, in the abstract, unsuitable to the genius of the French people. On the other hand, there is nothing in Republican institutions which, in the course of time, they might not adapt to the wise management of their political affairs. We in this country, with our historical traditions, our social distinctions, and our habits of thought and feeling in regard to public matters, have convinced ourselves that, for us at any rate, a Monarchy, surrounded and upheld by free political institutions, and limited in its prerogatives by a strong chain of precedents, is the best form of Government, and are very apt to suppose that what suits us so admirably might be found equally suitable to the wants of other peoples. It is clear, however, that such is not necessarily the case. Forms of government, though not unimportant, are far less important than the national spirit which makes use of them. Unfortunately, in France at the present moment the national spirit is about to be ignored, both in relation to the form which government shall take, and the principles which it is intended to express. For two generations, at least, the French people, whilst exhibiting frequent changes of opinion in regard to what may be called the machinery of government, have, under all changes, constantly maintained that it should rest upon foundations sanctioned by the national assent; that the authority by which it is put in motion should be authority emanating from their will; that there are no rights but such as they choose to give; no prerogatives but those which they see good to recognise; and that, on the whole, and in the last resource, the nation transcends in authority the magistracy, whencesoever it might come to them, by which the laws of the nation might be prescribed, administered, or annulled.

The experiment on the eve of being solved in France directly reverses these conditions. We lay no great stress upon the fact that the present National Assembly was elected without the smallest reference to the question it is about to decide. Constituted a Sovereign Assembly for one purpose, it is intent upon exercising its supreme authority for another and totally different purpose. Elected to give expression to the national will in regard to conditions of peace with the Germans, and to make provision for the faithful and punctual fulfilment of those conditions, it has determined to apply the powers intrusted to it in settling upon a permanent basis the future form of government. Such a usurpation of authority could only be justified by its ascertained accordance with the will of the people. What renders the political situation in France so pre-eminently perilous is that the Parliamentary partisans of Monarchy, having abundant reasons to suspect that their object is not agreeable to the desires of the French nation, take every precaution which the letter of the law allows them to prevent the inhabitants of France from giving legal effect to their preferences. There are now a dozen vacancies in the National Assembly. There is a near balance of opinion in that body even as it is now imperfectly constituted. There is a moral certainty that every one of these vacancies would be filled by an opponent to the projected Restoration, and that the Assembly, if allowed to fill up its normal number of members, would unquestionably reject the propositions of the Monarchists. This, however, is a consummation which is to be prevented at any cost. The will of the French people is not to be accurately expressed, though it might be by a National Assembly chosen for other ends. Several constituencies are accidentally unrepresented there, and are to continue unrepresented, lest their voices should change the decision of the majority. Nothing can justify this mode of settling a great national problem. It is unfair; it is known to be unfair; and it is avowedly adopted for the sole reason that otherwise the design of the men who have resolved to place Henri V. upon the throne would find their plan rejected by a majority of Parliamentary representatives.

We are not quite certain that this project will be crowned with even immediate success. Notwithstanding the arbitrary suspension of electoral writs, and in spite of the immense pressure which the Ministers of President MacMahon can bring to bear upon wavering members, it remains yet a matter of doubt whether this attempt to settle the affairs of France in defiance of the unwillingness of the French people will not be frustrated before it can take permanent shape. One thing, however, must, we fear, be reckoned upon as a certainty. Should Henri V. be proclaimed in virtue of his Divine right, there are no guarantees which he can voluntarily give to the people, no intentions of policy which he may have resolved to pursue, no personal virtues or kingly liberality which he can cherish, which will effectually prevent him from attracting towards himself an entourage of aspiring and, perhaps, plotting Monarchists, which will pervert the policy of his reign into paths which the majority of his subjects will utterly condemn. Those paths will conform far more closely to the past professions of the Comte de Chambord than to the last intentions of the Legitimist Monarch; and France, we fear, while sullenly acquiescing in a dénouement which she cannot prevent, is but too likely, at no very distant period in the future, to avenge the insult inflicted upon her self-respect by dethroning, dismissing, and disinheriting the last of the Bourbons.

THE COURT.

The Queen, with Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold, continues to sojourn at Balmoral Castle. Prince Leopold visited Dr. Robertson at Indego, and Sir John and Lady Clark at Tilliepronie, on Thursday week. The Right Hon. James Stansfeld arrived at Balmoral as Minister in attendance upon the Queen. On the following day the Earl of Kintore and the Earl and the Countess Dowager of Aberdeen arrived at the castle, and, together with the Right Hon. James Stansfeld and Sir Thomas and the Hon. Lady Biddulph, dined with her Majesty. The Hon. Harriet Phipps and Sir William Jenner left Balmoral. On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, drove to Braemar, where horses were changed at the Invercauld Arms, after which her Majesty drove to Derry Lodge, at the foot of Ben Macduie. The Queen partook of luncheon in the open air, and afterwards returned to Balmoral. The Earl of Kintore and the Earl and the Countess Dowager of Aberdeen left the castle. On Sunday the Queen, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold attended Divine service, performed at the castle by the Rev. Dr. Lees, of the Abbey Church, Paisley. In the afternoon her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold, walked to Crathie and paid some visits to the villagers, returning by the Craig Green walk to the castle. The Right Hon. James Stansfeld dined with the Queen. Her Majesty, with the members of the Royal family, makes frequent excursions on Deeside.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Princess of Wales, accompanied by Prince John of Glücksburg, visited the British Museum on Thursday week. In the evening her Royal Highness went to the Strand Theatre. On the following day the Princess and Prince John of Glücksburg visited the South Kensington Museum and in the evening went to the Prince of Wales's Theatre. On Saturday last the Prince of Wales returned to Marlborough House from visiting Lord and Lady Londesborough at Londesborough Park. In the evening the Prince and Princess and Prince John of Glücksburg went to the Lyceum Theatre. On Sunday their Royal Highnesses, with Prince John of Glücksburg, attended Divine service. In the evening Prince John of Glücksburg left Marlborough House en route for the Continent. The Prince accompanied Prince John to Charing-cross station, whence his Highness travelled by the South Eastern Railway to Dover. On Monday the Prince went to Newmarket. His Royal Highness has also been on a visit to the Duke of Rutland at Cheveley Park. The Princess, accompanied by the Duke of Cambridge, went to the Lyceum Theatre on Wednesday evening. The Prince will visit Lord Walsingham at Merton Hall on Nov. 10. His Royal Highness will also shortly visit Mr. W. A. Tysen Amhurst at Diddington Hall. The Princess has appointed Lady Suffield to be a Lady of the Bedchamber to her Royal Highness, vice the Marchioness of Camarthen (now Duchess of Leeds), resigned; also Miss Elizabeth Charlotte Knollys to be a Woman of the Bedchamber to her Royal Highness, vice the Hon. Mrs. William Grey (now Countess Gustave d'Otrante), resigned; and Countess Gustave d'Otrante to be an Extra Woman of the Bedchamber to her Royal Highness.

Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein arrived at Windsor on Saturday last from Scotland.

Princess Louise (Marchioness of Lorne) has complied with the wish of the committee that the Woodhouse Home for Young Girls, in connection with the National Society for the Protection of Young Girls, shall in future be known as the Princess Louise Home for Young Girls, Woodhouse, Wanstead. Her Royal Highness is patroness of the society.

His Excellency the Duke Decazes, French Ambassador, has left town on a visit to Earl and Countess Granville at Walmer Castle, whence his Excellency goes to Paris.

The silver wedding of the Marquis and Marchioness of Exeter was celebrated at Burghley House, Stamford, on Friday, the 17th inst.

At a meeting of the Edinburgh Guildry, held on Monday, Mr. James Craig was, without a division, elected Lord Dean of Guild for the ensuing year.

During the last three months the Marine Society sent from its training-ship thirty-four boys into the Royal Navy, and fifty-eight into the mercantile marine.

A new home and school for orphans of seamen who belonged to the Royal Navy is to be erected at Portsea. The Queen and Baroness Burdett-Coutts head the list of donors.

The Cambridge Town Council on Monday resolved to proceed at once with the building of a new Corn Exchange, an operation which has been long delayed by litigation as to the site.

Sir C. B. Adderley, M.P., speaking at the annual meeting of the Saltley Reformatory, on Tuesday, expressed his satisfaction at the undoubted diminution of crime in this country. He did not attribute the decrease to any change in our system of secondary punishments, but to the gradual spread of education and enlightenment, more especially amongst the lower classes.

Sir Stafford Northcote presided at the annual conference of the poor-law authorities which began at Exeter on Tuesday. A paper was read by Dr. Acland, who insisted upon the point that those who were engaged in the preparation and conduct of Parliamentary schemes relating to sanitary matters should be men who had local experience.

In a report presented to the Commissioners of Sewers the sanitary committee, after complaining of the large quantity of adulterated tea which they believe to be in bond in London, express their belief that a large percentage of the imports is not tea at all, but the leaves of various plants. The commissioners have adopted this report, which recommends that communication should be made with the Government in order to the introduction of a bill appointing inspectors to examine every cargo of tea brought to this country.

The Lord Mayor presided on Wednesday at a meeting held in the Egyptian Hall, Mansion House, for the purpose of settling the preliminary arrangements for the Hospital Sunday, 1874. The Bishop of London proposed the first resolution, declaring the expediency of appointing a Hospital Sunday next year. His Lordship said that this year's Sunday had produced £28,000, and he was sanguine enough to hope for £40,000 next year. Mr. Prudnell Carter seconded the resolution, which was supported by Dr. Allon, and carried unanimously. A second resolution fixed June 14 as the Hospital Sunday of 1874.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The Bank of England rate of discount was advanced on Saturday from 6 to 7 per cent.

The London Mirror of last week recorded seventeen anonymous donations of £1000 each to various London charities, and several donations of the same amount have since been announced.

A banquet was given on Tuesday at the Mansion House, by the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, to the Clothworkers' Company, the Stationers' Company, the Fruiterers' Company, and the representatives of other companies connected with the Corporation of London.

The weekly meeting of the London School Board was held on Wednesday, when several resolutions with reference to the establishment of industrial schools were discussed. Two of these were agreed to, and the consideration of the others was adjourned until next week.

Archbishop Manning, in addressing a large meeting of Irishmen on Clerkenwell-green, on Sunday afternoon, spoke strongly against the drinking customs of the country, and advocated strict temperance as the best means of reducing pauperism and securing the proper education of the young.

At the General Quarter Sessions, on Saturday, the Aldermen received the report of the committee with the estimates for the enlargement of the City lunatic asylum. Mr. Alderman Besley said the expense would be £9000, and the increased accommodation was necessary for the pauper lunatics. The report was adopted.

The total number of paupers in the metropolitan districts last week was 97,287, of whom 34,282 were in workhouses and 63,005 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding weeks in the years 1872, 1871, and 1870, these figures show a decrease of 4280, 17,900, and 32,619 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 722, of whom 503 were men, 182 women, and 37 children.

Dr. Lethely, the medical officer of health and public analyst for the city of London, presided, last Saturday, at the first meeting of the present session of the Society of Medical Officers of Health, of which he is the chairman, and read a paper "On the Right Use of Disinfectants." The meeting was held at the Scottish Corporation Hall, and there was a large attendance of members.

A visit of inspection was paid, last Saturday, to the establishment of the National Society for the Protection of Young Girls, situated near Wanstead. The inmates were found healthy and happy. Princess Louise takes the greatest interest in this institution, and in May last requested that it should be called after her name. It will, therefore, in future be known as Princess Louise's Home for the Protection of Young Girls.

The gratitude of the British exhibitors for the services rendered to them by Mr. Cunliffe Owen at the late Vienna Exhibition has found expression in a handsome testimonial, consisting of a piece of plate, accompanied by a purse of 1300 guineas, together with a case of jewellery for Mrs. Owen. About 275 gentlemen subscribed nearly £1700. The testimonial was presented on Tuesday at a banquet held at Willis's Rooms—Mr. Colin Minton Campbell occupying the chair.

A quarterly general meeting of the governors of the Royal Naval Benevolent Society was held, on Monday, at Willis's Rooms, Sir E. Hilditch in the chair. The report stated that the receipts for the past quarter had been £1239, and the expenditure £452 6s. 8d. Among the donations received had been one from the Duke of Edinburgh. The invested funds were as follow:—Three per Cent Consols, £38,530; Northumberland Fund, £5671; Exchequer Bonds, £300. Grants were made amounting to £463.

Considerable controversy has lately arisen respecting the mode in which candidates are elected to the metropolitan charities, and, it having been alleged by many that the present system is open to very great objection, a preliminary gathering has been held at the Mansion House on the subject, and a more general meeting has been called by the Lord Mayor for the 30th inst., for the discussion of the points which have been raised. The principal suggestions offered for consideration are that there should be no public polling, but that the election-papers should be sent to the subscribers and returned direct to the managers of the institutions.

At a meeting of the Metropolitan Board of Works a report was presented from the works committee recommending the main body not to contribute towards the improvement in St. Paul's-churchyard by setting back the cathedral railings, inasmuch as it did not provide for opening up the northern roadway for carriage traffic. After a discussion, however, the further consideration of the matter was adjourned for three months.—The works committee of the board recommended yesterday week, on a communication from residents of Westminster, on the subject of the continuation of Derby-street and Parliament-street to the Victoria Embankment, that the board do adhere to their previous resolution—viz., that they are not prepared to form the approach in question. After a long discussion, the report was adopted.

Persons desirous of seeing what skill and care can effect, under adverse circumstances, in the culture of flowers, should inspect the annual show of chrysanthemums in the Temple Gardens, which is now open to the public. Under the culture of Messrs. Newton and Dale, the respective gardeners of the Inner and Middle Temple, the chrysanthemums now attain a high state of perfection, and an increasing interest is yearly felt in the exhibition. The latest and perhaps finest specimens of the Japanese kind are the Elaine, a beautiful white flower, and the James Salter. Then there is the Prince of Anemones, well able to hold his own; and noteworthy among the incurved ones are the Golden Beverley, the Countess of Dudley, the Delight, Pio Nono, Nil Desperandum, and the Jardin des Plantes. These flowers will be in bloom a fortnight longer.

Last week 2434 births and 1283 deaths were registered in London. After making due allowance for increase of population, the births exceeded by 166, while the deaths were 193 below, the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. The deaths included 55 from measles, 13 from scarlet fever, 5 from diphtheria, 31 from whooping-cough, 32 from different forms of fever, 30 from diarrhoea, and not one from smallpox. Diseases of the respiratory organs and phthisis caused 403 deaths last week, against numbers increasing from 296 to 399 in the four preceding weeks; 150 were referred to phthisis, 139 to bronchitis, and 79 to pneumonia. To different forms of violence 42 deaths were referred; 37 were the result of negligence or accident, including 19 from fractures and contusions, 4 from burns and scalds, 6 from drowning, 2 from poison, and 3 from suffocation. Three cases of suicide and 1 of infanticide were registered. Three deaths were caused by horses or vehicles in the streets. The report from the Royal Observatory at Greenwich shows that the temperature last week was nearly 2 deg. below the average; one night the atmosphere was within 2 deg. of the freezing point.

The winter session of the Royal Geographical Society will open with a paper by Sir Samuel Baker on the geography of the countries which have been the scene of his recent adventures in the region of the Nile Lakes. On account of Sir Samuel's other engagements, the meeting of the society will be held on Nov. 3 instead of Nov. 10, as had been previously announced.

Professor Fawcett, M.P., on Wednesday night delivered an address at the Birkbeck Literary and Scientific Institution, in commemoration of the opening of its fiftieth session. Mr. W. Lloyd Birkbeck, president of the institution, occupied the chair. In reviewing the past history of the institution, Mr. Fawcett dwelt on the remarkable and unprecedented success which it had attained since its formation. It had now 2600 students attending its classes; its curriculum was as wide and general as that of any University.

Our Illustration, in last week's Paper, of a London Anglers' Club weighing the fish captured by some of its members, to adjudicate the prize or the honorary record due to the successful wielder of rod and line, has not been correctly understood by a few readers of this Journal. It was never designed to represent the actual Monday evening meetings of the London Piscatorial Society, at the Star and Garter, 41, Pall-mall, but an anglers' club of modest pretensions which exists in another quarter of London. The Piscatorial Society, we believe, is composed of gentlemen belonging mostly to the higher middle class, and personally enjoying, in some instances, the privilege of access to reserved waters in parks or private demesnes. Its exploits are therefore of a style rather superior to those within the reach of the less fortunate sportsmen, whose means and leisure for their favourite pastime are comparatively limited; and for this reason alone we mentioned the Piscatorial Society, as the leader of many institutions with a similar purpose in view. The society was established so long ago as 1837; its number of members is restricted by the rules; but it is, we are glad to hear, in a flourishing condition. Mr. James Lawler, as before mentioned, is the honorary secretary this year.

MARSHAL BAZAINE ON HIS TRIAL.

The letters of our Paris Correspondent will relate the progress from day to day of Marshal Bazaine's trial by the court-martial at the Grand Trianon, Versailles, upon the indictment preferred by order of the National Assembly against him for misconduct in his surrender of the Imperial army and fortress at Metz three years ago. We have given some illustrations of the scenes attending this most important trial; the large Engraving for our Extra Supplement of last week showed the interior of the hall, converted for the occasion into a court of justice, with the Judges—his Royal Highness the Duke d'Aumale and nine other general officers—sitting at their table; the accused Marshal, with his counsel and aide-de-camp, seated before them on the left-hand side, and the prosecutors and reporters on the opposite side. A view of the exterior of the Grand Trianon, built in the reign of Louis XIV. for Madame de Maintenon, is presented in this Number; and the front-page Engraving shows Marshal Bazaine, as he may be seen any day when the Court sits, going through the corridor to attend his trial; behind him walk his two legal advocates, Maître Lachaud père and Lachaud fils, with Colonel Villette, their assistant upon the details of military business. A couple of gendarmes form the guard which daily conducts this distinguished State prisoner to and fro between the Grand Trianon and the ville of Trianon-sous-Bois, where he resides under arrest pending his trial.

AUTUMN LEAVES.

The mighty machine of Time, which never stops or slackens its speed, but is always grinding up the present lives, animal or vegetable, individual and social, of all things to which life has been lent, completes the orbit of seasons for another rolling year. Winter, "frosty, but kindly," which held every plant or germ of a plant in the security of a wholesome sleep, has faithfully delivered its beneficent trust to the soft hand of gentle spring; and the nurselings of the year have thriven. The touch and breath of that blessed season, when the miracle of God's bounty to the earth is renewed, have sweetly unbound their natural energies: the sap has risen to course through their tissues like blood through arteries of flesh. By the mystic powers of chemical affinity, they have made the elements of air and water, and the components of a fertile soil, to become the substance of their daily growth. The Sun has smiled down upon them out of his glowing azure vault; the winds have kissed them, and whispered a promise of future strength and wealth; the rain has wept over them its tears of joyful love, and not of sorrow, for Nature cannot deeply grieve or wholly die. And we have seen the majestic might of summer once more arisen, as in the years of our youth, and of the old time before us, and of the long time which shall be after us, triumphant in all forms of living organism that inhabit earth, sea, and air of this whirling globe in the vastness of space. The foliage has greened, the flowers have blossomed, the fruits have ripened, and their seeds have burst from the vegetable womb; the birds have paired with songs of amorous delight, the children of all cattle, like the young of mankind, have come to their birth and tasted their mothers' milk; the earth is again replenished with a million species of vigorous existence, all capable of enjoyment—all compelled, by the one Divine law of creation, to help and serve and feed each other. The summer has shown us all this, but the summer too, has passed away. Another law, which is not a law to the soul that aspires to a life beyond this of mere physical organisation, begins to enforce its sway when, later, Autumn lets fall the withered leaves. It is decreed by the Sole Wisdom of the Universe, for the common good of all creatures in every region of space and epoch of time, that the bodily forms of individual being shall have but a transient existence. "The grass withereth, the flower fadeth," and the multitudinous leaf that was spread or tossed aloft, to catch the boon of air and light from the summer sky, now drops or flutters down, a dry and dead thing, hopeless and worthless save as nutriment for what the soil is hereafter to bring forth in its turn. This, too, is the law and method of animal, even of human, existence amidst the ever-changing variety of products, alike renewable as perishable in their successive generations, that make up the collective life of the earth. It will be even so with these little people in our Artist's design, who are now shouting with innocent glee, while playing with the fallen leaves of autumn beneath that aged beech-tree, which has witnessed the infant sports of their grandsires and grandmothers, but which testifies by its own decay to this important truth.

This is the state of man:—To-day he puts forth
The tender leaves of hope, to-morrow blossoms,
And bears his blushing honours thick upon him;
The third day comes a frost, a killing frost,
And when he thinks, good easy man, full surely
His greatness is a ripening, nips the root,
And then he falls, as I do.

But there is another word or two which might be added to complete the story.

OUTSIDE THE GRAND TRIANON DURING THE TRIAL OF MARSHAL BAZAINE.

AUTUMN LEAVES

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

(From our Correspondent in Paris.)

Thursday, Oct. 23.

The schemes for promoting the Restoration advance apace. A meeting was held yesterday of deputies belonging to the Right Centre under the presidency of the Duc d'Audiffret Pasquier, who communicated to it the resolutions which the Fusionist Committee proposed should be submitted to the Assembly, and which declare the national hereditary and constitutional Monarchy to be the Government of France; that the Count de Chambord is called to the throne, with right of succession to the Princes of his family in the direct male line; that the principles of the public law of France are upheld, as well as the right of the national representatives to vote the taxes for each year. Finally, the inviolability of the Sovereign under Ministerial responsibility is assured and the tricolour flag maintained, with certain modifications, supposed to be the spangling of it with fleur-de-lys. The proposed resolutions are understood to have been unanimously adopted and communicated to the members of the Left Centre. Some reports even assert that the Left Centre, or at any rate the Casimir-Perier group of it, accepted them, and that an early convocation of the Assembly was determined upon; but these latter statements are contradicted on very good authority. Nevertheless, at the meeting of the Permanent Committee, which will be held to-day, the question of convoking the Assembly before the specified time is expected to be brought forward.

One thing is quite certain, that we are on the eve of a decisive battle, and that before many days are over the future of France will be revealed to us. Ever since MM. Chesnelong and Lucien Brun returned from Salzburg with the astounding intelligence that the Count de Chambord had abjured the white flag, which he had previously declared he could not abandon without dishonour, and had virtually admitted the principle of the national sovereignty, which he had so often insulted in his manifestos, the greatest agitation has prevailed in both Royalist and Republican circles. The former talk of a majority of fifteen, while the latter assert that they can count upon eight votes more than their opponents. One must remember, however, that on the morning of May 24 M. Thiers maintained that he could count on a majority of forty, and yet a few hours later the Royalists gained a signal victory.

The Republicans will, no doubt, be strengthened by the votes of the Bonapartists and by those of the members of the Left Centre who are in accord with M. Léon Say. Great efforts are being made to rally all waverers to the Republican side; and it is said that, among others, M. de Salvandy, upon whose vote the Orleanists have all along counted, has pledged himself to support the popular cause; and, further, that M. André, one of the directors of the Bank of France, who was elected through Conservative influence, has cut himself adrift from the Royalists. The Republican organs are full of letters and protestations from provincial deputies proclaiming their hatred of the Monarchy, and eighteen Paris deputies have signed a manifesto declaring that they will energetically resist any Royalist restoration. M. Vautrain, who has been re-elected to the presidency of the General Council of the Seine, has issued an address, in which he announces that he will defend existing institutions, which he believes to be as necessary to France now as he believed them to be in 1851.

On the other hand, M. Johnston, the Marquis de Pléneuc, Admiral Saisset, and M. Target—the last of whom so coolly abandoned his old protector, M. Thiers, on May 24—writing to their constituents, declare that they do not recognise anyone's right to dictate to them how they are to vote; and they will obey only their own consciences.

The Journal des Débats shows symptoms of new vacillation. After publishing an article on Monday, in which it stated that the Monarchical restoration was certain, on Tuesday it undertook the defence of the Republican party. In the course of three months it has changed its opinions four or five times, and Royalists and Republicans alike are growing disgusted with the equivocal conduct of M. John Lemoine.

To complicate the situation, Marshal MacMahon has formally declared that he will not remain in power after the vote of the Assembly; while M. Beulé, the Minister of the Interior, has tendered his resignation. If the Assembly meet before the appointed time, as it is said it will do, on the pretext of increasing the issue of the Bank of France, it will be to hurry on the settlement of the Monarchical question before the twelve unrepresented electoral circumscriptions can return their deputies. M. Léon Say has wrung an unwilling promise from Marshal MacMahon to the effect that the Government will carefully consider the question of convoking the two millions of electors who are unrepresented in the Assembly before the vote on the Restoration is taken; but there is little probability of the Cabinet yielding to the desires of the country. Should the coming battle result in a Republican victory, it is very likely that General Chanzy will be elected to the Presidency pro tem., as most of the Opposition journals advocate his candidature. In that case M. Thiers would be Vice-President of the Council, and virtually ruler of the country. He is reported to have stated that he should prefer that post to the Presidency of the Republic, as his acceptance of that office would prevent his taking part in the Parliamentary debates.

The agitation into which the Royalist and Republican intrigues have thrown the country has naturally reduced the interest felt in the trial of Marshal Bazaine to a minimum. His interrogatory, on Friday last, was extremely searching. The Duc d'Aumale proved that he sent despatches, on Sept. 15 and 23, to the Government of National Defence at Tours, in which he asked for information, but gave none; and pointed out that he neglected the excellent opportunity of General Bourbaki's departure at the close of September to send news by him. The Duke would not admit that the change of Government altered the Marshal's military duties, to which Bazaine rejoined, "My position was unprecedented. I was, in a certain sense, my own government. The duties of a military chief are strict when a legal Government exists; but I by no means admit that to be the case in presence of an insurrectionary power. There was no Government then; there was nothing." Fixing his cold grey eyes upon the speaker, the Duke quietly observed, "You forgot, then, M. le Maréchal, that France still existed." The remark created a great sensation in the court, and many murmurs were heard among the auditory, which was evidently displeased with Bazaine's previous unpatriotic reply. At the close of the sitting some agitation was caused by the Marshal's allusions to the oath he had taken to the Emperor, which prevented, he said, his obeying any other power.

His examination was brought to a close at an early hour on Saturday. He defended himself for not having destroyed the ramparts of Metz and the war material in the fortress before he surrendered by indicating this dilemma: that if the negotiations for a capitulation had been broken off he would have rendered his position untenable, and that, once the capitulation signed, it would have been a breach of faith to mutilate anything. When asked what more rigorous conditions could have been inflicted on him than those he finally accepted, he stated that Metz might have been treated as a town taken by assault, and pillaged. Respecting the flags, he alleged that had his orders been acted on with sufficient promptitude they would have been burned.

The first witness called on Monday was Marshal Lebœuf. He was followed by Generals Lebrun, Jarrus, and Coffinières, who detailed the various circumstances of the Marshal's taking the command of the Army of the Rhine. Then came MM. de Kératry and Jules Favre, who stated that they had waited on Count Palikao, in company with M. Ernest Picard, to obtain the command for Marshal Bazaine, in consequence of M. de Kératry having received a visit from Madame Bazaine, when she told him that the Emperor interfered with everything, and that her husband must have complete liberty of action. Count Palikao, who next made his appearance, stigmatised Messrs. Kératry and Jules Favre as a brace of liars, and the sitting was brought to a close amid considerable agitation. On Tuesday MM. Schneider and Rouher corroborated M. de Palikao's testimony to the effect that the Marshal obeyed an order and had not intrigued for the command; and Marshal Canrobert, with Generals Ladmirault, Bourbaki, and Frossard, gave some curious details concerning the battles which preceded the retreat of the army to Metz. They were unanimous in calling the attention of the tribunal to the great valour of Bazaine, who was always in the front ranks; and the picture that they all four painted of the confusion that reigned in the Army of the Rhine only corroborates what we previously knew.

SPAIN.

The Spanish squadron arrived at Gibraltar, under the command of Admiral Lobo, on Wednesday week. Admiral Lobo has been relieved of the chief command of the Spanish squadron, and Rear-Admiral Chicarro has been appointed his successor. It is stated that Admiral Lobo has been summoned to Madrid, and will be tried by a court-martial for his conduct of the siege of Carthagena. The startling intelligence has arrived that the Numancia, insurgent ironclad, has run down her consort, the Fernando el Catolico, off Cape Mierta, owing to the unskillfulness of the crews in manœuvring those vessels. The catastrophe is said to have been attended—as well it might—with great loss of life, the greater part of the crew of the Fernando having been carried with her to the bottom. The Carthagena ironclads arrived off Valencia on Sunday, accompanied by six English and French men-of-war, and demanded money and provisions. Preparations were being made by the inhabitants of the town to oppose the landing of the insurgents, and Admiral Yelverton and the commanders of the other foreign ships have announced that they would not allow Valencia to be bombarded unless four days' notice was given. The Spanish squadron left Gibraltar on Tuesday morning for Carthagena. On the same day the insurgent vessels left Valencia, also for Carthagena, after plundering ten more ships. They failed, however, in their attempt to capture the Spanish gun-boat in the harbour.

In the north the Carlists have resumed the interruption of railway communications. Some further slight advantages are claimed by the Republican troops. Don Alphonso, the brother of Don Carlos, having failed to procure the disgrace of Saballs, has abandoned the Carlist cause and withdrawn from Catalonia along with his staff. Don Juan, the father of Don Carlos, ran a narrow escape of being captured while he was passing through Catalonia, but has arrived safely in France. The Carlists in Biscay have obtained 4000 Remington rifles and a large quantity of ammunition. Don Carlos has held a review at Estella, where he has several battalions.

The new Captain-General and Civil Governor of Cuba embarked, on Thursday week, at Santander for Havana.

General Sikkis, who is now the United States Minister at Madrid, has received from the Spanish Minister of War the present of a handsome sword specially manufactured at Toledo.

The Government has ordered its representatives in Paris to make a complaint about the conduct of French officials in Spain.

ITALY.

The present Parliamentary Session has been closed by Royal decree, and the new Session is to open on Nov. 15.

The Minister of Finance has submitted to the Budget Committee certain modifications of his estimates for the financial year 1874. The deficit, which was originally estimated at 107,566,000*fr.*, is now set down at 109,937,000*fr.*, being an increase of 2,371,000*fr.*, which includes the whole military expenditure. Taking into account the balances of previous budgets, the net deficit is reduced to 49,299,000*fr.*

The committee appointed to carry out the liquidation of the ecclesiastical property at Rome took possession on Monday of six convents. At the convent of the Roman College the rector read to the delegates of the committee a protest drawn up by the Society of Jesus, declaring that the college was a Papal institution possessing an international character. Formal protests were also presented at the other colleges. The delegates simply received the protests and handed certificates for the income to be paid to the colleges. The proceedings (the telegram says) were carried out with scrupulous regularity.

A telegram in the Daily Telegraph says that the first scientific congress held at Rome assembled on Monday, in the Great Hall of the Horatii and the Curatii in the Capitol. Count Mamiani presided on the occasion, and delivered the opening address. There was a large gathering of scientific men from all parts of Italy. Dean Stanley also was present. The Minister of Public Education and Count Pianciani, the Syndic of Rome, were the principal speakers.

The deaths are announced at Brescia of General Enrico Cerate, who distinguished himself in the wars of 1859 and 1866; and at Turin of Engineer Noe, who constructed the Cavour Canal.

GERMANY.

The health of the King of Saxony has been causing great anxiety. The relations between Saxony and the German Empire are regarded as satisfactory in the Speech which was delivered from the Throne on the opening of the Diet.

Archbishop Ledochowski, who threatened to excommunicate a professor of theology at Posen for having signed an address of fidelity to the Emperor of Germany, has been fined 300 thalers for that conduct. In default of payment he is to be sent to prison for two months.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

The Emperor of Germany arrived at St. Poelten on Friday, the 17th, where he was met by the Emperor Francis Joseph. The two Monarchs embraced each other most cordially. The Emperor of Austria shook hands with Prince Bismarck. Besides the leading authorities, Bishop Binder and the members of the Cathedral Chapter were present at the station. The Archdukes and their suites having been presented, both Monarchs drove to the palace of Schönbrunn, enthusiastically cheered on the way by immense crowds of people. The Emperor William wore the uniform of his Austrian and the Emperor Francis Joseph that of his Prussian regiment. All the Vienna journals publish leading articles welcoming the Emperor William, and allude in terms of approval to his Majesty's rebuke of the presumptuous claims made by the Pope in his letter. The presence of Bishop Binder, as above mentioned, seems to have made a great impression. It is noted that the Emperor William shook hands with the Bishop and conversed with him for some time. A visit to the Exhibition—which is to be closed on Sunday, Nov. 2—took place on Saturday. On Sunday morning his Majesty attended Divine service in the Lutheran church. While at the theatre at Schönbrunn, on Sunday, the Emperor of Germany expressed to the Emperor Francis Joseph the pleasure which his visit to Vienna had afforded him, and added that he would consequently delay his departure until Thursday. The Emperor of Austria thanked his Imperial guest, and the two Sovereigns shook hands with great cordiality. On Monday the Emperor of Germany visited the Crown Prince of Denmark, the Countess di Gergenti, and Count Andrassy, and drove afterwards to the Exhibition. In the evening both Emperors were present at the performance of the ballet at the Opera-House, during which the Emperor of Austria left the theatre to receive Prince and Princess Charles of Prussia at the Southern Railway station on their arrival from Italy. The Emperor of Austria paid a visit to Prince Bismarck on Monday. The latter visited the Archdukes of Austria. In the afternoon Prince Bismarck and Count Andrassy visited the United States Minister. At the Court dinner given on Tuesday night the Emperor Francis Joseph proposed the following toast:—"My most heartfelt wish—namely, to welcome my dear friend and brother before the close of the Universal Exhibition in Vienna—having been fulfilled, I raise my glass with joyful heart and warm thanks to the welfare of our dear guest. Long live his Majesty the German Emperor and King of Prussia." The Emperor William replied: "Your Majesty, allow me to express my warmest and most friendly thanks for the gracious words we have just heard. I join thereto the expression of my gratitude for the hospitable and friendly reception which the Empress, my consort, and my children met with here. It is especially gratifying to me to have been able to return during the Exhibition the friendly visit which your Majesty, together with his Majesty the Emperor of Russia, paid to Berlin last year. The friendly sentiments exchanged between us then, which have been repeated here now in their full extent, are a pledge of European peace and of the future welfare of our peoples. I drink to the prosperity of the Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary, my exalted friend and brother."

The Emperor has appointed Prince Charles Auersperg, President, and Count Wrona and Count Trautmannsdorff, Vice-Presidents of the Upper House of the Reichsrath.

Count Hohenwart, formerly Prime Minister of Austria during the brief period of feudalism supremacy, has once more emerged from the privacy of retirement by accepting election into the Reichsrath by the district of Krainburg.

The elections to the Austrian Reichsrath, the first which have taken place by direct suffrage, have been concluded in 169 constituencies. The result shows that 102 Constitutionalists have been returned and 67 Federalists, including Clericals, Feudalists, and Czechians. In Bohemia the Czechians have lost several seats: 30 Germans and 33 Czechians have been returned. In Galicia the Poles have for the most part been beaten by the Ruthenians. A large majority of Constitutionalists is expected.

The Minister of Finance has officially declined to render any assistance towards obtaining money for the relief of the Viennese stockbrokers, though he will aid them in their project for amalgamating the building banks.

RUSSIA.

A telegram from St. Petersburg states that the Emperor will remain in Livadia until Nov. 1. The Empress will not leave till later. The Duke of Edinburgh, who is staying at Livadia, has visited Sebastopol, and been present at the trial-trip of a new Russian ironclad. The Grand Dukes Vladimir and Alexis have arrived at Livadia by steamer from Taganrog.

Portions of St. Petersburg and Cronstadt have been inundated by the Neva, which had risen ten feet above the ordinary level.

Advices received in St. Petersburg announce that General Kaufmann quitted Khiva on Aug. 12 with the Russian troops. He parted from the Khan on the most friendly terms, and left with him 500 muskets and some cannon to enable him to maintain order among his people.

DENMARK.

In consequence of the rejection of the Budget by the Folkething, yesterday week, by a majority of 53 votes against 45, the King dissolved the Chamber, and ordered new elections to be held on Nov. 14 next. At the conclusion of the reading of this Message from his Majesty on Saturday cheers were raised for the King and the fundamental laws of the kingdom.

TURKEY.

The Sultan has conferred the Order of the Osmanli, in brilliants, upon General Ignatieff, the Russian Ambassador.

The Turquie announces that, in accordance with an Imperial decree which has recently been signed, the Vacuofs of Constantinople and all other parts of the empire are to be secularised. The tax on landed property will at the same time be abolished, and several imposts which impede the extension of agriculture and commerce will be suppressed. A committee will be appointed to bring about an equilibrium in the Budget, and will be presided over by the Grand Vizier.

At a meeting of the International Tonnage Conference last Saturday a large majority of delegates expressed a strong opinion in favour of Moorsen's system of calculating the gross tonnage of ships, but the discussion was adjourned at the request of the French delegates.

EGYPT.

The first Budget ever published in Egypt has been issued by authority of the Khedive. It gives details of the estimated revenue and expenditure for the twelve months from Sept. 10, 1873, to Sept. 10, 1874, and shows revenue equal to £10,165,000, and expenditure equal to £9,045,000, leaving a surplus of £1,120,000. The Government has sent to London £1,255,000, to pay the bonds and acceptances falling due between Nov. 1 and 7. The necessary funds to meet the obligations of the Government falling due in December are also ready.

AMERICA.

Mr. Boutwell, ex-Secretary of the Treasury, has delivered a lecture on the financial situation, in which he advised the temporary expansion of the currency for present relief. He expected that the Government would shortly resume specie payments. A general resumption was not yet, however, practicable. It was necessary, said Mr. Boutwell, to await the equalisation of the currency with coin, the development of industry, and the restoration of the balance of trade in favour of America. Mr. Merriam, a member of the Banking and Currency Committee, has had an interview with Mr. Richardson, the Secretary of the Treasury. They both considered the present condition of affairs to be very hopeful, and regarded the financial disturbance as at end. Mr. Merriam advocated immediate legislation for the resumption of the currency and free banking.

Later returns correct the first reports received respecting the Ohio elections. According to the official returns, a Democratic Governor has been elected by a small majority. The other State officers are Republican, but the majority of the new Legislature of the State is Democratic.

Strong equinoctial gales have occurred whereby several land telegraph lines have been broken and communication has been interrupted. Many canal boats sank during a gale near Verplank, Hudson river, and fifteen lives were lost. A bridge over the Susquehanna has been swept away by a violent storm. The prevalence of warm weather has increased yellow fever at Memphis. There are now 1000 persons attacked by the epidemic in that city.

AUSTRALIA.

A telegram from Sydney states that, on the 17th inst., Mr. Lloyd, the Colonial Treasurer of New South Wales, made his Budget speech. The surplus of 1872 amounts to £124,000, after paying deficiency debt to the amount of £390,000. The telegram adds:—A surplus is almost certain for 1873 of £655,000. This, carried forward to 1874, makes the estimated surplus for that year £200,000, after paying £334,000 balance of deficiency debt, abolishing ad valorem duties, and reducing specific duties to fifty-five articles, and after providing for an additional expenditure of £170,000.

INDIA.

A Calcutta telegram to the Times, dated the 20th inst., states that a severe famine rages over all Behar, including Tirhoot, is dreaded if the rain should still hold off. Scarcity is certain, except in the eastern districts. The railway is carrying grain from Calcutta. Prospects in Bikaner and Raampootra are improved. In Burdwan fever has reappeared.

Another telegram from the same source says:—Compromises between landlords and tenants have been effected in Pubna and Bogra, but a failure of rain threatens complications. In Behar and Benares the prospects are especially gloomy. Prices are rising. Sir G. Campbell has instructed the officials to watch the product of the crops. The Rajpootana desert tracts are suffering.

A steam-transport is to be hired to convey a regiment to the Gold Coast, and a smaller vessel will be sent out with stores.

The cable between Singapore and Hong-Kong has been repaired.

Every English soldier who is sent out with the Ashantee expedition is to be provided with a pocket filter.

Advices have been received in New York from the Sandwich Islands announcing that King Lunalilo is recovering.

Riel, the half-breed, who was the chief instigator of the insurrection in Manitoba in 1869-70, has been elected member of the Dominion Parliament for that district.

A new comet has been visible for several nights by the aid of the powerful telescope at the Roman Observatory. It is described as most brilliant, with a tail of extraordinary splendour.

The completion of another Indian trunk railway is announced. By the opening of the Krishna Viaduct, Bombay and Madras are brought into direct communication.

The railway across the Isthmus of Panama having been threatened by revolutionary disturbances which have broken out in that State, a body of American seamen have been landed to protect the line from injury.

A Paris journal publishes the following curious paragraph:—“The oldest journal in the world is published at Pekin. It is printed on a large sheet of yellow silk, and appears in the same form, with the same characters, and on the same kind of stuff as took place a thousand years ago.”

A large cask of Schloss Johannisberg of 1861, reputed the finest wine the famous vineyard of Prince Metternich ever produced, was sold recently by auction at the cellars on the spot, and was knocked down to a Russian agent at the price of 28,000 gulden, which will make the hock cost as nearly as possible 20 gs. a dozen when bottled, supposing there is no loss or waste in the process.

The whaler Ravenscraig, which rescued the members of the Polaris expedition, arrived in Dundee yesterday week, bringing an interesting relic of the unfortunate explorers. This consisted of one of the boats constructed by Mr. Chester, in which the castaways effected their escape from their winter quarters. The sail is a curious piece of workmanship, and is composed of many pieces of clothing dexterously sewed together. The Ravenscraig brings a young Esquimaux, about eighteen years of age, found on drift ice. On Wednesday the whaler Erik arrived in Dundee, having on board Dr. R. W. D. Bryan, who was astronomer to the expedition; B. Manch, seaman; and J. W. Booth, fireman. All the men are in excellent health, and do not exhibit any traces of vicissitudes or privation. According to evidence given by Dr. Bessel, the death of Captain Hall was solely due to natural causes.

Letters have been received from the Western Morning News correspondent with the Challenger scientific expedition. The Challenger was, on Sept. 25, at Bahia. Having thoroughly explored the rocky desolate islands of St. Vincent and San Jago, belonging to Portugal, a long stretch across the Atlantic ensued, through depths averaging 2000 fathoms, to the vicinity of the African shores. With a view to investigate the currents, the course was shaped for St. Paul's Rocks, a lonely cluster in mid-ocean, one square mile in area, and 60 ft. above the sea level. Thence the vessel sailed (Aug. 30) for another cluster, 300 miles distant, known as Fernando Noronha. On arrival great disappointment was experienced by refusal of permission to land. The islands are used as a penal settlement by Brazil. America was then made for, and Pernambuco reached on Sept. 14. Schoolmaster Briant was missed at St. Vincent, and subsequently found dead on a high mountain peak.

An amnesty demonstration, in which from 30,000 to 40,000 persons took part, was held in Newry on Sunday. Mr. John Martin, M.P., presided, and Mr. Callan, M.P., Mr. Bigger (Belfast), Mr. Ferguson (Glasgow), and other gentlemen addressed the meeting.

Gloucester had its first Hospital Sunday on Sunday last, when sermons were preached in all the places of worship in the city. The institutions selected for benefit were the County Infirmary, the Eye Institution, the Children's Hospital, and the Gloucester Provident Dispensary. Bishop Ellicott preached in the cathedral in the morning, when there was a large congregation. The total amount collected amounted to about £300.

The collection of antiquities made by Mr. George Smith during his late expedition to Assyria has been presented to the nation by the proprietors of the Daily Telegraph. Mr. T. Winter Jones, writing to those gentlemen on behalf of the trustees of the British Museum, says:—“The trustees have directed me to request that you will accept their best thanks for this munificent donation of a class of antiquities which could not have been acquired by purchase, and which could only have been secured by a special mission and excavations such as have been carried out under your auspices.”

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Austen, John Thomas, to be Honorary Canon in Canterbury Cathedral.
Barnes, F.: Rector of Helmdon, Northampton.
Bailly, Samuel: Curate of St. Thomas's, Dudley, Worcester.
Bird, J. J. S.: Curate of South Cerney, Gloucestershire.
Blundell, Augustus Richards: Vicar of Llanelwader, Carmarthen, Mon.
Bone, F. J.: Vicar of Stratton, Cornwall.
Bosquet, C.: Vicar of Christ Church, Folkestone.
Braceley, Frederick: Vicar of Easingwold.
Bury, J. M.: Rector of Priestthorpe, Lincolnshire.
Calthrop, Gordon: Chaplain to the Lord Mayor-Ele.
Cann, John Ponsford: Vicar of Davidstow.
Carroll, Thomas: Incumbent of Hilton.
Clough, John: Rector of Clifton-cum-Glapton, Notts.
Compton, Berdmore: Vicar of All Saints', Margaret-street.
Coxe, Seymour R.: Vicar of Hawthorn, Vicar of Brompton, Northampton.
Darcy, John Bernard: Vicar of Clun, Shropshire.
Davies, Evan: Rector of Llanfyllin, Carnarvonshire.
Davies, Daniel Owen: Vicar of Llandinorwig, Carmarvonshire.
Davis, Thomas: Perpetual Curate of Wharfedale, Cheshire.
Edwards, Henry Gray: Rector of Llanfachreth with Llanfyllan and Llanfynydd, Anglesey.
Ellis, Richard: Vicar of Sherburn (East Riding).
Fardell, H. W. K.: Rector of Ludbrooke, Lincolnshire.
Ford, Alfred William: Curate of St. Sidwell, Exeter.
Fox, William: Rector of Stanton-by-Dale, Derbyshire.
George, J. Denby: Rector of Methwold.
Grippe, T. N.: Rector of Lambley, Notts.
Handcock, Charles: Perpetual Curate of Hurdfield, Cheshire.
Hannah, John Julius: Vicar of St. Nicholas's, Brighton.
Harland, Edward: Prebendary of Ecclestone, in Lichfield Cathedral.
Hawker, John Manley: Vicar of Ide, Devon.
Heldier, Francis William: Curate of Lee, Kent.
Hills, W. S.: Vicar of St. Nicholas's, Rochester.
Hingles, W.: Rector of Llaneddwyn and Llandewy, Merionethshire.
Hutton, A. W.: Rector of Spaldington, Lincoln.
Jenkins, Edward: Vicar of Malpas, Newport.
King, Fustace: Vicar of Lullington, Derbyshire.
Lyle, Charles: Perpetual Curate of Wheelock, Cheshire.
Lloyd, John: Vicar of Llandudno, Cardiganshire.
Lockwood, J. Travis: Vicar of Pampisford, Cambridge.
McArthur, Charles Chapman: Rector of Fishley, Norfolk.
Makker, William Ernest: Vicar of Royston.
Morton, Gilbert Coventry: Perpetual Curate of Rainford, Lancashire.
Mottam, Henry G.: Curate of Martin Hussington, Worcester.
Newcombe, Arthur: Vicar of Claydon Streeple, Buckinghamshire.
Radlett, J. D.: Vicar of Moreton Jeffries.
Rechen, Henry Horace: Domestic Chaplain to Lord Kintyre.
Pellall, Samuel: Rector of Oldberrow, Worcestershire.
Phelps, E. R.: Vicar of Long Compton, Warwick.
Prickard, William E.: Vicar of Clyro with Bettws Clyro, Radnorshire.
Rawsley, R. D. B.: Rural Dean of Candleshoe, No. 1.
Rees, David: Vicar of Talley, Carmarthenshire.
Remington, Thomas Machell: Rector of Cloughton.
Richards, Richard: Vicar of Penrhoslligwy, Anglesey.
Robeson, H.: Vicar of Mildenhall.
Sergeant, J. S.: Vicar of Tycroscot, Leicestershire.
Shaw, Thomas Maynard: Curate of North and South Stoke, Lincolnshire.
Steedley, T. A.: Assistant Chaplain of St. Thomas's, Newcastle-on-Tyne.
Story, R. L.: Vicar of Lockington, Leicestershire.
Symonds, Horatio Giles: Rector of Winthorpe, Notts.
Walters, John Thomas: Rector of Ideford, Devon.
Wangh, Arthur D.: Perpetual Curate of St. Mary's Chapel, Brighton.
Williams, John Evan: Vicar of Llanwenillyf, Anglesey.
Winstow, Forbes Edward: Vicar of Epping, Essex.
Woolhoffe, J. N.: Vicar of Twycroft, Northampton.
Wyndham, Edmund: Vicar of Yeovil-cum-Preston.

Miss Hilton, of Canterbury, laid, yesterday week, the memorial stone of a church at Laysdown, Isle of Sheppey.

Kirkby Wiske church was reopened, on the 25th ult., by the Bishop of Ripon, who preached at both services, after it had been restored, at a cost of £3000, by Mr. Street, R.A.

The Gazette contains the appointment of the Right Rev. T. E. McDougall, formerly Bishop of Labuan, to a canonry in Winchester Cathedral.

On Thursday morning the confirmation of the election of the Right Rev. Dr. E. Harold Browne to the Bishopric of Winchester took place in the parish church, Cheapside.

The subscribers to the fund raised for a testimonial to the Bishop of Ely, on his leaving that diocese, have resolved to divide it, and devote one part of it to some diocesan purpose.

The parish church of Farnworth-with-Kersley has been reopened, after being renovated and beautified. The cost of the works is about £4500, and Mr. R. Knill Freeman is the architect.

We are requested to state that on Monday next, the 27th inst., and on every succeeding Monday, the Bishop of London will be in attendance at London House, from eleven till two, to receive his clergy and others having business with his Lordship.

A beautiful stained-glass window has been placed by Lady Duke to the memory of the late Alderman Sir James Duke, Bart., in the parish church of Loughton, Sussex, where he had for many years resided.

The rectory of Shepton Mallet, worth £863 per annum, with the Rector's right of alternate presentation, and an accompanying right of presentation to a district church, of the annual value of £150, has been put up to auction, and bought in at £3600, the reserve price being £4000.

Last Saturday the Bishop of Ely performed his last official act in Cambridge as Bishop of the diocese by laying the foundation-stone of a new church at New Chesterton, a suburb which has of late considerably increased in population. The edifice, when completed, will accommodate 1000 persons.

The Church of St. Mary-the-Virgin, Beech-hill, near Reading, has, during the past summer, been improved by the completion of the north aisle and enlargement of the vestry and organ-chamber. The work has been executed from the designs of Mr. Butterfield.

The Bishop of Oxford has issued a circular setting forth the suggestions which have been made with respect to the Wilberforce memorial, and intimating that if all who were ordained or confirmed by the late Bishop lent a helping hand missionary studentships might be founded in addition.

The parish church of Winkleigh, North Devon, one of the largest in the west of England, was reopened on Wednesday with much ceremony, after thorough restoration. The whole structure may be said to be new, and has been adorned with carvings in oak. The whole cost, amounting to nearly £7000, has been defrayed by Mr. G. H. Pinckard, of Combe House, Godalming, Surrey, a native of Winkleigh.

It has been determined to honour the memory of the late Vicar of Sheffield by building a church—to be called the Sale Memorial Church—in the district of Dyer's-hill. The work was one which Dr. Sale had deeply at heart, and which he was endeavouring to promote just before his very sudden death. The Sheffield Daily Telegraph publishes a first list of subscriptions amounting to over £6100, including six donations of £500 each. Among the subscribers are a Wesleyan and a Jew.

The London Church Choir Association intend holding their first great service at St. Paul's on Thursday evening, the 30th inst. The choir will consist of those of many of our London churches, including the special evening service choir of St. Paul's, numbering altogether over a thousand voices. The service (evening prayer) will consist of Tallis's festal music, Parry's service canticles, Anthem, and “Hallelujah Chorus,” preceded by a hymn sung by the choir fully surpliced in procession. Great preparations are being made in the cathedral for the coming event.

Mr. Henry Crawshaw, of Oaklands, has offered £1000 towards the erection of a new church at Newnham, near Gloucester.

There has been a remarkable series of services in Ely Cathedral to celebrate the twelve-hundredth anniversary of the foundation of the original monastery by St. Etheldreda. Bishop Harold Browne made it the occasion for taking a dignified and impressive farewell of his diocese; Dean Merivale was the fit historian of the past, Sir Gilbert Scott described the building, and Canon Kingsley assisted in the preaching, which was crowned with the eloquence of the Bishop of Peterborough. The beautifully-restored cathedral, with its crowded congregations, was a glorious sight.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

OXFORD.

The Lord Chancellor presided, on Wednesday night, at a banquet which took place in Oxford to celebrate the jubilee of the Union Society attached to that University. Several peers were present, and amongst the members of the House of Commons who attended were both the representatives of the University and the senior member for the city. In proposing one of the loyal toasts, the chairman pointed out that the eldest and the youngest sons of the Queen were members of the union. Among the speakers were Earl Beauchamp, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Mr. Mowbray, Mr. Cardwell, Mr. Goschen, Archbishop Manning (who was received with “prolonged cheers”), Lord Stanhope, Mr. Gathorne Hardy, the Attorney-General, and the Marquis of Salisbury.

In the Congregation held on Tuesday afternoon the Rev. E. B. Pusey, D.D., Regius Professor of Hebrew, whose seat had become vacant on account of insufficient residence during the past year, was re-elected a member of the Hebdomadal Council. No votes were given for any other candidate.

At a meeting of the warden and council of Keble College, on Thursday week, the Rev. E. King, D.D., was elected a member of the council for the vacancy caused by the death of the Right Rev. Samuel Wilberforce, D.D.

CAMBRIDGE.

Mr. C. H. Prior, B.A., Caius, who was bracketed third wrangler in the mathematical tripos, and second class in the classical tripos, has been elected to a fellowship of Pembroke.

The Girton College for women is now established, and the tutorial staff, with their girl students, are now in residence, and have commenced the collegiate year. The college is a substantial building, erected in pleasant grounds on the Huntingdon-road.

At the meeting of the annual convocation of the Queen's University in Ireland, held on Wednesday week, Professor Nesbitt, of the Queen's College, Belfast, moved a resolution to the effect that the privileges of the University be extended to women. After some discussion, Professor Nesbitt's motion was lost, an adjournment sine die being carried by 17 votes to 16. The annual meeting of the Senate to confer degrees was held on Thursday, in St. Patrick's Hall, Dublin Castle. The heads of colleges and professors having entered the hall in procession, the Vice-Chancellor, Sir Dominic Corrigan, in the absence of the Lord-Lieutenant, took the chair. In his opening address he reviewed the progress of the University. The degrees were then conferred, and the prizes distributed in the usual form.

CIDER-MAKING IN NORMANDY.

A village festival in Normandy, at the yearly celebration of the apple-gathering business, which is rather important to the agriculturists of that province, was the subject of one of our illustrations last week. This seasonable occasion is to the Norman rustic folk what the vintage is to those of Burgundy or the Gironde, as we lately remarked, for cider is the wine of an extensive fruit-growing district on the shores of the Channel, and in some measure likewise in the west of England. The making of cider is a process requiring skill and care, but more especially in controlling the fermentation after the juice of the apples has been drawn off into casks. Before this stage of the manufacture the crushing of the apples to pulp, called “must,” and squeezing of the juice out of the must, are performed by very simple machinery, as is shown in our Engraving of an apple-mill. This consists of a circular stone trough, 18 ft. in diameter, with a heavy round grindstone, which is set upright in the trough, and which is trundled around the circle by a horse or other animal, harnessed to the moving beam above. The apples, placed in the trough, should be so completely ground as to reduce the rind and the core to pulp, and to break the seed-pips; a handful of must, when squeezed in the fist, ought to pass out between the fingers. It is then poured, a thick sticky mass, upon cloths, or upon layers of straw, which are piled on each other, and are so placed together in the cider-press. The juice is left standing awhile in tubs or vats, but is transferred to other vessels for the critical fermenting process.

The site for the military centre in Oxfordshire has been selected. It is to be at Bullington, near the University city.

A meeting of the Dundee Presbytery was held on Wednesday, at which the Rev. William Knight, against whom proceedings have been taken on account of doctrinal differences, resigned his position as a minister of the Free Church.

At the annual meeting of the Royal Seamen and Marines Orphan School and Home at Portsmouth, held on Tuesday—Admiral Sir Rodney Mundy presiding—the director announced that the War Department had given a site for their institution, and that £1861, including £50 from the Queen, had been received towards enlarging the Home.

The Langton estate, in the parish of Kirknewton, Northumberland, containing altogether 956 acres, was offered, last week, at the Auction Mart, by Messrs. Beadel, and sold to the representative of the Earl of Durham for £63,000. The Swarland estate, in the same county, comprising a mansion and 2535 acres (in a ring fence), was bought in.

A review and sham fight between the Dover and Shorncliffe garrisons were held, on Thursday week, before the Duke of Cambridge. The Dover forces, which numbered nearly 600 men more than the Shorncliffe portion, were under the command of Colonel Macdonald, A.A.G., of the south-eastern district; and the Shorncliffe garrison was commanded by Lord A. Russell. His Royal Highness inspected the troops at Chatham, on Saturday, and afterwards drilled them. He complimented them on their admirable appearance.

The appointment of Lord Justice James, Lord Penzance, and Mr. George Ward Hunt, M.P., as Commissioners to inquire into the alleged grievances of military officers consequent upon the abolition of purchase is gazetted. They are to report whether the grievances set forth in the memorials from the officers should be compensated on the ground that they fall within the principle of recent legislation, though they are not expressly included in the words thereof. The Commissioners held their first meeting on Tuesday.

CIDER-MAKING IN NORMANDY

"HARD PRESSED," DIPLOMA PICTURE BY MR. R. ANSDALL, R.A.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

Now and again, amidst the superabundance of extra-Parliamentary utterances, there is to be heard the voice of a subordinate member of the Ministry; and lately the electors of East Sussex have had the satisfaction of hearing one of their members, who fills that character for the first time. Though he has accepted the office of Financial Secretary to the Treasury, as that function does not entail the penalty of re-election, Mr. Dodson only came before the constituency in the usual how-d'ye-do way as an ordinary member. He contrived, however, in the course of his speech, to show that, as the now first aide-de-camp to the most comprehensive and skilful of Chancellors of the Exchequer, he has been making himself acquainted with the outlines of finance, and he put the whole story of revenue into an epigram when he said that the duties on beer and tobacco paid the cost of the Army, those on tea and sugar and licenses defrayed the charge for the Navy; that those on wine and spirits in general sufficed to meet the interest on the National Debt; while the impost on gin had met the amount incurred under the Geneva award. Otherwise his speech was pleasant and cheerful, probably because he may have felt that his being a member of the Government, and one who is always at the side and the ear of the Premier, may have increased the chances of his return hereafter for East Sussex, which it has been whispered were rather doubtful. The advent of Mr. Dodson to the Treasury Bench may prove important in other respects than a merely official one. By virtue of his Ministerial position he might well become, as it were, an assistant leader at very late hours when turbulence runs high, when Mr. Gladstone is absent and Mr. Lowe (who as Home Secretary will be deputy leader) is aggravating; for Mr. Dodson's long experience as Chairman of Committees in controlling the House is likely to make him an influence when that potent assembly gets racy and loquaciously petulant, and noisy. With him at Tunbridge the other day was his colleague, Mr. Gregory, who, speaking of him rhetorically, is of the dry-as-dust school, and therefore was appropriately intrusted with a discourse in honour of the clergy.

Those who take an interest in such things and are still anxious for revelations about the reconstruction of the Ministry in August last, have probably been looking anxiously for a platform appearance of Mr. Baxter, who ought to know all about it. But he is yet tantalising, for though he has appeared twice at public gatherings, once he had to discourse only on a local church matter, and the second time, recently, he had only to deliver an essay on America, which did not gain a prize offered by the Cobden Club in 1868. However, it is to be hoped that the hour of Mr. Baxter's revelations is not far distant. It is intelligible enough that, in the early days of the Gladstone Government, and during the Childers régime at the Admiralty, it was not easy to reconcile the position of a dockyard member and an Under-Secretary in that Ministry. So probably Mr. Otway found it; and, if so, the spirit which moved him to prefer to be the independent representative of a constituency to continuing a subordinate official was highly creditable; and this action tended to improve Mr. Otway's position in the House, good though it was before. Possibly, however, he still finds it a little awkward to act the administrative reformer and economist and the liberal wage-giver to a Government establishment at the same time. If, to the very scrutinising eye, any such awkwardness is discoverable in a speech which he has been making of late at Chatham, it is doubtful whether it was apparent to the general world and to his then listeners in particular. In truth, there is a fine tone of frankness, a breezy air of earnestness, about Mr. Otway's way of speaking that must be more effective on a platform even than it is in the House; and it may be said that his speech at Chatham, the other day, was a good specimen of his manner and his manner.

It has happened more than once ere now that a gentleman has been chosen as the representative of a metropolitan borough because he either was or was going to be Lord Mayor of London. It is the fortune of Mr. Lusk that he was member for Finsbury years before he could hope to be Lord Mayor, so that the influence attaching to that position in reference to his election was very remote indeed. No doubt he will bear the double burden, civic and Parliamentary, with that cheeriness which distinguishes him, and by means of which, imbued with a judicious comparative reticence, the result of some experience, he has been converted from something of a bore, in the carrying on of his mission as a close critic of the Estimates, into a commentator whose comments are sprinkled with dry jokes. Indeed, he seems now to look at all objectionable items of public expenditure of the six-and-eightpenny class, which he most affects, from a comic point of view—though, perhaps, like many quips and jests, his may come out of the depths of a melancholy hopelessness of his being ever able to arrest a single section of a money vote. There was no special significance about a recent address of the Lord Mayor elect to his friends in Finsbury; but he was pleasant and genial, and gave tokens of the manner in which he will preside in those halls of dazzling light in which he is predestined to stand the central figure for the next twelve months.

It is observable that several more or less recent elections have resulted in the return to Parliament of gentlemen of that aristocratic trade called brewers. What Johnson called in the case of one of that class the "potentiality of wealth" is thus exemplified; and something else is also exemplified—namely, the potentiality at elections of the genus publican. One of the latest of the so-called Conservative victories has been achieved in East Staffordshire by the return of Mr. Samuel Allsopp. In choosing him the constituency gave proof of its entire devotion to the brewing interest; for has not Mr. Allsopp been made colleague to Mr. M. A. Bass, who has sat for this particular district of the county and the borough of Stafford consecutively for some years? It would thus seem that politics are not the moving impulse in the elections there. Tros Tyrusce—Conservative or Liberal—what matters it, so that a brewer represent Staffordshire? Thus it has happened that a new rivalry is created between the great houses of Bass and Allsopp; and it will be in some sort kindred to that previously existing, inasmuch as it will be for the two gentlemen in question to strive to show which is the better man as a member, as they have hitherto sought to prove the better as producers of that which is now the nectar of England. There was a very goodly gathering of local personages at a feast to celebrate Mr. Allsopp's return the other day; and the new Commons man so spoke as to lead to the conclusion that as a politician he has no more liking for "the poor creature, small-beer," than he has for it in his other and more familiar vocation.

The Lord Mayor of London, who, with the Lord Mayor of Dublin and several provincial mayors, was present at the banquet given by the Mayor of Liverpool to the Earl of Derby, on Thursday week, was entertained at luncheon at the Liverpool Townhall on the following day, about sixty gentlemen connected with municipal affairs being invited to meet him.

The Extra Supplement.

"THE DROVER'S HALT."

We have already engraved a picture by John Phillip from the extensive collection of works by that artist and by his friend Thomas Creswick, at the London International Exhibition. As another special illustration, we now reproduce an example of the latter—one of the most pleasing, if not one of the strongest or most varied, of English landscape-painters. Doubtless, the cool and quiet monotony and the light and feathery touch of the foliage in Creswick's landscapes are seen to less advantage, and may rather serve as a foil to the warm and strong colour contrasts and the broad handling of the figure-pictures with which they are brought into juxtaposition. Making due allowance, however, for the exceptional severity of the comparisons that are almost compelled by their present collocation, it is easy to understand the popularity which these landscapes have long enjoyed. Creswick seldom attempted to be impressive, yet he was always happy in choice of subject; his observation did not lie outside the range of ordinary perception, and his treatment is intelligible to all. He loved the simple, sweeter aspects of rural England—gentle undulations of hill and dale, variegated interstices of woodland, and pasturage, and arable; the placid windings of river and stream, or the tiny cascades of the Yorkshire fells, with skies of spring tenderness or summer serenity; and we do not tire of the representation much more speedily than of the original. In the specimen before us we have some of the elements of English scenery above named, with others not less characteristic, such as the old farm-buildings, with their rough and littered adjuncts, and live stock, all the more picturesque for the irregular construction; the farmstead itself, the windmill on the hill, and so forth. Mr. Ansdell, however, has supplied the most prominent animated and picturesque element in the incident which gives the title—a drover halting, and while he smokes a quiet pipe, giving a rest to his pony, dogs, and fleecy charge. We need hardly say that these figures are very cleverly introduced; the way in which the sheep are distributed is as true to their habit when tired as it is helpful to the composition. Such brotherly collaboration was not unrequited with these two artists, and has also been used by Mr. Creswick, with other painters. The picture is the property of Mr. A. Collie.

"HARD PRESSED."

The picture we engrave "tells its own tale" as regards the subject with a degree of spirit and truth which requires no enforcement, and Mr. Ansdell's technical characteristics must be quite familiar to our readers. But the work has the additional interest of being the artist's "diploma picture"—that is to say, it is presented to the Royal Academy upon Mr. Ansdell receiving his diploma of full Academician, in conformity with the usage which has obtained since the foundation of that institution under its first president, Sir Joshua Reynolds. Such samples of the powers of each artist that has been admitted into the pale of "the Forty" should, in course of time, and if adequately representative, form a most interesting epitome of the history of British art since 1768. Unfortunately, however, many of the diploma pictures are very inferior productions of the respective painters compared to the work which Mr. Ansdell has presented. A reason for this may have been that the Academy diploma pictures formed, till recent years, but a semi-private collection; they were placed in the meeting-rooms of the Academicians, and rarely seen by the public. The historical illustrations of British art in the Manchester Art-Treasures Exhibition of 1857, in the International Exhibition of 1862, and in the recent winter exhibitions at Burlington House have, however, shown the value of the collection, and at the same time indicated the great importance it might have acquired. In the new building in Piccadilly (which, by-the-way, is rapidly approaching completion), in those portions not appropriated for the ordinary exhibitions, a gallery is set apart for the diploma works, to which the public is to be admitted, and we have no doubt that the arrangement will act as an incentive to future R.A.s elect to contribute their best productions.

MUSIC.

At the third Crystal Palace concert of the present series, two important sacred works were given—Mendelssohn's hymn, "Lord, bow Thine ear unto me," for contralto solo, chorus, and orchestra (op. 96), and Schubert's cantata, Miriam's Siegesgesang ("Song of Miriam"). The latter is one of the several pieces by Schubert that were first made known in this country by performances at the Crystal Palace, where the cantata referred to was brought out in November, 1853, having been once again given a few weeks afterwards. The work is full of melodious beauty and grace of style, although scarcely anywhere rising to the height of religious sublimity. The fine hymn of Mendelssohn is one of various pieces of sacred music in which he has manifested sublime thought and high art almost equal in degree to that displayed in his oratorios "St. Paul" and "Elijah," although in more limited forms. This, like the cantata of Schubert, is for a solo voice (in this case a soprano), chorus, and orchestra. The solo passages were sung by Madame Patey, those in the "Song of Miriam" having been rendered by Madame Lemmens-Sherrington. Saturday's concert included the skilful violin-playing of Mr. Henry Holmes in a "concertino di bravura" (with orchestral accompaniments) of his own composition—a clever work, well suited for the display of Mr. Holmes's high executive powers. Another effective solo performance, of a very different kind, was Dr. Stainer's interpretation of one of the grand pedal fugues of Sebastian Bach. The lady vocalists already named contributed each an operatic aria, and the orchestral pieces were Mr. Gounod's overture to "Mireille" and Mozart's symphony in C (No. 6).

The arrangements for next year's National Music Meetings at the Crystal Palace have just been announced. On this (third) occasion the competitions will be restricted to classes for choral music and military bands, three days being appropriated thereto—June 23, 25, and 27, the dates alternating with those of the triennial Handel festival, which recurs in 1874.

The Bristol Festival commenced on Tuesday and terminated yesterday (Friday). We gave, a month ago, an outline of the arrangements, and need now only remind readers that the purpose—like that of all our provincial music meetings—is the praiseworthy one of aiding the cause of charity; in this instance, by adding to the funds of the Bristol Royal Infirmary, the Bristol General Hospital, and other benevolent institutions. The orchestra, as previously specified, consisted almost entirely of the members of the band employed by Mr. Charles Hallé at his Manchester concerts, and the performances have been conducted by that well-known pianist. Mr. George Riseley and Mr. Charles Stone, local professors, have acted respectively as organist and chorus-master. The first morning performance consisted of Haydn's oratorio "The Creation," that of Wednesday having been devoted to Mendelssohn's "Elijah." The solos on the first occasion were sung by Mesdames Lemmens-Sherrington and Otto Alvsleben, Miss Enriquez, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Santley, and Mr. Lewis Thomas. Those on the second morning were assigned to the same singers, with the addition of Madame Patey, Miss Julia Wigan, and Mr. Rigby; and the exception of Mr. L. Thomas and Mr. Sims Reeves, the latter of whom was disabled by illness. The miscellaneous concert of Tuesday evening included, besides vocal solos and part-songs, Beethoven's symphony in C minor, the overtures to "Euryanthe" and "Guillaume Tell," and Mr. Hallé's performance of an impromptu of Schubert and a "Tarantella" of Heller. Wednesday evening's concert was of a similar nature. The overtures were Beethoven's "Leonora," Wagner's "Tannhäuser," and Mendelssohn's "Meerestille;" the symphony, Mozart's in E flat. Mr. Hallé's solo was Weber's "Concert-Stück," with orchestra; and the vocal music included some part-singing by the capital Bristol Festival Choir. The only specialty of the festival occurred on Thursday morning, when Mr. G. A. Macfarren's new oratorio, "St. John the Baptist," was performed for the first time. Of this and the other closing performances we must speak next week.

Mr. Henry Holmes, the eminent violinist, has begun a new series (the eighth) of his pleasant "musical evenings," at St. George's Hall. His first programme included Beethoven's first string quartet in F and Haydn's in C (from op. 33); a violin solo of Handel, Mozart's sonata in E minor for piano and violin; and Chopin's rondo for two pianos. The quartet party comprises, besides Mr. Holmes as leading violin, Mr. Folkes as second, Mr. Burnett as viola, and Signor Pezze as violoncello. The pianists named for the first evening were Miss Channell and Mr. F. Westlake, and the vocalist was Miss A. Sinclair.

This week's schemes of M. Rivière's promenade concerts included a Verdi night on Tuesday, a Weber night on Wednesday, a grand Welsh festival on Thursday, an operatic night on Friday, and a national ballad selection for to-night (Saturday).

The Sacred Harmonic Society will commence its forty-second season on Nov. 21 with performances of Haydn's first mass, Mendelssohn's unfinished oratorio, "Christus," and Handel's "Dettingen Te Deum." During the season Dr. Crotch's oratorio, "Palestine," is to be revived.

The sixteenth season of the Monday Popular Concerts will commence at St. James's Hall on November 10, when the quartet party will consist of Madame Norman-Neruda, Messrs. L. Ries and Zerbini, and Signor Piatti. Mr. Charles Hallé will be the solo pianist, Miss Alice Fairman the vocalist, and Sir Julius Benedict will conduct. At the first Saturday afternoon performance, on Nov. 15, Dr. Hans von Bulow will appear as solo pianist.

Mr. Walter Bache's Pianoforte Recital is to take place on Monday afternoon at the Hanover-square Rooms, and his grand evening concert, with full orchestra, is fixed for Nov. 27 at St. James's Hall.

Mr. Carl Rosa's opera company, which is now pursuing a successful career in the provinces, will begin a short series of performances in March next at Drury Lane Theatre.

THEATRES.

ROYALTY.

Miss Henrietta Hodson is to be congratulated on her return to the Dean-street theatre, which under her management will achieve a certain prosperity. It was reopened under her conduct, on Saturday, with a revival of Tobin's comedy of "The Honeymoon." The reproduction of this drama is sure to provoke recollections of the calamities of authors, and of dramatic authors in particular, in relation to the management of theatres, and their habitual indolence in regard to the claims of new writers. Twelve new dramas by Mr. Tobin had been offered to managements only to be treated with neglect, and when the thirteenth had been accepted the poet was on a voyage for the benefit of his health, and died before it was produced. The comedy thus snatched from oblivion proved to be a work of consummate art, in which the various beauties of several preceding dramas were curiously blended. It was, in fact, an elaborate mosaic so skilfully accomplished that it was difficult to detect the fact, the result being a whole so harmonious that none would suspect it was a compilation. The dialogue was, besides, so poetic, so witty, and managed with such exquisite tact that it proved irresistibly charming. It is seldom performed, however, without abridgment, and Miss Hodson has preferred to give it in three acts. This gifted actress, of course, assumes the principal character for her own, and supports it with spirit and taste. She was ably supported by Mr. G. Ward, who, as the Duke Aranza, played with excellent propriety. Mr. Wyndham made a good Rolando, and Mr. J. Clarke a most amusing Jacques. The secondary female characters are efficiently sustained. Miss Augusta Wilton, as Zamora, and Miss Maggie Brennan, as Volante, were both enchanting. The comedy was preceded by the old farce of "Neighbours and Lovers," and succeeded by a new one entitled "The Realms of Joy"—being a free adaptation by Mr. F. Latour Tomline of "Le Roi Candaule," a piece produced at the Palais Royal, abounding in fun and practical joking. The scene is in the lobby of the Court Theatre, where a play offensive to the Chamberlain is being performed. An old gentleman and his two daughters arrive, on the understanding that the latter shall withdraw from the box when any improper dialogue is impending, and return when the danger is over. Of course, they take advantage of the opportunity to meet their lovers and effect their escape. Two husbands, too, are exhibited who take each other's wives to the play, where they meet, to their mutual embarrassment. The "row which they make in the lobby" causes the box-sitters frequently to open the door and remonstrate with the delinquents—a situation which pleases the audience.

PRINCESS'S.

Among the parts in which Mr. Charles Dillon has distinguished himself as an actor, that of Louis XI. is not the least. It will be recollected that Mr. Charles Kean made a great hit in the part, in an improved version of the play by Mr. Boucicault. Others have attempted it with inferior results; but to Mr. Dillon has been reserved the credit of adequately supporting the character. Mr. Dillon is equal to the role, and not seldom rises to the expression of the most subtle emotions, or to that of the tragic terror which is the prevailing passion of the closing scenes. The tragedy was followed by "The King's Musketeers," in which Mr. Dillon appeared in his old part of D'Artagnan, which he performed in his usual dashing style. Mr. Dillon is likely to re-establish his reputation by these performances.

OPERA COMIQUE.

On Monday Madame Ristori appeared in a new character—that of Lucrezia Borgia, which she sustained with all that marvellous power which places her above competition, in such lofty and severe parts as Victor Hugo delighted to portray in the days of his fame, as a great tragic dramatist. She repeated the part again on Wednesday.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

The Houghton Meeting, which is the last held at Newmarket for the present season, commenced on Monday, and does not terminate till to-day (Saturday). The weather, up to the time of writing, has been very unfavourable, as rain has fallen heavily at intervals, and a bitter wind has swept over the Heath, which possesses the unenviable distinction of being one of the most exposed spots in England. Monday's card was a better one than we are accustomed to see on that day, though the entry for the Criterion was decidedly poor, Miss Toto being the only really first-class animal engaged; and though a field of ten came to the post, odds of 5 to 2 were freely laid on her before the flag fell. Aquilo ran well; but Miss Toto had no difficulty in winning by a neck. George Frederick finished only fourth, beaten several lengths; and though he will probably improve, there can be no doubt that at present he is one of the most overrated horses on the turf, and we have the gravest doubts as to the truth of the £8000 story, for it is highly improbable that such a good judge as Captain Macell would ever have offered such an absurd price, and still less likely that a man of Mr. Cartwright's experience would have declined to part with the colt at about six times his value. The Trial Stakes proved a very interesting race, and brought five speedy animals to the post. Rouen was outclassed, the distance proved too far for Oxonian and Tourbillon, though the latter claimed the full allowance of 21lb., and at the finish Laburnum had no chance with Thunder, to whom he was conceding 24lb.

If the Cesarewitch day was unpleasant, the Cambridgeshire was even worse; for the rain was heavier, and, in addition to getting wet through, we had to face a searching wind, against which the thickest wraps were powerless. Old Oxonian was far more at home over the Bretby Stakes Course than on the Rowley Mile, and cut down four speedy juveniles like Rostrevor, Catseye, Eve, and Organist without an effort. A Nursery over the last half of the R. M. brought out a capital field, and was won by Dukedom (8st. 4lb.), who finished only a head and a neck behind Marsworth in the Woodcote Stakes at Epsom, and also ran very prominently for a considerable distance in the Middle Park Plate; and then the Cambridgeshire horses began to go down to the post. Thirty-seven numbers were hoisted, which is decidedly above the average number, yet there was not much delay in getting them off, and a capital start was effected, though Visor (5st. 12lb.) was unfortunately left at the post. Day Dream (7st.) made the running for half the distance, and then Sterling (9st. 7lb.) deprived her of the lead and kept in front till reaching the Red Post, when Montargis (7st. 13lb.) and Walnut (6st. 7lb.) passed him, and, drawing right away, ran a tremendous race home, first one and then the other holding a slight advantage. Fifty yards from the winning-post the French horse was about a neck in front, and Walnut, never quite getting up again, was defeated by a short head. Sterling was a bad third, only a head in front of King Lud (7st. 9lb.), who made up a good deal of ground at the finish. It will be remembered that Montargis ran very well in the Middle Park Plate last year, as, in spite of swerving all over the course, he secured third place, about half a length behind Kaiser and Surinam; and but for his moderate performances in England this year, and notably at Doncaster last month, he would not have been allowed to start at 40 to 1, a price which was accepted by a good many French sportsmen. Two years ago Sterling, then a three-year-old, was beaten only a head for this race, though carrying 8st. 11lb., and it is satisfactory to find that after his long retirement, and the dismal accounts we have heard of his "man-eating" propensities, he still retains all that marvellous speed which made Admiral Rous pronounce him "the best horse of the century." King Lud again beat all the Cesarewitch horses, but had not sufficient pace to finish with; and Bull's-eye (6st. 4lb.) turned out such a complete impostor that we should imagine he was tried with Doncaster, who, in his present form, could scarcely win a selling race.

Wednesday was decidedly an "off" day, though there were two or three interesting races. Minister beat Atlantic by a head for the Glasgow Stakes, after a pretty set-to between Fordham and Maidment, the latter of whom seems about to succeed French as Lord Falmouth's jockey. Polyhymnia ran away from a large field in a Maiden Plate; and then Prince Charlie, who has been in retirement since July, won his ninth successive race this year, beating his old and persistent opponent Blenheim, and Laburnum, who finished much further behind him on this occasion than when they last met over the same course, which was in the Middle Park Plate of 1872.

A general meeting of the Jockey Club took place at Newmarket after the racing last Wednesday. There was a very large attendance of members, including the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Rutland. Mr. Alexander's motion, the effect of which is to allow two-year-olds to run at and after the first legitimate meeting of the season, was first put. Mr. Chaplin opposed it, and, after a long discussion, it was carried, though only by two votes. Racing men will generally welcome the return to old customs, and, with the restoration of this Brocklesby and Althorp Park Stakes, the Lincoln and Northampton meetings will be more attractive than ever. We must regret that Mr. Chaplin's attack on the Middle Park Plate proved successful, and after 1874 the Jockey Club will not add £500 to that race. For some reason that body has never regarded the Middle Park Plate with favour. It will be remembered that it was founded in 1866 by the munificence of the late Mr. Blenkiron, who for four years added £1000 to the stakes. At the end of that time the members of the Jockey Club decided that they could no longer accept this sum from a private individual; and, making Mr. Blenkiron the poor acknowledgment of offering him a life membership of the stands at Newmarket, which he declined, they proceeded to add just half the sum of money that he had done; while it was actually proposed to change the name of the race, though this brilliant idea was happily rejected by a large majority. The stewards of the club have now been requested to draw up the conditions of some other race, to which £500 will be added after 1874.

The cricketers who are to represent England in the Austral cricket-field have left Southampton in the Mirzapore. They are—W. G. Grace, G. F. Grace, J. A. Bush, W. G. Gilbert, F. H. Boulton, gentlemen; and Jupp, Southerton, R. Hun phrey, Lillywhite, Greenwood, Osofft, and M. McIntyre, players.

The new Townhall and municipal buildings at Renfrew were opened, yesterday week. Among the speakers were Colonel Campbell, M.P., and Mr. Crum-Ewing, M.P. The buildings have cost over £7000.

A new system of very narrow-gauge railway lines is being laid down in Woolwich Arsenal, and, as it is intended to use locomotives on them, the number of horses required in that establishment will be greatly diminished.

LAW AND POLICE.

TRIAL OF THE TICHBORNE CLAIMANT FOR PERJURY.

The time occupied with the case yesterday week was shorter than usual, owing to one witness being too ill to be examined, and no other being ready. Jean Luc, the Danish steward, appeared again before the Court, and promised to remain until he had been further cross-examined, it having been agreed that the Crown should pay his expenses, on the taxed scale. One witness was called to prove the excitement in Melbourne in August, 1854, owing to the gold discoveries, and that when a vessel arrived in Hobson's Bay neither customs nor police officers came on board. Mr. Holland, who was drawing-master at Stonyhurst, expressed his conviction (as the result of conversation) that the defendant was the Roger Tichborne whom he had taught. Mary Groves, a lady's-maid, spoke as to the belief of her mistress, the late Lady Tichborne, that the defendant was her son. Other evidence was called to prove that the defendant was not Arthur Orton, with whom one man had had a fight, and that he was Roger Tichborne, to whom Miss Coates had sold pastry when he was at Stonyhurst.

James Loader, formerly a ship captain, stated on Monday that he knew the witness Brown when he was clerk to a firm of ship-chandlers at Rio de Janeiro. The principal witness was Charles Lewis, an hotel-keeper, living at Brentwood. In 1846 he was a draper's apprentice at Alresford, and knew Roger. In that year he went to Tichborne House to show Lady Doughty some goods, and about a hundred yards inside the park gate he met Roger and Miss Doughty. The young lady introduced Roger to witness as her cousin from Paris. He became very intimate with Roger Tichborne, whom he recognised in the defendant. This witness, who remarked that he had "a peculiar memory," stated that he and Roger frequently went out together at night, and he narrated that, when they quarrelled on one occasion, he struck Roger with an iron-shod stick and wounded him on the left arm, on which witness did not then see any tattoo marks. In their recent conversations the defendant mentioned some circumstances which witness thought could only be known to themselves. On cross-examination, he could not account for the defendant having, at the last trial, entirely forgotten him. This witness recollected the amount they spent together for drink and tobacco. William Acott, who said he met Arthur Orton in Australia, in 1854, stated that the defendant was not the same man. He testified also to the purchase of a horse from Orton, who gave him a receipt signed "A. J. Reid," and witness added that he changed his name three times while he was in Australia.

The only witness examined on Tuesday was Mr. Bulpitt, the Winchester banker, who was called solely for the purpose of expressing his belief that the defendant was Roger Tichborne and of denying that he had communicated to the defendant the result of his conversation with Mr. Gosford. It was left to the counsel for the prosecution to ask all other questions—a mode of conducting the case which led to a difference of opinion being expressed between the Lord Chief Justice and Dr. Kenaly. In his cross-examination Mr. Bulpitt explained that he was unwilling to be called as a witness. He stated that he only saw Roger four or five times in the hunting-field, and never exchanged a word with him. His memory was a blank as to having sent paragraphs to a Winchester newspaper in support of defendant's claim. He had only once seen the defendant since the last trial, and that was an accidental meeting on a railway; but they were still on friendly terms. After he learned that Gosford was opposed to the defendant, a dinner party at the Grosvenor Hotel was arranged on the advice of counsel, and witness was the instrument of getting that interview between Gosford and the defendant, in order, if possible, to procure a recognition. At that meeting defendant did not know the contents of the sealed packet, about which he was questioned by Gosford. The counsel who were then engaged in the case threatened to throw up their briefs unless the defendant cleared up the matter of the sealed packet, and then the defendant wrote the paper on which witness put his initials.

On Wednesday afternoon Dr. Kenaly, who was so ill that he was obliged to absent himself from court, wrote to the Lord Chief Justice announcing his intention to close the defendant's case on Thursday if possible. In his absence some witnesses were examined by his junior, Mr. McMahon. The evidence this day was of a mixed kind. There were Australians who spoke as to having seen an Osprey at Melbourne; there were domestics who spoke to the late Lady Tichborne being quite sane, and recognising the defendant as her son; and there were some who deposed to nothing at all.

The examination of Sir William Fergusson with regard to certain marks on the defendant's person occupied nearly the whole of Thursday. Dr. Kenaly, having recovered from his indisposition, was present in court throughout the day.

Mr. Russell Gurney, the Recorder, has resumed his sittings in the Lord Mayor's Court, and received the congratulations of the Bar on his return to this country after being engaged in the settlement of the Alabama claims.

The grand jury at the Birmingham Sessions on Tuesday presented a memorial to the presiding Judge expressing a strong opinion that, in large towns and districts in which justice was administered by stipendiary magistrates, the grand jury, as an institution, had been practically superseded, and might well cease to exist.

At the Bankruptcy Court, on Tuesday, an order was made to register a series of resolutions come to by the creditors of Messrs. Mansbridge and Mansbridge, contractors, &c., of Bangor Wharf, Camden-town, who failed in September last for £228,500. The creditors had resolved to liquidate the estate under the arrangement clauses of the Act, and not in bankruptcy, with Mr. J. Minter, Irongate Wharf, Paddington, as trustee, and a committee of inspection; and to grant the discharge of the debtors upon realisation by the trustee, out of the assets, of a sum sufficient to pay a dividend of 10s. in the pound. The statement of affairs shows a considerable surplus over the liabilities.

In the Edinburgh Court of Session a jury has awarded £600 damages to Mrs. Langford against the North British Railway Company for injuries received by her at the Granton station.

A barman, who began robbing his master the day after entering upon his employment, has been tried at the Surrey Sessions, and sentenced to five years' penal servitude, it having been shown that he was connected with a gang who made their living by the plunder of licensed victuallers. A man, who, after having suffered six months' imprisonment for dog-stealing, went to the house of his prosecutor to thank him, but assaulted his female servant instead, has been sentenced to eighteen months' hard labour. Charles Frederick Bloomfield, thirty-three years of age, described as a clerk, has been found guilty of having fraudulently obtained a sum of money from a young woman to whom he had promised marriage. Several previous convictions having been recorded against him, he was sentenced to fifteen years' penal servitude. Daniel Cocklin, a greater villain still, was sentenced to twenty-one years' penal servitude. Two men in the service of railway companies were tried on Monday for stealing the property of their employers, and sentenced to terms of imprisonment.

On being convicted, for the fourth time, of book-stealing, George Smith, an elderly man, stated to the Bench at Middlesex Sessions, on Monday, that he had been a churchwarden of a neighbouring parish, a commissioner of sewers, and a commissioner of taxes; moreover that, having lost £12,000 in a railway and £8000 in Johnson's Bank, he had been gradually brought down to want and destitution. Sentence has been postponed in order that the prisoner's story may be sifted.

William Brown, who last week escaped from the cells at Guildhall Police Court, has been recaptured at a low lodging-house in Drury-lane, brought up at Guildhall, and committed for trial on a charge of burglary in Bishopsgate-street.

The shopkeepers in the neighbourhood of Bishopsgate have recently suffered much from their expensive plate-glass windows being broken. A boy has at length been detected, and sent to prison for twenty-one days for wilful destruction of property. His plan was to provide himself with a number of pebbles, which he threw from a catapult, and when he had done any damage he hid in the carrier's van of which he was in charge.

Several cases of assault upon the police were heard on Monday before the metropolitan magistrates. At Lambeth a man, named James Brown, described as a rough-looking fellow, was sent to prison for a month, with hard labour, for this offence. At Southwark, in a more aggravated instance, the punishment was six months' hard labour. At Hammersmith, a father, mother, and two of their sons, were placed in the dock for having beaten a constable while in the execution of his duty. The father was ordered to find a surety for his good behaviour, the mother was sent to prison for a month, one son for six weeks, and the other for seven days; while a soldier, named Myers, who had sinned more grievously than any of the others, was awarded three months' imprisonment. At Greenwich two offenders of this description were sentenced to one and two months' imprisonment respectively. Daniel Green, described as a liveryman of the city of London, has been sentenced by the Brentford magistrates to undergo two months' imprisonment, with hard labour, for assaulting a railway porter and a policeman at Hounslow railway station.

Mr. William Whitmore, collector for the Hospital for Women, Soho-square, for the Metropolitan Hospital for the Paralyzed and Epileptic, and for the Deaf and Dumb Institution for Women, was again brought up at Marlborough-street yesterday week, charged with embezzling moneys received for the first-named institution. At the close of the evidence Mr. Knox committed the prisoner for trial.

At the Wandsworth Police Court, last week, there were more prosecutions for the adulteration of milk, and some dairymen who had offended in this way were fined in penalties of £4 and £3 each, with a guinea costs.

Six boys have robbed the missionary boxes at a chapel in Highgate. Several of them are to be sent to a reformatory.

A Brighton clergyman was, on Monday, summoned before the magistrates on two charges of assault, and was fined £5 in one case and £2 in the other.

Frederick Francis Archibald Farquharson, a man of good address and about thirty years of age, has been committed by the Trowbridge magistrates to the Wiltshire Assizes on a charge of bigamy. It appeared from the evidence that in 1859 he married a lady named Buckley; but in 1861 he was divorced from her on the ground that when the marriage was contracted he was under age. In the same year, having attained his majority, he married Alice Bertha Henrietta Viner Benest, at Hackney church, London, after a courtship of seven months. On the occasion of this marriage the prisoner said nothing about the divorce. The parties lived together as man and wife till a few weeks since. Prisoner was in the habit of frequently going into the country, ostensibly to do business. These excursions at last aroused the suspicions of the mother of his London wife, and during one of his absences she visited North Bradley, Wilts, where prisoner's mother resided, a lady of independent means. To her great astonishment, she there found the prisoner living with another wife and family, he having, it was shown in evidence, married, on Dec. 26, 1865, a young lady named Jessie Hooper. The mother of the London wife, on making this unpleasant discovery, acted with considerable energy and decision. She compelled the prisoner, who begged to be released, to accompany her to Trowbridge, where she gave him into custody on a charge of bigamy. All three of the wives were present in court during a recent examination, and the two last have families.

Five men were charged before the North Riding Court of Quarter Sessions at Northallerton, yesterday week, with having placed a "bogie" or trolley on the Whitby and Stockton branch of the North-Eastern Railway, thereby endangering life and property. Two of the prisoners were acquitted, and a verdict of guilty was found against the rest, who were sentenced to terms of three, two, and one months' imprisonment.

Robert Wilson Humble, a clerk recently in the employment of the Leeds Corporation, was sentenced at the Leeds Townhall, on Tuesday, to six months' imprisonment, for embezzling several sums of money, amounting in all to about £100.

At the Sheffield Townhall, on Monday, a firm of provision-dealers was fined £10 and costs for selling adulterated lard, and other tradesmen were fined 40s. and costs for a similar offence.

Langrishe Doyle, a man possessed of independent means, has been sentenced, at the Waterford Quarter Sessions, to three months' imprisonment, with hard labour, for ill-treating his wife, by withholding from her proper food and clothing.

David Garnsey, living in Devonshire-street, Theobalds-road, near Holborn, made a furious attack on his wife and also on his mother-in-law, while in a fit of drunken fury, on Saturday evening. The wife, it appears, had been upbraiding him for wasting his money in drink at a time when she most wanted it, being about to be confined. Both the women were repeatedly stabbed, and they are in a precarious condition. The wife had an infant in her arms at the time, but it escaped unhurt.—Robert Harrison, a very precocious and determined young felon, who belonged to a gang of street banditti, by whom the city of Exeter is much troubled, has hung himself in Devon county gaol, where he was undergoing a sentence of imprisonment for robbery.—Three men have been committed for trial, on evidence—partly circumstantial and partly confessed—which implicates them in the manslaughter of Peter Smith, who was found in a dying state in a field at Barnsley.—James Wigley, who stood committed to the next Kingston Assizes for the wilful murder of his wife, died on Saturday night, from paralysis of the brain.

Severe storms of hail, accompanied by thunder, broke over Glasgow on Wednesday forenoon; and early on Thursday morning there was a heavy thunderstorm, accompanied by heavy rain, over Land's-end district.

1. Voter giving his name and number on register.
5. Voter depositing paper in ballot box.

2. Stamping ballot-paper with private mark.
6. Policeman taking boxes from polling-booths to Guildhall.

3. Voter marking ballot-paper.
7. Method of folding ballot-paper.

4. All that is visible of voter while marking paper.
8. Voter's mark. Any other whatsoever disqualifies vote.

VOTE BY BALLOT: SKETCHES AT THE TAUNTON ELECTION.

THE LATE MR. HENRY BRIGHT, ARTIST.

THE BALAKLAVA MARE, PRESENTED TO HER MAJESTY.

THE LATE MR. CORNELIUS VARLEY.

MR. HENRY BRIGHT.

We have mentioned the death of this approved landscape artist, a native of Saxmundham, who died at Ipswich, where he had resided since he left London. He belonged to the Norwich school of his art, but his representations of sky, clouds, and rain have been compared with those by Turner, his personal friend. In his water-colour and crayon drawing he was equally successful; much of his time, however, was employed in private teaching of his art. The portrait of Mr. Bright we have engraved is from a photograph by Messrs. Elliott and Fry, of Baker-street.

THE LATE MR. CORNELIUS VARLEY.

The death of this veteran student and practical improver of science and art was lately announced. Mr. Cornelius Varley was born Nov. 21, 1781. Through his mother, whose maiden name was Fleetwood, he was a descendant of the General Fleetwood who married Oliver Cromwell's daughter Bridget.

Mr. Varley spent the earlier portion of his life in assisting his uncle, the late Samuel Varley, a self-taught man, who became the leader and lecturer of a society for the investigation of natural science, of which Josiah Wedgwood and other distinguished men were members. Cornelius Varley afterwards left his uncle, and lived with his elder brother, John Varley, with whom he commenced the study of art. In 1811 he invented and patented the graphic telescope, an instrument of great value in his hands, but which even in the present day is not so well known as it deserves to be, though it obtained the prize medal of the Exhibition of 1851, forty years after its introduction. The large panorama of London, exhibited for some time at the Colosseum, was sketched by the aid of the graphic telescope from the gallery of St. Paul's. In 1814 Mr. Varley joined the Society of Arts, of which he was for a long time one of the most active and energetic members. To him were awarded at different periods two silver medals and the gold medal of that society, for machinery for grinding and polishing specula, for improvements in microscopes, for observations and illustrations of the circulation of the sap in water plants, and for improvements in the construction of microscopes specially designed for these researches. Mr. Varley took an active interest in all matters connected with natural science; but he is best known for his knowledge of optics and his love of microscopical investigation. In the Transactions of the Microscopical Society are published observations of the growth, structure, and circulation of the sap of the chara vulgaris and nitella made by Mr. Varley during a period of thirty years, and illustrated by numerous magnified drawings, which have a special value for their accuracy, the result of his ability as an artist, and for their having been traced by his graphic arrangement from living specimens under the microscope. Mr. Varley was the oldest member of the Society of Arts, and the last survivor of the founders of the Water-Colour Society. At the time of his death, which took place on the 2nd inst., Mr. Varley had nearly completed his ninety-second year.

The Portrait is engraved from a photograph by Messrs. Varley Brothers, Oakley-street, Chelsea.

SCENE FROM "ARRWRIGHT'S WIFE," AT THE GLOBE THEATRE

33, St. James's-street; and No. 65, Jersey-street, S. W.

TO MOTHERS, NURSES, and INVALIDS.
ELASTIC SILK ABDOMINAL SUPPORTERS, of superior construction, for Debility, Corpulency, &c. Directions for Self-Measurement and prices by post, free.—ELAM, 196, Oxford-street.

BANK OF NEW YORK

THE BOY AND THE BROOK. New Song. By J. L. HATTON; the Words by Longfellow. "One of Mr. Hatton's best compositions, and must become popular." Price: 6s.; sent free for 3d stamps. RAHSFORD and Box, 2, Princes-street, Oxford-circus.

THE SACRED HEART.—The beautiful Processional Hymn sung by the Pilgrims to Paray-le-Monial. Words and Music, six stamps; as a piece for Pianoforte or Harmonium, 12 stamps.
R. G. BOONST, 2, Little Argyll-street, Regent-street, W.

WOOD TAPESTRY DECORATIONS.
HOWARDS' PATENT.

FIELD'S PATENT "OZOKERI"
CANDLES.
Improved in Colour.
Improved in Burning.
Made in all Climes, and
Sold Everywhere.

THE BRISTOL MUSICAL FESTIVAL: VIEWS IN BRISTOL.

BY THE WAY.

Sixty-eight years ago—last Tuesday was the anniversary—at daybreak, the combined French and Spanish fleets, thirty-three sail of the line and seven frigates, were seen by Lord Nelson to leeward. He had withdrawn some sixteen leagues westward of Cadiz, in the hope of inducing a discreet enemy to put out to sea. The allies came, and formed a crescent, with its concave side towards the English; and at 11.40 up went the signal that will be remembered while a British ship floats. Collingwood began the fight at ten minutes past twelve. In another hour Nelson received his death-wound, but he lived to hear that the meteor-flag was gloriously victorious. Of the French and Spanish vessels, seventeen were taken and one was burned, and four more were subsequently taken by Strachan. The rest escaped into Cadiz. Only twenty of the officers who served on that immortal day survive, and their names have been printed this week. One of them, a midshipman at Trafalgar, now Captain Gilbert Kennicott, received forty wounds. The noble band have lived to read, not certainly of another such day, but of a strangely-changed condition of things. On Tuesday the journals told us that Admiral Yelverton, co-operating with the ships of a French Republic and of an Italian kingdom, had menaced Spanish revolutionists with the united fire of the triple power, unless they complied with his demand for delay in an attack on Valencia. The news must have aroused brave recollections in the minds of the old heroes. Perhaps they do not greatly admire the ships of the day. But they rejoice to know that our sailors are as ready and eager for the fight as they were on Oct. 21, 1805, whereof it might well have been written,

He that outlives this day and comes safe home
Will stand a-tiptoe when this day is named,
And rouse him at the name of "Trafalgar."

We are not about to make any observations here upon the extraordinary letter from his Holiness the Pope to the German Emperor, or on the reply. Prussia is "foaming" at the first, and Germany is pouring in hundreds of addresses thanking the Emperor for the second. Archbishop Manning defends the Papal epistle, and it is meet and right that he should do so. But we should like to know what certain Ultramontane organs in Ireland mean to say about it. Because, when the correspondence was first published those journals also "foamed," declaring the Pope's letter to be a stupid and impudent forgery, palpable at a glance, and that no Catholic would for a moment believe that the Holy Father could issue such an outrageous and ridiculous document. We own that there was some ground for hesitation in accepting it as genuine; and, though we should not have ventured to employ such language as that of the Irishmen in describing anything which might possibly have emanated from his Holiness, we found the letter so amazing that we suspended judgment. Now that it proves to be the Pope's, his unfortunate Irish children are in a most unpleasant dilemma. We respectfully suggest that they lose no time in making atonement for their dreadful irreverence. A pilgrimage to Rome should be at once organised in Dublin, and a lot of Irish editors should go forth—we submit that peas in their shoes during the voyage and three hours a day of perambulation on deck would be the least that could be expected—and seek absolution at the Vatican. We feel deep sympathy for intensely religious men who have got into such an awful "hole."

Surely it can be necessary only to say that Mr. Thomas Miller, poet, born in 1808, is now in need, to procure for him the assistance which Englishmen are so ready to afford to men whose claims on them are not a hundredth part so strong as those of Mr. Miller. The author of the "Day in the Woods," and of so much other thoroughly English work, racy of the soil, yet unaffected and hearty, will not be allowed to spend the evening of his day without some substantial recognition of the pleasure he has given to thousands. "If we had only known" is the frequent commencement of regretful expression. Well, let everybody know that Mr. Miller, by reason of misfortune, requires help, and that it will be received for him by Messrs. Sampson Low and Co., 188, Fleet-street. And has the Government nothing to say to one who has deserved so well?

The Bishop of Manchester has been giving, certainly, some sound advice—and, perhaps, some offence—by pointing out to young curates that they have no business to marry unless they have such incomes as will enable them to do their duties to their families. Others than curates may profit by this counsel, and remember what is said in the Book about him "that provideth not for his own household." But the Bishop's warning was not needed by the Rev. Scotson Clark, who has just come under the rather unfavourable notice of the magistrates at Brighton. That ornament of the Church, having to give his own account of an assault with which his mother-in-law charged him, stated very frankly the terms upon which he consented to join her family. "She knew what my circumstances were. She knew I was in debt, and she undertook to pay what I owed. She promised that everything in her house should be mine; that I and my wife were to live there during her lifetime, and that on her death everything was to be my wife's. In pursuance of that arrangement I went to live in her house." It is melancholy to read that, notwithstanding so much prudence and foresight on the lover's side, the household became perturbed, the married couple separated, and the Rev. Mr. Clark went on the Continent. There, he being in the Ritualist line, he bought "a crucifix and candles," but of these latter he does not seem to have made the ancient Catholic use when he might have done so. For, according to his mother-in-law, he took occasion to enter her bed-room and curse her with a solemnity which would have been increased had he blown out a candle and trampled it under foot. But these are details, as is the fact that Mr. Clark was fined £5 for the assault complained of, and £2 for castigating a brother clergyman in Seven Dials, forgetting there is "friendly smiting," but that "precious balm should not break the head." We wish only to point out that the most prudent marriages in clerical life do not always ensure such a state of things as George Herbert desired should exist in "the Parson's House."

"Aversion from, or aversion to?" The controversy is again raised, and we desire to set it at rest by a sentence in the style of Pantagruel's, which, being utterly incomprehensible, threw both sides into an ecstasy of joy and delight. To No. 7 of the Spectator is appended one of the letters in the name of the muse Clio, and therefore the paper is Addison's. It is the capital discourse on household omens. The great English writer says, "It is not difficult for a Man to see that a Person has conceived an Aversion to him." The learned, classic, elegant author of Cato is surely authority enough for anybody. But what says the great Barrow? "There is innate in man an aversion and abhorrence from disgraceful abuse." And, again, "There is in the best dispositions much averseness from good." The eminent theologian, classic, and mathematician, "the storehouse of thought," is surely authority enough for anybody. The best authors now use "from," but let nobody be ashamed of erring with Atticus. "What . . . Addison approved cannot be wrong," as the poor fellow wrote (igno-rantly, however) as his justification for shuffling off the mortal coil, unbidden. The words may fairly vindicate a harmless wilfulness in a matter of grammar.

"Surge, carnifer," and shout! The first experiment in the way of bringing over Australian meat in ice has failed. The Port Phillip artisans were idle, drunken, and insubordinate (what a blessing that we have no such people here!), and so the tanks were hurried together, and were really unfit for their purpose. The meat was spoiled by the waste of ice, and had to be consigned to the fishes. Therefore, as aforesaid, let the butcher rejoice, and believe that his exactions will endure for ever. But our colonists are not men to be daunted by a failure, or our colonies would not be the noble things they are. Virtuous workmen will be found, trustworthy tanks will be constructed, and some of these days the splendid Australian meat will be eaten by Dukes and clubs; and perhaps, in the fulness of time, Jeames and the paupers in the unions will condescend to the finest food in the world.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

VIENNA, Monday, Oct. 20.

The picture-gallery of the Vienna Belvedere, where Prince Eugene of Savoy, the valiant coadjutor of our famous Duke of Marlborough, used to reside, justly enjoys a world-wide reputation; for among its many art-treasures are several of the masterpieces of Titian, Raphael, Correggio, Rembrandt, Vandyke, Velasquez, and Durer. Messrs. Milke and Wawra, of Vienna, whose names are well known in the photographic world, display at the Exhibition some remarkable carbon photographs, on a large scale, of the most famous of these chefs-d'œuvre. Raphael is represented by his "Madonna" in a green robe; Correggio, by his "St. Sebastian" and "Jupiter and Io"; Titian, by his "Holy Family and St. Zacharias," his "Christ and the Adulteress," and his "Danaë"; and Palma Vecchio, by his "Violanta and Lucretia." Next comes Guido Reni, with his "Cupid"; Moretto da Brescia, with his "Saint Justina"; and Murillo, with his youthful "John the Baptist." Then there are admirable photographic reproductions of Rembrandt's characteristic portrait, painted by himself, at the age of forty-five; an equally characteristic one of his mother, and his picture of the "Singing-Boy," together with others by Rubens, notably portraits of himself and his second wife, the beautiful Helene Fourment. The marvellous head of an old man at the window, by Van Hoogstraeten, with the Prince Rupert, and the Christ Crucified, of Vandyke, and the Sigismunda of Furini, complete, with some minor works, this admirable collection, which deserves to be examined by every art-student visiting Vienna. In this same section of the Austrian court will be found a highly curious model of old Vienna, with its double line of fortifications such as defended the city previous to 1857, when they were demolished by order of the present Emperor; a grand collection of excellent maps, educational and other works; and a large number of admirable photographic views and portraits, the best of the former representing mountain and forest scenery in the neighbourhood of Ischl and Salzburg.

One of the most interesting features of the Austrian section of the Vienna Weltausstellung is the handsome pavilion erected by Prince John von Schwarzenburg on the northern side of the park, not far distant from the innumerable annexes where Germany has her display of metal manufactures. Herein are exhibited specimens of the produce of the Prince's immense Bohemian estates, on which are no less than three-and-twenty breweries and a like number of saw-mills, many of the latter being driven by steam; four sugar manufactories, seven iron-forges and a forge of Bessemer steel, a distillery, an oil manufactory, a steam bakery, and forty-six tile and brick kilns. In a small piece of ornamental water in front fish and beavers from the Prince's estates are exhibited; and on entering the pavilion one perceives immediately opposite a picturesque bit of Bohemian forest, cunningly arranged with trees and rocks, artificial moss and creeping plants, and having a painted background disclosing a long vista of mountain ridges crested with lofty pine-trees. Across the glade in front bounds a magnificent stag with spreading antlers; while crouching on a projecting bough will be found a wild cat, eyeing with malignant glance a timid hare, which, as if conscious of the presence of an enemy, is pricking its ears amongst the dense underwood beneath. Our old friend Reinecke Fuchs, whom the bounds of the approaching stag and the distant bay of the hounds have awakened from his midday nap, peers out of his burrow; while around are grouped badgers, weasels, and squirrels, the latter placidly contemplating the scene from their resting-places near the summit of the trees. Numerous specimens of the feathered tribe attached to the ceiling by invisible wire crown the picture, wild geese and ducks take their flight amid the sombre pines, and a magnificent eagle soars aloft in the direction of the painted clouds in the background.

Turning to the right one finds models of a steam saw-mill, of a roughly-dressed timber-slide, like the celebrated one of Alprach, and of one of the long rafts on which the wood is floated down the rapid Bohemian rivers. Sawn planks and split staves show the quality of the timber which the Prince's innumerable forests yield; and close at hand are models of the picturesque huts inhabited by his miners, and specimens of the complicated machinery employed in his extensive mines; for, in addition to several important iron-mines in Styria, he is the owner of the largest lead-mines in the Austrian Empire. Blocks of anthracite, specimens of ore, cast and wrought iron, Bessemer steel, graphite, plumbago, and boxes of plumbago, are displayed close by, the other side of the building being assigned to samples of agricultural produce. Passing by numerous glass cases containing preserved monster carp and pike, and stalls at which various specimen fruits are exposed, one finds oneself in front of the show of hay and cereals, the former somewhat poor, but the latter splendid in every respect. Beetroot sugar occupies a prominent place in the display, and its quality is said to be exceptionally fine, while there is an extensive show of oils and oil cakes, made in another of the Prince's factories. Chests of silk-worm cocoons lying among mulberry-leaves, silky merino fleeces, cheeses of various kinds, tobacco, and marble will be found in various parts of the pavilion, the whole collection being illustrated by maps, photographs, and engravings of the great Bohemian agriculturist's widely-scattered estates.

Close to the Schwarzenburg chalet-like pavilion is one devoted to the Styrian iron industry; and no great distance off is the pavilion set aside for Carinthian mountain products, a rather large structure containing specimens of steel, iron, and coal, but of no especial interest; while, turning eastward, one soon reaches the pavilion of the Austrian Agricultural Ministry, where there is an exceedingly fine display of forest produce.

The Eastern Agricultural Hall stands beyond. This large building is reserved for the products of Austria, Germany, Hungary, and Russia, of which the first named makes, naturally enough, the most extensive display. The collective exhibitions of the various Austrian agricultural societies are profusely decorated—far more so than those of Germany, which are distinguished for their comparative barrenness of ornament. While the former delight in bright colours, eccentric grouping, and fantastical adornments, the latter content themselves with ranging their products side by side, and, confident in the excellence of the kernel, refrain from gilding the shell. In the Austrian section Styria appears to have distinguished herself the most, being closely followed in the struggle for pre-eminence by the province of Upper Austria, which has several noteworthy exhibits. Carinthia has some extremely fine cereals and flax, and the Viennese Agricultural Society show an exhaustive collection of vegetable and cereal seeds. From Roveredo comes an important display of silkworms, cocoons, and silk, highly interesting to anyone connected with sericulture; while the various agricultural schools are represented by models of the machines and implements and copies of the works used in the course of instruction.

The Austrian exhibits of fermented drinks—wine, beer, liqueurs, and spirits—are novel in the extreme, arising from the fantastic manner in which they are decorated. Round the eccentric trophies of coloured bottles or steel-bound casks, simulated branches of vine and trailing hops entwined themselves, the former enriched with clusters of artificial grapes, and the latter with flowers which would be undistinguishable from real ones, were it not for the absence of perfume. The Lieasing Brewery has a most marvellous trophy, in the form of a large cave, above which the mythical King Gambrinus, attired in bright-coloured robes, sits in a chair of state, holding a mug of foaming ale in his hand; the cave beneath being peopled by tiny gnomes, who are fighting over a cask of beer. Another leading Austrian brewery displays a pyramid of beer-casks, with four corner pedestals, on which stand the figures of a student, a soldier, a priest, and a peasant.

The School for the Culture of the Vine, conducted by Baron von Babo, at Klosterneuburg, has an interesting display of machinery and implements, many of which have been invented by students of that establishment, which is supported by the State. A series of tables shows that most of the pupils leave the country on the conclusion of their studies, the aim of the institution, which was to have provided Austria with intelligent and instructed viniculteurs, being thus almost entirely missed.

THE CITY OF BRISTOL.

The Musical Festival held during four days of this week, in the Colston Hall, at Bristol, to raise funds in aid of the local medical charities, is an occasion for topographical notice of some interesting features of that good old city. We refer to the "Book about Bristol, Historical, and Ecclesiastical, and Biographical," by Mr. John Taylor, librarian of the Bristol Museum and Library (Publishers, Houlston and Sons, Paternoster-row; T. Kerslake and Co., and W. George, Bristol). It is a readable volume, containing the results of diligent original researches, and compiled with a fair degree of literary skill, but with the zeal of a genuine love for the subject.

Bristol, or Bristow—a name, perhaps, transformed to this from Brigstowe, the Place of the Bridge—stands at the confluence of the rivers Frome and Avon, on the rocky hills and knolls round which the Avon winds to seek the gulf that divides the west of England from South Wales, below the great estuary of the Severn. The Avon at Bristol is eight miles from the sea; but this narrow tidal river has become one of the richest of English trading seaports, whose commerce is still thriving, though its comparative importance is now much less than it was a hundred years ago. The population of Bristol was 181,722 at the last Census, showing an increase of one seventh in the preceding ten years. The foreign import trade of 1870 amounted to 355,921 tons of merchandise; the amount of Customs' duties paid that year was above one million sterling, and of dock dues £37,426. The City Corporation is about to expend £400,000 in constructing new docks and widening the channel of the Avon, to admit vessels of larger size. This port has long enjoyed a great traffic with the West Indies, and its sugar manufacture employs much capital and labour; but we shall give a minute description, with some illustrations, of one of the most complete and extensive sugar factories.

The antiquities of Bristol are full of interest, for the city often took an active part in the civil wars of England, from the time of Harold's outlawry under Edward the Confessor, on through the conflict between Stephen and Matilda, the Barons' War of Henry III., the deposition of Edward II., who died near here, at Berkeley Castle, the dethronement of Richard II. by Henry of Bolingbroke, and the war between Charles I. and his Parliament, when Bristol was captured by Prince Rupert, with an assault, in July, 1643, but was retaken from that Prince in September, 1645, by Fairfax, for the Commonwealth. The Reform Bill riots of 1831, when the Mansion House, the Gaol, and the Bishop's Palace were burnt by a furious mob should perhaps be reckoned among the exploits of civil war at Bristol. The fortifications of 1643, to repel the siege conducted by Prince Rupert for King Charles, were very extensive, and may yet be traced on Brandon Hill.

Church history has likewise much to show for itself in Bristol, as will appear from the subjects delineated in our page of Engravings. It is said that one of the companions of St. Augustine, the Roman missionary monk who came at the end of the sixth Christian century for the conversion of Saxon England, fixed his abode and founded his chapel, with a brotherhood of prayer and study, on College Hill. The Abbey of St. Augustine was founded in 1142 by Robert Fitzhardinge, a burgess of Bristol, then dwelling in Baldwin-street, who was descended, as well as the progenitors of the Lords of Berkeley, from one Hardinge, the younger son of a Danish King, in the camp of Norman Duke William at the Conquest. When the Abbey was built, Prince Henry, afterwards King Henry II., was a boy getting his education at Bristol, under the guardianship of his elder half-brother, Robert, Earl of Gloucester. He was associated with Robert Fitzhardinge in the completion and endowment of this Abbey, as an inscription over the gateway yet records. This gateway, on College-green, is not pure Norman, says Mr. Godwin, but a Perpendicular restoration of the old work. The city gateway of St. John the Baptist, shown on the opposite side of our page, stands at the lower end of Broad-street, one of the four central streets of Bristol, including also High-street, Corn-street, and Wine-street, which have always been its chief business thoroughfares. By this gate passed the ancient circuit of the city wall, 8 ft. high and 6 ft. thick, with twenty-five massive embattled towers, and with a mighty castle on the eastern side. The ancient Black Friars' Monastery or Priory, in Rosemary-street, was founded by Maurice Gaunt, Lord of Beverstone, who died in 1230, and is here buried, as is likewise Sir Maurice Berkeley, of Beverstone, who died in 1466. A stone brought from Palestine, and supposed to bear the miraculous imprint of our Saviour's footprint, was deposited here in the reign of Henry III., who afterwards received it as a gift from this convent and placed it in Westminster Abbey.

The cathedral of Bristol was originally the College Church of St. Augustine's Monastery; but, at the dissolution of such religious corporations, in the reign of Henry VIII., was made the head-quarters of an Episcopal See. The only portions of the original abbey buildings that now remain are the great gateway, above described, the archway leading to the Abbot's lodgings, in the Lower Green, and the Chapter House of the Cathedral. The earlier edifice of the Abbey Church was destroyed, and was partly rebuilt in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, but only the choir and chancel were then completed. The restoration of the nave, from the designs of Mr. G. E. Street, has lately been commenced, which good work is mainly due to the exertions of the Rev. Canon Norris and Mr. Killigrew Wait. The nave will be 117 ft. long by 69 ft. wide, inside the walls; and will have a groined stone roof; it will be terminated by two western towers, with a grand west window over the doorway, between them. Of the existing Cathedral building and its features of interest, we may notice the monument of the Berkeley family, or rather of Robert Fitzhardinge, Lord of Berkeley in the twelfth century, whose son Maurice took the name of Berkeley for his surname. The tomb, with recumbent effigies of this Robert and Lady Eva, his wife, is a work of the fourteenth century, between the choir and the older Lady Chapel.

The name of Edward Colston, an enterprising merchant of the seventeenth century, who was born and lived in Bristol, is preserved by his munificent foundations of charity, the hospital, school, and almshouse called after him. But Colston Hall, in which the meetings of the Musical Festival have been held, is a handsome and commodious modern edifice, opened six years ago. The hall within is 153 ft. long, 80 ft. wide, and 70 ft. high, with space for 2500 sittings, besides 500 more in the orchestra. The staircase and the outside of this building are shown in our illustration.

Many picturesque and characteristic features of the old-fashioned house-building and style of street decoration may be observed in a walk through the middle part of Bristol. Not a few associations with persons eminent in literature, science, and art, or in the politics of their day, or in the movements of religious thought and feeling, are suggested by places in this western city. The house No. 9, Wine-street, which was the birthplace of Robert Southey, reminds us, for instance, that he and Coleridge, and Wordsworth, the founders of a fresh school of poetry in the last age, were once more or less connected for a time with the neighbourhood of Bristol. It will be our agreeable duty to return hither at the next Congress of the British Association.

DRINKS AND DRINKING-VESSELS.

A certain compound, one part of oxygen and two of hydrogen, which is called water, was the original liquid by which man slaked his thirst. The patriarch Noah was the first we read of who drank something stronger. Like his progenitor, Adam, he was an husbandman. But he did more; he planted a vineyard, and by its fruit he was conquered. Concerning this circumstance there is a Rabbinical tradition that when Noah planted the vine Satan attended, and sacrificed a sheep, a lion, an ape, and a sow. These animals symbolised the gradations of ebriety—first ignorant, then bold, then foolish, lastly, in the mire like the sow. As our purpose is not to grope far into the "mists of antiquity," we shall only refer to the drinking customs of the Greeks and Romans. Among the latter, young men below thirty, women all their lifetime, were forbidden to drink wine, unless at sacrifices, whence, according to some, the custom of saluting female relations that it might be known whether they had drunk wine. So much for the ancient use of a kiss. A man could even divorce his wife for drinking wine. So strict were the old Romans in this respect that a certain Ignatius Mercurius is said to have slain his wife because he caught her at the wine-cask. The punishment was not deemed excessive by Romulus, who absolved the husband of the crime of murder. Among the later Romans, as Juvenal tells us, this restriction had no force. In Greece the virgins and matrons drank wine, as appears from the example of Nausicaa and her companions, in Homer. On that account, and because the same custom was rarely allowed in other countries, the Grecian women were ill thought of elsewhere. It was in the luscious, sweet, amber-coloured wines that their nation excelled all others, and to this class we must regard the commendations of the later poets as applying. During the Roman occupation of Britain the potteries here, for drinking and other vessels, were in active operation. A very common coating for these was black oxide of iron. Among the ancients the ivy was a plant sacred to Bacchus. Bacchus was the type of vigour, and Silenus of excess.

Travelling rapidly, we come to the Anglo-Saxons, and the people of the Middle Ages. Their festive customs are indicated by the names of the principal periods into which the year was divided. Besides the four great festivals, Candlemass, Beltane, Lammas, and All Hallows day, the year was begun by drinking spiced liquors from the wassail bowl, so called from the Anglo-Saxon. "Waes hael" (Be healthy). A mere glance at some of the names into which the calendar was divided will show what our ancestors thought of drinking. These are leet ale, lamb ale, Whittun ale, clerk ale, bread ale, church ale, Scot ale, midsummer ale, and others. The churchwardens brewed malt into strong ale; they sold it to the people at holiday times; then applied the money to the repair of the church.

Respecting ale and beer drinking in the sixteenth century, Harrison, in his "Historical Description of the Island of Britain," says that the name of ale was used to designate a liquor in which there were no hops—that is, it was brewed from malt, but not so sodden or boiled in the brewing as that called beer, and no hops were put into it. Ale is undoubtedly the older of the two. Speaking of hard drinking of these two liquors of his day, he reproaches his countrymen for it, and for their appetite for strong drinks. Their different degrees of mightiness were known by the endearing names of huff cap, the mad dog, angel's food, dragon's milk, go by the wall, and other more expressive than elegant names, which may remain unquoted. On Jan. 4, 1667, Mr. Pepys speaks of having at supper "a flagon of ale and apples, drank out of a wooden cup, as a Christmas draught, which made all merry." But from a book published previous to this (Heywood's "Philocotholista," 1635, Brand) it appears that in those days there were as great a variety of drinking-vessels as of liquors, in some of which they infused rosemary. The cups were made of box, maple, elm, holly, oak, and other woods. The enumeration of a few will suffice: mazers, broadmouthed dishes, noggins, whisks, piggins, crinzes, ale-bowls, wassel-bowls, court dishes, tankards, kannes, bottles of leather, cups of horns, cocoa-nuts, gourds, ostrich eggs, and shells. Of plated articles there were flat bowls, French bowls, posset cups, beare bowls, boakers, flagons, tankards, beer-cups, and wine-bowls. Rosemary has been mentioned: this plant denoted rejoicing. The posset in the olden time among country gentlemen closed the joyous day. In Shakespeare, Lady Macbeth says of the surfeited grooms, "I have drugged their possets;" also, in "The Merry Wives of Windsor," Page, cheering Falstaff, says "Thou shalt eat a posset at my house to-night."

One or two other more modern usages mentioned in connection with this subject will, we feel sure, not lower us in the estimation of the temperate reader. Our business is that of chroniclers rather than moralisers. The following are from

"Hone's Every-day Book":—The rustics in Cumberland, on Twelfth Night, eat lobscouse—i.e., beef, potatoes, and onions fried together; also drink ponsodde, which is ale boiled with sugar and nutmeg, into which are put roasted apples. The lordly "bishop" was a favourite drink for the "nightcap," or night-cup, before going to bed. How it came by this name is not known; but the name is supposed to have originated from the old custom of regaling prelates with spiced wine when they honoured the Oxford University with a visit. The following is the recipe for an Oxford bishop:—"Make incisions in the rind of lemon; in these put cloves, and roast the whole by slow fire; small quantities of cinnamon, cloves, mace, and allspice; a race of ginger to be put into a half-pint of water in a saucepan and boiled to half. Boil a bottle of port wine, set it on fire to burn some of the spirit away; add lemon and spice to this last; stir well, and let it stand near the fire ten minutes. Put the juice of half a lemon not roasted into a jug; pour the wine on to it. Sweeten, and you have now created your bishop." The three gradations of "lawn sleeves," "cardinal," and "Pope" differ from bishop in using sherry, claret, and champagne in lieu of port.

Here are also two anecdotes, the truth of which is undoubted, concerning ale. "On Nov. 30, 1793, died at Beaumaris, William Lewis, Esq., in the act of drinking a cup of Welsh ale. His rule was, every morning to read so many chapters in the Bible; in the evening, eight gallons of ale. In his life, by calculation, he drank enough ale to float a 74-gun ship. He weighed 40 stone. His body was conveyed to the carriage by a crane, which also was used to lower him into the grave." The next is of the present day. "A short time since Mr. H. Wooley, whilst on a sanitary survey of the parish of Cowbit, Lincolnshire, found two old men in one house, one eighty-five, the other ninety-five years of age. The latter has been in the habit of drinking one gallon of beer before breakfast, another during the day, and a few extra pints at night to top up with. He has never had an hour's illness."

As there is a Japanese vessel in the Exhibition for making hot sake, a notice of this liquor shall conclude our brief gossip. Sake, of which there are several kinds, is a species of wine made from rice; it is generally warmed before drinking, and its taste is rather like sherry. The commoner sorts are drunk in a similar way to beer by the lower orders. A pint is sufficient to intoxicate. The best kinds of sake are used by the wealthy at the dinner-table.

REFERENCES TO ENGRAVINGS ON PAGE 397.

- A—Forfeit glass, Venetian; seventeenth century; doubtless identical with the English "yard-of-ale" glass. It is 37 in. long, and holds four fifths of a pint. In "Evelyn's Diary," Feb. 10, 1685, he notices that when James II. was proclaimed in the market-place of Bromley by the Sheriff of Kent the military officers drank the King's health in a flint glass a yard long.
- B—Silver beaker, English; hall-marked, 1604.
- C—Spanish glass; seventeenth century.
- D—Bronze Italian cup and cover, attributed to Cellini.
- E—A tyg (English). Tygs were generally bowl-shaped, and had from two to seven handles. Those exhibited will hold from half a pint to two quarts; the latter were well adapted for drinkers of large capacity.
- F—Scandinavian drinking-horn, contributed by the Royal Museum, Copenhagen.
- G—German glass goblet, 20 in. high, lent by Prince Christian. This is a very characteristic specimen of the old German glass manufacture. It was heavier than the Venetian in substance, and more clumsy in form. A very usual design, as in the present case, is the Imperial eagle, bearing on its wings the arms of the States and cities comprised in the German Empire. It is dated 1616.
- H—Dutch drinking-glass, with cover; eighteenth century.
- I—French drinking-vessel, stoneware; sixteenth century.
- J—Venetian beaker glass, 13½ in. high, of blackish tint, with square bosses; sixteenth century.
- K—Peg tankard, from Glastonbury Abbey. It is of oak, varnished, and will hold exactly two quarts of ale. Inside there were originally eight pegs, which divided the contained liquor into equal quantities of half a pint each; but some of the pegs have dropped out. King Edgar (who was buried in Glastonbury Abbey, in 975), to restrain the habits of drunkenness brought over by the Danes, caused pegs to be fixed in drinking-cups. Those who drank below their proper marks were punished. The probable age of this tankard is about the tenth or eleventh century, judging from the form of the letters and some wanting peculiarities in the dresses of the Apostles. In speaking of a person in high spirits we say he is "in a merry pin." The original meaning of this was that he had drunk below the sober mark or pin.
- L—English leather black-jack. They were made of all sizes. In Heywood's "Philocotholista," published in 1635, we read that when the French first saw the large black-jacks, they reported in their own country that the English drank out of their boots.
- M—Mug or tankard, of clear glass, splashed with red, white, and blue. Venice, sixteenth century.
- N—Ancient Roman earthenware drinking-cup, found at Icklingham, Suffolk.
- O—Mug, old Newcastle ware, with model of toad inside. This is one of the pleasantest connected with "beer." The reader will notice that, when holding the mug to the mouth with the right hand, the reptile is so placed as not to be seen by the victim till the liquor is nearly drunk.
- P—Beaker, enamelled glass, ornamented with tritons, spread eagles, and other figures. This is a capital example of the earliest style of Venetian glass manufacture. The later productions of the school include the drinking-vessels of thin blown glass, which command universal admiration for their exquisite grace and variety of form.
- Q—Ancient Roman earthenware drinking-cup, found at Fordingbridge.
- R—Pilgrim's bottle. Old German or Flemish.
- S—English puzzle-jug; date about 1650. The inscription on it reads thus:—
Here, gentlemen, come try your skill
I'll hold a wager, if you will,
That you don't drink this liquor all
Without you spill or let some fall.

It may be inferred that there is much difficulty in drinking from a puzzle-jug, the upper portion of the sides of which are perforated. On the top rim are holes which communicate with the contained liquor at the inside and bottom. There is a modern imitation of this trick in conjuring circles called the "Cup of Tantalus."

- T—Gilt tankard, Nuremberg; sixteenth century.
- U—Cyanthus, Etruscan black ware.
- V—Drinking-flagon, dated 1603, of Shakespeare's period.

A ROYAL SEASIDE ADVENTURE.

The accident that lately befell Queen Maria Pia, consort of the King of Portugal and daughter of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, with her two little boys, Prince Carlos and Prince Alfonso, was related in our last week's news. Her Majesty and the Royal children were staying at Cascaes, on the open seacoast, outside the harbour of Lisbon. She walked with the boys, who are ten and eight years old, on a part of the beach called the Mexilhoeiro, from the quantities of mussels found there. The descent to this beach from the cliffs above, where stands the Guia lighthouse, is by a flight of steps cut in the rock, called the Escada or Ladder. The Countess Linhares and Viscount de Mossamedes, who followed her Majesty, were left at some distance behind. The Queen led her boys to see the Boca do Inferno, a cavern in the face of the cliff, made by the ceaseless force of the Atlantic waves. In our view of the place, from a sketch by our Lisbon artist, Senhor Bordallo de Pinheiro, the Boca do Inferno is shown to the right hand. There are deep cracks or crevices across the sloping and slippery surface of the rocks, by which the Queen and her little sons attempted to reach the cavern. Few ladies but the fearless daughter of the soldier and hunter King Victor Emmanuel would have chosen such a promenade on a wild gusty afternoon, when the sea had been lashed into fury by a recent gale. Many a tall ship has been dashed to pieces on these rocks, and the roar of the waves is a sound of awful menace. But Donna Maria, expert in all active exercises, perhaps fond of the excitement of danger, was fearlessly making her way along the Mexilhoeiro. Suddenly a very large wave caught the little feet of the two children, and swept both into the cleft of the rocks, where the water was deep. The Queen leapt in after them, half swimming, half clinging to the rock, and held them during a moment of agonised suspense. We can fancy how the next high wave would have torn them all three down through the cleft into the raging sea. Happily, their plight had been seen by a man belonging to the Guia lighthouse on the cliff, Antonio Silva. He had descended the Escada; he now rushed to the spot, and lifted out of the cleft first Dom Carlos, next Dom Alfonso, afterwards helping the Queen to regain her footing on the rocks. Her Majesty was much exhausted, and felt the cold after her wetting. She was wrapped in a blanket and carried home. When rested and recovered she wrote a letter to the King, who was at Lisbon, staying in the Ajuda, and forwarded it by a special messenger, not wishing to cause alarm by sending a telegram. The King no sooner read the missive than he sent for Senhor Fontes, and instructed him to make out a decree decorating Silva, the lighthouse man, with the Tower and Sword. The King went early next morning to Cascaes to visit his Queen and children. The President of the Council, the Minister of Public Works, the Patriarch of Lisbon, and the municipalities have paid also visits of congratulation. The Brotherhood of the Italian Church of the Loreto celebrated a grand mass, followed by a Te Deum, in thanksgiving for the Queen and Princess having escaped their imminent peril. A pension and suitable office, as well as the Tower and Sword, will be given to lucky Antonio Silva.

GREAT CATCH OF HERRINGS.

The beach near Dawlish, towards the Warren Point, at the mouth of the river Exe, showed a very lively scene on Wednesday week, in consequence of the wonderful quantity of herrings taken by the fishing-boats. A hundred men, women, and children were busy, as soon as the boats could be unloaded, gathering the fish into hampers to be sent by the South Devon Railway to London for sale. The herrings were piled on the beach in heaps 2 ft. thick, while many were left floating dead in the water, as the nets had broken in drawing them ashore. People hastened from the village with their baskets, and from neighbouring places with donkey-carts, to procure as many as they were able to carry off; a large portion was taken by the farmers to be used for manure. We have to thank a lady at Starcross for the sketch we have engraved.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

On the last day of the present month the volunteer year will be brought to a close; and the Civil Service Review regrets to hear that the returns of the force to be sent in to Mr. Cardwell on that date will not be such as to give satisfaction. Since the beginning of the year the number of vacancies among officers has been 261, and the great difficulty found in obtaining suitable men willing to accept the commissions is proof of the growing apathy felt in the cause. The loss of 261 officers, and probably a much more significant proportion of men, in less than twelve months, is testimony enough that, if matters are left as they are, the permanency of the volunteer army in Great Britain is endangered.

A course of instruction laid down for engineer volunteers has been issued from the War Office in the last Auxiliary and Reserved Forces Circular.

The annual official inspection of the 1st Middlesex Administrative Brigade of Artillery was held on Saturday last, at the Wellington Barracks, by Colonel Wolsey, R.A., Inspector of Auxiliary Artillery for the Home District. The brigade, which, under arrangements with the War Office, now consists of the 1st City of London and 1st Middlesex Corps, mustered on Saturday four batteries, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Walmsley. After a minute examination of the arms and accoutrements in line, the brigade marched past, went through the manual and firing exercises, and then Colonel Wolsey examined each battery separately and tested the proficiency of officers and men in drill. Subsequently the most important part of the inspection—gun drill—was gone through, and kept up till past eight o'clock.

The annual prize meeting of No. 3 company, St. George's, took place at Wormholt-scrubbs, on Friday last, when a handsome list of prizes was competed for, consisting of various articles contributed by members and friends of the company, and several sums of money. In the first series, the first prize, £5 5s., was won by Lieutenant Peal. The other prize-winners were Messrs. Johnson, Hawkins, Simpson, Budge, Bendall, Gray, Troake, Luker, Randall, Evans, Parsons, Thornton, and Potter. The second series, £5 5s., divided into two prizes of 3s. and 2s., resulted in a tie with Privates Thornton and Simpson. In the firing off Mr. Thornton proved the winner, and took the first prize. In the third series the winners were Messrs. Toma, Gray, Gale, Potter, and Bryett. At the conclusion about fifty members, with their friends, sat down to dinner in the rifle pavilion, and an opportunity was afterwards taken of making a presentation of a splendidly mounted album, containing the cartes de visite of the members of the company, to Captain Gray, who has just resigned his command.

The first competition of the Middlesex Association for the Grosvenor Challenge Cup and series of prizes was held, last week, at Raynham, and, after some good shooting, Private Nichollett, Victorias, proved the winner of the cup and first prize, with the excellent score of 77 marks, comprised of 17 bull's-eyes and three centres in his 20 shots. The following are the winning scores:—First prize, Private Nichollett; second prize, Private R. Bird, South Middlesex; third prize, Captain Radcliffe, South Middlesex; fourth prize, Sergeant-Instructor Gilder, 18th Middlesex; fifth prize, Captain Starkie, Queen's; sixth prize, Captain Cunningham, 18th Middlesex.

The prizes won by the members of the 1st Gloucester (Bristol) Artillery in the competition held during the encampment of the corps at Portishead, at the regimental prize meeting at Avonmouth, and at the county rifle meeting at Gloucester, were distributed, last Saturday, at the head-quarters of the corps at Bristol. Colonel Savile, who has held command of the corps from its formation, has just resigned, but retains the rank of honorary Colonel, and he has been succeeded by Colonel Blunt, who has recently left the Royal Artillery.

Eleven members of the Ennis Rifle Club assembled, last week, at the practice-ground, Drumliff, to compete for a handsome silver cup, presented by Captain Stapoole, M.P., and valued at £10. Captain Westropp, of Fortanna, was declared the winner by 43 points. Mr. Enright was second in score, Captain Hamilton third, and Dr. W. Cullenan fourth.

The committee who have charge of the banquet to Mr. Disraeli at Glasgow have decided that it shall take place in the City Hall, on the evening of Nov. 19—the Lord Provost presiding. The address as Lord Rector of Glasgow University will be delivered at noon of the same day by Mr. Disraeli in Kibbes's Crystal Palace, the largest conservatory in Scotland. Next day he will be presented with the freedom of the city.

BOCA DO INFERNO, SCENE OF THE ACCIDENT TO THE QUEEN OF PORTUGAL AND HER CHILDREN.

GREAT TAKE OF HERRINGS AT THE MOUTH OF THE EZE.

THE DROV
BY T. CRESWICK, R.A.

R'S HALT.

D R. ANSDILL, R.A.

ANCIENT DRINKING-VESSELS IN THE INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.—(SEE PAGE 396.)

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will, with five codicils, of Robert, Baron Zouche, who died at Parham Park, Pulborough, Sussex, Aug. 2, was proved, on the 9th inst., by his son, Robert Nathaniel Cecil George, now Lord Zouche, the sole executor, the personal estate being sworn under £40,000. The testator has left £500 to pay for the building of the school and schoolmaster's house at Rackham, and legacies to his trustees and servants. The residue he gives to his said son, who also takes the settled estates; his only daughter being provided for by the late Lady Zouche's marriage settlement. The testator gives permission to his son to sell his collection of ancient arms and armour, the first offer to be made to the Tower of London.

The will of Lady Sarah Maitland, the widow of General Sir Peregrine Maitland, G.C.B., of Hampton Court Palace, was proved, on the 9th inst., by her son, Charles Lennox Brownlow Maitland, and her son-in-law, Lord Frederic Herbert Kerr, the executors, the personality being sworn under £7000.

The will of James Barstow, of the Inner Temple, and of North-crescent, Bedford-square, barrister-at-law, and a Bench of the Hon. Society of Gray's Inn, was proved, on the 8th inst., by Mrs. Mary Barstow, the relict, the sole executrix, the personal estate being sworn under £30,000. The testator gives and bequeaths his property entirely to his widow, for her absolute use and benefit.

The will and three codicils of the Rev. Charles Ingleby, late of Wood Bank, Cheadle, Staffordshire, have been proved at the District Registry, Lichfield, by John William Ward and George Paulson Wragge, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £80,000. The testator bequeaths to the Church Missionary Society, the British and Foreign Bible Society, and the Religious Tract Society, £200 each; to the Church Pastoral Aid Society, the National Life-Boat Institution, St. George's Hospital (Hyde Park-corner), the Royal Hospital for Incurables (Putney), the Earlwood Asylum for Idiots, and the Wanstead Orphan Asylum, £100 each; to the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, the Colonial and Continental Church Society, the London City Mission, the Reformatory and Refuge Union, the Birmingham General Hospital, the Queen's Hospital (Birmingham), the Birmingham General Dispensary, the North Staffordshire Infirmary, the Hospital for Consumption at Brompton, the National Cottage Hospital (Ventnor), the Hospital for Sick Children (Great Ormond-street), and the Shipwrecked Mariners' Society, £50 each; to the Foreign Aid Society, the London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews, the Church of England Scripture Readers' Association, the Ragged School Union, the Clothing Society for the benefit of poor pious Clergymen of the Church of England and their families (founded by Miss Lamb and others, in 1820), the Sanatorium at Bournemouth, the Birmingham Deaf and Dumb Asylum, the Blind Asylum (Birmingham), the Institution for the Blind (Euston-road), the Governesses' Benevolent Institution (Sackville-street), the Railway Benevolent Institution (Seymour-street), the Hospital for Children (Birmingham), and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, 19s. each; to the Drinking Fountains Association, 10s.; to the Incumbent of Christ Church, Birmingham, £40, to be applied, at his discretion, to charities and educational establishments in connection with such church; to the Incumbent of St. George's, Edgbaston, £50, to be applied in a similar manner in connection with any church in Edgbaston or Birmingham; to the Rev. Edward Whieldon, of Hales' Hall, Cheadle, £50, to be applied, at his discretion, to any religious or benevolent institution or purpose; to the Vicar of Ellaston £50 for a similar purpose; to be expended in warm clothing or otherwise for the benefit of the poor in Oakmoor, £50. After giving a great many other legacies testator gives the residue to his executors, to be applied as follows:—£4000, or, at their discretion, any sum not exceeding £6000, to or for the purpose of some institution or undertaking of a religious or charitable nature, and the residue to or amongst such institutions, undertakings, or purposes of a religious or other charitable nature, whether named in his will or not, and whether including some for the augmentation of the amount to be applied to the one special institution or undertaking therein named or not, as they in their absolute discretion shall think fit.

CURIOUS WILLS.

It is a very agreeable thing to be a legatee: sometimes, however, a legacy comes clogged with a condition which takes off a good deal of the pleasure accompanying its receipt. It may not be an intolerable condition having to take the name and arms of an old family and give up some undistinguished name for an historical or an aristocratic one in order to inherit a fine estate, but it is often a burden to a widow to know that if she should give way to a natural wish and marry again she will lose all or the greater part of the money left to her by her husband. On such a condition large estates are constantly being willed, and many of the bequests to widows are only so long as they remain unmarried.

Occasionally the condition on which legacies can be enjoyed is that the legatee shall not become or be married to a Roman Catholic. The Hon. Mrs. Araminta Monck Ridley, whose will was proved in April, 1869, placed still further restraints on her legatees. She declares "that if any or either of my said children, either in my lifetime or at any time after my decease, shall become or shall marry a Roman Catholic, or shall join or enter any Ritualistic brotherhood or sisterhood, then, and in any or either of the said cases, the several provisions, whether original, substitutive, or accruing, hereby made for the benefit of such child or children, shall cease and determine and become absolutely void."

In olden times estates were often held in England by very curious tenures. One of the most ancient in the north was the tenure by a horn. The superior lord, who might be the King, gave possession of the land by the gift of a horn, and the land was held on condition of its being blown, so as to give notice whenever there was any danger or an actual inroad of the Picts. In modern times we have property held by a more curious tenure still. Mr. Henry Budd, by his will, proved in February, 1862, declares "that in case my son Edward shall wear mustachoes, then the devise hereinbefore contained in favour of him, his appointees, heirs, and assigns, of my said estate called Pepper Park, shall be void; and I devise the same estate to my son William, his appointees, heirs, and assigns. And in case my said son William shall wear mustachoes, then the devise hereinbefore contained in favour of him, his appointees, heirs, and assigns, of my said estate called Twickenham Park shall be void; and I devise the said estate to my said son Edward, his appointees, heirs, and assigns." Mr. Budd is not singular in his objection to the mustache. Mr. Fleming, an appraiser and upholsterer of Pimlico, by his will, proved in April, 1869, gives to the different men in his employ £10 each; "but to those who persist in wearing the mustache, £5 only."

Testators sometimes even venture to touch feminine attire; for we find Mr. James Robbins, whose will was proved in October, 1864, declaring "that, in the event of my dear wife not complying with my request to wear a widow's cap after my decease, and in the event of her marrying again, that then and in both such cases the annuity which shall be payable to her out of my estate shall be £20 per annum, and not £30." As there was no stipulation as to the time the widow's cap was to be worn, probably Mrs. Robbins found it easy to comply with the letter of the request in her husband's will, and yet indulge her own taste in the matter. In contradistinction to this example of a husband compelling his widow to wear the emblems of mourning for him whether she mourned his loss or not, may be placed the provisions of the will, proved in May, 1868, of Mr. Edward Concanen; although the bequest is not made to depend upon their observance, the testator says:—"And I hereby bind my said wife that she do not after my decease offend artistic taste, or blazon the sacred feelings of her sweet and gentle nature, by the exhibition of a widow's cap."

A very peculiar obligation was imposed on two of his legatees by Sir James South, the astronomer, whose will, with several codicils, was proved in 1868. By his will he gave a pocket chronometer each to the Earl of Shaftesbury, the Earl of Rosse, and Mr. Archibald John Stevens, and in one of his codicils he states they were so given to them in the fullest confidence that they would respectively use and wear them in the same manner as "I am in the habit of wearing my chronometer—namely, in my pantaloons pocket, properly so called"—a sort of premium to try and perpetuate the old fashion of carrying the watch in the fob pocket, in vogue when Sir James South was a young man.

To quote one instance of a conditional legacy given nearly one hundred years ago, we may refer to the codicil to the will of David Hume, the historian, wherein he leaves to his old friend Mr. John Home, of Kilduff (who disliked port, and used to contend that "Home" was the correct spelling both of his own name and Hume's), "ten dozen of my old claret at his choice, and one single bottle of that other liquor called port. I also leave to him six dozen of port, provided that he attests under his hand, signed John Hume, that he has himself alone finished that bottle at two sittings. By this concession he will at once terminate the only two differences that ever arose between us concerning temporal affairs."

WORK, WAGES, AND PRICES.

The Earl of Derby, who was entertained at a banquet in the Townhall of Liverpool last week, in replying to the toast of the evening, referred to the industrial prospects of the country as they are likely to be affected by the increased rate of wages in almost every branch of labour, and to the Aahantee war. With regard to the former of these questions, his Lordship remarked that it was a problem which "everybody is competent to state and which nobody is competent to solve;" but he pointed to the fact that the same causes which affect labour in this country are operating in America, and on the Continent, while England could boast a superiority in point of capital and natural resources. He thinks economists do not display a firm faith in their own laws; but for his own part he believes they will undoubtedly operate, whether we believe in them or not. "To put it in one word," said his Lordship, "I do not believe in wages being permanently raised, by any artificial combination, beyond their natural level." But Lord Derby did not say that combination might not be effective in bringing wages up to their natural level, and maintaining them there.

Mr. Thomas Brassey, M.P. for Hastings, and a director of the London and North-Western Railway, presiding at a science and art meeting at Wolverton, last week, announced his intention of offering for competition amongst those employed at the works a premium of £100 to the one who would produce the most effectual improvement in the form of a grate or stove suitable for a cottage.

Mr. Alderman Carter, M.P., who presided at a crowded meeting in Leeds on the labour question, stated that it was a libel upon the working classes to charge them with squandering their extra earnings in drink. The evidence taken before the Coal Committee contradicted these charges, and he had personal experience that with their increased wages their homes had improved, their wives were happier, and their children better cared for. He heeded not those who were opposed to shorter hours, as England was never wealthier than at present.

At the commencement of the session of the debating class at the University College, Gower-street, on Thursday week, the chair was taken by Professor Beesley, who, in speaking on the question of the Agricultural Labourers' Union, said, in alluding to the system of allotments, that the labourers often increased four times the value of the land they obtained from the farmers, which was very bad ground; and when, after about two years, it had been improved, the farmers turned them off to another piece equally bad. Although a member of the council of the Agricultural Union, he had anticipated from the class of labourers a rather violent exhibition of their power when they became possessed of it. He had been most agreeably surprised, however, at the great moderation which had been exercised by them all through the movement. Respecting the remedy of the condition of the labourers by emigration, the Professor did not consider that at all in a favourable light; and he concurred in the views expressed by the late Mr. J. S. Mill that the effect of emigration, carried on in dribbles as it is at present, is of no benefit to the nation, and to do any real good to the condition of those left in this country the principle must be carried out on a very large scale indeed. There was also a moral objection to emigration. It was not right that a man whose ancestors had lived and done a great deal in improving this country should be compelled to seek another shore for his livelihood. England also lost by emigration her best labourers, for it was generally the best workers and the more earnest and industrious portion that went from this country.

Inclement weather is the assigned cause of shortcoming in the anticipated success of a great colliery demonstration at Mold on Monday. Sir Robert Cunliffe, Bart., M.P., presided at the meeting, which was addressed by Mr. Pickard and Mr. Brown, leading men of the Amalgamated Association of Miners.

Several hundred colliers employed in the Leicestershire pits have struck work because the colliery proprietors would not continue to pay them the same wages for getting 20 cwt. of coal (according to the weighing clause of the Mines Regulation Act) as they have hitherto been paid for a ton of 21 cwt.

The delegates of more than 40,000 colliers employed in the Durham pits have applied to the coalowners for an advance of 20 per cent in their wages, basing their request on the present price of coal in the London market. The masters unanimously refuse to entertain the application, alleging that since the wages of the men were last fixed (during the coal famine of last winter) the price of coal in the metropolis has declined.

Mr. Thomas Burt, the agent of the Northumberland miners, has accepted an invitation, signed by 3500 electors of Morpeth, to become a candidate for the representation of that borough at the general election.

Twenty-four representatives of the colliers in all the districts of Scotland have addressed a note to the Earl of Shaftesbury with respect to his recent statement concerning them and their wages. Knowing that he would not calumniate them, they ask the noble Earl to disclose the name of the author of what they call "such gross misrepresentations," to which they give a flat contradiction, and, at the same time, crave an honest inquiry into the facts.

A meeting of general labourers was held at the Guildhall, Bath, on Monday evening, for the purpose of promoting unionism. Both the members for the city were invited. Colonel Hayter sent a letter saying that he was called away from Bath by private business, but should be happy to become a vice-president and subscribe towards the funds. Lord Grey de Wilton attended the meeting, which was presided over by Mr. George Mitchell of London.

The great hiring fair was held at Reading on Saturday. Labourers were engaged at 13s. per week without cottages, and carters from 13s. to 15s., with £2 at Michaelmas; shepherds averaged about the same, with a premium at the lambing season; boys, from 4s. to 6s.

At the Cambridgeshire Quarter Sessions, yesterday week, the Court confirmed the conviction of the four labourers who were sentenced to twenty-one days' imprisonment last July for intimidating other farm labourers and threatening them with violence if they did not leave their work at Swaffham Prior; but modified the sentence to one week's hard labour, and ordered them to pay the costs.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the National Agricultural Labourers' Union, held at Leamington on Monday, a resolution was passed urging the labourers to migrate or emigrate rather than submit to the reduction of wages on which it was asserted that many farmers were insisting now that the harvest operations are over. It was stated at this meeting that two agents of the Irish Farm Labourers' Union were about to proceed to Washington to arrange for a gigantic exodus of Irishmen to the Western and Pacific States of America.

The correspondent of the Daily News who is accompanying Mr. Arch on his Canadian tour, writing from the Niagara Falls on the 28th ult., expresses great satisfaction at the reception Mr. Arch and his companions had received both at Ottawa and Toronto. At Ottawa, the writer says, they had several important interviews with the heads of departments, and the reception accorded them by the Prime Minister of the Dominion, Sir John A. Macdonald, was "cordial and satisfactory." At Toronto the mission were treated as the guests of the Government. Apartments were secured for them at the Queen's Hotel, one of the largest on the continent, and Lieutenant-Colonel Denison was deputed to act as their guide throughout the province. The Attorney-General and Premier of the province, Mr. Mowatt, "entered warmly into Mr. Arch's projects," and "nothing could exceed the universal good feeling." The issue of our visit (the writer adds) will be a systematic co-operation on the part of the Dominion Government with the Leamington Union to ensure a perennial stream of first-class emigration. A registry will be kept here of wants, and a descriptive list of such wants will be sent to the office of the Union, and thence distributed, through its complete and efficient agencies, all over the rural districts. So, in all human probability, will the great problem of the agricultural labourers' position in England be henceforth solved. If the home employer cannot really afford to pay properly remunerative wages for the services of the men, a clear and straight pathway will be opened before them to a land where those services will be adequately rewarded.

According to the testimony of Mr. W. A. Taylor, founded on fifteen years' experience, Texas is "the poor man's country." Thirty successive crops of corn have not weakened the fertility of the soil.

A striking instance of the effect produced on certain branches of manufactures by the high price of coal has occurred at Sheffield. The principal steel manufacturers of that town have resolved on closing their works, or at least those portions of them in which fuel is consumed in large quantities, on two days in the week, in order to see whether that step will check the advancing price of steam-coal, slack, and coke. One or two steel manufacturing firms, indeed, have resolved on only working three days a week. Some time ago the Sheffield steel manufacturers contemplated a combined reduction of their working time to three days a week, owing to the high price of fuel, and their works have since been closed on one working day per week. It is stated that the firms who have adopted this course have plenty of orders on their books, but that they cannot execute them at a satisfactory profit with fuel at its present rates.

A civic meeting called the Oyster Feast was held at Colchester on Monday. The oysters, which are the staple food on the occasion, are the gift of the Colne Fishery Company, who hold from the Corporation the property which produces the celebrated "Colchester natives." It is therefore a sort of present from tenant to landlord. On Monday the company supplied between three and four dozen oysters for each guest. The Mayor presided, supported by Sir Edward Greathead, K.C.B., commanding the eastern district, and officers commanding departments. Mr. H. S. Goody, replying for the "Colne Company," mentioned that they were in a satisfactory state, and that they were hopeful of the future, having recently laid down 4,300,000 brood for future supply. Good news for oyster-eaters has come from the Dorsetshire coast. To a Colchester fishing-smack belongs the credit of having opened up a hitherto undiscovered bed off Portland, which is said to be measured in miles. The lucky crew had dredged several tons of the bivalves, and had, of course, found a ready sale for them, when a whole expedition of oyster-dredgers from Colchester bore down on the "new diggings."

Miss Marsh, gratefully acknowledging the subscriptions and donations which have been received, since the appeal in the Times of April 15 last, on behalf of the Convalescent Hospital, Blackrock, Brighton, and the Orphan Home, Beckenham, writes as follows:—"In consequence of the removal of Mr. Chalmers from Beckenham to Nonington, the site of the Orphan Home has also been changed; and, by the most kind permission of Mr. Chalmers, it has been erected in the vicarage garden at Nonington, in order that my sister (Mrs. Chalmers) may continue her mother-like care and watch over the orphan children, for whose maintenance and education help is still needed. Donations and subscriptions are yet more urgently required for the support of the Blackrock Convalescent Hospital. The cold and damp of the late season have not only increased illness in the east of London, but have also made recovery almost hopeless, without good diet and bracing air. May I, therefore, again appeal to the generosity of those whose means give such advantages freely to the beloved sufferers in their own families to send help for 'them who are ready to perish,' but whom timely aid (in this form) may yet send back cheered and strengthened to their own poor homes, able once more to work for themselves and their families? Subscriptions or donations will be thankfully received by Mrs. Chalmers or myself, addressed Nonington Vicarage, Wingham, Kent; by Mr. Hornbuckle, hon. secretary, London Hospital, Whitechapel-road; or by Messrs. Drummond, Bank, Charing-cross."

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE REV. SIR G. S. ROBINSON.

The Rev. Sir George Stamp Robinson, seventh Baronet, Honorary Canon of Peterborough, died on the 9th inst., at Cranford Hall, Northamptonshire. He was born, Aug. 29, 1797, the eldest son of the Rev. Wm. Villiers Robinson, Rector of Grafton Underwood, by Anne, his wife, daughter of Stamp Brooksbank, Esq., and was grandson of Sir George Robinson, fifth Baronet, M.P. for Northampton. He was educated at Winchester, and at New College, Oxford, where he graduated—B.A. 1819, and M.A. 1824. From 1822 to 1853 he held the Rectory of Cranford, and in the latter year was appointed Honorary Canon of Peterborough. At the decease of his uncle, Sir George Robinson, sixth Baronet, M.P., Nov. 23, 1833, he succeeded to the title, which was conferred at the Restoration, 1660, on Alderman Sir John Robinson, Knight, Lord Mayor of London, a nephew of Archbishop Laud. The Baronet whose decease we record married, May 24, 1827, Emma, sixth daughter of Robert Willis Blencowe, Esq., of Hayes, Middlesex, and leaves, with other issue, an eldest surviving son, Sir John Blencowe Robinson, the present Baronet, born in 1830, and married, in 1861, to Winifred, eldest daughter of the Rev. Edward Steuart.

SIR ROBERT M'CLURE.

Rear-Admiral Sir Robert John le Mesurier M'Clure, Kt., C.B., the discoverer of the north-west passage, died, at London, on the 18th inst. He was son of Captain M'Clure, of the 89th Foot, by Jane, his wife, daughter of the Ven. Archdeacon Elgar; was born at Wexford, in Ireland, Jan. 28, 1807; and received his education at Winchester, and at the Royal Military College, Sandhurst. He afterwards elected to enter the Royal Navy, obtained post rank in 1850, and was placed on the retired list as a Rear-Admiral in 1867. From 1837 to 1846 he served on the Canadian, American, and West Indian coasts, and from 1846 to 1848 was in the Coastguard. His eminent services in the Arctic regions are well remembered. In 1848 he accompanied Sir John Ross in search of Franklin; and in 1850, nominated to the command of the Investigator in an exploring expedition, he discovered the north-west passage. For this he was knighted, and received the reward of £5000 offered for the discovery. In 1859 he was created a C.B. Sir Robert married, 1869, Constance Ada, daughter of Richard Henry Tudor, Esq., of Birkenhead.

SIR J. C. LEES.

Sir John Campbell Lees, Knt., died suddenly on the 17th inst. He was born in 1796, the eldest son of James Lees, Esq., R.E., by Rebecca Phipps, his wife, daughter of Archibald Esdaile, Esq. Called to the Bar by the Hon. Society of the Inner Temple in 1833, he became eventually Chief Justice, Judge in Admiralty, and President of the Legislative Council of the Bahamas. On his retirement he was knighted, in 1865. He married, first (in 1824), Mary, daughter of William V. Munnings, Esq.; and, secondly (in 1849), Ellen, daughter of Francis Rivaz, Esq., by the former of whom he leaves issue.

SIR EDMUND DE STRZELECKI.

Sir Paul Edmund de Strzelecki, Count de Strzelecki, C.B., K.C.M.G., whose death occurred recently at his residence in Savile-row, at the age of seventy-seven, was a Fellow of the Royal Society, as well as of the Geographical Society, and had received the honorary degree of D.C.L. from the University of Oxford. A native of Polish Prussia, he devoted the earlier portion of his life to travels and explorations in America, the West Indies, China, New South Wales, Van Diemen's Land, &c. His "Physical Description" of the two last-named countries is a standard work. He was the first, it is stated, to foretell the existence of gold in Australia. In 1846-7 Count de Strzelecki was chosen agent to superintend the relief fund during the famine in Ireland, and so efficiently did he perform his arduous task that in requital he was made a C.B. He was subsequently a member of Lord Herbert's emigration committee, of the Crimean Army Fund committee, and of the Duke of Wellington's emigration committee.

MR. WILLIAMS-FREEMAN.

William Peere Williams-Freeman, Esq., of Pylewell Park, Hants, died, on the 15th inst., in his sixty-second year. He was a J.P. for the counties of Hants, Bucks, and Oxford, a D.L. for Oxfordshire, and its High Sheriff in 1838. Mr. Williams-Freeman, who received his education at Eton, and at Christ Church, Oxford, was eldest son of William Peere Williams-Freeman, Esq., of Fawley Court, Oxfordshire, by Frances Dorothea, his wife (afterwards Lady Napier), eldest daughter of the late Robert Willis Blencowe, Esq., of Hayes Park, Middlesex, and was grandson of William Peere Williams, Senior Admiral of the Fleet, who assumed the additional surname and arms of Freeman, and died in 1832, aged ninety. The late Mr. Williams-Freeman married, July 23, 1833, Frances Augusta, third daughter of Wyrley Birch, Esq., of Wretham Hall, Norfolk, and leaves a large family. William Peere Williams (the author of the "Reports"), whose eldest son, Sir Hutchins Williams, was created a Baronet in 1847, was grandfather of Admiral Peere Williams, mentioned above.

ARCHDEACON POLLOCK.

The Ven. William Pollock, D.D., Honorary Canon and late Archdeacon of Chester, Vicar of Bowdon, died at Devonshire-place, Cloughton, Birkenhead, on the 11th inst., in his sixty-first year. He was well known and highly esteemed in Liverpool, and was brother to the late Joseph Pollock, Esq., Judge of the County Court in that town. The Archdeacon was educated in Dublin, and, having been ordained, was successively Incumbent of St. Thomas's, Stockport, of Christ Church, Macclesfield, Vicar of St. Helen's, Incumbent of St. Mark's Church, Liverpool, and finally Vicar of Bowdon, Cheshire. In the last-named place he succeeded, by energy and perseverance, in restoring the church, at great cost, besides erecting schools and a new vicarage. Some six years ago he was appointed Rural Dean, and shortly afterwards Honorary Canon and Archdeacon of Chester, which post he resigned in 1870.

DR. CANDLISH.

The Rev. Robert Smith Candlish, D.D., an eminent Scottish divine, died in Edinburgh on the 19th inst. He was born in 1807, was educated at Glasgow, and afterwards became a private tutor at Eton. Having been licensed by the Presbytery of Glasgow in 1828, and appointed, in 1829, Minister of St. Andrew's, in that city, Dr. Candlish soon became distinguished as a preacher. In 1843 he left the Scotch Kirk for the Free Church, and in 1845 publicly identified himself as a powerful advocate for the establishment of the Evangelical Alliance. In 1847 he was nominated Professor of Divinity in New College, Edinburgh, and subsequently, on the death of Dr. Cunningham, was appointed Principal of that college. Among Dr. Candlish's religious and theological works may be mentioned—"Contributions towards the Exposition of the Book of Genesis;" "The Atonement, its Reality and Extent;" "Scripture Characters, and Miscellanies;" "Life in a Risen Saviour;" "The Two Great Commandments," &c.; and he also contributed largely to periodical literature.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

*All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed "To the Editor of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS," &c., and have the word "Chess" legibly written on the outside of the envelope.

J. L. Rhoburnham.—We really must decline in future to give up our space to correspondents who, with the chessmen in one move starting them in the face, talk about the "profoundity" of the solution.
J. P.—The amendment comes too late, we are sorry to say, when the problem has been published. Nobody needs it.
J. J. Henry.—The mate is seen at a glance.
R. D. T.—Will you be good enough to supply the variation in your problem where Black moves 1. K to Q 5th?
MIDLOTHIAN.—1. There is a strong Chess Club at Glasgow, and the Glasgow Weekly Herald stimulates interest in the game by a capital column of Chess every Saturday. 2. "Gambus" and "Delta," we are glad to know, are still living, and still rank among the best players in Scotland.
HILDA.—1. You cannot legally castle if your King has to cross a square attacked by an enemy's piece or Pawn. 2. Under the circumstances mentioned, you are obliged to take the Knight with one of the three pieces; but you are quite at liberty to pause and consider with which you can most advantageously make the capture.
SHERIFF SPY.—An elegant little problem.
M. C. T., W. M., F. G., D. W., H. R., DELTA, M. P., LEX.—Received, with thanks, and now under consideration.
A. T. Newport.—1. Answered by letter last week. 2. Your problem has this peculiarity. It admits of two palpably easy solutions, and it cannot by any possibility be solved in the way you propose.
W. S. P.—It is now under consideration. From a first inspection we look upon it as a very clever stratagem.
THE TRUE SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1548 has been received from W. P. B.—M. D.—Joseph Janion—Philip—R. A.—Box—H. D.—J. Allaire—Phiz—H. Ree—T. W. Cantabury—R. D. T.—T. A. Hind—Merlin—J. Bale of Otley—F. R. H.—M. P.—W. Lewis Wood—Bury Bee—Man Fred and Man Friday—G. S. W.—Conrad—W. P. W.—Philo—Box and Cox—M. G. R.—Margaret—Ralph and Mabel—Orlando—A Clerk—B. S.—W. G. R.—Ferdinand and Miranda—Charles Murray—Try Again—Clericus—A Swede—G. of RAVENNA.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1544.

WHITE.	BLACK.	WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Q to Q B 3rd	P takes Q*	2. Kt to Q B 6th.	Mate.

*1. P takes B, or Kt to Q 5th, or Kt to K 4th. There are other variations, which are obvious.

PROBLEM NO. 1548.

By Mr. G. COLLINS.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

MATCH BY CORRESPONDENCE BETWEEN THE CITY OF LONDON CHESS CLUB AND THE VIENNA CHESS CLUB. The play in this important Match, which was adjourned in consequence of the Vienna Chess Tournament, having now been resumed, we are asked to give all the moves played up to this time.

LONDON GAME.		VIENNA GAME.
London.	Vienna.	Vienna.	London.
1. P to Q B 4th	P to K 4th	1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to Q B 3rd	B to Q Kt 5th	2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. Kt to Q 5th	B to K 2nd	3. P to Q 4th	P takes P
4. P to Q 4th	P takes P	4. Kt takes P	P to R 5th
5. B to K B 4th	P to Q B 3rd	5. Kt to Q Kt 5th	B to Q Kt 5th
6. Kt takes B	Kt takes Kt		(ch)
7. Q takes P	Castles	6. B to Q 2nd	K takes K P (ch)
8. P to K 4th	P to Q 4th	7. B to K 2nd	K to Q sq
9. Castles	B to K 3rd	8. Castles	B takes B
10. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q 2nd	9. Kt takes B	Q to K 5th
11. Kt to K Kt 5th	P to K R 3rd	10. P to Q B 4th	K Kt to B 3rd
12. Kt takes Q P	B to K B 4th	11. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Kt 5th
13. Kt to K 4th	P takes P	12. P to K Kt 3rd	Q to B 3rd
14. Kt to Q B 3rd	Kt to Q Kt 3rd	13. K Kt to Q B 3rd	R to K sq
15. B to K 5th	Kt to Q B 3rd	14. Q Kt to Q 2nd	Kt to R 3rd
16. Q to K B 4th	Kt takes B	15. Q Kt to K 4th	Q to Kt 3rd
17. Q takes Kt	Q to K Kt 4th	16. B to R 5th	Q to B 4th
	(ch)	17. B to B 3rd	P to Q Kt 3rd
18. P to B 4th	Q to Kt 3rd	18. B to Kt 2nd	B to Kt 2nd
19. P to Q B 5th	Kt to Q 2nd	19. Q to Q 2nd	P to K B 3rd
20. Q to Q 4th	K R to Q sq	20. Q R to Q sq	Kt to B 2nd
21. Kt takes P	K to K B sq	21. K R to K sq	R to Q Kt sq
22. Kt to K 3rd	K to K Kt sq	22. P to K B 4th	Kt to Q R 4th
23. B to K B 4th	K R to K B sq	23. Q to Q 3rd	K Kt to Q 3rd
24. K R to K sq	B to K 5th	24. P to Q Kt 3rd	B takes Kt
25. P to Q Kt 4th	P to Q Kt 3rd	25. Kt takes B	R to K 2nd
26. Q to Q 6th	P takes P	26. K to R sq	Q Kt to Q Kt 2nd
27. Q to K 7th	P takes P	27. P to Q Kt 4th	P to Q R 4th
28. R takes Kt	R to K sq	28. P to Q R 3rd	P takes P
29. Q to Q 6th	Q takes Q	29. P takes P	Q to K 3rd
30. R takes Q	B takes K Kt P	30. Q to Q B 5th	P takes P
31. R to Q 4th	B to Q 4th	31. Q to Q Kt sq	Q to Q B 5th
32. R takes B	R takes B (ch)	32. P takes P	Kt takes Kt
33. Kt takes R	R takes R (ch)	33. R takes Kt	R takes R
34. K to Kt 2nd		34. B takes R	K to B sq

CHESS IN MELBOURNE.

The following lively little Game between MR. BURNS and an AMATEUR, the former giving his Q's Kt, we take from the Melbourne Leader.—(Remove Black's Q's Kt from the Board.—Sicilian Defence.)

BLACK (Mr. Burns).	WHITE (Mr. —).	BLACK (Mr. Burns).	WHITE (Mr. —).
1. P to K 4th	P to Q B 4th	13. P takes Kt	Q to K R 3rd
2. P to K B 4th	P to K 3rd		taking P
3. Kt to K B 3rd	P to Q 4th	14. Kt to K R 2nd	B takes K R P
4. P to K 5th	Kt to K R 3rd	15. R to K B 2nd	B to K R 5th
5. B to K 2nd	Kt to K B 4th	16. R takes P	Q to K Kt 3rd
6. P to Q B 3rd	P to Q Kt 3rd		(ch)
7. Castles	B to K 2nd	17. Kt to K Kt 4th	B to Kt 6th
8. P to Q 4th	Castles		The Leader observes that he should rather have played P to K 2nd.
9. P to K R 3rd	B to Q 2nd	18. B to Q 3rd	Q to K 3rd
10. P to K Kt 4th	Kt to K R 3rd	19. B to K B 5th	Q to Q Kt 3rd
11. P to K B 5th	P takes B P	20. Kt to B 6th (ch)
12. P to K Kt 5th

Mr. Burns gains a Piece, but subjects himself to what might have proved—and indeed, ought to have proved—an irresistible attack.

12. P to K B 5th

DINNER AT THE CITY OF LONDON CHESS CLUB.—About sixty gentlemen assembled at the banquet given by the members of this club at their rooms, on the 15th inst., to Messrs. Steinitz, Blackburn, and Bird, who represented English chess play at the Vienna Tourney. The president of the club, Mr. Gastineau, occupied the chair. In proposing the health of the three champions in whose honour the entertainment was given, the chairman paid an eloquent tribute to the skill and gallantry with which those gentlemen had sustained the chess reputation of this country. The success they achieved must be gratifying to every English lover of the game, he said; but it was particularly so to the City of London Chess Club, of which all three were members. Messrs. Steinitz and Bird, in returning thanks for the honour done them by their brother members, spoke warmly in praise of the excellent arrangements and cordial hospitality of the managing committee of the Vienna Chess Club. A variety of toasts, including "Success to the Vienna Chess Club" and the health of Mr. Gastineau (the president), with their responses, and some interesting music, protracted the sitting, an eminently pleasant one, to a late hour. In the course of the evening there was mention of a match having been arranged between Messrs. Blackburn and Bird, which is to come off immediately; the winner of seven games to be conqueror. We shall be glad to hear that it has begun. It was announced also that Mr. Steinitz would play, at the club, twenty-one games simultaneously, on the first Wednesday in November.

THE HUDDERSFIELD CHESS CLUB.—On Saturday the first meeting of the Huddersfield Chess Club for the present season was held at the Queen Hotel, and was attended by gentlemen from Holmfirth, and new members resident in Huddersfield, as well as by old members of the club. Play commenced shortly after four o'clock, and continued until half-past six, when an adjournment was made to the refreshment-room, where an excellent repast had been provided, during the discussion of which the prospects of the club were talked over. Subsequently the annual meeting of the club, for the election of officers and the transaction of other business, was held—the chair being occupied by Mr. John Watkinson, the president of the club. The officers appointed were Mr. John Watkinson, re-elected president; Dr. Scott re-elected vice-president; and Mr. E. Dyson, elected secretary, in the place of Mr. J. H. Finlinton, who has removed from Huddersfield to Newcastle-on-Tyne. In acknowledging his re-election, Mr. Watkinson adverted to the success of the club in the various contests in which it had engaged, and observed that it had now met continuously every winter for more than twenty years, which, he thought, was more than could be said of any other chess club in Yorkshire. Mr. Dyson, in response to the vote by which he was appointed secretary, alluded to the great work which had been done for the club by its previous secretaries, Mr. J. Watkinson and Mr. J. H. Finlinton, and stated that he should emulate the example which had been set by those gentlemen, and forward the interests of the club to the utmost of his power. The assembly then retired to the club-room and play was resumed, and continued until a little after ten o'clock.

EDUCATION.

The official order, by the Education Department, for the election of a new School Board for London (which is fixed to take place on Nov. 27), appoints the Recorder and the vestry clerks as the returning officers. The board is still to consist of forty-nine members, allotted according to the population of the districts; and the official expenses of the election, which have to be defrayed by the ratepayers, are estimated at £6000.

Mr. Henry Cole, C.B., presiding at the annual meeting of the Hanley School of Arts, on Monday, said the Government contemplated changes which were directly opposed to the development of the South Kensington Organisation of Science and Art. This had flourished under a management which ensured individual responsibility; but it was now proposed to hand it over to the trustees of the British Museum—a scheme which he denounced as absurd and impracticable, and which he predicted would end in failure. He appealed to the art and science students throughout the country not to allow a work which had produced such great fruits, which was so dearly prized by the country, and which was indispensable to its commercial, moral, and social progress, to be destroyed, and the means of their own instruction to be taken away or muddled in old-world decaying notions. He urged them to call upon their Parliamentary representatives to protect their rights and interests from unprincipled invasions and ignorant spoliation. Mr. Cole offered £50 towards the establishment of a local museum.

Lord Enfield, who attended the opening of some new schools at Millwall, remarked, in the course of the proceedings, that the Education Act had worked satisfactorily, and was likely to do a great and lasting good. He added that he should regret to see the present system of education superseded by a purely secular one.

The clergy, school managers, and others interested in Church education in Manchester, held a meeting yesterday week and passed a resolution to support the executive committee in taking the necessary steps for securing the election of seven Churchmen to serve on the School Board for Manchester.

The resolution of the Liverpool School Board to expend £160,000 in the purchase of new schools has aroused the opposition of the ratepayers, who met last Saturday and resolved to memorialise Mr. Forster, asking that the matter should not be finally determined upon until the feeling of the ratepayers has been ascertained by the election of a new board.

The Leeds School Board election is fixed for Nov. 22. Sir E. Buckley, M.P., speaking at a meeting at Newcastle-under-Lyme, said the Education Act would do more good than the Permissive Bill in the way of reducing crime.

Upon the question of education in Ireland the result of the conference held by the Roman Catholic Bishops has sufficiently transpired. They pledge themselves to the denominational system, and propose that the Roman Catholic University, with training-colleges and seminaries affiliated to it, and in which the degrees will be conferred by Papal authority, shall be constituted the chief seat of education in the country.

An Admiralty circular has been received at Chatham Dockyard announcing that, in consequence of the deficiency displayed by the engineering students at the recent examination in practical engineering, their Lordship's will in all future cases withhold certificates from the students unless they shall obtain at least fifty per cent of the total number of marks for practical engineering at the final examination for admission to Greenwich Royal Naval College.

A large and enthusiastic public meeting was held at Swindon last Saturday—Sir Daniel Gooch, Bart., M.P. for Cricklade, presiding—to promote the Swindon, Marlborough, and Andover Railway. This project is a revival of what was known some years ago as the Manchester and Southampton scheme. Among the speakers was Mr. Crawshaw, the eminent iron-master, who indorsed the project, promised it his support, and contended that the district to be opened up was the natural one to be supplied by the Forest of Dean with coal. Resolutions approving the scheme were also proposed by the Head Master of Marlborough College, the Mayor of Marlborough, merchants from Gloucester and other places, and by the superintendent of the Southampton Docks.

The late Sir Edwin Landseer, when at Ardverikie Lodge many years ago, made five drawings on the walls with pieces of burnt stick and red brick. The subjects were the three first ideas for "Stag at Bay," "Challenge," and "Forester's Family," and two large circular subjects of "Deer." These were destroyed by the fire at Ardverikie Lodge noticed in another column. But, happily, they were photographed some time ago, and the only set known to exist was for many years in the possession of Mr. Alexander Munro, the sculptor, of Edinburgh; he shortly before his death presented it to Mr. Samuel Carter, the animal-painter, who has consented to lend it to Mr. Algernon Graves for exhibition amongst the complete set of Sir Edwin's works. This set of photographs is all that remains of these curious and masterly sketches of our great painter.

Освобожден 25, 1972.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1783.—VOL. LXIII.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1873.

WITH EXTRA SUPPLEMENT {SIXPENCE.
By Post, 6d.

MR. BRIGHT ADDRESSING THE ELECTORS OF BIRMINGHAM.

BIRTHS.

On the 23rd ult., at Tonny Charente, France, the wife of the Hon. H. Prendergast Verker, LL.D., her Majesty's Consul for the Charente Inferieure, of a daughter.

On the 16th ult., the wife of D. Ward, Montague-place, Russell-square, of a daughter.

On the 22nd ult., at Grosvenor-square, Lady Constance Monck, of a son.

On the 23rd ult., at St. Helen's, Leamington, Lady Maud Hooper, of a son.

On the 22nd ult., at 38, Upper Brook-street, Lady Filmer, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 23rd ult., at Rownhams Church, Hants, by the Rev. A. Colvin Blunt, assisted by the Rev. A. E. O'Brien (brother-in-law of the bridegroom) and the Rev. R. F. Wilson, the Rev. P. R. Pipon Braithwaite, eldest son of the late Rev. Wm. Braithwaite, to Jessie B. Mackenzie, youngest daughter of the late Lymedoch Douglas, Esq., and grand-daughter of the late Lieutenant-General Sir Kenneth Douglas, Bart., and the late Lieutenant-General Sir Archibald Campbell, Bart., G.C.B.

On Sept. 17, at the parish church, Kingston, Jamaica, by his Lordship the Bishop of Kingston, assisted by the Ven. Archdeacon Campbell and the Rev. J. E. Woodrow, the Rev. J. D. Hunt to Emma Eliza, second daughter of H. T. Colthirst, Esq.

On the 23rd ult., at St. Peter's, Eaton-square, by the Rev. Arundell St. John Mildmay, the Hon. Henry Hervey Molyneux to Alice Catherine, daughter of the late Humphrey St. John Mildmay, Esq.

DEATHS.

On the 23rd ult., at Glandare, Aberdare, Glamorganshire, Annie Maria, fourth daughter of the late Thomas Wayne, Esq., to the inexpressible grief of her sisters.

On the 20th ult., at Oak Cottage, Cross Bush, Arundel, Sussex, the residence of Mr. William Smith, Rebecca, the relict of Benjamin Baillie, of 118, Wardour-street, Soho, aged 85 years.

On the 19th ult., at Arachon, south of France, Honora Mable, the tenderly-loved wife of Charles Ormsby Blake, Esq., of Cooloon, in the county of Mayo, and late of Merlin Park, in the county of Galway, only child of Walter Lawrence, Esq., Captain 41st Regiment, of Lisreaghan, in the same county, aged 23 years.

On the 26th ult., at Huntington, Queen's County, Ireland, Mary Anne, widow of Lieutenant-Colonel Kelly.

* * The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 8.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 2.

Twenty-first Sunday after Trinity.

All Souls.

St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., the Rev. T. Griffith, Prebendary.

3 p.m., the Rev. Canon Gregory.

7 p.m., the Hon. and Rev. R.

Henley, Vicar of Putney.

Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., probably the Rev. Canon

Kingsley.

St. James's noon, the Rev. Francis

Garden, Sub-Dean of the Chapel

Royal.

Whitehall, 11 a.m., the Rev. H. L.

Tompson.

Savoy, closed.

Temple Church, 11 a.m., probably the Rev. Dr. Vaughan, Master of the Temple; 3 p.m., the Rev.

Alfred Ainger, Reader at the Temple.

French Anglican Church of St. John

("La Savoy"), Bloomsbury-street, services in French, 11 a.m. and 3.30 p.m., by the Rev. F. B. W.

Bouverie, Incumbent.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 3.

The Lord Chancellor's reception of the Lord Mayor Elect and of the Judges and Counsel.

Michaelmas Term begins.

Royal Institution, general meeting of members, 2 p.m.

Education of Children in the City of London: Public Meeting at the Mansion House, 3 p.m. (the Lord Mayor in the Chair).

Society of Engineers, 7.30 p.m. (Mr.

Perry F. Murray on the Economic

Use of Blast-Furnace Slag).

Odontological Society, 8 p.m. (Mr.

Fairlie Clarke on the Influence of the Teeth in Tongue Diseases).

Entomological Society, 7 p.m.

Home for Little Boys, Farnham:

Assembly at Exeter Hall, 7 p.m.

Medical Society, general meeting,

8 p.m.

Gresham Lecture: Latin, 6 p.m.

English, 7 p.m. (the Rev. Joseph Pullen on Astronomy).

Royal Geographical Society (at the University of London), 8.30 (address by Sir Bartle Frere, the president—Captain Markham's

Recent Visit to Baffin's Bay and the Discoveries of the Polar).

Royal Institute of British Architects, 8 p.m.

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 4.

Full moon: total eclipse, partly visible at Greenwich, 2.6 p.m. to 5.35 p.m.

Reported Great Meeting of the Bishops and Clergy at St. Paul's, morning; at King's College, afternoon (on Missionary Enterprise in 1874).

Liverpool Races, autumn meeting

(four days).

Pathological Society, 8 p.m.

Society for Promoting Christian

Knowledge, 2 p.m.

Royal Toxophilite Society, extra target.

Gresham Lecture: Latin, 6 p.m.; Pullen on Astronomy).

English, 7 p.m. (the Rev. Joseph

Society of Biblical Archaeology,

8.30 p.m. (Mr. G. Smith on Fragments of Babylonian and Assyrian Inscriptions).

NINTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS BY BRITISH AND FOREIGN ARTISTS IS NOW OPEN AT T. M'LEAN'S NEW GALLERY, 7, Haymarket. Admission 1s., including Catalogue.

INSTRUCTION IN SCIENCE and ART for WOMEN. A COURSE OF EIGHTEEN LECTURES on the ELEMENTS of PHYSICAL SCIENCE will be delivered by Professors Duncan, Carey, Foster, and Rutherford in the LECTURE THEATRE of the SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM. The Course will commence on WEDNESDAY, NOV. 12, 1873, at 2.30 p.m. For particulars apply to the Hon. and Rev. Francis Byng, Treasurer, South Kensington Museum. Fee for the Course, 4s. 1s.

MARK TWAIN at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS.

Mr. George Dolby has announced that, owing to the success which attended Mark Twain's late course of lectures, he has succeeded in engaging him to REAPPEAR at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS on MONDAY EVENING, DEC. 1, when he will deliver his Lecture entitled OUR FELLOW-SAVAGES OF THE SANDWICH ISLANDS. The Lecture will be repeated Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight; and on Wednesday and Saturday Afternoons at Three. Stalls, 5s.; Unreserved Seats, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets are now ready, and may be obtained of Messrs. Chappell and Co., 51, New Bond-street; at the usual Ticket-Offices and Libraries; and of Mr. George Dolby, 52, New Bond-street, London, W.

MADAME TUSSAUD'S EXHIBITION, Baker-street.

Great Attractions—Portrait Models of Napoleon III. lying in state, Marshal Bismarck and McMahon, M. Thiers, Francis Joseph of Austria, and the Shah of Persia with the original autograph and testimonial written and presented to Madame Tussaud and Sons, July 2, 1873, as a souvenir of his Imperial Majesty's visit. Also, new, superb and costly Court Dresses are now added. Admission, 1s.; Children under Ten, 6d. Extra rooms, 6d. Open from Ten a.m. till Ten p.m.

NOW READY,

THE

ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK

1874,

PRICE ONE SHILLING, FREE BY POST, 1s. 2d.,

CONTAINING

SIX COLOURED PICTURES,

PRINTED BY LEIGHTON BROTHERS' CHROMATIC PROCESS;

TWELVE ILLUSTRATIONS OF MARRIAGE CUSTOMS,

AS READINGS TO THE CALENDAR, BY J. JACKSON;

TWELVE FINE-ART ENGRAVINGS;

ASTRONOMICAL DIAGRAMS OF REMARKABLE PHENOMENA,

WITH EXPLANATORY NOTES;

The Royal Family of Great Britain; the Queen's Household; her Majesty's Ministers; Lists of Public Offices and Officers; Bankers; Law and University Terms; Fixed and Movable Festivals; Anniversaries; Acts of Parliament passed during the Session of 1873; Revenue and Expenditure; Obituaries of Eminent Persons; Christian, Jewish, and Mohammedan Calendars; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Government Duties; Times of High Water; Post-Office Regulations; together with a large amount of useful and valuable information, which has during the past twenty-nine years made the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK the most acceptable and elegant companion to the library or drawing-room table; whilst it is universally acknowledged to be by far the cheapest Almanack ever published.

The unprecedented demand for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK year after year stimulates the Proprietor to still greater exertions to secure for this Almanack a reception as favourable as that which has hitherto placed its circulation second only to that of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is inclosed in an elegant cover, printed in Colours by the same process as the SIX COLOURED PLATES, and forms a charming and pleasing ornament to the drawing-room table.

The SHILLING ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is published at the Office of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 198, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28' 6" N.; Long. 0° 18' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF					THERMOM.		WIND.		General Direction.	Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.	Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Minimum, read at 10 a.m.	Maximum, read at 10 p.m.
October	Inches.	°	°	%	0-10	°	°				Miles.	In.
22	29.237	52.3	42.9	72	6	46.0	57.9	SW. WSW.	3.1	2.39
23	29.072	44.7	41.2	88	8	45.0	48.4	SSW. WNW.	1.7	1.30
24	29.250	39.3	37.7	94	10	33.3	46.4	SW. ESE.	6.0	0.85
25	29.157	40.5	38.5	93	9	32.7	46.1	ESE. NNE.	1.00	0.00
26	29.906	42.6	36.1	77	8	38.0	50.3	NNW. N.	2.21	0.00
27	30.379	41.8	33.5	75	2	37.2	47.9	N. NNE.	1.32	0.00
28	30.435	37.7	31.1	79	0	28.0	48.7	NNE. WNW.	3.0	0.00

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten a.m.:

Barometer (in inches) corrected	29.246	29.468	29.281	29.519	29.851	30.323	30.501
Temperature of Air	56.7	45.2	42.3	38.7	45.1	44.3	34.2
Temperature of Evaporation	52.8	44.2	40.7	38.3	42.0	40.9	31.2
Direction of Wind	SW.	SW.	SW.	NNE.	N.	NE.	NNE.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 8.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
10 10	0 35	0 55	1 17	1 33	1 58	2 20
2 40	3 03	3 23	3 43	4 03	4 23	4 44

S. T. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly.

Every Night at Eight; Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays, Three and Eight.

ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

THE LONGEST ESTABLISHED AND MOST POPULAR ENTERTAINMENT

NOW IN THE TENTH YEAR OF ONE CONTINUOUS SEASON AT THIS HALL, an event altogether unparalleled in the history of the world's amusements.

THE MOORE AND BURGESS MINSTRELS.

LADIES CAN RETAIN THEIR BONNETS IN ALL PARTS OF THE HALL.

New and Luxurious Private Boxes, acknowledged to be the finest in London, 41, 11a, 6d.

to 22, 12a, 6d.; Fautouille, 5a.; Sofa Stalls, 3a.; Area, 2a.; Gallery, 1a. Tickets and places at Mitchell's, 52, Old Bond-street; Olivier's, Old Bond-street; and at Austin's, St.

James's Hall, from Nine a.m. till Ten p.m.

S. T. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly.

See "The Morning Post" of Oct. 24, 1873, on the

MOORE AND BURGESS MINSTRELS.

"The efforts now being made by the management of the Moore and Burgess entertainment to elevate its tone and make it in all respects worthy of the patronage of a cultivated audience deserve favourable recognition. Not that there was any indecorum to be corrected or any divergence from good manners to be set right, but more than common care is now taken to regulate the performances so that they shall harmonise with the good old maxim—"Fit well to be merry—and wise." While the fun is still hearty and abundant, it is punned off all ridiculous superfluities. Everything that might be perceived by vulgar imitators to purposes of buffoonery is jealously excluded, and the minstrels are lavishly ambitions to be "within the limits of becoming mirth." In fact, greater attention is paid to the purely musical portions of the entertainment, to which the comic element is judiciously subordinated. The effect of the improved state of things, both on the performers and the audience, is pleasantly perceptible. The former, unembarrassed by crosssive drolleries, get through their work with the spirit and precision of skilled musicians;

the latter listen without any indication of being "bored," and showing no sign of lassitude, but, on the contrary, applauding readily, at intervals, usually retain their seats till the close of the performance. It may be added that, among the many excellent artists now composing the Moore and Burgess company, four appear especially deserving of commendation—

Mr. E. Bruce, a baritone of great compass and brilliant expression; Mr. J. Romer, the most profound of basses; Mr. W. H. Collinson, an excellent tenor; and Mr. Walter

Howard, a comedian, whose courtship, father's funeral, even when employed in delineations of "nigger" character, is free from scintillating grimace and gratuitous vulgarity."

THEATRE ROYAL DRURY-LANE.—Sole Lessee and

Manager, F. B. Chatterton.—MORNING PERFORMANCE ON MONDAY, NOV. 10.

ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA.—Triumphant success of Antony and Cleopatra.

Notwithstanding the great success of this grand spectacle, it must positively be withdrawn on Thursday, Dec. 18, in consequence of the preparations for the great Christmas Fautouille. Therefore, to prevent disappointment, an early application for seats is earnestly requested.—On MONDAY NEXT, and during the Week, will be performed

Shakespeare's Tragedy of ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA, concentrated into Four Acts and Twelve Scenes by Mr. Andrew Halliday, illustrated with New and Characteristic Scenes

by Mr. William Beverly. Characters by Mr. James Anderson, Messrs. Eyer, H. Russell,

A. Glover, Richard, Dolman, J. Morris, Store, Ford, Lockfold, Milton, Bargent, H. Clifford, and H. Sinclair; Miss Wallis, Mesdames Banks, E. Stuart, Melville, Adeline Gelda, &c.

The performances will commence with a Farced Musical Ecceitricity, in one act, entitled

NORODY IN LONDON. To conclude with the Farce of MY HEART'S IN THE HIGH-

LANDS. Prices, from Sixpence to Five Guineas. Doors open at Half-past Six, commence at Seven. Box-office open from Ten till Five daily.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET, WILL OPEN for the Season on SATURDAY, NOV. 8, and on Monday and Tuesday, with the SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL, by the entire Haymarket Company. After which (Saturday only) "God Save the Queen." Concluding with HIS FIRST CHAMPAGNE. On Wednesday, 12th, THE OVERLAND ROUTE, with Mr. Buckstone in his original character of Mr. Lovibond.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L.

Bateman. Every Evening, at Eight, RICHELIEU—Richelieu, Mr. Henry Irving;

Messrs. Henry Clayton, Beaumont, Henry Forrester, J. B. Howard, F. Charles, Carter,

E. F. Edgar, and Conway; Miss Le Thiere and Miss Isabel Bateman. Scenery by Messrs

Craven and H. Cuthbert. Musical Director, Mr. Robert Stoppel. Preceded, at Seven, by

BIMBON AND CO.—Messrs. Beveridge, Carter; Miss Pouncefort, &c. Conclude with SIX MONTHS AGO—Mr. John Clayton. Box-office open from Ten till Five. Doors open at 6.30, commence at 7.

NATIONAL STANDARD THEATRE, Bishopsgate.

The Largest and most Magnificent Theatre in the World. By SPECIAL ARRANGE-MENT FOR A LIMITED NUMBER OF NIGHTS, the Great Adelphi Drama, THE

WANDERING JEW. Adelphi Artists, Adelphi Scenery, Adelphi Effects, Adelphi

Costumes. MONDAY, NOV. 3, and Every Evening, at Seven.

DR. HANS VON BULOW will give his FIRST

PIANOFORTE RECITAL, at ST. JAMES'S HALL, on WEDNESDAY MORNING,

NOV. 19, to commence at Three o'clock precisely. Sofa Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Balcony, 3s.; Ad-under no less than 40 foundered from unseaworthiness; and 109 total losses and 229 partial casualties (excluding collisions) have been traced to inexcusable neglect of duty.

The loss of life at sea from all causes, on or near the coasts of the United Kingdom, in 1872, was 590, being 36 less than those of 1871, and being a smaller number than have been similarly lost in any year since 1864. Of these 487 were from 100 British vessels, and 103 were lost from 25 foreign ships. Eighty-seven of them perished in vessels that foundered; 67 through vessels in collision; and 325 in vessels stranded or cast ashore. The remaining 111 were lost from various causes, such as being washed overboard in heavy seas, explosions, and other accidents to which those who pass a seafaring life are unhappily exposed.

It is in this last feature of the Wreck Register that we find gratifying evidence of improvement—of improvement, moreover, which has been progressive for some years past. Nearly 600 precious lives sacrificed during twelve months cannot be treated otherwise than as a matter of serious national concern. For the most part, the class of men from which these lives were taken merits the tenderest solicitude of the British people, for no class helps more than it to sustain the greatness of the United Kingdom. Possibly, the diminution that has taken place in the number of those who have found "a watery grave" off our coasts during the past year might be traced to the increasing sense of responsibility felt by the owners and masters of our mercantile navy in reference to the lives of those whom they employ. But, unquestionably, it is in a large measure to be accounted for by the noble organisations and admirable appliances which are now devoted to the rescue of shipwrecked mariners. To the infinite credit of the Board of Trade, let it be stated that it has on the coasts of the United Kingdom 282 sets of rocket and mortar apparatus, wholly provided and paid for out of the Mercantile Marine Fund, and worked by coast-guardmen and volunteers, fully instructed in the method of using them in cases of shipwreck. But the most efficient service in the saving of life is effected by the National Life-Boat Institution, whose fleet of 235 life-boats, fairly distributed and located along our coasts, has contributed since the establishment of the institution to the saving of more than 22,000 lives. Who can adequately portray the relief which these boats have brought to our shipwrecked seamen in those awful moments when relief by human means appeared to be hopeless? Whose imagination is equal to the task of aggregating and measuring the amount of suffering to survivors which this noble institution has been the means of preventing? To be favoured as an instrument of plucking one human being from the jaws of death must be a source of lasting satisfaction and a crown of honour to anyone who effects it. What honour, then, is due to, what satisfaction must be felt by, that band of men who have under their charge the yearly increasing means of rescuing from danger and death so large a number of those whose occupation is upon the mighty deep! It is an enterprise which few of us can fail to appreciate, and it is one in which all of us can join. By contributing, according to our ability, to the National Life-Boat Institution we shall have the proud consciousness of doing what in us lies to protect the lives and uphold the confidence of those who for our comfort and advantage do battle with the forces of the illimitable ocean.

MR. BRIGHT AT BIRMINGHAM.

The appearance once more of the Right Hon. John Bright, M.P., Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, as a speaker on the platform of a public meeting was hailed, last week, by his numerous political admirers with great satisfaction. It took place in the Bingley Hall, at Birmingham, on Wednesday week, at half-past seven in the evening. We present an illustration of the scene in the hall, which was completely filled by a most enthusiastic audience. To the body of the hall, which is estimated to afford standing-room for 11,000 or 12,000, the public had admission free. The platform from which Mr. Bright spoke was seated for 100. Behind this was a gallery erected for 200 ladies, while right and left were two spacious side galleries to accommodate 1250 persons. To these three galleries access was obtained only by means of tickets, varying in price from 2s. 6d. to 5s. At the advertised hour of meeting the Mayor, Mr. Ambrose Biggs, made his appearance on the platform, and was immediately followed by Mr. Bright, whose presence was hailed by repeated shouts of joyous welcome. The Mayor presided, having on his right Mr. Bright, M.P., Mr. Dixon, M.P., Mr. Childers, M.P., Mr. Reed, M.P., Mr. Shaw Lefevre, M.P., Mr. McLaren, M.P., Mr. Colman, M.P., Mr. Brogden, M.P., Mr. Heron, Q.C., M.P., Sir Thomas Bazley, M.P., Mr. H. B. Samuelson, M.P.; and on his left, Mr. J. S. Wright, President of the Liberal Association; Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, Mr. Watkin Williams, Q.C., M.P., Mr. Jacob Bright, of Rochdale; Mr. Chandos Leigh, the Hon. Lyulph Stanley, the Hon. and Rev. W. H. Lyttelton, and Mr. J. Carmichael, Mr. Bright's private secretary. Our illustration shows the right hon. gentleman in the act of speaking.

Mr. Thomas Villiers Lister has been appointed to succeed Lord Tenterden as Assistant Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

Warm discussion took place at a preliminary meeting, at the Mansion House, held on Monday, relative to a scheme for amalgamating the various ward schools of the City. It was suggested that provision should be made for the efficient education of 9000 children. Objections were raised by several representatives of existing schools, who maintained that they were already efficient, and had nothing to fear from the school board. A motion for adjournment to allow time for further consideration of the scheme was ultimately carried.

THE COURT.

The Queen, in accordance with existing arrangements, will continue at Balmoral Castle until the 22nd inst., when the Court will return to Windsor Castle and remain there until after the anniversary of the death of the Prince Consort, when her Majesty and the members of the Royal family will proceed to Osborne for the Christmas. The Queen entertained at dinner on Thursday week, at Balmoral Castle, the Marquis and Marchioness of Huntly, Sir Thomas and the Hon. Lady Biddulph, and the Right Hon. James Stansfeld. Mr. Stansfeld also dined with her Majesty on the following day. On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, drove through Braemar and along the Glenclunie-road, returning by the Duchlaish private road round the Lion's Face, and along Deeside to the castle. Her Majesty also drove to Bush Farm, and paid a visit to Mr. and Mrs. William Brown. On Sunday the Queen and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service at Crathie church. The Rev. Professor Flint, of St. Andrew's University, officiated. The Right Hon. James Stansfeld dined with her Majesty. On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, drove to the north side of the Linn of Quoich, where luncheon was partaken of, after which her Majesty and the Princess walked in the grounds beyond the Falls. The Queen afterwards paid a visit to Mar Lodge, and returned via Braemar to the castle. The mountains were thickly covered with snow. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Forbes, of Newe, the Right Hon. James Stansfeld, and Sir Thomas and the Hon. Lady Biddulph, dined with her Majesty. The Queen has taken her customary daily walking and driving exercise in the vicinity of the Royal demesne.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales returned to Marlborough House yesterday (Friday) week from visiting the Duke of Rutland at Cheveley Park. Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein visited the Princess of Wales at Marlborough House and remained to luncheon, after which the Princesses took a drive. On Saturday last Prince Arthur partook of luncheon with the Prince and Princess. On Sunday their Royal Highnesses attended Divine service. On Monday evening the Prince and Princess went to the Globe Theatre. On Tuesday the Prince passed the day shooting in Windsor Great Park. His Royal Highness will next week join the shooting party which will be entertained by the Maharajah Dhuleep Singh at his seat in Suffolk. The Princess takes daily drives. Her Royal Highness, with Prince Albert Victor and Prince George of Wales, has sat for her portrait to Mr. Kobenevin. Miss Josephine Lawrence has had the honour of playing on the pianoforte before the Prince and Princess at Marlborough House.

THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.

The Duke of Edinburgh left Livadia on Saturday, and arrived at Odessa on the following day. His Royal Highness dined with the Governor-General, and afterwards visited the French theatre. The Duke resumed his journey at eleven p.m.

The Duke of Cambridge arrived at Cheveley Park on Wednesday, on a visit to the Duke of Rutland.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Alford, J. G., to be Minor Canon of Bristol.
Cawley, Thomas; Perpetual Curate of Thurton, Norfolk.
Collyer, Daniel; Vicar of Castle Acre, Swaffham.
Dixon, William; Vicar of Shepreth; Vicar of Over, St. Ives, Hunts.
Frewer, George; Rector of Hitcham, Bucks.
Girdlestone, W. H.; Honorary Canon of Gloucester Cathedral.
Gore, Arthur; Vicar of Bowdon, Cheshire.
Griffith, George Sandham; Rector of Ardley, Oxfordshire.
Gott, John, Perpetual Curate of Bramley; Vicar of Leeds.
Humphrey F.; Rector of Belagh, Norwich.
Ingle, Samuel; Curate-in-Charge of Shottisham, Woodbridge, Suffolk.
Nolloth; Vicar of Christ Church, Chesham, Bucks.
Penraddock, Isaac; Rector of West Chelborough, Dorset.
Richings, C. H.; Minor Canon in Chester Cathedral.
Shears, Augustus; Vicar of Seley, Leicestershire.
Sheringham, J. W.; Honorary Canon of Gloucester Cathedral.
Singleton, John J.; Vicar of Ogley Hay; Rector of Brimington.
Stedman, H. Plumer; Lecturer of Walton-on-the-Hill, Liverpool.
Trigge, John Davies, late Curate of Brighton; Vicar of Loxwood.

The congé d'elire for the vacant bishopric of Ely is gazetted in favour of Dr. Woodford.

Sir James Paget, the eminent surgeon, has placed a memorial window in Great Yarmouth church in memory of his parents.

The new parish church of Parwick, Derbyshire, built on the site of the old one, at the cost of Mr. T. W. Evans, Allertree Hall, Derby, patron of the living, was opened by the Bishop of Lichfield on the 17th ult.

Last week the spire of Ripponden church, near Halifax, was struck by lightning, which entered the clock-chamber and did considerable damage to the chiming apparatus. The lightning also melted the gas-piping and ignited the gas at the meter.

At Stonehouse, near Plymouth, the Earl of Mount-Edgcombe, who is the lord of the manor, laid the foundation-stone of the second of the proposed "Three Towns" churches, towards which he has given the site and £150. The Bishop of Exeter assisted at the ceremony.

The memorial-stone of a chancel to the Church of St. Michael and All Angels at Swanmore, Isle of Wight, which is being erected to the memory of the late Bishop Wilberforce, was laid, on Tuesday, the Feast of Saints Simon and Jude, by Miss Raine. The chancel will cost £1700, and towards this sum Miss Raine has given £1000.

A new district church was consecrated at Galleywood-common, in the parish of Great Baddow, by the Bishop of Rochester, on Michaelmas Day. The building was erected at the cost of Mr. Pryor, of Hylands, who has also endowed it with £8000. The cost was £6500, and is the second church which Mr. Pryor has built in the neighbourhood. The architect was Mr. St. Aubyn, and the style of building Early Decorated.

The church of Nun-Monkton, near York, was reopened on the 16th ult., by the Bishop of Ripon, after having been restored mainly at the cost of Mr. Crawhall and family. The singularly interesting little church at Woolstone, Gloucester, was reopened, on the 9th ult., by the Bishop of the diocese, the cost of the restoration having been defrayed by the Rev. G. Coventry and his brother, the late Vicar. The Bishop of Lincoln preached, on the 23rd ult., at the reopening of Osbourne Church, near Loughborough, after having been for seven months closed for restoration. Upton Snodsbury Church, near Worcester, after an expenditure of £1000 in restorations, under the direction of Mr. W. J. Hopkins, architect, was reopened, on the 21st ult., by the Bishop of Worcester. The parish church of East Morden, Wareham, was reopened by the Bishop of Salisbury, on the 22nd ult., after having been rebuilt at a cost of about £3000, the expense of which has been borne by Miss Caroline S. Erle-Drax, his Lordship at the same time consecrating an addition to the burying-ground. On the previous day the Bishop consecrated a small addition to the burying-ground at Bere Regis, the highly interesting church of which parish is about to be restored by Mr. Street, R.A., at a cost of £4000. A new aisle, which is capable of holding 150 persons, has been added to St. Mary's Church, Otlands Park, and was opened for service on Sunday last.

The Bishop of Gloucester began his triennial visitation of the archdeaconry of Gloucester in the cathedral of that city on Thursday week. He gave elaborate statistics as to the Church work in the archdeaconry, showing that in the matter of services in the church, confirmations, administrations of the holy communion, and other matters, the work now done in the archdeaconry was double that done in the whole diocese when he came to it, ten years ago. He expressed his belief that the same might be said of Church work throughout the country. In his charge, yesterday week, at Cheltenham, the Bishop reviewed the history and sketched what he believed to be the future of Ritualism, and indicated the action which he intended to take with reference to it in his diocese. At Stroud, where he delivered his third pastoral charge on Monday, the Bishop discussed the question of reunion with Nonconformists. Speaking from direct intercourse with Wesleyan leaders, his Lordship concluded that there was no prospect of Methodists as a body returning within the ranks of the Church. He believed that the present duty of Churchmen was faithfully and earnestly to do their own appointed work. In addressing his clergy at Stow-in-the-Wold, on Wednesday, his Lordship spoke at some length of the endeavours which had been made to improve the condition of the agricultural labourer. While approving the effort, he found fault with the spirit and tone by which it had been accompanied.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

A plan has been submitted to the Metropolitan Board of Works for improving the means of communicating with fire-brigade stations through pneumatic tubes.

Thorn's private hotel, in Grosvenor-street, was burnt down on Sunday night. Several adjacent buildings, including the residence of Lord Kensington, were damaged.

According to Dr. Frankland, all the samples of water supplied to the metropolis during October were clear and transparent when drawn from the company's mains. The river waters had, therefore, been efficiently filtered.

The Metropolitan Railway Company has, by the verdict of a City jury, to pay £7000 as compensation to a licensed victualler in Liverpool-street for the destruction of his house, which is required for a new line of railway.

We regret to learn that since the return of Sir Samuel Baker to England he has been suffering from a serious illness, which has prevented him keeping the many engagements he had made; and the delivery of his address to the Geographical Society, which was fixed for Monday next, is postponed to Dec. 8.

River Plate meat is the newest addition proposed to our food supply. At a meeting in the London Tavern, on Tuesday, Mr. Gouldstone, who holds a patent from the Argentine Republic, described a new process of preserving, which he alleged would enable tinned mutton to be sold in this country at 3d. to 4d. per lb.

At the evening meeting of the Geographical Society, on Monday next, at the University of London—Sir H. Bartle Frere, K.C.B., president, in the chair—papers will be read as follows:—1, the President's opening address; 2, Captain Markham's Recent Visit to Baffin's Bay, and the Discoveries of the Polaris.

The Licensed Victuallers' Society, on Wednesday, celebrated its fortieth anniversary by a dinner at the Crystal Palace. Mr. T. W. Boord, M.P., presided, and, in proposing prosperity to the society, congratulated its members on its extension throughout the country. A liberal subscription was made for the funds of the institution.

Archbishop Manning, on Monday night, addressed several thousand people, chiefly Irish, at the base of Nelson's Column, Trafalgar-square, the occasion being the last open-air temperance meeting for the season. Dr. Manning made a forcible temperance speech, and urged a strike against drinking. Several hundreds took or renewed the pledge.

On Monday evening the Lord Mayor, in his capacity of governor of the Hon. Irish Society, to which office he was recently elected on the resignation, through ill-health, of Alderman Sir William Rose, presided at a banquet given by the society in the Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House. Sir Sydney has been appointed to the commission of the peace for the county of Londonderry.

Lord Salisbury presided, on Wednesday night, at a successful meeting in Willis's Rooms for the completion of the building fund of St. Nicholas's College, Sussex—an institution intended to train a thousand boys at the moderate charge of fifteen guineas per annum for board and education. His Lordship warmly advocated the claims of the lower middle classes as an essential consideration in the education of the people.

The weekly returns of metropolitan pauperism show that the total number of paupers last week was 98,151, of whom 34,507 were in workhouses and 63,644 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding week in the years 1872, 1871, and 1870, these figures show a decrease of 5175, 17,323, and 33,049 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 688, of whom 464 were men, 179 women, and 45 children under sixteen.

We learn from the City Press that the route of the procession on Lord Mayor's Day will be as follows:—Starting from Guildhall, it will pass along Gresham-street, Princes-street, Cornhill, Leadenhall-street, and Aldgate. At this point the procession will probably pause for the address from the inhabitants of Aldgate to be presented. It will then proceed by way of Fenchurch-street, Gracechurch-street, King William-street, the Poultry, Cheapside, St. Paul's-churchyard, Ludgate-hill, Fleet-street, the Strand, Charing-cross, Whitehall, and Parliament-street to Westminster Hall. The route on returning will be by the Thames Embankment, Queen Victoria-street, Queen-street, and King-street, to Guildhall.

Last week 2176 births and 1404 deaths were registered in London. After making due allowance for increase of population, the births were 178 and the deaths 96 below the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. The deaths included 76 from measles, 18 from scarlet fever, 4 from diphtheria, 27 from whooping-cough, 55 from different forms of fever, 29 from diarrhoea, and not one from smallpox. Diseases of the respiratory organs and phthisis caused 462 deaths last week, against numbers increasing steadily from 296 to 403 in the five preceding weeks; 175 were referred to phthisis, 163 to bronchitis, and 88 to pneumonia. To different forms of violence 50 deaths were referred; 39 were the result of negligence or accident, including 16 from fractures and contusions, 6 from burns, 6 from drowning, and 6 from suffocation. Eight cases of suicide and one of manslaughter were registered.

THE GIANT CITIES OF BASHAN.

INHERITANS OF THE CAUCASUS.

THE GIANT CITIES OF BASHAN.

Bashan now forms part of the large district on the south-east side of the neighbourhood of Damascus called the Hauran. The name of Bashan is not found in history after the captivity. To the north of this land lies the Ledja, the Argob of the Old Testament (Deut. iii. 4-13; I. Kings iv. 13), and the Trachonitis of the New (Luke iii. 1).

Not long ago the Rev. William Parry, D.C.L., accompanied by his wife and two English friends, travelled in perfect safety through this seldom-visited district—"this mysterious region," as the Count de Vogüé calls it. They depended solely for protection from the Bedaween, so much dreaded by the Christians of Syria, on two Kurdish soldiers supplied by the Governor-General of Syria, and letters of introduction to the Druze Sheikhs from the Druze Caimakam and Sheikhs of Mount Lebanon. No building was seen there which Dr. Parry considered to be older than the Christian era. Nowhere did he see anything which he could regard as the work of "the Giants of Bashan." With the exception of a strange inscription found at Choraba, a copy of which he laid before the secretary of the Palestine Exploration Fund, the numerous inscriptions seen by him on the ruined houses and public edifices of the Hauran were found to be for the most part Greek, of the era of Bostra, which began on March 22, A.D. 105, in the reign of Trajan, who newly set the district in order as the province of Arabia.

The land of Bashan, if it may still be called by a name unknown to its present inhabitants, is exceedingly fertile, and to a very great extent uncultivated. The houses are all of black basalt, with stone doors, stone windows, and stone roofs. The great drawback to the cultivation of the land is fear of the Bedaween. There are other drawbacks, such as scarcity of springs of water, and lack of good roads to the seaports and inland towns; but these were overcome once, and might be again.

The roving Bedaween—the Would Ali, the Beni Sakker, the Rowalla, the Sirkan, and others are the curse of the district. They periodically visit it, as locusts. Those who are settled in the district have been taught to respect, to some extent at least, the property of others.

The Druzes dwell on the mountain of the Hauran, and in a belt of the plain on the western side of the mountain, and in the rocky Ledja. They are a people noted for their patriarchal customs, their peculiar religion, and their politeness and hospitality to strangers. Englishmen are the people whom they most like to see. The women wear horns on their heads, over which are thrown white veils, which cover the whole person except one eye. Nowhere in this region did Dr. Parry find a single agent of any missionary society labouring in any way for the enlightenment of the inhabitants. A little had been done in former years for a short time by Mr. Rogers, when Consul at Damascus, by Mrs. Mentor Mott, of Beyrout, and by Mr. Pritchett, of Bishop-Stortford, towards teaching the young; that is all that had been attempted, and the work had ceased. No wonder, therefore, that Dr. Parry and his wife wished to open schools for the Druzes, who crave instruction. The Christians scattered about the district were found wearing the Bedouin dress, and in no respect superior to the Bedaween. They are content to remain in their present ignorance and wretchedness. Such is the state of the remnant of the once powerful Church of the province of Arabia, which in the time of Eusebius had thirty-three Bishops acting under the Metropolitan of Bozrah.

Sweideh lies on the western declivity of the mountain, and is considered the metropolis of the Druzes in the Hauran. It was formerly a large and important city, as the wide extent of its ruins and the magnificence of some of them, together with its large reservoirs, abundantly prove. Under the Romans it appears to have flourished in the time of Antoninus, one of Syria's greatest benefactors.

It is reported here that the Druzes of the Hauran came at first from the neighbourhood of Aleppo to Ezra, and thence to Sweideh, about one hundred years ago, and that, when they became powerful, they supplanted the Mohammedans and Christians who had before possessed Sweideh and the adjoining towns.

A little to the west of Sweideh is a ruined tomb, which the Count de Vogüé believes to be the oldest building to be seen in the Hauran. It is a short square tower, with thick walls, each of which is ornamented with six pilasters. There is no door or opening into the interior, except through the roof, which has fallen in. A Greek inscription on the north side states that "Odainatus, son of Annelus, built this monument to his wife, Chamrate."

Mismieh lies on the north-west side of the Ledja. The temple, of which a sketch is given, is one of the most beautiful ruined temples in the Hauran: it is of hewn stone. The town, once the metropolis of Trachonitis, is now a hideous mass of uninhabited ruins.

The approach to the temple is on the east side, past a row of pillars, now mutilated, which inclosed a wide paved area leading to six steps, the length of the whole front of the temple. The portico at the top of the steps consisted of seven Grecian columns, only three of which remain. There are two low side doors with niches over them, and a large door between them. Inside the temple are four Grecian columns, forming a square, and supporting the roof; and at the further end, opposite the door, there is an apse, resembling a sculptured shell, on each side of which is a door leading into a small room.

On one of the pillars in front is a long Greek inscription which speaks of Mismieh as the chief city of Trachonitis and complains of the inhabitants for their want of hospitality to strangers, both military and civil. Other inscriptions on the temple contain the names of Marcus Aurelius Antoninus, Avidius Cassius, and Ignatius Fuscus (centurion of the third Gallic Legion).

Um Zeitun is one of the many ruined towns, some of which are uninhabited, on the eastern edge of the Ledja. A little to the east is the hill Shiehan, an extinct crater, one of the landmarks of the Hauran, on the top of which is a wely, and a little below the wely a solitary olive-tree. Um Zeitun signifies "the mother of olives," but the town is not remarkable for its olive-trees now. At the foot of the hill is a quantity of black sand. From the top the whole of the Ledja, with its many ruined towns, and the wilderness beyond up to Mount Hermon, were distinctly seen. Between the town and the hill is the Lowa, a winter torrent coming down from the mountains, and, after running along the eastern side of the Ledja, finally losing itself in the marshy ground east of Damascus.

Under the Romans Um Zeitun was a place of importance. Some of its public edifices, as inscriptions state, were built in the time of Alexander Severus and Probus. In 1812 Burckhardt was badly treated here, because it was thought that he had discovered, in his previous journey not long before, a treasure in the neighbourhood, which he had come to carry away with him. The present Sheikh, Zobilan Aamr, a middle-aged, merry Druze, is an extremely kind and hospitable man.

Kurewat is one of the few towns in the Hauran which have very beautiful surroundings. It is situated high up on the mountain side, a few miles to the north-east of Sweideh, in the midst of trees, and commands an extensive view on the western side. Below the town, on the south-west side, is a massive platform supporting six beautiful columns and the bases of two others, about 6 ft. in circumference and upwards of 25 ft. high. On the east side of the platform there is a flight of steps, and underneath it there are rooms choked with rubbish. There are some square towers, like English church steeples, a little higher up: these are sepulchres. They are extremely well built of hewn stone. Some of the stones are cut so as to dovetail and fit very firmly together. The greatest ruin is that of a palace in the highest part of the town. It is indeed a magnificent ruin. Some of the finest ruined abbeys in England bear a poor resemblance to it. The doorways, ornamented with the fruitful vine-branch, beautifully sculptured, are charming. Among the ruins is a mutilated colossal figure of a man with long curls, grasping what looks like a Bishop's pastoral staff.

The inscriptions do not refer to any period earlier than the time of Agrippa. The majority speak of the period from Trajan to Justinian—the period of Roman dominion in Syria.

On the other side of the wide valley, near a great spur of the mountain, is a conspicuous hill with a ruin on the top.

From Busan to Salchat Dr. Parry was guided along the eastern side of the mountain by a horseman carrying a spear about 15 ft. long. Salchat lies on the south side of a detached circular hill, a few hundred feet high, probably an old crater, at the southern extremity of the mountain range. The houses were found to be particularly ruinous, and the large reservoirs to be full of dirty water. On the summit of the hill, beyond a very deep ditch, which entirely separates the summit from the lower part, a ruined castle of very imposing appearance stands. The outside is, for the most part, built of bevelled stones, but is thought to be no older than the Mohammedan Conquest. The inside is full of ruins, many of which are much older. Over a gateway in the interior there is a spread eagle, and on an adjoining slab a vine-branch, beautifully sculptured. From the top there is an extensive view eastward and westward. On the east side, as far as the eye can reach, is seen, as straight as an arrow, the old Roman road to the Euphrates. The castle, seen from a distance, bears a resemblance to Beeston Castle, in Cheshire.

Salchat was the frontier town of the Giant Og's kingdom, and is spoken of in the Scriptures as the eastern limit of the land of Bashan. It is mentioned in Deut. iii. 11, Joshua xii. 5, xiii. 11; I. Chron. v. 11.

It appears to have flourished under the Romans in the latter part of the fourth century A.D.

Bozrah is situated in the midst of the great plain of Bashan, and is the last inhabited city in the south-east of the Hauran. Seen from a distance it has a grand appearance: there appears a long line of buildings resembling a church and tower, a square tower, a great castle, a range of houses, towers, and large buildings, and, a little northwards of the city, a river. But on entering it nothing is seen but melancholy sights.

At the top of the ruined castle there is a theatre open to the sky, like all Roman theatres. The ruined cathedral was built by Julianus, Archbishop of Bozrah, in A.D. 513, in honour of the martyrs Serjius, Bacchus, and Leontius. The most beautiful ruin is that of a temple of which only four pillars and a portion of the wall are standing; the pillars are singularly beautiful. The approach to it from the north is along an ancient street, narrowed in later times, and now choked with rubbish several feet deep.

Bozrah was under the Romans a great military station, and the capital of the province of Arabia. It is still occupied by a detachment of Turkish cavalry. The only modern thing of which it can boast is telegraphic communication with Damascus. The Greek name is Βοζρῆνος. Eusebius and Jerome speak of it as Bezer, one of the cities of refuge in Jewish times; but how they got over the topographical difficulty it is rather hard to imagine.

Al Zuriah is in the plain, at the junction of the mountain with the plain on the south-west corner. It is about midway between Salchat and Bozrah, a little to the north of the old Roman road. It has a very melancholy appearance, both when seen at a distance and near at hand. From a distance there appears an irregular line of black houses, a yellow wely, and two towers—that is all. There is not a single tree to enliven the dreary aspect of the country around it. The chief object of interest here is a portico of three rows of columns, six in each row, supporting a flat roof. Seven tiers of steps, reaching from end to end of the portico, lead from the first row of pillars to the third. It stands on the western side of a large reservoir, well built with bevelled stones, but containing dirty water now. The town is disfigured with dung-heaps, and many of the old houses are smeared with cow-dung. The most singular sight there is an ordinary modern house, of the old pattern, occupied by Sheikh Ibrahim II Atrash, son of the celebrated Druze Sheikh Ismael II Atrash, the Joshua of the Druzes, and the terror of the Bedaween. Clad in a coat of mail and sword in hand, he was always ready, during his lifetime, to attack a tribe of Bedaween single-handed.

The inscriptions are of the third, fourth, fifth, and sixth centuries A.D.

This town is believed by the Rev. Dr. Porter to be the Kerioth mentioned in Jer. xlviii. 24-41.

Dr. Parry and his party were guided to Busan by a will-looking Bedouin provided by the Sheikh of Nimre. His name was Kuthir i Nahaim. His only article of dress consisted of a long coat of sheepskins, with the wool inside. He had heard of England, and expressed a strong desire to see it.

A little beyond Nimre is the top of the mountain range which commands a very extensive view of the Great Desert, embracing on the north side the whole region of the Safa, which is said to be like the Ledja.

Busan lies on the eastern declivity of the mountain of the Hauran, overlooking the Great Desert, called by the Arabs "Shrol"—that is, Hell. It is a compact mass of reddish-looking ruined houses, on the north side of which stands a conspicuous white wely. The white wely is declared to be the burial-place of Job, who is believed to have lived and died here. The redness was found to be caused by lichen. The largest ruin is that of a palace or castle. In this town were found very massive stone doors, some of them panelled. The largest measured—half of a double door—was found to be 8 in. thick, 70 in. long, and 23 in. wide. While inscriptions were being copied, several people peered out of their houses and said to one another, "They are looking out for their property and trying to identify it; they will come again." Many of the inhabitants came hither at the time of the massacre in 1860.

From the inscriptions it appears that several of the present edifices were built in the early part of the fourth century A.D.

Busan is supposed to be the Buz of Jer. xiv. 23. It is a frontier city, and may be said to be in the end of the land. Not far from it are Tema and Duma. Eusebius speaks of it as Βουσάν, γῆ Κηδῶν; and in Isaiah xlii. 11—17 the inhabitants are mentioned as neighbours of the children of Kedir. Was this really Job's dwelling-place?

IMERITIANS OF THE CAUCASUS.

That province of the Asiatic Russian Empire which is named Imeritia is situated between Georgia and Mingrelia, south of the Caucasus range of mountains, between the Black Sea and the Caspian Sea. It comprises the valley of the ancient Phasis river, now called the Rion, and its territory is nearly identical with that of the old classical kingdom of Colchis, the birthplace of Princess Medea and the scene of Jason's exploits for the Golden Fleece. Imeritia is now traversed by the railway from Poti, on the Black Sea, to Tiflis, the capital of Georgia. Its chief towns are Kutais, Bagdat, Vartzik, and Vakhani. The country is mountainous and wooded. The soil is fertile, producing corn, fruits, tobacco, hemp, madder, and other useful things; but the climate is damp and unhealthy. The population is estimated at 200,000, mostly of Georgian race, and of the Greek Church. Those dwelling in the mountain districts retain their peculiar costume, which is shown in our illustration.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

(From our Correspondent in Paris.)

Thursday, Oct. 30.

The prospects of the Monarchical restoration in France, over which the deputies of the Right were so jubilant just a week ago, are growing less and less bright every day. Each round of the clock adds one or more fresh votes to the Republican cause, and the supporters of M. Thiers are hopefully awaiting the issue of the great struggle, which will commence on Tuesday next. To add to the discomfiture of the Fusionists, the Liberté, which for some time past had been "trimming" in favour of the Monarchy, has openly declared for the Republican cause, and questions, as one behind the scenes, the authority of M. de Chesnelong to speak in the Count de Chambord's behalf, asserting that the former has falsified the language of the pretender, who has no intention, it says, of abandoning the white flag or granting the constitutional guarantees which M. Chesnelong so freely promised, on his return from Salzburg. The Monarchical journals, as if aware that they are playing their last card, support M. Chesnelong, and defy the Liberté to prove that the Count de Chambord has retracted his concessions concerning the flag and the constitutional guarantees. The Liberté maintains its assertions, however, and M. de Falloux has left for Frohsdorf, with the view of obtaining, if he can, a letter from the Count de Chambord ratifying all that M. Chesnelong has promised on his behalf.

Although it has been announced that the Count's horses have left for Paris, and that the gala carriages which are to figure at his triumphal entry into the capital of his ancestors are in readiness, there seems now but a scant chance that the Monarchists will obtain a majority in the Assembly. The latest statistics give the Republicans a majority of thirty-one votes, so that, even if the whole of the four-and-twenty doubtful members should all vote with the Royalists, the latter will still be defeated by seven votes.

The Bonapartist deputies have held a meeting and published a manifesto, in which they declare that they scrupulously adhere to their political faith and their flag, the former of which signifies order, the sovereignty of the people, and democracy; and they conclude their manifesto by declaring that they will vote against the Monarchical restoration. Sixty-five provincial Bonapartist newspapers have issued a similar manifesto, calling upon the National Assembly to proclaim the Republic.

Several meetings of the Left Centre, the Republican Left, and the Extreme Left have been held of late, at which the deputies arriving from the provinces have been unanimous in declaring that great agitation prevails among the people respecting the proposed restoration of the Bourbons, to which, they maintain, all classes are opposed. Delegates have arrived in Paris from the departments of the Dordogne, Côte d'Or, Vaucluse, and Loir-et-Cher to protest against the Monarchy, and, Marshal M'Mahon having refused to receive them, they have waited on M. Thiers and M. Léon Say to acquaint them with the opinions of their electors.

Although the Government has not openly declared itself in favour either of the Monarchy or the Republic, it obviously favours the partisans of the former, and suppresses all the provincial journals which defend the rights of the people or attack the Count de Chambord. It has, moreover, prohibited through the Prefets the circulation of anti-Monarchical addresses for signature; still, the measure has had but little effect, while the Republican journals teem with protestations against the Monarchical restoration. M. E. Feray, deputy for Seine-et-Oise, who wrote a short time ago an eloquent letter in favour of the Republic, has received a congratulatory address from some eight or nine hundred Parisian and provincial manufacturers, men worth their forty or fifty thousand pounds apiece, who all join in protesting against the intrigues of the Royalists.

Paris was aroused at midnight on Tuesday by the announcement that the Opera House in the Rue Lepelletier was on fire, and that even the Boulevard des Italiens was threatened by the flames. The theatre itself has been entirely destroyed; some parts of the Passage de l'Opéra have been badly burnt, and the house next door in the Rue Lepelletier has been rendered uninhabitable. All the valuable operatic costumes have been destroyed, besides an immense quantity of scenery. Right in front of the theatre is M. Durand Ruel's picture-gallery, where many of the chefs-d'œuvre of modern French art are on view. The alarm which the catastrophe occasioned in this establishment can be easily imagined; the more precious works of Doré, Meissonier, Courbet, Gérôme, Giraud, and Bellecour were immediately conveyed to places of safety, the remaining pictures being hastily packed up, so that if the fire had crossed the street they could easily have been removed.

The trial of Marshal Bazaine continues, at Trianon, and in spite of the preoccupations of the moment, a large number of political personages daily attend the sittings of the Court. Almost all the evidence bears against the Marshal, whose few witnesses fail to prove anything important on his behalf. General Frossard has established to the satisfaction of the Court that Bazaine virtually abandoned him at the battle of Forbach, the first serious defeat of the French during the war of 1870, which ultimately proved so disastrous. Four of the recent sittings have been taken up in hearing witnesses on General Frossard's behalf, and the testimony they have given agrees with that of the General himself. The most important event this week in connection with the trial is the flight of M. Regnier, who was called to the bar by the Duc d'Aumale on Monday, but did not make his appearance. It is stated that, having heard that the Court intended to arrest him for an insulting letter addressed to the President, this ambiguous personage has taken refuge in England. Tuesday's sitting opened with the third division of evidence—viz., communications with the Emperor and Marshal M'Mahon; and the director of the Metz telegraphic lines proved that telegraphic communications with the capital were maintained by way of Verdun until the night of Aug. 18. Two forest guards, named Braidy and Fissabre, related their journey from Verdun to Metz, and vice versa, with despatches for and from the Marshal. They were arrested several times by the Prussians, but succeeded in delivering their missives, which had been sewed up in the lining of their boots. Another forest guard, named Guillemin, stated that he conveyed a despatch to Marshal Bazaine, the substance of which was that provisions for the Army of the Rhine were collected at Verdun; and Intendants Prével and Wolffe deposed that they had gathered vast quantities of provisions together at Montmédy with the view of sending them, by way of Thionville, into Metz. Several officers and forest guards gave evidence to the effect that they conveyed despatches from MacMahon to Bazaine apprising the latter of the march upon Châlons and Sedan, and the Marshal's assertions that he had never received the despatches in question were greatly damaged by the straightforward testimony of these witnesses.

SPAIN.

People at Madrid are again officially assured that the Carthagenan insurrection is on its last legs. A Government squadron of seven vessels, including the ironclads Vitoria and Zaragosa, arrived off Carthagenan on Thursday week, and formed in line of battle, but the insurgent vessels did not come out of port. The fortresses fired, but their shot fell short. Official notification of the blockade of Carthagenan has been given to the commanders of foreign vessels, and a naval engagement with the insurgents is expected.

Telegrams indicate a number of isolated movements among the Carlists and the Republicans, with varying success.

ITALY.

By a new law just promulgated, the army on a peace footing is to number 214,000 men.

A resolution condemning the lottery system, and urging the Government to take steps for its suppression, has been adopted by the Scientific Congress.

The Committee appointed to carry out the liquidation of the ecclesiastical property at Rome have invited Count Wimpfen to take possession of the library of the Convent of Gesù, which was bequeathed to the Jesuits by a Saxon Princess, but was to become the property of the Emperor of Austria in the event of the Society of Jesus being dissolved.

GERMANY.

The protracted illness of King John of Saxony ended fatally on Wednesday. His Majesty was in his seventy-second year, and had been on the throne since 1854. He was a literary student and an archaeologist as well as a monarch, and he has translated Dante into German. The Crown Prince, on assuming the reins of government as King Albert, assured his people that he will constantly devote his most paternal endeavours towards a right and just exercise of power and the promotion of the well-being and the best interests of the country. A portrait of the Crown Prince appeared in this Journal Sept. 17, 1870.

Prince Bismarck has been reappointed the Prussian Premier. The Finance Minister, Herr Camphausen, is appointed Vice-President, and is intrusted with the dispatch of current business, Prince Bismarck being prevented by the duties of the German Chancellorship from attending regularly to those of the Prussian Premiership.

On Tuesday the preliminary elections—namely, the voting for the electors who are to choose the Deputies to the Diet on Nov. 4—were held throughout Prussia. They have mostly turned out in favour of the Government and the National party.

The Correctional Chamber of Cologne on Monday gave judgment in contumacia against Archbishop Melchers, who was sentenced to a fine of 200 thalers, or two months' imprisonment, for each of six cases in which he has been found to have appointed priests without the approval of the Crown, contrary to the law of May last. In a pastoral letter published by the Primate of Breslau, Roman Catholic electors are advised to vote for men who will be faithful not only to their Sovereign but also to the Pope. According to the Posen Gazette, Monsignor Ledochowski's carriage and horses have been distrained upon for the first 200-thaler fine inflicted upon him for offences against the new ecclesiastical laws.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

Before leaving Vienna the Emperor of Germany visited the British department of the Exhibition, and carefully inspected the glass manufactures, jewels, and other valuable articles displayed there. The metal-work and the Armstrong guns are said to have specially engaged his attention. His Majesty made large purchases in the British department and in the French. He also inspected the American, Swiss, Italian, and Belgian departments. During the afternoon he ascended to the top of the rotunda at the Exhibition, and expressed the highest admiration of the splendid view. Many thousand persons were below continually cheering. The German Emperor left on Thursday week. The station was illuminated. Both Emperors embraced and kissed each other three times. The Emperor William was in tears. When the Austrian Emperor noticed Prince Bismarck he quickly approached, and shook him by the hand several times very warmly.

In the presence of the Emperor and the whole Imperial Court, the new Vienna Waterworks were inaugurated yesterday week. The water comes from the Alps, a distance of fifty-four English miles, by means of tunnels and aqueducts. The water-works are the largest in the world. The inauguration took place at the giant fountain in the middle of Vienna, which throws up water 180 ft. high. The cost of the works has been 20,000,000 fl., and they have been finished in three years and a half. In the evening the city was brilliantly illuminated. Count Hoyos Sprinzenstein, the donor of the chief source of the water supply, has been raised to the dignity of Privy Councillor and has been decorated with the order of the Iron Crown of the second class.

A telegram from Vienna announces that a reported heavy failure had intensified the financial panic there, and caused a further fall of all classes of securities.

RUSSIA.

The Yensuds are reported to have rebelled after the departure of the Russian troops from Khiva. They massacred the emancipated Persians, and took arms against the Khan, who sent after the Russian General for help.

The Moscow Gazette says that the first stone has been laid of a fortress on the right bank of the Oxus, and that the building is rapidly progressing towards completion. The fortress will be styled Petro Alexandrovsk, and will harbour a garrison of 600 Cossacks, and will be armed with twelve guns.

CANADA.

Lord Dufferin opened the Dominion Parliament on Thursday week. The speech from the Throne says the report of the Commissioners on the Pacific Railway question has received careful consideration. It is for Parliament to determine whether any assistance shall be given them. The Pacific Railway charter has been surrendered, and fresh legislation is necessary. The revenue is equal to all claims. The speech further advises an increase of the number of Cabinet Ministers, and alludes to other topics of domestic interest. The evidence taken by the Commissioners who inquired into the Pacific Railway scandal was presented, without any expression of opinion. The debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne was begun on Monday. Mr. McKenzie has moved an amendment declaring the conduct of the Ministers in connection with the Pacific Railway contract to be worthy of the severest censure.

AMERICA.

A first step towards specie payments has been taken at Washington: Mr. Richardson has ordered that Treasury payments of small sums shall be made in silver, and 1,458,000 dols. has been paid as November interest. The President is said to be "sanguine that the effort to place the currency upon a silver basis will result successfully." The St. Louis banks have resumed paying in currency. The Clearing-House Association has resolved that, on and after Nov. 1, the banks shall discontinue the issue of loan certificates, and thus cease to equalise the legal tenders.

The Agricultural Department reports that the Indian corn crop is estimated at one quarter below the average of last year.

Slackness of trade is so severely felt in the eastern States that several large iron and cotton factories have been closed.

Stokes, who shot Colonel Fisk, of the Erie Railway Company, has been found guilty of manslaughter in the third degree, and sentenced to four years' imprisonment.

INDIA.

Unfavourable intelligence again comes from India regarding the prospects of the rice crop, no rain having yet fallen. The Government is again taking precautionary steps against the threatened scarcity of food. The Calcutta correspondent of the Times states that the Viceroy left Simla for Calcutta on Wednesday. On account of the threatened famine the Financial Secretary left on Tuesday, and will consult with Sir G. Campbell. The relief works projected are the Soane Canal Extension and Darjeeling Railway. Official reports from the threatened districts are much worse.

THE ASHANTEE WAR.

Sir Garnet Wolseley landed at Cape Coast Castle on Oct. 2, and on the 4th he held a conference with the Fantee Kings and chiefs, who assembled in grand state and were introduced to him individually. He then addressed them on the subject of the expedition, declaring that, with God's help, he would inflict a blow on Ashantee which for all time would free them from any dread of invasion. He promised as a personal present to each chief who brought in 1000 men £10, and to others in proportion; subsistence of rice for all the actual fighting men, ammunition, and 3d. a day as pay. A present of a case of gin and £2 a-piece was made at the end of the speech to the Kings. He told them that, whilst thus ready to act liberally by them, he must exact from them that they would entirely obey the orders of an officer whom he proposed to attach to each chief; and that, whilst he left the management of each tribe to its chief, he must expect them to maintain their own authority and his together, and could allow of no excuses. They must also arrange to provide transport of the food and ammunition from Cape Coast for their own men without diminishing the fighting force in the field.

At Accra Captain Glover had already raised a thousand men, half of them Housas. The Ashantees were moving towards Dix Cove, and had generally got the worst of the recent fighting.

It is asserted in private letters received from the Gold Coast by the Volta that European traders were carrying on a brisk business in ammunition and weapons of war with the native tribes bordering on the Ashantee territory, and that active measures were being taken to put an end to the contraband traffic.

Roads, says the Telegraph's correspondent, are the great necessity—the first condition of success; a clear path to Coomassie, to the true stronghold of Koffee Kalkali, must be found or made. Twenty miles of road to the capital have been already made under the auspices of the armed police. This piece is merely an enlargement of the bush-path which used to exist, trampled by the feet of Fantees and animals. Our black fellows have widened the single-file way into a good, broad lane in seven days by the labour of 300 hands, and the new road is a good specimen of what we require. But at this rate it would take, under the most favourable circumstances, about ten weeks to make Coomassie attainable, supposing our dingy foe will be good enough to allow our work to proceed under his nose, or perhaps to lend us a helping hand in carrying it forward. But these twenty miles have been cut chiefly as an experiment, to prove the feasibility of getting through the bush; and as such the thing is entirely successful.

The Rattlesnake, with Commodore Commerell on board, reached Simon's Bay on Sept. 20. He was recovering slowly, though the bullet had not been extracted.

The Sultan has conferred the grand cordon of the Order of the Osmanli upon the Duke de Broglie, and the same decoration, set in brilliants, upon Marshal McMahon.

The Swiss Government has requested Germany and Italy to appoint agents to officially inspect the works of the St. Gothard tunnel, executed this year.

The Duke of Augustenburg, formerly a pretender to the sovereignty of the provinces of Schleswig and Holstein, is selling all his properties in the north of Germany, previous to his taking service in the Austrian army.

According to the report of the geological survey of Newfoundland, a vein of hone-stone, rivaling in texture and quality the famous oil-stone of Turkey, has been discovered on that island. It occurs in great quantity.

A commission on the Belgian monetary system, appointed lately in Brussels, comprises the Director of the Mint, and representatives of the Bank of Belgium, the National Bank, and the Société Générale.

The American papers state that Miss Bunker, a daughter of Eng, one of the Siamese twins, has been married to Mr. Haynes, a deaf mute. The bride is also deaf and dumb, and the ceremony was interpreted by means of the manual alphabet.

At the Cape diamond-fields trade is reported to be good, and valuable finds are still being made. Beyond the Mutala the natives are on the war-path again, and exchanging raids into each other's territory.

The German war treasury, which must always be composed of forty million thalers in coin, will be deposited in the Julius tower of the citadel of Spandau. Nothing can be added to or taken from it without the consent of the Imperial Chancellor.

The Sultan has appointed Mr. George Weber, of the firm of George Weber and Co., Dantsic, to be Turkish Consul-General at that Baltic seaport city.

At the commencement of the winter session of the Manchester Scientific and Mechanical Society, on Tuesday evening, a paper on the application of science to the industrial arts was contributed by Sir William Fairbairn.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

The last two days of the Houghton meeting were decidedly pleasanter than the earlier part of the week; still, daily visitors to the heath are very fortunate if they have not carried away unpleasant reminiscences of Newmarket in the shape of colds and rheumatism. Backers began very badly on the Thursday, as Mr. Winkle quite failed to give 6 lb. to Poudriere in the Troy Stakes. When they last met he gave her 13 lb. and a beating; but he has not sufficient power to move through heavy ground, and, moreover, must be getting dreadfully stale, as he has run no less than fifteen times this season. Apology beat four moderate fillies for the Homebred Sweepstakes; she ran far better than at Doncaster, and perhaps, as in the case of her own sister Agility, ago will do great things for her. Thoru's fine speed and his numerous good performances this season seem to give him a fair chance against Flageolet over the R. M.; but M. Lefevre's colt is wonderfully well just now, and took the northerner along at such a pace that he was dead beaten at half a mile, and, naturally enough, Flageolet's poor display in the Two Thousand was once more a subject of conversation, some of the remarks made being by no means charitable. His old opponent Kaiser (8 st. 7 lb.) did not display the same liking for the heavy ground in the Limited Handicap, which was next on the card—in fact, it completely stopped him; and Hannah (8 st. 5 lb.) disposed of Drummond (8 st. 12 lb.) very cleverly indeed.

The Jockey Club Cup—the new weight-for-age race over the Cesarewitch course—to which £300 was added, was the chief event of the Friday, and had secured a splendid entry. As, however, is so frequently the case, many of the horses engaged only put in an appearance on paper. Bertram has never been in form since the spring, Boiard was sent back to France after his easy defeat by Kaiser in the Second October meeting, Queen's Messenger has not appeared in public since he broke down in his St. Leger preparation last year, Dutch Skater and Favonius have left "the post" for "the paddock." Cremorne is hors-de-combat, for the present at any rate, and Wenlock has never been seen since his sensational Doncaster victory last season. The race was thus left to half a dozen, and was almost at the mercy of Flageolet, the only one appearing to have the least chance of beating him being Barbillon, who has run very well in France of late. However, his voyage and change of quarters seem to have disagreed with him, and he finished the absolute last, M. Lefevre's horse winning with consummate ease from Lilian and Hannah. Corisande, as is invariably the case when they run together, was a much better favourite than her stable companion; yet Hannah, as she has always done, finished a long way in front of her. Still, we suppose we shall once more be told, on the eve of some important long-distance handicap, that Corisande has been tried at least 14 lb. better than Hannah. The field for the Bretby Nursery was of very poor quality, Newry (9 st.) being the only high-class animal that ran; but everyone was glad to see Harmony (6 st. 7 lb.) carry Prince Batthyany's unlucky colours to the front, though, had Conseil (8 st. 4 lb.) run more generously, he would probably have secured the verdict. Walnut (8 st. 2 lb.) again had to put up with second place, as he could not be expected to concede 28 lb. to the Infanta colt in the Rowley Handicap; but he struggled so gamely under his heavy weight that his Cambridgeshire backers might well bewail their hard luck at being beaten by the shortest of heads. Saturday's card was a very poor one, and we need only note the excellent performance of Oxford Mixture, under a heavy weight, in a T.Y.C. handicap. As usual at Newmarket, M. Lefevre and Fordham had a very successful week.

A further draught of Mr. Merry's horses, including Highland Laddie and Pantomime, was sold at Albert-gate on Monday: the prices realised were small. Newry and Napoleon III. are for sale by private contract, for 2500 gs. and 1250 gs. respectively. Considering that the former has won the Middle Park Plate, and the latter the Champagne Stakes, these prices seem very low; but this is accounted for by the fact that neither of them has any important engagement.

Coursing men are once more fully engaged with their favourite pastime, and, from all we hear, they only need favourable weather to have a most prosperous season. The great Lurgan Meeting took place last week. It is by far the most important held in Ireland, and at one time promised to rival our great Waterloo gathering; but, owing to ill health, Lord Lurgan has been compelled to relinquish coursing, and, though he still takes great interest in the sport, it has been decided in future to limit the number of entries for the various stakes. The Brownlow Cup, for which many well-known greyhounds competed, was won by Cockie Leekie.

Preparations for the various college sports are being made at both Universities. Mr. Smith-Dorrien has been elected president of the Oxford Athletic Club, and Mr. Templar will fill a similar position at Cambridge.

There seems every chance that the long-talked-of sculling-match for the championship of England between J. H. Sadler and Robert Bagnall will take place next spring on the Tyne.

Mr. Yeaman, M.P., has been presented with £1000, to defray his election expenses at Dundee.

The Diocesan Synod of Down, Connor, and Dromore of the Protestant Episcopal Church began its annual deliberations in Belfast on Tuesday, the Bishop presiding.

Mr. Streeter, of Conduit-street, has patented an ingenious contrivance for superseding the check-string and speaking-tube in a brougham or other carriage having a splash-board. It consists of two dials, one on the splashboard facing the driver, the other within the carriage, and easy of access to the occupant. The dials bear the words "Go On," "Stop, Rt.," "Turn, Rt.," "Fast," "Slow," "Turn, Lt.," "Stop, Lt.," and "Home;" and to these any other words, such as "Club," may be added, to meet individual requirements. The outside dial is furnished with an index, and with a bell ringing a single sharp, clear, stroke.

At the weekly meeting, on Wednesday, of the London School Board it was reported that ninety-nine sites had been purchased, on which schools would be erected for 86,870 children. A discussion on industrial schools elicited from Mr. Macgregor a proposal to open an experimental school for one hundred boys. This was carried by a majority of 20 to 6. The London School Board has issued a report giving a full account of its work during the past three years. The report proves that practical results have by no means been neglected.—The Liverpool School Board has unanimously adopted a report from a special committee recommending the inclusion of elementary scientific instruction among the "extra subjects" in all the board schools, and the establishment of science classes of a more advanced character, wherever possible, in connection with the board's evening schools; it has decided to introduce the Froebel Kindergarten system into all the board's infant schools.—The Sheffield School Board has received an unusual compliment from the Town Council, which, in granting a precept for £2000, expressed satisfaction with the work it had accomplished.

Narvaez Tolosa.
Villa de Odis

Carmen.

Almansa.
Victoria.

Diana.

Lord Warden.

Swiftsure.
Numancia (Rebel).

Invincible.
Tetuan (Rebel)

Research.
Mendes Nunes (Rebel).

Spitfire.
Fernando el Catolico (Rebel).

THE CIVIL WAR IN SPAIN: THE BATTLE OF ESCOBRERA.

A SHOAL OF
BY W.

MACCKEREL.
AN.

THE CIVIL WAR IN SPAIN: A CARLIST VOLUNTEER.

FROM A DRAWING BY B. GALOPRE.

THE NAVAL BATTLE OFF CARTHAGENA.

We give an Illustration of the naval battle on the 11th ult., in Escombrera Bay, outside the harbour of Carthage, fought by the ironclad squadron in the possession of the Intransigentes, or Red Republican faction, who have revolted in that city of Murcia, against the squadron belonging to the Spanish Republican Government of Madrid. The sketch is by Dr. Fleetwood Buckle, M.D., surgeon, R.N., of H.M.S. Invincible, who has furnished also the following clear and spirited description, with several diagrams, which we have not space to insert:—

"H.M.S. Invincible, Escombrera Bay, Oct. 11, six p.m. "After months of dreary, monotonous watching, 'protecting British interests' in various Spanish ports, we have at last had a small excitement, in watching to-day the sea-fight between the Madrid squadron under Admiral Lobo, of Chilean fame, consisting of the ironclad Vitoria, frigates Almansa, Carmen, and Narvaez Tolosa, the paddler Ville de Cadiz, and sloop Diana, and the Murcia squadron of three ironclads, Numancia, Tetuan, and Mendez Nunez, and paddle-frigate Fernando el Catolico, under General Contreras. It was a very pretty sight, despite the mist and rain, which at intervals during the afternoon obscured the view, and wrapped its levelling mantle round them all. Admiral Lobo arrived yesterday from Gibraltar. During the evening he kept just outside Escombrera Island; but at night, perhaps to economise coal, he made sail, and was blown off the land to the eastward by the strong north wind to a position east of Port Porman. Between seven and nine a.m. the Intransigente ships collected outside the island. At 10.30 a.m. we steamed out, in company with the Lord Warden, Swiftsure, Research, Spiteful, and Hart, and followed by the German wooden frigate Elizabeth, the Italian ram San Martino, and French ram Thetis. We proceeded under easy steam in single column, line ahead, as nearly as possible parallel to the coast, in a direction east by south, a mile off shore. About 11.30 a.m. the Murcians were broad on our starboard bow; the three ironclads were in line abreast, the Mendez Nunez being inside. They were three miles due south of Cape Agua. The Numancia was next, and the Tetuan seaward. The Fernando el Catolico followed, being evidently held in reserve to tow or assist any disabled vessel, a task in which the old wooden paddler would render good service. At this time Admiral Lobo's squadron was in no particular order, about six miles away to the southward and eastward of Cape Negreti.

"Soon, the Numancia left her consorts, and steamed away very pluckily straight towards the Vitoria. Admiral Lobo then began to get his fleet into something like position by turning to port. The Almansa and Diana forming her starboard, and the Carmen and Narvaez Tolosa her port quarter column. The Ville de Cadiz remaining some distance away on their port beam. In this formation the hostile squadrons approached each other, and at ten minutes past noon the Vitoria opened fire from her big bow shield guns on the Numancia. The shot falling short, the Murcia flagship held on past the Vitoria, exchanging broadsides. She cut the Madrid ships' line between the Diana and the Almansa, and turned to starboard across the sterns of the Carmen and Narvaez Tolosa, paying no attention to their shot, which, although the distance was small, nearly all fell short. She thus separated the Ville de Cadiz from the rest, and then commenced a stern chase, the paddler making all possible sail, and running before the fresh E.N.E. breeze. The Vitoria, seeing her small friend had no chance alone of getting away from the fast ironclad, left her three wooden frigates to the tender mercies of the ironclads Mendez Nunez and Tetuan, then coming up, and chased the rebel flagship, which after steaming hard for about four miles had nearly come up with the Ville de Cadiz. The captain of the latter, seeing that Contreras meant to ram him, executed a very pretty manoeuvre. Relying on the known handiness of a short paddler, he made a feint of going off to his right, as though steering for Carthage; then, when he saw the long ironclad turning to cut him off, he suddenly put his helm hard to starboard, and went round so quickly that before the Numancia could alter her course she had shot across his stern, and probably, from making sure of ramming, she had no guns ready. At any rate, she did not fire at him, or the Ville de Cadiz must have gone to the bottom of the sea. Instead of this, she got off with a shot in the paddle-wheel, which did no material damage. She hauled her wind on the port tack, and, passing to the southward of the Vitoria and the frigates, joined the Diana, and was soon hull down and away from danger, where she remained for the rest of the day, miles away from the fight.

"By this time the Vitoria had opened fire from her useful bow shield-guns on the Numancia, and was fortunate enough to lodge a shell in her battery. The Numancia at once started full speed for Carthage harbour, the damage done by the shell seeming to cause a panic on board her. The Vitoria continued to follow; but, being a slower ship, did not come up until the Numancia slackened speed within range of the forts. In the meantime the other ships were not idle. The Mendez Nunez, at 12.19 p.m., opened fire at very long range at the Vitoria and Almansa. Her shot generally did not reach half way; but as she came up with the 'chequer sider' Carmen the practice was much better on both sides. The 'direction' was very good and the 'elevation' decidedly improved. One shot appeared to strike the Carmen in the fore chains, and in return one from her went right through the Mendez Nunez. This, in the crowded state of her decks, must have done considerable damage. She was then called off to the relief of the Numancia. But when the wooden frigates Almansa, Carmen, and Narvaez Tolosa, then steering towards Carthage in the track of the Numancia and Vitoria, again came nearly within range, long shots continued to be exchanged. As they were fired very wildly, and without sufficient elevation, they did no damage. About two p.m. she passed to the north of the Vitoria and entered the bay under cover of the forts.

"The Tetuan was, at twenty minutes past noon, on the starboard beam of the English Mediterranean Fleet, about four miles south and by east of Cape Agua. She then steamed very slowly to the eastward, crossing the track of the Mendez Nunez and exchanging shots with the Vitoria. One from the latter pitched into the water just under her bows, and caused a rapid disappearance of the motley crowd of sailors from her fore-castle. Another was equally efficacious in clearing her bridge. Undeterred, however, by these slight alarms, she proceeded to engage the three wooden frigates, and appeared to strike the Almansa six times, without receiving any damage in return. Passing the frigates, she steamed in the direction of the little Diana; but in a few minutes, finding herself deserted by her consorts, she turned round off Cape Negreti and slowly steamed back towards Escombrera Bay, about half way between the British and Madrid squadrons, engaging in succession the Carmen, Almansa, and Narvaez Tolosa. At two p.m., when she was just off the entrance to Carthage Bay—the Numancia and Mendez Nunez having just escaped being cut off by the Vitoria, then coming up from the southward—the French ironclad ram Thetis is stated to have broken down in her machinery. She therefore made sail, and in doing so got right between the Tetuan and the Vitoria. Seeing the error she had made, as the shot was rattling through her topsails, the French ship backed her sails and made a stern board out of it, but not until the Tetuan had availed herself of the opportunity thus afforded of getting to the westward or fort side of the Vitoria. As soon as the Thetis was clear the Tetuan, whose port bow was towards the Vitoria's starboard bow, steamed ahead; but the Vitoria, having greater way on, crossed her bow; then both, porting their helms, exchanged starboard broadsides. The Vitoria's 12-ton guns sent their shot right through the Tetuan's 4½-in. armour—in one side, out the other; but the Tetuan's weaker guns are said not to have pierced the Vitoria's plating—at least, that is the Spanish report to-night; but, the ships being less than 400 yards apart, I think it unlikely, especially as the Vitoria then steamed straight out to sea, and would not again attack the Tetuan, although she remained in the same position an hour afterwards, apparently broken down. The Tetuan fired a gun at the Numancia, and made her come out again; but she only stopped a few minutes, and once more sought the shelter of the forts, although Admiral Lobo withdrew all his ships and steamed away to the eastward. The action ceased at 12.15 p.m. The Murcians acknowledge that thirteen were killed and forty-nine wounded. Admiral Lobo reports:—'None killed; none wounded.' One of his frigates is said to have gone to the eastward to 'land the sick.' The wooden paddle-corvette Fernando el Catolico remained five miles south and by west of Cape Agua and the harbour all through the engagement, and was evidently only looked upon as a supply or tug vessel, not a fighting ship. There were no hospital ships or tugs, with Geneva flag attached, to either squadron. The Numancia started very pluckily, but, after the Vitoria chased her, appeared to run away. Whether the captain or crew are to blame for this we cannot at present tell. The Vitoria also, after exchanging broadsides with the Tetuan, steamed away as fast as she could. This is scarcely consistent with the report that she had received no damage and had no one 'either killed or wounded.'"

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

VIENNA, Monday, Oct. 27.

Prompted by their ever eager desire to let the world understand that Austria and Hungary are not altogether one, the Hungarians have erected a veritable trophy composed of the national arms, with brilliant red, white, and green tricolour flags, waving from the summit of tall Venetian masts, at the entrance to their section of the Vienna Exhibition. Here the natural and manufactured products of Hungary, excepting its wines—notably the exquisite somlauer and the renowned Tokay—cereals, and the like, exposed in the eastern agricultural hall, are set forth to the best advantage; and, amidst endless rude reproductions of familiar Eastern types, one discriminates clearly enough the rapid advance which the country has made of recent years in the race of competition with the nations of the West. The popular attractions of the Hungarian section are unquestionably the matchless opals displayed by Herr Louis Goldschmidt, of Dubnik, and the striking Honved trophy, as the curious group of lifesize models of Hungarian soldiers, poised on a broad plateau on the summit of a mass of artificial rockwork at the end of the northern transverse gallery, is styled by the Viennese. In front a number of men are shown reclining on the ground, their rifles, with fixed bayonets, piled; and knapsacks, drums, and cooking utensils lying scattered around. A trumpeter, with trumpet in hand, stands on one side, holding his admirably-modelled horse by the bridle; while close by some artillerymen are loading a field-piece, which, with an ammunition-wagon, stands slightly in the rear. On the opposite side are a couple of mounted hussars, an officer and a soldier, in the picturesque uniform of their corps; and on a raised mound, occupying the centre of the plateau, is a theatrical-looking group of soldiers, of different arms, one of whom plants the gay-coloured Hungarian tricolour defiantly on the ground.

The opals of Hungary are so renowned that it is needless to insist on the beauty of those displayed by M. Louis Goldschmidt, to whom the mines of Dubnik, near Varosvagus, belong. The glory of his case is a garniture of opal cameos—portraits of the Emperor and Empress of Austria—cut by Guilmare fils, of Paris, after the well-known busts by Fernkorn. These cameos, which form earrings, brooch, locket, and bracelet en suite, are set with rubies, emeralds, and brilliants, and attract universal attention. Herr Goldschmidt has, moreover, a splendid parure of fire opals, valued at a trifle under £7000, besides a large number of brooches, bracelets, earrings, and necklets formed of these exquisite gems.

Among the more interesting exhibits of the Hungarian section are some admirable coloured photographs by Professor Koller, of Bishitz, depicting scenes of Hungarian peasant life. Here we have a pair of lovers standing side by side—a stalwart young Hungarian farmer placing the betrothal ring on the finger of the bashful maiden who is soon to become his bride. Further on is a very different scene—a Hungarian kitchen, with a numerous family gathered round the rudely-carved table, the father pensively smoking, the mother busy with her spindle, while the eldest daughter reads aloud from some ancient volume in Gothic characters. Next comes a series of field scenes, introducing us to the peasantry hay-making and harvesting; and then a superb study of a Hungarian beggar—a head such as Rembrandt or Callot might have etched or painted—who raises a glass of deep amber ruster-wein to the light, admiring its splendid colour with the air of a connoisseur.

From Hungary one passes into Russia to find one's self in the midst of trophies of furs and stuffed bears and sleeker-haired animals from these northern latitudes. The furs are often of the most sumptuous character, and range from a robe of superb sable at £450 downwards. Moscow contributes some beautiful gold jewellery and plate, in which under more refined aspects one notes all the richness of colour and originality of form of the ancient Slavonic style. Cups and vases, salvers and tazzas, abound, the majority enriched with zig-zag enamelled borders of blue and ruby colour, and thickly jewelled with precious stones. Some of the dinner plate is extremely characteristic, especially one magnificent set, which has Polar scenes admirably rendered in frosted silver, with fur-clad seamen hunting the Arctic bear round the rims of the épergnes.

Visitors flock, however, mostly to the northern transverse gallery, where there is a small but very curious collection of costumes, weapons, tools, and utensils. Here, too, are the Kirgheses and Turcomans sitting in their tent-like habitations roofed with rushes, one of the latter clothed in the skin of some wild animal, guiding his small black ox by an osier withe passed through the nostrils, while his wife sits perched on a camel by his side. The Russian display of artillery is alike extensive and interesting, and in a covered-in court on the southern side of the Palace the largest cannon in the whole Exhibition will be found. Even Krupp must bow to the supremacy of this monstrous gun, twelve inches in the bore and forty tons in weight, which has been manufactured by the firm of Oborekowsky, of St. Petersburg.

Among the most interesting exhibits in the nave one must class the numerous characteristic bronzes sent by M. Felix Chapin, of St. Petersburg, which are certainly worthy of the very highest praise. First we have an immense bronze doorway, for the Church of St. Sauveur at Moscow, of Byzantine design and admirable workmanship; then some remarkable Clodion clocks and candelabra and various Louis XV. and Louis XVI. bronzes. The most interesting pieces of M. Chapin's collection, however, are the bronze groups and single figures representing different picturesque types of the Russian empire, modelled by a talented young sculptor, M. Lanceray. There are a young Crimean shepherd guarding his sheep, a Georgian cavalier reining in a fierce untamed Tartar steed; a young Circassian discharging his rifle while standing fearlessly on his horse's back; and a cart from Tchouvack drawn by a couple of long-horned oxen, with three laughing Russian peasant women, reclining inside, while an active youth endeavours to urge the beast into a more rapid pace. There are, moreover, a couple of picturesque sledges, one drawn by three, the other by two, horses, all admirably designed, and the movements of which, as well as the animation of the drivers, are capitally rendered.

The Russian display in the eastern agricultural hall is both extensive and interesting; samples of hemp, flax, cereals, and tallow—indeed all the staple export products—are here, together with numerous varieties of wines and liqueurs, including Russian sauterne, Riesling, Muscat, Crimean tokay, and Besabaric vin nature, with pyramids of liqueur-bottles, some coated with sand, but the majority revealing the transparent brilliancy of their intoxicating contents. There are the Imperial liqueur of pious Kiew, where no Jew may reside under penalty of death, the cherry brandy of Odessa, the "balm" of Riga, the bitters of St. Petersburg, not to mention an innumerable number of "vodka's" and "naliwkies." Next come tobacco-leaves from the Ukraine, and giant cigars from Warsaw, followed by Persian insect-powder, oil from various parts of the Empire, and innumerable specimens of forest produce.

Leaving the Russian court in the Industrial Palace, one enters that of Roumania, where the Hospodar, attired in civilian costume, with an aide-de-camp in full regimentals seated by his side, looks down on the visitors from his primitive britaka, which is whirling over a desert plain. Everything here is in extremes, and conveys the impression of semi-savagery. Gay peasants' dresses, like those of Hungary and Transylvania, hang by the side of cases of filigree egg-cups, which are such common articles of manufacture in Turkey. Arms, as a matter of course, are in abundance, with curious copper cooking-utensils, specimens of tobacco, fiery wines and spirits, grain, bees-wax, and rude pottery for home use, together with quaint water-jugs and milk-pails in wool, curiously hooped with osier. Roumania makes an excellent show of its woods, and in one of the corners of the court one finds an interesting collection of its native birds, with hawks, eagles, and vultures hovering in the air over remarkable specimens of water-fowl, such as swam in the lagoons of the Roumanian section of the Danube.

Greece displays its woods and marbles to great advantage, besides a variety of specimens of the Vallonia acorns, a staple article of commerce; new silk from one or two of its provinces, and a selection of its wines. The most striking exhibits of the Grecian court, however, are the plaster copies of the statues and friezes of the Parthenon, which impart a classical aspect to the gallery.

The Turkish section extends beyond. On entering it, right in front of one stands a compact crowd taking a bird's-eye view of the Golden Horn and the famed Sweet Waters, obtained from a gigantic plaster model of Constantinople and its environs, from the Sea of Marmora to the Black Sea, exposed by the Sultan's Commissioners. The Turkish court is draped from floor to ceiling with magnificent carpets, outshining in variety of design, fabric, and colours all the rest of the exhibition, Persia alone excepted. Every two or three yards, moreover, one comes upon a curiously costumed figure, representing some picturesque type of the Turkish empire, mounted on a low pedestal. The display of raw produce of various kinds, such as wool, tobacco, and leather, is naturally more useful and interesting than picturesque; but there is much curious inlaid mother-of-pearl work from Damascus and Jerusalem, with matchless Brusa silks, handsome specimens of antique brasswork, eccentric green and blue glazed earthenware, fine old damascene armour, legendary Damascus blades, and no end of curious Oriental costumes covered with complicated gold embroidery.

Besides the model of the capital of the Caliphs, the Turkish section boasts an admirable one of Jerusalem, which is examined with more than ordinary curiosity by the crowds of visitors who daily throng around it. The Illustrated London News published a few weeks ago an Engraving of the picturesque groups of Tyrolean, Hungarian, and Polish peasantry, and expatriated Israelites who collect in its vicinity and listen with interest while some Eastern traveller points out the temple, the Mount of Olives, the village of Bethany, and the scene of the Crucifixion, the ever memorable Calvary.

The Fine-Art Exhibition at Aberdeen closed last Saturday.

The Social Science Association have accepted the invitation to hold their next congress in Glasgow.

A new hospital, erected as a memorial of the late Dr. Ross, of Dingwall, was opened in that town on Saturday.

The cable across the bed of the Firth of Forth, which parted by coming in contact with a schooner's anchor during the late gales, was grappled last Saturday, the defective portion cut off, and a new shore-end on the Fife side submerged.

Mr. D'Arcy, M.P., authorises the Dublin newspapers to state that there is no foundation whatever for the report in circulation that he had lodged £100,000 with Cardinal Cullen for the erection of a Roman Catholic cathedral.

The Eton College Volunteer Rifle Corps had a field-day, on Tuesday, in the park at Bearwood, near Wokingham, the residence of Mr. J. Walter, M.P. for Berkshire. Mr. Walter received the corps with much hospitality.

Mr. E. Hermon, M.P., and Mr. J. Holker, M.P., were present, on Tuesday night, at the distribution of prizes to the successful science and art students connected with the Government classes at Preston.

The portrait of the Solicitor-General in this Number of our Journal is engraved from a photograph by John Watkins, of Parliament-street, Westminster; that of Mr. Hammond from one by Rossi, of Milan and Genoa; and that of the Comte de Chambord from one by Angerer, of Vienna.

A well-dressed man entered the shop of Mr. Edwin Smith, jeweller, Birmingham, on Monday night, and asked to be shown some watches. While the watches were lying on the counter he threw a handful of snuff in Mr. Smith's face, completely blinding him for some minutes, and got away with the spoil.

Mr. White and Professor Fawcett addressed a large meeting of their constituents in the Corn Exchange, Brighton, on Monday last. They spoke at length on the leading questions of the day, particularly education, disestablishment, and finance, and a vote of confidence in both was passed.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

In several instances lately in which agricultural members have been addressing their constituents they really talked something about agriculture proper. There has been Mr. Albert Pell, in Leicestershire, who sets up a claim, fully acknowledged, for a position in the House because he is nominally a tenant farmer. He speaks with the plainness and the practicality which ought to characterise that class of member, and he is not very grievous or woeful. It would seem that he thinks that there is a good time—nay, a splendid time—coming for the producers of food; for he says that the price of meat has not at all reached its maximum, but if the grazier will only have a little patience beef and mutton will rise to a proportion which, in a certain way, will put it on a par with coal. This, he says, may well compensate for an increase of agricultural wages, which must have come some day or other. Perhaps, naturally, and in a state of farmer-like enthusiasm, he forgot a trumpery, inconsiderable class, about which there is no need for graziers to trouble themselves, who are called consumers. Supposing that when the meat-producers' hopes in regard to prices culminate two thirds only of the consumers are able to buy! However, Mr. Pell appears to be in a most optimistic condition of mind, which it would be unkind to disturb by any presages of the future. Probably Mr. Clare Read is the most real, if not the only, representative of the tenant-farmer class, and this, combined with his frank, sturdy, bearing and "good-sensical" way of speaking, render him very acceptable to the House. In some respects his position is anomalous, for he is a Conservative, and a steady one so far as votes are concerned; and yet lately, when addressing his constituents, he contended for tenant-right—or, at any rate, that farmers' capital should be secured to them; but, said he, "there is so much Conservatism about land-rights that every obstacle is offered to giving tenants legal protection." This is a remarkable statement, and may be remembered and quoted when an English tenant-right bill, which is ready, comes on next Session.

One of the representatives of Mid-Somerset, Mr. Neville-Grenville, is an agreeable member, inasmuch as he never procses, or for a pretence makes long speeches; but every now and then he breaks out with a few breezy sentences, which generally contain a point or two that almost rise to the height of epigram. He seems generally to be of opinion that the two sides of the House might get on better together and be less antagonistic, and that speeches on each side should be made more like pleasant and smart talk. Assuming that this be a correct idea of his sentiments, it is not surprising that he should have been communicating them, a few days ago, to his constituents. The question being the relations of farmer and labourer, he expressed sympathies with both, pointed out the interdependence of the two classes, counselled mutual confidence, and advised both parties to be good friends. As they have not yet got the franchise, and are not constituents, probably the labourers were not represented at the meeting, so that, whatever might have been the effect on the employer class, which of course was there, it is not easy to say what prevalence the advice of this genial and sensible gentleman may obtain.

The tolerably outspoken sentiments on the present state of the education question uttered by Mr. Bright at Birmingham the other day would seem to have encouraged another, though a subordinate, member of the Government to liberate his mind, which has for some time been in throes on that subject. Of course Mr. Hibbert, as only Secretary to a department, has not so much responsibility to throw away when he pronounces against a statute to which the Government has clung rather pertinaciously, as has a member of the Cabinet when he speaks in his personal and not in his Ministerial capacity. But whether as a member of the House or an official Mr. Hibbert is in some sort a representative man. He may be called a judicious and undemonstrative Radical, and, for reasons which the initiated may perhaps very well understand, he is just the kind of man whom a Ministry having secret intentions of dealing with a question in a particular sense would be glad to put forward as a pilot-balloon. It may be, therefore, that Mr. Hibbert's frank declaration about the existing law on education may have a significance of its own.

The Liberals ought to be very grateful to Mr. Disraeli for having written, and to Lord Grey de Wilton for having published, the now famous, or notorious, "Bath letter," for it has proved a perfect "digging" for materials for out-of-door Parliamentary speeches. Here, for instance, Mr. Hibbert—who is constitutionally, one would think, and habitually certainly, sterile of jokes and even of grim banter—has made an epigram cut of that wonderful epistle; for, getting hold of the "plundering" of the Liberals, he said that, even assuming that the Liberal party had ever "plundered," they had taken from a class for the benefit of the community, while the Conservatives had sought to plunder the people for the behoof of a class.

It is to be noted that Mr. Osborne Morgan has been disporting himself, so to speak, before his constituents at Wrexham. At any rate, his speech was conceived in that jovial spirit which seems to animate him in the House, even when he is speaking about his favourite subject of burials; and nothing can be more amusing than the way in which he sets forth quips and cranks and rather elaborated humours, and then, apparently, recollecting a certain incongruity with his subject, suddenly puts his voice into mourning, and is nearly lachrymose over the wrongs of some people who want to be interred in their parish churchyards with any ceremony but that which is prescribed. Doubtless, Mr. Morgan's address on the occasion which is being referred to was pointed, and, so far as optimism in regard to the prospects of the Liberal party was concerned, full and weighty. Perhaps, though it does not appear that he said so, he may think that amongst all the subjects which he predicted would in due time be successfully dealt with, his special, particular, and pet measure, which for several Sessions has hung between second reading from early February to late July, may at length reach fruition.

Amongst the many members who by assiduity in attendance and gravity of aspect contribute to what may be called the solidity of the House, there is no better exemplar than Mr. Amphlett, who combines the functions of a practising Chancery barrister and a county member. It has often been said that the learned gentleman had a polarity towards a Vice-Chancellorship, and the very few specimens of his mode of treating subjects in the House (which was principally last Session, when he shook off his normal reticence, and was—for him—active in the discussions on the Judicature Bill) showed that he is assuredly possessed of a judicial mind. He has lately presented himself before his rural electors; but, as he was in company with Sir John Pakington, it is probable that he had little verge and space left to fill.

That Sir Wilfrid Lawson should put in an appearance at a meeting of what is pretentiously called "The United Kingdom Alliance" is nothing remarkable. But, so far as can be gathered from the records of his prelection, he did not gambol rhetorically, as is his wont; perhaps because the assembly was, so to speak, high-dried and severe in its character. There was something paradoxical in his saying that, as legislation for the diminution of drunkenness had hitherto failed, his particular legislation ought to be adopted. He did not bring forward as an illustration the effect of that kind of law-making in places where it was tried. It was not wonderful that he should lament that Mr. Bright, whose presence in the Cabinet is to regenerate the Liberal party, did not remember to mention the Permissive Bill in his great speech last week.

It is not easy to do justice to the members for Brighton when they liberate their minds to their constituents. Perhaps, if they were to be characterised in regard to the speeches which they have been letting off to the electors of London-on-the-Sea, it might be done by saying that Mr. White was normally ponderous, and Mr. Fawcett, as usual, tremendous. The latter was expected to stand rather penitentially before his constituents for having contributed to the vote which put the Government out in the spring; but he did not show a bit of "white sheet," and talked about independence in his most pronounced manner, and that is very pronounced.

LAW AND POLICE.

TRIAL OF THE TICHBORNE CLAIMANT FOR PERJURY.

Dr. Wilson was examined yesterday week as to a surgical matter, and explained that he had not attended the defendant professionally, but only for his own purposes of scientific investigation. He added that persons who suffered from sun-stroke often showed an indifference about their affairs. Mr. Whalley, M.P., was afterwards called to deny that he had coached any of the witnesses or communicated to the defendant what they had said. On cross-examination he repeated his declaration of opinion that the opposition to the defendant was a Popish plot to deprive him of his rights. A licensed victualler, who lives at Shepherd's-bush, gave evidence as to "Captain Tichborne" driving up to Johnny Broome's public-house in Piccadilly, in the autumn of 1850, and complaining of having been swindled out of some money; but this witness was not cross-examined, as the Lord Chief Justice reminded the counsel that it was known exactly where Roger Tichborne was at the time of which the witness spoke. Another witness gave evidence as to a horse-dealing transaction with the defendant at Castlemaine, where he signed the receipt in the name of Tichborne.

On Monday the Court assembled for the hundred and twenty-fourth time. Several witnesses were called, including Lady Isabella Burrowes, who spoke to having attended a race-ball at Southampton in 1849, where she danced with Roger Tichborne. She had spoken to the defendant, and believed him to be the man whom she met that night. With this Dr. Kenealy intimated that his case was closed; and Mr. Hawkins asked for an adjournment, in order to admit of his producing rebutting testimony. After some discussion between the Judges and the counsel, it was ultimately arranged that the Court should adjourn until twelve o'clock on Wednesday.

Mr. Hawkins began on Wednesday his rebutting evidence with Lady Radcliffe. She gave the dates of every occasion, from January, 1849, to June, 1852, on which she had seen Roger Tichborne. She denied all knowledge of the man Lewis, who professes to have been Roger's boon companion and to have frequently seen him with her. The statements of Mrs. Burtt, Thomas Dimond, Caroline Skates, and others, as to having seen her alone with Roger, she positively contradicted. In cross-examination, Dr. Kenealy pressed her regarding certain entries in her diary, which his questions implied had been interpolated at later dates. Mr. Marsh, late member for Salisbury, deposed to having sailed from Sydney to Melbourne in 1855, with Sir Charles Fitzroy, the then Governor of New South Wales. He fixed the time of sailing at the end of January; and Mrs. Marsh, who was also called, read an entry from her diary which showed that it had been Jan. 27.

Some further rebutting evidence was given on Thursday. Mr. Charles Sperling said he resided in Essex, and was a magistrate for the county, and in 1846, when he was under Mr. Brunel, the engineer, he was staying at Melksham, near Bath. Having been called to contradict Mary Anne Neale, the barmaid at the King's Arms, Melksham, who deposed to Roger Tichborne and himself visiting that house together in 1849, he said he went to the King's Arms two or three times, but never knew Roger Tichborne, nor did any of his family know him. Colonel Bickerstaff was examined as to the evidence of Timothy Marks. He said he never ran a race with any officer, non-commissioned officer, or private in the Carabiniers in his life, or with Mr. Greenwood. In reply to the Lord Chief Justice, he said he was present when Roger Tichborne was bled by Dr. Moore at Canterbury, and had a perfect remembrance of what occurred. He then stated positively that the doctor only made one puncture with the lancet on each ankle and only one puncture on each arm, but said that the doctor pointed out four or five old marks of punctures on the left arm. Henry Allen, who went out with Arthur Orton in the Middleton, said he never saw any scars or marks on his face or on his hands. He was positive upon the subject. John Francis Cronin, Frederick Cronin, Joseph Smith, Mrs. Johnson, Russell, and Wm. Dodd, all of whom had already been examined for the prosecution, gave similar testimony. The other witnesses called and examined upon the same point were Shottler and Ann Cockburn. Captain Oates, examined as to the evidence of Captain Brown, said:—"I have not the slightest knowledge or recollection of Captain Brown. I never saw him. I was in Hull, and not in the gallery of the court when Brown was examined, as stated by him in his evidence. Captain Birkett and I did not introduce Roger Tichborne to any person called Brown at Rio. I saw Roger frequently for four or five days. I never drank with him, Captain Birkett, and Brown, in an hotel, or played at billiards with him. It is not true that I ever played billiards with Roger Tichborne. I never saw Roger play with Captain Birkett or Captain Carmichael, or in fact, with any one. I don't know Captain Carmichael. I never played at any game with Roger in Rio, or saw him play at any game with any one. There is nothing true in Brown's statement as to my playing billiards or being present when Birkett and Carmichael played with Roger for money when he was drunk. I never played, and never saw Birkett or Carmichael play with him. I never occupied a bed-room in which another man named Brown slept at the same time in the second bed. It is untrue, as is also the statement that I bathed in the presence of Brown. I never saw Roger Tichborne drunk in an hotel or billiard-room, or anywhere else. There is not one word of truth in the statement that I and Roger and others were drunk the night he is said to have occupied Brown's bed. I never requested him to take Roger to the room and give him a bed. I don't know Captain Myers and Captain Jenkins, mentioned by Brown. Captain Hoskins was in Rio at the time Roger was there. There is no truth whatever in the statement that I and the other captain were drunk in the hotel. The statement is no more true than that I was in the gallery the other day. It is not true that I, Roger, Birkett, and Hoskins came on board together, and were all pretty well drunk. There is not a word of truth in Brown's story. Captain Birkett did not say to him, 'Brown, you are the only sober man on board; stow Roger away.' Brown did not take off his coat and prise a board off the bulkhead. Captain Birkett was perfectly sober, and the ship in every respect fit to go to sea. It is untrue that Brown put Roger in the cabin. I saw him go into the lazarette, and I left him there. The grating was put over the hole, and a table, on which we afterwards had coffee, over that." Other portions of Brown's evidence were read by Mr. Hawkins, and Captain Oates gave a positive denial to each part of it. Captain Hoskins, who was at Rio in 1854, said he never spoke to Roger Tichborne in his life. The witness then, in reference to Captain Brown's evidence, denied that he ever knew such a person, and also denied that he went on board the Bella, drunk or sober, on the morning of her departure, or that he had ever played billiards with Roger, adding that he never was in a billiard-room in Rio. The other parts of Brown's evidence, he said, were totally untrue. Some further rebutting evidence, of no great importance, was given.

The October Sessions of the Central Criminal Court were opened on Monday, before Mr. Russell Gurney, the Recorder, whose return to England was the subject of felicitations by Mr. Cooper, as spokesman of the barristers present. On Tuesday, Charles May, aged nineteen, who pleaded guilty to forging indorsements to valuable securities, and thereby obtaining nearly £4000 belonging to his employers, Messrs. Phillips, foreign merchants, in Tower-street, was sentenced to seven years' penal servitude. Samuel Schomberger was convicted of having in his possession a plate for the purpose of forging Austrian bank notes, and was sentenced to five years' penal servitude. William Tuckfield, charged with perjury in evidence given in an action for heavy damages against the Metropolitan Railway, was on Wednesday found guilty, and next day sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment.

Thomas Bancroft, a person who is said to have been before the Court at the Mansion House at intervals for the past twenty years, was taken there on Monday for having, while under the influence of ardent spirits, flung a poor old milkwoman, with her pails, into the road, breaking her knee-cap. He pleaded drink and loss of temper, but was sentenced to be imprisoned and kept to hard labour for four months.

A man who was employed as a shampooer in a Turkish bath walked off with the gold watch, chain, and purse of a bather. When taken into custody he said there was not so much money in the purse as the loser represented, and he offered to let the owner of the watch have the duplicate of it for £4.

At Guildhall and Worship-street the magistrates were engaged, on Monday, in examining cases of juvenile robbery. At Worship-street, James Banks, a lad of eighteen, was charged with a series of highway robberies, committed in Shoreditch. At Guildhall the culprits were two youths, respectively connected, whom a detective had caught in the act of a wholesale plunder from the warehouse of their employer, a pawnbroker. Remands were ordered in both cases.

Mr. Woolrych has imposed a fine of £4 on a policeman for getting drunk and going to sleep on his beat.

The magistrate at Worship-street was surprised at a large quantity of putrid fish being brought into his court, yesterday week, for him to condemn. Some of it was handed up to the Bench, but Mr. Bushby said he was not bound to smell it, and ordered its removal. The fish consisted principally of haddocks, which were seized on the premises of a smoker.

A cabdriver who had committed an assault upon a tradesman with whom he had a dispute respecting the payment of a fare, was on Monday sentenced to a month's imprisonment, with hard labour, by the Thames police magistrate.

Henry Taylor and Joseph Brooks, carmen in the employ of Messrs. Chaplin and Horne, were on Saturday charged, at Marylebone, with wholesale robberies of jewellery and parcels from the London and North-Western Railway Company, and committed for trial.

James Howse, of 84, London-road, was summoned at the Southwark Police Court by the vestry of St. George's for selling as cider a liquid injurious to health, being adulterated with tartaric acid and other deleterious acids. The defendant said it was not the usual cider, but a liquid called "temperance cider," and he contended that it was not injurious to health. He called two witnesses who said they had drunk it for years and found it to be wholesome. Mr. Partridge fined the defendant 40s. and costs. At the same court, John Tucker, a baker, carrying on business in Great Suffolk-street, Borough, was fined 20s., and 12s. 6d. costs, for selling bread adulterated with alum. Two milkmen, named Lane and Evans, were convicted, yesterday week, of having sold as pure milk an article of which a considerable proportion consisted of water. In each case a fine of £10 was inflicted.—At Lambeth, on Wednesday, a coal-dealer, who had supplied a customer with coals of an inferior description to that for which he had charged, was fined £3 and costs. There was a similar case at Hammersmith, but the case was not proved.—Two tradesmen were fined at Wandsworth, on Tuesday, one 5s. and the other 10s., for having sold adulterated mustard.—At Clerkenwell, on Wednesday, William Brown, a milkman in Murray-street, Camden Town, was fined 40s. and 2s. costs for selling milk adulterated with water as a pure article.

At the Thames Police Court, on Tuesday, a firework-vender, who had disposed of some of his wares to a boy under sixteen years of age, was fined 40s.

There was not a single prisoner in custody, on Wednesday, in the county gaol of Anglesey and Beaumaris. The gates were thrown open and a white flag was hoisted.

At the Doncaster Borough Sessions, yesterday week, the two knavish officers of the Society for Preventing Cruelty to Animals were convicted on three charges of conspiracy and fraud, and were sentenced each to six months' imprisonment.

James Beer, a Liverpool crimp, has been fined £20 and costs, with the alternative of three months' imprisonment, for shipping as able seamen stonemasons and others out of work.—Margaret Wood, a servant girl, was sentenced at the Liverpool sessions, on Tuesday, to seven years' penal servitude for having maliciously administered vitriol to her mistress's child.

Mr. Lefroy, a landed proprietor in the county of Longford, has been seriously wounded by a shot fired through the window of his house. A man has been arrested on suspicion.

The post of office-keeper of the Royal Academy, lately occupied by Sir E. Landseer, has been filled by the appointment of Mr. Pickersgill, R.A.

Lady Franklin and the Rev. H. W. Gell, grandson of the late Sir John Franklin, have written to the Times disputing the statements recently made in the obituary notices of Sir Robert M'Clure, that he was the discoverer of the North-West Passage. Lady Franklin says that no one can dispute the great qualities of Sir Robert M'Clure as a navigator of the highest skill and daring, but claims for her late husband and his companions "the proud distinction of being discoverers of the North-West Passage."

THE VOYAGE OF H.M.S. CHALLENGER: ST. PAUL'S ROCKS, FROM THE EAST.

THE VOYAGE OF H.M.S. CHALLENGER: THE CHALLENGER MADE FAST TO ST. PAUL'S ROCKS.

THE SIME LAYING THE LAND END OF THE BRAZILIAN SUBMARINE CABLE AT MADEIRA.

ROYAL HALIFAX (NOVA SCOTIA) YACHT CLUB RACE.

DEMOLITION BY GUN-COTTON OF A CHIMNEY AT NORTHFLEET.

THE NATURAL DEATH OF AN OLD COLLIER.

COLONEL HARLEY, C.B.

A portrait of this gallant officer, who is Administrator of the Government of the Gold Coast and has directed the operations of this year to repel the Ashantee invasion, will be opportune now that we await the preparation of Sir Garnet Wolseley's military expedition. Colonel R. W. Harley entered the service as an Ensign in the 3rd West India Regiment in 1847, purchased his majority in the same regiment in 1863, and, on the regiment being disbanded, in 1870, exchanged into the 2nd West India Regiment, which he for some time commanded. He was acting Governor of British Honduras during twelve months, and, on his return to England last year, he sold out of the Army, and was appointed Administrator of the Gold Coast. On the sudden death of Mr. Keat, Colonel Harley, having been intrusted by her Majesty with a dormant commission, was sworn in as Administrator-in-Chief of the West Coast of Africa.

The following account of his military services is from Hart's "Army List":—Colonel Harley served with the expeditionary force, under Major Conran, employed against the hostile Indians of Yucatan in April and May, 1861. He commanded the western division of the troops and native allies on the Gold Coast against the forces of the King of Ashantee in 1863, when the Protectorate was invaded; also defended Lower Combo, Gambia, in February, 1864, in conjunction with Commodore Wilmot, against the hostile natives of Goongom. In June, 1864, he commanded an expeditionary force 180 miles up the river Gambia, bombarded and destroyed the fortified positions of the hostile natives at Junca Cunda, and restored peace in the country after two years of war and bloodshed. For this service he received the thanks of the Colonial Government and the brevet of Lieutenant-Colonel. He served as Brigadier-General in command of the expeditionary force employed against the hostile Indians of Yucatan, in February and March, 1867; bombarded and destroyed four Indian towns, including the fortress of San

COLONEL HARLEY, C.B., ADMINISTRATOR OF THE GOLD COAST.

Pedro, the principal stronghold, and recovered the northern and western districts of British Honduras, which had been temporarily in the hands of the invading Indians. For this service he received the thanks of the Governor-in-Chief and those of the Secretary of State for the Colonies, the approbation of the Major-General commanding the forces, and of his Royal Highness the Commander-in-Chief, with the rank of C.B.

A CONDEMNED COLLIER.

A member of the Hartlepool branch of the Plimsoll and Seamen's Fund Committee, Mr. W. H. Chambers, has sent us a sketch of the first condemned collier at that port. "Thanks to the unwearying efforts of Mr. Plimsoll," he says, "the Board of Trade are now beginning to see the necessity of surveying the old rotten patched-up craft that too long have carried our seamen at the risk of their lives from unseaworthiness. The vessel shown in my sketch is the Shipwright, which was built on the river Tyne, many years ago, by a company of shipwrights then struggling to establish their now powerful union; hence the name of this vessel. After a somewhat chequered career, she has been condemned and sold by auction, with all her sails, rigging, and spars, for some £60 or £70. Her purchasers, Messrs. Sharper and Co., took her out to sea and beached her behind the pier, where I have taken my sketch. Their view, no doubt, was that the first breeze of wind that came on the sea would knock the old ship to pieces, and so save much labour; but the Port and Harbour Commissioners refused to allow the ship to remain on the strand, so they have been compelled to tow her off, and she now lies on the sand in the East Harbour. In conclusion, I may be allowed to state that I served a seven years' apprenticeship to the coasting trade from this port, and have been connected with shipping more than thirty years, yet this is the first collier I have ever seen die a natural death."

MR. HENRY JAMES, Q.C., M.P. FOR TAUNTON, THE NEW SOLICITOR-GENERAL.

MR. HAMMOND, LATE PERMANENT UNDER-SECRETARY FOR FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

THE CHALLENGER AT ST. PAUL'S ROCKS.

Much interest is felt in the Government scientific expedition on board H.M.S. Challenger for deep-sea explorations in the Atlantic, Indian, and Pacific Oceans. The Challenger sighted St. Paul's Rocks about two o'clock in the afternoon of Aug. 27. Mr. J. J. Wild sends us a sketch. Our correspondent says:—"The first appearance was a delicate serrated outline on the western horizon. These solitary rocks are nearly under the Equator and midway between the coasts of Africa and South America. They were visited by Captain Fitzroy, accompanied by Mr. Darwin, in the Beagle in 1832, and by Sir James Ross in the Erebus and Terror in 1839. Merchant-vessels usually give them a wide berth, but our party found a bottle with a paper stating that on July 19, 1872, Captain Pack had landed from the ship Ann Millicent, of Liverpool, bound from London to Colombo. At four p.m. we were close under the rocks. We were greatly struck with their small size, for, although we knew their dimensions perfectly, rather under a quarter of a mile from end to end of the group, we had scarcely realised so mere a speck out in mid-ocean so far from all other land. We came in to the west of the rocks under their lee. To our right there were three small detached rocks, dark and low; then a rock, about 60 ft. high, almost pure white from being covered with a kind of varnish of a mixture of phosphatic matter produced by the sea-birds and sea salt; next a bay or cove, with a background of lower rock. To the left some peaks 50 ft. to 60 ft. high, white and variously mottled; and then, again, to the extreme left some detached rocks, the whole excessively rugged, with channels and clefts here and there, through which the surf dashes from the weather side.

"A boat was sent off with a lot of whale-line, and a loop of eight or ten ply of this was passed round one of the rocks. To this a hawser was run from the ship, lying at a distance of about seventy yards, her bows in 104 fathoms water. The hawser was made fast to the whale-line, and the ship moored to the rock. There was a strong current running past the rocks, and a steady breeze blowing, both off the rocks, so far as the ship was concerned; so that one was safe, in any case. All was made fast about six o'clock, and Captain Nares, Professor Wyville Thomson, and one or two others went ashore in the jolly-boat. Landing is no very easy matter. Right in the path of the trade wind and of the equatorial current there is always a heavy surf, which had a rise and fall when we were there against the precipitous wall of rock of from 5 ft. to 7 ft. The rock itself is in rough ledges, and landing has to be accomplished by a spring and a scramble when the boat is on the top of a wave. When we landed the sun was just setting behind the ship. There was not a cloud in the sky, and the sun went down into the sea a perfect disc, and threw wonderful tints of rose colour on the wild fantastic rocks. The material of the rock is very peculiar. It is difficult to refer it to any special minerals. It appears to be a mixture of forms of felspar and silicates of alumina and magnesia, approaching serpentine. It has no appearance of being of recent volcanic origin. It, perhaps, resembles the serpentine rocks of Cornwall and Ayrshire more than anything else. The contrast between the dark rock and the patches of white coating give the whole a peculiar mottled effect. There are two species of birds on the rock, and, so far as we could see, two only—the 'booby' (Sula fusca) and the 'noddy' (Sterna stolidus). They are in myriads, and so tame that we could easily knock them down with sticks, or even catch them with our hands. There were many nests of the terns all about. They were made of a green seaweed, usually on narrow ledges on the face of the rocks. A few of the nests had eggs and young in them, but the main breeding season was evidently over. Several insects were taken, including a little moth, some spiders, a small scorpion, several crabs, and some parasites of the sea-birds. There is not a trace of land vegetation—not even a lichen. At the sea-line there is a band of pink millipore—a plant of very simple structure, which looks at first sight very like a coral, and passes in some places into a thick white incrustation.

"The captain's party laid a line across the mouth of the cove, to make landing easier for their successors; and in the evening a couple of boats went off with officers and men to fish. The fish were enormously abundant, particularly a species of Carine, called, apparently in common with many other eatable fishes in Spanish and Portuguese waters, Cavalao, and allied to the tunny of the Mediterranean.

"Next day the rock was alive with surveyors and observers of all kinds, and bluejackets fishing and scrambling and generally stretching their legs, enjoying a firm foundation under their feet. There was another fishing party in the evening, the bait a bone of contention between the Cavalao and the sharks. When everyone had brought in his gatherings we found that we had added considerably to the number of living things noted on these rocks by previous observers, and certainly we had a much better opportunity than any of our predecessors of making ourselves thoroughly acquainted with the condition of this fragment of the crust of the earth. We left St. Paul's Rocks on Aug. 29 for Fernando Noronha, sounding on the way. I inclose a sketch of the windward side of the rocks—the side opposite to that on which we were moored."

Nine workmen were drowned in the Thames at Woolwich, last Saturday, by the capsizing of a waterman's boat during a dense fog.

ROYAL HALIFAX YACHT CLUB.

This club, the only yacht club on the Canadian seaboard, inaugurated ocean races for its squadron on Sept. 19, when the Sambre' Cup was sailed for over a course extending from the head of Halifax Harbour to and round Sambre' Light and back—thirty-six nautical miles in a direct line, sixty miles allowing for beat to windward all the way down. Three yachts contested—the Petrel, Whisper, and Squirrel, all sloops. The Whisper came in first by 12 min. 30 sec.; the Petrel, the smallest yacht, coming in second. The race was sailed in 7h. 40 min., and the return was witnessed by dense crowds packed on every wharf. The order of rounding at Sambre' was telegraphed to Halifax Citadel, eighteen miles distant, and signalled there. Our illustration, from a sketch by Mr. Sumichrast, who followed the race in the secretary's yacht, shows the Whisper, on the home-stretch, passing the Petrel, the latter is preparing to round Sambre' Light. The Royal Halifax Yacht Club gave a brilliant reception to Lord Dufferin on his recent visit to the capital of Nova Scotia.

GUN-COTTON AND A TALL CHIMNEY.

Our illustration shows the demolition by means of gun-cotton of the tall chimney at North-Fleet, near Gravesend, which caused the fatal accident on Thursday, the 2nd ult. This chimney, measuring 220 ft. in height, had just been completed. The contractor and the proprietor of the cement works (of which the chimney was to have formed a part) were just on the point of ascending to lay the last stone of the cap, when the top was observed to incline outwards, and an unfortunate man who was on the top was seen to jump off and to fall from the top. Immediately some 50 ft. from the top of the chimney fell with a terrible crash, killing and wounding a number of workmen who were underneath and who were unable to escape in time. The chimney was then left in a most dangerous state—it was still nearly 180 ft. high, and the upper part was so much out of the vertical and so seamed with cracks that it appeared momentarily tottering to its fall. The proprietors of the cement works, being unable to demolish it, applied for assistance to the Royal Engineers at Chatham; and a party of the Engineer officers, on the 15th ult., demolished the chimney by means of compressed gun-cotton fired inside the chimney by means of electricity. At first a charge of 5 lb. of gun cotton was simply placed inside the base of the chimney and fired, the result being to shake the whole structure and to develop the cracks. A second charge, of 8 lb., was then fired in the same way; it rent the chimney from top to bottom with huge cracks, but only brought down one considerable mass, leaving the whole structure divided up into segments. A third charge, of 8 lb., was fired, when the whole mass came to the ground, huge blocks of masonry detaching themselves and falling in succession, until only some 20 ft. of the chimney was left standing. It is the falling of these blocks which is shown in our illustration. The object of firing three successive charges was to disintegrate the chimney as much as possible so that it might break up in falling, and so avoid injury to the surrounding buildings. The whole mass fell close round the base, doing hardly any damage.

MR. HAMMOND.

The retirement of this gentleman from the Foreign Office was lately noticed, with general expressions of regard for his public character and services during half a century of Government work. The Right Hon. Edmund Hammond was born in 1802, and was born to his profession, being a son of Mr. George Hammond, who was Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs in the reign of George III. He was educated at Harrow and Eton, and at University College, Oxford, where he graduated in honours in 1823, and gained a fellowship. He became a clerk in the Privy Council Office in October, 1823, but in April, 1824, was removed to the Foreign Office. In 1831 he was attached to the staff of Sir Stratford Canning (now Lord Stratford de Redcliffe) in the special mission to Turkey, and in 1832 to a special mission at the Court of Spain. He was appointed Permanent Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs in April, 1854, and has remained in that office until now. In February, 1855, he accompanied Lord John Russell, now Earl Russell, who was then Secretary of State, on his special mission to take part in the Vienna Conference for terms of peace with Russia. Mr. Hammond was admitted to the Privy Council in June, 1866. He married, in 1846, a daughter of Lord Robert Kerr.

THE SOLICITOR-GENERAL.

Mr. Henry James, Q.C., who was lately re-elected M.P. for Taunton, after his appointment as the successor of Sir George Jessel in the office of her Majesty's Solicitor-General, is the youngest son of Mr. Philip Turner James, of Hereford, by Frances Gertrude, third daughter of Mr. John Bodenham, of the Grove, Presteigne, Radnorshire. He was born at Hereford, in the year 1820, and was educated at Cheltenham College. He was called to the Bar in the Middle Temple in Hilary Term, 1852, and went the Oxford Circuit. He had already distinguished himself in the legal profession, having been Lecturer's prizeman at the Inner Temple in 1850, and again in 1851. Mr. James was appointed a Queen's Counsel in 1869, in the early part of which year he obtained a seat in Parliament as one of the members for Taunton, unseating, on a scrutiny, his opponent, Mr. Serjeant Cox, who had been returned at the general election of the previous December. In 1867 he was nominated to the ancient office of "Postman of the Court of Exchequer."

THE BRAZILIAN SUBMARINE CABLE AT MADEIRA.

Our readers—especially the invalids who may now be taking flight to brighter climes for the winter season—will be interested in knowing that the Brazilian submarine cable as far as Madeira is laid, and will ere long be in working order. The Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company's steamer Seine, employed in this work, successfully laid about 380 miles of the cable, when, in picking up a part consequent on the detection of a flaw, it parted, sinking to the bottom, 2550 fathoms below. After nearly a month's delay the cable was recovered, and the laying finally completed. The cable was lost in one of the huge submarine valleys lately discovered by the Challenger; and the Seine has performed a feat unequalled in the history of cable-laying, for no vessel has before succeeded in picking up a cable single-handed from depths at all approaching the 2550 fathoms from which this one was raised. The Great Eastern, working in rather shallower water, has had two vessels assisting her. The island of Madeira will now be the medium through which news from Ashantee will reach us. Our illustration is from a photograph sent us by Mr. R. Blandy, and taken, at the moment of landing the shore end of the cable, by Mr. J. F. Comacho, of Madeira.

Parliament is to be asked to authorise the formation of a new road round the northern and western sides of Finsbury Park. At present the park is obliged to be kept open all night, because two gentlemen claim and exercise a right of way through it at all hours, and it is also resorted to by other people. To shut up the park at night will involve an expenditure of £11,000.

The subject of coal supply was discussed at a meeting of delegates from co-operative societies last Saturday. One speaker remarked that the coal which now costs £2 a ton could be sold for half the money but for the waste in the present system of retailing to the public. A resolution was passed pledging the delegates to induce their societies to furnish both capital and customers to the coal societies which have been formed on the co-operative principle.

NORTH LONDON or UNIVERSITY COLLEGE HOSPITAL.—ASSISTANCE IS URGENTLY NEEDED to meet current expenses, owing to the high price of provisions, fuel, and other hospital requisites. The reliable annual income is much below the ordinary expenditure. DONATIONS will be thankfully received by Edward Enfield, Esq., Treasurer, 19, Chester-terrace, Regent's Park; and at the Hospital, HENRY J. KELLY, R.N., Secretary.

DUTCH FLOWER ROOTS.—DANIELS BROS., 40a, CASE contains 60 Hyacinths, choice named and mixed; 400 Crocus, in four colours; 48 Tulips, double and single; 96 Anemones, choice double and single; 48 Ranunculi, 16 Jonquills, 16 double white sweet Narcissus, 20 Snowdrops, 24 Iris, 24 Polyanthus Narcissus, 16 Scillas, 16 Lilies. Half the above quantity, 21s.; quarter ditto, 11s. 6d., with full cultural directions. Cases and package included, and carriage-free on receipt of P.O.D. Daniels Bros., Seed and Bulb Merchants, Exchange-street, Norwich.

CHUBB'S PATENT DETECTOR LOCKS Fire and Thief Resisting Safes, and Street Door Locks. Illustrated Price-List sent free. Chubb and Sons, 57, St. Paul's-churchyard, London; Manchester, Liverpool, and Wolverhampton.

NOTICE.—VIENNA EXHIBITION.

TWO FIRST-PRIZE MEDALS
THE LITTLE WANDER SEWING-MACHINE, for its superiority over all others. Vide "London Gazette," Aug. 26, 1873. Complete, 24s. 6d. Price list and full particulars free. Chief Office: 4, Great Portland-street, London, W. Branch Office: 75, East-street, Brighton.

J. and P. COATS' BEST SOFT SILK CORD SEWING COTTON, suitable for all Sewing-Machines.

J. and P. COATS' EXTRA GLACE COTTON.—This cotton, being greatly improved in quality and finish, will be found unsurpassed for Machine or Hand Sewing. On reels, 100, 200, or 500 yards.

J. and P. COATS' CROCHET or TATTING COTTON, in skeins or on reels, of the finest quality. To be had of all Wholesale and Retail Drapers throughout the United Kingdom.

COILS of LONG HAIR and SPANISH COMBS, with Curl falling on the Neck.—UNWIN and ALBERT supply the Coils, 38 in. long, for 21s.; Combs, 5s.; Curl, 10s. 6d., on receipt of P.O. Order. 24, Piccadilly; and 6, Belgrave-mansions, S.W.

DUCHESS MARIE COIFFURE.—The advantages of this Head-dress are—the hair can be arranged by a Lady, hitherto an impossibility, and there is no style to which it cannot be adapted. Description sent.—UNWIN and ALBERT, Hairdressers, 24, Piccadilly; and 6, Belgrave Mansions, Piccadilly.

FLORILINE.—For the Teeth and Breath. Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the world; it thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living "animalcules," leaving them pearly white, imparting a delightful fragrance to the breath. Price 2s. 6d. per Bottle. The Fragrant Floriline removes instantly all odours arising from a foul stomach or tobacco smoke, being partly composed of honey, soda, and extracts of sweet herbs and plants. It is perfectly harmless, and delicious as cherry. Prepared by HENRY G. GALLUP, 48a, Oxford-street, London. Retail everywhere.

FURROWS in the SKIN, Indentations and Flabbiness of Flesh, quickly removed by ALEX. ROSS'S SKIN TONIC, which makes all faces young in look. 3s. 6d. Sent for stamps.—Alex. Ross, 248, High Holborn, London.

ALEX. ROSS'S GREAT HAIR-RESTORER.—Grey Hair becomes its Original Colour by using this wonderful Restorer. Large Bottles, 3s. 6d.; sent for Post Office order. The best possible.—Alex. Ross, 248, High Holborn, London.

DENTOCRETE, or Soluble Tooth Powder. Tablets, 2s. 6d. per box (contains half a gross). All Chemists and Perfumers. Wholesale: Barclay and Sons, Hove, and all Bona, and E. C. RUBY, proprietor, 28, Riding-house-street, W. Sample box for four stamps.

LADIES' ELASTIC SUPPORTING BANDS, for use before and after Accouchement. Instructions for measurement and prices on application to POPE and PLANTE, 4, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, London.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

At all libraries, 2 vols., post 8vo.
LUNA. A Mere Love Story. By MARGARET C. BELMORE. 8s. 7s. 6d., Eider, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

Next week, post 8vo, 7s. 6d.
GABRIEL DENVER. By OLIVER MADDOX-BROWN. 8s. 7s. 6d., Eider, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

Now ready (One Shilling), No. 167,
THE CORNHILL MAGAZINE for NOVEMBER, with illustrations by Marcus Stone and George Young Brown. (With an illustration.) Book III. X.—A Lawyer's Clerk. XI.—Cecily. XII.—A Police Case. XIII.—A Social Competition. XIV.—Private Influence. XV.—A Cynic.

Growth and Decay of Mind. Grist and Farmers' Clubs in America. An Old Dutch Literary Jest. Tyrol's House Mettles. Hours in a Library. Thoughts of an Outsider; the Publ. Schools again. A Message. Zola's Fortune. (With an illustration.) XV.—Claudia at Home. XVI.—Cup and Lip. Book the Last. I.—For the Prosecution. II.—"Sceptre and Crown, I'd lay them down." By BERNARD CRACROFT. SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

MACMILLAN'S MAGAZINE, No. 169, for NOVEMBER. Price 1s. Contents of the Number.
1. "The Public Service." By Francis W. Rowell.
2. "A Princess of Thule." By William Black, Author of "The Adventures of a Phœnix." Chapters XXII.—XXIV.
3. "China's Future Place in Philology." By W. Simpson.
4. "South Life and Character during the Summer of 1872."
5. "Madeira."—Elocia.
6. "My Time, and What I've Done with It." By F. C. Burnard.
Chapters XXVII.—XXIX.
7. "English Autumns." By Courtenay Boyle.

London: E. STAFFORD, Charing-cross.
Second Edition, price by post, unmounted, 5s. 5d.; mounted, 5s. 6d.
A PRACTICAL HISTORY OF THE BRITISH FUNDS DURING THE LAST EIGHTY-THREE YEARS—FROM 1780 TO 1873. By BERNARD CRACROFT, F. Austin, and Stock Exchange, London.

Now Ready, for NOVEMBER, price 6d.,
THE QUIVER. FIRST PART of the NEW VOLUME, being Part 97, containing, amongst a variety of other contributions—Fanny's Fortune. New Serial Story... By Isa Craig-Knox.
The Idiot of Dismal. New Story... By W. H. G. Knapton.
The Expositor's Note-Book... By Rev. Samuel Cox.
Scripture Lessons... By Rev. J. W. Gedge, M.A.
The Gaidies... By Rev. D. Moore, M.A.
Scripture H. Himes... By Rev. C. M. Burges, M.A.
In Wind and Rain... By Jennie Hering.
Vision of the Invisible One... By Rev. T. M. Moore.
A Sign for Summer... By W. C. Bennett, LL.D.
The Two Kingdoms... By John G. Watts.
The Tribute of Money... By late Rev. J. E. B. Harrison.
Harry's Rash Wish... By Hon. Mrs. Green.
"The Quiver" Bible Class, &c.
Illustrations by H. C. Selous, R. Barnes, C. O. Murray, W. G. Thomas, J. D. Watson, and W. E. Buckman.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS to THE QUIVER should order Part 97, price 6d., containing the commencement of the New Volume. To be obtained of all Booksellers and Newsagents throughout the kingdom.

Now ready, price 7s. 6d.,
THE QUIVER VOLUME FOR 1873, containing Five Serial Stories, upwards of 300 Original Contributions from Eminent Divines and Popular Authors, in addition to Scripture Lessons for School and Home Use, and nearly 300 Quizzes, under the title of "The Quiver Bible Class." The Volume of 516 pages, super-royal 8vo, and contains upwards of 100 illustrations. CASSILL, PATER, and GALPIN, London, Paris, and New York.

NEW WORKS PUBLISHED by J. BARNARD and SON, Manufacturing Artists, Colourmen, Printers, and Publishers.—London: 239, Oxford-street, W., and at all Artistic Repositories throughout the kingdom.

VITREMANIE.—The new Art of DECORATING WINDOWS, containing Full Instructions and Plates of all the Designs. Post-free, 1s. 2d. Anyone desiring to beautify their homes should read this work.

A MANUAL OF PAINTING ON GLASS FOR THE MAGIC LANTERN. By F. GARNIER. 1s. 2d. Contains all the requisite information for the use of Oil, Oxycalcium, or Oxhydrogen Lanters.

HINTS ON ILLUMINATING, with an Essay on the Art of Ornamenting in Gold on Metals, the method of brilliantly producing the gilding and illuminating of the Middle Ages. By R. M. LUCIEN. Post-free, 1s. 2d.

DECORATIVE ART, as applied to the Ornamentation of Churches, Schools, &c., with original Designs and Practical Instructions. By W. E. HARRISON. Post-free, 1s. 2d. Useful to all who desire to decorate their rooms for friends.

CHROMO PRINTED PICTURES (on the Chromo for the MAGIC LANTERN. By S. T. PIKE. With full directions for making slides at a small cost. Post-free, 7d. "A really useful work for clergymen and schoolmasters."

VITREMANIE.—Windows decorated in this beautiful Art by experienced Workmen for Churches and Public Buildings. Plans and Estimates free at the instance. J. BARNARD and SON, London, 239, Oxford-street, W.

Price 6s., free by post.
THE WOMAN'S GUIDE: Showing the Causes, Symptoms, and Homœopathic Treatment of the Diseases of Females and Children. By R. S. GUTTERIDGE, M.D. LEATH and Ross, 5, St. Paul's-churchyard; and 3, Vere-street, W.

Twenty-second Edition, 8vo, cloth, price 18s., post-free.
HOMŒOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE. By J. LAURIE, M.D. The most comprehensive guide for private families, Clergymen, and Emigrants, of all technicalities. No medicines are prescribed without full directions for their selection and the doses to be administered, whether in the form of globules, pills, or tinctures. A complete CHEST, comprising all the Medicines prescribed in the above Work, in the form of globules, price 50s.; in pills or tinctures, price 60s.; Cases containing a selection of the Medicines in most common use, from 15s. See Prospectus, sent free. AN EPITOME of the above, price 6s., a guide to those wishing to commence this system in family practice. 128th Edition. A complete Chest, containing all the Medicines for this Work, in the form of globules, price 50s.; in pills or tinctures, price 60s. LEATH and Ross, 5, St. Paul's-churchyard; and 3, Vere-street, W.

Sixth Edition, post-free 2s. stamps.
ERUPTIONS: Their Real Nature and Rational Treatment. By Dr. SARE MEADOWS, Physician National Institution for Diseases of the Skin, Grosvenor-road, and Mitre-street.—London: G. Hill, 154, Westminster Bridge-road.

CORPULENCY AND ITS NEW DIETARY GUIDE. By A. W. MOORE, M.R.C.S. "The originator of the system."—Lancet. Price, by post, 2s. 7d. VERNAN and Co., 30, Finsbury-road, E.C.

Now ready, with Coloured Illustrations, price 5s.
THE CAUSES AND TREATMENT OF DEAFNESS. By JAMES KEENE, F.R.C.S., M.R.C.P., Assistant-Surgeon to the Central London Ophthalmic Hospital, 117, Surgeon to the W. L. London Hospital. London: ROBERT HADFIELD, 192, Piccadilly.

Just published, 8vo, 1s.
DENTAL SURGERY and the PUBLIC: a Series of Papers reprinted from the "British Journal of Dental Science." By an OLD PRACTITIONER and L.D.S. J. and A. CHURCHILL, New Burlington-street.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

CRUISS-CROSS JOURNEYS.
By WALTER THORNBURY.
"Lively, graphic, and interesting."—Daily News.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

MISS BRADDON'S NEW NOVEL.

New Novel, by the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret," &c.
In 2 vols., at all Libraries.
LUCIUS DAVOREN; or, Publicans and Sinners. A Novel, By the Author of "Henry Dunbar," &c.

On Nov. 6, cloth elegant, post 8vo, price 7s. 6d.,
JOAN OF ARC AND THE TIMES OF CHARLES VII. By Mrs. BRAY. Author of "The Good St. Louis," "Levee of the President of Genoa," &c.
GRIFITH and FARRAN, St. Paul's-churchyard.

On Nov. 8, new Edition, with Map, price 5s.,
MISSION FROM CAPE COAST CASTLE TO ASHANTEE. with an Account of the Manners, Customs, Superstition, &c., of the People. By the late T. EDWARD BOWDICH, Esq., with Introductory Preface by his Daughter.
GRIFITH and FARRAN, St. Paul's-churchyard.

PLEASANT PAGES FOR YOUNG PEOPLE. By S. PROUT NEWCOMBE. Containing a Series of Moral Tales, Natural History Lessons, Object Lessons, Music, &c. In Six Volumes, 21s. (Vol. 1, 3s. 6d.)
London: Houlston and Sons, 7, Paternoster-square.

THE COUNTY FAMILIES FOR 1874.—The Publisher respectfully requests that the Annual Circular sent out for correction may be returned to the Editor without delay, as the printing and binding of so comprehensive a Book is a work of time, and it is proposed to publish on Jan. 1, 13,000 Families, over 1100 pages. Price 22 10s.; copies ordered in advance, 22 2s.
London: ROBERT HARDWICK, 192, Piccadilly, W.; and all Bookellers.

Price 2s. 6d.; by post, 2s. 9d., 230 pp., 8vo, limp cloth,
THE JUDICATURE ACT, 1873. With Rules of Procedure specially arranged for Noting and for Ready Reference, with Epitomes and Complete Index. By THOMAS FRANKLIN. London: W. ANKS, Lincoln's-inn-gate.

NEW WORK ON POINT-LACE MAKING.
Price 2s. 6d.; by post, 2s. 9d., 230 pp., 8vo, limp cloth,
FLOWERS IN POINT LACE. With Coloured Illustrations and Designs by E. SCOTT.
London: W. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road.

Now ready,
FAMILY HERALD.
Price Sixpence,
FAMILY HERALD FOR NOVEMBER.

(Part 246) Post-free, 15 halfpenny stamps.
The "Bookkeeper" says:—"For amusing reading, such as may be allotted to one's household without fear of consequences, we can recommend the 'Family Herald.' You get portions of a well-written novel, novelette, and a variety of other matters, which will make readers either merrier or wiser, or perhaps both."
London: WILLIAM STEVENS, 421, Strand, W.C.

Now ready,
THE ILLUSTRATED PENNY ALMANACK FOR 1874.
containing Twelve Engravings of the Coasting Craft of All Nations, from the Illustrated London News; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Licences; Railways, Remarkable Events, Passage Regulations, and a great variety of Useful and Interesting Information. The Trade supplied by G. VICKERS, Angel-court (172), Strand and H. Williams, Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row, London.

FOREIGN BOOKS—French, German, Italian, &c.—forwarded quickly, at low rates, by J. BAKER and SON, Foreign Book Importers, Clifton.

MARIE STUART and DONCASTER,
10s. each, with Jockey, beautifully coloured, 3s. by 24. The First Issue is in the hands of the Derby Winner.
GEO. REES, 11, Russell-street, Covent-garden.

SCRAPS FOR SCREENS, SCRAP-BOOKS,
&c.—Flowers, Figures, Landscapes, Animals, &c., in great variety, from 1s. per sheet; or one dozen assorted, 10s. 6d.
London: W. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road.

WHITE WOOD ARTICLES for PAINTING, FERN-PRINTING, and DECALCOMANIE. Hand-Screens, Book-Covers, Boxes, &c. Priced Lists on application.
W. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London.

PHOTOGRAPHY.—Anyone can take good Photographs with DEBRON'S Patent Apparatus. No previous knowledge required. No dark room wanted. Complete and portable apparatus, from 10s. to 100s. Instruction, four guineas per post.—LECHERTRE, BARBE, and CO., 60, Regent-st., London.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d., or stamps. Arms Painted and Quartered and Engraved on Steel Discs, &c.—FUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, London, W.C.

LINCOLN'S-INN HERALDIC OFFICE.
PRESENTATION ADDRESSES, Corporate Seals and Presses, Book Plates, &c.; Bachelors'; Sheriff's Seals and Trumpet Banners.—FUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, W.C.

RODRIGUES'S MONOGRAMS, CRESTS, and ADDRESSES designed, and Steel Discs engraved as seals. Note-Paper and Envelopes stamped with colour relief, and brilliantly illuminated in gold, silver, and colours.—42, Piccadilly, London, W.

VISITING-CARDS, at H. RODRIGUES'S.
A Card-plate elegantly engraved and 100 superlative cards printed for 4s. 6d. Ball Programmes and Bills of Fare arranged and printed in the latest fashion.—42, Piccadilly, W.

CREME DE LA CREME (the New Court Note-Paper), made from Charta Perfecta (Registered)—The Public are respectfully CAUTIONED that the NEW COURT NOTE-PAPER is to be had only of JENNER and KNEWSTUB, to the Queen, Heraldic Engravers and Stationers by Special Appointment to their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales. Specimens of Monograms, Stamping, and Charta Perfecta free.
23, St. James's-street; and No. 60, Jermyn-street, S.W.

MACMICHAEL'S NOVELTIES in RAISED RUBRIC MONOGRAMS and Ladies' Christian Names. Five quires of thick Note and 100 thick Envelopes stamped in four rich colours, with any Christian name, or Monogram of one, two, or three initials in raised rustic letters, for 5s. Specimens free. Macmichael, Stationer to the Queen, 207, King's-road, S.W.; and 42, South Audley-street, W.

PENS! PENS! PENS!
JUST OUT: THE HINDOO PENS!—"The misery of a bad pen is now a voluntary infliction."
"They come as a boon and a blessing to men, The Pickwick, the Owl, and the Waverley Pen."
1200 Newspapers recommend them. See "Graphic," May 17, 1873. Sample Box, by post, 1s. 1d. Sold everywhere. Patentees, MACNIVEN and CAMERON, 23 to 33, Blair-street, Edinburgh.

THE WIZARD'S BOX OF MAGIC.—Full Instructions and Apparatus for performing 10 capital Conjuring Tricks. One hour's amusement. Post-free, 14 stamps.
H. G. CLARKE and CO., 2, Garrick-street, Covent-garden.

BENSON'S WATCHES and CLOCKS.
These far-famed Watches suit all pockets, all tastes, all climates, and the means and occupations of everyone. Two hundred thousand have already been sold, and are in all parts of the world, ranging in price from 2s. to 200s. See Illustrated Watch and Jewellery Pamphlet, post-free, 2d. each, for prices, &c. Watches sent safe by post to all parts of the world.—Old Bond-street and Ludgate-hill.

TINTED SPECTACLES.—Testimonial from the Right Rev. Lord Bishop of Exeter:—"I have experienced such very great comfort in the use of your tinted glasses that I never fail to recommend them."—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians to the Government, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

H. WALKER'S NEEDLES, the "Queen's" "Pen" with patent Ridged Eyes. 1s. packets post-free of Deakr. H. Walker's Penelope Crochet, Fish Hooks, &c. Alcester; and 47, Gresham-street, London.

NEW MUSIC

TO LADIES.—BEAUTIFUL HAIR
PLAITS, Rolls, Twists, and Tails of Long Hair for every purpose. An immense Stock, in every colour and length, and of first quality only. Any article sent, secure from observation, by post and exchanged if not approved of. List of Prices free.
C. W. STACEY and CO., Hair Dressers and Manufacturers, 45, Cranbourn-street, W.C. London. Established 1848.

THE PUBLIC having accorded so warm a reception to Brinsley Richards's New Part-Song, LET THE HILLS RESOUND, it will be frequently repeated at M. Riviera's Concerts, with Military Band and Orchestral Accompaniments. Quartet Edition, 4d.; Song, 3s.; Piano Arrangement, 4s.; Duo, 4s. London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

IN SHADOW LAND. New Song.
Words by Rex; Music by C. PINSUTI. 3s.; free by post, 18 stamps. "A most charming composition for a contralto or baritone voice."—Vide the Hour. Where post and music go hand in hand the effect must be pleasing, as in this song.—Vide Cheltenham Looker-on.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

NEW DANCE MUSIC.—"Sparkling Spray Polka," for the Pianoforte, by Adam Wright, 3s.; "Golden Fern Polka," for the Pianoforte, by William Smallwood, 3s.; "The Torrent Polka," 4s.; "The Garden Party Quadrilles," Piano Solo and Duets, 4s. each; "Mousette Quadrilles," Piano Solo and Duets, 4s. each (all with Illustrated Titles). Post-free at half price in stamps.
London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co.

WEST (Geo. F.).—A CATALOGUE of all his elegant and most useful PIANO MUSIC, gratis and post-free. All pianists should consult this catalogue. QUESTIONS ON THE THEORY OF MUSIC. By GEO. F. WEST. Eleventh Edition. Post-free, 12 stamps. "As a class-book for elementary teaching in public schools, it can have few superiors."—Vide Daily Telegraph. London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street. May be had everywhere.

THE LADIES' GUIDE to the most POPULAR MUSIC only of the day (Vocal and Instrumental), carefully selected from some thousands of works issued by the London publishers. Gratis and post-free.
London: Published only by ROBERT COCKS and Co.

ABSENCE AND RETURN. FRANZ ABT'S New Song. "One of Franz Abt's latest and most taking compositions."—The Graphic, Oct. 23. Sent for 2s.
DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

THE RAFT. New Song. By CIRO PINSUTI. "Contralto will hail this highly dramatic and forcible song as a boon. It is rarely that anything of such importance is produced for this voice."—Queen. Sent for 2s.
DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

THE ANGEL AT THE WINDOW. By BERTHOLD TOURS. This much-admired new Song may be had in B. Tour's songbook or tenor; 6s. for contralto or baritone. Sent for 2s.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

POPULAR SONGS by W. C. LEVEY.
The May Song, sung by Miss The King and the Beggar-Maid.
Banks, in "Antony and Cleopatra." 4s. Beautiful Dreams. 4s.
The Merry Month of May. 3s. The Magic of Music. 4s.
Emeralds. 4s.
Half price.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

UNDER THE MISTLETOE. Juvenile Quadrille on Popular Melodies. By CHARLES GOSFREY. "Very pretty and very easy; just the thing for juvenile players. The illustrated titlepage is exceedingly good."—Graphic. Sent for 2s.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

THE BOY AND THE BROOK. New Song. By J. L. HATTON; the Words by Longfellow. "One of Mr. Hatton's best compositions, and must become popular." Price 4s.; sent free for 24 stamps.
HARRISON and SON, 2, Princes-street, Oxford-circus.

MUSICAL BOX DEPOT for NICOLE FREER'S celebrated Instruments. A very choice selection of Boxes, playing the most popular Airs. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and post-free.—11 and 12, Cornhill, London.

MUSICAL BOX DEPOT, 22, Ludgate-hill, London.—Nicole's celebrated Musical Boxes, playing best secular and sacred music. Prices 4s. to 120s. Snuffboxes from 18s. to 60s. Largest Stock in London. Catalogue gratis and post-free.—Apply to WALES and McCULLOCH, as above.

GOLDSMITH'S ALLIANCE, Limited,
11 and 12, Cornhill, London, Manufacturing Silversmiths, have recently finished several New Patterns of SILVER TEA and COFFEE SERVICES of the most elegant design and highest finish. The following are very generally approved:—
The Beaded Pattern, with Engraved Shields. The Oxford Pattern. Beautifully Engraved.
Silver Coffeepot .. 417 8 0 Silver Teapot .. 416 5 0
Silver Teapot .. 12 12 0 Silver Sugar Basin .. 8 10 0
Silver Sugar Basin .. 8 0 0 Silver Cream Ewer .. 6 0 0
Silver Cream Ewer .. 8 10 0 Silver Coffeepot .. 18 0 0
£44 10 0 £48 15 0
Silver Table and Presentation Plate, including Walters, Ink-stands, Prize Cups, Epergnes, and Flower-Stands, drawings and estimates of which will be forwarded on application.

ESTABLISHED A.D. 1700.
FURNISH YOUR HOUSE at DEANE'S.
Illustrated Price Catalogue, gratis and post-free. Fenders and Fireirons. Bedsteads and Bedding. Stoves and Ranges. Copper, Iron, and Tin Ware. Turnery, Brushes, and Mats. Horticultural Tools.
Deane and Co., 46, King William-street, London Bridge.

GASLIERS, in Crystal, Glass, Ormolu, or Bronze, Medival Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on hand. Every article marked with plain figures.
D. HULST and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn.

LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO.,
71 to 73, Brompton-road, COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHERS. Established 1810. Deliver all Country Orders Free, regardless of distance.

LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO.'S NEW ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, with 600 Designs, forwarded gratis, on application.—71 to 73, Brompton-road, London.

PAVY'S PATENT JAPANESE CURTAINS,
JAPANESE BLINDS,
JAPANESE PAPER-HANGINGS,
are unequalled for their beauty, cheapness, and durability.
GRAND MEDAL OF MERIT AWARDED VIENNA EXHIBITION, 1873.
Prospectuses post-free.
Sample Books, containing numerous designs, forwarded, carriage and fro to the applicant's expense.

PAVY'S PATENT FELTED FABRIC DEPOT,
51, Oxford-street, W.C.; London.
71, Upper-street, Islington, N.; London.
62, East-street, Brighton. 174, Rue Montmartre, Paris.

DON'T BEAT YOUR CARPETS; have them thoroughly cleaned and colours revived. Price 4d. 6d. per yard. Bed and Mattress Purifiers. METROPOLITAN STEAM BLEACHING and DYING COMPANY, 472, New Oxford-street; and 17, Wharf-road, City-road.

SILK DRESSES.—5s. 6d. and 6s. 6d. are now our only prices for DYING or CLEANING any size or quality. METROPOLITAN STEAM BLEACHING and DYING COMPANY.

FADED CURTAINS DYED equal to new, in a few days, at a moderate charge. Price-List sent. METROPOLITAN STEAM DYING and BLEACHING COMPANY, 17, Wharf-road, City-road; and 472, New Oxford-street.

PATTERNS FREE.

BAKER and CRISP'S
SILKS and DRESS MATERIALS.
Regent-street.
Patterns sent free.
BAKER and CRISP'S BLACK SILKS, of all the guaranteed makers, from 3s. 6d. to 10s. 6d. var. 1.
BAKER and CRISP'S JAPANESE and PLAIN SILKS, of every description, from 2s. 6d. the Full Dress.
BAKER and CRISP'S MOLESKIN SILK VELVETTES, unobtainable elsewhere, in all Colours, from 1s. 6d. yard.
BAKER and CRISP'S NEW AUTUMN FABRICS, from the Loons of all Nations, from 6d. to 3s. 6d. yard.
BAKER and CRISP'S NEW FRENCH MERINOS, in marvellous variety, from 1s. 6d. per yard.
BAKER and CRISP'S NEW and FASHIONABLE SERGES and 100 other Fabrics, from 1s. yard.
Patterns free.
198, Regent-street.

BAKER and CRISP'S
COSTUMES, SKIRTS, POLONAISES, and NOTICE SEALSIN JACKETS.
Engravings free.
BAKER and CRISP'S INDISTINGUISHABLE WATERPROOF CLOAKS. Engravings free. Prices from 16s. 9d. to 35s.
BAKER and CRISP'S SILK, SATIN, and OTHER WALKING SKIRTS.
The best variety in the kingdom, at the easiest prices.
BAKER and CRISP'S SEALSIN JACKETS.
6s. to 15s.; well worth the attention of the Loons of all Nations.
BAKER and CRISP'S TROUSERS and COSTUME, also PLIMSOLL and others, from 2s. 6d. each. Engravings free.
198, Regent-street.

MARVELS OF CHEAPNESS.
5000 ROMAN SASHES, that were 12s. 9d. each, now selling for 2s. 11d. 100 dozen Two-Button Kid Gloves, 1s. 11d. per pair. 1000 dozen Hemmed-Edged, Clean French Cambric Handkerchiefs, at 4s. 6d. and 3s. 6d. half dozen. 500 yard Shetland Shawls, 2s. 11d. each, all Colours; worth 5s. 11d. The new Leather and other Belts and Buckles, 1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d. each.—BAKER and CRISP, Regent-street. 1000 Bijou Sashes from the Vienna Exhibition, 5s. 6d.; worth 12s. 9d.

BURGESS'S POST-FREE.
WINTER PATTERNS.
65, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

HOME-SPUN HAND-WOVEN R. V. C. SERGES,
1s. per yard. Patterns free.
THE NAVY SERGE COSTUME. 2s. 6d. Patterns free.
LYONS FINISHED VELVETTES. 1s. 11d. per yard. Patterns free.
THE GUINEA POLONAISE. 31s. Patterns free.
FRENCH MERINOS, WOOL-DYED. 1s. 11d. to 3s. 6d. per yard. Patterns free.
DOUBLE WARP LINSEYS. 11d. per yard. Patterns free.
DOUBLE WOOL REPS. 1s. 3d. to 3s. 6d. per yard. Patterns free.
DOUBLE DIAGONALS. 1s. to 3s. 11d. per yard. Patterns free.
SATIN-FACED LADIES' CLOTH.
Roubaix manufacture, 1s. 3d. per yard. Patterns free.
TEHERAN SKIRTINGS. 1s. 11d. per yard. Patterns free.
INVERCAULD TWEEDS.
Shower and Mist Reeling. Patterns free.
GRENADES. 1s. and 1s. 3d. per yard. Patterns free.
ODDS and ENDS of all our Leading Materials from two to six yards, 15s. 9d., 21s., to 42s. the bundle.

BURGESS'S POST-FREE.
WINTER PATTERNS.
65, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

HENRY GLAVE'S
GRAND SHOW OF DRESSES for Autumn and Winter.
THE ROUBAIX CLOTH.
A splendid Wool Texture, finely woven, in lovely Colours for all kinds of wear, 25 in. wide 1s. 2 1/2d., and 28 in. 1s. 4 1/2d. a yard.

THE ROUBAIX CLOTH.
A superb Striped Wool Satteen, in endless high class Colours for the Season; width 28 inches. Price 1s. 4 1/2d. a yard.

THE ALEXANDROWNA DRESS.
New production this season, an elegant Satteen Striped Serge. Price 1s. 6 1/2d. a yard; 27 inches wide.

FRENCH MERINOS.
French Merinos, 1s. 11d. a yard; 42 inches wide. French Merinos, 2s. 11d. a yard; 42 inches wide. French Merinos, so highly esteemed by Ladies. We have a splendid stock of this favourite fabric.

NAVY SERGES.
Navy Serges, 1s. 9d. to 1s. 11d. a yard. Eastman Serges, 1s. 4 1/2d. to 1s. 11d. Wool Serges, in all colours and every price.

VICTORIA TWEEDS.
Victoria Tweeds, in Dark Blue, Green, Brown, and Grey, all Wool, 28 in. wide, 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d., and 4s. 11d. a yard.

ABERDEEN LINSEYS.
Aberdeen Linseys, 9d. and 10d. a yard. Aberdeen Linseys, 1s. 9d. and 1s. 4 1/2d. Super Linseys, 1s. 2 1/2d. a yard.

"THE GUINEA" QUILTED SATIN
SKIRT.—KNIGHT and CO., Silkmercers, &c., 217, Regent-street, having purchased a Manufacturer's Stock of French Satins, are now showing the best value ever offered in Skirts, being wholly Satin, of the full average size, finished in the best manner, and obtainable in Black and every shade of Colour.
Patterns, for choice of colour, post-free.

KNIGHT and CO., Silkmercers, Fancy
Dress Warehousemen, &c., 217, Regent-street, are now displaying their Registered New Skirts in Satin and Silk, Skirts, Velvets, and Fabric Costumes, Fur Seal, and other Jackets, &c.—Agents for Booth and Fox's Down Skirts Dressing-Gowns, &c.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF NEW COSTUMES in SILK and WOOLLEN FABRICS, with Patterns of Materials free.—GASK and GASK are now showing an unequalled Collection of new Silk Costumes, from 4s. complete, and Costumes of the New Autumn Materials in every variety, from 19s. 6d. complete. Rich Quilted Satin Petticoats, full size, 17s. 9d.
New Evening and Dinner Dresses, 21s. &c.
58 to 63, Oxford-street; and 1 to 5, Wells-street.

FRENCH SILKS and VELVETS UNDER
VALUE.—GASK and GASK are now showing Lyons striped Velvets, new colours, 11s. 6d. per yard; rich all-silk French Dress Satins, all colours, 5s. 6d.; Black Lyons Dress Velvets, 10s. 6d.; Black French Silks, 3s. 11d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 6d., 7s. 11d. These lots are very cheap. Patterns free.
58 to 63, Oxford-street; and 1 to 5, Wells-street.

DRESS FABRICS.—GASK and GASK are showing the new Bannockburn, Inverary, and Killiecrankie Tweeds, Vienna Cloths, Equinox Serges, Roubaix Cloths, Diagonals, &c. An immense variety, at all prices, from 10 1/2d. to 2s. 6d. per yard. Patterns free.
58 to 63, Oxford-street; and 1 to 5, Wells-street.

MILLINERY, MANTLES, SEALSINS.
GASK and GASK have just received from Paris decided Novelties in Bonnets and Hats, from 1 guinea; Rich Velvet and Cloth Jackets and Polonaises, &c.; Seal-skin Jackets, new shape; Trimmed Beaver and Otter, Rabbits, &c., all at the most moderate prices.
58 to 63, Oxford-street; and 1 to 5, Wells-street.

NOS. 65 and 66, FARRINGTON-STREET, E.C.
SILKS and VELVETS.

We are now OFFERING important parcels, comprising Rich Black Silks, from 4s. 4 1/2d. to 10s. 6d.; Rich Coloured Silks, from 3s. 11d. to 7s. 11d.; Black Dress Satins, from 1s. 9d. to 6s. 11d.; Black Silk Velvets, 2s. 11d. to 4s. 11d.; Very Rich Mantle Velvets, 5s. 11d. to 12s. 11d.; several special job lots of inexpensive Black and Fancy Silks, from 1s. 11d.

Also many very cheap parcels, comprising Dress Serges, Satin Cloths, Silk and Wool Reys, Poplins, &c. Patterns post-free.
Z. SIMPSON and COMPANY.

FOR LADIES.—THE NEW MARIE
STUART RUFFLE. In all Colours, post-free, for 14 stamps.
In Silk, Velvet, and Lace, any colour, 2s. 6d. post-free.
CRAWFORD and CO., Manufacturers, 10, Chesapeake, London.

NEW GOODS FROM PARIS.

PETER ROBINSON has now ready for inspection, at the MOURNING WAREHOUSE, a choice selection of very beautiful Mantles, Silk and Material Costumes, Polonaises, Millinery, Evening, and other Novelties, which his Buyers have secured from the leading Houses.
The Court Mourning Warehouse, 256, Regent-street, London.

RUSSIAN SEAL FUR JACKETS.

New Shapes, trimmed with a variety of Choice Furs, at moderate Prices.
PETER ROBINSON'S Mourning Warehouse, 256, Regent-street.

A GOOD BLACK SILK for £3 10s. the.

Dress of 14 yards (Dagovad).
PETER ROBINSON, 256, Regent-street, W.
For a Pattern direct to Regent-street, as above.

SUPERIOR BLACK SILKS at PETER ROBINSON'S MOURNING WAREHOUSE.
Peter Robinson has now on Sale some very rich Black Silks purchased in Lyons very advantageously.

Excellent Black Gros Grains at 2s. 11d. to 3s. 9d. per yard, and Glacés 4s. 7s. to 6s. the Dress.
And Superior and most elegant at 4s. to 12s. 6d. per yard, during quality or 43 2s. to 47 10s. the Dress.
Also Shades in Greys, Slaters, Manres, White, &c., equally cheap.
Address for Patterns as above.—256, Regent-street, London.

URGENT MOURNING.
"ON RECEIPT OF LETTER or TELEGRAM,"
MOURNING GOODS will be forwarded to all parts of England on approval, no matter the distance—with an excellent fitting dressmaker (if required), without extra charge.

PETER ROBINSON'S GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 256, Regent-street, London.

MOURNING FOR FAMILIES.

IN CORRECT TASTE, can be purchased at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street, at a great saving in price.
SKIRTS, in New Mourning Fabrics, 35s. to 55s. trimmed crapes.

SUPERIOR CRAPE.—Special Qualities, that will not spot with rain, at PETER ROBINSON'S MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 256, Regent-street.

FROM ROUBAIX.—New Goods for the Autumn Season, in Black and various novel textures, from 12s. 9d. the Dress up to 25s. 6d. the Dress.

at PETER ROBINSON'S, Mourning Warehouse, 256, Regent-street.

ALEXANDROWNA TROUSSEAU—CHARMING NOVELTY!
MADAME GIRAUD writes:—"The Belles Russes, designed for the Princess of Russia, will supersede everything else for outdoor winter wear." It forms in itself Skirt-Pants, a Polonaise, Jacket, Collar, Muff, and Umbrella-Holders. Made-up Pattern, 2s. 3d.; postage, 2d. Stylish Polonaises, 1s. 8d.; Jackets, 1s.; Jockey Jackets, 9d.; postage, 1d. each. Two patterns of Skirt-Pants, 1s. 8d.; postage, 1d. each. Gilette Skirt, combining train, demit-train and walking length, 2s. 6d.; postage, 2d.—2, Clapham-street, Great Portland-street, W.

WEAR-RESISTING FABRICS
are manufactured in every style of BOYS' and YOUTHS' CLOTHING.
SAMUEL BROTHERS, 50, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

WEAR-RESISTING FABRICS.
Suit for a Boy 4 ft. in height, C Class, 2s.; D Class, 3s. 6d. Prices according to or descending according to size. Patterns free.
SAMUEL BROTHERS, 50, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

TO MEET THE REQUEST of the MEDICAL PROFESSION, DR. DUBAND'S HEALTH FLANNEL (for Chest Affections, Rheumatism, and general wear, preventive of the injury of re-absorption) will henceforward be supplied from 3s. per yard. Patterns free.
MARTIN and CO., 24, Coleman-street, E.C.

HAIR DYE.—BACHELOR'S
INSTANTANEOUS COLUMBIAN, New York Original Packets, the best in the world, black or brown. The only one that remedies the evil effects of bad dyes, 4s. 6d., 7s., and 14s., of all Perfumers and Chemists.—Wholesale, R. HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 98 and 99, City-road, E.C.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR
RESTORED by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. Price 10s. 6d. Testimonials post-free.—HOVENDEN, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ROBARE'S
AURIFOLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Warranted not to injure the hair. Price 5s. 6d. and 10s. 6d., of all Perfumers. Wholesale, HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 98 and 99, City-road, E.C.; London; Pinaud and Meyer, 37, Boulevard de Strasbourg, Paris; 31, Gravel, 10, Rue de la Longue Chaîrte, Brussels; Caswell, Hazard, and Co., Fifth Avenue, Broadway, New York.

DOES YOUR HAIR TURN GRE

NEW MUSIC.

THE CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF CHAPPELL'S MUSICAL MAGAZINE
(No. 100) contains a New Waltz, "Isadora," composed expressly for this Magazine by DAN GODFREY, Bandmaster, Grenadier Guards, in addition to the following Dance Music:—
ECHOES AROUND THE HEATHLAND WALTZ. Karl Meyer.
THE SULTAN LANCERS. Pierre Calkin.
FESCHE GEISTER WALTZ. Strauss.
MONACO GALOP. Karl Meyer.
PONTAINEAU QUADRILLE. D'Albert.
FRAISES AU CHAMPAGNE VAISE. Jules Klein.
ZINGARI GALOP. Karl Meyer.
POLKA BRILLANT. Henry Smart.
BRIGHTER DAYS WALTZ. Marriott.
LE JUIF BRANT QUADRILLE. Charles D'Albert.
Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 2d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and all Music and Book Sellers in Town and Country.

A NEW GALOP BY D'ALBERT.
PRINCESS MARIE, a New Galop, by CHARLES D'ALBERT.—CHAPPELL and Co. have much pleasure in announcing the publication of the above galop, illustrated with a beautiful Portrait of the Princess Marie Alexandrovna of Russia. Price 2s.; post-free, 1s. 6d. This novel, from the pen of our most renowned composer of dance music, will become equal in popularity to his celebrated "Express." &c.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE RUSSIAN WALTZ, composed on Russian Airs. By J. LEVY. Played every Evening at Rivoli's Promenade Concerts, and received with unanimous applause. Price 4s.; post-free, 2s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONG BY SANTLEY.
ENGLAND'S GREETING. New Song for Baritone Voice. Words by J. V. Bird eman; Music by CHARLES SANTLEY. "This Song will become a universal favourite." Price 4s.; post-free, 2s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BOURREE for the Pianoforte, composed by COTSFORD DIK. Price 2s. "A most charming and original composition."
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONGS by COTSFORD DIK.
THE VOICE I LOVED. Words by Louisa Gray. 2s.
"A beautiful song for tenor voice."
WHEN SHADOWS FLEE AWAY. Words by Gordon Campbell. Post-free for half price.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES.
SUNRISE Galop. Illustrated. 2s.
IVY LEAVES Polka. Illustrated. 2s.
HAWTHORN BLOSSOMS. Petit Morceau. Illustrated. 2s.
MOONLIGHT STREAM. Morceau de Salon. Illustrated. 2s.
ALPINE ECHOES. Romantique. Illustrated. 2s.
Post-free, 1s. 6d. each.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LOUISA GRAY'S NEW SONGS.
CHANGED. 2s.
BLIND GIRL'S DREAM. 4s.
IT WAS EARLY IN THE EVENING. 2s.
Post-free for half price.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GOING HOME GALOP. Just Out. A New Galop by W. H. MONTGOMERY. Played at Rivoli's Promenade Concerts with immense success. Price 2s.; post-free, 1s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GOUNOD'S NEW MARCH ROMAINE, companion piece to the celebrated "Silver Trumpets." Composed expressly for the Piano, Price, for Piano, Organ (with pedal obligato), or Harmonium, 2s.; Piano Duet, 4s. Full Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN OR HARMONIUM.
ORIGINAL VOLUNTARIES for the use of Amateurs by GEORGE FORBES. Price 4s.; post-free 2s. "This work will be found of immense value to all performers on either of the instruments for which it is written."
N.B. A Second Book of Voluntaries, of a similar kind, by the same Composer, will be published in the near future.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND PIANOFORTES.
CHAPPELL and Co. have an immense Stock of Secondhand Pianofortes, by Broadwood, Collard, Knapp, Chappell, and other good makers, just returned from Paris, which they can offer at exceptionally low prices. Discount for cash.—50, New Bond-street, W.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S SCHOOL-ROOM PIANOFORTE, in Canadian Walnut or Mahogany Case. Price TWENTY GUINEAS. This instrument combines good quality of tone and excellence of workmanship. It has the merit of standing well in tune, and is capable of enduring hard school practice without going out of order.—Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S YACHT PIANO, with Folding Keyboard, Check Action, Triebord Treble. In Solid Mahogany or Black Canadian Walnut Case, THIRTY GUINEAS; or in Maple, THIRTY-FIVE GUINEAS. Constructed for Ships' Cabins, to occupy the smallest possible space, and to stand the damp of a sea voyage; the back is strengthened with iron bars and metal plates, and the whole of the mechanism is of the best quality.—Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

DULCIANA ORGAN HARMONIUM, by Alexandre.—This New Instrument is especially adapted to the Drawing-Room. It has the sweetest tone possible, resembling the soft dulciana stop of the best organs, and, by a new patent system, is free from the slightest harshness. Price, 3 stops, oak, 12 gu., mahogany, 12 gu.; rosewood, 14 gu.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S HARMONIUMS for SALE, from 6 gu. to 110 gu. Alexandre, Wholesale Agents. Illustrated Catalogue on application.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ALEXANDRE NEW SEVEN-GUINEA ORGAN HARMONIUM. Solid Oak Case, Five Octaves, and Two Foot-Boards.
The ever-increasing musical culture in all classes of society has created a demand for free reed instruments of a superior quality to those hitherto manufactured.
The instruments now offered to the public will be found devoted of all that has hitherto been considered objectionable as regards tone. This and has been obtained by using a larger and thicker tongue, and a new system of voicing, which renders the quality rich and organ-like.
Another advantage in the new system is the increased strength of the reeds, and diminished liability to go out of tune by forcing the bellows.
The new system is applied to all the large instruments with still greater effect and without extra cost.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

RECOMMENDED BY ALL THE PROFESSORS.
THE DIGITORIUM (a small Dumb Piano-Patent). This remarkable invention materially assists any person to play and become perfect on the Pianoforte, Organ, or Harmonium, by strengthening and rendering the fingers independent in an incredibly short time; and can now be had price 15s.; or, with ivory keys, 18s. of the sole Manufacturers, CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SPRING SONG.—BRINLEY RICHARDS.
This charming arrangement of the popular song from "Babi and Elton" is now ready, post-free, 18 stamps. Also, by Richards, "Little Nell," 4s.; "She wore a wreath of roses," 4s.; "Sweet Home" (Wrightson), 4s.; "Agnes Del" (Mozart's Twelfth), 2s.; "Offertoire" (Wey), 2s.; and "With verdure clad," 2s. Post-free, half price.—J. WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, and 123, Chancery-lane.

THE MAIDEN'S FLOWER SONG. By Signer FINOTTI. Net, 1s. 6d. post-free. "One of the best efforts of this accomplished artist. It is marked with great originality, beauty of theme, and good declamatory passages. Soprano and soprano singers will receive this composition with interest, as it will prove a most useful song for the drawing-room."
JOSEPH WILLIAMS, Berners-street and Chancery-lane.

A RELIC.—Fantasia Impromptu for the Piano. By MOZART. The melody of this charming composition is so graceful and the harmonies so sweet that we venture to predict for it a place with such established favourites as "Wanderer's Last Words" and Beethoven's "Adieu." Sent for 18 stamps by JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, W.; and 123, Chancery-lane.

NEW MUSIC.

NOTICE.—TWO NEW VOLUMES of the ROYAL EDITION OF MUSICAL WORKS will be ready in a few days.
ROBERT SCHUMANN'S 75 SONGS.
SACRED SONGS, ANCIENT AND MODERN.
Price 2s. 6d. each in paper; 4s. cloth, gilt edges.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

ROBERT SCHUMANN'S Seventy-five SONGS, with GERMAN AND ENGLISH WORDS. Edited by J. L. HATTON. The Royal Edition.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

SACRED SONGS, ANCIENT and MODERN. A complete collection of Sacred Vocal Music, suitable for home use, comprising one hundred Songs by the most celebrated Composers, ancient and modern, and including several new compositions written expressly for this work. Edited by J. Hiles. The Royal Edition.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

F. H. COWEN.—MARGUERITE.
Sung by Madame Trebelli-Bettini. 4s.
F. H. COWEN.—IT WAS A DREAM.
Sung by Madlle. Titiens. 4s.
F. H. COWEN.—AU LUNE.
Sung by Mr. Bim. 7s. 6d.
F. H. COWEN.—ONLY A VIOLET.
Sung by Madame Sinico. 4s.
F. H. COWEN.—MARE.
Sung by Madame Trebelli-Bettini. 4s.
Any song post-free for 2s. from BOOSEY and Co.

NEW SONG. Composed by SANTLEY.
A SHORT YEAR AGO. Song. Composed expressly for Edward Lloyd by CHARLES SANTLEY. Price 4s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE SIESTA. By LINDSAY SLOPER.
Sung by Mr. Edward Lloyd with great success. "A very pretty idea, happily expressed and sweetly rendered."—Newcastle Chronicle. Price 4s.—BOOSEY and Co.

NEVERMORE. By STANISLAUS. Sung by Madame Paley. Price 4s. "There is something singularly tender and sweet about this interesting little song."—Queen. BOOSEY and Co.

THEN AND NOW. By LOUISA GRAY. Sung by Miss Edith Wynne. "When the curtains are drawn, the lamp lighted, and the young lover is pressing his fair one for a song, let her not forget 'Then and Now.'"—The Era. Price 4s.
BOOSEY and Co.

BRIDE BELLS. By J. L. ROECKEL.
Sung by Madame Sherrington throughout her present tour. "Bride Bells" was rapturously received, and will no doubt become universally popular.—Orchestra. Price 4s.—BOOSEY and Co.

BOOSEY'S SHILLING DANCE-BOOKS in the MUSICAL CABINET. Post-free, 1s. 1d.
124. THE OFFENBACH NUMBERS, including the GENEVIEVE DANCE MUSIC.
125. GUNGLE'S SIX BEST SETS OF WALTZES.
127. STRAUSS'S SIX SETS OF WALTZES, including the TAUSEND UND EIN NACHT.
101. STRAUSS'S SEVEN WALTZES, including THE BEAUTIFUL DANUBE.

LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT.
Opera Comique. By LEOCOQ. The greatest success of the day.
MADAME ANGOT. By Kuba. 4s.
MADAME ANGOT. By Lindsay Sloper. 4s.
MADAME ANGOT. By Craxer. 4s.
MADAME ANGOT QUADRILLE. By Coots. 4s.
MADAME ANGOT VAISE. By Coots. 4s.
MADAME ANGOT. By Brinley Richards. 4s.
MADAME ANGOT. For Piano. Complete. 2s. 6d.
[All the Songs in French or English, 4s. each.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT. The celebrated Contrapuntist's Song and Chorus, with English or French Words, 4s.; also arranged for the Pianoforte by BRINLEY RICHARDS. 4s.—BOOSEY and Co.

LA FILLE DE MADAME ANGOT.
Now ready, the principal Songs, in French or English. Price 4s. each.
The Legend of Madame Angot. Clairette's Song.
The Valse Chantante. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NEW SOLOS by Favourite Composers.
Bertram's Valse Légère. Auguste May. 4s.
Bismarck's My Country. 4s.
De Kontaki's Le Jaguar Valse. 4s.
Ferrari's Valse Brillante. 4s.
Goldner's Saltarelle. 4s.
Osborne's Fisher-maiden. Meyerbeer. 4s. each.
Paladilhe's Bianca and Chant de Femmes. 4s.
Semler's Minerva and Tout Seul. 4s.
Wehl's Daisy. Forget-Me-Not, and Harebell. 2s. each.
CRAXER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

T. TREKEL'S NEW COMPOSITIONS.
Bourrée. In F major. 2s.
Les Eclaircies. Impromptu. 2s.
Le Trianon. Gavotte. 2s.
Lullaby. Cradle Song. 2s.
The Magic Harp. Caprice. 2s.
The Woodland Sprite. Morceau de Salon. 2s.
CRAXER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

RENDANO'S CHANT DU PAYSAN. 3s.
Played, by command, before her Majesty at Windsor Castle by the talented Madame Rendano, a most charming morceau de salon.
CRAXER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

OFFENBACH'S C'EST L'ESPAGNE. 4s.
Transcribed for the Pianoforte by BERTHOLD TOURS.
"A very effective drawing-room morceau."
CRAXER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

MARRIOTT'S NEW DANCE MUSIC.
Alpine Schottische, Fearless Pier Polka. Fun of the Ball, Guardians of the Night, Salute, and Shah Galops. Nacht Lieder and Wablers of Fairlight Wablers. Dragon and Vienna Quadrilles. All beautifully illustrated. 4s. each.
CRAXER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

KELER BELA'S NEW DANCE MUSIC.
Die Letzten Gitteln-Stunden. Waltses. 4s.
Alma de Gitteln. Polka. 4s.
Die Gitteln-Stunden. Polka Française. 4s.
Quite equal to Gung's and Strauss's best efforts.
CRAXER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

NEMESIS SONGS and DANCE MUSIC (scored nightly at the Strand Theatre).—"The Language of Love" (sung by Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Hillier, Mr. Howard Paul, &c.). "What are a lady's wants to-day?" "Don't make me laugh," and "Will you take my arm" Quadrilles and Galop, by J. FITZGERALD; and Waltses, Solos, and Duets, 4s.; post-free, 2s. each.
J. B. CRAXER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

OFFENBACH'S C'EST L'ESPAGNE. 3s.
Certainly the most popular song of the day. Sung by Madame Trebelli-Bettini, Pauline Rita, Osborne Williams, Victoria Hansen, Dolaro, &c. Also arranged as Pianoforte Solo, by B. TOURS. 4s.—CRAXER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and POST-FREE.—The largest and most varied stock of music, by all the principal Publishers, CRAXER and Co. undertake to forward, by return of post (on receipt of remittance), all sheet music ordered from them, no matter by whom published, at half price and post-free.
CRAXER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

BOOSEY and CO.'S PIANOFORTES, from 19 gu. to 45 gu.—For SALE, Hire, or on the Three-Year's System. Pianos by all the great makers. Illustrated Price-List free.
24, Holles-street, W.

BOOSEY and CO.'S ENGLISH HARMONIUMS, French Harmoniums, and Wood's American Organs. Illustrated List free.—24, Holles-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

NOTICE.—ALL MUSIC at HALF PRICE.
The best editions sent post-free, bound works excepted. Stamps or post-office order in advance. Lists free on application.
Horwood and Caw, 42, New Bond-street.

HARRY CLIFTON'S CELEBRATED MOTTO SONGS.
Trides Light as Air. Don't be After Tun.
Welcome as the Flowers in May. Could I live my Time Over Again.
As long as the World Goes Round. Always Do as I Do.
Very suitable for Penny Readings and the Drawing-Room.
18 stamps each.—Horwood and Caw.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE SHAH? A most amusing Song, full of fun, sung nightly by Vance, and illustrated with Comic Picture of his Majesty. 18 stamps.
Horwood and Caw, 42, New Bond-street.

SPEAK TO ME, SPEAK! is a lovely Ballad by F. CAMPANA. The Poetry is perfectly charming, and the Music equal to the Words. Full of melody. In keys of C and A. 24 stamps.—Horwood and Caw.

A BEAUTIFUL SONG.
FAR FROM MY EYES, YET NEAR MY HEART. By CAMPANA. Written to suit all voices. The words are full of pathos, and melody exquisite.
24 stamps.—Horwood and Caw, 42, New Bond-street.

ADOLINA PATTI'S FAVOURITE SONG.
EVENING BRINGETH MY HEART BACK TO THEE. By Signor CAMPANA. A very pretty simple Ballad, worthy the attention of all singers. In the keys of F and D. 24 stamps.—Horwood and Caw.

COOTE'S AWFULLY JOLLY WALTZ (Comique), containing the famous tune of "First She Would," "Beauties Girls," &c. Prettily illustrated. Solo, 24 stamps; Duet, 30.—Horwood and Caw, 42, New Bond-street.

TINNEY'S MARIE QUADRILLES, on Russian Airs; with a splendid Likeness, in Colour, of the Grand Duchess Marie Alexandrovna. 24 stamps.
Horwood and Caw, 42, New Bond-street.

HOW TO DANCE.—COOTE'S BALL-ROOM GUIDE, for Home Practice, fully explains how to learn Dancing without a Master. Illustrated with the figures. Post-free, 18 stamps.—Horwood and Caw, 42, New Bond-street.

STANDARD MUSICAL WORKS for COLLEGES and SCHOOLS.
By J. T. STONE.
FOR THE PIANOFORTE.
ELEMENTARY INSTRUCTIONS. Twentieth Edition. 2s.
FACILE INSTRUCTIONS. Twentieth Edition. 4s.
CONCISE INSTRUCTIONS. 2s.
FOR THE ORGAN.
COMPLETE INSTRUCTIONS. Ninth Edition. 2s.
THE CLASSICAL ORGANIST. In six Vols. 12s. each; or in thirty-Six Numbers, 2s. each.
THE ORGAN STUDY'S COMPANION. In six Vols. 12s. each; or in Twenty-Four Books, 2s. each.
FOR THE HARMONIUM.
COMPLETE INSTRUCTIONS. 2s.
THE HARMONIUM MISCELLANY. In Twelve Numbers, 2s. each.
FOR SINGERS.
THEORETICAL AND PRACTICAL INSTRUCTIONS. 2s.
The Publishers confidently direct the attention of Professors and Teachers of Music to the above Works. The whole series have a large and increasing circulation.
London: BARNES and Co., 21, Bishopsgate-street Within.

BADIA'S POPULAR CANZONETTA
BEL MORETTO.
Post-free, 2s. net.
LAMOND COCK and Co., 63, New Bond-street.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S NEW SONG, THE KING.
Post-free, 2s. net.
MILLS, 140, New Bond-street.

BERTHOLD TOURS'S NEWEST SONGS.
GONE BEFORE. Words by C. J. Kova. 2s.
A LIFE STORY. Ditto. 2s.
THE MAIDEN AND THE SWAN. In A Flat and C. 2s.
18 stamps each.—EVANS and Co., 22, Argyl-street, Regent-street, W.

THE SACRED HEART.—The beautiful Professional Hymn sung by the Pilgrims to Paray-le-Monial. Words and Music, six stamps; as a piece for Pianoforte or Harmonium, 12 stamps.
K. C. BOOSEY, 2, Little Argyle-street, Regent-street, W.

SONGS by LANGTON WILLIAMS.
The Wood Nymph's Call (20th Edition). 4s.
The Two Letters. 2s.
The Message from the Sea. 2s.
Clarinet. "The form that reminds me of thee." 4s.
At her Spinning Wheel. 2s.
Never again with you. Robin (12th Edition). 4s.
W. WILLIAMS and Co., 221, Tottenham-court-road.

CHARLES HALLE'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL.
Sections 1, 2, and 3, Elementary, Easy, and Moderately Difficult; also, fourth numbers of Section 4, Difficult, are now ready. Prospectuses, containing full particulars and prices, may be had of FORSTER BROTHERS, London, 372, Regent-street, Oxford-street; Manchester, Cross-street and South King-street.

BREWER and CO.'S COTTAGE PIANOFORTES, 25 gu., elegant in appearance, full compass, sound material, and best workmanship; will stand the test of any judge. Factory, Colindale-street, Westmoreland-street, City-road, and 23, Bishopsgate-street Within, London.

MAPPIN BROTHERS, Manufacturers
SILVER PLATE.
Tea and Coffee Services.
Tea Trays and Waiters.
Spoons and Forks.
Dishes and Dish Covers.
Spergans, Fruit Stands, &c., &c.
The Stock they keep in London, at 67 and 68, King William-street, London Bridge, also at 120, Regent-street, W., is very large and well assorted, being all of first-class quality and design. It is sent direct from their own Works, at Baker's-hill, in Sheffield. Illustrated Catalogue sent free by post.
Address: 67 and 68, King William-street, London Bridge; or, 120, Regent-street, W.
Established A.D. 1810 at Sheffield.

SECONDHAND SILVER.—An Assortment of Tea and Coffee Services, from 20 gu.; Tea Services, from 41s.; Teapots, 47 gu.; (Cruet Frames, 25 gu.; Waiters, 25 gu.; Cream Jugs, &c. An assortment of Spoons and Forks.
G. A. GODWIN, 264, High Holborn, London. Established 1801.

EASY-CHAIRS, COUCHES, SOFAS.
Upwards of 200 different patterns on show. Catalogue post-free.—FLEMING and SON, Upholsterers and Decorators, 21 and 22, Berners-street, W.

EASY-CHAIRS and SOFAS.
HOWARD and SONS, Manufacturers, solicit an inspection of their Stock, which is of the most varied description.
24, 26, and 27, Berners-street, Oxford-street, W.
SINGERS DE PLUME.
HOWARD'S PATENT.
The most luxurious seats possible.
Show-Rooms—24, 26, and 27, Berners-street, London, W.
Howard and Sons.

COLT'S NEW BREECH-LOADING LARGE-BORE DEBINGER PISTOL can be carried in the waistcoat pocket. Shoots accurately, and with great force. Price 25 gu. New supply of superior Cartridges. The New Breech-Loading Central-Fire Revolver have the Best Cartridges.
Address: Colt's Firearms Company, 14, Pall-mall, London.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.

PULVERMACHER'S PATENT GALVANIC CHAIN-BANDS, BELTS, BATTERIES, &c.
RECENTLY IMPROVED.
Approved by the Academy of Medicine at Paris and other Medical authorities in England and abroad.
This Self-Applicable Physical Curative is of an efficacy vastly superior to all other external remedies.
Owing to the physiological, physical, and chemical effects of the Electricity they gently and permanently import into the system, these applications exercise an internal action, promoting the digestion, circulation, and nutrition, thereby assisting Nature in her efforts to restore the normal balance of health and vigour in a debilitated constitution.
Hence the remarkable cures they daily effect in cases of:
Rheumatism, Head & Tooth Ache, Epilepsy, General and Local Debility, Functional Disorders, &c.
Lumbago, Sciatica, Paralysis, Nervous Deafness, &c.
after all other remedies have failed, and thus popularizing Electricity in accordance with the authentic conclusions of the medical and scientific press.
Recent improvements in these appliances by the inventor render their self-application extremely comfortable and effective, and thus remediate former inconveniences.
Medical and scientific extracts, and a selection of the daily increasing number of Testimonials, together with Price-List, are embodied in pamphlet, "Nature's Chief Remedy of Impaired Vital Energy," sent post-free on application to the sole Inventor and Patentee,
J. L. PULVERMACHER,
GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT,
124, REGENT-STREET, LONDON, W.

WATER CUSHIONS for INVALIDS (HOOPER'S), affording instant relief from pressure, and effectually preventing bed-sores by their even, softness, and elasticity. Illustrated price-list free by post.—HOOPER, Manufacturer of Water Mattresses and Water Cushions to the Queen, 7, Pall-mall East, W.; and at 85, Grosvenor-street, W.

D. R. DE JONGH'S (Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium)
LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL.
The only real test, medical experience during the last twenty-four years in all parts of the world, has conclusively proved
DR. DE JONGH'S COD-LIVER OIL to be
THE PUREST,
THE MOST PALATABLE,
THE MOST EASILY DIGESTED,
and
THE MOST RAPIDLY EFFICACIOUS
of all kinds.

As the Remedy for
CONSUMPTION and DISEASES OF THE CHEST,
DR. DE JONGH'S COD-LIVER OIL stands pre-eminent.
As the Restorative in
DEBILITY of ADULTS and CHILDREN,
DR. DE JONGH'S COD-LIVER OIL is unequalled.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.
SIR G. DUNCAN GIBB, Bart., M.D., M.R.C.S., Physician to the Westminster Hospital.
"The experience of many years has abundantly proved the truth of every word said in favour of DR. DE JONGH'S Light-Brown Cod-Liver Oil by my of our First Physicians and Chemists, who consider him as a high authority and an able Chemist whose investigations have remained unquestioned."
"I have found DR. DE JONGH'S Oil a ready and good power in the treatment of many affections of the throat and larynx, especially in consumption of the latter, where it will sustain life when every other fails."
DR. MORRILL MACKENZIE, Physician to the Hospital for Diseases of the Throat.
"As you have called my attention to the fact that for many years in prescribing Cod-Liver Oil I have specially indicated that sold at your establishment, I cannot refuse to state my reasons for having done so."
"These are as follow:—"
"1st. That I have found your Light-Brown Oil more successful than any other Cod-Liver Oil. 2ndly. That I have found it more uniform in its action than any other Cod-Liver Oil. 3rdly. That I have found it more easily digested than any other Cod-Liver Oil."
DR. WHITMORE, Medical Officer of Health, St. Marylebone.
"If I were asked for an explanation of the medical success which for so many years has attended the administration of Dr. DE JONGH'S Light-Brown Cod-Liver Oil, I should say that it is owing to its extraordinary medicinal, dietetic, and nutritive properties, which are found to exist in no other medicine that I am acquainted with, in such uniform combination."
DR. HARDWICK, Medical Officer of Health, Paddington.
"In the class of tubercular diseases, including Consumption, so prevalent in our great centres of population, the use of Dr. DE JONGH'S Light-Brown Cod-Liver Oil is attended with marked advantages; and, in connection with judicious measures as better calculated to stay the progress of these great consuming plagues of the British Islands."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in registered IMPERIAL Half-Pints, 2s. 6d.; Pints, 4s. 6d.; or by all respectable Chemists and Druggists throughout the world.
SOLE CORRESPONDENTS,
ANSAR, HANFORD, CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON.

NEURALINE, the instant Cure for TIO DOLOUREUX, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Tooth ache, Rheumatism, Gout, and all Nervous GYKALINE, the new Cure for all descriptions of Colds, Coughs arising from Colds, Hoarseness, Loss of Voice, &c. &c. Gouty Rheumatism, LEAD and RUM. Homeopathic Chemists, 8, St. Paul's-church-yard, and 9, Vere-street, London, W. The above sold by all Chemists, in bottles, 1s. 10d. and 2s. 6d.; by post, 1s. 2d. and 2s.

SEDADENT.—CURE for TOOTHACHE
Price 1s. 11d.; post-free, 1s. 2d. Sold by all Chemists; and by the Inventors, Messrs. GABRIEL, Dentists, 72, Ludgate-hill, W.; and 65, Harley-street, W.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARK'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For scrofula, scurvy, skin and blood diseases it effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 6d. each; and in Cases of Six Bottles, 11s. each; of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 2s. 6d. or 12s. stamp by the Proprietor, F. J. Clark, Chemist, Lincoln.

RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO, Gouty Affections, Numbness, Paralysis, Spasms, Bruius and Chills.—Established nearly a Century.—WHITKEL'S ESSENCE OF MUSTARD, after an extensive and successful experience of nearly a century, is confidently recommended as a remedy of extraordinary efficacy. The Essence of Mustard is the most active, penetrating, and successful remedy in the world for the above disorders, and for curing the severest Spasms and Bruises. In Bottles, 2s. 6d. each, of RABCLAY and SONS, 8, Farringdon-street; and all Medicine Vendors.

HOOPING-COUGH.—ROCHE'S HERBAL EMBOCCATION. The celebrated Effectual Cure without Internal Medicine. Wholesale Agent, EDWARDS, 28, Old Chancery Lane. Sold retail by most Chemists. Price 6s. per bottle.

FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE.
CLARK'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For scrofula, scurvy, skin and blood diseases it effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 6d. each; and in Cases of Six Bottles, 11s. each; of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 2s. 6d. or 12s. stamp by the Proprietor, F. J. Clark, Chemist, Lincoln.

SEDADENT.—CURE for TOOTHACHE
Price 1s. 11d.; post-free, 1s. 2d. Sold by all Chemists; and by the Inventors, Messrs. GABRIEL, Dentists, 72, Ludgate-hill, W.; and 65, Harley-street, W.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARK'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For scrofula, scurvy, skin and blood diseases it effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 6d. each; and in Cases of Six Bottles, 11s. each; of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 2s. 6d. or 12s. stamp by the Proprietor, F. J. Clark, Chemist, Lincoln.

RHEUMATISM, LUMBAGO, Gouty Affections, Numbness, Paralysis, Spasms, Bruius and Chills.—Established nearly a Century.—WHITKEL'S ESSENCE OF MUSTARD, after an extensive and successful experience of nearly a century, is confidently recommended as a remedy of extraordinary efficacy. The Essence of Mustard is the most active, penetrating, and successful remedy in the world for the above disorders, and for curing the severest Spasms and Bruises. In Bottles, 2s. 6d. each, of RABCLAY and SONS, 8, Farringdon-street; and all Medicine Vendors.

HOOPING-COUGH.—ROCHE'S HERBAL EMBOCCATION. The celebrated Effectual Cure without Internal Medicine. Wholesale Agent, EDWARDS, 28, Old Chancery Lane. Sold retail by most Chemists. Price 6s. per bottle.

London: Printed and Published at the Office, 128, Strand, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEWIS, 128, Strand, at the County of Middlesex, at the Office of the Proprietor, 128, Strand, at

THE COMTE DE CHAMBORD, CLAIMANT OF THE THRONE OF FRANCE.

This Prince of the old Royal Bourbon House of France, who is now likely to be brought forward by the Monarchist party as candidate for the throne with the title of Henri V., is grandson and legitimate heir to King Charles X., who abdicated in his favour, on Aug. 2, 1830, after the revolution that drove him into exile, and who died in November, 1836. The birth of Prince Henri Charles Ferdinand Marie Dieudonné d'Artois,

Comte de Chambord and Duc de Bordeaux, took place at Paris on Sept. 29, 1820, so that he is now fifty-three years of age. His father, Prince Charles Ferdinand d'Artois, Duc de Berri, younger son of Charles X., died by the hand of an assassin on Feb. 14, 1820, seven months before the birth of this son, whose mother, the Duchesse de Berri, daughter of King Francis I. of the Two Sicilies, had married the Duke in June, 1816. The uncle of this Prince, and elder son of Charles X., Prince Louis Antoine, Dauphin of France, renounced his right to the throne upon the abdication of the King in 1830, leaving the Comte de Chambord undisputed heir. The extraordinary circumstances of his birth, regarded almost as a miracle by the romantic enthusiasm of religious and political zealots, were celebrated under the

THE NEW INFIRMARY AT WIGAN.

Legitimist régime. The child was baptised with holy water of the Jordan, brought to France by Châteaubriand; and it was prophesied that his future reign would restore the ancient faith in Church and King. He was educated first in the Court of his grandfather, at Holyrood House, Edinburgh, afterwards in Germany and Italy; but in 1843 he resided a short time in London, occupying a house in Belgrave-square, where his partisans used to assemble. While inheriting from his father the title of Duc de Bordeaux, he took that of Comte de Chambord from his possession of a feudal château, which was purchased for him by a subscription of his party in France. In November, 1846, he married Princess Maria Teresa Beatrice Gactano, an Archduchess of Austria, daughter of the late Francesco d'Este, then reigning Duke of Modena. She was born in July, 1817, and has no children; and as her husband has neither brothers, nephews, nor first cousins living, the elder branch of the Bourbon family dies with him. This is considered a fortunate circumstance, inasmuch as the hereditary claim to succession will then devolve upon the head of the Orleans family, now represented by the Comte de Paris, son of the last Duke of Orleans, and grandson of King Louis Philippe. With regard to the "Fusion" of these two contending interests, the Orleanist and the Bourbon Legitimist, which have been supposed during the last forty-three years to be identified with opposite political principles—the one standing with Constitutional Monarchy, the other with Absolutism or "Right Divine" of Royalty—we cannot yet be sure of its practical success. The personal character of the Comte de Chambord is respectable, and he has refrained throughout his life from conspiracies and incitations to civil war, and from any unpatriotic endeavour to direct foreign Powers against the French Governments of Louis Philippe, the Republic, and the Emperor Napoleon III. He has usually resided at Frohsdorf, near Vienna.

ASTRONOMICAL OCCURRENCES IN NOVEMBER.

(From the "Illustrated London Almanack.")

There will be a partial eclipse of the Sun on the 20th, invisible at Greenwich; the eclipse begins on the Earth generally at 1h. 38m. a.m., and ends at 5h. 7m. a.m.

On the fourth day there will be a total eclipse of the Moon, partly visible at Greenwich. It commences at 2h. 6m. p.m.; at this time the Moon will be in the zenith of a place whose longitude is 143 deg. 30 min. E., and latitude 15 deg. N. The beginning of the total eclipse will be at 3h. 8m. p.m.; at this time the Moon will be in the zenith of a place whose longitude is 128 deg. 39 min. E., and latitude 15 deg. 15 min. N. The middle of the eclipse takes place at 3h. 51m. p.m.; at this time the Moon will be in the zenith of a place whose longitude is 118 deg. 20 min. E. of Greenwich, and latitude 15 deg. 26 min. N. The end of the total eclipse will be at 4h. 34m. p.m.; at this time the Moon will be in the zenith of a place whose longitude is 108 deg. E., and latitude 15 deg. 30 min. N. The end of the eclipse will be at 5h. 35m. p.m., G. M. T.; at this time the Moon will be in the zenith of a place whose longitude is 93 deg. 7 min. E., and latitude 15 deg. 50 min. N. At Greenwich the Moon will rise at 4h. 27m., totally eclipsed.

The Moon is near Jupiter on the morning of the 15th, and Venus on the morning of the 18th. She is near Mercury on the 21st; in the vicinity of Saturn and Mars during the evening of the 24th. On the 20th day there will be an eclipse of the Sun. Her phases or times of change are:—

Full Moon on the	4th	at 48 minutes after 3h.	in the afternoon.
Last Quarter	" 12th	" 48 "	" morning.
New Moon	" 20th	" 37 "	" morning.
First Quarter	" 27th	" 13 "	" morning.

She is nearest to the Earth on the afternoon of the 2nd, most distant from it on the morning of the 14th, and a second time nearest to it on the morning of the 30th.

MERCURY is an evening star, setting on the 2nd at 5h. 4m. p.m., on the 17th at 4h. 54m. p.m., and on the 29th at 4h. 0m. p.m.; the time of setting at the beginning of the month follows that of the Sun by about 30m., increasing gradually to 45m. by the middle of the month, and decreases to about 5m. at the end of the month. He is at his greatest eastern elongation (22 deg. 41 min.) on the 10th; he is stationary among the stars on the 20th; in conjunction with the Moon on the 21st; and in inferior conjunction with the Sun on the 30th.

VENUS is still a morning star; she rises on the 1st at 4h. 13m., or 2h. 42m. before the Sun; on the 17th at 5h. 3m., or 2h. 20m. before the Sun; on the 27th at 5h. 35m., or a little more than 2h. before the Sun. She is in conjunction with the Moon on the early morning of the 18th.

MARS is an evening star; and sets nearly at the same time, or a few minutes after 8 p.m., throughout the month. He is in perihelion on the 16th; in conjunction with Saturn on the 20th, and with the Moon on the 24th. He is due south at 4h. 7m. p.m. on the 15th.

JUPITER is a morning star, rising on the 1st at 2h. 36m. a.m.; on the 16th at 1h. 50m. a.m.; on the 26th at 1h. 19m. a.m.; and the last day at 1h. 6m. a.m. He is due south at 8h. 57m. a.m. on the 1st, at 8h. 27m. a.m. on the 10th, at 7h. 45m. on the 20th, and on the last day at 7h. 20m. a.m. He is in conjunction with the Moon on the 14th.

SATURN is an evening star, setting on the 1st at 9h. 20m. a.m.; on the 10th at 8h. 47m. p.m.; on the 20th at 8h. 12m. p.m.; and on the last day at 7h. 37m. p.m., or 3h. 43m. after sunset; passing the meridian, or is due south, at 4h. 39m. p.m. on the 10th, at 4h. 3m. p.m. on the 20th, and at 3h. 27m. p.m. on the last day. Is in conjunction with the Moon on the 24th.

A charter of incorporation has been granted to the town of Stoke-on-Trent.

Colonel Pease, the Conservative candidate, was on Wednesday week elected member for Hull by a majority of 208 over his opponent, Mr. Reed, a Liberal.

Lord Carysfort, the owner of extensive estates in the counties of Wicklow and Dublin, has given £5000 towards the improvement of Arklow Harbour.

A new scale of pay for the Liverpool police force has been adopted by the watch committee of that borough, which will necessitate an addition to the rates of about £5500 per annum.

Lord Grey de Wilton and Captain Hayter, the members for Bath, were present, on Monday, at the annual distribution of prizes to the rifle volunteers in that city. The presentation was made by the Mayor.

It has been decided to invite the Royal Agricultural Society to Taunton next year. The Bristol and Exeter Railway Company will give £500, and the Lord Lieutenant will convene a county meeting.

The heavy north-westerly gale last week was followed by many casualties upon our coasts; and, the life-boats of the National Life-Boat Institution were instrumental in saving many lives.

FINE ARTS.

THE WINTER EXHIBITIONS.

The winter art-season has burst upon us somewhat earlier than usual, and in increased productiveness. Four exhibitions were opened on Monday last, and to these will almost immediately be added the two water-colour societies' displays, a show of French pictures in New Bond-street, the exhibition of Mr. Holman Hunt's long-talked-of "Shadow of Death," at the gallery in Old Bond-street; and, a little later, the exhibition of the works of Sir Edwin Landseer at the Royal Academy. The galleries now open, to say nothing of the perennial Doré exhibitions, are the "French," where Mr. Wallis has collected the customary proportion of British and foreign pictures, generally of high character; the "Dudley," containing a large number of pictures, chiefly by English artists; Mr. M'Lean's gallery, where water-colour painting, native and Continental, is well and widely represented; and Messrs. Agnew's gallery, where a very interesting and choice gathering of sketches by Edouard Frère has been brought together.

In our detailed review of the exhibitions already opened we shall give that at the Dudley Gallery the precedence, as conducted by artists themselves—i.e., some of the contributors—though as regards the placing of the pictures we might draw the attention of the committee to several cases of hanging which appear to us inconsiderate if not intentionally unfair. If, also, the comparative merit of the collection were alone regarded, it would certainly not be entitled to first consideration. We have never seen so many insignificant and commonplace productions in the same room. Several of the leading exhibitors of former years are absent; many familiar names are attached to very inferior performances; and, if there is little that is absolutely bad, there is not a single work of importance, either as achievement or promise. Here more than anywhere else, among so many productions of youthful aspirants, we might expect to find some indications of the improvement said to have taken place in the system of art-teaching at our Royal Academy. We fail, however, to discover any traces of such improvement; and we are driven to the conclusion that our school must still remain behind all the schools of the Continent, for the reason that the student is left to his own resources precisely when he most needs the assistance of a master, and not the misleading encouragement of selling, or being able to offer for sale, some immature trifle—which should never have seen the light—through the medium of a public exhibition.

A reduced study of the central figure of Mr. Leslie's Academy picture of last year, "The Fountain" (156), occupied the place of honour; but, as we have reviewed the complete work, we need not criticise this portion of it. Over this hangs a figure, by E. Manet, of a fat man of ignoble type, smoking a pipe, with an estaminet jug of "bock" beer at his side. The colouring is affectedly limited in range, but the handling is spirited. The whole thing, however, in subject and treatment, smacks strongly of the réalisme brutale of the Courbet and affiliated schools. At the other end of the room is another form of French réalisme—"Ecole des Filles," by E. Legros—painted, it might seem, to illustrate the paradoxical dogma, le laid c'est le beau. Rows of peasant-girls, all ugly and some of them hideously disproportioned, are engaged over their books or needlework, or are taking advantage of the seur-school-mistress's pre-occupation to gossip. M. Legros has done noble work; but this picture, alike in its exaggeration of characteristic traits and ascetic, smoky colouring, shows the danger of a theoretical parti pris in art. Let us have a honest rendering of the truth, by all means; but faces such as these are a libel on the physiognomies of any poor children.

Mr. Watts's "Eve (one of a series of designs for large pictures)" (75), would be, we are bound to say—though, like all the artist's works, imaginatively conceived—one of the most lamentable of the failures which alternate with his great successes, if we were to regard it as anything more than a sketch to be greatly modified. Eve stands erect, with flowers and doves at her feet and a lion and eagle on each side; her head is thrown back and surrounded with golden clouds. The figure, which recalls some of Blake's wildest fancies, is excessively long, especially in the lower limbs, while the head is quite disproportionately small, allowing for the foreshortening. Moreover, the head is nearly black: Eve is anything but "the fairest of her daughters;" and if the painter intended to indicate that the head is "dark with excess of light" he has certainly made a pictorial mistake. "This is our corner" (235), two children, with Japanese and Indian accessories, by Mr. Alma-Tadema, is hardly more worthy of this artist's reputation. To harmonise, apparently, with the peculiar yellow tone of colouring, he has rendered the children's faces of perfectly bloodless hue. Mr. Stanhope's "Labours of Psyche" (267), a composition in four compartments, has something of classical grace and mediæval beauty of colour; the intentional peculiarity of treatment is, however, obvious: it has the aspect of a mere scheme or pattern of colour, after the manner of stained glass. In a picture (77) by Mr. Herkomer, of an old gardener seated in his garden, gay with spring blossoms, the artist has freed himself from some of the technical mannerism common among the followers of Mr. Walker, but the subject lacks the sentiment in which his Academy picture of last year was so rich. Mr. Whistler, in his "Variations in Pink and Grey" (193), takes as usual—so we presume, for it is difficult to make out exactly what is intended—a bit of the Thames as a motive. He denudes it of all detail of form and modelling; he greatly curtails its range of colour and effect, and of the shadowy residuum he produces a deliciously tender piece of flat decoration; but this (accepting the artist's own analogies) no more constitutes a picture than a few chords constitute a complete or fine piece of music.

Where so many of the more prominent works admit only of qualified commendation, it is a relief to be able to turn to a few pictures respecting which, though unimportant in scale or otherwise, we may indulge in the luxury of praise. One of such is "The Coral Merchant" (248), by Mr. Hodgson—a scene at the door of an Algerine house, in which the artist's thoroughly careful and honest painting and his rare faculty of seizing character and expression bear good fruit. It is evident that the purchaser stands no chance of making a good bargain for the coral necklace, placed as he is between two fires from the crafty Jew merchant and the admiring women. As a piece of graceful sentiment extracted from common country life there is nothing so beautiful as Mr. P. R. Morris's "Golden Hour," with his rustic lasses following a couple of white calves homewards—a small study for the picture exhibited last year at the New British Institution. Another gem in its way, remarkable for its excellent draughtsmanship of men and horse, is the tiny picture by Mr. Heywood Hardy, of a hansom cabman expostulating respecting his fare—half abusively, half in cajolery—with a young swell he has just set down. A study of a dying lioness (66) hardly supports the fame of the young painter whose combat of lions we lately engraved. Mr. Britton Riviere has a clever and amusing picture (which we shall engrave) of three small children mounted on a grey cart-horse, which pays little heed to the boy's strain on the rope passed by way of bridle over his Roman nose, appropriately entitled "Equo ne credite Teucri" (198); also a small picture of a black pup playing with an orange, called "A Prince of Orange" (76). There are rich harmony and breadth of colour in "Kinsfolk from Town" (97), by Mr. E. R. Hughes, but the figures have an affected air of gentility. Mr. Marks has not found much scope for his power of humorous characterisation in the figure he has selected for an old "Convent Drudge" furnishing up the plate of the brotherhood (221). Mr. H. Wallis is less happy in colour than usual (although the subject seems especially to demand that quality) in "Maestro Sebastiano Guccato, Mosaic Worker. Titian's first Master" (355). M. Regamy's extremely vigorous and characteristic style of treatment is appropriately employed in his "Chasse au Renard" (253)—which we shall engrave—and his "Jalonneur" (312), a grenadier sapper marking a point for his advancing comrades to form a new alignment. We should also commend to notice E. Croft's picture (30) of German soldiers tending a wounded Frenchman—which we shall engrave; J. Burgess's delicately-handled "Pottery Shop, Tangiers" (237); J. Richardson's "Pensioner" (103)—i.e., an old donkey; H. B. Roberts's illustration of "Enoch Arden" (32); F. Dillon's elaborately-painted Cairene interiors; Mr. W. M. Wyllie's "Leisure Hour" (274)—which we shall engrave; and contributions by Mrs. Romer and Miss Beale; and Messrs. W. Galt, J. Hayllar, J. W. Bottomley, E. F. Brewtall, C. Bauerli, C. Goldie, A. Hughes, S. B. Clarke, T. B. Wirgman, W. Britter, and H. Couldery.

Among the landscapes, or landscapes with figures more or less accessory, not hitherto noticed are a few possessing considerable merit and promise, with little-known names attached thereto. No. 130, for instance, "A Lane in North Wales," by Mr. Anderson Hague, is an excellent study of tone, and the effect of light in the sky is particularly good. There is very fair promise also in "Sorrento" (118), by W. Tenison; in "Medmenham Abbey" (112), by C. Napier Kennedy; in the clear, sharp effect of Mr. A. Parsons's March landscape (110); in the harmonious glow of evening which suffuses Mr. E. Waterlow's view of "Netley Farm, Shere" (321), and in the delicate and broad, yet effectively contrasted, hues of the view in the Bay of Naples by Mr. Binyon. More experienced skill is manifest in a charming little landscape by Mr. R. Beavis, styled "Under the Greenwood Tree" (228). Small landscapes or studies by R. Macbeth, W. Field, F. Walton, R. Leslie, J. Clayton Adams, J. S. Raven, C. Thorneley, W. H. Simpson, T. R. and P. Macquoid, J. Aumonier, J. Knight, H. Pilleau, and A. F. Grace (a recent winner of the Turner Gold Medal at the Academy) are likewise entitled to mention. W. L. Wyllie's bits of French coast scenery are as vividly realistic as ever; and he is quite equalled by a still younger brother, C. W. Wyllie, in "Low Water" (73), with its brilliant effect of direct light in the mottled sky and of reflected light in the shallows of the shore. Mr. Lionel Smythe's "Washing Day" (10)—French blanchisseuses scrubbing away in a stream—has some affinity to the work of the last-named artist in its preponderance of blue and slaty hues; and so has Mr. C. J. Lewis's "Berkshire Mill-Race" (60), and there is a similar tendency to over-emphasise details. Mr. H. Moore shows himself equally partial to bluish atmospheric effects, though much broader in treatment, in his "Nor-Wester" (236). Mr. A. Ditchfield has modified the conventional ideal of former works by more direct reference to Nature, and promises, in his "Rye" (192) and two Algerine views, to become an able and original landscapist. Some of the artists last named have evidently studied in Continental schools or looked closely at the works of foreign masters. None have done so, however, to more advantage than Mr. C. N. Hemy. He has retained some of the best traditions of the school of Leys while discarding its mannerisms—at least in his landscapes, of which we have good though not important samples here in the "Clearing the Nets—Morning" (161) and "The Harbour Mouth" (216). Mr. H. Macallum's "West Coast Tidal Harbour" (230) and "A Drizzly Morning in Tarbet Harbour, Lochfyne" (268) have the merits and defects of the Scotch school—an impression of power and truth is conveyed, but not without a sense of straining and bravura.

A few small works in sculpture include two clever terracottas by M. Dalou, whose "Paysanne Française" in the last Academy exhibition attracted much attention; and a statuette of Melchior Anderegg, carved in wood by himself, which is as much a curiosity as a work of art. It is contributed by Mr. H. Schultz Wilson, who, it may be remembered, nearly lost his life, together with his guide, Anderegg, by falling down a crevasse of the Balmhorn last summer.

An important picture, by Mantegna, has been added to the National Gallery, and will be on view to the public on the reopening of the gallery on Monday next. The picture was formerly known as "The Triumph of Scipio;" but, according to Mr. Wornum, it should be described as the Reception of Cybele among the Divinities of Rome. In the centre of the composition, which consists of twenty-two figures, is Publius Cornelius Scipio Nasica, who, attended by other Romans and some Asiatics, is in the act of receiving the goddess. The sacred stone, representing the goddess, with her bust, the head tower-crowned, and a flaming candelabrum, are borne on a litter by four men, two of whom carry branches of bay. Claudia Quinta, a Roman lady, sent with others in Scipio's company to receive the divinity, is in the act of casting herself before the image. She is said on this occasion to have vindicated her reputation from certain slurs which had been cast upon it. In Ovid's "Fasti" she is represented to have drawn off a shoal in the harbour of Ostia, with a slender rope, the galley which bore the image. The procession is accompanied by the music of drums and pipes, constituting part of the worship of Cybele. In the background are introduced monuments of Nasica's uncle Publius and of his father Cneius. On the plinth of the picture is the inscription, "S. Hospes Numinis Idæi C." The picture is painted in tempera chiaroscuro, on canvas, and is in excellent preservation. It measures 2 ft. 4½ in. in height by 8 ft. 10 in. in breadth. It was painted for Francesco Cornari, a Venetian noble, afterwards Cardinal, in order to throw lustre on the family of the Cornari, which claimed to belong to the gens Cornelia. An advance payment of twenty-five ducats was made to Mantegna in 1506, only a few months before his death. After the painter's death an embargo was laid on his effects by Cardinal Sigismondo Gonzaga, Bishop of Mantua, and the picture remained in that city. The painter's son, Francesco, made an unsuccessful claim to it as an inheritance from his father, offering to repay the amount received in advance upon it. The Cornari family ultimately obtained possession of the work, and placed it in their palace at San Polo, Venice, where it remained till the early part of the present century. It was brought to England, and was for some time in the possession of the late Mr. George Vivian, from whose son, Captain Ralph Vivian, it was lately bought. It was exhibited at the British Institution in 1835, and at the Royal Academy Exhibition of Works of Old Masters in 1871.

Mr. Ruskin, as Slade Professor of Fine Art, will deliver several lectures at Oxford, chiefly during the ensuing month.

BY THE WAY.

If the spirit of John Oldham, the poet, be capable of feeling any of the vindictiveness which was so lavishly expressed by the living bard about the year 1678 (when he was tutor to Judge Thurland's sons, near Reigate), the news from Rome must have afforded grim satisfaction in the shades. The Jesuits have had final notice from the Italian Government to quit their possessions in Rome. Their General will, it is said, go to Belgium. So there is another item to be added to the list of Jesuit discomfitures. It is not the first time that, even at Papal headquarters, the Order of Jesus has received heavy blows, for Clement XIV. abolished it, and it was not restored until some forty years later, when Pius VI. took it into favour again. That the Jesuits have been expelled from France, England, Venice, Holland, Portugal, Spain, Russia, Austria, Sicily, will be seen by reference to any general chronology, but the story of their working their tortuous way back again has yet to be fully written. Perhaps the honourable member for Peterborough would like to do it, and he might take on his titlepage, as motto, half a dozen lines of Oldham's, which we subjoin. They are from the first of his "Satires on the Jesuits":—

It is resolved. Henceforth an endless war
I and my Muse with them and theirs declare.
Whom neither open malice of the foes,
Nor private daggers, nor St. Omer's dose,
Nor all that Godfrey felt, or monarchs fear,
Shall from my vowed and sworn revenge deter.

To do the poet justice, he kept his word, and laid on the Jesuits with a will, and though his verses are little more than downright savage abuse, it is not hurled blindly. He took pains to marshal the real and alleged crimes of the order and to get up his case well. He is too plain-spoken for us to transcribe much of his satire; but his taunts about the miracle-mongers of his own time might serve again. One passage exactly depicts the apparition at Paray-le-Monial, adding a story of a consecrated wafer being thrown overboard in a storm, which was quelled, and

How zealous e'er the sacred image bore,
And swam a Catholic to the distant shore.

It is permitted to us to record that the case of "the" defendant is closed, and that we may look out for "the beginning of the end." A few more witnesses will be heard, and then the business will be confined to oratory until it comes to the turn of the Lord Chief Justice to commence the summing up. The trial of Warren Hastings was spread over seven years and occupied 148 days. The evidence for the defence in the Tichborne case closed on the 124th day, but what has to be done will carry it considerably over the Hastings aggregate.

There,

No doubt, all likeness ends between the pair.

Let us indulge the hope that among the many incitements to thankfulness which are suggested at Christmas—we beg pardon, when the Yule log crackles and sparkles festively—will be the feeling that the Tichborne case is decided, and that Judah is not to vex or be vexed by Ephraim over any more unfraternal squabbles on the question.

The Complete Letter Writer at the Vatican has responded to the epistle from Berlin. This, we think, was to be expected. An elderly ecclesiastic, who has been snubbed, and who is, moreover, infallible, is not likely to let an adversary have the last word. But in this case the truth of the old line will be seen—

The last word of all is the word that lasts longest.

This will not, we suppose, be the Pope's. But at present we know nothing about it beyond the fact that it has been sent. The rumour is that it so much transcends the outrageousness which the Irish Catholic organs found in the first letter (until they were apprised of its being genuine) that the Pope's friends will not let it be published, and the Emperor has not deigned to give out a copy. We shall see it some day, of course. Ink is a dangerous thing for some persons. Luther flung his inkstand at the Enemy, and it made him more furious than holy water could have done. But the latter missile would be safer as a means of exorcism than the former for him whom our rude Protestant ancestors bracketed with the Evil Principle. We have noticed rather a good German story apropos of his Holiness's first letter. Certain adulterated milk was called "Pope's milk." "Why do you call it so?" "He says that everything that has been baptised belongs to him."

It is certain that the lower creation does a good deal in the way of revenging itself for the cruelties of man. Animals contrive to create a vast quantity of quarrel and heart-burning. Their friends and proprietors are constantly getting into hot water. The last case which cropped up was one of a person who kept a dog that had the common, but unpleasant, habit of howling during the hours which his owner's neighbours desired to devote to slumber. One of these neighbours, crediting the dog-owner with a good feeling which he did not happen to possess, sent a written remonstrance, and supposed that he, having stated his case, would be relieved from the nuisance. But the dog's master took no action in the matter, and, on a verbal message being sent to him, he returned an answer of a discourteous kind. Then the aggrieved neighbour took his own measures, and the result was that the brute was silenced, painlessly, and went to the happy hunting-grounds. His vengeful owner had no reasonable doubt as to who had helped himself, in obedience to the proverb, and had remembered the rule of law that every wrong has a remedy. So he abused and insulted his neighbour, and threatened to castigate him personally. The latter would not comply with the requisition of law, as to stating "going in fear" of anybody whom you want bound over, declaring that he was not at all in fear. Therefore, when we lost sight of the case, the parties were in defiant attitude, but we will hope that their angry passions have calmed. At the same time, we cannot help thinking that a person who, after warning, is selfish enough to allow a neighbourhood to be annoyed by the howling of a beast has small right to complain of any measure of self-defence.

Among the defences which musical people set up for devoting their lives to the making more or less pleasant noises is the allegation that the love of music refines the nature and renders it amiable—emollit mores, etc. Hogarth's "Enraged Musician" does not exactly favour this contention, and some great composers have been men of detestable tempers. Women do not come into the controversy; for, though the feminine nature is normally angelic, no woman has ever been a great composer. But there are other exceptions. We do not exactly know where to place one of St. Cecilia's priests. He has published this unhesitating advertisement:—"An organist, a stiff Churchman, detesting Romanising and abhorring Dissent, desires an appointment in a London or suburban church where the duties are light." It is clear that this gentleman's nature has not been much softened by the divine art he professes, though he applies himself to the noblest of all instruments. One would think it impossible for an organist to have a touch of vulgarity, yet we cannot say that a "stiff Churchman" (unless the advertiser allude to some rheumatic affection, in which case we tender apology) and an "abhorrer of Dissent" can be regarded as a person of the highest refinement. However, as he desires light duty, we will believe that he is not so devoted to his art as he might be. If he were, he would have called himself a faithful Churchman, and have abstained from assailing the creeds of other people.

MUSIC.

The fourth Crystal Palace Saturday Concert of the present series, last week, included fine performances of two grand orchestral works that would have been alone worth a long journey to hear so interpreted. Schumann's "Rhenish" symphony, in E flat—classed as the third, but really the last in production of his four works of the kind—is said to have derived its distinctive title from its having been composed under the influences exercised on his imagination by the splendid ceremonials in Cologne Cathedral on the occasion of the installation of the Archbishop as Cardinal. These impressions are most powerfully realised in the portion of the symphony entitled "Feierlich" (in E flat minor), in which there is a fine effect of vastness and grandeur. This is admirably contrasted by the brightness of the "Scherzo," and the tender expression of the "Andante." The whole work is full of power and character; and is, moreover, especially representative of its composer's genius. The overture of Beethoven, op. 124, entitled "Die Weihe des Hauses," immediately preceded the production of his culminating orchestral work, the ninth symphony (that including a setting of Schiller's "Ode to Joy"). Although merely written for a fugitive occasion, the opening of the Josephstadt Theatre at Vienna in 1822, the overture is characterised by a grandeur and dignity almost amounting to sublimity. It received on Saturday, as on several former occasions, a worthy interpretation from the Crystal Palace band, the judgment of the conductor having, as before, been especially manifested in the discreet pace at which the main movement—an elaborate fugue—was taken, the effect having frequently elsewhere, been destroyed by reading too literally the indication of "Allegro con brio." The two instrumental movements introductory to the first and second parts of Mr. Arthur Sullivan's oratorio, "The Light of the World," were given for the first time here, and again exemplified the composer's skill in the command of orchestral effect. The entire work was spoken of by us on the occasion of its production at the Birmingham Festival in August. The overture to Rossini's "Robert Bruce," an opera compiled by him from earlier works, terminated the concert, which included the fine singing of M^{me}. Otto-Alvsleben, and tenor solos by Mr. G. Werrath. At this week's concert the ode symphony, "Le Desert," by M. Felicien David, is to be performed for the first time here.

The one specialty of the Bristol Musical Festival, the production of Mr. G. A. Macfarren's new oratorio, took place on Thursday week, too late for notice until now. "St. John the Baptist" was completed some three or four years ago, having been intended for the Gloucester festival of 1871. It was withdrawn on that occasion, however, on account of a principal solo part having been specially written for a singer who was not engaged at the festival. The text of the oratorio has been compiled by Dr. E. G. Monk, and is divided into two parts, "The Desert" and "Machærus;" the chief incidents referred to being the preaching of John to the people, the baptism of the Saviour, and the events which lead to the execution of the prophet. The overture to "St. John the Baptist" has been twice performed in London—first at the fourth concert of the British Orchestral Society, in January last, and again at the eighth concert of the Philharmonic Society, in the following July. Of this orchestral prelude we spoke on the occasion of its London performances, and have now to record the great success of the entire oratorio at Bristol, where it was received with enthusiasm, and its composer called forward at the close, amid a general tribute of applause. Besides many fine choral effects, Mr. Macfarren's well-known skill in orchestral writing is successfully displayed throughout the work. Among the most effective choral pieces in performance were the movements "Behold, I will send," "What shall we do then," "My soul, praise the Lord" (based on Croft's psalm-tune known as "Hanover"), "O King, live for ever," and "Lo, the daughter of Herodias." The principal solo pieces were the baritone song, "Repent ye" (by Mr. Santley), that for contralto, "In the beginning" (by Madame Patey), the bravura air, "I rejoice" (by Madame Lemmens-Sherrington), and the tenor air, "Alas! my daughter" (by Mr. E. Lloyd). We shall doubtless have an early opportunity of speaking of "St. John the Baptist" in reference to its London performance. Mendelssohn's "Lobgesang" ("Hymn of Praise") followed the oratorio. At the last of the evening concerts, on the Thursday, Rossini's "Stabat Mater" was given, the solos by Madame Alvsleben, Miss Enriquez, Mr. V. Rigby, and Mr. Santley; and the second part of the programme was devoted to a miscellaneous selection, which included the overtures to "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Der Freischütz," and the andante from Spohr's symphony, "The Power of Sound," besides Mr. Charles Hallé's pianoforte performance in Handel's variations known as the "Harmonious Blacksmith," and vocal pieces by some of the principal solo singers. The festival concluded with the usual climax of such occasions, Handel's "Messiah." As previously stated, Mr. Hallé conducted the performances; Mr. G. Riseley presided at the organ; and Mr. Alfred Stone, as chorus-master, largely aided the efficiency of the choral performance. The festival is understood to have been a success, financially as well as artistically; and these results will doubtless lead to future great music meetings at Bristol.

Mr. Walter Bache gave an interesting pianoforte recital at the Hanover-square Rooms, on Monday afternoon, when he played, with great success, a series of solo pieces by Beethoven, Weber, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Chopin, and Liszt. His orchestral concert is announced for the evening of Nov. 27, when Dr. Hans von Bülow will conduct.

Mr. Ridley Prentice has commenced a new series of Monthly Popular Concerts at Brixton, in the schemes of which his own clever pianoforte-playing is a prominent feature. The programme of Mr. Henry Holmes's second "Musical Evening," on Wednesday, included Schumann's second string quartet (in F), that by Schubert in B flat (No. 6), and Mendelssohn's first sonata for piano and violoncello.

The new season of oratorio concerts at the Royal Albert Hall began on Thursday evening, when Handel's "Theodora" was revived, after long oblivion. Of the performance we must speak next week.

This week's arrangements at M. Rivière's Promenade Concerts were a miscellaneous concert on Monday, with the appearance of M^{lle}. Reboux, of Her Majesty's Opera; an Italian Opera night on Tuesday, a classical night on Wednesday, a Balfe night on Thursday, an Irish ballad night on Friday, and to-night (Saturday) Madame Lemmens-Sherrington and party are to appear.

The Glasgow Musical Festival will begin on Tuesday next. The chief novelty—Mr. Henry Smart's oratorio, "Jacob"—will be produced on the following Friday.

Mr. Austin, manager of the concert arrangements at St.

James's Hall, has announced his annual evening concert, to take place there on Wednesday week, when his programme will offer a variety of powerful attractions. Mr. Austin deserves well of the public and the profession for the excellence of his official administration and his invariable personal courtesy.

Mr. Edward Fitzball, formerly well known as a dramatist and song-writer, died at Chatham, on Monday afternoon, at an advanced age.

THEATRES.

Some degree of animation has been manifested at three or four of the theatres—that is, their programmes have been partially changed, and a new play and a new burlesque have been produced. The former saw the light at the Court Theatre on Saturday. The title of the piece is "Alone," a slight affair, though in three acts, founded on a French story by Messrs. J. Palgrave Simpson and H. C. Merivale. It depends almost entirely on the wit of the dialogue, not on its situations or the number of incidents. The gist of it relates to a sycophant named Stratton Strawless (Mr. Clifford Cooper), who reads Shakspeare to a blind relative, Colonel Challice (Mr. G. Rignold), whose children, it is believed, have taken to evil ways, probably owing to the bad example of their mother. To counteract the interested assiduities of Strawless, a Doctor Micklethwaite (Mr. Edgar Bruce), and a neighbour, Widow Thornton (Miss M. Litton), are added; and the latter contrives to bring the discarded daughter, Maud Trevor (Miss M. O'Berne), into contact with her father, as a superior reader of Shakspeare; and an explanation takes place between her and her brother, Captain Cameron (Mr. A. Bishop). Ultimately these misunderstandings are cleared up by a statement written by Mrs. Strawless, who, through jealousy, has forged letters by which the Colonel had been deceived. It should also be mentioned that the latter has been restored to sight, and thus his happiness is made complete. Mr. Rignold realised the irritability of the character; and Miss O'Berne, as the representative of the forsaken daughter, was really pathetic. The new drama, though too diffuse in its treatment, was quite successful.

Mr. Henry Neville has taken the right steps to make the Olympic popular. The new comedy of "Sour Grapes," which was supposed to hang fire a little on the first night, now goes with expedient briskness, and on Monday was triumphantly received. It was preceded by the merry farce of "A Pair of Boots," and followed by a new burlesque by Mr. R. Reece entitled "Richelieu Re-dressed." This piece is not precisely an extravaganza, but is a humorous parody, which is intended to exclude the broader features of burlesque. Whatever amount of amusement such a production may pretend to, the author has made a not unsuccessful endeavour to impart, and his efforts have been successfully aided by Mr. Julian Hicks's magnificent scenery. We decidedly object, however, to the personalities in regard to Mr. Gladstone, even if we tolerate those that relate to Mr. Henry Irving. Mr. Neville informs us that he is preparing a translation of Beaumarchais's "Le Mariage de Figaro," which he designs shortly to produce, and which will form his next piece de resistance; to which doubtless Mr. W. H. Vernon, as stage manager, will give due attention. It requires the utmost diligence and care in order to its effective representation.

The manager of the Globe has judiciously united a revival of "Still Waters Run Deep" with the performance of "Arkwright's Wife." Mr. Montague played very efficiently the part of John Mildmay, and when made perfect by practice will establish a well-founded reputation as a representative of the character. Mr. Charles Harcourt, as Hawksley, was also good; and Mr. Emery, as Potter, sustained and justified the favourable opinion which the public was led to entertain of him when the play was originally produced. At the Gaiety the London public is now presented with a performance of "The Happy Land," and also of the new farce "On Strike," to which is added a new comedietta by Mr. Theyre Smith, called "Which is Which?" There is not much that is entirely new either in the plot or treatment; but, on the whole, it provokes a certain amount of hilarity, and proved that there was a quality in it well calculated to please a mixed audience. At the Princess's Mr. and Mrs. Rousby have reappeared in Mr. Tom Taylor's historical drama, "Twixt Axe and Crown," the lady in her original part, and her husband in that of Bishop Gardiner, Mr. W. Rignold taking that of Edward Courtenay. The change is a beneficial one, much improving the effect of the representation.

MM. Valnay and Pitron opened the Holborn Theatre, on Monday, with Scribe and Legouvé's "Les Doigts de Fée." The piece was produced in Paris four-and-twenty years ago; and, after a series of plays by Sardou and Dumas fils, the polished and correct though cold dialogue of Scribe seems rococo. The jeune premier Bilhaut is a great improvement on last season, and the ever-welcome Didier received a marked reception.

Brighton has established a new club, as a seaside home for members of other clubs when they visit the south coast.

An exhibition of art-treasures, which has been held in the Bradford Mechanics' Institute during the last four months, was closed on Saturday last. The number of visitors was 157,900, and the amount realised towards paying off the debt on the building £3000.

The Officers' Grievances' Commissioners held their second meeting yesterday week, when Sir Percy Herbert made, on behalf of certain officers, a statement of their case. They consider that Parliament had unintentionally failed to do them justice at the time of the abolition of purchase, and they submit that public honour and equity demand that their contract should be cancelled from its beginning and in its entirety. They intend to show the establishment and regulation of the purchase system by the Government; that there were certain privileges, benefits, and advantages, both present and prospective, attached to a commission under the purchase system; and that they have suffered personal and pecuniary loss and injury.

At the annual meeting of the supporters of the Manchester Hospital Sunday Fund Collection, held on Monday, a report was read, which showed that while the amount raised in 1872 was £6971, the amount reached this year was £8666. Of this latter sum £5947 was contributed at or in connection with places of public worship, being nearly £500 more than in 1872, while £2718 was contributed in mills, warehouses, and other places of business, being nearly double the sum derived from those sources in the previous year.—The fifteenth annual collections for the Birmingham charities were made at all places of worship in Birmingham on Sunday. The amount collected approached £3000.—Hospital Sunday was observed at Newcastle on Sunday, the principal feature being a united congregation of all the friendly societies in one of the churches, the collection amounting to £150. Collections have also been made in about eighty factories on the Tyne in aid of the medical charities.

"SPRING AND AUTUMN," BY F. J. WILLIAMSON, FROM THE LATE ROYAL ACADEMY EXHIBITION.

"SPRING AND AUTUMN."

This graceful and expressive work of sculpture, by Mr. F. J. Williamson, tells Nature's moral story of the year with admirable truth. Spring reposes on the fertile earth, and plays tenderly with a sportive fawn, adorning its neck with a garland of flowers; or she watches the joyous gambols of children, who clamber into the tree which spreads its blossoming branches overhead. But sober Autumn, turning to admonish her sister-season of the lapse of time and the duty of work, has reaped the ripe corn of harvest, and bids her young pupils hasten to gather the fruit of the vineyard, while she plies with industrious hand the task of spinning thread for the clothing of winter. A faithful and valiant mastiff, the guardian of household peace and wealth, lies at the feet of this wise mistress; and the pillar on which she leans is a proof of the advanced state of the arts.

WORCESTER JAPANESE PORCELAIN AT VIENNA.

The English china court at the Vienna Exhibition was a department of special attraction. Among those manufactories of repute which have contributed to uphold our national reputation a prominent place belongs to the Royal Porcelain Works of Worcester. It must have been remarked that public taste, led by the judgment of art-connoisseurs in China, has long been directed to the peculiar treatment of ornamental design in Satsuma and Japanese manufacture. The Worcester works have taken advantage of this taste to design specially for the Vienna Exhibition a large collection of ceramic art-work, which has gained the attention of illustrious visitors, art-connoisseurs, and the public by its unique style and the perfect taste and refinement in which its design is treated. The Worcester Works so long ago as 1856 brought out a new tint of colour for their vases and figures, resembling ivory, but more mellow in depth of colour, and with a creamy softness that rivals the Satsuma as a ground colour for the sober tints and finely-chased gold-work and bronzing of the Japanese style of decoration. The designs now in question have all the "repose" of Japanese colouring, combined with the more correct taste in outline of Western art in the forms of the objects. It is apparent that they have all been the subject of careful study; for, while there is no mere imitation of the Japanese, the "feeling" of that peculiar style has been seized, and thoroughly worked out, with great refinement and with the intelligence of an enthusiastic art-student. Not only was every form expressly modelled for these subjects, but the peculiar tints of colours used by the Japanese—so different from the usual English colours—had to be specially produced by the Worcester colour chemists, with the bronzes of various shades. Mr. R. W. Burns, F.S.A., the art-director, and one of the proprietors of the Worcester Works, has designed and produced all these articles; and he has been ably seconded by his chief modeller, artist, and chemist, Messrs. Hadley, Callowhill, and Bejot, to whom have been awarded medals by the jurors of the Vienna Exhibition; while to Mr. Burns and the Worcester Works a diploma of honour has been awarded.

WORCESTER JAPANESE PORCELAIN AT THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

In the illustration we have engraved are shown objects selected by the Emperor of Germany, the Archduke Charles of Austria, the Count de Chambord, the Earl of Dudley, and Sir Richard Wallace. So much was this manufacture appreciated at Vienna that most of the families of distinction in Germany—and especially the Austrian, Hungarian, and Bohemian nobility—have purchased valuable specimens for their cabinets.

The Royal Porcelain Works of Worcester were represented by Messrs. Pellatt and Wood, of 25, Baker-street, London, who were their sole agents and representatives.

THE LATE SIR HENRY HOLLAND.

The death of Sir Henry Holland, Bart., M.D., F.R.S., was announced on Wednesday. This accomplished and distinguished man of science, who has long held a high position in the best English society, was exactly eighty-five years of age, having been born at Knutsford, in Cheshire, Oct. 27, 1788, the eldest son of Peter Holland, Esq., of that place. He was educated for the medical profession at the University of Edinburgh, where he obtained the degree of M.D. in 1811, but in 1828 was elected a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians in London. Dr. Holland soon rose to great eminence in his profession, while he at the same time became known for his valuable literary contributions to other branches of knowledge. He was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society in 1816, and has three times held the office of Vice-President;

THE LATE SIR HENRY HOLLAND, BART.

he was also, to the time of his death, President of the Royal Institution. In 1840 he was appointed physician in ordinary to the late Prince Consort, and in 1852 physician in ordinary to the Queen. He was created a Baronet in April, 1853. The first wife of Sir Henry Holland, married in 1822, was Emma Margaret, a daughter of James Caldwell, Esq., of Linley Wood, Staffordshire. By this lady he had two sons and a daughter. The eldest son, who now succeeds to the baronetcy, is Sir Henry Thurstan Holland, born in August, 1825, at present holding the office of Assistant Secretary of State for the Colonies. The second son is the Rev. Francis James Holland, Incumbent of Quebec Chapel; the daughter, Emily Mary, is widow of the late Mr. Charles Buxton, M.P. for East Surrey. The second Lady Holland, wife of the deceased Baronet, was Saba, daughter of the Rev. Sydney Smith, the famous wit and Canon of St. Paul's. She married Sir Henry—then Dr.—Holland in 1834, but died in November, 1866, leaving two daughters, Emily and Gertrude. This lady wrote the biography of her father, and gained a reputation for literary talent. Sir Henry Holland's own works are tolerably numerous, but those most popular are his "Medical Notes and Reflections," his "Chapters on Mental Physiology," "Travels in Albania and Thessaly," a volume of "Scientific Essays," chiefly collected from the Edinburgh Review, and the agreeable "Recollections of Past Life," which were published two years ago. Sir Henry Holland received from the University of Oxford the honorary degree of D.C.L.; and several of the academies and learned societies of Europe conferred marks of distinction upon him. The portrait we have engraved is from a photograph by Messrs. Mayall, of Regent-street.

THE NEW WIGAN INFIRMARY.

The opening of this institution by the Prince and Princess of Wales a short time ago will be fresh in our readers' memory. It has been built at a cost of about £30,000 by Mr. J. Wilson, Wigan, from the designs and under the superintendence of Mr. T. Worthington, Manchester. It is situated on an elevated spot, half a mile from the town, and fronts the main road from Wigan. The administrative offices and dispensary occupy the centre, right and left of which are wings for males and females. In the rear of the offices is a two-story pavilion for surgical or accidental cases. A porch and vestibule give access to the central hall. The ward accommodation provided is for sixty patients—forty-five males and fifteen females. Behind the kitchen is the male ward of thirty beds for surgical cases or accidents, having two small single-bedded wards for special treatment, or isolation after operation. This pavilion consists of two floors arranged for fourteen beds each—length of ward 58 ft., width 26 ft., height 14 ft.—108 superficial feet of floor-surface and 1507 cubic feet to each bed. In the first-floor ward, by utilising some of the space in the roof, an increased height of 4 ft. 9 in. is obtained, which gives an additional space of 513 cubic feet to each bed. The single-bedded wards are 12 ft. by 12 ft. 6 in., by 14 ft. high, and contain each 2100 cubic feet. The side pavilions, for fifteen beds each, forming the two wings, are only one story high, and each contains a ward of ten beds; length of ward, 42 ft.; width, 24 ft.; height, 18 ft. 9 in.; and a smaller ward of five beds—length, 29 ft.; width, 20 ft. These dimensions afford 100 superficial feet of floor space, and 1875 cubic feet to each bed in the larger wards, and 2000 cubic feet in the smaller ones. Each of these pavilions has a spacious and airy day-room, with large projecting bay window.

NEW BOOKS.

Quite an Eldorado of information and entertainment is inclosed within the covers of the two stout volumes entitled The African Sketchbook, by Winwood Reade (Smith, Elder, and Co.). The book is a curious piece of chequer-work; but it is the more likely, perhaps, to be generally acceptable on that very account. The author, it appears, has for eleven years "studied Africa; three years from the life and eight years from books." During 1862 and 1863 he travelled in Equatorial Africa, Angola, and Senegambia; and memory suggests that he published a very readable and amusing account of what he saw, did, and suffered in the course of his travels. He now gives us "a brief recapitulation" of the aforesaid readable and amusing account. In 1868 he "visited Africa a second time, spent some months on the Gold Coast and Slave Coast, and then made a ten months' exploring journey from Sierra Leone, opening a new country and obtaining important geographical results." He "also made two trips to the backwoods of Liberia, which is almost unwritten ground, and carefully studied the Negro Republic." To the recapitulation, spoken of above, he has now, therefore, added the story of his more "recent travels." But this is by no means all. Since his "return from the coast, in 1863," he has "never ceased to study African literature;" and it is to be gathered, both from what he says and from the internal evidence of the book itself, that he has incorporated with his own work extracts, taken, indeed, from the volumes he read, but taken only, as it were, for texts, on which he has discoursed in such fashion as his wide field of reading and his own personal experience enabled him to adopt so as to avoid any risk of being set down as a mere compiler. He has, moreover, introduced essays into his work; and, lastly, he has, with a view of giving more than usually attractive illustrations of African habits, manners, and customs, devoted a great number of his pages to various tales, which "contain much material drawn both from books and from life, but are otherwise entirely fictitious." He warns us, however, not to suppose that the spirit of fiction has guided him in any part of his composition "outside the tales;" his "narrative of travel is true, every word." It is easy to believe of such a work that "the labour bestowed upon it has been immense;" and there is every reason to expect that it will be generally regarded as "comprehensive." Extremely interesting it most certainly is; and, for the most part, the style of writing—lively, incisive, drily humorous, and laughably sardonic—enhances the intrinsic interest. Occasionally, however, and especially towards the end of the second volume and in the first appendix, there are bursts of egotism and querulousness which may relieve the mind of a disappointed writer, but are less likely to enlist the sympathies than to awaken the antipathies of the reader. Of woodcuts there are several, all characteristic, striking, clever, and appropriate; and of maps there are a dozen or more. One map deserves special notice; it is called "a literary map" of Africa, and is not unentitled to be described as "something new." The different regions marked out upon it are studded, not with the names of places, but with the names of writers, so that "the student at a glance can ascertain the authorities" whom it would be best to consult for information touching any particular region; and in the fourth appendix there is a catalogue of those authorities, together with a few brief remarks upon their comparative value. The first volume is divided into three "books," headed, respectively, "the Gorilla country," "the South Coast," and "Senegambia;" and the second is divided into four "books," headed respectively, "Golden Africa," "the Slave Coast," "Liberia," and "the Swanzy Expedition." The last heading alone needs any explanation. It is otherwise called "the adventures of an author in search of a reputation;" and there is some ground for assuming that the said author, not having been able to prevail upon any public body to assist him in his quest after fame, was supplied with what he required from the private resources of a Mr. Swanzy, a gentleman who, as "a merchant trading with the Gold Coast" and as a promoter of entomological and other science, considered that he would be doing as much for himself and for science as for Mr. Reade if he were to come forward handsomely and solve the latter gentleman's difficulties. The "Swanzy expedition" has to do with the years 1868 and 1869; and, when it is stated that Mr. Reade, at the commencement of his "sketch-book" carries us back to the days of Hanno, the Carthaginian, who wrote a Periplus, translated from Punic into Greek, and who gave to certain hairy creatures the name of "gorillas," it will be plain that he has been anxious to attain at least so much completeness as consists in beginning as far back and concluding as near the present day as possible.

Ingenious confessions prepossess one in favour of A Winter in Morocco, by Amelia Perrier (Henry S. King and Co.), and, at the end of it, leave one agreeably impressed and in high good humour. The writer commences with a candid admission of her "deplorable ignorance," and concludes with the following polite and frank expression of regret, and plea for indulgent consideration:—"I deeply regret that circumstances placed it out of my power to visit any other town in Morocco but Tangier. This renders the work a very imperfect one as regards the country generally; but I hope it will be remembered that I have made no pretence of its being more than a transcript of my own experiences during my winter in Morocco." No doubt, to spend a winter in Tangier is to spend a winter in Morocco; and, so far as Tangier is a sample of the whole empire, our sprightly writer has given a circumstantial account, in a free and easy and somewhat flippant and presumptuous, but certainly amusing, manner, of the Moors and their country and the sojourners in it. An introductory chapter, written "for the ignorant," tells the reader something about the geographical position, the government, and the population of Morocco, and records the important fact that "Tangerine oranges don't come from Tangier, but principally from Tarifa in Spain. They are very scarce in Tangier, and the few that do grow there the people wisely keep for themselves." After this comes the usual description, in the somewhat feebly facetious style, of the start from London and the voyage to Gibraltar. The next chapter is devoted chiefly to a sort of flirtation between the writer and a hotel waiter; and it is followed by two chapters in which the hotel itself and the rock of Gibraltar, respectively, are made the principal topics of discourse. In the fifth chapter the passage from Gibraltar to Tangier is minutely described; and seldom, if ever, was the well-worn theme of sea-sickness descanted upon with more morbid gusto and more repulsive detail. The sixth chapter lands us in Tangier; and the remaining seventeen chapters are, for the most part, confined to things which have at least a flavour of Morocco. With great liveliness, the writer's chief characteristic, all the aspects of life in Tangier are delineated: there are sketches of Moorish houses, outside and inside; of "the Marina, a portion of the beach inclosed by walls;" of the "United National Hotel," with its advantages, and especially its disadvantages; of the phases presented by education, religion, food, &c.; of the condition exhibited by the drama; of the spectacle to be seen in Tangier during "the Ramadan" and its sequel; of weddings in Tangier; of the "ceremonials attendant on the greatest religious festival of the Mohammedans," called in Tangier, it appears, "the feast of rams;" of the superstitious character of the Moor; of the way in which Christian "missions" are conducted in Morocco; of the quadrupeds attainable by whoever would ride in Morocco; of "a ladies' picnic to Cape Spartel;" of "saints in Morocco;" of "wives in Morocco;" of three religious commemorative celebrations, styled, respectively, "Judas Iscariot, the feast of Purim, and the Passover;" and of "slavery in Morocco." The writer shows some symptoms of a mocking and a detracting spirit, and it would seem as if she were herself aware of it, and felt consequent qualms of conscience; for in her "conclusion" she says, "I hope that nothing I have said may tend to prejudice intending travellers against Tangier." It cannot be said that up to the point at which she apparently feels a sting of remorse she had adopted so seductive a tone as to send everybody off in a hurry to Tangier; but, in her repentant moods, she bestows upon the climate, at least, sufficient praise to excite the attention of invalids, particularly "those affected by the various forms of chest complaints, for which our English winter climate is so unsuited." She adds, moreover, that "living is cheap."

A pleasant description of picturesque scenes and costumes, agreeably spiced with a dash of light romance, which has somewhat the air of a poetical and humorous mystification, is Mr. Hubert Smith's Tent Life with English Gypsies in Norway (H. S. King and Co.). The author is a gentleman who says that in June, 1870, he left his home in Gloucestershire with three companions, engaged and hired by him for a tour in Norway. These were the brothers Noah and Zachariah, two real gipsy men, and their sister Esmeralda, a real gipsy girl, whose acquaintance he had made in the wandering camp of their tribe. Like Mr. George Borrow, he had learnt to speak the odd, mixed lingo of the Romany Rye, and they no longer met him with the distrust which they are wont to show to "karengroes" or house-dwellers. They had made for him a gipsy tent, of simple form but with comfortable fittings. The ground beneath it was spread with a handsome carpet on a square of waterproof, where the owner might sleep in comfort with rugs and air-pillows for bedding. The gipsy attendants had a tent of their own. The luggage included two kettles, tin cans, and pewter plates, with other camp cooking and eating utensils, and provisions of ham and bacon, preserved meats, biscuits, cheeses, tea and sugar, besides the change of linen and other necessities for a travelling gentleman; also a violin, a guitar, and several fishing-rods. All this was packed, to the weight of 360 lb., in three sacks or "pockets," which went on the backs of three donkeys. Having landed at Christiania, and, having gone on by railway to Eidsvold, near the Mjosen Lake, this strange party went up to Lillehammer by the steamboat, and there pitched their tents. The route pursued in their roving course beyond this place was up the Gudbrandsdalen, which extends 168 miles to the foot of the Dovre Fjeld, along the banks of the river Logen. They left the Dovre Fjeld, and the Snøhetten mountain on their right hand, as they descended to the shores of the Romsdal Fjord, near Veblungnos. From this point on the North Sea coast, as it was too late in the summer to go farther northward, Mr. Smith and his gipsy comrades returned to Christiania by another route, which led them past Galdhøpiggen, the highest mountain in Norway; and Mr. Smith achieved the feat of its ascent—less difficult, in his opinion, than that of Mont Blanc. It was on Aug. 1, after this Alpine Club performance, that he left Rødsheim and pursued his course again southward, over a wild upland tract of rocky ground, among sharp-peaked mountains, where four rivers—the Visa, the Lera, the Gjendin, and the Gravalv—take their rise to flow different ways. A herd of forty-five reindeer was here sighted, but Mr. Smith killed none of them. He had sufficient enjoyment in the picturesque scenery, the bracing air, and the diverting adventures of such a journey. Passing down the Utladal, he saw three lakes of that region said to have been "purchased" by English gentlemen; and he next turned aside to visit the Mørkfos cataract, which is from 800 ft. to 1000 ft. high, and is a very fine waterfall. An agreeable variation of his rude camp life was found at the "Poet's House," near the Byglin Lake, in the company of some Norwegian ladies and gentlemen staying there. But there is also a Norwegian tourist club-house, which is a mere chalet void of furniture and provisions, on the shores of the Tyen Lake. Soon after leaving this place, Mr. Smith found himself on the Bergen road, between Nystuen and Skogstad, at the foot of the Fille Fjeld. His way thence, to reach the capital city, was still through an interesting country, by the Lille Mjosen Lake, which is described as very beautiful, combining the features of wood, mountain, rock, and water in the scenery of its shores. It must be distinguished from the greater Mjosen Lake, above mentioned, which lies within a shorter distance north of Christiania. The road now led our returning countryman, with his faithful gipsies, through the Beina valley to the town of Hønefos, where he began to think of resuming the habits of civilised life. It was not, however, till Aug. 22, at Sandviken, nine miles from Christiania, that he quitted his tents and donkeys, leaving them for one day in charge of the gipsies, while he re-entered the metropolis in a hired carriage, and made himself comfortable at the Victoria Hotel. Of course, Mr. Smith brought his English gipsy followers safely back to England, with two of their beloved donkeys; but he gave the third donkey to a friend in Norway, where the useful animal is scarcely known. We are told that Miss Esmeralda, and her brothers Noah and Zachariah, are doing pretty well in their station of life at the time of the author's present writing. This we are pleased to hear, since their general behaviour while in Mr. Smith's service was free from reproach; but their queer language, which has a smack of thieves' slang, is not much to our taste. The history of the Gipsy Camp in Norway will nevertheless be found a highly entertaining narrative of travel, rather out of the beaten track, and related very cleverly, with a certain whimsical pleasantry of spirit and style.

A book containing plenty of excitement and adventure, well supplied with elucidatory charts, and not devoid of representative or merely ornamental illustrations, is Bush Fighting, by Major-General Sir James Edw. Alexander, K.C.L.S., F.R.S.E. (Sampson Low and Co.). The gallant author begins with some remarks, the more valuable in that they are for the most part due to personal experience or observation, touching the proper sort of men and the proper sort of equipment for bush-fighting; and afterwards the contents of his volume resolve themselves principally into an account of the Maoris and of our dealings, chiefly hostile, with that fine and warlike race since 1860-1. "The incidents of the Maori war of 1860-1," says the author, "were published by me some years ago;" and therefore, on the present occasion, his actual narrative may be said to commence at the twenty-second page, where we read that "on May 4, 1863, the natives assumed the offensive, marking their hostility by a very dark deed of blood." The record is written in a straightforward, unpretentious, soldierly style, and especially recommends itself by reason of a consideration not often to be noticed in similar publications. "I have introduced," says the gallant author, "the name of every officer, non-commissioned officer, or private sentinel, soldier, or seaman I could discover, who is mentioned in any despatch or report of a creditable action." The inferior grades are but too frequently—though, perhaps, from a sort of necessity—relegated to the category of nameless commemoration. The volume is such as will give the reader a good idea of the importance, the perils, and the difficulties of bush-fighting, and of the disadvantages under which our troops had to encounter the Maoris; will cause the pulse to beat quicker at many a description of how the British soldier storms a "pah;" will raise a flush of pride at the sight of the Englishman freely exposing his life to save his wounded comrade; and will excite a thrill of horror at the spectacle of non-combatants, like the Rev. Mr. Volkner, cruelly murdered by the natives in cold blood. Not the least interesting portion of the volume is the appendices, in which some statistics relating to New Zealand are brought forward, the British forces are defended against the slights of "an author and traveller of the distinguished ability of Mr. Anthony Trollope," an account is given "of the escape of fifty prisoners in Wellington harbour, New Zealand," and some minute observations are offered as to the "Duval-MacNaughton rifle."

That at the present time there is more dramatic talent existing than ever has a chance of reaching the stage might be proved from the fact of such tragedies as Columbus, an Historical Play in Five Acts, by Edward Rose (Effingham Wilson), making their occasional but frequent appearance. With a view of increasing his chances of success the author has wisely reduced his manuscript, and presented the abridgment as what he calls an "acting edition." This is a step in the right direction, and to a considerable extent he has succeeded in his aim. Experience of the stage will demonstrate to him what further he has to learn; for there is yet something which remains to be done, in order to the thoroughly successful adaptation of this drama to the stage. The first two acts and a half are adroitly enough constructed; the remaining half of the play requires rigorous condensation and much rearrangement. Its success in acting would depend on this being skilfully accomplished by a practised hand. It is, indeed, a practical—almost a mechanical—matter; not to be despised, however, because the task is comparatively humble. The very safety of the whole experiment rests on its being rightly accomplished, and in a workman-like manner. Mr. Rose exhibits, in the course of his dealing with his theme, decided genius for dramatic composition. His action is noble and his characters are discriminated with an artistic instinct which will stand him in good stead hereafter. He shows knowledge and judgment and an eye for stage effect, which further labour in the same path will improve. His dialogue teems with poetry, feeling, and piquancy, and sometimes attains a height of passion and emotion which not only elevates the mind but touches the heart. There is, indeed, so much of true dramatic stuff in the composition of this tragedy that we trust no attempt will be made to place it on the boards until the needful excisions have been made and the requisite adjustment of the situations and incidents effected. When this important work has been satisfactorily completed the author may hope that he has projected a drama which may hold the stage, provided it be adequately acted.

The most remarkable article in the Quarterly Review is that on "The Programme of the Radicals," generally attributed to Lord Salisbury, which has formed the subject of discussion in so many leading articles as to dispense us from treating of it here. A paper on the school boards shows that the working of the system exceeds the requirements of the Quarterly by at least as much as it falls short of Mr. Morley's. The proposed alliance with the advocates of parochial economy at any price is not one which will, in the long run, bring the Conservative party either honour or profit. An adverse critique on Herbert Spencer's philosophy will excite much attention; but the most readable articles are naturally two on literary subjects—Holland House and Voltaire; the former remarkable for its fund of anecdote, the latter for its tolerant spirit. An essay on "The Degeneracy of the English Pulpit," painted in very black colours, contains a singular left-handed compliment to certain eminent divines, "whose earnest labours for the resuscitation of the pulpit are in all respects as praiseworthy as they have been successful."

The continuation of Mr. R. Dale Owen's autobiography in the Atlantic Monthly (Warne and Co.) describes Francis Wright's benevolent but ill-judged experiment for the benefit of the negro race at Nashoba, and records the author's acquaintance with Lafayette and Mrs. Shelley. The conclusion of Mr. Parton's life of Jefferson presents a striking picture of an old age in some respects cheerful and beautiful, in others clouded and harassed beyond the ordinary lot of man. It also gives an interesting account of the constitution and subsequent fortunes of the great creation of Jefferson's last days—the University of Virginia. An article on "The Germans in the West" proves that their assimilation with the bulk of the American people is as yet anything but complete; another, on the probable increase of the population, fixes the amount by 1900 at seventy-five millions, a great reduction from previous estimates. The numerous tales and poems maintain their usual high standard of merit.

The new numbers of Old and New (Low and Marston) scarcely justify the promise of the old. There are, however, some good things in the last number, among which we may particularly mention "Seeing is Believing," a fanciful story; a lively account of an American party's visit to the Derby; and a suggestive essay on the causes of Socialism in Europe.

The Scotsman learns that Abbotsford House will be closed to the public for the period between Nov. 8 and March 1 next.

Dr. Mapother delivered the opening lecture of the session at the Royal College of Surgeons in Dublin on Monday. His discourse had reference to the eminent surgeons of the past two centuries.

The next examination of candidates for admission to the Royal Military Academy will begin at the London University on Jan. 20, the medical inspection taking place on the previous day, at the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich. In 1874 and following years there will only be two examinations in each year for admission to the Royal Military Academy.

The funeral of Dr. Candlish, Principal of the Free Church College, Edinburgh, took place yesterday week. It was attended by the Lord Provost, magistrates, and Town Council, as well as by other public bodies and the representatives of various churches. The funeral procession was nearly a mile in length, and the streets were crowded with spectators.

The subject of the prize essay for the Royal Artillery gold medal for 1874 is "The Constitution and Duties of the Artillery of the Advanced Guard of an Army in the Field." All who compete for this honour must be officers on full pay and members of the Royal Artillery Institution. The essays, which are to be strictly anonymous, must be forwarded to the secretary of the institution by April 1 next.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

SIR F. H. COX, BART.

Sir Francis Hawtrey Cox, twelfth Baronet, of Dunmanway, in the county of Cork, died, on the 17th ult., at Breacat Lodge, in the county of Antrim, aged fifty-seven. He was third son of the Rev. Richard Cox, Rector of Cahircionish, in the county of Limerick, by Sarah, his wife, daughter of Ralph Hawtrey, Esq., and was grandson of Richard Cox, Esq., whose father, Michael, Archbishop of Cashel, was second son of Sir Richard Cox, first Baronet, of Dunmanway, Lord Chancellor of Ireland in 1703, and twice one of the Lords Justices of that kingdom. There has been remarkable mortality in this family of Cox since the year 1838, six Baronets in succession to the title having died off. The Baronet whose death we record succeeded his brother, Sir Michael Cox, June 15, 1872. He married, in March, 1853, Emma Catherine, youngest daughter of the late Duncan McKellar, Esq., but leaves no issue.

SIR WILLIAM EDEN, BART.

Sir William Eden, fourth Baronet of Maryland, and sixth Baronet of West Auckland, J.P. and D.L., formerly Major in the Durham Militia, died recently at Lartington Hall, Mr. Witham's seat near Barnard Castle. He was born, Jan. 31, 1803, the second son of Sir Frederick Morton Eden, Bart., of Maryland, by Anne, his wife, daughter and heir of James Paul Smith, Esq., and was grandson of Sir Robert Eden, Governor of the province of Maryland (created a Baronet Sept. 19, 1776), by Caroline Calvert, his wife, sister and coheir of the last Lord Baltimore. At the death of his brother, Sir Frederick Eden, who fell in action at New Orleans in 1814, he succeeded to his father's baronetcy; and in 1844, at the decease of his cousin, Sir Robert Johnson Eden, of West Auckland, he inherited, in addition, the more ancient title. He married, in 1814, Elfrida, youngest daughter of Colonel Iremonger, of Wherwell Priory, Hants, and leaves, with other issue, his eldest surviving son, now Sir William Eden, Bart., born in 1849. The late Sir William was Custos Brevium of the Court of Common Pleas, and served as High Sheriff of the county of Durham in 1848. Lords Auckland and Henley are junior members of the family of Eden of West Auckland.

VICE-CHANCELLOR WICKENS.

The Hon. Sir John Wickens, one of the Vice-Chancellors of England, who died on the 23rd ult., was the second son of the late James Stephens Wickens, Esq., a London solicitor, by Anne Goodenough, his wife, sister of the Hon. Sir William G. Hayter, Bart., of Southill Park, Berks. He was born in 1815, and was educated at Eton, and at Balliol College, Oxford, where he graduated double first class in 1836, having been Newcastle Scholar in 1833. In 1840 he was called to the Bar by the Hon. Society of Lincoln's Inn, in 1868 was appointed Vice-Chancellor of the County Palatine of Lancaster, and in 1871 Vice-Chancellor of England. The following June he received the honour of knighthood. Sir John Wickens married, in 1845, Harriet Frances, daughter of William Davey, Esq., of Cowley House, Gloucestershire, and leaves issue.

THE LATE DR. F. CRACE CALVERT.

This well-known chemist died, on Oct. 24, at his residence, near Manchester. He had, whilst acting at Vienna as juror, contracted typhoid fever, which latterly caused disease of the lungs, and thus closed his career at the age of fifty-three. He was born in London, and studied under the celebrated chemist Girardin at Rouen, and subsequently was a pupil of Chevreul at Paris. He left France in 1846, and settled in Manchester with a scientific reputation already gained, and shortly afterwards was appointed honorary professor at the Royal Institution of that city. For some time also he was lecturer at the Manchester School of Medicine. His scientific investigations in hygiene led him incidentally to the useful application and commercial preparation of carbolic acid, with which his name will ever be associated. His processes for desulphurising coke, for sizing cloth, and for the production of aniline colour; and his three series of Cantor Lectures at the Society of Arts in London, showed an immense amount of the technical knowledge he possessed. For some years past he was engaged in investigations upon protoplasmic life. He was a Fellow of the Royal Society, of the Chemical Society, Honorary Fellow of the Chemical Society of Paris, and member of the Royal Academy of Turin and the Imperial Academy of St. Petersburg.

The cable between Amoy and Shanghai has been repaired.

The Governor of Aden, who recently sent a man-of-war to Makala (a town on the southern coast of Arabia), as a demonstration against a recent sale of territory of which Great Britain had previously bought part, has now sent 500 British troops to Lahay to prevent the occupation of that place by the Turks, who have about a thousand men near there.

A change has been made in the days of the service via Southampton and the Channel Islands. Instead of a mail leaving London on Saturday and one leaving the islands on Tuesday, a mail leaves London on Thursday and the islands on Saturday. The service via Southampton is as follows:—From London on the nights of Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday; and from Jersey and Guernsey on the mornings of Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and Saturday.

The annual prize meeting of the M company (St. Clement Danes) of the Queen's (Westminster) Volunteers was held on the 22nd ult. The first series were won by Messrs. Lay, Humby, Hodges, Bontoft, Livett, Buckingham, Egg, Oxenham, Jupe, C. Moore, and Pope. The second series were taken by Messrs. Egg, C. Moore, Lay, Chaplin, Humby, Livett, Moore, Yonge, Pope, Marfell, Scrivener, and Oxenham. In the third series both prizes were won, after a tie with Lieutenant Scrivener, by Sergeant Bontoft, who consequently had to relinquish his prize in the first series. The final competition for the monthly challenge cup resulted in favour of Private Marfell. A consolation prize was taken by Corporal Emalie. On the 21st ult. the annual match between E and F companies, forming the St. John's division of the Queen's (Westminster), came off at the ranges of the battalion, Wormwood-scrubbs. Ultimately F company, the present holders of the cup, were again the winners by eight points. The gold token, value two guineas, and first prize, value five guineas, for the highest aggregate score, were taken by Private Dyke; the second prize by Private Cook; and the third prize by Sergeant Brookings.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

*All communications relating to this department of the P per should be addressed "To the Editor of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS," &c., and have the word "Chess" legibly written on the outside of the envelope.

W. G. Whitby.—Ever welcome. We wish the visits were not so angel-like—"few and far between."
KERRY, J. REID, T. E. SMITH, and Others.—Yes; Problem No. 1545 can be solved two or three different ways.
A. A. O. Wexford.—You must look again. The problem and solution are quite right.
R. H. D. R.—It is not allowable. The signature you wish us to answer under is hardly legible.
S. BROWN.—A player may have as many Queens as he has Pawns and his original Queen besides, all on the board at one time.
THE CORRESPONDENT SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1547 has been received from L. L.—R. T. D.—J. Janson—T. A. Hind—Q. Vosler—W. N. Gunston—W. Airey—T. W. of Canterbury—M. P.—J. T. H. Faversham—P. E.—E. Silkatou—J. Bale of Olney—W. Acton—W. V. G. D.—Rev. M. Clave—J. Allaire—T. W. Morris—E. W. Way—M. D.—L. L. D.—Box and Cox—Phillip—Medicus—Newcombe—P. K.—W. S. Peterkin—S. B. B.—J. N.—Q's Kt—Ferdinand and Miranda—O. P.—S. P. Q. B. of Bruges.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1547.

WHITE. BLACK. WHITE. BLACK.
1. B to Q 5th B to K 4th 2. White plays—2. Q takes P (ch); 2. Q to K 8th (ch), and mates next move.
If Q takes P, then follow—2. Q takes Q 2. Q to K 8th (ch) K takes Q
(ch) &c. If P to K 4th White answers 3. B to K 8th (ch) K to Kt 4th with 2. Q to K 8th (ch), &c. If Kt takes 4. P to K 4th. Mate.

PROBLEM No. 1549.

By Sheriff SPENS, of Hamilton.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in two moves.

A CHESS PARTY.

Dear Mr. Editor,—I send you two alternation games—that is, games in which the allies on each side move without being allowed to consult on their moves. The combatants were the Austrian champion, Herr S. and your humble servant on the one side, and Mr. P. (one of the strongest English players) and Dr. B. on the other side.

GAME I.

(Hamp's Opening.)

WHITE (Herr S. and myself.) BLACK (Mr. P. and Dr. B.).
15. Castles (K R) Q Kt to Q 4th
16. P to K 5th Kt takes B
17. Q takes Kt P takes P
18. P to Q 6th
Thanks to our vigorous play (though probably the reader will remark that the attacking moves, Nos. 14, 16, and 18, were not made by me), our opponents' game looked bad enough. Even I could see that we must win the exchange.
18. Q to K 3rd
19. B takes K P Q to K R 3rd
20. B to K 4th Castles
21. B takes R
Here I was sternly rebuked for not first attacking the Queen with our Q R.
21. Kt takes B
22. Q R to K sq P takes Kt 3rd
23. Q takes Q P takes Q
24. K R to B 6th B to K B 4th
25. Kt to Q R 4th
This I thought remarkably fine and attacking; but I was informed that R to K 7th would have been far better.
25. P to Q Kt 4th
26. Kt to Kt 6th (ch) K to Kt sq
27. P to Q 4th
"Very weak," from Herr S.
27. P takes P P takes P
28. Kt takes P Kt to Kt sq
29. R to K B 7th K to R 2nd
30. Q R to K 3rd K to Kt sq
Black have nothing to do now.
31. Q R to Kt rd B to Q B sq
32. Kt to R 5th R takes P
33. R to K B 8th, and the adversaries struck their colours.

GAME II.

(Irregular Opening.)

In the next Game the other side began; and Mr. P., taking first move, effectually secured a close opening by playing

(Mr. P.) (Herr S.)
1. P to Q R 3rd P to K B 4th
(Dr. B.) (SELF)
2. P to K Kt 3rd Kt to K B 3rd
3. P to Q 4th P to K 3rd
4. Kt to Q B 3rd
This move of the Doctor's should have been preceded by P to Q B 4th, and it was the cause of coming evils.
4. B to K 2nd
"Very weak!" exclaimed my leader. "You should have played P to Q 4th, Sir."
5. B to K Kt 2nd P to Q 4th
6. B to K B 4th P to Q B 4th
7. B takes Kt R takes B
8. P to K 3rd Castles
9. K Kt to K 2nd P to Q B 5th
10. Castles P to Q Kt 4th
11. P to K B 3rd P to Q R 4th
12. Q Kt to his sq P to Kt 5th
13. P to Q B 3rd P takes R P
14. P takes P Q R to Q Kt 7th
15. Q Kt to Q 2nd Q to her Kt 3rd fully resigned. J. d. S.

CHESS-MATCH.—On Saturday last a match was played between the Bermondsey Working Men's Institute Chess Club and the South London Working Men's Institute Chess Club at the last-named institute, in which Bermondsey came off the victors, winning nine games to their opponents' one game.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The Scotch confirmation of the will of David Robertson, Baron Marjoribanks, of Ladykirk, in the county of Berwick (formerly M.P. for Berwickshire), was sealed at the principal registry, London, on the 18th ult., the inventory of the personal estate and effects amounting to upwards of £300,000. The executors nominate are Lady Marjoribanks, the relict; Sir Henry Day Ingilby, Bart.; and William Marjoribanks, the nephew.

The will and three codicils of Lieutenant-Colonel Charles Francis Maxwell were proved on the 17th ult., by George John Johnson, Richard Musgrave Harvey, and William Henry Maxwell, the son, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £50,000. The testator devises and bequeaths all his property in Australia, New Zealand, or elsewhere out of the United Kingdom to his wife, Thomasine Ionia Maxwell, absolutely, and he also gives her an annuity of £500 for life, to be increased to £1000 on certain reversionary property falling in: the residue of his personality he leaves to his children. As to his real estate in the United Kingdom, testator declares he refrains from dealing with it by his will, as he is satisfied with the devolution in that event provided by law.

The will and codicil of Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. Peregrine Francis Cust, late of 73, South Audley-street, Grosvenor-square, were proved, on the 17th ult., by John Francis Cust, the son, and Mrs. Charlotte Isabella Clark-Kennedy, the daughter, the executors, the personality being sworn under £30,000. Subject to several legacies, testator leaves all his property to his said son and daughter.

The will of Mr. Robert Roy, formerly of Brymbo Hall, Denbighshire, but late of Roysdean, Bournemouth, was proved on the 17th ult., by Mrs. Mary Roy, the relict, the sole executrix, the personality being sworn under £30,000. The testator leaves to his sister, Mrs. Mackenzie, an annuity of £400; and subject thereto and to some legacies—which, however, are not to be paid until his wife's death—all his real estate in England and Wales and all his personal estate to his said wife.

The will of Mr. James Clay, M.P. for Hull, of 25, Montagu-square, who died on Sept. 26, at No. 30, Regency-square, Brighton, was proved on the 25th ult., by Harry Ernest Clay Ker-Seymer and Cecil Jalland Page Clay, two of the sons, the acting executors, the personality, including leaseholds, being sworn under £45,000. The testator bequeaths to his son Charles Edmund Woolrych Clay an annuity of £200 per annum free of legacy duty; to his daughter, Emily Clay, a portion of £10,000; and all his Australian property and the residue of his personal estate between his three sons Harry, Cecil, and Frederic.

Father Hyacinthe and the two other curés who have joined him in the Old Catholic movement were installed on Sunday at Geneva, in the presence of an immense crowd.

Constantino Corti, the Italian sculptor, author, among other esteemed works, of the colossal statue of Lucifer, exhibited in London and Paris, has lately died of smallpox.

The British Medical Journal says that Daseant estimates that in Europe alone there are 200,000 deaf and dumb persons. In mountainous regions, as in Switzerland and Savoy, the proportion is very great. In the Berne canton there is one to every 195 inhabitants; in Scotland, one to 196. In Great Britain, however, the proportion is only one in 1660.

The Central Sauveteur Society of Belgium has elected the Duke of Cambridge, the Duke of Argyll, Mr. W. Hawes, and Mr. Lambton Young (the vice-patron, president, treasurer, and secretary of the Royal Humane Society) honorary vice-presidents of the Belgian society, and has presented them each with its gold medal.

The erection of a steam-whistle at Cape Race is completed. It will be sounded in thick and foggy weather and during snowstorms for ten seconds, with intervals of silence of fifty seconds, in each minute. In calm weather it can probably be heard at the distance of twenty miles; with the wind, thirty miles; in stormy weather and against wind, seven to ten miles.

The Briton, which arrived yesterday week from South America, brings further details of the encounter between the Niobe and the authorities in possession of the town of Amao, in Honduras. After the inhabitants had plundered the British Consulate and warehouses and imprisoned three British merchants who resisted the outrage, the commander of the Niobe demanded satisfaction from the authorities, and, no reply being made to his communication, the ensign was run up and a blank charge fired. An active cannonade between the Niobe and the fort ensued, which was continued until the fort was silenced and a flag of truce sent from the town. The affair was settled by the release of the British subjects and the payment of an indemnity of £30,000. Several of the inhabitants of Amao were killed and others wounded in the engagement.

Last week the Lauderdale, 851 tons, under the command of Captain Trury, sailed from Gravesend for Auckland, New Zealand, with 123 emigrants, embarked under the orders of the Agent-General for New Zealand. The emigrants, consisting of 17 married couples, 16 single men, 31 single women, and 42 children, left in the care of a surgeon superintendent. A party of gentlemen interested in their welfare assembled on board to bid them God speed to their distant homes in the South Pacific. Two days later the barque Queen of the North, Captain Dier, left Gravesend for Hawke's Bay, with emigrants equal to 217 souls, comprising 178 statute adults; of these 95 consisted of married couples and children, 33 were single women, and 50 were single men. Among the cabin passengers was Miss Herbert, a lady related to some of the most influential colonists of Hawke's Bay; and it is mainly due to her exertions that a large proportion of the passengers were induced to leave England in search of a colonial home.

The following appointments in the diplomatic service have been announced in the Gazette:—Mr. F. C. Ford, Secretary to the Embassy at Vienna, to be Chargé d'Affaires to the Grand Dukes of Baden and Hesse-Darmstadt; Mr. R. P. French, Secretary to the Embassy at St. Petersburg, to be Secretary to the Embassy at Vienna; Mr. W. Doria, Secretary to the Legation at Lisbon, to be Secretary to the Embassy at St. Petersburg; Mr. G. F. Gould, Secretary to the Legation at Copenhagen, to be Secretary to the Legation at Stockholm; the Hon. W. N. Jocelyn, Secretary to the Legation at Stockholm, to be Secretary to the Legation at Rio de Janeiro, to be Secretary to the Legation at Lisbon; Mr. R. G. Watson, Secretary to the Legation at Jeddah, to be Secretary to the Legation at Copenhagen; Mr. E. B. Malet, C.B., Secretary to the Legation at Peking, to be Secretary to the Legation at Athens; Mr. V. A. W. Drummond, a Second Secretary in the Diplomatic Service, to be Secretary to the Legation at Rio de Janeiro; Mr. F. C. E. Denys, Attaché to the Legation at Athens, to be a Third Secretary in the Diplomatic Service; the Hon. F. R. Plunkett, a Second Secretary in the Diplomatic Service, to be Secretary to the Legation at Jeddah; and Mr. J. Walsham, a Second Secretary in the Diplomatic Service, to be Secretary to the Legation at Peking.

GEORGE C. LEONTOU, 198, Strand, Athens. -
NOVEMBER 1, 1972.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1784.—VOL. LXIII.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1873.

WITH EXTRA SUPPLEMENT { SIXPENCE. By Post, 6d.

LANDING.

ANNAMABOE.

ACCRA.

ON THE LAGOON.

EMBARKING

SKETCHES ON THE GOLD COAST OF AFRICA.

BIRTHS.

On the 27th ult., at Watertree, near Liverpool, the wife of W. Wykeham Badnall, Esq., of a daughter.

On the 5th inst., at 39, Onslow-gardens, the wife of Commander George E. Price, Royal Navy, of a daughter.

On Sept. 21, at King William's Town, South Africa, the wife of Major the Hon. R. H. De Montmorency, 32nd Light Infantry, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 29th ult., at the parish church at Leatherhead, by the Rev. William Taylor Dixon, uncle of the bride, Grosvenor C. de Jacob du Vallon, Esq., of Croydon, Surrey, to Edith, youngest daughter of Abraham Dixon, Esq., of Cherkley Court, Leatherhead.

On Sept. 17, at the parish church, Kingston, Jamaica, by his Lordship the Bishop of Kingston, assisted by the Ven. Archdeacon Campbell and the Rev. J. E. Woodrow, the Rev. J. D. Hunt to Emma Eliza, second daughter of H. T. Colthirst, Esq.

On the 29th ult., by special license, in the private chapel, Longford Castle, near Salisbury, Captain David Maitland M. Crichton, Grenadier Guards, to Lady Margaret P. Bouverie, second daughter of the Earl and Countess of Radnor.

DEATHS.

On Sept. 25, at Montevideo, of scarlet fever, Harold Oke, second son of Edward and Georgina Cooper, aged 3 years, 3 months, and 3 days.

On Aug. 20, at Hardy-street, Nelson, New Zealand, Catherine Jane, wife of William Westbrook Squires, M.D., M.R.C.S., aged 24 years.

On the 4th inst., at No. 5, Lancaster-terrace, Shaftesbury-road, Hamersmith, Thomas Forbes, Esq., aged 55 years.

On the 30th ult., at Cannon Hall, Yorkshire, Lady Elizabeth Wilhelmina Spencer Stanhope, wife of John Spencer Stanhope, Esq., and daughter of the late Earl of Leicester, aged 78.

On the 20th ult., at Shelswell Park, Oxon, Lady Louisa Slater Harrison, wife of J. H. Slater Harrison, Esq.

* * The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOV. 15.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 9.		Crystal Palace, English opera, 8 p.m.
Twenty-second Sunday after Trinity.
The Prince of Wales born, 1841.
Lord Mayor's Day.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., the Rev. Gordon Calhoun, Chaplain to the Lord Mayor; 8.15 p.m., the Rev. Canon Gregory; 7 p.m., the Rev. A. R. Ashwell, Canon of Chichester.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., the Rev. Canon Kingsley.
St. James's, noon, probably the Rev. Henry Howarth, Rector of St. George's, Hanover-square.
Savoy, 11.30 a.m., the Rev. H. White, Chaplain of the Savoy and of the House of Commons; 7 p.m., the Rev. Dr. Monsell, Rector of Guildford and Chaplain to her Majesty.
Temple Church, 11 a.m., probably the Rev. Dr. Vaughan, Master of the Temple; 3 p.m., the Rev. Alfred Anger, Reader at the Temple.
Whitehall, 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., the Rev. H. L. Thompson.
French Anglican Church of St. John ("La Savoy"), Bloomsbury-street, services in French, 11 a.m. and 3.30 p.m., by the Rev. F. B. W. Bouverie, Incumbent.
MONDAY, NOVEMBER 10.
Lord Mayor's Day kept.
Medical Society, 8 p.m.
St. James's Hall, first Monday Popular Concert, 8 p.m.
Royal Academy, 8 p.m. (Professor Barff on Chemistry).
South Kensington Museum, 2.30 p.m. (Mr. Ernest Pauer on Vocal, Instrumental, and Dance Music).
TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 11.
Martinmas.
Half-Quarter Day.
Photographic Society, 8 p.m. (distribution of medals).
Institution of Civil Engineers, 8 p.m. (Mr. J. Robinson on Modern Locomotives).
Royal Medical and Chirurgical Society, 8.30 p.m.
School for Indigent Blind, general court for elections at the London Tavern, noon.
Gresham Lecture: Latin, 6 p.m.; English, 7 p.m. (the Rev. Charlton Lane on Rhetoric).
Dr. B. Behr's Lecture on German Literature at Willis's Rooms, 8 p.m.
St. Paul's Cathedral, Lectures to Working Men, 8 p.m. (the Rev. Canon Lightfoot on the Fall of Paganism in the Roman Empire).
Anthropological Institute, 8 p.m. (Conrad T. J. Hutchinson on Ancient Peruvian Burial Grounds; Mr. F. W. Rudler on Anthropology at the British Association Meeting at Bradford).
WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 12.
Moon's last quarter, 0.48 a.m.
Graphic Society, 8 p.m.
Gresham Lecture: Latin, 6 p.m.; English, 7 p.m. (the Rev. Charlton Lane on Rhetoric).
South Kensington Museum, 2.30 p.m. (Prof. Duncan on Geology).
St. James's Hall, 8 p.m., Mr. Austin's annual concert.
Crystal Palace, the Mystery Entertainment.
London General Porters' Benevolent Association, annual meeting at London Tavern, 8 p.m.
THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 13.
Probable shower of meteors at night.
Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, (Bach's "Passion Music," St. Matthew).
Gresham Lecture: Latin, 6 p.m.; English, 7 p.m. (the Rev. Charlton Lane on Rhetoric).
London Mathematical Society, anniversary, 8 p.m. (Professor Sylvester on a New Instrument for Converting Circular into General Rectilinear and other Motions; and papers by Mr. W. M. Adams and Mr. S. Roberts).
Dramatic Authors' Society, committee, 2.30 p.m.
Royal Academy, 8 p.m. (Professor Barff on Chemistry).
British Home for Incurables, general meeting for elections at Cannon-street Hotel, noon.
Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy, general annual court, 11.30 a.m.
Crystal Palace, English Opera, 8 p.m.
FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 14.
Entomological Society, 7 p.m.
Royal Astronomical Society, 8 p.m.
Clinical Society, 8.30 p.m.
Wagner Society, St. James's Hall, 8 p.m.
Gresham Lecture: Latin, 6 p.m.; English, 7 p.m. (the Very Rev. Dean Cowie on Geometry).
Quekett Microscopical Club, 8 p.m.
Crystal Palace, the Mystery Entertainment.
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 15.
Royal Horticultural Society, promenade, 2 p.m.
Gresham Lecture: Latin, 6 p.m.; English, 7 p.m. (the Very Rev. Dean Cowie on Geometry).
St. James's Hall, first Saturday Popular Concert, 3 p.m.
London Athletic Club, at Lillie Bridge.
Crystal Palace, seventh Saturday Concert, 8 p.m.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28' 6" N.; Long. 0° 18' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOM.		WIND.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Minimum, read at 10 p.m.	Maximum, read at 10 a.m.	General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours, at 10 a.m. next morning.	Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.
Oct. 29	30.183	31.2	30.7	98	0.10	26.5	37.9	WNW.	41	0.00
30	29.877	33.4	31.6	94	0	26.0	45.9	WNW. W.	62	0.00
31	29.627	41.9	40.4	95	0	26.5	51.4	W. SW. SSW.	3.96	1.25
Nov. 1	29.202	45.6	39.1	80	6	42.8	51.5	SSW. WSW.	2.31	0.5
2	29.256	45.0	39.4	82	..	37.7	51.9	S. SSE.	1.60	4.12
3	29.453	44.4	39.5	85	5	36.8	52.9	SSE. SW.	1.02	0.00
4	29.526	42.6	40.2	92	8	37.8	51.9	SSE. SW.	2.54	6.15

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten a.m.:

Barometer (in inches) corrected	..	30.298	29.971	29.625	29.168	29.303	29.414	29.553
Temperature of Air	..	30.7	31.2	42.5	47.3	46.8	48.9	39.9
Temperature of Evaporation	..	30.7	31.2	42.5	45.4	41.5	45.6	39.3
Direction of Wind	CALM.	SW.	SW.	SW.	SW.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 15.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
4 42	5 5	6 28	7 50	8 18	8 40	9 10
10 35	11 28	12 15	1 0	1 45	2 30	3 10
4 10	5 15	6 10	7 0	7 45	8 30	9 10
10 35	11 28	12 15	1 0	1 45	2 30	3 10

MARK TWAIN at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS.

Mr. George Dobbs begs to announce that, owing to the success which attended his first course of lectures, he has succeeded in engaging him to REAPPEAR at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS on MONDAY EVENING, DEC. 1, when he will deliver his lecture entitled OUR FELLOW-SAVAGES OF THE SANDWICH ISLANDS. The lecture will be repeated Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight; and on Wednesday and Friday at Ten o'clock. Tickets, 3s.; Unreserved Seats, 2s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets are now ready, and may be obtained of Messrs. Chappell and Co., 51, New Bond-street, at the usual Ticket-Office and Libraries; and of Mr. George Dobbs, 52, New Bond-street, 1st floor, W.

NOW READY,

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK

FOR

1874,

PRICE ONE SHILLING, FREE BY POST, 1s. 2d.,

CONTAINING

SIX COLOURED PICTURES,

PRINTED BY LEIGHTON BROTHERS' CHROMATIC PROCESS;

TWELVE ILLUSTRATIONS OF MARRIAGE CUSTOMS,

AS HEADINGS TO THE CALENDAR, BY J. JACKSON;

TWELVE FINE-ART ENGRAVINGS;

ASTRONOMICAL DIAGRAMS OF REMARKABLE PHENOMENA,

WITH EXPLANATORY NOTES;

The Royal Family of Great Britain; the Queen's Household; her Majesty's Ministers; Lists of Public Offices and Officers; Bankers; Law and University Terms; Fixed and Movable Festivals; Anniversaries; Acts of Parliament passed during the Session of 1873; Revenue and Expenditure; Obituaries of Eminent Persons; Christian, Jewish, and Mohammedan Calendars; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Government Duties; Times of High Water; Post-Office Regulations; together with a large amount of useful and valuable information, which has during the past twenty-nine years made the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK the most acceptable and elegant companion to the library or drawing-room table; whilst it is universally acknowledged to be by far the cheapest Almanack ever published.

The unprecedented demand for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK year after year stimulates the Proprietor to still greater exertions to secure for this Almanack a reception as favourable as that which has hitherto placed its circulation second only to that of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is inclosed in an elegant cover, printed in Colours by the same process as the SIX COLOURED PLATES, and forms a charming and pleasing ornament to the drawing-room-table.

The SHILLING ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is published at the Office of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 198, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, F. B. Chatterton. —MORNING PERFORMANCE OF ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA, MONDAY, NOV. 10.—This grand spectacular Play cannot be performed after Thursday, Dec. 18, in consequence of the preparations necessary for the grand Christmas Pantomime. —On MONDAY and during the Week will be performed Shakespeare's Tragedy of ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA, concentrated into Four Acts and Twelve Scenes. Characters by Mr. James Anderson, Messrs. Ryder, H. Russell, A. Glover, Dolman, J. Morris, Thorne, Frome, M. D. Byrnes, Lickfold, Milton, Sargent, H. Clifford, and H. Sinclair; Miss Wallis, Mesdames H. Coveney, Banks, Melville, Adeline Geddis, &c. The performances will commence with a Farce called "The Eccentricity." In one act, entitled "NOBODY IN LONDON." To conclude with an Original Comic Ballet d'Action entitled "THE RIVALS." Prices, from Sixpence to Five Guineas. Doors open at Half-past six; commence at a Quarter to Seven. Box-office open from Ten till Five daily.

ENGAGEMENT OF MISS KATE VAUGHAN and her celebrated BALLET TROUPE, who will appear at a Quarter to Ten on SATURDAY NEXT, NOV. 16, THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET. Open for the Season.—THIS EVENING (Saturday) and on Monday and Tuesday, the SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL, On Wednesday, and during the Week, THE OVERLAND ROUTE.—Mr. Lovell, his original character, Mr. Buckstone. Concluding with HIS FIRST CHAMPAGNE.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Bateman. Every Evening, at Eight, RICHIEU—Richieu, Mr. Henry Irving; Messrs. Henry Clayton, Beaumont, Henry Forrester, J. B. Howard, F. Charles, Carter, E. F. Edgar, and Conway; Miss Le Thiere and Miss Isabel Bateman. Scenery by Hawes Croft and H. Cuthbert. Musical Director, Mr. Herbert Stoppel. Preceded, at Seven, by SIMSON AND CO.—Messrs. Beveridge, Carter; Miss Parnoch, &c. Conclude with SIX MONTHS AGO.—Mr. John Clayton. Box-office open from Ten till Five. Doors open at 6.30; commence at 7.

NATIONAL STANDARD THEATRE, Bishopsgate.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. John Douglas.—Second Week and great success of the great Adelphi Drama, THE WANDERING JEW. Adelphi Artists, Adelphi scenery, Adelphi Effects, Adelphi Costumes. MONDAY, NOV. 10, and Every Evening, at Seven.

S. T. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly. Every Night at Eight; Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays, Three and Six. ALL THE YEAR ROUND. THE LONGEST ESTABLISHED AND MOST POPULAR ENTERTAINMENT IN THE WORLD. THE MOORE AND BURGESS MINSTRELS, NOW IN THE TENTH YEAR OF ONE CONTINUOUS SEASON AT THIS HALL, an event altogether unparalleled in the history of the world's amusements. LADIES CAN RETAIN THEIR BONNETS IN ALL PARTS OF THE HALL. New and Luxurious Private Boxes, acknowledged to be the finest in London, 41 1/2s. 6d. to 42 1/2s. 6d.; Parquet, 2s.; Sofa Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Tickets and places at Mitchell's, 35, Old Bond-street; Oliver's, Old Bond-street; and at Austin's, St. James's Hall, from Nine a.m. till Ten p.m.

WAGNER SOCIETY.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Conductor, Mr. E. Danneberg. Orchestra of Eighty Performers.—FIRST GRAND CONCERT, FRIDAY, NOV. 21, at 8.30. Subscription for the series of Six Concerts, 22 1/2s.; Single Tickets, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 5s., 3s., 1s. Stanley Lucas, Chappell, Bond-street; Schott, Regent-street; Austin's, St. James's Hall; the principal Agents. Dr. Von Bulow will play Raff's New Concerto and Liszt's Hungarian Fantasia.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY, EXETER HALL. Conductor, Sir MICHAEL COSTA.—THE FORTY-SECOND SEASON will commence on FRIDAY, NOV. 21, Haydn's Service, No. 1; Mendelssohn's "Christus" and Handel's Dettingen "Te Deum." Dec. 5, "Israel in Egypt." Dec. 12, "Messiah." Principal vocalists, Madame Sherrington, Madame Patey, Miss Enriqueta, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Vernon Bigby, Mr. Santley, Mr. Thomas. Tickets, 2s., 1s., and 6d., now ready. Subscription for ten concerts: Stalls, 42 1/2s.; Area, numbered in rows, 42 1/2s.; Unreserved, 41 1/2s.—6, Exeter Hall.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY. Conductor, Mr. Barnby. THURSDAY, NOV. 13, at Eight o'clock, Bach's PASSION (St. Matthew). Miss Emily Spiller, Madame Patey, Mr. W. H. Cummings, Mr. H. A. Pope, and Mr. Thurlay Boale. At the Piano-forte, Mr. Raudigger. Organist, Dr. Stainer. Boxes, 45s. 6d., 22 1/2s., and 21 1/2s.; Stalls, 7s. 6d. and 5s.; Balcony, 2s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets: Novello's, 1, Berners-street, and 32, Foultry, the usual Agents, and at the Royal Albert Hall.

DR. HANS VON BULOW will give his FIRST PIANO-FORTE RECITAL, at ST. JAMES'S HALL, on WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOV. 19, to commence at Three o'clock precisely. Sofa Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets may be obtained of Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co., 84, New Bond-street; Mitchell's Library, 35, Old Bond-street; Keith, Prowse, and Co., 43, Chesapeake, 43s. 6d., 22 1/2s., and 21 1/2s.; Stalls, 7s. 6d. and 5s.; Balcony, 2s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets: Novello's, 1, Berners-street, and 32, Foultry, the usual Agents, and at the Royal Albert Hall.

SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM.—SCIENCE AND ART FOR WOMEN. A COURSE OF NINE LECTURES will be delivered by ERNEST FAUER, Esq., on the Different Forms of Vocal, Instrumental, and Dance Music (Three Lectures), and on the Art and Science of Piano-forte Playing (Six Lectures), commencing on SATURDAY, NOV. 22, at 2.30 p.m., instead of Monday, Nov. 10, as announced in the prospectus. For Prospectus apply the Hon. and Rev. F. Byng, Treasurer, at the Museum. Fee for the Course, 15s.; first three lectures only, 6s.

MADAME TUSSAUD'S EXHIBITION, Baker-street. Great Attractions.—Portrait Models of Napoleon III. lying in state, Marshal Bismarck and McMahon, M. Thiers, Francis Joseph of Austria, and the Shah of Persia, with the original autograph and testimonial written and presented to Madame Tussaud and Son, July 8, 1873, as a souvenir of his Imperial Majesty's visit. Also, new, superb, and costly Court Dresses are now added. Admission, 1s.; Children under Ten, 6d. Extra 1s. come, 6d. Open from Ten a.m. till Ten p.m.

POSTAGE OF THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

Copies for the United Kingdom and the Channel Islands must be prepaid by affixing halfpenny postage-stamps.

Copies for the Colonies and Foreign Countries, printed on thin paper, must have stamps affixed to them at the following rates:—

Africa, West Coast of	1d	Germany	2d
Alexandria { via Southampton	1d	Gibraltar { via Southampton	1d
via Brindisi	2d	via France	3d
Australia { via Southampton	1d	Holland, via Belgium	2d via Brindisi	3d	India { via Southampton	2d
Austria	2d	via Brindisi	3d
Belgium	1d	Italy, via Belgium	3d
Brazil	1d	Mexico	1d
Canada	1d	New Zealand	1d
Cape of Good Hope	1d	Norway, via Denmark	5d
China { via Southampton	2d	Spain	2d
via Brindisi	3d	Sweden, via Hull	2d
Constantinople, via Marseilles	2d	Switzerland	2d
Denmark, via Belgium	3d	United States	1d
France	1d	West Indies	1d

Copies of the ordinary edition sent ad. od. enquire double the above rates. Newspapers for foreign countries must be paid within eight days of the date of publication.

STEAM.—LONDON to CALCUTTA Direct, via Suez Canal. Taking goods for Rangoon, Moulmein, Chittagong, and Akyab, at through rates. CARLISLE BROTHERS and CO.'S DUCAL LINE OF STEAM-SHIPS. These magnificent, full-powered steam-ships have been built expressly for the trade, and will be found on inspection as fine and substantial vessels as have ever been built in this country. The cabins are elegant, light, and commodious, with every convenience for tropical climates, and are placed amidships, where there is the least motion. Each steamer is provided with bath-rooms (hot and cold water) and ice-house, and carries a surgeon and stewards.

	Tons.	Captain.	To Close.
Duke of Devonshire	2015	Whitlie.	Dec. 15.
Duke of Buccleuch	2015	—	—
Duke of Lancaster	2015	—	—
Duke of Sutherland	2015	Edward	Ballad.
Duke of Argyll	2015	Barrie	Ballad.

The Duke of Devonshire will be dispatched about Dec. 15. Rates of passage for first-class passengers, 40 gu., 30 gu., and 25 gu., according to the accommodation required. For further particulars apply to Messrs. Carlisle, Greenhields, and Co., No. 1, East India Avenue, London. Particulars apply to Messrs. Carlisle, Greenhields, and Co., No. 1, East India Avenue, London. Particulars apply to Messrs. Carlisle, Greenhields, and Co., No. 1, East India Avenue, London.

DORE'S GREAT PICTURE of "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRETORIUM," with "The Night of the Crucifixion," "Christian Martyr," "Francesca di Rimini," "Neophyte," "Andromeda," &c., at the DORE GALLERY, 3, New Bond-street. Ten to Six. Admission, 1s.

NINTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS BY BRITISH AND FOREIGN ARTISTS is NOW OPEN at T. MURRAY'S NEW GALLERY, 7, Haymarket.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1873.

"An act of conscience" is reported to have been the phrase employed by the Comte de Chambord to characterise his repudiation of the terms devised by his friends at Paris for the restoration of Monarchy in his person. "An act of conscience" there is good reason for believing it to have been. One cannot but admire, and to some extent revere, the man who could deliberately place it between himself and the kingly dignity which he assumes to be his by Divine right. Not even for a crown could he prevail upon himself to surrender the integrity of his soul. In some degree, doubtless, he must have listened to the whispers of temptation. There must have been moments when his resolution wavered, and when his utterances harmonised but too closely with the flattering suggestions of his friends. Else, surely, they would not have so deliberately misrepresented him on those questions of difference which appeared to separate his judgment from theirs. But when he became aware of the illusions under which they parted from him, and of the unfounded hopes which they had raised among his partisans at Paris, he felt the necessity of falling back upon the sentiment and creed of his whole foregoing life, and of dissipating by a few written sentences all the mists in which his real purpose had become enveloped. There are few, we suspect, who will not honour the man who thus feared to enter France as its Monarch through the domains of falsehood. Grant that his creed was a narrow one; that his idea of the special mission intrusted to him was the result of a limited and exclusive training, unsupported by reason; and that the views he entertains of his relations to France, and of France's relations to him, are preposterous, it is, nevertheless, matter for congratulation, quite apart from political consequences, that in his ultimate decision he chose to obey the voice of conscience, rather than yield to the solicitations of ambition. Such exemplifications of personal abnegation for the sake of conscientious conviction are rare, whether among ordinary men or among Princes; and when they come before the world they fairly receive the homage which is due to sincerity, simplicity, and supreme devotion to the claims of what is understood to be truth.

We dismiss the Comte de Chambord. We wish it were possible for us to regard his partisans with the same respect which we believe to be due to him. Many of them, and of these, perhaps, the most active, have not the same excuse for their conduct which may be pleaded in extenuation, if not in justification, of his. It is quite clear that their efforts for the restoration of Monarchy in France have been deeply tainted with intrigue and un-eracity. The many-coloured bubble they have blown was blown with a view of dazing and misleading the French people. The audacity with which they have assumed power to act in the name and on the behalf of the nation, and the sinister practices to which they have resorted in order that the voice of France should be muffled in respect of their ultimate designs, deprive them of all title to be regarded as the disinterested friends of their country. They seem to have pursued their course under something like a conviction that "the end sanctifies the means." They may have been fully persuaded in their own minds that a Monarchical form of government—especially when presided over by a Legitimist King—would best suit and satisfy the real wants of the French people. But even in this case they have been guilty of trampling upon the very objects for the sake of which they profess to be most anxious. With a view to restore and render permanent the supremacy of justice, they have deemed it expedient to ally themselves with injustice, and to bring about a reign of truth they have deigned to make use of the instrumentality of falsehood. To give new political life and vigour to France, they are doing their best to bind and Merarch, and are caught in their own toils. The Comte de Paris, whom they persuaded to recognise the Comte de Chambord as the legitimate head of the Bourbon family, refuses to be substituted for his Royal relative; and the Prince de Joinville resents with indignation the proposal that he should act as Lieutenant-General over the kingdom. We can but express a hope that the momentous crisis through which the public affairs of France are passing may be peacefully solved in conformity with the judgment and wishes of the great bulk of the French nation. That which will satisfy France, in reference to her domestic rule, will satisfy Europe. The one danger to be feared on her account is that her natural choice should be annulled by the intrigues of faction.

THE COURT.

The Queen, with Princess Beatrice, continues at Balmoral Castle. The Right Hon. W. E. Forster has succeeded the Right Hon. James Stansfeld as Minister in attendance upon her Majesty. The Hon. Flora Macdonald has arrived at Balmoral. Captain Kirwan, Lieutenant Alexander, and Lieutenant Cameron dined at the castle on Tuesday week, and were presented to the Queen after dinner. Her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, witnessed the torchlight procession at Balmoral in celebration of "All Hallowe'en." The tenantry, gillies, and labourers upon the Royal estates, each bearing a torch, assembled in the western avenue, where they were met by the Queen and Princess Beatrice in a carriage; after which her Majesty was escorted by the torchlight procession, preceded by the pipers, to the castle, where the Queen alighted and walked on to the lawn. The procession having made the circuit of the castle, dancing was commenced in front of the principal entrance by the light of a bonfire, her Majesty being present for a considerable time. Large bonfires blazed also from Lochnagar Distillery Farm, and from the heights of Craigna-ban and Craignorhie. The Right Hon. W. E. Forster dined with the Queen on the following day. On Sunday her Majesty attended Divine service in the parish church of Crathie. The holy communion was administered. The Rev. Dr. Taylor officiated. The Right Hon. W. E. Forster and the Rev. Dr. Taylor dined with the Queen on Monday. Her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, has taken her customary daily walking and driving exercise. The Queen has appointed Lady Elizabeth Philippa Adeane to be one of the Bedchamber Women in Ordinary to her Majesty, in the room of the Hon. Mrs. George Campbell, deceased; and Lord Kennington to be one of the Grooms in Waiting in Ordinary to her Majesty, in the room of the Hon. Algernon William Fulke Greville, M.P., resigned. Viscount Bridport has succeeded Colonel Gardiner in attendance upon her Majesty.

The Queen was represented by the Duke of Edinburgh at the funeral of the late King John of Saxony, at Dresden, and the Prince of Wales by the Marquis of Hamilton. The following were the orders for the Court going into mourning, on Sunday last, the 2nd inst., for the late King, viz.:—The ladies to wear black dresses, white gloves, black or white shoes, feathers, and fans, or plain gold and silver ornaments. The gentlemen to wear black Court dresses, with black swords and buckles. The Court to change the mourning on Sunday, the 16th inst., namely:—The ladies to wear black dresses, with coloured ribbons, flowers, feathers, and ornaments, or grey or white dresses, with black ribbons, flowers, feathers, and ornaments. The gentlemen to continue the same mourning; and on Sunday, the 23rd inst., the Court to go out of mourning.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales visited the exhibition of the Photographic Society of London in Pall-mall East on Thursday week. Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein visited their Royal Highnesses at Marlborough House and remained to luncheon. In the evening the Prince and Princess went to the Princess's Theatre. On the following day the Prince went shooting in Windsor Great Park. In the evening his Royal Highness, with the Princess and Prince Arthur, went to the Holborn Theatre. On Saturday last the Prince visited the Duke of Cambridge at Gloucester House. On Sunday the Prince and Princess attended Divine service at the Chapel Royal, St. James's. On Monday their Royal Highnesses, accompanied by Prince Albert Victor, Prince George, Princess Louise, and Princess Maud of Wales, left Marlborough House and travelled by the Great Eastern Railway to Ely, where the Prince took leave of the Princess and his children and proceeded to Elvedon Hall, near Thetford, on a visit to the Maharajah Dhuleep Singh. His Royal Highness was met at the Thetford railway station by the Maharajah. The Princess continued the journey from Ely to Sandringham, where her Royal Highness has remained during the Prince's stay at Elvedon. Lieutenant-Colonel Ellis has succeeded Major-General Probyn as Equerry in Waiting to the Prince.

The municipal elections took place in England on the 1st inst., and in Scotland on Tuesday, the 4th.

Last month 15,732 emigrants sailed from the Mersey. Nearly 13,000 of these were bound for the United States.

A petition against the return of the Solicitor-General for Taunton was deposited at the Common Pleas Office on Tuesday.

The annual exhibition of drawings, models, &c., of students of the Female School of Art, Bloomsbury, was opened at the rooms of the school, 43, Queen's-square, on Friday and Saturday last. This year the school did not win so many prizes in the national competition as last year; still, the exhibition is considered by the judges (Messrs. Foley, R.A., Calderon, R.A., and Orchardson, A.R.A.) to be equal to its predecessors. The Queen's gold medal is taken this year by Miss Alice Hanslip, for her study in chalk from the antique. The subject chosen is the well-known group of "The Wrestlers," and here Miss Banks almost divides the honours with the medallist. So close, indeed, was the competition that the judges had to look elsewhere before they could pronounce their verdict, and it was the merits of a study from the life, also in chalk—which is, perhaps, the cleverest thing in the room—which finally gained the prize for Miss Hanslip. Miss Austin, for the second year, takes the Queen's Scholarship with a group from nature of flowers and fruit. A silver medal is presented to Miss Ellen Hancock for a pretty study in tempera of lilacs, which some of our readers may have seen in the South Kensington Museum, where the competitors for the prizes are allowed to exhibit. Miss Agnes Jerson gains a silver medal for a set of original designs for watches, which had already won the prize offered in the previous year by Sir John Bennett for the same subject. Prizes were also awarded to Misses Austin, Hopkinson, Corcoran, Ashwell, and Hensch. There are on view specimens of pottery and porcelain painted by former pupils of this school now employed by Messrs. Minton and Messrs. Simpson.

THE CHURCH.

The Duke of Bedford has presented £1000 to the Dean and Chapter of Ely Cathedral to assist the further restoration of that venerable edifice.

The Chapel Royal, Savoy, will be reopened next Sunday, after the restoration commanded by her Majesty and the insertion of two painted windows presented by the congregation.

The parochial schools attached to St. Mark's, Hamilton-terrace, St. John's-wood, of which Princess Christian laid the foundation-stone last December, were opened on All Saints' Day.

The parish church of Frankley, near Birmingham, was reopened on Oct. 15, after a successful restoration by Mr. F. Freedy, at a cost of £1100, half of which has been given by Lord Lyttelton, who owns the greater part of the parish.

The lectures to men were resumed at St. Paul's Cathedral on Tuesday evening, when Canon Lightfoot delivered the first of a course of three lectures on "The Fall of Paganism and the Roman Empire," in which it is proposed to deal with the struggle between Paganism and Christianity.

The anniversary of the Midland District of the English Church Union was held at Wolverhampton yesterday week, under the patronage of Sir E. A. Lechmere, Bart. Several resolutions in favour of the object of the union were agreed to at an afternoon meeting, but one held in the evening was of a very tempestuous character, there being a strong opposition to the adoption of confession in the Church of England.

The consecration of the churches of Tedstone Wafer and Edwin Loach took place on Tuesday, Oct. 28. Both the churches are designed to supersede old structures, which have fallen into decay. Their erection is due to the generosity of the late Mr. Edmund Higginson, of Saltmarsh Castle; and on his death Mr. William Barneby, his successor in the property, carried out the intentions of the founder by furnishing both the churches with their several fittings, communion plate, &c.

The Church of Holy Trinity, Nottingham, took fire, last Sunday, by the overheating of the flues. It had recently undergone extensive repairs, and was only reopened on the previous Friday. The fire was discovered by the Vicar, who quietly informed the preacher, the Bishop of Nottingham, who suddenly dismissed his congregation by saying the atmosphere was too hot, and he hoped they would retire. This cool action saved a panic, and probably many lives.

On St. Luke's Day the church of Stawell, one of the dependent parishes of the vicarage of Moorlinch, Somersetshire, was reopened for Divine service, after a complete restoration, carried out by Mr. Merrick, of Glastonbury, at a cost of £520. About the same time were opened in the village beautiful school buildings, erected for the parishes of Stawell and Sutton Mallett, from designs by Hans Price, Esq., of Weston-super-Mare, at the expense of A. D. Graham, Esq., of Cossington, who also maintains the school.

Responding to the joint invitation of the Bishops of London, Winchester, and Rochester, a large number of the clergy of the three dioceses met under the dome of St. Paul's, on Tuesday, to take part in the conference regarding the Church mission which is to be held in the metropolis next February. Addresses were delivered by the three prelates on the subject of the mission, the intervals being devoted to silent prayer and hymns. Later in the day there was a conference of incumbents at King's College in reference to the same subject.

WORK, WAGES, AND PRICES.

Speaking at a trade-union demonstration at Darlington, on Monday, Mr. Brogden, M.P. for Wednesbury, spoke strongly in favour of trade unions, which, he maintained, have become a necessity, and, instead of tending to create disputes, are powerfully instrumental in procuring a reasonable settlement of them. In the course of his speech Mr. Brogden stated that he had at the present moment an offer of 10,000 tons of rails of English make that are lying in New York at £2 a ton less than they could be bought for and put free on board a vessel in a Welsh port. Mr. Brogden thinks that for some time to come, owing to the stagnation of trade prevailing there, America will cease to be a leading market for English manufactures.

A deputation, comprising representatives of the principal trade societies, waited, on Wednesday, upon Mr. Lowe, to renew their protest against the Criminal Law Amendment Act, and other exceptional legislation affecting trade unions. They were introduced by Mr. Thomas Hughes, M.P., and supported by Mr. Mundella. When their objections to the present state of the law had been clearly stated, Mr. Lowe answered that the subject was engaging the attention of the Government, and he hoped the result would be satisfactory to them.

A conference of representative agricultural labourers met on Tuesday at the Rose Tavern, Old Bailey, for the purpose of taking into consideration a scheme of federation of the different unions throughout the country. After a long discussion, resolutions were carried agreeing with the objects of the meeting, and it was decided that an association should be established, under the title of "The Federal Union of Agricultural and General Labourers."

A great open-air demonstration of Scotch working men took place last Saturday at Glasgow, at which resolutions were passed demanding the total repeal of the Criminal Law Amendment Act, protesting against the criminal clauses of the Masters and Servants Act, and the application of the law of conspiracy to questions of labour; and pledging the meeting, which is said to have numbered 50,000, of whom 25,000 took part in the procession, to vote only for those candidates for seats in the House of Commons who would support these reforms.

The Carlisle Patriot says a valuable discovery of iron ore has been made on the Cockermouth, Keswick, and Penrith line. The Maryport Hematite Iron Ore Company, who are sinking shafts for a coal-pit near Measgate, have found another fine seam of coal, 6 ft. in thickness.

At the Wigan district branch of the Lancashire and Cheshire Amalgamated Association of Miners the men have decided by resolution to solicit an advance of 15 per cent, unless a reduction takes place in the price of coal.

The executors of Colonel Hargreaves, Burnley, the largest colliery owners in East Lancashire, issued notices, on Saturday, stating that on and after that date the price of their coal would be advanced at the rate of 1d. per cwt., or 1s. 8d. per ton. This advance applies to ten classes of coal. A similar notice was issued by Messrs. Brooks and Pickup, of the Townley Collieries, Burnley, on Monday.

At the executive committee meeting of the National Agricultural Labourers' Union at Leamington, on Monday, it was announced that the general secretary had arranged with Mr. Yater, the president of the Lancashire district, for all matters in dispute between the Gloucestershire district and the National executive to be referred to arbitration. Offers of free passages were received from the Queensland Government, and the Union decided to extend additional facilities to emigrants. President Arch and Secretary Taylor were appointed to represent the Union at the Trades-Union Congress in London next January.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Last Saturday the directors of the Bank of England raised the rate of discount from seven to eight per cent.

The foundation-stone of the new buildings to be erected near the Mansion House for the National Safe Deposit Company was laid, on Tuesday, by the Lord Mayor.

Alderman Lusk, the Lord Mayor elect, was received on Monday by the Lord Chancellor, who expressed the Queen's approval of the citizens' choice.

During the week ending Saturday last 2470 births and 1653 deaths were registered in London—the former having been 100, and the latter 103, in excess of the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years.

The Archbishop of York presided, on Wednesday, at the distribution of certificates for the London, Southwark, and Streatham-hill centres of the Oxford examinations, in the theatre of the London University, Burlington-gardens.

A concert of blind musicians was given, yesterday week, at the schools of the London Society for Teaching the Blind, in St. John's-wood. Between the parts a brief address was delivered by the chairman, the Rev. W. Peile, who described the institution as practically self-supporting.

Lord Shaftesbury, on Monday, presided at a meeting held in the Workman's Hall on the Shaftesbury Park Estate, at Clapham, to celebrate the completion of a portion of the buildings on that estate, of which his Lordship laid the foundation-stone a year ago.

The friends of the Home for Little Boys at Farningham—established, more than ten years ago, for the protection and training of destitute boys—asssembled in large numbers, in Exeter Hall, on Monday, for the purpose of formally recognising the important work achieved through the agency of the home.

The fifth distribution of prizes to the successful students of the North London School of Art took place, yesterday week, in Sandringham-road, Kingsland—Mr. J. Holms, M.P., in the chair. The report of the year indicated that the school was opened in 1868 with seventeen students, which number had in June of this year increased to 172.

At a large meeting at the Mansion House, on Monday, under the presidency of the Lord Mayor, a scheme was proposed to abolish most of the ward schools of the city of London, and establish instead three large schools for the education of the poor of the city; but an amendment rejecting the scheme was carried, after much controversy.

An explosion of a terrible nature occurred, on Tuesday morning, at a house in Broad-street, Lambeth. A firework manufacturer, named Fenwick, was carrying on his business when some of the inflammable materials lying around him ignited. He was blown lifeless into the street, the house was set on fire, and four women and three children were burnt to death.

The first meeting of the session of the Zoological Society was held on Tuesday evening—Professor Newton, F.R.S., in the chair; and a long series of communications of much zoological interest were read, headed, as customarily, with an announcement by the secretary of the recent additions to the society's menagerie.

The weekly return of metropolitan pauperism shows that the total number of paupers last week was 99,447, of whom 34,869 were in workhouses, and 64,578 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding weeks in the years 1872, 1871, and 1870, these figures show a decrease of 4969, 16,642, and 32,090 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved was 661, of whom 438 were men, 177 women, and 46 children.

A special appeal on behalf of the Cow-cross Mission is made by Mr. Catlin, the general superintendent. He says:—"The funds are completely exhausted; winter is upon us; the soup-kitchen not yet opened. We are running into debt. Unless considerable help be speedily forthcoming, our twelve years' labour in the centre of the metropolis (as well as the noble efforts of those associated with us) will have to be suspended."

On Wednesday the civic authorities at Guildhall issued the official programme of the ceremonial to be observed on Monday next, Lord Mayor's Day. The route is nearly the same as that which we gave last week from the City Press. The procession will move from Guildhall at half-past one o'clock, and pass through Guildhall-yard, Gresham-street, Princes-street, Cornhill, Leadenhall-street, Aldgate-pump, Fenchurch-street, Gracechurch-street, Cannon-street, St. Paul's-churchyard, Ludgate-hill, Fleet-street, and the Strand, to Charing-cross, Whitehall, Parliament-street, to Westminster Hall. Returning from Westminster by the Victoria Embankment, Queen Victoria-street, Queen-street, crossing Cheapside to King-street and Guildhall.

We learn from the City Press that the state coach for the Lord Mayor elect will be furnished by Mr. J. Offord, of Wells-street and Brook-street, who has also supplied the chariot for Mr. Sheriff Johnson. The coach for the New Lord Mayor is quite in harmony with modern ideas and taste. The side windows, instead of being rounded off in the corners as formerly, are cut nearly square, to follow the outlines of the body. Another "innovation" is the painting. It has hitherto been usual to paint the under carriage of white or drab, relieved by the same colour as the body, but in the present case the whole vehicle has been painted a dark green, the family colour of the Lord Mayor elect, relieved by large lines of gold upon the body and gold and red upon the under carriage. The elegance of his arrangement of colouring is heightened by the beautiful heraldic paintings of the City arms and those of the Fishmongers' and Spectacle Makers' Companies, of which Mr. Alderman Lusk is a member. These have been executed by Mr. D. T. Baker, the celebrated deaf and dumb artist.

The session of the Royal Geographical Society began on Monday night, a large and brilliant assemblage being present. Sir Bartle Frere presided; and Mr. Goschen, M.P., Lord Houghton, Sir H. Rawlinson, and Sir Rutherford Alcock were among the audience. The President referred to the illness of Sir S. Baker, and read a letter from Sir Samuel, written before his illness, in which he said—"The geographical part of my expedition has been meagre, as I have been so entirely engaged in establishing the government throughout the large territory annexed. The suppression of the slave trade, sometimes by force, at other times by diplomacy, has been an arduous and thankless task in Egypt. This was the chief object of the expedition; the geographical reports respecting a communication between the lakes were to me of great interest. There can be no doubt that Livingstone is quite out of the Nile basin, as there is not a single large tributary from the west throughout the entire of the Nile." It was hoped that this distinguished traveller would attend the meeting on Dec. 8. In his opening address the President referred to a letter recently published in the Times with reference to the imprisonment of Livingstone, and said that the ransom had already been sent, but Dr. Livingstone's friends were not disposed to trust entirely to the account without further information. Mr. Markham read a paper on the "Discoveries of the Polar Sea."

A S H A N T E E

S K E T C H E S.

WOMAN AND MAN OF GAMAN AND ASHANTER SOLDIER.

PRIESTS OR MAGICIANS INVOKING THE NATIONAL DEITIES.

THE RIVER FRAH AND THE FOREST OF ASSIN.

"PREPARING SPRING FLOWERS FOR MARKET," BY MESSRS. ROBINSON AND CHERRIL.
IN THE PHOTOGRAPHIC EXHIBITION.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

(From our Correspondent in Paris.)

Thursday, Nov. 6.

In the course of a single week the political situation has completely changed, and the National Assembly on its meeting had no longer to choose between the Monarchy and the Republic; the Count de Chambord, in a letter which will become historical, having formally refused the Crown, which the Fusionists were plotting to place upon his head. The Count was willing to become King, but unconditionally, and once and for all he declines to be the Monarch of the Revolution. The surprise and confusion which the publication of his manifesto excited in the ranks of the Fusionists were only equalled by the satisfaction expressed by the various sections of the Left, who thought that they might now demand the definitive constitution of the Republic.

On Monday delegates of the three groups of the Right were received by Marshal MacMahon, and impressed upon him the necessity of consenting to the prolongation of his powers; and on Tuesday M. Casimir-Perier had an interview with the President, and informed him that the Republicans accepted in principle this solution of the situation, but insisted that the Assembly should first of all discuss the constitutional laws presented by M. Thiers. Yesterday afternoon the Assembly met, and the session opened by the Duke de Broglie's mounting the tribune and reading the message of the President of the Republic, which, after mentioning that public security had not been troubled during the recess, and that France is at peace with the whole world, proceeded to state that order had been everywhere firmly maintained, thanks to the vigilance of functionaries of different political origin; while the Administration had invariably acted in accordance with the feelings and opinions animating the majority of the Assembly, which the Marshal intimated would never be departed from so long as the government was intrusted to him. While mentioning that material order had not been troubled, the President of the Republic admitted that great moral agitation at present prevailed. He then referred to the constitutional laws proposed by his predecessors, but was of opinion that in the present state of things it would be preferable to maintain the present Provisional Government. He invited the Assembly to make use of its power in the sense that it might think fit; but declared two things to be necessary in order that public security might be fully assured. "Whosoever," continued he "may be chief of the State, it is impossible for durable good to be accomplished if his authority is to be unceasingly questioned, and if his power is not sufficiently guaranteed to spare the country from all fruitless agitation. With a power, which may change from one moment to another, one may assure peace for to-day, but cannot guarantee the security of the morrow." The present Government, in the Marshal's opinion, lacks both authority and stability. The laws do not arm it with sufficient power to chastise the factious, or even to compel its own agents to obey it. The press corrupts the minds of the population with its violence; the elected municipalities forget that they are the organs of the law, and endeavour to subvert the central power. "You will think of all these perils," observed the Marshal, in conclusion, "and you will give to society a durable and strong executive power, able to defend it energetically, and to guarantee its future security."

This message has naturally caused intense sensation in Paris, and when its contents first became known on the boulevards, at about a quarter to seven last evening, excited groups assembled and commented upon it in decidedly hostile terms. The Cabinet is held responsible for it, and it is rumoured that the Marshal was with difficulty persuaded to acquiesce in some of the more reactionary passages.

Immediately after the reading of the Message to the Assembly proposals were submitted for prolonging the powers of the Marshal in their present form for a period of ten years. Directly afterwards Baron Eschasseraux brought forward, on behalf of the Bonapartists, a scheme for a vote by plébiscite on the Republican, Imperial, or Monarchical forms of government. "Urgency" was demanded for both these propositions; whereupon M. Dufaure required that the constitutional laws submitted by the Government of M. Thiers should be referred at the same time to the Committee. "I do not oppose 'urgency,'" continued he, "providing it comprises the three propositions. The agitation of France has been spoken of, but for three months there never had been a more tranquil country than ours. Suddenly, however, news was received of a visit to Frohsdorf, and of schemes connected with it, and in that the agitation originated. I thank the Count de Chambord for having given us cause for tranquillity in the letter which he has written. In providing the country, however, not with a fragmentary, but with a complete Government, you will have rendered it a still greater service than even the Count de Chambord."

M. Rouher and other deputies having addressed the Assembly, M. Grévy rose to speak in support of M. Dufaure's proposal, and energetically maintained there was no urgency to prolong the powers of the Marshal before the constitutional laws were voted, and that to do so would be an illegal and revolutionary act. The question of a regency was, however, carried by a large majority, and then M. Prax-Paris requested the Assembly likewise to vote "urgency" for the proposal of an appeal to the people. His motion was supported by all the various factions of the Left, M. Dufaure alone abstaining, as well as by the Bonapartist deputies; but the Conservatives succeeded in securing the narrow majority of fourteen votes, 348 deputies having voted for and 362 against the proposition. The Ministers are said to have resigned, to avoid unpleasant interpellations respecting their proceedings during the recess. They have, however, reserved to themselves the right of resuming office should circumstances render this proceeding necessary. For the moment one thing only appears tolerably certain—that the powers of Marshal MacMahon will be prolonged, and for the extreme period of ten years.

The first act of the Fusionists after the publication of the Count de Chambord's letter was to offer the Lieutenant-Général of the country to the Prince de Joinville, but the latter declined the proposition somewhat indignantly; and both the Count de Paris and the Duc d'Aumale have declined—for the present, at least—to meddle with political matters.

Until the result of the division in the Assembly became known the key of the situation was believed to be in the hands of the Bonapartists, just as it was on May 24. A dispute, however, had already arisen between the two parties apropos of the elections in the Aude, where M. Argence represents the Bonapartist cause and General Saussier that of the Republic. The Imperialists declare that the delegates of the Left formally promised them that M. Argence should not be opposed by any Republican candidate, and they are somewhat incensed at the sudden appearance of General Saussier at the eleventh hour. In the Manche the Republicans are represented by General Letellier-Valazé, an old friend of M. Thiers, who is almost certain to be returned by the electors.

Apropos of the part that the Generals are now playing in political matters, General Carré de Bellemare, best known by his unlucky participation in the siege of Paris during the war of 1870, has been placed on the retired list, for having written a letter denying the sovereignty of the National Assembly. The General commanded a sub-division in the south of France, and a few days before the Fusionist bubble burst wrote to the Minister of War informing him that he had heard a faction of reactionary deputies were attempting to restore the Monarchy in the person of the Count de Chambord. The General expressed his opinion that the intrigue would fall to the ground; but asked the Minister to have him removed from his post in the event of its triumphing, as he was firmly resolved to serve no other Government than that of the Republic. General du Barail replied to this pronouncement by placing him at once on the retired list; and Marshal MacMahon addressed an order of the day to the army calling attention to this grave act of insubordination, and expressing the hope that it would not be repeated. It is said that the General wrote the letter in question in reply to a circular from the Minister of War inviting him to abet the efforts of the Legitimist intriguers. More recently, General Chanzy has written a letter signifying his adhesion to the policy of the Left Centre.

A report drawn up by M. Magne, Minister of Finance, relative to the imposition of several new taxes and the increase of others already existing, has been published by the Journal Officiel. The Minister proposes to increase the taxes upon sugar, alcoholic liquors, salt, and the slow goods railway traffic; also to raise the duties upon judicial acts, commercial stamps, and cheques. He moreover suggests that a tax on candles, salts of soda, and mineral oils should be established. The deficit that these new impositions are required to meet amounts to nearly eight millions sterling.

The trial of Marshal Bazaine continues, and the sittings of Monday and Tuesday were remarkably animated. Colonel Dabsac, who was on MacMahon's Staff during the war, denied positively having been called upon in the night, between Aug. 25 and Aug. 26, to receive four despatches from Marshal Bazaine to Marshal MacMahon. But two police agents, named Rabasse and Mies, stood face to face with the Colonel in the witness-box, and declared they delivered him the despatches in question at the time stated by the prosecution. The scene was remarkably painful. The detectives flatly contradicted the Colonel over and over again, and entered into numerous details upon the matter. They said that a Lieutenant in his night shirt conducted them to the Colonel, who came out of his room also in his night-shirt. In corroboration of their statement they gave minute particulars concerning the interior of the house, which the Colonel himself admitted to be correct. The Duc d'Aumale proposed to subpoena the Lieutenant referred to, but it transpired that he is now in Burmah. On Tuesday Colonel Stoffel appeared before the Court. The same police agents asserted that they had brought him despatches from Marshal Bazaine, a statement which the Colonel indignantly denied, mentioning that they did not succeed in their attempt to reach Metz, and affirming that the only paper he received from them was a report relative to their unsuccessful mission. At the close of his evidence he turned towards the Government Commissary and said, "I am accused of having suppressed a despatch," when the President stopped him by remarking that he could not open a discussion on a document relative to which he only appeared as a witness, and that, if he felt himself aggrieved by any statements in the report, his best answer would be the exactitude of his evidence. The Colonel instantly rejoined that as far as the report was concerned he shared the general opinion of the army, which was one of supreme contempt for the author, General Rivière. A scene of great excitement ensued, the Colonel was ordered to withdraw, the police agents were re-examined and repeated their evidence, and finally M. Stoffel was invited to retract the insulting expressions he had applied to the reporter. This he formally declined to do, whereupon a procès-verbal of the incident was drawn up, and the Government Commissioner gave notice that he reserved to himself the right of instituting criminal proceedings against the Colonel, who was placed under arrest just as he was leaving Trianon.

ITALY.

The financial crisis has become so severe as to necessitate appeals to the Government from the principal chambers of commerce. The reply given is that immediate steps will be taken to reimburse part of the thirty million lire drawn from the bank, and thereby increase its capability of granting discounts. To go beyond this, says the Minister of Commerce, would be to infringe the prerogative of Parliament.

Three convents in Rome were taken possession of on Wednesday by the Government. In one case objections were raised by the occupants, but they were not persisted in, and everywhere the officials were courteously received, in obedience, it is believed, to instructions from the Vatican. Several members of religious orders who, before departing from Rome, went to call on the Pope, were plainly told by his Holiness that the suppression of religious corporations such as theirs was a visitation of Providence on those bodies for having allowed corrupt manners to creep in among them. The sale by auction of the ecclesiastical property in the province of Rome began on Tuesday at Viterbo, and was attended with satisfactory results. Father Secchi, of the order of Jesus, who retains the direction of the observatory at Rome, will receive from the Government much more extensive accommodation than he had, a salary of 10,000 lire annually, and two paid assistants.

GERMANY.

The mortal remains of King John of Saxony were deposited, on the 30th ult., in the tomb of the Saxon Monarchs, situated in the Royal Catholic Church, Dresden. Besides King Albert and Prince George of Saxony, there were present the German Crown Prince, representing the Emperor William; Prince Alfred of England, representing Queen Victoria; Archduke Charles Louis of Austria, as representative of the Emperor Francis Joseph; and the Grand Duke of Baden, the Hereditary Duke of Saxe-Weimar, the Dukes of Saxe-Altenburg and Saxe-Meiningen, Prince Augustus of Coburg, the Prince of Schwarzburg, and the Princes of Reuss.

The Prussian Diet is convoked for the 12th inst. So far as has been ascertained, the elections of members to the Diet have resulted in the return of a vast majority of National Liberals.

Count Koenigsmarck, the Minister of Agriculture, has resigned his post. He is to be succeeded by Herr von Blanckenburg, one of the most intimate friends of Prince Bismarck.

At the Cabinet Council held yesterday week the Prussian Government resolved formally to summon the refractory Bishops to resign their offices. Bishop Reinkens has applied for official recognition to the Governments of Bavaria and Hesse.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

The Emperor Francis Joseph opened the session of the Austrian Reichsrath in person on Wednesday. In the Speech from the Throne several important financial measures were promised, and also bills dealing with the relations between the Catholic Church and the State. Reference was made in terms of satisfaction to the results of the Exhibition, and to the visits of neighbouring Sovereigns to Vienna, which have increased the pledges of peace and strengthened the influence of Austria. The speech was received with great enthusiasm.

With very little ceremony, the Vienna Exhibition was closed on Sunday. The singing of the National Anthem and a few responsive cheers from the crowd in the Prater marked the termination of an eventful season. The number of visitors to the Exhibition from the opening day to the close was 7,254,687, of whom 2,196,360 entered without payment.

CANADA.

By a Reuter's telegram from Ottawa of the 5th inst. we learn that, after a debate on the Address extending over eight sittings in the House of Commons, the Government, to avoid a direct vote of censure, has resigned, and Lord Dufferin has sent for Mr. Mackenzie to form a new Cabinet.

The international railway bridge connecting the Grand Trunk and Great Western Railways of Canada with the American system was opened on Monday with appropriate ceremonies.

AMERICA.

Returns received up to the present time in New York show that the Republicans have sustained heavy losses in the State elections. The Republican candidates have been successful in Missouri, but in Kansas the case is doubtful.

The injurious effects of the financial crisis on the railway interest are beginning to manifest themselves. On Monday the names of ten defaulters in connection with railway speculation were announced on the New York Stock Exchange; and a Tuesday's telegram from the same city informs us that ten American railway companies have failed to pay the November interest on their bonds, which represent an aggregate capital of 30,000,000 dols.

INDIA.

The Viceroy, accompanied by Sir R. Temple and Mr. Chapman, arrived at Calcutta yesterday week. His Excellency at once conferred with the Lieutenant-Governor respecting the measures to be adopted to provide against distress in the districts which are threatened by famine. Meanwhile more cheering news comes from the famine-threatened districts of Bengal. Rain has fallen in several parts; and the railways have, at the request of the Government, lowered their rates for transport. Relief works will be begun wherever employment fails. The Viceroy has decided not to hold darbars, as was intended, at Agra and Lucknow. He will, however, visit both places, and receive the native princes and chiefs, but without being accompanied by large camps.

JAPAN.

Japanese politics are, it would seem, very unsettled, and much discontent accompanies the uncertainty. Important changes have been made in the Ministry at Jeddo, and Iwamura is acting as Prime Minister.

The Servian Ministry has been removed from office, and a new Cabinet has been formed.

The Belgian Monetary Commission has determined to adopt a gold standard.

Feiz Bey has been appointed Prefect of Stamboul, and has been replaced by Salim-Effendi as Director of Telegraphs.

The Dean of Natal, we learn by the Cape mail, has been committed for trial on a charge of erasing a name from a marriage register.

The cable between Vigo and Lisbon has been repaired, and communication is thus re-established between England, Portugal, Alexandria, and India.

It is announced from Rio that the Dundonald claims against the Brazilian Government have been arbitrated upon by the American and Italian Ministers. The gross amount of the award was nearly £40,000.

Commodore Commerell's family have received letters from the Cape as late as Oct. 9. They state that he had been able to leave his bed, and to sit for a short time in the drawing-room at Admiralty House.

At Amsterdam the Dutch have been celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of their Constitution. Many houses were decorated on Monday, and at night a banquet was held at the Palace of Industry.

There has been a large fire at Constantinople, in which forty houses were burnt down; and another at Auckland, in New Zealand, where property of the value of £60,000 has been destroyed.

Sub-Lieutenant M'Cauland, of her Majesty's ship Daphne, having been killed by the natives on the east coast of Africa while cruising after slavers near Brava, boat-crews from the Daphne and the Briton have destroyed the village inhabited by the assailants of that officer, and killed several of the residents.

The movements in ships from the action of the waves have lately been the subject of able investigation by Mr. Fronde and others, and a series of methodical observations on the subject has been made on board the ship Norfolk, just arrived in London from Melbourne, by the aid of self-registering instruments devised by Mr. Spencer Deverele, of Portland, Victoria.

The Peruvian Amazon Exploring Commission have made a report on their work. It dwells chiefly on the climate and the prevailing diseases on the banks of the several branches of the Amazon. Disease prevailed largely among the natives, both adults and children, through an extraordinary tendency to yield to a desire to eat earth. It was common also to find children of three years smoking, and not averse to native rum.

The report of the proceedings of the University of Melbourne for the year ending May, 1873, has been presented to the Parliament of Victoria. It appears from the report that during the year 428 candidates presented themselves for the matriculation examination, of whom 229 passed. Thirteen passed with credit, including two ladies. In the year 1871-2 there were 249 candidates, of whom 121 passed.

At the sitting of the International Tonnage Commission in Constantinople, on Tuesday, the motion brought forward by the Dutch delegate for maintaining the present English system of measurement was supported by all the members except the French and Russian, who abstained from voting. The former had previously entered a protest against the mode in which the subject had been discussed and withdrawn from the deliberations.

The Journal of Applied Science states that the Austrian Minister of Commerce has organised schools for glass-spinning in the principal seats of the glass manufacture in Bohemia according to the improved system of Brunant, of Vienna. Several years ago spun glass was introduced into certain woven articles in this country, to give lustre and brilliancy; but the combination was found to be unsatisfactory in many respects, chiefly from the brittleness of the glass. This defect would now appear to have been in a great measure surmounted. The spun threads, which are as fine as a filament of silk, are almost as soft and elastic, and the threads are woven into shawls, neckties, carpets, dresses, and many other articles.

CHANGES IN JAPAN.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

It would be difficult to find in the history of any country a parallel to the recent revolution in Japan. The most radical changes have been made, and the wonderful transformation still goes on. The Tycoon, who was the visible representative of the Government, has been entirely done away with; the old feudal system of the Daimios has also been swept away. In place of their retainers, who formed the military power of the country, there is now an army drilled on the French system, and directly under the orders of the Mikado or his Government. Buddhism—whose votaries were as numerous as that of the Shintoo faith—has been disestablished, after having existed for more than a thousand years in the country. Religious toleration has been declared; but a Seventh Day of Rest is now the law. Telegraphic wires extend over the whole country; one line of railway is already in operation from Jeddo to Yokohama, and another line is nearly finished from Kobé to Osaka, and these will be extended over the whole of Japan. The European almanack has been adopted; English timepieces are at the railway stations; the Roman alphabet is to be the written and printed character instead of the Chinese. In fact, everything European is being adopted, as fast as ships through the Suez Canal or from San Francisco can bring these novelties. No Eastern—and, it might be added, no Western—nation ever made such a sudden and complete change in their system as that which is now taking place in Nippon, which is the name by which the Japanese know the principal island of their own empire. The Mikado is now the real head of the Government; and, instead of being shrouded and invisible under the mystery of religious sanctity, he appears before the people, and officiates in public acts. In person he opened the first railway, and has received a deputation with an address from the Yokohama Chamber of Commerce. Rumour says that he has given up all the attractions of a large harem at Miako, the old capital of Japan, and lives at Jeddo with his wife. All this contrasts strangely with the state of affairs at Pekin, as revealed in the details of the late marriage, the diplomatic relations between the Emperor and the representatives of the Western Powers, and the continued opposition to the introduction of telegraphs and railways into any part of China.

The first thing which arrests the eye of a visitor to any of the Japanese ports is the change of costume which has taken place. As yet the women have made no alteration in their old and picturesque dress, and some time must elapse before all the men can accomplish the change; but the number who have already, either partly or altogether, transformed themselves is very considerable. The great majority have only as yet managed to adopt one or two articles of European attire, and they present a striking, and at times even a laughable, appearance. Wideawake felt hats are in great demand—shipments of them cannot be made fast enough. When a Japanese dons one of them he seems to feel that he is far advanced in the new state of things. It was not the custom here to wear anything on the head: the crown was shaven, and the hair on the back was tied into a small queue and fixed with gum in some way, so that it projected forward on the crown. One of the first changes generally made is to grow the hair, and comb and brush it after the manner of the Europeans; having reached this point, the Japanese is ready for a hat. Wideawakes and Glengarry bonnets are the predominating styles. The Inverness cape is a great favourite, the reason being that it has loose, wide sleeves, something like their own old costume.

I send you a sketch which will illustrate the old and this new state of things. One figure represents the former costume untouched by any European influence. His easy-fitting coat of blue cotton has on its back some strange shapes or characters, looking like the heraldic blazoning of past times. His crown is shaven, and the small queue-like tuft has the appearance of a miniature cannon on top. His legs are bare, and for shoes he has straw sandals. Contrast this man with the others in the picture. They are all sketched from life at Yokohama. The gentleman with the Glengarry has completely transformed himself, so much so that anyone would suppose him to be a European. He has an Albert chain, and a watch in his pocket—the probability is that he belongs to some of the Government offices in Yokohama. Another figure has the wideawake and a pair of shoes—both ends of the man are altered, but all between is Japanese. An older man may be seen in the picture; he has adopted the Inverness cape—this is in winter, and it is a warm article of costume—but he still retains the old mode of wearing the hair. The figure on the extreme right is a policeman. The force here are dressed in neatly-made black clothes, of a military cut, the shoulder straps suggesting that it is after an American model. The hat, although black in colour, is evidently copied from the Indian topi. The female figures, as before stated, are as yet unchanged; but there are rumours of the ladies belonging to some of the better classes of Japanese society, that they are making inquiries into the mysteries of European ladies' attire; and if the wonderful changes which have taken place are pursued, there is little doubt as to the fate of the picturesque costume of the Japanese women. French fashions now rule among the harems of Stamboul, and it will not be long till it is the same at Jeddo.

In passing through the inland sea the steamer stops at Kobé. We went on shore there, and saw the new line of railway being made to Osaka. It is now well advanced, and is to be opened this year. In a walk through the place I came upon a sketch which is characteristic of the present era of change in Japan. It was a Japanese trying on his first pair of boots. It is told of a celebrated Eastern traveller that he tried to pass himself off as an Arab and a follower of the Prophet. He was of a dark complexion—the tropical sun had burnt his skin; a dress bought in the bazaars of Cairo completed the disguise. His knowledge of Arabic was perfect, and his pronunciation of its strange guttural sounds was beyond the chance of fault-finding. He could go through all the prayers, with the many changes of position, in the most orthodox manner. He was well up in Mohammedan theology, and could make most appropriate quotations from the Koran on all occasions. Under such circumstances, he considered himself secure from detection; but one day an Arab pointed to his toes and told him he was a Frank and must have worn boots, and putting his own foot forward, the truth of his words became evident. A foot that has never had a shoe on it has the toes spreading outward like a fan. All Europeans have their toes squeezed upon one another in proportion to the tightness of the boots they may have worn. This will convey an idea of the struggle a Japanese has to get on his first pair of boots, and the pain he must have in his toes till he gets accustomed to them. Japanese shoes—I mean those formerly worn—ought rather to be called clogs or pattens. They are of wood, and made to raise the feet about two or three inches above the ground. When stockings are worn they only reach to the ankles, and have a separate space for the big toe; this admits the straps of the clogs, which pass up between the big toe and the one next to it. The strap divides, one part going behind on each side of the foot, and by this simple means the clog is held on. It will be seen from this that the toes, like those of the Arab, have not been "cribbed, cabined, and confined." The Illustration shows the change which is taking place, and one may easily prophesy the introduction of a new form of disease into Japan as a result; corns are a certainty.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

VIENNA, Monday, Nov. 3.

The great Universal Exhibition of 1873 has ceased to live. The closing ceremony—if so it may be termed—occurred yesterday afternoon at four o'clock, and was of the simplest character. The Archduke Carl Ludwig, standing with one of his brothers, Baron Schwarz-Senborn, and the leading functionaries connected with the Exhibition, on the steps of the south portal, solemnly declared the Wiener Weltausstellung to be now ended; three military bands stationed close by struck up the national anthem, the people cheered vociferously, and a few hours later the hundred and one entrances to the gorgeous Palace of the Prater closed on the public for the last time.

It remains for us to describe the Oriental courts of the Industrial Palace, and to call attention to the more striking annexes which throng the grounds, and thereby close our account of the most gigantic exhibition which the world has ever seen, as well as the most perfect. While describing the Turkish section, last week, I neglected to call attention to the Sultan's treasure-house, an iron kiosk with massive folding-doors of the same material, and imposing flights of stone steps, standing in an open court between the two corner pavilions which finish off the Exhibition buildings to the south-east. The chief object of the wonderful collection (valued at £8,000,000 sterling) which will be found inside is unquestionably the far-famed throne of Nadir Shah, of oval shape, standing on four massive legs, and more resembling a short couch than a throne. It is made of lemon-wood, with a gold rim 6 in. in height running round it, the whole surface being covered with garlands of flowers and arabesques in pearls, rubies, and emeralds. Hanging above the throne is the chain-armour and Persian helmet of Mourad I Ghazi, the first of the European Sultans, the clasps, armlets, and gauntlets of the former being exquisitely chased, and inlaid with gold and precious stones, while the latter has its turban of muslin and cloth of gold, secured by a magnificent clasp of diamonds and rubies, in the centre of which flashes a sapphire of the size of a pigeon's egg. There are, moreover, numerous jars, dishes, and flasks, in old Chinese and Japanese porcelain, in jade, crystal, silver, and gold, the latter all richly ornamented with precious stones; after which come the swords, shields, and battleaxes, displayed in a handsome case to the right of the entrance. Every one of these weapons would be a treasure to any collection, for they have all belonged to one or another celebrated Sultan. There is the blade of old Damascus black steel which Timur the Lame once wielded, and a scimitar with a dingy hilt of yellowish ivory which belonged to Mahomet II., the famous conqueror of Constantinople. Then there are helmets adorned with rubies and turquoises, shields with diamond studs, poniards with emerald handles, golden quivers and golden saddle-cloths resplendent with jewels, and breast-pieces and bridles ornamented with coral and lapis lazuli.

The transition from Turkey to Egypt is readily effected. The ancient kingdom of the Pharaohs makes, however, no striking display in the Industrial Palace itself, the Khedive's commission having seemingly neglected this portion of their exhibition to secure the success of the wonderful palace and mosque erected in the park. The display within the Palace mainly consists of natural products, among which cereals and cotton are exhibited in profusion. There are also several stands of quaintly-shaped, bright-coloured pottery, some exquisite Oriental furniture, costumes, and jewellery, a model of the Isthmus of Suez, a lifelike portrait of the Viceroy, together with a curious series of costumed figures representing every caste and class of Egyptian society.

Proceeding westwards from Egypt, we enter the transverse gallery where Tunis and Morocco have their display. In the Tunisian section we encounter an extremely curious collection of Carthaginian coins and medals, dating not merely from the days of Hannibal, but almost from the foundation of the great African Republic. Then come shattered bas-reliefs and fragments of statues removed from the ruins over which Marius mourned, and to which succeed a brilliant display of carpets, silks, and shawls of much the same character as those displayed in the Turkish court. In the centre of the Tunisian gallery rises a kind of Mauresque pavilion, with curious little diamond-paned, latticed windows, representing the interior of a rich Tunisian's drawing-room. The furniture, which is painted red and profusely gilded, is remarkably heavy and of a very primitive shape. Trophies of arms, vases, and pipes decorate this saloon, in which three costumed figures, in the act of taking coffee, are seated.

The Emperor of Morocco has contributed some marvellous saddles, covered with cloth of gold and enriched with precious stones, to the court where his subjects make their semi-barbaric display. The latter, which resembles in many respects the Tunisian show, comprises some very handsome firearms, the stocks of which are inlaid with silver and incrustated with diamonds, emeralds, and rubies. In front of the Morocco court will be found the gallery reserved for Persia. There is every reason to believe that the Shah at his visit was highly discontented when he compared the display made by his commission with that of even the smaller European Powers. Excepting her carpets, which are marvels of taste and beauty, and are unsurpassed by any nation in the world, Persia shows nothing particularly striking. Her silks are of no great account, her metalwork is inferior to that of other Oriental States, and her porcelain and pottery will certainly not bear comparison with those of China and Japan.

The Chinese exhibition is the result of the joint efforts of Mr. Hart, Inspector-General of the Maritime Customs of Hong-Kong, and Chevalier von Overbeck, the Chinese-Austrian Consul. The display made by the latter, which consists of silks, porcelain, and every variety of fancy articles and nick-nack, forms a kind of native bazaar, and the presence of a few Chinamen alone is wanting to convey the impression that one is in the Celestial Empire itself. Mr. Hart's collection has been very carefully arranged, and is accompanied by a catalogue, which is, in reality, a series of elaborate notes illustrating the different objects exhibited. Besides innumerable China vases, plates, dishes, and the like, one finds here specimens of coal, pig-iron, straw plaits for summer hats (largely exported to America), with samples of the fine clay—wonderfully soft to the touch, and rubbing off like light white soap upon the fingers—employed in the porcelain manufacture. Next come spirits made of millet and rice, and an exhaustive assortment of the native pharmacopoeia, containing, among other sovereign specifics, toads and lizards and beetles and spiders. Here, too, one finds some genuine breechloaders, rifles as well as field-guns—one of the latter as large as a six-pounder, and of a type dating probably several centuries back.

Upon entering the Japanese court, the eye is immediately struck by a monster dolphin in brass, with his tail swaying in the air and his head plunging beneath the blue calico waves artistically arranged around. Suspended from the roof hang a couple of gigantic lanterns, covered with eccentric designs, and easily mistakable for balloons. Behind the dolphin stands a lacquered cabinet, wrought in ebony and ivory, and inlaid with exquisitely minute plaques of gold and silver; while in front of the latter are some rudely-carved figures, supposed to simulate horses, to which bridles and saddles of quaint design have been adjusted. Beside them stand a couple of grim Japanese warriors, armed with swords and shields, and attired in suits of armour. At no great distance off hang towels and handkerchiefs bordered with imitation coral branches, an old specialty of the country, and admirably illustrative of the elaborate character of the workmanship which the Japanese bestow on their commonest articles. The walls of the court are covered with coloured sketches of great originality, in some of which strange-looking fishes are disporting themselves in water, while in others flights of birds stream through the air, the easy movement of their pinions being admirably indicated. Monkeys with comical faces, turkeys and gamecocks swaggering in their seraglios, horses that vaguely resemble giraffes, and pugs-dogs with hideous human countenances figure in some of these sketches, all of which indicate a strong sense of the ludicrous on the part of the artists who designed them.

In the centre of the gallery is the porcelain, comprising some beautiful specimens of the so-called Satsuma ware, the characteristics of which are a soft ivory glaze, with minute waving lines and admirably realistic flowers. Next comes the Kago ware (with tints of brilliant red, and handles formed of elephants' heads with pendent trunks), the vases and tazas of which are plentifully adorned with lizards crawling up the sides among waving foliage and interlacing boughs, and dragons curling themselves up as if about to spring upon their unsuspecting prey. The specimens of metal-work—the intricate repousse of which must have demanded incalculable labour—are alike artistic and elaborate. Bronze vases, jars, cabinets, coffins, incense-burners, models of pagodas, and figures of grinning demons abound on every side; and the display of many-hued silks and delicately-embroidered stuffs of endless variety of pattern is not only extensive, but remarkably beautiful as well.

Leaving the Japanese section, and issuing from the eastern doorway of the palace, decorated with statues of Art and Science, one finds oneself in face of the Fine-Arts Pavilion, where countless chefs-d'œuvre, contributed by all the nations of Europe, are displayed, and the mere enumeration of which would require a volume. The British gallery, though small, contains several splendid examples of dead, and numerous admirable specimens contributed by living artists. France, however, carries off the palm. Whoever has visited the Paris Salon of late years will recognise many of the finest works exhibited in the French gallery at Vienna, which occupies one third of the entire annexe. One of the attractions of the collection is undoubtedly Meissonier's "Charge de Cuirassiers," unfortunately in an unfinished state, but of which the composition is remarkably bold and the execution at once vigorous and minute. Austria displays many excellent works, and Germany contributes the best examples of her various schools, the place of honour being accorded to "The Triumph of Germanicus," a grand allegorical composition, which, in spite of its faults, has much to commend it to our admiration.

As for the annexes which stud the park, their name is legion. In that part of the grounds facing the south portal one finds the bureaux of the Imperial Commission, and the post and telegraph offices, together with the jury pavilion and the one set aside for the Imperial family. The latter, of which you have already published a representation, comprises a vestibule and four salons, the one reserved for the Empress being remarkably elegant. The carpets are blue, woven in gold, the ceilings, doors, and panels are white and gold, and nothing can be lighter and more delicate in effect. To the left of the south portal will be found several huge Austrian beerhalls and restaurants, an Hungarian "Weinhaus," an American bar, a Swedish school, a Swiss confectionery, a Gothic mausoleum, and the pavilions of the Prince of Monaco and of the Neue Freie Presse, the popular Viennese newspaper. Turning eastwards, one comes upon the Italian and Russian restaurants, the Russian pavilion, the restaurant of the Frères Provençaux, the Austrian savings bank, the Styrian Weinhaus, and the Indian wigwam—the two latter being hidden in a picturesque forest glade. A few steps further and we reach the Place Mozart, the most popular corner of the grounds. Here are the Viceroy of Egypt's palace and mosque, with their towering minarets and lemon-coloured cupolas, embellished with streaks of red; and here is the so-called Music Hall, where, when the weather was warm, Strauss's orchestra used to perform the "Schönen blauen Donau" and other popular airs of an afternoon, amid thunders of applause. Close to the Viceroy's pavilion is the Japanese village, with its funny little temples and houses, and its garden, through which runs a tiny little rivulet spanned by a rustic bridge; the banks of which are adorned with some curious artificial rockwork and grotesque Japanese monsters in bronze and stone. Not far off is the Moorish villa, facing which stands the Shah of Persia's pavilion, surmounted by the conventional Lion and Sun, its front, formed of coloured glass mosaic in Mr. Defries's most approved style, scintillating all the colours of the rainbow whenever the sun ventured out from behind the clouds. Near at hand are the Turkish bazaar, the Turkish dwelling-house, and the Oriental Club, where the Viennese delighted to sip real Mocha and smoke Macedonian tobacco out of Oriental pipes.

In the rear of the Fine-Art Annexe are a variety of peasants' houses, with low slanting roofs, well weighted with stones. The Tyrol, Styria, Cracovia, and Hungary—all the provinces of Austria, in fact—are represented here. Beside the hovel of the Ruthene peasant of Eastern Galicia, with its scanty primitive furniture and stiff pictures of saints, is the chalet of the Vorarlberg, with its carved façade and projecting eaves and gables; next come the substantial residence of the Saxon peasant of Transylvania, looking, with its rose-coloured walls and green shutters, more like a small town house than a village dwelling; and the low, thatched homestead of the Szeckler, such as one finds on the outskirts of the Carpathians towards Moldavia.

The more important structures on the northern side of the Exhibition, which include the British pavilion, the German annexes, Prince Schwarzenberg's chalet, the western and eastern agricultural halls, innumerable restaurants and beerhalls, and several highly-interesting exhibitions of mining and forest industrial products, which have been previously alluded to. Behind the machinery hall are a multitude of gas-factories, boiler-houses, railway pavilions and cloak-rooms, and other constructions having greater claims to utility than adornment.

Seven ships were, on Tuesday evening, prevented at Aberdeen from going to sea by the Board of Trade.

Mr. Miall, M.P. for Bradford, has intimated his intention of resigning his seat for that borough at the close of the present Parliament, on account of ill-health.

THE SURRENDER OF KHIVA.—FROM A

SKETCHES IN JAPAN, BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST: THE OLD AND THE NEW, OR CHANGE OF COSTUME IN JAPAN.

BY A RUSSIAN OFFICER.

SKETCHES IN JAPAN, BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST: THE FIRST PAIR OF BOOTS.

The Extra Supplement.

"BIDE A WEE!"

The humorous little scene of a boy with a dog, which Mr. Fyfe has imagined in this amusing picture, makes an appeal to our recognition of the fellow-feeling between mankind and the companionable domestic animals. This is nowhere shown in a more emphatic manner, than when they feed in turn out of one and the same dish. But the office of apportioning their respective shares belongs of right to the human porridge-eater, as the more rational creature and the proper host on this occasion, master of their simple meal. "Bide a wee!" he says in good Scotch talk, with his finger uplifted in gentle admonition, to the impatient collie that stands ready for a joyful lick at the milky mess in his half-emptied bowl. We are pleased to see them such trusty friends, and we hope there is enough for the hungry appetite of both. Next, indeed, to being well fed, a boy needs to be warmly and decently clothed; and we cannot but hope that this Scottish laddie will be supplied with a new pair of trousers before his next public appearance on the painter's canvas.

THE SURRENDER OF KHIVA.

It will be remembered that the Russian military expedition, commanded by General Kaufmann, against the Tartar principality of Khiva, in Central Asia, was attended by one special newspaper correspondent, who served the New York Herald. We are indebted to that gentleman, Mr. MacGahan, for placing at our disposal a sketch taken on the spot by a Russian officer, which shows the actual scene at the surrender of the town in May last. This sketch represents the entry of General Kaufmann into the Grand Place before the palace of the Khan. The large tower to the left is constructed of brick, enamelled outside with a kind of terra-cotta, almost as smooth as porcelain, and beautifully designed in a brilliant sky-blue, with dark green, purple, and brown, on a white ground, having a very beautiful effect. It is from the top of this tower that the people are called to prayer, and here, every evening at sunset, may be heard the "Oh yes! it is He: God is great! there is no god but God!" of the Mussulmans. The gate in the middle is the door of the palace, which extends from the large tower to the old tower on the right. This is a kind of watch-tower, and forms a corner of the harem, of which it overlooks all the courts, entries, and walls; it is always occupied by one or two sentinels of the Khan. It affords a view, indeed, of the whole city. The building behind the grand tower is a new Medressah, built of very good brick, which makes some pretension to architectural beauty, as does also the mosque, on the left of which a part of the dome is seen. In the middle foreground, where are the native figures, is the entry to another Medressah opposite the palace, not seen in the design. The two smaller towers behind and a little to the right of the palace gate or door flank on each side the grand hall of state, or vestibule, one whole side of which opens to the north into the grand court of the palace. It is here that the Khan transacts his business of State, and immediately behind it is the room containing his treasures. The palace is entirely constructed of mud. It is windowless, and full of dark rooms and corridors. The medressahs and mosques have far more architectural merit than this palace.

THE MAGAZINES.

The strength of the Cornhill consists this month in the miscellaneous essays, though the interest of "Zelda's Fortune" is well sustained, and many readers will admire the hard, cynical cleverness of "Young Brown." With considerable wit, the author has too little geniality to be a humourist, and the pleasantness of his impersonation of a clergyman of the old school in Dr. Porteous is too laboured to be agreeable. The most important contribution is decidedly the very interesting article on the "Farmers' Granges" of the United States—the combination by means of which the western farmers are endeavouring to gain the control of the Legislature, and to coerce the railway companies into carrying agricultural produce at cheaper rates. The relation of corporate bodies like railway companies to the State is evidently coming forward as the paramount question of the day in America. When we read of corn being actually used as fuel, from the impracticability of taking it to market at a remunerative price, it is impossible not to feel the greatest sympathy for the producer, whose cause, in fact, is equally that of the European consumer. At the same time, the movement appears to have occasioned a dangerous tampering with the faith of public contracts, and to have developed a hostility to the rights of property surprising on the part of so conservative and law-abiding a class as the American agriculturists. It may be hoped that they will eventually perceive that the protective system is at the bottom of most of their grievances. "Growth and Decay of Mind" is a very interesting study on the capability of the mind to assimilate new ideas after a certain period, and on the phenomena of "unconscious cerebration." The writer of "Pope as a Moralist" seasonably directs attention to the soundness and frequent sublimity of Pope's ethical teaching, in no respect diminished by the revelations recently made respecting some questionable passages in his private conduct. "The Public Schools Again" is an able indirect plea for the masters' side in the recent controversy respecting the proposed enhancement of fees at Eton. The writer, however, indulges in mere generalities, and shrinks from bringing the question to the conclusive test of figures.

"A Princess of Thule," in Macmillan, fully maintains its liveliness and variety, although the interest of the situation, reculant pour mieux sauter, has been temporarily suffered to abate. Mr. Rowsell's suggestions on the Civil Service will command great weight, from the ability and experience of the author no less than from his candour and impartiality. Some light is thrown on the question of temporary appointments to writerships by the revelation that Government—by its own laches, no doubt—has engaged the wrong class of men, and naturally, though inequitably, kicks on finding itself saddled with claims from which it had fancied itself exempt. The suggestion that appointments to inferior grades should be left to the discretion of heads of departments will, we believe, command the assent of all practically acquainted with the administration of the service. "Spanish Life and Character" is the first of what promises to be a very attractive series of papers on phases of human life always picturesque, and whose picturesqueness is at present enhanced by the relaxation of restraint incident to a period of anarchy. Mr. W. Simpson contributes a brief but pregnant paper on the strange jargon known as "pigeon English," which, adducing the partly parallel instance of Hindustani, he seriously considers destined to become the lingua franca of the Celestial Empire. The dialects of the various provinces are, it appears, mutually unintelligible, and there is a fine chance for a speech distinguished by concise energy, however deficient in the niceties of grammatical refinement. A version of Longfellow's "Excelsior" (Sino-anglice "topside galow") affords an amusing specimen of the elegancies and capabilities of this language of the future.

Fraser opens with an essay on Jonathan Edwards by Mr. Leslie Stephen. The combination in this great writer of the sternest Calvinism and tenders mysticism, of inflexible logic and palpable inconsistency, render his intellectual character very difficult to delineate. Mr. Stephen, however, is probably correct in maintaining that his natural affinities were with the system of Spinoza. Mr. F. W. Newman contests the Homeric authorship of the "Odyssey"—not on the weighty critical grounds which he might have assigned, but on that of the moral inferiority of the hero to the Ulysses of the "Iliad." We confess we see little weight in this objection. The circumstances of the two actions are dissimilar, and in each case the poet is not to be conceived as creating a character, but as working upon a traditional pattern, determined by the nature of a sequence of incidents not invented by himself. "St. Symeon Salos" is an amusing account of a madman, or more probably scoundrel, who has found his way into the calendar through an oversight of Cardinal Baronius, and of whom—Papal infallibility having indorsed the error—there is now no getting rid. What adds insult to injury is that he is not only a scandal to the Latin Church, but a scandalous Greek. Part 2 of the essay on the Indian Civil Service is devoted to an accurate description and a well-merited eulogium of the labours and services of that body. "Sissipara" is a gorgeous picture of the scenery of the Koondah range, in Southern India.

Blackwood continues "The Parisians," and has a short separate story in its own peculiar vein, "The Missing Bills: an Unsolved Mystery." It is a tale of the supernatural, in which, however, the artifice of construction is somewhat too apparent. "Temper" is a pleasing and sensible essay. In a disquisition on the Government and the Education Bill the writer admits the Act of 1870 to be a very fair one—an admission which would hardly have been made if it had been supposed that the Administration intended to adhere to it. The tone of his lucubration, however, is milder than usual, and evidently hints at that alliance of the Conservatives and the old Whigs recommended in the recent remarkable article in the Quarterly.

The Contemporary Review has many interesting papers. Mr. Montague Cookson—an exception for the present to the usual Conservatism of lawyers in large practice—depicts the contrast of the spurious Conservative reaction with the substantially Liberal tendencies of the age in a manner which will not gratify the eulogists of the former. The Rev. O. Shipley's essay on confession and the Bishops should admonish the latter right reverend personages how, from the force of habit or other causes, they indulge in pious platitudes in the discussion of matters of business. On the strength of some expressions of this kind Mr. Shipley very ingeniously makes them out to have recognised the principle of auricular confession. In an acute criticism on Butler's "Analogy," the Rev. John Hunt points out the limited scope of that celebrated treatise, even in the contemplation of the author himself. There are a very favourable critique of Mr. Buchanan's poems, a very severe one of Ouida's novels, and an account of the present condition of ecclesiastical affairs in Holland, where a reaction seems to have set in towards moderate Calvinism.

The Fortnightly Review contains a very important paper by Mr. J. G. Fitch, formerly an inspector of schools, in reply to the statistics adduced by Mr. Payne, and employed by Mr. Morley, to demonstrate the deficiencies of our educational system. Mr. Fitch shows that these are to a large extent fallacious, and powerfully enforces the duty of all friends of public education to accept the present system as a settlement of difficulties in principle, and to labour for its completion by the general establishment of school boards and the application of compulsion. It is, indeed, imperative that this advice should be acted upon, now that the growth of a determination to keep down the educational rate at any cost is making itself so unpleasantly apparent. Mr. Galt's discussion of "The Purchase of the Railways by the State" appears, on the whole, favourable to the project. Mr. Herbert Spencer offers cogent, if not always convincing, arguments on behalf of some of his opinions which have been impugned; and there are three good literary papers—Mr. Brodribb's essay on Plutarch's ethical writings; Mr. Myers's cordial but not indiscriminating tribute of admiration to Mr. Jebb's powers as a translator of English poetry into the classical languages; last, and principally, Mr. Symonds's "Popular Songs of Tuscany," with exquisite renderings of compositions which affect the mind as music, colours, and perfume affect the senses.

The Month's article on the Tien-Tsin massacre raises the difficult question how far European Governments are bound to protect nuns and other persons individually worthy of sympathy and esteem, but whose misguided superstition, indulged with utter recklessness of all secular considerations, is continually threatening to involve the protecting Power in proceedings incompatible with its feelings of humanity and justice. There is nothing else of much interest in the number, except an anti-Bismarckian review of General La Marmor's pamphlet.

The spirited novel, "Mr. Carington," appears nearing its termination in St. Pauls, where the humours of the "Cynic," under his various disguises, are perhaps becoming somewhat tedious from repetition. There is real depth of reflection in the Hon. Roden Noel's essay on Byron, chiefly in the moral aspects of his genius; and there is exquisite pathos and delicacy in a seemingly insignificant scrap of verse from the Norwegian poet and novelist Bjørnstjerne Bjørnson.

The most important among the miscellaneous excerpts of the Transatlantic is the reply, copied from the "Galaxy," of Mr. Welles, Secretary of the Navy in President Lincoln's Administration, to some remarks in Mr. Adams's funeral oration on Mr. Seward, in which Mr. Lincoln was compared unfavourably with the latter. No competent judge, we believe, will question that, whatever the inferiority of the President to his versatile secretary in the extent of knowledge and the amenities of diplomatic intercourse, he far surpassed him in all the essential qualifications of a statesman. In Temple Bar we have chiefly to notice the continuation of Major Melville's fiction, and in the Gentleman's Magazine those of the lively novels of Mr. Hatton and Mr. Baker Hopkins. Tinsley, Belgravia, and the Argosy are fairly entertaining, without special features. We learn with much regret from a paper in London Society that the beautiful frescoes executed some years since by Mr. Rossetti and his friends at the hall of the Oxford Union Society are in danger of perishing, from the unwillingness of the society to expend the trifling sum required to ensure their preservation. The statement seems incredible.

We have also to acknowledge Good Words, the Monthly Packet, the Victoria Magazine, Once a Week, the Sunday Magazine, the St. James's Magazine, and Cassell's Magazine.

The winter session of the Edinburgh School of Medicine was begun, on Monday, by a lecture from Dr. G. W. Balfour.

A movement is on foot in Dublin, at the instance of the Royal Dublin Society, to introduce a system of electro-sympathetic clocks, one standard clock for the city being maintained in the Royal Dublin Society, correct within the fraction to a second by a daily signal from Greenwich.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

There is a palpable effort to rally the Liberal party round the Government. Some subordinate, and at least one Cabinet Minister, as well as some staunch adherents of the Administration, have been vehement in its defence. At Bristol there has been high political festival, extending over two or three soirées, so-called; and, besides the presence of the members for that ancient city, incursions were made into it by Mr. Winterbotham and Mr. Chichester Fortescue. The place of honour on the first occasion was given to the Under-Secretary for the Home Department, who everybody knows is a very rising young statesman. Indeed, when he was an independent Liberal member, he was so very buoyant, he scattered his criticisms so thickly and so effectively, that it became a matter of prime importance to muzzle so brilliant a skirmisher on the flank of the Government. One day, therefore, probably to the surprise of the "irreconcilables" (as they are sometimes called) below the gangway, Mr. Winterbotham accepted the office he now holds. His capacity for that function was not doubtful, and therein he has fulfilled every expectation. There has been no occasion since he came into office in which the exigencies of party debate required that all the speaking power of the Ministry should be put forward, so that he has not shown in the House whether his accession has been thorough. He came, however, to Bristol lately, whither personally or in his character as representative he had, on the face of it, no call, and therefore it can only be supposed that he was obeying a mandate which seems to have gone forth to likely subordinate officials to present themselves on provincial platforms and cry aloud the virtues and good deeds of the Ministry. It appears as if it was his cue to reconcile the recalcitrant Nonconformists, and in merely presenting himself as the advocate of Ministers he did a great part of his task. For did he not evince in his own person that it was possible for a Dissenter and an adherent of secular education to believe in and belong to the Government? Perhaps, however, there was a little see-saw in his speech, inevitable in one like him, who had suffered himself to be snatched from the depths of Parliamentary independence; but, on the whole, he did his work effectively. Perhaps he was exhibiting a process that was going on in his own mind when he said that Dissenters who kept their carriages often disappeared from the ranks of Dissent. Nothing could be more staunch to the Government than Mr. Morley was on this occasion, and as a representative Nonconformist his terse, emphatic utterances were significant. But the gem of the evening was the speech of Mr. Kirkman Hodgson. No one can see this able and excellent gentleman without feeling sure that he is genial and hearty; but it must be confessed that he has not hitherto in the House given reason to believe that he was possessed of the gift of humour in no ordinary degree. His address at Bristol abounded with fun, but the fun all went to the serious purpose in hand, which was a defiance to the alleged Conservative reaction and a challenge to the issue of a general election. Why should not Mr. Hodgson give the House a taste of the quality which he showed on this occasion to the Bristolians? As to Mr. Chichester Fortescue, one is so accustomed to his quiet emphasis as a speaker, that it was a surprise to find him showing hot blood and literally blazing with indignation as he commented on the accusation against the Government of "plundering and blundering."

If the conjecture hazarded above, that there is a scheme for the defence of the Government by means of subordinates on platforms, be correct, it may well be said that the Attorney-General has performed his allotted portion of the duty with a will. All through a recent address of his at Exeter one traces the spirit which pervaded the first sentences of his speech for the defence in the original trial in the Tichborne case. Then, as now, he evinced that his eloquence is not always honeyed, and that in the quality of what may be called argumentative sarcasm he is far from deficient. Apart from an elaborate examination of every act of the present Government since it has been in office, in which he eulogised here and excused there, one point which he made was notable. He urged with vigour that there was only one obstacle to liberal measures in Parliament, and that was Lord Cairns. The depiction of that noble and learned Lord was at once heavily depreciatory and flattering. He was allowed to be a power so great that the Government could not cope with him, while the Tory party, a majority of them against their will, were subservient to him. Illustrating this by a reference to certain proceedings of the learned Lord last Session, it was shown that, by means of a number of usually torpid voting machines called Conservative peers, Lord Cairns (to whom many uncomplimentary epithets were applied) could stop legislation which had been either approved or improved by his party in the Commons at his pleasure. It is a long time now to the Session of Parliament, but it is probable that the memory of the noble and learned Lord in question will serve him to carry this portrait of himself to that period; when, if no retort comes, why then the generality of that portion of mankind which has any knowledge of Lord Cairns will have mistaken their man.

At length Mr. Baxter has spoken to his constituents on the topics of the day; and it may be ventured to say that no member of the Government has proved a better friend than he has. It is obvious that he has no other than the utmost sympathy for the Ministry as a body; and that the only exception is Mr. Lowe. Nothing can be more clear than that he resigned in order to cause a reconstruction of the Government which would operate especially in the department of the Exchequer, which, under certain auspices, had produced the tax on matches. But Mr. Baxter was not severe even upon that department; he only rejoiced over its purgation, to procure which he had not hesitated to resign an office which he adorned. The tone of his speech was more gentle, it was less critical, than that of last year, when he doubtless was chafing under the sinister influences, from which he has now freed himself; and of a surety it will work more effectively as a defence of the Ministry than if it had been delivered when he was Secretary to the Treasury, who might have been presumed to be speaking to order.

A weak invention of the enemies of the Cardwellian régime in the Army has been distinctly refuted. No doubt the wish was father to the thought when Sir Henry Storks was supposititiously relegated from the War Office to the Embassy at Vienna, for the opponents of army reform know that the moving spirit, the invigorating influence of the department, would be removed with him, and Cardwellism would become shadowy and ineffective. At Ripon, the other day, Sir Henry Storks gave check to the hopes engendered by the report of his removal, and assurance that he would continue his efforts "to make the Army of England a national army instead of that of a class," for that is the phrase which is used by the adherents of the Government when they are enumerating its merits to sympathetic audiences. Perhaps, though it is doubtless inseparable from his position, Sir Henry Storks is rather an optimist when he is speaking of the condition of the Army; for how could he expect anybody to believe in a satisfactory state of things if he did not, with that delightful air of candour and that precision of speech which are characteristic of him, avow his own belief therein?

Fortifying the notion of an organised scheme for the defence of the Government, there is to be found Mr. Shaw Lefevre doing his best possible in that way before his constituents at Reading. To be sure, it was done in a sidelong manner, because the gathering at which he spoke was not a political one. He spoke cheerfully and confidently of the Navy, which he ought to be presumed (and really, judging from his departmental speeches in the House, the presumption is not a very violent one), as Secretary to the Admiralty, to know something about; while he excused the Ashantee war with an elaboration which was suspicious of a lurking sense of the absence of strength in his case.

MUSIC.

The Royal Albert Hall Choral Society commenced its new season, on Thursday week, with a performance of Handel's "Theodora," an oratorio that had been ignored here for more than a century until revived in June last, when it was given at the Hanover-square Rooms—the solos by amateurs. The performance of last week was on a far grander scale, the executants, vocal and instrumental, having numbered nearly 1200. The oratorio was first produced in 1750, having preceded by about two years the composer's final great work of the kind, "Jephthah." That Handel himself esteemed it highly is proved by his recorded remark, in answer to the question whether he did not consider the grand chorus in "The Messiah" as his masterpiece. "No," said he, "I think the chorus 'He saw the lovely youth,' at the end of the second part in 'Theodora,' far beyond it." This chorus was given at one of the Handel festival performances at the Crystal Palace in 1868; and the well-known air, "Angels ever bright and fair," also from "Theodora," has long been a favourite piece at concerts. With the exception of a few extracts, however, "Theodora" was ignored here, as already said, for more than a century. Its revival now is a matter of great interest, and it is to be hoped that the work will find frequent repetitions. On Thursday week it had all the advantages of the vast means brought to bear on its execution at the Royal Albert Hall, the choruses having been given with fine effect, particularly "And draw a blessing down," "Go, gen'rous, pious youth," "Venus laughing from the skies," "He saw the lovely youth," "How strange their ends!" and the final movement. That the solo pieces were generally well rendered the names of the principal singers will sufficiently indicate. Among the most effective airs were those assigned to the character of Theodora, "Angels ever bright" having been especially applauded in its delivery by Madame Otto-Alvsleben, who was also greatly successful in "Fond, flattering world," "With darkness deep," "O, that I on wings could rise!" and "The pilgrim's home." The contralto airs of Didimus were sung by Miss Julia Elton; those of Irene by Miss Dones, each of whom was much applauded—the first in "Kind Heaven" and "Sweet rose and lily;" the other lady in "Bane of virtue," "As with rosy steps," "Defend her, Heaven!" and "Lord, to Thee each night and day." Mr. Cummings gave the solo music of Septimius with much effect, particularly the important air, "Though the honours;" and Mr. Thurlay Beale displayed a resonant bass voice in "Go, my faithful soldier," "Wide spread his name," and other portions of the music belonging to the character of Valens. Mr. Barnby conducted with judgment and care; and Dr. Stainer rendered valuable aid at the organ. The oratorio was given with Dr. Ferdinand Hiller's skilfully-written additional accompaniments. At the second concert, on Thursday next, Bach's St. Matthew "Passion Music" is to be performed.

Five of the new series of Saturday concerts at the Crystal Palace have now taken place. At that of last week M. Félicien David's ode symphony, "The Desert," was produced for the first time here. It was in 1844 that this work was brought out, at the Paris Conservatoire, where David had been a student; and it was the result of his journeyings in Eastern countries, his impressions of which, especially of the wild character of Arab music, are conveyed with some occasional vividness and force, but surrounded with diffuseness of form and monotony of style. There are occasional bold effects in the choral writing, with some piquant instrumentation in the orchestral accompaniments, the weakest portions of the work being the incidental tenor solos. These were sung—under the evident disadvantage of illness—by Mr. Pearson, who was much applauded in the "Song of Night." The choruses were well rendered by 200 male voices of the Crystal Palace Choir. Schubert's charming music to the drama of "Rosamunde" was given again on Saturday, each repetition of it serving to enhance the perception of its grace and beauty. The incidental romance, "Der Vollmond Strahlt," was sung by Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, who also gave the arias "Mio bel tesoro," from Handel's "Alcina," and "L'Abeille," from M. Massé's "La Reine Topaze." The Crystal Palace Choir was encored in Mendelssohn's part-song, "The Hunter's Farewell" (for male voices, with accompaniments for brass instruments). The concert commenced with Mozart's overture to "Die Zauberflöte." To-day (Saturday) Dr. Hans von Bulow is to play Liszt's pianoforte concerto in E flat.

The Glasgow Musical Festival commenced, on Tuesday evening, with "Elijah," and is to terminate to-day (Saturday) with an afternoon performance of "The Messiah." The orchestra consisted of between sixty and seventy instrumentalists, chiefly members of our opera bands, and the chorus was supplied by a about 400 voices of the Glasgow Choral Union, the members of which have long been noted for the efficiency of their performances. Sir M. Costa and Mr. H. A. Lambeth were the conductors. Mr. Carrodus was the leading violinist, and Mr. Best presided at the organ. This is the second festival that has been held in Glasgow, the former occasion having been in 1860, when the financial results were less favourable than they appear likely to prove in the present instance, which is intended to be the commencement of regular periodical meetings of the kind, the object being to aid the funds of the Glasgow Western Infirmary. There is little to be said of the performances in our present notice, as those of the first three days presented no novel feature. We have already said what was the programme for Tuesday, when the principal singers were Middle. Titiens, Miss Wynne, Mesdames Patey and Trebelli-Bettini, Mr. Vernon Rigby, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Mr. Santley. On Wednesday morning a miscellaneous concert was given; and in the evening Sir M. Costa's oratorio, "Eli," was performed, conducted by the composer. For Thursday evening another miscellaneous concert was announced; and yesterday (Friday) evening the two novelties composed expressly for the festival were to be produced. These are Mr. Lambeth's cantata, "Pow Down Thine Ear"—a setting of the eighty-sixth Psalm—and Mr. Henry Smart's sacred cantata, "Jacob;" of both of which we must speak next week.

The first annual festival of the London Church Choir Association was held, in St. Paul's Cathedral, on the 30th ult., the offertory being devoted to the restoration, decoration, and completion fund of the edifice. Mr. Hoyte was the organist. The Sub-Dean of St. Paul's, the Rev. W. F. Webber, is the president of the association, and Mr. J. R. Murray, as choirmaster, educator. Forty-six London and suburban choirs took part in the festival.

With the close of the International Exhibition, the daily orchestral concerts given at the Royal Albert Hall have ceased. These performances have been well maintained, the programmes having included a large amount of classical music, besides various new compositions of merit. The concerts, moreover, have afforded opportunities for the first appearance of several performers of merit, both vocal and instrumental.

The sixteenth season of the Monday Popular Concerts begins next week.

The Sacred Harmonic Society commence their forty-second season at Exeter Hall on Friday, the 21st inst. Haydn's Service No. 1, Mendelssohn's "Christus," and Handel's "Dettingen Te Deum," are the works selected for the opening performance.

THEATRES.

Much progress cannot be reported at this season. Madame Ristori made her last appearance at the Opéra Comique on Thursday week. On that occasion she repeated the somnambulist scene of Lady Macbeth, which she had rehearsed on the previous Tuesday, the night of her benefit. Her acting of the scene is very powerful, and her pronunciation of English, though slow and over-emphatic, is generally correct. Barring a false accent or two, it is, indeed, perfect. The audience was strangely excited, and recalled the admired artist four times. We trust that Madame Ristori is satisfied with her reception.

On Saturday the Opéra Comique resumed its regular business, when the farce of "Is He Jealous?" was performed, with a satisfactory cast. Mr. H. Crouch, as Belmour, was excellent. It was followed by Mr. H. T. Craven's drama of "Miriam's Crime," the author himself supporting the curious character of Byles. The scarcely less amusing part of Scumley was no less efficiently sustained by Mr. W. Belford. The Lawyer Huffin found a good representative in Mr. Perrini, and Mr. Crouch, as Bernard, imparted an unusual importance to the character. Miss Gainsborough, as Miriam, acted with conscientious care, as also with a vigour and an earnestness, and a remarkable power in the great scene, such as entitle her to an eminent place among our skilled actresses.

Mr. and Mrs. Rousby's success at the Princess's, in Mr. Tom Taylor's impressive and very effective drama of "Twixt Axe and Crown," must prove eminently satisfactory to the artists and the management. The tragedy, as it deserves, has been efficiently placed on the boards, the scenery is remarkably good, and the acting, on the whole, fairly up to the mark. Mr. W. Rignold has indeed made a decided impression in the part of Sir Edward Courtenay, which suits admirably his direct, dashing, and vigorous style. His scene in the hall of Ashbridge Manor was a wonderfully energetic example of earnestness and passion. Nor is the character of Bishop Gardiner less suitable to Mr. Rousby. We all recollect the admirable versatility with which Mr. Henry Marston sustained the part at the Queen's; and in Mr. Rousby that eminent performer has a worthy successor. He has done judiciously in selecting this rôle for himself, and will soon find that he has also improved his reputation by the change. Mrs. Rousby, as the Lady Elizabeth, maintains her ascendancy, and acts with inimitable grace, energy, and force. There is every probability that she will add to her fame, in the new play provided for her by Miss Braddon, entitled "Griselda," which will be shortly produced. We can extend, also, much commendation to the other ladies concerned in the cast—to Miss Lynd as Isabel, Miss Coveney as the Duchess of Norfolk, and Miss Henderson as Queen Mary. Altogether, the performance has been as meritorious as it has been prosperous.

At Charing Cross Mr. Nation has made a step in the right direction in producing the late Mr. Charles Dickens's farce of "The Strange Gentleman," the only drama which the distinguished novelist ever wrote. Mr. A. Wood was intrusted with the character of the hero, whose skill in avoiding a duel results in whimsical combinations that afford much mirth to the audience. Mr. Wood's humour is irresistible. He was well assisted by Mr. G. Yarnold as Mr. Owen Overton, the Mayor. The other parts were respectably filled, and that of Mrs. Noakes, the landlady of the inn, deserves to be honourably distinguished.

The run of "The School for Scandal," at the Vaudeville, attained its completion on Friday week, having then reached its 404th night. On Saturday Holcroft's celebrated comedy of "The Road to Ruin" was substituted, and we trust it may meet with similar prosperity. The cast is so promising that the result is within the scope of probability. The play has also been so carefully rehearsed that, as far as possible, it is converted into a certainty. To Mr. W. Farren the chief honour belongs. Old Dornon could scarcely be better represented. In the usual points made by his father he was especially good, particularly in the famous "Good-night" incident, which commanded vehement applause. He rose to even finer pathos when, reproaching his son, he becomes alarmed for the issue, and entreats him to remain; both in action and utterance he did credit to the school of art in which he has been educated. Mr. Farren is truly an orthodox artist, and his dramatic conservatism is worthy of his predecessors. The dashing character of Goldsmith was undertaken by Mr. David James, who "fooled" the part "to the top of its bent," and invested it with a rich variety of peculiarities, befitting one whose sole school has been the stable, whose wisdom is the lowest cunning, and whose talk is altogether of horses. Mr. James has achieved a success by which he will be remembered. Of Mr. Charles Warner's Harry Dornon we might write much in praise, for he has been sedulous to elaborate every point in the part, and in all its moods to show a perfect mastery. The audience was duly sensible of the ability which he displayed, and both in the sober and the drunken scenes his merits were distinctly appreciated. Silky and Sulky, by Mr. Thomas Thorne and Mr. Horace Wigan, were admirably impersonated. Mr. Charles Fenton as Jacob was very good. On this occasion, Miss Larkin made her first appearance at this theatre, and, as the Widow Warren, was thoroughly complete in all the shades of the character as the superannuated coquette who, in aiming to regain her girlhood, achieves nothing but its folly. Miss Amy Fawcett made a charming part of Sophia. The remaining rôles were all of average excellence; and, as we have already said, the performance justifies the highest hopes of a permanent and distinguished hold on public patronage. An epilogue was added to the comedy, and well received by the house.

A morning performance of "Richelieu" took place on Saturday at the Lyceum. A large audience assembled, and did full justice to the merits of Mr. H. Irving. At the Gaiety also the new comedy of "Alone," with the burlesque of "The Happy Land," was performed by Miss Litton's company from the Court Theatre. There will be a morning performance of "Antony and Cleopatra," next Monday, at Drury Lane.

Miss Glyn announces that she will read "Antony and Cleopatra" in London six times in the present and following month, and on every Wednesday in the spring and summer of 1874.

THE KARAKORAM PASS.

The road from Leh, in the West Himalayas, the capital of Ladak or Middle Thibet, and from the upper valley of the Indus, passes northward to enter the Tartar or Turkoman principality of Yarkand, which was till lately a province of the Chinese empire. This road crosses the Mustagh or Koenlun range of mountains, in latitude 35 deg. 30 min. N., longitude 77 deg. 40 min. E., by the Karakoram Pass. We present a view of the scenery at this remarkable place in the high middle region of Central Asia. Its elevation is not less than 18,200 ft. above the sea-level. The aspect, in every direction, is stern and forbidding. The way is over a rounded ridge connecting two hills which rise, somewhat abruptly, to the height of perhaps 1000 ft. above the road. There is scarcely a trace of vegetation; the top is covered with loose shingle, which affords no growth even of lichens, and upon which even the snow does not lie—the ground is merely stones. The surrounding rocks are composed of a dark blue slate, which contains much pyrites, alternating with a hard limestone. No plants are seen, and no animals, except a few large ravens wheeling about the crags; and it seems rather strange that their wings can support them in so thin an air. After passing the summit, there is, on the north side, a steep descent for some five hundred yards, into a gently sloping valley, half a mile long, through which flows a stream presently hidden from view behind a stony ridge. The Karakoram Pass was visited in 1847 by Dr. Thomas Thompson, and is described in his book of travel, called "The Western Himalayas and Thibet."

LAW AND POLICE.

It is announced that the Right Hon. Sir James Moncreiff, Lord Chief Justice Clerk and ex-Lord Advocate of Scotland, will be raised to the Peerage by the title of Baron Kilduff.

It is stated that the Attorney-General (Sir John Coleridge) has signified his acceptance of the post of Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, vacant by the death of Sir William Bovill. Mr. H. James, on accepting the office of Attorney-General, will not vacate his seat. It is one of the appointments provided for by the late Reform Act.

Mr. Charles Hall, of the Chancery Bar, has been appointed to the Vice-Chancellorship rendered vacant by the death of Sir John Wickens.

The appointment of Mr. Justice Mellor as election Judge for next year on the part of the Court of Queen's Bench has been followed by the nomination of Mr. Justice Grove by the Judges of the Common Pleas, and by the selection of Mr. Baron Martin by the Court of Exchequer, for the discharge of a similar duty.

The Standard states that the office of Examiner of the Court of Chancery, rendered vacant by the resignation of Mr. C. Otter, has been accepted by Mr. Anderson, Q.C.

In the present term there are 154 applicants to be admitted as attorneys, besides a number of renewed applications.

With the usual procession and other formalities, the Courts of Law and Equity were on Monday opened for the Michaelmas Term. The deaths of Lord Chief Justice Bovill and Vice-Chancellor Wickens were feelingly dwelt on by the Lord Chancellor in his speech on taking his seat.

The Murillo, which ran down the Northfleet, off the Kentish coast, on the night of Jan. 22, has been condemned by the Court of Admiralty to be sold, to make good a claim by the owners of the vessel and of the cargo for £24,000. Sir Robert Phillimore, in giving judgment, found it difficult to express in adequate terms the indignation which the brutality and meanness of conduct on the part of those who had charge of the Murillo must excite in the bosom of every man not void of the ordinary feelings of humanity. The case, indeed, represented all the cruelty, without any of the courage, of the pirate.

On Tuesday an action for breach of promise to marry was brought in the Bail Court by Miss Farries, the daughter of an accountant, against Mr. Palmer, a young Baptist minister, who had received a call to a church at Sidmouth. Although extracts from some of the defendant's letters (the effusions of a vain, silly person) which were read showed that he had done his best to break off the engagement, he now professed himself willing to marry the plaintiff. The jury gave £80 damages.

The November Middlesex Sessions began, on Monday, before Sir W. Bodkin and Mr. Serjeant Cox. Fifty-eight commitments appeared on the calendar, but most of them were for light offences. At the Surrey Sessions there were thirty-five prisoners for trial. It was observed with respect to their educational status that only two of them could read and write well, while eight could do neither. George Smith, an elderly man, was brought up for judgment before the Middlesex magistrates, having been convicted at the previous sessions of stealing a book entitled "The Great Sieges of History." Prisoner had given an account of himself, according to which his crime was the result of the sheerest want, to which he had been reduced from a highly respectable position by financial misfortunes. Inquiry not only proved his story false, but also brought to light previous convictions for book-stealing; and the prisoner was, in consequence, sentenced to seven years' penal servitude.

Yesterday week was the 127th day of the trial of the Tichborne Claimant on a charge of perjury. Further testimony on rebut a portion of that given for the defence was adduced, when Mr. Hawkins applied for an adjournment until Monday, the 17th inst., stating that the prosecution had sent specially to America for evidence with reference to the statements of Jean Luie. The messenger left England on Oct. 21, and he could not return to enable witnesses to be called before the date mentioned. After a brief discussion, it was arranged that the request of Mr. Hawkins should be granted, and that in the meantime counsel must prepare to go on with their addresses to the jury upon the reassembling of the Court without any further adjournment. With regard to this trial, the Times says it is understood that the further evidence from America will not occupy long, and, therefore, a day or two after Monday, the 17th inst., the evidence will be finally closed. There is every reason to believe that this extraordinary trial, which began on April 23, may finish before Christmas.—The Tichborne Claimant's bankruptcy again came before Mr. Registrar Hazlit on Wednesday, when a further adjournment of six months was granted, pending the present criminal prosecution in the Court of Queen's Bench.

A chemist was summoned yesterday week at the Southwark Police Court, by the sanitary inspector for Bermondsey, for selling as citrate of magnesia a compound not containing an atom of magnesia. Mr. Partridge fined the defendant £10 and the cost of the analysis. Mr. Flowers, the magistrate at Bow-street, granted two summonses, last Saturday, against two country sellers of milk for sending adulterated milk to London. Two milk-sellers in Bermondsey were summoned at the Southwark Police Court, on Saturday, for selling adulterated milk. One was fined £5 and costs, and the other 40s. and costs.

SPANISH SKETCHES: THE FRUIT MARKET, MALAGA.

THE LATE REV. DR. CANDLISH, OF EDINBURGH.

THE KARAKORAM PASS, FROM CASHMERE TO YARKAND.

WRITING, BOOKKEEPING, &c.
Persons of any Age, however bad their writing, may in Eight days acquire permanently an elegant and flowing style of penmanship, adapted either to professional pursuits or private correspondence. Bookkeeping by double entry, as practised in the Government, banking, and mercantile offices; Arithmetic, Short-hand, &c.—Apply to Mr. W. Smart, at his Sole Institution, 97a, Quadrant, Regent-street. West of England Insurance Agency.

MACMICHAEL'S NOVELTIES in RAISED RUSTIC MONOGRAMS and Ladies' Christian Names. Five quires of 16 each Note and 100 thick Envelopes stamped in four rich colours, with any Christian name, or Monogram of one, two, or three initials in raised rustic letters, for 5s. Specimens free. Macmichael, Stationer to the Queen, 207, King's-road, S.W.; and 42, South Audley-street, W.

PHOTOGRAPHY.—Anyone can take good Photographs with DUBONIS' Patent Apparatus. No previous knowledge required. Complete and portable apparatus, from 25s. Book of instruction, four stamps per post.—LECHERTIER, BARBE, and CO., 60, Regent-st., London.

SCRAPS FOR SCREENS, SCRAP-BOOKS, &c.—Flowers, Figures, Landscapes, Animals, &c. in great variety, from 1s. per sheet; or one dozen assorted, 10s. 6d. London: W. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road.

WHITE WOOD ARTICLES for PAINTING, FERN-PRINTING, and DECALECOMANIE. Hand-Screens, Book-Covers, Boxes, &c. Priced Lists on application. W. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London.

LEWIN CRAWCOOR and CO., 71 to 75, Brompton-road, COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHERS (Established 1810). Deliver all Country Orders Free, regardless of distance.

LEWIN CRAWCOOR and CO.'S NEW ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, with 500 Designs forwarded gratis on application.—71 to 75, Brompton-road, London.

ELECTRO-SILVER PLATE and CUTLERY.
DEANE and CO.'S Catalogue, with Engravings, post-free. Table Knives, Ivory, 10s. 6d., 21s. 6d., 30s. 6d., 40s. 6d., 50s. 6d., 60s. 6d., 70s. 6d., 80s. 6d., 90s. 6d., 100s. 6d., 110s. 6d., 120s. 6d., 130s. 6d., 140s. 6d., 150s. 6d., 160s. 6d., 170s. 6d., 180s. 6d., 190s. 6d., 200s. 6d., 210s. 6d., 220s. 6d., 230s. 6d., 240s. 6d., 250s. 6d., 260s. 6d., 270s. 6d., 280s. 6d., 290s. 6d., 300s. 6d., 310s. 6d., 320s. 6d., 330s. 6d., 340s. 6d., 350s. 6d., 360s. 6d., 370s. 6d., 380s. 6d., 390s. 6d., 400s. 6d., 410s. 6d., 420s. 6d., 430s. 6d., 440s. 6d., 450s. 6d., 460s. 6d., 470s. 6d., 480s. 6d., 490s. 6d., 500s. 6d., 510s. 6d., 520s. 6d., 530s. 6d., 540s. 6d., 550s. 6d., 560s. 6d., 570s. 6d., 580s. 6d., 590s. 6d., 600s. 6d., 610s. 6d., 620s. 6d., 630s. 6d., 640s. 6d., 650s. 6d., 660s. 6d., 670s. 6d., 680s. 6d., 690s. 6d., 700s. 6d., 710s. 6d., 720s. 6d., 730s. 6d., 740s. 6d., 750s. 6d., 760s. 6d., 770s. 6d., 780s. 6d., 790s. 6d., 800s. 6d., 810s. 6d., 820s. 6d., 830s. 6d., 840s. 6d., 850s. 6d., 860s. 6d., 870s. 6d., 880s. 6d., 890s. 6d., 900s. 6d., 910s. 6d., 920s. 6d., 930s. 6d., 940s. 6d., 950s. 6d., 960s. 6d., 970s. 6d., 980s. 6d., 990s. 6d., 1000s. 6d., 1010s. 6d., 1020s. 6d., 1030s. 6d., 1040s. 6d., 1050s. 6d., 1060s. 6d., 1070s. 6d., 1080s. 6d., 1090s. 6d., 1100s. 6d., 1110s. 6d., 1120s. 6d., 1130s. 6d., 1140s. 6d., 1150s. 6d., 1160s. 6d., 1170s. 6d., 1180s. 6d., 1190s. 6d., 1200s. 6d., 1210s. 6d., 1220s. 6d., 1230s. 6d., 1240s. 6d., 1250s. 6d., 1260s. 6d., 1270s. 6d., 1280s. 6d., 1290s. 6d., 1300s. 6d., 1310s. 6d., 1320s. 6d., 1330s. 6d., 1340s. 6d., 1350s. 6d., 1360s. 6d., 1370s. 6d., 1380s. 6d., 1390s. 6d., 1400s. 6d., 1410s. 6d., 1420s. 6d., 1430s. 6d., 1440s. 6d., 1450s. 6d., 1460s. 6d., 1470s. 6d., 1480s. 6d., 1490s. 6d., 1500s. 6d., 1510s. 6d., 1520s. 6d., 1530s. 6d., 1540s. 6d., 1550s. 6d., 1560s. 6d., 1570s. 6d., 1580s. 6d., 1590s. 6d., 1600s. 6d., 1610s. 6d., 1620s. 6d., 1630s. 6d., 1640s. 6d., 1650s. 6d., 1660s. 6d., 1670s. 6d., 1680s. 6d., 1690s. 6d., 1700s. 6d., 1710s. 6d., 1720s. 6d., 1730s. 6d., 1740s. 6d., 1750s. 6d., 1760s. 6d., 1770s. 6d., 1780s. 6d., 1790s. 6d., 1800s. 6d., 1810s. 6d., 1820s. 6d., 1830s. 6d., 1840s. 6d., 1850s. 6d., 1860s. 6d., 1870s. 6d., 1880s. 6d., 1890s. 6d., 1900s. 6d., 1910s. 6d., 1920s. 6d., 1930s. 6d., 1940s. 6d., 1950s. 6d., 1960s. 6d., 1970s. 6d., 1980s. 6d., 1990s. 6d., 2000s. 6d., 2010s. 6d., 2020s. 6d., 2030s. 6d., 2040s. 6d., 2050s. 6d., 2060s. 6d., 2070s. 6d., 2080s. 6d., 2090s. 6d., 2100s. 6d., 2110s. 6d., 2120s. 6d., 2130s. 6d., 2140s. 6d., 2150s. 6d., 2160s. 6d., 2170s. 6d., 2180s. 6d., 2190s. 6d., 2200s. 6d., 2210s. 6d., 2220s. 6d., 2230s. 6d., 2240s. 6d., 2250s. 6d., 2260s. 6d., 2270s. 6d., 2280s. 6d., 2290s. 6d., 2300s. 6d., 2310s. 6d., 2320s. 6d., 2330s. 6d., 2340s. 6d., 2350s. 6d., 2360s. 6d., 2370s. 6d., 2380s. 6d., 2390s. 6d., 2400s. 6d., 2410s. 6d., 2420s. 6d., 2430s. 6d., 2440s. 6d., 2450s. 6d., 2460s. 6d., 2470s. 6d., 2480s. 6d., 2490s. 6d., 2500s. 6d., 2510s. 6d., 2520s. 6d., 2530s. 6d., 2540s. 6d., 2550s. 6d., 2560s. 6d., 2570s. 6d., 2580s. 6d., 2590s. 6d., 2600s. 6d., 2610s. 6d., 2620s. 6d., 2630s. 6d., 2640s. 6d., 2650s. 6d., 2660s. 6d., 2670s. 6d., 2680s. 6d., 2690s. 6d., 2700s. 6d., 2710s. 6d., 2720s. 6d., 2730s. 6d., 2740s. 6d., 2750s. 6d., 2760s. 6d., 2770s. 6d., 2780s. 6d., 2790s. 6d., 2800s. 6d., 2810s. 6d., 2820s. 6d., 2830s. 6d., 2840s. 6d., 2850s. 6d., 2860s. 6d., 2870s. 6d., 2880s. 6d., 2890s. 6d., 2900s. 6d., 2910s. 6d., 2920s. 6d., 2930s. 6d., 2940s. 6d., 2950s. 6d., 2960s. 6d., 2970s. 6d., 2980s. 6d., 2990s. 6d., 3000s. 6d., 3010s. 6d., 3020s. 6d., 3030s. 6d., 3040s. 6d., 3050s. 6d., 3060s. 6d., 3070s. 6d., 3080s. 6d., 3090s. 6d., 3100s. 6d., 3110s. 6d., 3120s. 6d., 3130s. 6d., 3140s. 6d., 3150s. 6d., 3160s. 6d., 3170s. 6d., 3180s. 6d., 3190s. 6d., 3200s. 6d., 3210s. 6d., 3220s. 6d., 3230s. 6d., 3240s. 6d., 3250s. 6d., 3260s. 6d., 3270s. 6d., 3280s. 6d., 3290s. 6d., 3300s. 6d., 3310s. 6d., 3320s. 6d., 3330s. 6d., 3340s. 6d., 3350s. 6d., 3360s. 6d., 3370s. 6d., 3380s. 6d., 3390s. 6d., 3400s. 6d., 3410s. 6d., 3420s. 6d., 3430s. 6d., 3440s. 6d., 3450s. 6d., 3460s. 6d., 3470s. 6d., 3480s. 6d., 3490s. 6d., 3500s. 6d., 3510s. 6d., 3520s. 6d., 3530s. 6d., 3540s. 6d., 3550s. 6d., 3560s. 6d., 3570s. 6d., 3580s. 6d., 3590s. 6d., 3600s. 6d., 3610s. 6d., 3620s. 6d., 3630s. 6d., 3640s. 6d., 3650s. 6d., 3660s. 6d., 3670s. 6d., 3680s. 6d., 3690s. 6d., 3700s. 6d., 3710s. 6d., 3720s. 6d., 3730s. 6d., 3740s. 6d., 3750s. 6d., 3760s. 6d., 3770s. 6d., 3780s. 6d., 3790s. 6d., 3800s. 6d., 3810s. 6d., 3820s. 6d., 3830s. 6d., 3840s. 6d., 3850s. 6d., 3860s. 6d., 3870s. 6d., 3880s. 6d., 3890s. 6d., 3900s. 6d., 3910s. 6d., 3920s. 6d., 3930s. 6d., 3940s. 6d., 3950s. 6d., 3960s. 6d., 3970s. 6d., 3980s. 6d., 3990s. 6d., 4000s. 6d., 4010s. 6d., 4020s. 6d., 4030s. 6d., 4040s. 6d., 4050s. 6d., 4060s. 6d., 4070s. 6d., 4080s. 6d., 4090s. 6d., 4100s. 6d., 4110s. 6d., 4120s. 6d., 4130s. 6d., 4140s. 6d., 4150s. 6d., 4160s. 6d., 4170s. 6d., 4180s. 6d., 4190s. 6d., 4200s. 6d., 4210s. 6d., 4220s. 6d., 4230s. 6d., 4240s. 6d., 4250s. 6d., 4260s. 6d., 4270s. 6d., 4280s. 6d., 4290s. 6d., 4300s. 6d., 4310s. 6d., 4320s. 6d., 4330s. 6d., 4340s. 6d., 4350s. 6d., 4360s. 6d., 4370s. 6d., 4380s. 6d., 4390s. 6d., 4400s. 6d., 4410s. 6d., 4420s. 6d., 4430s. 6d., 4440s. 6d., 4450s. 6d., 4460s. 6d., 4470s. 6d., 4480s. 6d., 4490s. 6d., 4500s. 6d., 4510s. 6d., 4520s. 6d., 4530s. 6d., 4540s. 6d., 4550s. 6d., 4560s. 6d., 4570s. 6d., 4580s. 6d., 4590s. 6d., 4600s. 6d., 4610s. 6d., 4620s. 6d., 4630s. 6d., 4640s. 6d., 4650s. 6d., 4660s. 6d., 4670s. 6d., 4680s. 6d., 4690s. 6d., 4700s. 6d., 4710s. 6d., 4720s. 6d., 4730s. 6d., 4740s. 6d., 4750s. 6d., 4760s. 6d., 4770s. 6d., 4780s. 6d., 4790s. 6d., 4800s. 6d., 4810s. 6d., 4820s. 6d., 4830s. 6d., 4840s. 6d., 4850s. 6d., 4860s. 6d., 4870s. 6d., 4880s. 6d., 4890s. 6d., 4900s. 6d., 4910s. 6d., 4920s. 6d., 4930s. 6d., 4940s. 6d., 4950s. 6d., 4960s. 6d., 4970s. 6d., 4980s. 6d., 4990s. 6d., 5000s. 6d., 5010s. 6d., 5020s. 6d., 5030s. 6d., 5040s. 6d., 5050s. 6d., 5060s. 6d., 5070s. 6d., 5080s. 6d., 5090s. 6d., 5100s. 6d., 5110s. 6d., 5120s. 6d., 5130s. 6d., 5140s. 6d., 5150s. 6d., 5160s. 6d., 5170s. 6d., 5180s. 6d., 5190s. 6d., 5200s. 6d., 5210s. 6d., 5220s. 6d., 5230s. 6d., 5240s. 6d., 5250s. 6d., 5260s. 6d., 5270s. 6d., 5280s. 6d., 5290s. 6d., 5300s. 6d., 5310s. 6d., 5320s. 6d., 5330s. 6d., 5340s. 6d., 5350s. 6d., 5360s. 6d., 5370s. 6d., 5380s. 6d., 5390s. 6d., 5400s. 6d., 5410s. 6d., 5420s. 6d., 5430s. 6d., 5440s. 6d., 5450s. 6d., 5460s. 6d., 5470s. 6d., 5480s. 6d., 5490s. 6d., 5500s. 6d., 5510s. 6d., 5520s. 6d., 5530s. 6d., 5540s. 6d., 5550s. 6d., 5560s. 6d., 5570s. 6d., 5580s. 6d., 5590s. 6d., 5600s. 6d., 5610s. 6d., 5620s. 6d., 5630s. 6d., 5640s. 6d., 5650s. 6d., 5660s. 6d., 5670s. 6d., 5680s. 6d., 5690s. 6d., 5700s. 6d., 5710s. 6d., 5720s. 6d., 5730s. 6d., 5740s. 6d., 5750s. 6d., 5760s. 6d., 5770s. 6d., 5780s. 6d., 5790s. 6d., 5800s. 6d., 5810s. 6d., 5820s. 6d., 5830s. 6d., 5840s. 6d., 5850s. 6d., 5860s. 6d., 5870s. 6d., 5880s. 6d., 5890s. 6d., 5900s. 6d., 5910s. 6d., 5920s. 6d., 5930s. 6d., 5940s. 6d., 5950s. 6d., 5960s. 6d., 5970s. 6d., 5980s. 6d., 5990s. 6d., 6000s. 6d., 6010s. 6d., 6020s. 6d., 6030s. 6d., 6040s. 6d., 6050s. 6d., 6060s. 6d., 6070s. 6d., 6080s. 6d., 6090s. 6d., 6100s. 6d., 6110s. 6d., 6120s. 6d., 6130s. 6d., 6140s. 6d., 6150s. 6d., 6160s. 6d., 6170s. 6d., 6180s. 6d., 6190s. 6d., 6200s. 6d., 6210s. 6d., 6220s. 6d., 6230s. 6d., 6240s. 6d., 6250s. 6d., 6260s. 6d., 6270s. 6d., 6280s. 6d., 6290s. 6d., 6300s. 6d., 6310s. 6d., 6320s. 6d., 6330s. 6d., 6340s. 6d., 6350s. 6d., 6360s. 6d., 6370s. 6d., 6380s. 6d., 6390s. 6d., 6400s. 6d., 6410s. 6d., 6420s. 6d., 6430s. 6d., 6440s. 6d., 6450s. 6d., 6460s. 6d., 6470s. 6d., 6480s. 6d., 6490s. 6d., 6500s. 6d., 6510s. 6d., 6520s. 6d., 6530s. 6d., 6540s. 6d., 6550s. 6d., 6560s. 6d., 6570s. 6d., 6580s. 6d., 6590s. 6d., 6600s. 6d., 6610s. 6d., 6620s. 6d., 6630s. 6d., 6640s. 6d., 6650s. 6d., 6660s. 6d., 6670s. 6d., 6680s. 6d., 6690s. 6d., 6700s. 6d., 6710s. 6d., 6720s. 6d., 6730s. 6d., 6740s. 6d., 6750s. 6d., 6760s. 6d., 6770s. 6d., 6780s. 6d., 6790s. 6d., 6800s. 6d., 6810s. 6d., 6820s. 6d., 6830s. 6d., 6840s. 6d., 6850s. 6d., 6860s. 6d., 6870s. 6d., 6880s. 6d., 6890s. 6d., 6900s. 6d., 6910s. 6d., 6920s. 6d., 6930s. 6d., 6940s. 6d., 6950s. 6d., 6960s. 6d., 6970s. 6d., 6980s. 6d., 6990s. 6d., 7000s. 6d., 7010s. 6d., 7020s. 6d., 7030s. 6d., 7040s. 6d., 7050s. 6d., 7060s. 6d., 7070s. 6d., 7080s. 6d., 7090s. 6d., 7100s. 6d., 7110s. 6d., 7120s. 6d., 7130s. 6d., 7140s. 6d., 7150s. 6d., 7160s. 6d., 7170s. 6d., 7180s. 6d., 7190s. 6d., 7200s. 6d., 7210s. 6d., 7220s. 6d., 7230s. 6d., 7240s. 6d., 7250s. 6d., 7260s. 6d., 7270s. 6d., 7280s. 6d., 7290s. 6d., 7300s. 6d., 7310s. 6d., 7320s. 6d., 7330s. 6d., 7340s. 6d., 7350s. 6d., 7360s. 6d., 7370s. 6d., 7380s. 6d., 7390s. 6d., 7400s. 6d., 7410s. 6d., 7420s. 6d., 7430s. 6d., 7440s. 6d., 7450s. 6d., 7460s. 6d., 7470s. 6d., 7480s. 6d., 7490s. 6d., 7500s. 6d., 7510s. 6d., 7520s. 6d., 7530s. 6d., 7540s. 6d., 7550s. 6d., 7560s. 6d., 7570s. 6d., 7580s. 6d., 7590s. 6d., 7600s. 6d., 7610s. 6d., 7620s. 6d., 7630s. 6d., 7640s. 6d., 7650s. 6d., 7660s. 6d., 7670s. 6d., 7680s. 6d., 7690s. 6d., 7700s. 6d., 7710s. 6d., 7720s. 6d., 7730s. 6d., 7740s. 6d., 7750s. 6d., 7760s. 6d., 7770s. 6d., 7780s. 6d., 7790s. 6d., 7800s. 6d., 7810s. 6d., 7820s. 6d., 7830s. 6d., 7840s. 6d., 7850s. 6d., 7860s. 6d., 7870s. 6d., 7880s. 6d., 7890s. 6d., 7900s. 6d., 7910s. 6d., 7920s. 6d., 7930s. 6d., 7940s. 6d., 7950s. 6d., 7960s. 6d., 7970s. 6d., 7980s. 6d., 7990s. 6d., 8000s. 6d., 8010s. 6d., 8020s. 6d., 8030s. 6d., 8040s. 6d., 8050s. 6d., 8060s. 6d., 8070s. 6d., 8080s. 6d., 8090s. 6d., 8100s. 6d., 8110s. 6d., 8120s. 6d., 8130s. 6d., 8140s. 6d., 8150s. 6d., 8160s. 6d., 8170s. 6d., 8180s. 6d., 8190s. 6d., 8200s. 6d., 8210s. 6d., 8220s. 6d., 8230s. 6d., 8240s. 6d., 8250s. 6d., 8260s. 6d., 8270s. 6d., 8280s. 6d., 8290s. 6d., 8300s. 6d., 8310s. 6d., 8320s. 6d., 8330s. 6d., 8340s. 6d., 8350s. 6d., 8360s. 6d., 8370s. 6d., 8380s. 6d., 8390s. 6d., 8400s. 6d., 8410s. 6d., 8420s. 6d., 8430s. 6d., 8440s. 6d., 8450s. 6d., 8460s. 6d., 8470s. 6d., 8480s. 6d., 8490s. 6d., 8500s. 6d., 8510s. 6d., 8520s. 6d., 8530s. 6d., 8540s. 6d., 8550s. 6d., 8560s. 6d., 8570s. 6d., 8580s. 6d., 8590s. 6d., 8600s. 6d., 8610s. 6d., 8620s. 6d., 8630s. 6d., 8640s. 6d., 8650s. 6d., 8660s. 6d., 8670s. 6d., 8680s. 6d., 8690s. 6d., 8700s. 6d., 8710s. 6d., 8720s. 6d., 8730s. 6d., 8740s. 6d., 8750s. 6d., 8760s. 6d., 8770s. 6d., 8780s. 6d., 8790s. 6d., 8800s. 6d., 8810s. 6d., 8820s. 6d., 8830s. 6d., 8840s. 6d., 8850s. 6d., 8860s. 6d., 8870s. 6d., 8880s. 6d., 8890s. 6d., 8900s. 6d., 8910s. 6d., 8920s. 6d., 8930s. 6d., 8940s. 6d., 8950s. 6d., 8960s. 6d., 8970s. 6d., 8980s. 6d., 8990s. 6d., 9000s. 6d., 9010s. 6d., 9020s. 6d., 9030s. 6d., 9040s. 6d., 9050s. 6d., 9060s. 6d., 9070s. 6d., 9080s. 6d., 9090s. 6d., 9100s. 6d., 9110s. 6d., 9120s. 6d., 9130s. 6d., 9140s. 6d., 9150s. 6d., 9160s. 6d., 9170s. 6d., 9180s. 6d., 9190s. 6d., 9200s. 6d., 9210s. 6d., 9220s. 6d., 9230s. 6d., 9240s. 6d., 9250s. 6d., 9260s. 6d., 9270s. 6d., 9280s. 6d., 9290s. 6d., 9300s. 6d., 9310s. 6d., 9320s. 6d., 9330s. 6d., 9340s. 6d., 9350s. 6d., 9360s. 6d., 9370s. 6d., 9380s. 6d., 9390s. 6d., 9400s. 6d., 9410s. 6d., 9420s. 6d., 9430s. 6d., 9440s. 6d., 9450s. 6d., 9460s. 6d., 9470s. 6d., 9480s. 6d., 9490s. 6d., 9500s. 6d., 9510s. 6d., 9520s. 6d., 9530s. 6d., 9540s. 6d., 9550s. 6d., 9560s. 6d., 9570s. 6d., 9580s. 6d., 9590s. 6d., 9600s. 6d., 9610s. 6d., 9620s. 6d., 9630s. 6d., 9640s. 6d., 9650s. 6d., 9660s. 6d., 9670s. 6d., 9680s. 6d., 9690s. 6d., 9700s. 6d., 9710s. 6d., 9720s. 6d., 9730s. 6d., 9740s. 6d., 9750s. 6d., 9760s. 6d., 9770s. 6d., 9780s. 6d., 9790s. 6d., 9800s. 6d., 9810s. 6d., 9820s. 6d., 9830s. 6d., 9840s. 6d., 9850s. 6d., 9860s. 6d., 9870s. 6d., 9880s. 6d., 9890s. 6d., 9900s. 6d., 9910s. 6d., 9920s. 6d., 9930s. 6d., 9940s. 6d., 9950s. 6d., 9960s. 6d., 9970s. 6d., 9980s. 6d., 9990s. 6d., 1000s. 6d., 1001s. 6d., 1002s. 6d., 1003s. 6d., 1004s. 6d., 1005s. 6d., 1006s. 6d., 1007s. 6d., 1008s. 6d., 1009s. 6d., 1010s. 6d., 1011s. 6d., 1012s. 6d., 1013s. 6d., 1014s. 6d., 1015s. 6d., 1016s. 6d., 1017s. 6d., 1018s. 6d., 1019s. 6d., 1020s. 6d., 1021s. 6d., 1022s. 6d., 1023s. 6d., 1024s. 6d., 1025s. 6d., 1026s. 6d., 1027s. 6d., 1028s. 6d., 1029s. 6d., 1030s. 6d., 1031s. 6d., 1032s. 6d., 1033s. 6d., 1034s. 6d., 1035s. 6d., 1036s. 6d., 1037s. 6d., 1038s. 6d., 1039s. 6d., 1040s. 6d., 1041s. 6d., 1042s. 6d., 1043s. 6d., 1044s. 6d., 1045s. 6d., 1046s. 6d., 1047s. 6d

THE BRITISH CONSULATE, OMOA, HONDURAS,

H.M.S. NIOBE BOMBARDING SAN FERNANDO CASTLE, OMOA.

CIVIL WAR IN SPAIN: SANDBAG BATTERY FOR THE DEFENCE OF ALICANTE,

BY THE WAY.

The "British Federal Council" of the "International" has issued a "report," which has been sent to the press, and is therefore, we suppose, intended to obtain newspaper notice. We can have no objection to say what it is that we have received. As usual in the case of such confederations, there have been vile traitors in the camp, and the first part of the report announces that these persons, who are very "selfish" and have much "low cunning," have been "cast out" of the association here, but have been doing mischief on the Continent. These evil beings having been got rid of, certain federative rules are to be promulgated. Then we come to big words. The Council is disgusted with the Times, for calling the International "a great soul in a small body," and describes the maker of the remark as "a small-souled worshipper of gross substantialities"—the love of a certain class for polysyllables is touching. Next we have a declaration of the real nature of the International, and this may be found interesting. "Besides being the soul of the Revolution, the International is its brain. The wave of Republicanism (sic) which is now sweeping across Europe is but the forerunner of that rising tide of revolution which, directed by the International Working Men's Association, shall soon engulf in one universal doom the tyrants of the world." Whether this doom is to be moral or physical is not stated, but some light is afterwards thrown on the question. The Council proceed to say that the working class is not likely to be alarmed at the reproach of "illegality," as the idea is now gaining ground that laws made by one class are not very binding on another. This remark, however, cannot apply to England, as here every decent man can have a voice in our law-making if he likes. The Council goes on to declare that the sage device of stipulating that on no account is physical force to be used is becoming obsolete. "The invitation of the Liberal politician to agitate is received with sullen and contemptuous silence," a phrase which is slightly melodramatic, and reminds us of the hero of some Surrey play scanning a "minion" from head to foot, and turning away with a scowl. However, we are somewhat reassured by reading that "Violence and bloodshed have, in themselves, no charm for the working class; those are amongst the special prerogatives of the governing classes. There is, indeed, little room to doubt their bloodthirsty appetites and propensities." General Peel, in England, and M. Thiers, in France, are held up as representatives of blood-thirstiness; the General will, perhaps, be astonished to hear this, but M. Thiers knows that the Communists do not love him. Abuse of M. Thiers brings the report to an end; and though we do not quite see what he has to do with the working men of England, we suppose that the cosmopolitan character of the International explains his being so lavishly denounced. We have acknowledged and described the report, and can do no more. All that it contains is helpless and windy trash, and a sensible workman will rather expend the twopenny, its price, on some wholesome liquid refreshment than on a farrago of unwholesome jargon. Our own copy was obtained at its exact value.

"England expects that every man will do his duty." An anecdote, new to us, has recently appeared in reference to these immortal words. It seems that Lord Nelson when ordering the signal used the word "confides" instead of the first verb. We all know that the hero was not extraordinarily strong in grammar; and, though Milton has written,

Yet not terrible
That I should fear, not socially mild
As Raphael, that I should much confide, the phrase would have grated on British ears to all time. Happily, it was varied, for Nelson desired that the signal should be made as rapidly as possible, and the officer who had to make it remarked that time would be saved if he might say "expects," as that was in the vocabulary, whereas the word "confides" was not, and would have to be spelt letter by letter. Lord Nelson instantly approved the alteration, forth flew the most famous message ever signalled, and to ruin went the fleets of two great nations.

Parris componere—another phrase, one of our own time, is shown not to have been invented for the occasion on which it was used to no great advantage. We have all heard of plundering and blundering. A correspondent of the Daily News (using the well-known initials, J. C. P.) has found in "Coningsby" a reference to "a noble lord who had, in a public capacity, plundered and blundered in the good old time."

It is not often that the great vice of a system can be happily summed up in a very few words—tied up as tightly as the truth in a proverb. But the vice of the Voting Charities system may be so presented. They are contrivances for helping those who least need help. But, true as this is, and as every election shows it to be, by throwing on the funds of a charity those who have the most friends, the reformers must have small knowledge of human nature—and especially of the nature of the upholder of the canvass system—if they think that it is enough to show that the system is ludicrously unfair. To say nothing of vested interests of a hundred kinds, the canvass is a joy and delight to thousands of fussy strong-minded folk, especially ladies. To be a successful manager in a charity fight is to attain a social success entailing no ordinary glory—in a small circle, certainly, but a very devoted one. Mrs. Jellaby was no creation of Dickens's imagination; and her pride in the number of letters she had sent out and received on a certain day is a pride felt by an entire class of semi-benevolent folk. They do not all drop the envelopes into the gravy at dinner; probably they file and preserve them as evidences of vigour, as an Indian strings his scalps. Active women, with determined faces, voluble tongues, and a habit of not taking "No" for an answer will defeat this Mansion-House movement, especially as they will be obstinately backed up by the Philistine class of male subscribers to charities. Still, in the end, the truth that the poor child or other person seeking aid will get it if possessed of troops of friends, and will not if nearly friendless, must in time eat into the sides of a hollow system, and then it will collapse like a "Restoration."

As H.R.H. the Prince of Wales has interested himself in the question of cab improvement, and has ordered a new model cab—not from a London maker, by-the-way—we may indulge some hope that general attention will be drawn to the detestable vehicles in which the middle class is content—or discontent—to be carried to its business or pleasure. If we can succeed on only one point at first we shall do much. There ought to be two kinds of cabs—one allowed to carry luggage, the other not allowed to do so. It is no fault of the cabowner that his vehicle is, by reason of its almost inelastic springs, an instrument of torture. He must have it built strongly, for he may have to place half a dozen vast boxes on the top, and their weight would bring the body down upon the axles were not the springs extra stubborn. Let us relieve from this necessity those who are willing to try an experiment in the interest of public comfort. People do not want C springs to a cab, but they would like to drive out after dinner without being so shaken and jolted that they arrive at the party or the theatre in no state of mind to say or to applaud pleasant things. Nobody would grudge paying a little more in compensation for the abolition of the luggage license. There is no important town in England where the cab accommodation is not better than that of the metropolis of the world. We are glad to observe that Royal notice is given to the fact.

About a hundred years ago it would seem that the British husband, of the lower class, was of somewhat a better nature than the wife batterer of the present day. Some cases of brutal conduct have recalled a case that is on record. In 1769 one John Mitchell, labourer, of Pulham, Dorsetshire, had buried his wife. He was a good deal "reflected on" by his neighbours for having ill-treated her. So he caused the grave to be opened next day, and, taking the body of his wife into his arms, kissed the face several times, and desired that if he had ever done her any harm she would reveal it. As she did not, he replaced her in the grave, and "went home satisfied." A good many brutes have learned that such a proceeding would be absurd, but they have not learned to treat their wives with humanity, and the calendar, just now, is full of atrocities. It is as well to note, in this age of wonderful civilisation, how very little one class has improved.

THE ASHANTEE WAR.

The news from Cape Coast Castle to the 10th ult. consists chiefly of rumours. It is rumoured that the Ashantees have left their camp near Elmina. It was rumoured some time ago that reinforcements for the Ashantees had crossed the Prah; and now this report has received some confirmation from Accra. An Ashantee prisoner captured in the eastern districts says that two large armies of 20,000 and 12,000 men had crossed the Prah, and that the King had sworn the Great Oath to take Cape Coast Castle or perish in the attempt. The road from Cape Coast Castle to the Prah is being made under the charge of Lieutenant Gordon, of the 98th Regiment, who has been placed by Sir G. Wolseley among the special-service officers attached to this expedition. Lieutenant Gordon has nearly reached Yancomassie, where the Fantees were beaten in a battle with the Ashantees. It is about thirty miles north-east of Cape Coast Castle: so far already guns can be transported. The first and great camp is to be at Doonquah, a few miles nearer than Yancomassie. A company of fifty men of the West India Regiment, under Lieutenant Jones, is at Akrofoof, nine miles short of Doonquah. Captain Glover, at Accra, is said to be getting on well, the only misadventure having been a fight between the Houssas and the Accras. The Houssas are not yet quite broken in, and frequently take the sheep, fowls, and wives of their friends.

SPECIMEN OF ASHANTEE SCULPTURE.

Our illustrations of this topic in the present Number of our Journal are chiefly supplied by a series of sketches contributed by Mr. James F. Hutton, of Manchester; showing scenes on the sea coast, the landing and embarking through the surf, the port and town of Accra, the fort of Annamaboe, and several native boats on the lagoon; but we have also borrowed from the "Journal of a Residence in Ashantee," by Mr. Joseph Dupuis, some figures of Ashantee soldiers, of priests or magicians invoking the Ashantee gods, and of a man and woman in the Ashantee province of Gaman; a view of the scenery on the banks of the river Prah, in the forest of Assin, through which lies the road from Cape Coast Castle to Coomassie; and two grotesque specimens of Ashantee sculpture. A description of the Gold Coast, with its numerous European settlements and military or commercial stations, and of the kingdom of Ashantee, which lies about one hundred miles inland, is reserved to accompany future illustrations, with some account of the circumstances which have brought about this troublesome war.

Extensive preparations of material for the uses of the war continue to be made at Woolwich, where one of the latest arrivals is a set of strong railway trucks, marked "Gold Coast Line." By praiseworthy precaution for the health of the troops, an order has been given out for a thousand pocket-filters for the use of the men in the campaign. In addition to the Joseph Dodds, which is taking in cargo, the Briton steamship is expected in a few days to load for the West Coast.

According to the quarterly return of the Registrar-General, in the United Kingdom the births of 266,246 children, and the deaths of 150,736 persons of both sexes, were registered in the three months ending Sept. 30 last. The natural increase of population was thus 115,510. The registered number of persons married in the quarter ending June 30 was 130,678. As far as England was concerned, the summer was healthy; the mortality low in town and country; smallpox fatal to very few children; measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria, and whooping-cough quiescent; and fever less prevalent than in previous years. The birth-rate was above the average; the natural increase of population rapid. The marriage-rate in the quarter ending June implied that the country was prosperous, and that the mass of the population took such a cheerful view of their prospects as led them to marry in unusual numbers. If prices were high, so were wages. From the marriage returns the Registrar-General infers that the prosperity which, on the whole, this country has enjoyed during the last two years has not been diffused amongst all sections of the community; but that, speaking generally, it has been experienced principally in the coal and iron mining districts, to a less degree amongst the population engaged in the cotton and woollen manufactures, and very little, if at all, in the purely agricultural parts.

THE BOMBARDMENT OF OMOA.

We are obliged to Lieutenant B. G. Deane, R.N., for a sketch of H.M.S. Niobe bombarding the castle of San Fernando, at Omoa, in Spanish Honduras, and for a view of the British Vice-Consulate there, with the following narrative of recent transactions:—Last year the Government of this State, of which General Medina was President, was deposed by a revolutionary party, of which Senor Arias was chief. A similar movement was successful in the neighbouring Republic of Guatemala. The friends of Medina, who was and is still confined in prison at Comayagua, the capital, raised a force, under General Palacios, late Minister for Guatemala at the Court of St. James's, to effect the reinstatement of Medina. Having purchased a small war-steamer, they landed on the coast. For several months a civil war has raged, with varying success, but accompanied with the usual stagnation of trade and detriment to foreign merchants, mostly English, who have a large capital invested in mahogany and other exports. In June last the Niobe, Commander Sir Lambton Lorraine, was dispatched from Jamaica; and during the summer many ports were visited and British residents were protected on this coast. But a sad state of affairs still prevailed at the port of Omoa, one of the chief seats of trade with the interior. The General commanding the Arias party, Streber by name, had there perpetrated serious outrages on the merchants and others in the town. Among other misdeeds, the British Vice-Consulate was broken open, and jewels, money, and goods to the amount of many thousand pounds were taken; while the British flag was hauled down and trampled on. Hearing of this, the Niobe, taking on board Mr. Vice-Consul Bain, proceeded to the scene of action. The following demands were sent in to General Streber:—The release of all British prisoners confined in the castle, a salute of twenty-one guns on rehoisting the Consular flag, the return of the stolen plate and jewels to the Consulate, and an indemnification of £20,000 for robberies of British merchants, perpetrated under Streber's orders. As the means of communicating with the capital was cut off by the opposite party, and it was impossible to correspond with the English Minister Resident, the extreme urgency of the case compelled the alternative of bombarding Omoa Castle to be held out to Streber should the just reparation demanded from him not be conceded.

Omoa Castle is a huge casemated fortification on the sea beach, built formerly to protect Spanish interests from the buccaneers. It is triangular in shape, 600 yards round the walls, which are 40 ft. high and from 15 ft. to 20 ft. thick, the parapets mounting twelve or fourteen guns, most of them very ancient ordnance. There were, however, 300 to 400 soldiers who garrisoned what was considered the impregnable fortress on the coast. All peaceable overtures being summarily rejected, General Streber pointed his guns on the ship, trusting that his stone walls would defy the Niobe's guns. He paraded his troops on the parapet and gave three derisive cheers, at the same time firing his inshore guns. At three o'clock on Aug. 19 the Niobe steamed into position, and in a few hours made considerable havoc in the walls with her seven-inch guns, many shells bursting in the casemates, while the crash of falling masonry and debris told of the destruction inside. At half-past five the firing ceased, and the ship anchored for the evening. At one in the morning on the 20th, no signs of yielding being apparent, the castle was again shelled for an hour, the ship returning to her anchorage down the bay. The desired effect was now produced; for at eight o'clock a white flag was seen waving frantically from the fort. After some diplomatic correspondence, all the British demands were complied with, and it was thus proved that English people and their flag could not be insulted with impunity.

The second sketch was taken when the Niobe returned to Omoa, some weeks afterwards, and when efforts were made to recover whatever British valuables might remain from the wreck. These efforts were partly successful, but the damage was so great as to be almost beyond recovery. The British Consulate, of course, was visited, but against the wish of the authorities; it had, therefore, to be forcibly entered. The spectacle of wreck and ruin which here presented itself was an exasperating sight for Englishmen. The doors were smashed in, there was an iron safe wrenched open, and drawers and cupboards were rifled, jewel-cases emptied and strewn on the floor. Violence and burglary were apparent in every corner when the British commander and party effected an entrance. The sketch shows the outside of the building as it was left by the Niobe, the doors having been resecured and sealed, and the British flag once more hoisted above the house.

The returns of pauperism for the past quarter, when compared with those for the corresponding period of 1872, show a slight increase in the average number of indoor paupers, and a considerable diminution in the average number of outdoor paupers, relieved on the last day of each week.

Last Saturday, in St. Paul's Church, Edinburgh, the Rev. Canon Callaway, M.D., was consecrated as a Missionary Bishop for Independent Kaffraria. At the ceremony there was a large attendance of clergy and of the general public. The Primate (Bishop of Moray and Ross) presided on the occasion.

Lord Ripon, Lord De Grey, and Sir Henry Storks, M.P., were present at the dinner given, last week, by the Mayor of Ripon in the Townhall. Incidentally, Sir H. Storks contradicted the reports that he was to be appointed British Ambassador at Vienna, and that a vacancy was to be caused in the representation of Ripon by his resignation.

The town trustees of Sheffield—a body having considerable revenues in that town—decided on Monday to purchase, at a cost of £14,000, twenty acres of land in the outskirts of the town for the purpose of a park and recreation-ground. A few months since the Corporation of Sheffield purchased a park, and the land to be purchased by the town trustees is close to it.

The new buildings for the accommodation of the Dundee Free Library, which also contain a museum and public hall for lectures, were opened last Saturday by the Earl of Dalhousie. An art-exhibition in celebration of the completion of the buildings was at the same time thrown open to the public; and in the evening there was a dinner of the members of the Town Council and other managers of the institution.

The Devon and Somerset Railway, which connects the Great Western system with West Somerset and North Devon, was opened for traffic last Saturday. The line is forty-four miles long, and is on the broad gauge. It has been ten years in construction, and has cost about £21,000 a mile. A dinner in celebration of the opening was held in the evening—Captain Williams, M.P., in the chair.

Mr. Hugh Mason, presiding at the Manchester Chamber of Commerce on Monday, drew a rather dark picture as to the condition of the cotton trade, which, according to his delineation, is to a large extent financially unsound and morally corrupt. In reference to the latter point, he referred pointedly to the practice of exporting deteriorated qualities of goods. Mr. Alderman Bennett entertained much more hopeful views with regard to the condition of trade.

THE WINTER EXHIBITIONS.

PHOTOGRAPHIC SOCIETY.

The annual exhibition of this society, which is this year held in the gallery of the Old Water-Colour Society, and will remain open till the 15th inst., is more extensive and effective than usual. There is, however, no very important fresh discovery or great improvement—chemical, optical, or manipulative—to record. The greatest progress seems to have been made in Woodbury-type printing, which, besides presenting eminently satisfactory results, promises, under the direction of a company now formed, to be the most generally serviceable of all the permanent photographic printing processes, in virtue of its great rapidity and cheapness. The productions of the Autotype Company are, however, excellent, as heretofore; and in large reproductions the Berlin Photographic Company remains scarcely equalled.

Additional interest attaches to this exhibition owing to the extensive show of works entered in competition for the prizes offered by Mr. Crawshaw. These prizes have been awarded as follows:—For heads from nature, the size of life or larger, first prize (£50) to Messrs. Robinson and Cherrill; second prize (£25) to Colonel Stuart-Wortley. For heads from nature, about half life-size, first prize (£25) to Mr. Valentine Blanchard; second prize (£12) to Messrs. Robinson and Cherrill. A prize (£25) for enlargements was awarded to Mr. B. J. Edwards. Photographers will, better than the public, appreciate the principles which guided the judges in their awards. They were influenced, and very properly, only by technical considerations. Was the "picture" well in "focus"; was there the right amount of "exposure"; was there the due proportion of light, shade, and half-tint; and was the development chemically good? If, however, the public, and, still more, if artists, had been called in to give a verdict, they would have found it very difficult to assign a secondary rank to the artistic taste in selection and treatment displayed in Colonel Stuart-Wortley's "Dolly" (which has the charm of one of Sir Joshua Reynolds's portraits), or to his "Maiden Meditation" or "Convalescent." Nor would it have been easy to ignore the artistic suggestiveness of some "out-of-focus" heads by Mrs. Cameron, who also has a smaller "Gretchen," remarkable for its wealth of middle tints. "La Donna," too, by Mr. Crawshaw, the prize-giver himself, is, though a little more sudden in its transitions than some others, hardly inferior to any of the largest heads. But photography on this scale is, we think, a mistake; and will be so till the present limitations of the art be removed—till the optical image has far greater analogy to the impression we receive through our binocular vision, and till colours and texture are translated with something like their true relations—when ripe cherry lips are not blanched, and a freckle has not tenfold the value of the pearly tints, half atmospheric, half downy, which give its peachlike softness to the complexion of youth. None but a very enthusiastic photographer can pretend that the best of these big heads are better than an unsightly parody of nature. We lay stress on the importance of artistic feeling, because with such feeling some branches of photography are certainly rendered incomparably more valuable. In portraiture, for instance, what is it but this which gives the exquisite beauty and grace to Nos. 412 and 413 by the famous Viennese photographer, Fritz Luckhardt? The pose of the figures, the cast of the draperies, the elegant arrangement of the backgrounds, the mellow tone diffused over the flesh are worthy (so far as they go) of the very best French painters of cabinet pictures. There is not a single English portrait photograph which can for a moment be compared with these. Yet there are a few contributions by native photographers which deserve praise for artistic merit, as for example those by V. Blanchard; No. 194, by Mr. Slingsby; No. 361, by Mr. M. Wane; No. 248, by Mr. Abel Lewis; and a very simple and sweet full-length (215) of a young lady in muslin leaning on a pedestal, by Mr. Debenham. We have also to commend the costume groups by Professor Karl Koller, of Vienna; and an album of studies by Mr. Rejlander.

The photographer, however, most directly competes with the artist in what are called "combination-pictures"—i.e., two or more negatives united to produce a single positive which shall have the character, more or less, of a pictorial composition. As usual, Messrs. Robinson and Cherrill carry off the palm in this department, this time with the large work "Preparing Spring Flowers for Market," which we have engraved. Photographers will best understand the manipulative difficulties surmounted here, but none will fail to perceive the taste of the arrangement or to admire the courage of the attempt, vain though it must necessarily be. There is, however, one serious objection to all such composite prints. The negatives being taken at different times and under different conditions, they must, when combined, be relatively false to each other as regards the general illumination, and thus the result loses that first great value of photography, the being perfectly truthful and trustworthy within the limits of its own laws.

Among the most conspicuous landscape views are some carbon studies of foliage and foregrounds successfully enlarged to unusual dimensions by Messrs. Spencer, Sawyer, and Bird. In this department, on a smaller scale, the beautiful productions of Mr. William Bedford stand as high as ever; and Messrs. F. M. Good, F. Hudson, P. Mawdsley, G. B. Gibson, S. Thompson, with many others, well support their reputation. Mr. England's reproductions of works of art, scenes from India by Mr. Phillips, and from Nankin by Mr. J. Thompson, together with many other records of art, architecture, natural history, foreign lands, transitory effects, such as breaking waves, clouds, and the like, indicate the true value and great importance of photography.

THE FRENCH GALLERY.

The collection which Mr. Wallis has brought together, though numerically much smaller than the gathering at the Dudley Gallery (reviewed last week), is of higher average merit, especially in the British portion. If not to be compared as a whole with some of the spring exhibitions of foreign works exclusively which have been held at the same gallery, yet we are glad to see our native artists so well sustain comparison with the Continental rivals with whom they are brought into contact in this present winter show.

The young artist Mr. Frank Holl has made a great advance in a picture entitled "Want," with the motto, "Her poverty but not her will consents." The subject is pathetic, as usual; but, except perhaps in the colouring—which is rather needlessly black, allowing for the keeping required in so sombre a theme—the artist has just escaped the extreme funereal lugubriousness and melodramatic exaggeration of some earlier works. It may be urged that a purely painful incident is not a fitting theme for pictorial domestic drama. We think, however, on the contrary, that art is never more worthily employed than in soliciting our sympathies for the trials and sorrows of the lowly, the helpless, and unfortunate. The scene represented is the interior of a pawnbroker's shop, amidst the litter of which lies, conspicuously, a folio family bible. A young mother, with her babe closely wrapped in a shawl at her breast, stands hesitating whether she shall pledge the wedding-ring she holds in her hand as well as the clothes of her little one, which lie before her on the counter, and for which the clerk is making out a ticket. The conflict of emotion in the poor woman's face is very touching, and even the master pawnbroker, familiar as he must be with such distress, is moved to compassion as he pauses over the inspection of a diamond bracelet. The tone of colouring is very powerful, and the execution has a solidity which shows that vigour of realisation is quite compatible with breadth and suggestiveness. Widely contrasted with this picture in its gay colouring and its pleasant touches of genial humour, while an equally favourable example of the painter when most successfully rivaling his master, the late John Phillip, is Mr. Long's "Don Antonio," a clue to the subject of which is given in the catalogue in an extract from a "Letter from Spain." The scene is the cloister-like corridor of a Spanish building, where are ranged a number of women, applicants for the post of "Criada," under the inspection of "Don Antonio" and his lean and possibly jealous housekeeper, "Tia Carmen." The painter should have afforded us a glimpse of the "good padre's" face, if only in profile; yet, although we only see the characteristic back of his figure, it is easy to perceive, in the assumption of youthful gallantry of his turned-out toe and general attitude, that his choice would fall on the very pretty, shy-looking girl to whom he addresses himself. Meanwhile, however, the housekeeper has been reading the written character of a dark, plain, robust woman, whom she evidently prefers; with a tap, therefore, of her fan, she recalls the padre to the criada of her choice, and, malgré his pretensions as a "physiognomist" and to have "an opinion which he insists on giving," we are assured that Tia Carmen will ultimately "have her own way." A fresco of the temptation of St. Anthony forms a suggestive decoration in the background. Another pleasing but rather tame Spanish subject is "El dia del Santo del Cura," by Mr. Burgess—a boy and girl presenting flowers and fruit to an old bookworm ecclesiastic on his fête-day. Very pretty and graceful in its way and highly elaborated, though rapid compared to the force and freedom of the first-named works, is Mr. Dicksee's "Ophelia." A cattle-piece and a picture of sheep, good average examples of the later work of the veteran Sidney Cooper; two very bright and taking though rather artificial Thames views, by Mr. Leader; a little picture of "Hever Castle," with a group of figures in seventeenth-century costumes on the pleasure in front, by Mr. Goodall; a small single-figure study, called "The Toilette," by Mr. Frith; two effective and picturesque views of the "Castle of Ischia" and "Dort, Holland," by Mr. J. Webb; a droll little picture, by J. Morgan, of an old man and woman in a donkey-cart, called "The Road to Gretna;" works by Messrs. Tourrier, Haylar, and Teniswood; a small view of "Arundel Castle," by Copley Fielding, very tender and beautiful; and last, not least, the head of a collier, with eyes full of gentle intelligence, by Sir Edwin Landseer—are other noticeable English pictures. The original of the dog just named was a present to the artist from a lady, and a great favourite. It was painted by Sir Edwin for Dr. Tweedie, in 1862, to take the place of a portrait of Queen Anne in the centre of a flower-piece by Seghers.

A picture by R. Wylie, an American artist, representing the welcome of an orphan into a Brittany peasant's home, has good points of colouring and in the telling of the story. "Algerian Street Scene," by Mr. T. A. Bridgman, another American artist, we believe, shows profitable study in the school of Gérôme.

There are few foreign pictures of salient importance. Among the best are two snow scenes from the late Franco-Prussian or Prusso-Franician War, by E. Castres, representing "Outside an Ambulance," with groups of wounded and convalescent, and a foraging party displaying their spoils from neighbouring farms around the field fire, which are recommended by a great air of vraisemblance and spirit, with excellent technical qualities. The small comedy of "The Happy Moment," by Jules Breton—a picture dated 1856—is hardly worthy of the great pathetic painter of the toils and piety of the Brittany peasants. The title refers to the dozing of an old mother, which is taken advantage of by the cat to play, the dog to steal, and a lover to make his declaration to the daughter at her wheel. A sketch of a Bretonne girl in her Sunday finery is much more acceptable. "The Moorland Flock," by C. Jacques, is also a heavy and inferior example of the painter. L. Jazet's "Affaire d'Honneur, 1792" from the last French salon—a duel in a fosse beneath ramparts—is ugly in colour; but there is nothing more characteristic—in its grim, repulsive realisation—here. A smoothly-painted voluptuous "Almée," by C. Landalle; a weak and sentimental "Jessamina," by H. Merle; "The Mousetrap," by H. Dargelas; "Schoolboy Politicians," by E. Moulinet; and "A Ramble in the Woods," by F. Girard, are other French pictures of some mark.

The Dutch school is relatively better represented, and there are a few good German landscapes, &c. The sound and honest Scheveningen interiors of Blommers; a silvery river view by Gabriel; a canal scene by J. Maris; the broad, manly execution of "Shrimping on the Dutch Coast" by Mesdag; "Old Friends," by G. Henkes—an old woman with her cat in a cottage interior enveloped in the darkling shades of evening; interiors by Scholten; one of Clays's eternal "Calms on the Scheldt"—which, however, compares in some respects disadvantageously with the earlier and more careful "Dutch Seaport," a picture, by Wiesz, of an Italian boy offering an image of a little Cupid to a couple of pretty girls; and H. Dahlen's amusing picture of "A Bird-Catcher" pursuing his calling in the snow under a dismal sky, are all entitled to notice. Of two pictures by Italian artists, by far the preferable is "The Boudoir Rehearsal," by A. Pascutti, an actress seated at the edge of a bed, reciting or singing her part before female friends, which is near being a gem without flaw. The workmanship is very dainty and finished; we can only object to the rather too bluish tone of the colouring. V. Palmarioli's "Marchand de Bric à Brac" we must unhesitatingly condemn. It aims evidently at the sparkling exaggeration of the Fortuny-Madrasso school, but the colouring has little of true brilliancy or beauty, and the merit it possesses is palpably due to servile imitation of the masters named.

MR. M'LEAN'S GALLERY.

The collection of water-colour drawings, British and foreign, being exhibited at this gallery, is more extensive and of higher quality generally than we before remember to have seen in the same room. A considerable proportion of the members of both societies in Pall-mall are represented in usually, well-selected examples; as, for instance, Sir John Gilbert, F. Tayler, A. W. Hunt, W. C. T. Dobson H. B. Willis, B. Foster, G. Dodgson, F. W. Topham, Carl Haag, G. A. Fripp, C. Green, A. W. Gow, and T. Collier. A few of the works by these artists have been previously exhibited; and, as we have twice a year to review the characteristics of the same painters as represented in the exhibitions of the societies to which they belong, we may be excused from attempting within our limited space a detailed notice of the present gathering. There are, besides, some drawings by deceased English masters, including an important work by Copley Fielding and examples of G. Cattermole, S. Prout, J. Holland, and

W. W. Deane. Drawings by J. Linnel, R. Beavis, and other artists, best known by their works in oil, and members of no established society of water-colour painters, further extend the interest of the display. But the most novel feature of the collection will be found to be the productions of Continental aquarellistes, of which there are several. These are well calculated to dispel the illusion that water-colour painting is a monopoly of our school. The drawings of the Dutch painters, Israels, Blommers, Mesdag, and Clays; of the French painters, J. L. Brown and O. Saunier; of the Belgian, L. Gallait; and of the Romano-Spanish school here shown, present the same evidence of superior training which distinguish the oil pictures of those artists. By Fortuny, the leader of the last-named school—which, by-the-way, has won its reputation as much through the medium of water-colour as oil—there is a remarkable drawing of the handsome interior of "The Mazarin Library," with old bibliophiles, in richly-embroidered costumes of the last century, poring over their folios. The effect of light and colour in this drawing is extraordinarily intense—indeed, almost excessive, the aerial perspective being somewhat sacrificed. Of the artistic power displayed there can, however, be no two opinions. The fine colourists L. Jimenez and A. Simonetti, able followers of this school, are also represented.

MESSRS. AGNEW'S GALLERY.

At this gallery are now exhibited about 120 sketches and studies in oil by Edouard Frère, which should prove alike interesting and attractive to the art-student and the public. Their dates extend over a period of many years, and they had, till obtained by Messrs. Agnew, been jealously guarded by the artist. In them the painter often appears in a new light. They not only record the impressions he has derived direct from Nature with a freshness which no work elaborated in the studio ever possesses, but they show that his artistic perceptions and aptitudes are much wider in their range than might be expected from the somewhat limited scope of the subjects through which he has acquired his reputation in this country. It is at first a little disappointing to find in these sketches and studies comparatively few obvious indications of the painter's experiences at Ecouen—where he has so long lived among the villagers as one of themselves, observing their humble habits and homes and the ways of their children, with an unaffected sympathy, and representing them with a felicity which has rendered him uncontestedly the first favourite as a painter of child-life with the British public. Of course, however, there are several Ecouen subjects, and there are not a few studies of interiors, with and without figures, which have, doubtless, furnished materials for the backgrounds, or more or less of the entire compositions, of many of the cabinet gems which have delighted us during the last twenty years. But what we confess surprises us is, par exemple, to find Edouard Frère as a landscape-painter pur et simple in views taken from Antwerp to Monaco, and from Brittany to the Maritime Alps. Nor are we less surprised at the sense of character displayed—for instance, in the figure of the garrulous-looking old fisherman of No. 39, as well as elsewhere. In the landscape studies we have various effects of silvery, dewy morning, of golden, glowing midday, of the tender tremulousness of twilight; the low-browed cottage interiors are often almost pathetic in their gloom; and the street vistas under archways or through narrow apertures are often very fine in chiaroscuro. Yet through all—as will perhaps be more appreciated by the art-student than the public—there is the same quiet, observant spirit, the same refined modesty of interpretation. Our failing space permits us only to particularise the following; it is, indeed, invidious to make any selection:—"At Antwerp" (8); "Interior at Monet" (9), with figures of children; "An Organ-Grinder" (10); "Young Girl from Cailleux" (25), standing on a breezy seashore under a grey sky; "A Covered Street at Villefranche" (38); "An Old Fisherman at St. Valery" (39), already mentioned; "Antoine" (54), a little boy seated on rocks in the sunshine; "Port of St. Valery" (56) and "Young Shepherd" (58), both with exquisite twilight effects; "A Courtyard with Figures" (76); "An Old Staircase" (97); "Windmill at Antwerp" (100); "Courtyard at Piscop" (105), and "An Interior at Amiens" (110), with a girl sitting at a spinning-wheel beneath a large window—all five remarkable for effects of lighting.

The exhibition of French pictures brought together by M. Durand Ruel at the gallery in New Bond-street opened on Monday last. We must reserve a notice till next week.

It has been decided that the memorial by the corps of Royal Engineers to their distinguished officer, the late Field Marshal Sir John Burgoyne, shall take the form of a statue, which will be placed near Whitehall. Mr. Foley, the eminent sculptor, has been intrusted with the work. About £1000 has been contributed towards the fund by the officers and men.

Professor Rudolph Stang, of Düsseldorf, has at length completed the line-engraving upon which he has been so long engaged, after "Lo Sposalizio," Raphael's famous picture in the Brera, Milan. The engraver commenced his great task in 1865, and during seven years he has been assisted by a subsidy from the Prussian Government. Giuseppe Longhi's engraving from the same picture is well known; but the raison d'être of the present plate arose from the discovery, about twelve years ago, that before Longhi's work was executed the original picture had been very extensively painted over, in which process some of the heads, the form at the top (which should be semi-circular), the general effect, and countless details had been altered, falsified, and debased. The repaintings were removed by Signor Molteni, the Conservator of the Brera Gallery; and thus the present authentic engraving was prepared for and rendered most desirable. We have seen a proof of Professor Stang's engraving; and, in its extreme carefulness and self-evident accuracy, it bears ample testimony to the work having been a labour of love, and to the engraver's thorough appreciation of Raphael's style at the period when this, his greatest picture, executed while still under the influence of his master, Perugino, was produced. The plate will take rank as a work of standard authority, and must supersede Longhi's inaccurate version. The publisher for England is Mr. W. Luks, 16, Beaufort-buildings, Strand.

A series of meritorious etchings by Mr. C. Lewis, after subjects by Sir Edwin Landseer, has been published by Mr. S. B. Beal, St. Paul's-churchyard.

In St. Paul's Church, Edinburgh, on Saturday, the Rev. Canon Calloway, M.D., was consecrated as a Missionary Bishop for Independent Kaffraria. The Primus (Bishop of Moray and Ross) presided on the occasion.

A thunderstorm, accompanied by heavy showers of hail, passed over Barrow on Saturday night and Sunday morning. The lightning set fire to a large building, which was quite destroyed.

The art-director of the Royal Porcelain Works of Worcester and the designer of the goods at the Vienna Exhibition is Mr. R. W. Eims, and not Burns, as incorrectly printed last week in our notice of the Worcester manufactures at Vienna.

BURNING OF THE OLD OPERA-HOUSE, PARIS.

MR. PHILIP CUNLIFFE OWEN.

This gentleman, secretary to the Royal British Commission for the Vienna Great Exhibition of this year, is third son of the late Captain C. Cunliffe Owen, and brother of the late Colonel Owen, R.E., C.B., General Superintendent of the London Great Exhibition of 1851. For a short time Mr. Owen served in the Royal Navy as a midshipman, but was obliged to quit the service on account of ill health. He was appointed a clerk in the Science and Art Department in the year 1854, and since that time has held appointments in connection with all the great exhibitions. He was Deputy-Superintendent for Arrangement at the Paris Universal Exhibition, 1855; Superintendent of the Foreign Department at the London International Exhibition, 1862; Assistant Executive Commissioner for the Paris Universal Exhibition, 1867; and has this year been Secretary to the Royal British Commission at the Vienna Universal Exhibition. In recognition of the services rendered on these occasions he has received the following decorations from foreign Courts:—Commander of the Order of Francis Joseph of Austria; of the St. Michael Order of Merit, Bavaria; of the Order of Christ, Portugal; and of the Royal Order of Charles III., Spain; Knight of the Legion of Honour, France; of the Order of Leopold, Belgium; of the Order of St. Olaf, Norway; of the Order of Frederick, Wurtemberg; and of the Order of Vasa, Sweden. Mr. Owen is also one of the superintendents of the South Kensington Museum.

On the 21st of last month about one hundred of the English exhibitors at the Vienna Exhibition entertained Mr. P. C. Owen at a banquet in Willis's Rooms. The object of the entertainment was to present Mr. Owen with a testimonial in acknowledgment of the services he has rendered to the Exhibition and the exhibitors as secretary to the Royal British Commission. The testimonial consisted of a silver dessert service and a purse containing 1300gs. The former bore the following inscription:—"To Philip Cunliffe Owen, Esq., this silver dessert service and a purse of 1300gs. are presented by 275 British exhibitors at the Vienna Universal Exhibition, as a small token of their esteem and regard, and in remembrance ecclesiastical, the material and execution of the stonework would pass muster anywhere. The Rev. Henry Pope is the first Chaplain of Coimbatore.

MR. OWEN, SECRETARY TO THE BRITISH COMMISSION AT THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

SIR ALBERT SASSOON.

Our Illustration shows the design of the gold casket which on Thursday last was presented at Guildhall, with the freedom of the city of London, to the eminent Jewish merchant of Bombay, Sir Albert David Sassoon, C.S.I., in recognition of his munificent and philanthropic exertions in the cause of charity and of education, more especially, though not exclusively, in our Indian empire. The illuminated scroll containing the freedom of the City is inclosed in a casket designed in the Renaissance style of art, and executed in solid eighteen-carat gold. The centre panel contains an ornamental shield with the arms of Sir Albert Sassoon enamelled in true heraldic colours, suspended from which is a perfect miniature model of the badge of the Star of India, of which order Sir Albert is a companion. The body of the casket is supported by four ornamental columns, relieved by panels in repoussé and carved gold, each end inclosing a medallion finely painted in enamel with crest and monogram; the lid is dome-shaped, and surmounted by the arms of the City in gold and enamel. On the reverse side of the casket is of his unwearied exertions in their behalf while secretary of her Majesty's Royal Commission. October, 1873." At the same time a set of very artistic Danish jewellery, in pearls and wrought gold-work after Runic models, was presented to Mrs. Owen "by a large number of exhibitors and friends at the Vienna Universal Exhibition of 1873, as a small token to her of their esteem and regard, and in remembrance of her many acts of disinterested kindness."

GOLD CASKET PRESENTED TO SIR ALBERT SASSOON.

The portrait of Mr. Owen is engraved from a photograph by Fritz Luckhardt, of Vienna.

ENGLISH CHURCH AT COIMBATORE.

Coimbatore is the chief town of a district of the same name, and is one of the most important civil stations in Southern India. Situated on the line of the Madras Railway, 300 miles from Madras on the Coromandel coast, and one hundred from Calicut on the Malabar coast, it is not only on the highway of communication between the east and west of India, but, from its position at the foot of the far-famed Neilgherry hills, it is the station at which travellers from Bengal, Bombay, and Madras meet, and sometimes rest awhile before beginning their mountain journey. So long ago as 1858, Mr. Thomas, collector of the district, made preparatory arrangements for a building to accommodate resident English Churchmen. Plans were furnished by the Government engineer, an officer who in India is supposed to design any structure, from a sentry-box to a cathedral; but the project remained in abeyance till 1869, when there was enough money in hand to warrant a beginning. The Madras Government gave £500; and Mr. James Fischer, a well-known Salem name, supplemented this with £350. Mr. Chisholm, Government architect, having furnished drawings in the Early English style, the church was built by an intelligent native Christian, M. Joseph Pillay, at a cost of £1800. The most active promoter of the good work was Colonel Hessey. The low hills of Muddigherry, close by, furnished the material, which is pink crystallised limestone, and takes a polish like marble. The church, which seats one hundred people, consists of chancel, transepts, and nave. It is remarkable for its simplicity and absence of florid ornament. Punks are not needed; and, without hindrance, wherever the eye falls it rests on arches of cut stone. The windows are fitted with stone tracery, to be filled in with stained glass. While the design is thoroughly a shield containing the following inscription:—"Presented by the Corporation with the Freedom of the City of London to Sir Albert David Sassoon, C.S.I., November 6, 1873." Every detail of the design is most delicately wrought, and the centre of the miniature badge beneath the front shield contains one of the smallest pietra-dura cameos that has ever been produced. This exquisite work of art has been designed and executed for the Corporation by Messrs. Howell, James, and Co., of Regent-street. By the Queen's special permission, Messrs. Howell and James had the honour of submitting the original drawing of the casket for her Majesty's inspection at Balmoral.

THE LATE MR. E. FITZBALL.

BURNING OF THE PARIS OPERA-HOUSE.

The destruction by fire of the old Opera-House, at the corner of the Rue Lepelletier and the Rue Droûot, Boulevard des Italiens, was mentioned last week. This building must be distinguished from the new Grand Opera-House, in the Place de l'Opéra, between the Rue Auber and the Rue de la Chaussée d'Antin, Boulevard des Capucines. A still more ancient Opera-House formerly existed in the Rue de Richelieu, opposite the National Library. But on Feb. 13, 1820, the Duc de Berri, father of the Comte de Chambord, having been assassinated as he was coming out, the Government decreed the destruction of the house. The building just destroyed was erected in a year by M. Dobret, and inaugurated on Aug. 19, 1821. It was a large building, richly decorated, and well proportioned, but run up rather hastily, and with exceedingly light material. Its acoustic properties were excellent. During its comparatively long life (fifty-two years) this house has had a brilliant career—witnessed the birth and success of Mozart's "Don Juan," Rossini's "Moïse" and "Guillaume Tell," Auber's "La Muette," Meyerbeer's "Robert le Diable," and the "Huguenots." The escape of the Emperor and Empress from the bombs which were thrown at their carriage by Orsini as they drove away from the door of the Opera on Jan. 14, 1848, should not be forgotten in these few words on the burnt house. There is nothing standing except part of the northern wall and three narrow strips of wall, now looking like ruined towers. In the night the flames so alarmed the whole neighbourhood that the inhabitants of the Rue Lepelletier, the Rue Rossini, the Rue Droûot, the Boulevard des Italiens, and the Passage de l'Opéra hastily packed up their valuables and fled. It is wonderful, however, to see how completely the fire was limited to the building itself. The café attached was, of course, utterly destroyed, but beyond that scarcely any damage was done in the precincts. The cause of the fire is supposed to have been the bursting of a gaspipe. There had been in the course of the evening a rehearsal of the new opera of "Joan of Arc." At half-past ten M. Halanzier received a report from the watchmen that all was right. He and most of the administrative officials lodged in the building. They were aroused by the firemen breaking in their windows and calling on them to rush for their lives down the fire-escapes. The children of the stage manager narrowly escaped being forgotten, the parents being out spending the evening, and the servants profiting by their absence to go to a dancing-garden. The firemen came in by chance, tore them out of their cribs, where they were fast asleep, and it was only next morning that their parents knew they were saved. It is said that Mdlle. Devries's dresser, at the risk of her life, saved her mistress's diamonds. The dresses and jewels of the other actresses were all consumed. The cashier also risked his life to obtain a safe containing 100,000fr., which he flung out of the window. The Boulevard des Italiens and the streets adjacent were covered with cinders, just like those under Vesuvius after an eruption. Quantities of burning charcoal were carried long distances by a strong north-easterly wind, especially menacing the rich and thickly-populated quarter that lies between the Opéra Comique and the Opéra. The firemen, all but unaided by the population and with a very insufficient water supply, abated the fire. Tremendous detonations and noises were heard, caused by the gaspipes, burning lustres, and machinery falling. It seems that only one life has been lost—that of a fireman named Bellet, who, when his comrades were going to the Bourse station to obtain water, got astride on a wall near the Passage de l'Opéra to tear away some combustible material. The wall gave way with him, and he was precipitated from a great height into the flames. It is a curious fact that the piece performed at the last representation at this Opera-House—that of Monday week—was the "Prophète," which ends with a conflagration.

ALL SAINTS' CHURCH, COIMBATORE, INDIA.

Archæology of the Month.

The restoration works of Worcester Cathedral, it has been decided, will be completed next Easter, when, in Easter week, the opening services will take place. Earl Dudley, it is announced, will present the Dean and Chapter with a costly pulpit, designed by Sir Gilbert Scott, the materials of marble and alabaster. Lord Dudley will also give a number of carved oak benches, to be placed in the eastern half of the nave.

At Durham Cathedral, in addition to the several stained-glass windows already inserted in the nine altars and south transept, it is understood that the Freemasons of the city are about to place a window in memory of Mr. John Pawcett, and Major Joicey and the Dean are to add stained window to the south aisle.

The Rev. Canon Greenwell, with several other distinguished archæologists, recently completed a three-weeks' examination of the barrows on the Goodmanham Wolds, the property of Lord Londesborough, near Market Weighton. Among the objects found were two beautiful and perfect urns, three good ones, and four broken but repairable; also, a perfect war-axe, perforated; likewise, a burnt body, and a beautiful flint knife, delicately serrated. Another flint knife, a pendant of jet, and some very typical skulls were likewise found.

The London correspondent of the Belfast News Letter states there to have been lately discovered in the vaults of the Bank of England a quantity of massive plate of the period of Charles II., and with it a bundle of "love letters" of the date of the Restoration; the name of the writer is Berners, which name was connected with the Bank about the above period, and the plate and letters have been handed to the lineal representative of the owners of the plate.

It is stated in the New York Herald of Oct. 11 that some table plate, relics of Sir John Franklin's expedition in the Polar regions, have been discovered at Repulse Bay. Some of the plate bore the arms of Franklin, who, and his companions, on leaving the bay, broke into two parties, one going in the direction of the Red River and the other towards the Hudson Bay Company's territory. Sir John Franklin and his party are said to have died of natural causes.

Mr. Ingleby, of Ilford, writes that the Church of St. Martin Outwich, Threadneedle-street, is in course of removal. St. Antholin's, Watling-street, is to have the body taken down, the tower to be left standing, and to be used as a receptacle for the monuments. St. Antholin's was originally built in the twelfth century, and rebuilt about 1400, again in 1512, and after the Great Fire, by Sir Christopher Wren. The proceeds of the sale of the materials are to be devoted to the erection and endowment of a new church at Nunhead. Allhallows, Bread-street, is also to be removed; the font, at which John Milton was baptised in 1608, will, it is hoped, be preserved.

The improvements in the western area of St. Paul's Cathedral are progressing. The statue of Queen Anne, with figures of Britain, France, Ireland, and America at the corners of the pedestal, will, it is inferred, be taken charge of by the Government. Sir Samuel Garth wrote some bitter lines upon this group, where France above, with downcast eyes, is seen,

The sad attendant of so good a Queen.

Her Majesty's nose was struck off by a lunatic about a century ago, but has been repaired.

Mr. George Smith recently read to the Society of Biblical Archæology papers on "Fragments of an Inscription Giving Part of the Chronology from which the Canon of Berosus was Copied," and on "A New Fragment of the Assyrian Canon belonging to the Reigns of Tiglath-Pileser and Shalmaneser."

The Moabite Stone has excited some doubt as to its genuineness. Mr. Bonomi, of the Soanean Museum, when in Paris, last August, was refused permission to see the stone on proper application; nor was he more successful in October last, but was informed that "the stone could not be seen, as it was not arranged."

The bicentenary festival in memory of the foundation, by Queen Ethelred, of Ely Cathedral has been held with great éclat. The distinctive peculiarities of the several styles of its architecture, and how Ely Cathedral completely illustrates the history of church architecture, in England from the Conquest to the Reformation, Mr. Sharpe made clear, in a very interesting conversation.

At the annual meeting at Swindon of the Wiltshire Archæological Society, the famous windows at Fairford were described by the Rev. J. G. Joyce, Rector of Strathfieldsaye; and the archæology of Cirencester was ably illustrated; papers were read on "The First Foundation of the Parish Church of Cirencester," and "On Recent Roman Finds at Cirencester." The ancient Roman city of Corinium was also visited.

Two centenarians have been recorded within the last few days. There is now living at the Lye, Worcestershire, an old woman, who, on well established evidence, has reached the age of 103 years. She was baptised at Old Swinford Church, in 1772. Her friends, piqued apparently at the doubt of her age, have lately obtained a certificated extract from the parish register at Old Swinford, showing that she was baptised on Dec. 15, 1772. The Rev. Richard Deverell, Prebendary of St. Canice, Kilkenny, informs us that on Oct. 28 an aged parishioner, named Edward Butler, who had attained the age of 104 years, was buried in the churchyard of St. John's, Wells, in the county of Kilkenny. A well-authenticated entry of his birth shows that he was born in the early spring of 1769.

A memorial tablet is about to be placed on the house in King-street, Covent-garden, in which Dr. Arne, the composer of "Rule Britannia," was born.

Le Caucase states that the archæological excavations made during the past summer in the districts of Alexandropol and Etchmiadzin, in the province of Erivan, have produced important results. Utensils of iron, silver, gold, and bronze have been found, of an age anterior to the introduction of Christianity into the country. The excavations in the neighbourhood of Alexandropol have brought to light a Pagan temple of gigantic dimensions, and not far from it a cuneiform inscription, of which a photograph has been taken.

As a statement is abroad that the railings round St. Paul's churchyard are of Sussex iron, it may be as well to remind readers that the "historic interest" of this famous balustrade is as follows:—There are in it seven ornamental gates, which, with the 2500 rails, weigh 200 tons 81 lb. They were cast at Gloucester Furnace, Lamberhurst, Kent. They cost 6d. per lb., with other charges, amounting to £11,202.

A perfect impression of the front wing of a butterfly from the slaty limestone of Oxfordshire (lower oolitic formation) has recently been brought to light, the oldest species previously discovered having been found in the white sandstone of Aix, in Provence (upper cretaceous). It follows that this is by far the most ancient of all determined fossil butterflies.

During the last fortnight Mr. Parker has given four lectures on the Archæology of Rome, in the Ashmolean Museum, Oxford, which have been remarkably well attended.

THE LATE MR. FITZBALL.

The well-known dramatist, Mr. Edward Fitzball, expired on Monday week, at his residence near Chatham, where he had dwelt for the last ten years. A native of the village of Burwell, in Cambridgeshire, he was born about the year 1793. Adding his mother's maiden name of Fitz to his original patronymic of Ball, he came to London, and began his career as a dramatic author with a melodrama called "Edda," which was produced at the Surrey Theatre, then under the management of Tom Dibdin. To this rapidly succeeded the "Innkeeper of Abbeville," "The Floating Beacon," "The Inchcape Bell," "The Flying Dutchman," "The Pilot," "Jonathan Bradford," and a number of other similar productions, which obtained great popularity at the minor theatres. For nearly all the early operas composed by Balfe Mr. Edward Fitzball furnished the libretto, and his popularity as a song-writer may be dated as far back as 1828, when his still favourite song of "My Pretty Jane," linked with Sir Henry Bishop's charming melody, was first sung at Vauxhall Gardens.

The portrait is engraved from a photograph by Messrs. Lock and Whitfield.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will and codicil of Mr. John Cunliffe Pickersgill-Cunliffe, late of No. 15, Leadenhall-street, City; of Hooley House, Coulsdon, Surrey, and of Portland House, No. 37, Portland-place, who died, on Oct. 6, at Guy's Hospital, from the result of an accident, were proved on the 25th ult., by Mrs. Helen Hutton Pickersgill-Cunliffe, the relict, and William Cunliffe Pickersgill, the brother, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £160,000. The testator gives to his wife certain furniture, several specific legacies, including a policy on his life for £1500, with the bonuses thereon, in the Argus Life Office, an annuity of £2000 for life, and a power of appointment at her death over £10,000 among their issue other than their eldest son; to his eldest son, the estates of Addingham and Spaldington, and all other his real estate in the county of York, which includes the property he is entitled to appoint under the will of his late aunt, Mrs. Harriet Ellis, charged, however, with £20,000 in aid of his general residuary estate; to his second son, the Coulsdon estate; to his third son, Portland House; and the residue between all his children except his eldest son. By the codicil, which was executed in Guy's Hospital, testator bequeaths £25 to the Lock Hospital; to St. Bartholomew's Hospital such a sum as will constitute his eldest son, John, a life governor; to Guy's Hospital, in the event of his dying there, £250, all free of duty. There are also legacies of £100 to each of his two medical attendants, £25 to each of his two nurses at Guy's Hospital, and several other legacies.

The will and codicil of William Pollard, formerly of No. 190, Camberwell-grove, and late of Crown-hill, Croydon, were proved, on the 13th ult., by Henry Parrell Davis, M.D., John Jesty, and George Leonard Turney, the surviving executors; the personalty being sworn under £60,000. Subject to an annuity to his widow and a legacy to his son, testator gives his property to his six daughters.

The will of Sir Robert Fitzwygram, Bart., formerly of Connaught-place, Hyde Park, and late of No. 42, Brunswick-terrace, Brighton, was proved, on the 16th ult., by the Rev. Fitzroy John Fitzwygram, the brother, the sole executor, the personal estate being sworn under £250,000. The testator bequeaths to his two sisters and his two younger brothers £10,000 each, and the residue to his mother for life. At her death it is to be divided between his three brothers and two sisters. The bequests to testator's sisters are upon trust for them for life, and at their deaths they are to go to his eldest brother, Frederick, or his successor in the baronetcy.

The will of Lieutenant-General Charles Crawford Ruse Hay, who died at Redoubt Villa, Freshwater, Isle of Wight, on Sept. 27, was proved, on the 25th ult., by Frederick Charles Ashworth, one of the executors, the personalty being sworn under £20,000. The testator leaves all his property to his wife for life, and then to his children.

The will of Mr. John Doulton, of Lambeth, was proved, on the 29th ult., by Henry Doulton and James Duneau Doulton, the sons, and Virgoe Buckland, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £80,000. The testator bequeaths to the Lambeth Pension Society £200; to Miss Sophia Watts, to distribute among or for the benefit of the poor, £200; to four of the charitable societies in connection with Claylands Chapel, Clapham, 19s. each; and legacies to persons in his employ and others. He makes certain provisions for his sons and daughters and the children of his deceased sons, and gives the residue of his property to his two sons, Henry and James.

The will and codicil of Mr. Deane Parker, late of Barham, near Canterbury, were proved, on the 1st inst., by Mrs. Jemima Mary Parker, the relict, and Deane Parker Pennethorne, the nephew, the executors, the personalty being sworn under £40,000. The testator leaves his wife, in addition to other provisions for her and the provision made for her by settlement, his house and grounds at Barham and an annuity of £500; and, subject to some other legacies and an annuity to his sister, Miss Jane Parker, he gives the residue of his property to his children equally.

CURIOUS WILLS.

The knowledge that at the time their wills are opened and read they will be absent from the scene, and beyond reproach or reply, leads many testators to speak therein their minds freely and fully, and to say very hard words of those they leave behind them. It would appear as though some had not dared to say all they thought in their lifetimes, and take this opportunity to ease their minds of their real opinions. It is not a very noble thing for a husband to take advantage of such a chance to call his wife "jealous, disaffectionate, calumnious, reproachful, and censorious," when she cannot be heard on the other side; and thus by a sort of refined cruelty to oust her of her prescriptive right to the last word. It is not a commendable thing for a husband to perpetuate his wife's "unprovoked and unjustifiable fits of passion, violence, and cruelty" through his will, so that it may always be remembered against her, and give their children the pain of knowing that among the public documents of the country one contains the record of their mother's failings. But there are some whose wills bear testimony in the strongest and most affectionate language to the virtues of their wives. If we can judge anything from the evidence of wills of such an opposite character, it is that the husbands who rail at their wives are distinguished by their meanness, and have themselves a copious supply of vituperative language; while the husbands who record the worth of their wives have done the best they can, by appreciating, to deserve them.

Mr. Sharon Turner, whose will was proved in May, 1847, not only delights to speak of the affections of his wife, but is anxious that she should not suffer in her personal appearance by the incapacity of the persons who had taken her likeness. Speaking of his wife, who was dead, he says, "it is my comfort to remember that I have passed with her nearly forty-nine years of unabated affection and connubial happiness, and yet she is still living, as I earnestly hope and believe, under her Saviour's care in a superior state of being. May all the blessings of the united Godhead be for ever upon her and upon all her children as yet here, whose filial attentions to her demand all my gratitude, and are most pleasing to me to think of! None of the portraits of my beloved wife give any adequate representation of her beautiful face, nor of the sweet and intellectual and attractive expression of her living features and general countenance and character."

Too often testators place all the obstacles they can in the way of their widows marrying again. The following instance is one of the few exceptions, and it contains besides the most eloquent tribute to a wife's character, as given in a will, that we know of. We refer to the will of Mr. G. Granville Harcourt, proved in March, 1862. "The unspeakable interest," he says, "with which I constantly regard Lady Waldegrave's future fate induces me to advise her earnestly to unite herself again with someone who may deserve to enjoy the blessing of her society during the many years of her probable survival after my life. I am grateful to Providence for the great happiness I enjoy in her singular affection, and I pray and confidently hope that she may long continue to possess the same esteem and friendship of those who are intimate with her and can appreciate her admirable qualities and the respect of all with whom in any relation of life she is connected."

Ladies have not the same opportunity of controlling their husbands in regard to their remarrying, and we do not remember a single case of a married woman by her will placing any restraint on her husband marrying again; but we do know of a case to the contrary. Mrs. Van Hanrigh, by her will, proved in December, 1868, leaves all her property—which appears to have been considerable—to her husband. Indorsed on the back of her will is a memorandum stating that she wishes her clothes to be sold to pay her funeral expenses, which are to be as small as possible; and, after commending her husband to the care of her mother, she adds, "It is also my earnest wish that my darling husband should marry, ere long, a nice, pretty girl, who is a good housewife, and, above all, to be careful that she is a good temper."

Theologians differ as to the precise nature of the happiness to be enjoyed in heaven; but Mr. John Starkey, whose will was proved in November, 1861, had no doubt of the sources of the happiness he expected to enjoy there; for he states that, "the remainder of my wealth is vested in the affections of my dear wife, with whom I leave it, in the good hope of resuming it, more pure, and bright, and precious, where neither moth nor rust corrupteth, and where there are no railways, or mundane panics, or fluctuations of exchange, but the steadfast, though progressive and unspeakable, riches of glory and immortality."

CONTRIBUTED BY THE AUTHOR OF "FLEMISH INTERIORS," ETC.

The following bizarre testamentary document, penned by an Earl of Pembroke who lived during the political turmoil of the seventeenth century, testifies to a singular shrewdness and knowledge of character, and is expressed with a considerable amount of dry humour. The copy from which this is taken bears the signature of the keeper of these records, Nathaniel Brind, beneath the words "Concordat cum originali":—

"I, Philip V., Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, being, as I am assured, of unsound health, but of sound memory, as I well remember me that five years ago I did give my vote for the dispatching of old Canterbury, neither have I forgotten that I did see my King upon the scaffold, yet, as it is said that death doth even now pursue me, and, moreover, as it is yet further said that it is my practice to yield under coercion, I do now make my last will and testament.

"Imprimis: As for my soul, I do confess I have often heard men speak of the soul, but what may be these same souls, or what their destination, God knoweth; for myself, I know not. Men have likewise talked to me of another world which I have never visited, nor do I even know an inch of the ground that leadeth thereto. When the King was reigning I did make my son wear a surplice, being desirous that he should become a Bishop, and for myself I did follow the religion of my master; then came the Scotch, who made me a Presbyterian, but since the time of Cromwell I have become an Independent. These are, methinks, the three principal religions of the kingdom. If any one of the three can save a soul, to that I claim to belong. If, therefore, my executors can find my soul, I desire they will return it to Him who gave it to me.

"Item: I give my body, for it is plain I cannot keep it, as you see the chirurgeons are tearing it in pieces. Bury me, therefore. I hold lands and churches enough for that. Above all, put not my body beneath the church porch, for I am, after all, a man of birth, and I would not that I should be interred there, where Colonel Pride was born.

"Item: I will have no monument, for then I must needs have an epitaph, and verses over my carcass—during my life I have had enough of these.

"Item: I desire that my dogs may be shared among all the members of the Council of State. With regard to them, I have been all things to all men—sometimes went I with the Peers, sometimes with the Commons. I hope, therefore, they will not suffer my poor curs to want.

"Item: I give my two best saddle-horses to the Earl of Denbigh, whose legs, methinks, must soon begin to fail him. As regard my other horses, I bequeath them to Lord Fairfax, that when Cromwell and his council take away his commission he may still have some horse to command.

"Item: I give all my wild beasts to the Earl of Salisbury, being very sure that he will preserve them, seeing that he refused the King a doe out of his park.

"Item: I bequeath my Chaplains to the Earl of Stamford, seeing he has never had one in his employ; having never known any other than his son, my Lord Grey, who, being at the same time spiritual and carnal, will engender more than one monster.

"Item: I give nothing to my Lord Saye; and I do make him this legacy willingly, because I know that he will faithfully distribute it unto the poor.

"Item: Seeing that I did menace a certain Henry Mildmay, but did not thrash him, I do leave the sum of fifty pounds sterling to the lacquey that shall pay unto him my debt.

"Item: I bequeath to Thomas May, whose nose I did break, at a masquerade, five shillings. My intention had been to give more; but all who shall have seen his history of the Parliament will consider that even this sum is too large.

"Item: I should have given to the author of the libel on women entitled "News of the Exchange" threepence, to invent a yet more scurrilous mode of maligning; but, seeing that he insulteth and slandereth I know not how many honest persons, I commit the office of paying him to the same lacquey who undertaketh the arrears of Henry Mildmay; he will teach him to distinguish between honourable women and disreputable.

"Item: I give to the Lieutenant-General Cromwell one of my words, the which he must want, seeing that he hath never kept any of his own.

"Item: I give to the wealthy citizens of London, and likewise to the Presbyterians and the nobility, notice to look to their skins; for, by order of the State, the garrison of Whitehall has provided itself with poniards, and useth dark-lanterns in the place of candles."
"Item: I give up the ghost."

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

SIR HENRY HOLLAND, BART., M.D.

Sir Henry Holland, Baronet, of Sandle Bridge, in the county of Chester, and Lower Brook-street, London, M.D., F.R.S., one of her Majesty's Physicians in Ordinary, died on his eighty-fifth birthday, the 27th ult. He was the eldest son of Peter Holland, of Knutsford, by Mary, his wife, daughter of the Rev. W. Willets, of Newcastle-under-Lyme. He graduated M.D. in the University of Edinburgh in 1811, and was granted the honorary degree of D.C.L. at Oxford in 1856. He married first, in 1822, Emma Margaret, sister of Mrs. Marsh, the well-known writer, and fourth daughter of James Caldwell, Esq., of Linley Wood, in the county of Stafford, by whom, who died in 1830, he leaves two sons and one daughter. He married, secondly, in 1834, Saba, daughter of the late Rev. Sydney Smith, the famous Canon of St. Paul's, and by her, who died Nov. 2, 1866, leaves two daughters, Caroline and Gertrude. Sir Henry's eldest son and successor, now Sir Henry Thurstan Holland, second Baronet, is Assistant Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies. Of the late distinguished Baronet, eminent alike in literature and medicine, we gave a Portrait and personal memoir in our last Number.

LORD CHIEF JUSTICE BOVILL.

The Right Hon. Sir William Bovill, D.C.L., F.R.S., Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas, who died on the 1st instant, was the second surviving son of Benjamin Bovill, Esq., of Durnsford Lodge, Wimbledon. He was born in 1814, was educated for the Bar, and, having practised for some time as a special pleader, was called by the Hon. Society of the Middle Temple in 1841, and went the Home Circuit, where he acquired large practice and high reputation. He became a Queen's Counsel and a Bencher of his inn in 1855, and sat in Parliament for Guildford from 1857 to 1866. In July of the latter year Bovill was appointed Solicitor-General, and the following November was constituted Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas, on which occasion he received the honour of knighthood. He was sworn of the Privy Council Dec. 28, 1866. Chief Justice Bovill married, 1844, Maria, eldest daughter of John Henry Bolton, Esq., of Lee Park, Blackheath. His eldest son is William Channell Bovill, Esq., barrister-at-law, Clerk of Assize on the Western Circuit.

MR. WALKER OF TYKILLEN.

Charles Arthur Walker, Esq., of Tykillen, in the county of Wexford, M.P. in the Liberal interest for the county town from 1830 to 1843, died there, on the 29th ult., in his eighty-fourth year. He was the son of Thomas Walker, Esq., of Tykillen (for fifteen years one of the Masters in Chancery, Ireland), by Maria, his wife, daughter of William Acton, Esq., of West Aston, and was educated at Trinity College, Dublin. Mr. Walker was a magistrate and Vice-Lieutenant of the county of Wexford. He married, Feb. 10, 1836, Eleanor, eldest daughter of Joseph Leigh, Esq., of Tinneilly House, in the county of Wicklow, and had two sons and three daughters.

DR. ROBERT SMITH.

Robert William Smith, M.D., Professor of Surgery in Trinity College, Dublin, and Vice-President of the College of Surgeons, Ireland, the distinguished surgical pathologist, died at his residence in Dublin, on the 28th ult., aged sixty-six. He was appointed, in 1849, Professor of Surgery in Trinity College, and gained the very highest reputation as a lecturer; he was also one of the surgeons of Richmond Hospital, and had only retired from it a few weeks since.

The Royal Agricultural Society of Ireland has resolved to hold the show for 1874 at Wexford.

The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals offers premiums amounting to £400 for improved cattle-trucks.

The Privy Council has decided to advise the Queen to grant a charter of incorporation to Peterborough, and the town will, under its provisions, be divided into three wards.

A collision took place on the Midland Railway, near Chesterfield station, on Monday, between an express and a goods train, in which twenty persons were injured.

A sale of stock, the property of her Majesty, took place in Windsor Great Park yesterday week. There were forty oxen offered for sale, and the prices averaged between £20 and £21 a head. The sale altogether realised nearly £900.

The Llantilio estate, near Abergavenny, Monmouthshire, comprising mansion and 3069 acres of rich grazing land, woods, and plantations, has been bought by Sir William Jackson, of Birkenhead, for £165,000.

It is proposed by the friends of Sir George Grey, M.P., in Morpeth, to present him with a testimonial when he retires from the representation of the borough. Several noblemen and gentlemen, including members of the Cabinet, have been requested to form a committee.

The exodus of disappointed emigrants from Paraguay continues apace. A fresh party arrived at Buenos Ayres from the interior on Saturday, and more were said to be on the road. There is still an influx of European labour into the River Plate territory, averaging seven thousand per month.

The Administrative Council of Geneva has made its official report to the Municipal Council with regard to the property left by the Duke of Brunswick. The property is valued at 20,570,000f., and the debts are nearly 2,000,000f., the net balance being 18,600,000f., besides the value of the Beaujon Hotel in Paris and some American railway securities. A legal question is pending relative to the property in Germany.

Mr. Matthew William Thompson, the retiring Mayor of Bradford, has been presented with a service of silver plate, designed by Sir Gilbert Scott, and of the value of £1756, in recognition of his services to the borough during the three successive years which he has occupied the Mayor's chair. His Worship accepted the testimonial, but handed it over to the Corporation for its future use.—Handsome silver tea and coffee services have been presented to Mr. T. Harrison, the Mayor of Marlborough, by the burgesses of that town, in appreciation of his services during his year of office.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed "To the Editor of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS," &c., and have the word "Chess" legibly written on the outside of the envelope.

C. H., Chefoo, China.—Thanks for the game between Shanghai and Chefoo, which shall be examined forthwith.
W. T. P., Rochester.—They have reached us safely, and they are already in the examiners' hands.
V. M. PORTILLA, Mexico.—Your problem shall be reported on in a few days.
C. D., Edinburgh.—Vienna's fifth move is quite sound. If London, in reply, had been so obtuse as to play 5. Kt to Q 7th (ch), Vienna would, of course, have taken the Kt with the Queen, having very much the better game.
S. HIRACHT.—You should send us an exhaustive analysis of the variations to prove your solution.
G. REICHHEIM.—We acknowledge with thanks the arrival of your Chess Record of August, September, and October.
H. HACKNEY.—When asking for information you should send your name and address. Let us know also whether you desire to join a club at the west or east of London.
CANNESMAN, Royal-terrace, Kingstown.—I. Checking an adversary's King does not deprive him of his privilege of casting. 2. If you are in the situation described your King is stalemated, and the game is drawn battle.
J. S. T.—There is nothing problematical in such a position. Confine yourself to the solution of problems by masters in the art for a few years before attempting to compose any yourself.
CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1548 have been received from Queen's Knight—Benson Q. E. D.—Ranton—Phillip—S. B. H.—J. Sowden—W. P. M.—S. P. Q. B. of Bruges—Tartie—J. Allaire—East Marden—R. B. Seal—T. W. Canterbury—A. A. M. P.—L. L. F. R. B.—Bradford—D. D.—Sindbad—Twining—Fergus—B. E.—T. A. Hind—Joseph Janlon—R. D. T.—Annabell—R. B. W.—J. N.—P. G. S.—Carlson—Ferry—Dresden—F. S. A.—Arthur—Mabel and Harry—Pitz—Charles—Merry—Andrew—Pivot—Grandpre—H. C.—Morgan—Civis—Box and Cox—Bradford—H. M. S. Britannia—W. V. G. D.—A. Wood—Amphictyon—T. Wilson Morris.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1548.

WHITE. BLACK. WHITE. BLACK.
1. B to Q Kt sq P to Q Kt 7th 2. Kt to K 2nd P takes B
If P takes P. White answers with—3. B 3. Kt to Kt sq Any move takes K R P. 4. B to K B 5th, and mates 4. Kt or P gives mate.
next move.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1549.

WHITE. BLACK. WHITE. BLACK.
1. Q to Q Kt 6th B takes Q move the Pawn, mate is given by 2. Q to Q Kt 3rd. Finally, if he takes the Kt with 2. Q to Q Kt 3rd, mate. If he moves his Kt, that is followed by 2. Q to Q Kt 2nd, mate. If he 2. B to K 2nd. Mate.

PROBLEM No. 1550.

By Mr. W. S. PAVITT.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White, playing first, gives mate in three moves.

THE CLIFTON (BRISTOL) CHESS MEETING.

Game between the Rev. A. B. SKIPWORTH and Mr. BURN in the Tournament recently held at Clifton.—(French Opening.)

WHITE (Mr. S.)	BLACK (Mr. B.)	WHITE (Mr. S.)	BLACK (Mr. B.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 3rd	16. Q takes B	B to Q Kt 5th
2. P to Q 4th	P to Q 4th	17. K R to Q sq	Kt takes Q P
3. P takes P	P takes P	18. B takes Kt	Q takes B
4. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to K B 3rd	19. Q R to Q Kt sq	B to Q B 4th
5. B to Q 3rd	B to Q 3rd	20. R takes Q Kt P	Q R to K 4th
6. Castles	Kt to Q B 3rd	21. R takes Q B P	K R to Q sq
7. R to K sq (ch)	B to K 3rd	22. P to K R 3rd	Q to Q B 6th
8. Kt to Q B 3rd	Castles	23. B to K B sq	R takes R
9. B to K 3rd		24. Q takes R	B takes P (ch)
		25. K to R sq

We are disposed to prefer the move of B to K 3rd. By playing the B to K 3rd White appears to us to have parted with the advantage which the opening gave him.

The youngest player will see that by taking the Pawn he would have lost the game on the move.

9. Q to Q 2nd
10. Kt to K 2nd Kt to K 5th
11. P to Q B 4th P to K B 4th
12. P takes P Q takes P
13. Kt to Q B 3rd Kt takes Kt
14. P takes Kt Q R to K sq
15. P to Q B 4th B takes Kt

The game, which, without presenting any noticeable feature except White's 24th move, is now from its nature drawn; as such, it was abandoned after a few more moves.

CANADIAN CHESS ASSOCIATION.

(Under the Patronage of His Excellency the Governor-General).

PROSPECTUS FOR CONGRESS AND TOURNEY OF 1874.

The following programme has been adopted for the third general meeting of Canadian chess-players, to take place in the City of Montreal on the first Tuesday of July, 1874.

Two tourneys will be held—one for games, the other for problems.

GAME TOURNEY.

Open to all residents of the Dominion. Three prizes to be given, one to each of the three players winning the greatest number of games. Preliminaries to be arranged at the meeting by a majority of those entered present. Entrance-fee to non-members of the association, 2 dols. First prize, champion cup, value 50 dols; second prize, medal, value 30 dols; third prize, chess-men, value 10 dols.

PROBLEM TOURNEY.

For the best two-move problem,	10.00	Second best,	5.00 three-move "	10.00	"	5.00
four-move "	10.00	"	5.00

Two honorary prizes will be added to the above: one (value 20 dols.) for the best set—i.e., two, three, and four move problems; and another (value 10 dols.) for the greatest curiosity of any kind in chess; for both the latter, foreign players and composers are cordially and respectfully invited to compete also.

All the problems (except the last named) to be ordinary mates, original and never before published. Problems in a set (except the winning set) are eligible for the prizes given to single problems. Competitors may send in as many sets or single problems as they please. Each competitor to affix a "motto" to every problem or set sent in, and also to inclose his name and address in a sealed envelope bearing the same "motto." All problems competing to be sent as above to Jno. White, secretary-treasurer of the association, so as to reach him not later than June 30, 1874. Their several merits will be decided by a judge or judges appointed by the next congress.

The value of the prizes in the game tourney, and of the supplementary prizes in the problem tourney, will depend upon the amount subscribed in the meantime by clubs and members generally; and it is at the discretion of the committee to increase the sums named as prizes for single problems. The arrangements for the reception of visitors to Montreal attending the meeting are in the hands of the president, secretary, and members of the Montreal Chess Club, who have already procured the promise of a suitable building for the use of the next congress.

All subscriptions to be forwarded to the secretary-treasurer, Jno. White, Stansfeld, P.Q.

SCIENTIFIC RESULTS OF THE MONTH.

Three serious accidents, attended with loss of life, having recently occurred to Howard's so-called safety boilers, the Engineer has very properly called attention to the subject in a leading article, to which Messrs. Howard have sent a reply. In ordinary boilers, whether on the Cornish or any other plan, it is difficult to reconcile strength with magnitude. As the diameter of the boiler is increased the separating or bursting pressure is also increased, and hence where much steam is wanted it is necessary to have many boilers. In Howard's boilers the water is inclosed in pipes which are heated externally by the fire, and these pipes may be indefinitely increased in number so as to furnish any desired supply of steam without affecting the strength of the boiler. Each pipe, in fact, is virtually a small boiler, although the whole are so combined as to act like a single entity. Boilers on this principle are not a new invention. On the contrary, the system has been long known and occasionally revived; but hitherto the inconveniences and disadvantages have been such as to outweigh the benefits. We are not aware, however, that any boilers of this class have burst before Messrs. Howard succeeded in earning for them the particular distinction of ready explosibility. But this quality is accidental to the details of the construction they have adopted. The defence of Messrs. Howard is that only five of their boilers have exploded out of a large number in use—a considerable proportion, we should have thought, in the case of a boiler whose distinctive recommendation was supposed to be its safety. The recent accidents, they say, caused them to give immediate attention to the weak points of their boiler, and they have in consequence recommended a "safety tie bolt" to be introduced into every tube—a rather formidable addition, seeing that these bolts have to run from end to end of each tube composing the boiler. If Messrs. Howard had failed to prescribe this remedy they might, they say, have merited in some degree the storm of adverse criticism which has since raged against them; and so, we suppose, we are by implication bound to consider them as very ill-used persons. On the contrary, we think it only reasonable to suppose that the persons who purchased Messrs. Howard's safety-boilers were warranted in believing that they would at least be safe in the state in which they were vended to the public; and if these safety-boilers afterwards explode, or require cumbersome and costly additions to prevent them from doing so, there is in our judgment a just ground of complaint and reprehension.

A valuable paper by Mr. Wilson, on yellow fever, has been communicated to the Lancet, in which it is stated that, by a microscopical examination of the blood and excretions, a number of circular cells much smaller than blood corpuscles were discovered. These were generally clear, sometimes opalescent, and they moved about freely in every direction. If one of these cells were selected and observed for fifteen minutes, the cell, at first circular, became gradually elongated; afterwards contracted at the centre, like an hour-glass; and ultimately it divided into two distinct cells, each of which, when observed for a sufficient period, was seen to undergo changes similar to those observed in the parent cell.

A correspondent of the Builder states that in lately repairing a house it became necessary to remove some 51b. lead flat which had been down for thirty-five years, when one of the boards on which it rested was found to be worm-eaten and decayed. Upon examining the lead which had covered the decayed wood, it was also found to be worm-eaten, the holes in the lead corresponding to the holes in the wood, while the lead which covered the sound boards was exempt from perforation.

It has long been known that the addition of a small quantity of phosphorus to ordinary brass or bronze greatly increases its strength and ductility, and a material called phosphor-bronze, which is bronze with the addition of a suitable proportion of phosphorus, is coming into extensive use in the arts. For cannon it is vastly superior to ordinary brass, and in heavy machinery it may be employed advantageously in substitution of the ordinary gun-metal used for bearings. The Prussian Ministry of Commerce has lately ordered experiments to be made with this material. A bar of phosphor-bronze bore 408,230 pulls with a strain of ten tons before it broke; whereas a bar of common bronze of the same size broke before the whole of the strain of ten tons could be put on.

An Australian tree, the Eucalyptus globulus, has been lately naturalised in France, and is said to be a most valuable instrument in drying up marshes, from its great power of exhaling water into the atmosphere, while at the same time it destroys miasmatic exhalations by the camphorous and antiseptic effluvia which it emits. Such a tree would no doubt be very useful either in wet land or in dry. In the Pontine marshes or the swamps at the mouths of great rivers it would be a powerful antidote to jungle fever, while in such arid districts as Scinde or that part of the Punjab which lies to the south of Lahore, by sucking the water from beneath the baked surface and exhaling it into the atmosphere, it would in part accomplish the work of irrigation, and contribute to engender a moister atmosphere.

The wanton destruction of forests has begun to engage public attention even in countries most abundantly supplied with timber. The President of the California Board of Agriculture computes that in that country one third of the available timber has been consumed within the last twenty years, so that, with the prospective increase of population and with the existing recklessness of consumption, a dearth of timber may soon be apprehended. The Cinchona forests of South America are almost extinct, and the necessity of greater providence in the use of timber is beginning to be discerned in almost every country.

Attention is being drawn to several new textile fibres. One of these is the Laportea pustulata, now grown at Berlin; and, being a perennial, it does not require, like flax or hemp, to be sown anew every year, while the fibre is less troublesome in the preparation. Another is the Bromelia sylvestris, or Mexican grass, which grows abundantly on the shores of the Gulf of Mexico. Within the thin envelope which forms the leaf there is a perfect skein of thread of extraordinary tenacity and fineness. By a chemical process the cuticle can be removed and the fibre be rendered available at small expense.

At Woolwich the manufacture of the new 38-ton wrought-iron guns is advancing rapidly. These guns are very similar to the 35-ton guns previously manufactured, but they are 3ft. longer, to give more time for the complete combustion of the gunpowder, and also more effectually to use up the expansive force of the gunpowder gas. We have repeatedly intimated that any system of artillery which relies wholly upon the force of the gun is crude and unskilful. Only a part of the energy of the shot should be derived from the gun; the residue should be got from the reaction of escaping rocket gas during the flight.

An American correspondent of the Gardener's Chronicle calls attention to a new species of plant which has appeared in that country—a double poinsettia. The poinsettia, known in this country by its graceful form, terminated by beautiful scarlet leaves, is single. The double variety will no doubt create much interest and admiration.

MAGDALEN COLLEGE SCHOOL, OXFORD.

HONOURS gained in the year commencing with July 23, 1868:—
 Classical Exhibition at Exeter.
 Cadetship at Woolwich.
 Proxime to Scholarship at University.
 First Class in Final Classics.
 Natural Science Demyship at Magdalen.
 Goldsmiths' Co. (450) Exhibition, irrespective of College.
 Classical Scholarship at Queen's College.
 Fellowship at Corpus.
 Second Class in Classical Moderations.
 Second Class in Classical Moderations.

1866-7.

Fellowship at Merton.
 Craven University Scholarship.
 First Class in Law and Modern History.
 Mathematical Postmaster at Merton.
 Natural Science Scholarship at Merton.
 Classical Exhibition at Merton.
 Classical Exhibition at Queen's.
 Royal Engineers.
 Proxime to Scholarship at Oriel.
 Classical Exhibition at Magdalen.
 Natural Science Exhibition at Magdalen.

1867-8.

Fellowship at Magdalen.
 Proxime to Demyship at Magdalen.
 Natural Science Scholarship at Balliol.
 Second Class in Classical Moderations.
 Proxime to Scholarship at University.
 Classical Scholarship at Magdalen Hall.
 Classical Scholarship at Merton.
 Choral Scholarship at Magdalen.
 Classical Exhibition at Queen's.
 Classical Scholarship at Pembroke.
 Chancellor's Prize for Latin Essay.

1868-9.

Proxime to Galsford Greek Verse Prize.
 First Class in Final Classical Schools.
 Second Class in Final Classical Schools.
 First Class in Classical Moderations.
 Natural Science Demyship at Magdalen.
 Classical Scholarship at Queen's.
 Classical Scholarship at Corpus.
 Classical Scholarship at Pembroke.
 Goldsmiths' Co. (450) Exhibition, irrespective of College.

1869-70.

Mathematical Demyship at Magdalen.
 Mathematical Demyship at Magdalen.
 Classical Scholarship at Magdalen Hall.
 First Class in Classical Moderations.
 Second Class in Classical Moderations.
 Second Class in Law and Modern History.
 First Class in Natural Science.
 First Class in Mathematical Moderations.
 Mathematical Junior Studentship at Christ Church.
 Proxime to Scholarship at Merton.
 Classical Scholarship at Magdalen Hall.
 Second Class in Classical Moderations.

1870-1.

Classical Demyship at Magdalen.
 Mathematical Postmaster at Merton.
 Proxime to Scholarship at Merton.
 Second Class in Classical Moderations.
 Second Class in Final Classics.
 Second Class in Law and Modern History.
 Second Class in Classical Moderations.
 Natural Science Demyship at Magdalen.
 Proxime to Junior Mathematical Scholarship.
 Classical Scholarship at Queen's.
 Proxime to Scholarship at Queen's.
 First Class in Classical Moderations.

1871-2.

Cadetship at Woolwich.
 Natural Science Demyship at Magdalen.
 Classical Scholarship at Lincoln.
 Proxime to Scholarship at Wadham.
 First Class in Classical Moderations.
 Second Class in Classical Moderations.
 First Class in Natural Science.
 Second Class in Final Mathematics.
 Classical Scholarship at Magdalen Hall.
 Classical Scholarship at Magdalen Hall.
 Proxime to Junior Mathematical Scholarship.
 Natural Science Scholarship at St. John's, Cambridge.
 First Class in Mathematical Moderations.
 Goldsmiths' Co. (450) Exhibition, irrespective of College.
 Goldsmiths' Co. (450) Exhibition, irrespective of College.

1872-3.

Indian Civil Engineering College.
 First Class in Natural Science.
 Second Class in Classical Moderations.
 First Class in Mathematical Moderations.
 Classical Exhibition at Christ Church.
 Natural Science Scholarship at Worcester College.
 First Class in Final Classics.
 Fellowship at Corpus.
 Royal Engineers.
 First Class in Final Mathematics.
 Second Class in Mathematical Moderations.
 Second Class in Classical Moderations.
 Second Class in Classical Moderations.
 First Class in Classical Moderations.
 Indian Civil Engineering College.

OCTOBER, 1873.

Natural Science Fellowship at Magdalen.
 Classical Demyship at Magdalen.
 Mathematical Demyship at Magdalen.
 Classical Exhibition at Queen's.
 Classical Scholarship at Magdalen Hall.

MALVERN COLLEGE.

President and Visitor, the LORD BISHOP OF WORCESTER.
 Head Master, the REV. J. BAKER, M.A., late Fellow and Tutor of New College, Oxford.
 There are TWO DEPARTMENTS—the CLASSICAL and the MODERN. Pupils are trained for the Universities, the Civil and Military Examinations, and the Professions.
 There is a LOWER SCHOOL preparatory to either department, a Gymnasium, &c.
 There are Five Boarding Houses within the college grounds, occupied by the Head Master and four of his resident staff.
 Board and Tuition under fourteen, £80; over fourteen, £90. For non-boarders an extra fee of £5. Special advantages for Sons of Clergymen and Home Boarders.
 For further information, apply to the Head Master.
 The next Term will begin on Monday, Jan. 26.

NORTH LONDON or UNIVERSITY COLLEGE.

COLLEGE ASSISTANCE is URGENTLY NEEDED to meet current expenses, owing to the high price of provisions, fuel, and other hospital requisites. The reliable annual income is much below the ordinary expenditure. DONATIONS will be thankfully received by Edward Knell, Esq., Treasurer, 19, Chester-terrace, Regent's Park; and the Hospital.
 HENRY J. KELLY, R.N., Secretary.

NICE—HOTEL DES ANGLAIS.—A First-Class Hotel, facing the sea, and under English Management.

R. BAKER HAY, Secretary.
 80, Coleman-street, London, E.C.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND.

BANKERS to the GENERAL GOVERNMENT OF NEW ZEALAND, the PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENTS OF AUCKLAND, WELLINGTON, CANTERBURY, OTAGO, &c.
 Paid-up Capital, £600,000. Reserve Fund, £180,000.
 HEAD OFFICE—AUCKLAND.
 BRANCHES AND AGENCIES IN NEW ZEALAND—

Akaroa	Grahamstown	Naseby	Borburgh
Alexandra	Greenstone	Ngaruawahia	Stafford
Arrow	Greytown	Nelson	Tenaka
Blenheim	New Plymouth	Timaru
Carlyle	Hokitika	Oamaru	Tokomairiro
Charleston	Invercargill	Palmerton	Waihou
Christchurch	Kaipoi	Pictou	Waihou
Clutha Ferry	Lawrence	Queenstown	Wanganui
Coromandel	Lytelton	Blangora	West Port
Crownwell	Merton	River	Wetherston
Dunedin	Napier
Gisborne

This Bank grants Drafts on any of the above-named places, and transacts every description of Banking Business connected with New Zealand and Australia on the most favourable terms. The London Office receives Deposits at interest for fixed periods on terms which may be learned on application.
 L. L. WORTHY, Managing Director.
 No. 50, Old Broad-street, London, E.C.

LOSS OF LIFE or LIMB, with the consequent LOSS OF TIME and MONEY, provided for by a policy of the RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY.

 Office—64, Cornhill; and 10, Regent-street.
 WILLIAM J. VIAN, Secretary.

AGENCIES for HOMOEOPATHIC

MEDICINES.—Chemists' Counter Cases, with Selections of the most reliable Medicines, adapted for Home or Foreign Demand, 7s. to 27s. 6d. Illustrated price list.—JAMES EPPS and CO., Wholesale Homoeopathic Chemists, 48, Threadneedle-street.

FURNISHING EXHIBITION.—Visitors to

London should INSPECT the EXTENSIVE DISPLAY of DECORATIVE ARTICLES of every description for the complete furnishing of a House of any class, to artistic taste combined with utility. The goods are conveniently arranged in separate departments, all communicating, and visitors are conducted through the spacious Show-Rooms and Galleries without the slightest opportunity to purchase. Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality. OETZMANN and CO., 71, 72, 73, and 74, Tottenham-court-road (near Tottenham-court-road and Gower-street station). Established 1843. A detailed Catalogue, and the best furnishing guide extant, post-free. The Establishment is visible from Tottenham-court-road. OETZMANN and CO.

ESTIMATES for HOUSE FURNISHING.

OETZMANN and CO.'S System for Estimating the Cost of completely Furnishing a House of any class with every requisite supercedes any other method. See "A Guide to House Furnishing," sent post-free on application. All goods are very carefully packed free of charge. This system will be the most advantageous to the purchaser.—OETZMANN and CO.

FURNITURE DEPARTMENT.

ELEGANT DRAWING-ROOM SUITES, handsomely carved Italian walnut-wood, covered in rich damask, from 50s. to 100s.; superior ditto, in repa, pakenood, silk, brocade, &c., from 10s. to 50s.; Dining-Room suites, in solid mahogany, 50s.; fine Spanish mahogany ditto, upholstered in best maroon leather, 140s.; handsome double-gilt Chippendale Glass, large size, 20s.; elegant Cabinets, inlaid burl and gilt mountings, from 20s. upwards; massive mahogany tables, Dining Tables, from 20s. upwards; Chippendale, side-board, &c. Easy-Chairs, from 10s. 6d. upwards. An immense assortment to select from.—OETZMANN and CO.

OETZMANN and CO.'S BEDDING, manufactured on the premises. Work warranted. Only best materials used. Excellent mattresses, full size, 12s. 6d. upwards; Feather Beds, from 20s. upwards; Iron Bedsteads, from 5s. 6d.; superior Iron French Dittos, 15s. 6d.; Toilet Glasses, best plate, size of plate 18 by 12, 5s. 6d.; 3 ft. Mahogany Washstand, with marble top, 12s. 6d.; Che of Drawers, Wardrobes, &c.

OETZMANN'S PATENT PALLIO

MATRESSES supercedes the use of the old rigid Pallio; is more cleanly, healthy, and elastic; combines the advantages of a Mattress and Pallio at the cost of one article. Price from 10s. 6d. upwards. For description see page 51 of "A Guide to House Furnishing," sent post-free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

CARPETS.—OETZMANN and CO.

CARPETS! CARPETS! CARPETS! CARPETS! CARPETS! CARPETS! Without exception the largest and best assortment in London to select from. O. and CO. have upwards of 150 pieces of Brussels, different patterns, now on show in their carpet window, besides an immense variety in the Show-Room. Members of Co-operative Supply Associations are invited to inspect our stock and compare prices.

MADRID STRIPED CURTAINS, All Wool,

3 yards long by 45 inches wide, 15s. per pair; 3 1/2 yards 17s. 6d.; 4 yards, 20s.; best Worsted Damask Curtains, in green, crimson, or any self colour, plaited top, bordered all round with best embroidered sporting, 20s. to 30s.; 3 1/2 yards, 15s. per pair; 3 1/2 yards, 20s.; 4 yards, 25s.; best rope ditto, 3 yards by 54 inches wide, 20s.; 3 1/2 yards, 25s.; 4 yards, 30s. Forwarded same day on receipt of order. One trial will insure recommendation. No common description of goods sold, or advised. Descriptive lists post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

FURNISHING IRONMONGERY

DEPARTMENT.—Strong Brasses, Fenders, from 1s. 6d. each; ditto, circular ends, with standards, from 2s. 6d.; ditto, very handsome, 3s. 6d.; Fireirons from 1s. 6d. per set; handsome ditto, 2s. 6d. and 7s. 6d.; Japanese oval Tea-Trays, 15s. 6d. per set of three, 16in., 14in., and 12in.; Teapots; warranted Table Cutlery, best Electro-plated (durability guaranteed); Coal Vases, Dish Covers, Japanese Toilet Sets, China, &c.; Kitchen Ironmongery of every description; Mats, Matting, Brasses, Brushes, Pails, &c. OETZMANN and CO.

OETZMANN and CO.'S ELECTRO-

SILVER PLATE, the best quality manufactured, and durability guaranteed. Spoons, forks, knives, fish carvers, tea and coffee sets, urns, waiters, cake baskets, biscuit boxes, cruet, Hangers, cups, tankards, sporting cups, dish covers, plate covers, &c.; also a large assortment of Table Cutlery, warranted best. Prices listed post-free. Orders for Electro Plate or Cutlery of 25s. upwards carriage-free to any railway station in the kingdom.

CHINA and GLASS DEPARTMENT.

Superior cut-glass Tumblers, 7s. 6d. per dozen; Wine, 2s. 6d.; richly-cut Decanters, 7s. 6d. per pair; Lustres, Vases (the pair of Vases are a marvel of cheapness and elegance), Marble and Gilt Ormolu Clocks, Brasses, Statuettes, fine Porcelain Figures; elegant Cases of Studio Birds, Wax Flowers under glass shades, handsome China Flower Pots, Jardinières, &c.; China Tea Services, from 5s. 6d.; elegant ditto, 15s. 6d.; Ironstone China Dinner Services, in great variety of patterns, from 17s. 6d. upwards; Dessert Services from 12s. 6d. Depot for Wedgwood and Co.'s celebrated Ware; also for best Worcester China. Handsome Toilet Sets, ewer, basin, &c., 5s. 6d. per set; superb ditto, 10s. 6d.—OETZMANN and CO., 71, 72, 73, Tottenham-court-road, three minutes' walk from Tottenham-court-road and Gower-street Station. Metropolitan Railway. Goods sent carefully packed. A detailed Catalogue post-free on application. OETZMANN and CO.

FURNITURE.—MAPLE & CO.—Families who study economy with durability and elegance should visit this establishment before giving their orders. An Illustrated Catalogue post-free.—145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road, London.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE—100 Suites, of various designs, to select from, from 10s. for Suite complete Bed-Room Suites, enameled Siberian Ash, Stain-Wood, Hungarian Ash, Oak, &c., from 15s.—MAPLE and CO., 145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road.

BED-ROOM SUITES in SOLID ASH, from

30s. to 50s. Bed-Room Suites in Black and Gold, very choice and handsome style, from 40s. to 50s. The largest assortment of Bedroom Furniture in London to select from.

BED-ROOM SUITES in WHITE ENAMEL

and Gold, very elegant and choice in design, from 40s. to 100s. Bed-Room Suites in Solid Ash, Medival, real inlaid, very handsome, 50s. to 100s.—MAPLE and CO., Tottenham-court-road.

BED-ROOM SUITES in Solid Ash, real

ebony mouldings, very handsome, from 60s. All Bedding is made on the premises, and warranted pure. Catalogue free. MAPLE and CO.

THE BEAUFORT BED-ROOM TOILET

WARE, the greatest novelty of the day, new in shape and design; elegant, colours very choice. The Ware is manufactured expressly for Messrs. Maple and Co., price from 12s. 6d. to 5s. 6d. The Trade supplied.—MAPLE and CO., Tottenham-court-road.

BEDSTEADS. MAPLE and CO.

BEDSTEADS. MAPLE and CO.

BEDSTEADS. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE, MAPLE & CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE, MAPLE & CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE, MAPLE & CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE, MAPLE & CO.

For BEDSTEADS in Wood, Iron, and Brass, fitted with Furniture and Bedding complete. Suites for Bed-Rooms from 10s. each. See Illustrated Catalogue. MAPLE and CO., 145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road, London, E.C. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, Tottenham-place, London.

CABINET FURNITURE of every description and style for Dining, Drawing, Library, and Bed Rooms.—PILMER and SON, Upholsters and Decorators, 21 and 23, Barrow-street, W.

PARQUET FURNITURE.

HOWARD'S PATENT Furniture of all descriptions made of Howard's Patent Parquet, is of the most durable kind, and (being manufactured by machinery) moderate in cost, and of the finest possible quality. Combining Parquet with Wood Tapestry, residences may be fitted up without either painting or papering. HOWARD and SON, Decorators and Cabinetmakers by steam power, 25, 26, and 27, Berners-street, London, W. Midland Buildings, New-street, Birmingham.

CLOSE OF THE VIENNA EXHIBITION.

The Silk, Shawl, and Fancy Dress Courts respecting Austria, France, and Italy are placed under the management of the principal Manufacturers have sold their Exhibited Stocks to a Merchant in England. PETER ROBINSON takes this opportunity of announcing that he is the Purchaser referred to, and that he will OFFER the varied Collection for SALE at his Premises, 105 to 108, Oxford-street, London, as soon as conveyed from Vienna. The following are the principal Manufacturers (to whom medals were awarded) who sold their exhibited productions to Peter Robinson: F. Reichert, of Vienna; Fretsch, of Vienna; Hlawatsch and Labary, of Vienna; Hrenbottel, of Vienna; Gissel and Jager, of Vienna; G. Brossi, of Milan and Como; Tapistier fils and Debry, of Lyons; Pomon, of Lyons; Villard, of Lyons; Guinet, of Lyons; Janbert, Andras, and Co., of Lyons; Tronca, Thorel, and Ratisville, of Lyons.

SPECIAL SILK NOTICE.

Black ground Silks, with floral designs, 3 1/2 yds. for 14 yards. Chene Silks suitable for Dinner wear, 2 1/2 yds. for 14 yards. English Noire Antiques of the best manufacture, at about half price. Grisaille Striped Silks, especially suitable for this season, 41 1/2 yds. the Dress. The above special lots are unusually cheap. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 105 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

REGISTERED NOVELTY FOR LADIES' DRESSES.

RUSSIAN CORDED POPLIN (Wool). A special purchase of this charming fabric, amounting to 1000 pieces, now ready, in all the new shades of Bronze, Violet des Alpes, Rodeo, Navy, Ardoise, Grout, Blue, &c.; also in Black, at 21s. 6d. the Extra Full Dress.—Patterns free.

ALSO, IN ALL THE ABOVE COLOURS,

THE RUSSIAN POPLIN COSTUME, ready for wear, 23s. 6d. to 25s., elegantly made, according to the latest Paris models. Several hundred always in stock. At PETER ROBINSON'S, 105 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

FOR WINTER OR TRAVELLING DRESSES.

RUSSIAN and INVERARY TWEEDS. In rich Heather Mixtures, Iron Greys, Rodeo, Bronze, Violet des Alpes, &c., from 18s. 9d. to 25s. the Dress.

FOR WINTER OR TRAVELLING DRESSES.

SILK TERRY POPLIN. Popeline d'Hiver, Drap Vigogne, Drap d'Italie, and many other Novelties suitable for the present and approaching season, 21s. to 45s. the Dress.

FOR WINTER DRESSES.

YEDDO POPLIN—ALL WOOL. A special purchase, amounting to upwards of 2000 pieces, of this charming fabric, beautifully soft, well adapted for the present and approaching season, 18s. 6d. the Dress (Peignee) in Black and 46 shades of Colour. Specially prepared for PETER ROBINSON, 105, Oxford-street.

IN WHITE, BLACK, AND ALL COLOURS.

VELVET—FINISHED VELVETEENS. Beautifully Soft Velvet Pile, Fast Black, and in Rodeo, Bronze, Violet, Brown, Green, &c., 2s. 6d. to 5d. per yard, very wide. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 105 to 108, Oxford-street, London, W.

The "Leather" Make of Reversible

YOKOHAMA SILK, in Winter Colours. This splendid novelty in White, Black, and all new Colours, including Clit d'Inde, Bleu de St. Hub, Violet des Alpes, Vert Orade, Vert de Thel, Gris d'Argent, Ardoise Foncé, &c., is 45 in. wide, 20s. 6d. to 24s. the Dress, being made expressly for, can be obtained only from PETER ROBINSON'S, 105 to 108, Oxford-street, London. Patterns free.

FOR EVENING, DINNER, OR WALKING DRESSES.

RICH JAPANESE SILKS. In White, Black, and forty six Shades of Colour, including the new Rodeo, Bronze, Vert de Thel, Violet des Alpes, Orade de la Crème, Carree, Corail, &c., 20s. 6d. the Dress, 25s. 6d. per yard. These goods are all of the highest quality. Patterns free.

TULLE, TABLATANE, MUSLIN, OR GRENADINE.

MADE WEDDING and BALL DRESSES. Now ready, several hundred Robes, new Designs in White, Black, and all Colours, from 12s. 6d. to 200s. The "Ade" a most charming dress, with Paillet Flowers, and ample trained Skirt, 1 guinea—a substantial but included. The Book of New Illustrations for this Season post-free. PETER ROBINSON, 105 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

PETER ROBINSON'S REGISTERED

HOMESpun CHEVIOT SERGES, beautifully soft and warm. In all the New Mixtures, 2s. 6d. to 25s. the Dress.

SEVERAL THOUSAND PIECES OF

FINE FRENCH MERINOS, in all the Colours, from 2s. 6d. to 5s. 6d. per yard. Fancy Shirting Flannels (also 10s.), 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. per yard. PETER ROBINSON, 105 to 108, Oxford-street.—(Patterns free.)

WINTER FASHIONS.

An immense and beautiful Stock of FUR-TRIMMED JACKETS in CLOTH, VELVET, and the new SEAL-CLOTHS, ready for inspection. Prices range from 5s. to 200s. PETER ROBINSON, 105 to 108, Oxford-street.

RUSSIAN FUR SEAL JACKETS,

at Last Year's Prices. PETER ROBINSON still continues to sell his beautiful Fur Seal Jackets, both in the and Trimmed Beaver, without any advance upon the prices of last season. The sizes are from 22 in. to 28 in. in depth, and the prices from 5s. to 30s.

WATERPROOF MANTLES,

thoroughly Waterproofed, and in every way suitable for use side wear and for travelling, in a variety of New Shapes, and in all the New and Fashionable Tweeds, both in plain colours and all the favourite mixtures. 2s. 6d. to 50s.

THE GUINEA WATERPROOF, with or without Sleeves, in all the grey mixtures, both light and dark. PETER ROBINSON, 105 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

Established in

Seventeen Hundred and Seventy-nine. BRIDES and BRIDESMAIDS are invited to inspect at CAPPER, SON, and CO.'S, the various qualities and designs in Underclothing, Silks, Fancy Dress Materials, Costumes, Millinery, Mantles, Shootings, Towellings, Tablelinen, Blankets, Quilts, and all similar requisites for personal as well as for household use. These articles are all made up on the premises, and Ladies can select for the counters their Silks, Linens, Laces, Madras Works, Longcloths, and other fabrics before they are sent to the various workrooms.

Ladies, with Prices, on application to CAPPER, SON, and CO., Gracechurch-street, and Fenchurch-street, London, E.C.

VERY STYLISH COSTUMES, from 2s.

Elegant Bonnets and Hats, from 12s. 6d. Stylish Mantles and Polonoises, from 1 guinea.—Madame ELLIOT, 8, Great Portland-street, Regent-circus.

WEDDING TROUSSEAUX,

£20 to £500. List post-free. Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, W. Piccadilly.

BABY LINEN.

A Layette for £20. List post-free. Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, W. Piccadilly.

COSTUMES, 3s. to 4s.

Latest Paris Fashions. Best Materials and Make. Patterns free. Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, W. Piccadilly.

CHAPMAN'S, NOTTING-HILL.

Opposite Holland Park, W. Patterns of all Goods free.

£5000 WORTH OF BLACK SILKS.

THE AMERICAN CRISIS AND GENERAL DEPRESSION IN THE LYONS SILK MARKET. EXTRAORDINARY PURCHASE OF BLACK LYONS SILKS AND VELVETS. BLACK SILK, 21s. twelve yards; or 1s. 11 1/2d. per yard. BLACK SILK, 22s. 6d. twelve yards; or 1s. 11 1/2d. per yard. BLACK GLACE, 20s. twelve yards; or 2s. 6d. per yard. BLACK GROS GRAIN, 25s. twelve yards; or 2s. 11d. per yard. LYONS GROS GRAIN, 42s. twelve yards; or 2s. 6d. per yard. DITTO DITTO, 20s. twelve yards; or 1s. 11d. per yard. BONNETS DITTO, 20s. twelve yards; or 1s. 11d. per yard. JAUBERT'S DITTO, 20s. twelve yards; or 1s. 11d. per yard. RICH GROS GRAIN, 71s. twelve yards; or 1s. 11d. per yard. IMPERIAL DITTO, 20s. twelve yards; or 1s. 11d. per yard. VERY RICH QUALITIES, 7s. 11d., 8s. 11d., 9s. 11d., 10s. 11d., 11s. 11d., 12s. 11d., 13s. 11d., 14s. 11d., 15s. 11d., 16s. 11d., 17s. 11d., 18s. 11d., 19s. 11d., 20s. 11d., 21s. 11d., 22s. 11d., 23s. 11d., 24s. 11d., 25s. 11d., 26s. 11d., 27s. 11d., 28s. 11d., 29s. 11d., 30s. 11d., 31s. 11d., 32s. 11d., 33s. 11d., 34s. 11d., 35s. 11d., 36s. 11d., 37s. 11d., 38s. 11d., 39s. 11d., 40s. 11d., 41s. 11d., 42s. 11d., 43s. 11d., 44s. 11d., 45s. 11d., 46s. 11d., 47s. 11d., 48s. 11d., 49s. 11d., 50s. 11d., 51s. 11d., 52s. 11d., 53s. 11d., 54s. 11d., 55s. 11d., 56s. 11d., 57s. 11d., 58s. 11d., 59s. 11d., 60s. 11d., 61s. 11d., 62s. 11d., 63s. 11d., 64s. 11d., 65s. 11d., 66s. 11d., 67s. 11d., 68s. 11d., 69s. 11d., 70s. 11d., 71s. 11d., 72s. 11d., 73s. 11d., 74s. 11d., 75s. 11d., 76s. 11d., 77s. 11d., 78s. 11d., 79s. 11d., 80s. 11d., 81s. 11d., 82s. 11d., 83s. 11d., 84s. 11d., 85s. 11d., 86s. 11d., 87s. 11d., 88s. 11d., 89s. 11d., 90s. 11d., 91s. 11d., 92s. 11d., 93s. 11d., 94s. 11d., 95s. 11d., 96s. 11d., 97s. 11d., 98s. 11d., 99s. 11d., 100s. 11d., 101s. 11d., 102

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1785.—VOL. LXIII.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1873.

WITH
EXTRA SUPPLEMENT {SIXPENCE.
By Post, 6d.

THE LIVINGSTONE AID EXPEDITION: CROSSING A RIVER IN EAST AFRICA.

BIRTHS.

On the 5th inst., at Shinnah, Newcastle, in the county of Down, the wife of Vesey E. Knox, Esq., J.P., of a son.

On the 1st inst., at Noer, Kiel, the Countess of Noer, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 15th ult., at Christ Church, Mussoori, by the Rev. H. D. James, M.A., Captain George McCall, 8th Bengal Cavalry, to Annie A. K., daughter of the late J. K. Fraser, Esq.

On the 11th inst., at Upper Helmsley Church, by the Rev. Charles Slingsby Atkinson, assisted by the Rev. Samuel Alford, Rector of Upper Helmsley, Samuel Key, Esq., second surviving son of the Rev. S. Key, of Fulford Hall, Yorks, to Blanche Lefroy Whittell, youngest daughter of the late J. F. Whittell, Esq., of Upper Helmsley, and Westow, in the same county.

DEATHS.

On the 6th inst., at Antwerp, Eliza Georgiana, relict of Abraham Ellerman, Esq., K.H., aged 83 years and 8 months.

On the 9th inst., at Edinburgh, Lachlan Campbell MacGowan, Esq., for many years resident in Mexico.

On the 2nd inst., at 27, Ventnor-villas, Cliftonville, suddenly, of heart disease, Evelyn Blanche, beloved wife of James Campbell Stratford, late Captain 2nd Queen's Royals.

On the 7th inst., at Chesham-street, Lady C. Lane Fox, in her 75th year.

On the 8th inst., at Crosswood Park, Cardiganshire, the Earl of Lisburne.

On the 10th inst., at Farming Woods, Northamptonshire, Lord Lyveden, G.C.B., in his 73rd year.

On the 9th ult., at sea, on board the P.O. Company's steamer Venetia, Lieutenant-Colonel Alfred Combe, B.S.C., officiating Commandant of H.M. 10th Bengal Native Infantry, youngest son of the late Boyce Combe, police magistrate.

On the 12th inst., at 6, Busby-place, Camden-road, of typhoid fever, Anthony Francis, eldest child of Francis G. Claudet, Esq., late of New Westminster, British Columbia, aged 8 years and 7 months.

* * The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 22.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 16.

Twenty-third Sunday after Trinity. St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., the Rev. Dr. J. W. Vivian, Minor Canon; 3.15 p.m., the Rev. Canon Gregory; 7 p.m., the Rev. C. F. Willis, Rector of Letcombe Bassett. Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., uncertain; probably the Rev. Canon Kingsley.

St. James's, noon, the Rev. Francis Gaden, M.A., Sub-Dean of the Chapel Royal.

Whitehall, 11 a.m., the Very Rev. Dr. Church, Dean of St. Paul's; 3 p.m., Rev. Erskine W. Knollys.

Savoy, 11.30 a.m., the Rev. Henry White, Chaplain of the Savoy and of the House of Commons; 7 p.m., the Rev. Dr. Monsell, Hon. Chaplain to the Queen.

Temple Church, 11 a.m., probably the Rev. Dr. Vaughan, Master of the Temple; 3 p.m., Rev. Alfred Anger, Rector at the Temple.

French-Anglican Church of St. John ("La Savoy"), Bloomsbury-street, services in French, 11 a.m. and 3.30 p.m., by the Rev. F. B. W. Bouvene, incumbent.

Crystal Palace National Poultry and Pigeon Show (four days).

Medical Society, 8 p.m.

Entomological Society, 7 p.m.

Gresham Lecture: Latin, 6 p.m.; English, 7 p.m. (the Rev. J. W. Burgon on Divinity).

St. James's Hall, Monday Popular Concert, 8 p.m.

Royal Institute of British Architects, 8 p.m. (probably, Mr. J. Taverner Perry on the Medieval Brickwork of Pomerania).

South Kensington Museum, 2.30 p.m. (Mr. Ernst Fauer on Vocal, Instrumental, and Dance Music).

London Institution, 4 p.m. (Professor Duncan on the Carboniferous Period and Formation of Coal).

Royal Asiatic Society, 8 p.m. (Mr. T. N. King on the "Tang" the "Chang" and "Kang" in the Chinese Language).

South Kensington Museum, 8 p.m. (Lectures to Working Men, Professor Guthrie on Heat).

Social Science Association, 8 p.m. (Mr. T. Webster, Q.C., on Copyright as Affecting the Property of British Authors in Foreign Countries).

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 18.

Royal Humane Society, committee, 4 p.m.

Pathological Society, 8 p.m.

Institution of Civil Engineers, 8 p.m. (Discussion on Modern Locomotives).

Statistical Society, 7.45 (the president's address).

Gresham Lecture: Latin, 6 p.m.; English, 7 p.m. (the Rev. J. W. Burgon on Divinity).

Dr. B. Behr's lecture on German Literature, at Willis's Rooms, 8.

St. Paul's Cathedral, Lectures to Working Men, 8 p.m. (the Rev. Canon Lightfoot on the Fall of Paganism in the Roman Empire).

Zoological Society, 8.30 p.m. (Dr. Edward L. Moss on a Vegetarian Actinozoön; papers by Dr. O.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 21.

Victoria, Princess Royal of Great Britain and Crown Princess of Germany, born, 1849.

Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, 2 p.m.

Philological Society, 8 p.m. (Professor T. H. Key on the Text of Terence).

Sacred Harmonic Society, Exeter Hall, 7.30 p.m. (Haydn's Services, No. 1; Mendelssohn's "Christus"; Handel's Dettingen "Te Deum").

Gresham Lecture: Latin, 6 p.m.; English, 7 p.m. (Dr. Abdy on Law).

Crystal Palace, the "Mystery" entertainment.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 22.

Royal Horticultural Society, promenade, 2 p.m.

Royal Botanic Society, 3.45 p.m.

Gresham Lecture, 7 p.m. (Dr. H. Wyld on Music).

St. James's Hall, Saturday Popular Concert, 8 p.m.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

Crystal Palace, eighth Saturday Concert.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK

PRICE ONE SHILLING, FREE BY POST, 1s. 2d.,

CONTAINING

SIX COLOURED PICTURES,

PRINTED BY LEIGHTON BROTHERS' CHROMATIC PROCESS;

TWELVE ILLUSTRATIONS OF MARRIAGE CUSTOMS,

AS READINGS TO THE CALENDAR, BY J. JACKSON;

TWELVE FINE-ART ENGRAVINGS;

ASTRONOMICAL DIAGRAMS OF REMARKABLE PHENOMENA,

WITH EXPLANATORY NOTES;

The Royal Family of Great Britain; the Queen's Household; her Majesty's Ministers; Lists of Public Offices and Officers; Bankers; Law and University Terms; Fixed and Movable Festivals; Anniversaries; Acts of Parliament passed during the Session of 1873; Revenue and Excise; Lists of Eminent Persons; Christian, Jewish, and Mohammedan Calendars; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Government Duties; Plans of High Water; Post-Office Regulations; together with a large amount of useful and valuable information, which has during the past twenty-nine years made the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK the most acceptable and elegant companion to the library or drawing-room table; whilst it is universally acknowledged to be by far the cheapest Almanack ever published.

The unprecedented demand for the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK year after year stimulates the Proprietor to still greater exertions to secure for this Almanack a reception as favourable as that which has hitherto placed its circulation second only to that of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

The ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is included in an elegant cover, printed in Colours by the same process as the SIX COLOURED PLATES, and forms a charming and pleasing ornament to the drawing-room table.

The SHILLING ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is published at the Office of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 125, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE Kew Observatory of the Royal Society.

Lat. 51° 28' 6" N.; Long. 0° 18' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOM.		WIND.		General Direction.	Miles.	In.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Maximum.	Minimum.	Force.	Direction.
November 15	30.05	47.7	46.5	96	10	40.2	5.5	ESE. SSE.	2.5	517	5.17
16	29.98	46.6	45.0	95	8	43.9	4.5	E. SW.	2.1	0.5	0.5
17	29.93	45.6	43.4	92	9	41.0	4.7	SW. SSW.	1.2	0.1	0.1
18	29.93	46.3	43.5	91	8	42.0	4.9	SSW. NE.	4.3	0.0	0.0
19	29.93	41.6	38.2	90	10	45.7	4.5	ESE. NE.	6.2	1.5	1.5
20	29.93	45.6	43.0	91	10	42.2	4.5	E. ENE.	3.4	0.0	0.0
21	30.03	42.5	36.0	90	7	41.7	4.5	ESE. NE.	2.3	0.0	0.0

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten a.m.:

Barometer (in inches) corrected	29.93	29.93	29.93	29.93	29.93	29.93	29.93	29.93	29.93	29.93	29.93
Temperature of Air	47.7	46.6	45.6	46.3	41.6	45.6	42.5	45.6	41.6	45.6	42.5
Temperature of Evaporation	45.6	43.4	43.5	43.5	38.2	43.0	36.0	43.0	43.0	43.0	43.0
Direction of Wind	ESE.	SW.	SSW.	SSW.	ESE.	E.	ESE.	ESE.	ESE.	ESE.	ESE.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 22.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
11 10	12 0	12 30	1 1	1 43	2 15	2 49

STEAM.—LONDON TO CALCUTTA Direct, via Suez Canal. Taking goods for Bombay, Madras, Calcutta, and Akyab, at through rates.—CALLEK BROTHERS and CO. S. DICAL LINE OF STEAM-SHIPS. These magnificent, full-powered steamships have been built expressly for the trade, and will be found on inspection as fine and substantial vessels as have ever been built in this country. The cabins are elegant, light, and commodious, with every convenience for tropical climates, and are placed amidships, where there is the least motion. Each steamer is provided with bath-rooms (hot and cold water) and ice-house, and carries a surgeon and stewardess.

Ship.	Tons.	Captain.	To Class.
Duke of Devonshire	3015	Whitlie.	D. S. S.
Duke of Edinburgh	3015	Whitlie.	D. S. S.
Duke of Lancaster	3015	Whitlie.	D. S. S.
Duke of Sutherland	3015	Whitlie.	D. S. S.
Duke of Argyll	3015	Whitlie.	D. S. S.

NINTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS BY BRITISH AND FOREIGN ARTISTS IS NOW OPEN AT T. McLEAN'S NEW GALLERY, 7, Haymarket.

S. T. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly. Every Night at Eight; Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays, Three and Eight ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

THE LONGEST ESTABLISHED AND MOST POPULAR ENTERTAINMENT IN THE WORLD.

THE MOORE AND BURTON MINSTRELS. NOW IN THE TENTH YEAR OF ONE CONTINUOUS SEASON AT THIS HALL, an event altogether unparalleled in the history of the world's amusements.

LADIES CAN RETAIN THEIR BONNETS IN ALL PARTS OF THE HALL.

New and luxurious Private Boxes, acknowledged to be the finest in London, £11s. 6d. to £21s. 6d.; Parterres, 5s. Sofa Stalls, 3s. Arm, 2s. Gallery, 1s. Ticket, 6d. and places at Mitchell's, 25, Old Bond-street; Olivier's, 41, Old Bond-street; and at Austin's, 81, James's Hall, from Nine a.m. till Ten p.m.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, F. B. Chatterton. Last Four Weeks of ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA. On MONDAY and TUESDAY will be performed Shakespeare's Tragedy of ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA, concentrated into Four Acts and Twelve Scenes. Characters by Mr. James Anderson, Messrs. Ryder, H. Russell, A. Glover, Dolman, J. Morris, Thorne, Prince, M. D. Byrnes, Lickfold, Milton, Barget, H. Clifford, and H. Sinclair; Miss Walter, Mesdames H. Coveney, Banks, Neville, Adeline Geddis, &c. The performances will commence with a Farcical Musical Ecceitricity, in one act, entitled NOBODY IN LOVE. After "Antony and Cleopatra," a Ballet Divertissement, in which Miss Kate Vaughan and her celebrated Ballet Troupe will appear. To conclude with an Original Comic Ballet d'Action entitled THE RIVALS. Prices, from Sixpence to Five Guineas. Doors open at Half-past Six; commence at a Quarter to Seven. Box-office open from Ten till Five daily.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET, now Open for the regular Season.—Every Evening at Seven, BLUE DEVILS, after which the Haymarket Comedy, in three acts, THE OVERLAND ROUTE.—Mr. Buckstone in his original character of Mr. Lovibond. Concluding with HIS FIRST CHAMPAGNE.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. L. Bateman. Every Evening, at Eight, RICHIEU—Bellelieu, Mr. Henry Irving; Messrs. Henry Clayton, Beaumont, Henry Forrester, J. B. Howard, F. Charles, Carter, E. F. Elger, and Conway; Miss Le Thiere and Miss Isabel Bateman. Secured by Messrs. Craven and H. Cuthbert. Musical Director Mr. Robert Stoppel. Proceeded, at Seven, by SIMPSON AND CO.—Messrs. Beveridge, Carter, Miss Pouncefort, &c. Concluded with ANOTHER AGO—Mr. John Clayton. Box-office open from Ten till Five. Doors open at 6.30, commence at 7. Morning Performance of RICHIEU, Saturday Next, Nov. 22.

CHARING-CROSS THEATRE.—At Seven the STRANGE GENTLEMAN; at 7.45, OUR PET; New Comedy by Conway Edwards, J. J. Allen, Misses Carlyle, Vining, and C. Parks. And the LAST OF THE LEGEND, with Song, by W. H. C. Nation, Misses E. Pitt, Vining, Cecil, Mowbray, Harold; Messrs. A. Wood, Yarnold, F. Wood, and Ballet.

NATIONAL STANDARD THEATRE, Bishopsgate. Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. John Douglas. Third Week and great success of the Adelphi Drama, THE WANDERING JEW. Adelphi Artists, 8 money, 25 shillings and Costumes. NOTICE.—In consequence of the success of "The Wandering Jew," the Engagement has been prolonged until Nov. 29, Two Weeks longer. MONDAY, NOV. 18, and Every Evening, at Seven.

SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM.—SCIENCE and ART for WOMEN. A COURSE of NINE LECTURES will be delivered by REV. F. PAUER, Esq., on the Different Forms of Vocal, Instrumental, and Dance Music (Three Lectures); on the Art and Science of Piano-forte Playing (Six Lectures), commencing on SATURDAY, NOV. 22, at 2.30 p.m., instead of Monday, Nov. 10, as announced in the prospectus. For Prospectus apply to the Hon. and Rev. F. Byng, Treasurer, at the Museum. Fee for the Course 10s.; first three Lectures only, 6s.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1873.

The Ninth of November having fallen this year on a Sunday, the annual Civic Procession through the metropolis and the Banquet at Guildhall were postponed till Monday last. Neither of them showed any diminution of its characteristic splendour. Some score of years ago, or perhaps a little less, there prevailed in London a feeling of distaste for this Municipal Festival. Disparaging comments were made upon it by the press. No very eager interest was taken in it by the populace. It was laughed at as child's-play thrust into the midst of business, and the pomp and the glitter of it were looked down upon as theatrical. A change, however, has come over public sentiment in reference to this annual ceremony. To what cause or causes the change may be attributed we should find it a task of some difficulty to point out. But, unquestionably, as a matter of fact, the Lord Mayor's Show and the succeeding Guildhall Banquet have ceased for a considerable time past to evoke the somewhat contemptuous criticism which once assailed them. Possibly the more luxurious style of life in the present day disposes men to look with interest, if not with approval, upon customs handed down to the present generation from bygone ages, the observance of which serves to unite the present with the past, and to act as a conductor by which the life of our forefathers becomes to a certain extent identified with our own. Perhaps Europe has been passing through a series of struggles which have commended to thoughtful minds the worth of a tradition. Be this as it may, there is a general disposition to regard with increasing respect practices that can plead antiquity in their favour; and the Ninth of November in the city of London, spite of fogs and rain from which it is not often free, has come to be looked upon again as an acceptable gala day.

No political importance attaches to the ceremonies or to the festivities of the day. The citizens of London wisely keep separate municipal and Imperial politics. Few people care to inquire to what party the new Lord Mayor belongs, and the welcome given to her Majesty's Ministers has seldom any perceptible relation to the political doctrines they profess to represent. The banquet, however, is very commonly looked forward to as closing a period of torpor in the political world, and some curiosity is excited to detect, if possible, in the tone and substance of the Chief Minister's speech at Guildhall some intimation, more or less distinct, of what is contemplated for the next Parliamentary Session. This eager prying into "the secrets of the Cabinet" is seldom rewarded with success. The after-dinner oratory in response to the toasts proposed by the Lord Mayor and drunk by his distinguished guests flows for the most part within well-defined channels, and seldom elicits any criticism but that which relates to the good taste and grace with which customary sentiments are expressed. Nevertheless, the speech of the Prime Minister, when present, does occasionally glimmer with a light which coincides with the then prevailing sentiment of the nation, and is oftentimes scanned with unreasonable keenness for traces, however faint, of a forthcoming policy.

We need hardly say that Mr. Gladstone, on Monday last, acquitted himself of the task that fell to his lot with the ability and eloquence demanded by his reputation. He said it was his duty to tell his audience as little as possible of the secrets of the Cabinet, and it cannot be justly laid to his charge that he overstepped the limits of that duty. Yet he made a long speech, and he threw into it no little animation and interest. For there are always great national topics to be discussed, which belong equally to all political parties, and which concern the well-being of the people at large, without requiring to be dealt with as matters of controversy. The material condition of her Majesty's subjects in general, the relations subsisting between her Government and the Governments of other civilised States, the influences which operate at the time upon the prosperity of the country, the facts which invite and secure confidence in the stability of national institutions, and the contemporaneous events which appeal to us for sympathy with or admiration of other great communities, will always furnish topics for pleasing declamation. Mr. Gladstone knows how to handle such topics instructively as well as gracefully. He radiates upon them, as if by the spontaneous affinities of his mind, a glow of high moral sentiment, and his own earnestness of manner leaves the impress of his thoughts upon the intellect and the heart of the assembly that he addresses.

Taken altogether—the spectacle, the banquet, and the oratory—the new Lord Mayor may be congratulated on the success of his inauguration. One cannot but regret, however, that the institution over which he is called to preside, and which can show so many results of its working which are of an indisputably beneficial character, should be so completely cut off from by far the DORÉ'S GREAT PICTURE of "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRETORIUM," with "The Night of the Crucifixion," "Christ in Majesty," "Francesca di Rimini," "Neophyte," "Andromeda," &c., at the DORÉ GALLERY, 45, New Bond-street. Ten to Six. Admission, 1s.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY, EXETER HALL. Conductor, Sir MICHAEL COSTA.—FORTY-SECOND SEASON.—FRIDAY NEXT, NOV. 21. Haydn's Services, No. 1; Mendelssohn's "Christus" and Handel's Dettingen "Te Deum." Dec. 6, "Israel in Egypt." Dec. 12, "Messiah." Principal vocalists, Messrs. Sherrington, Mrs. Suter, Madame Paley, Miss Enriquez, Mr. Simon Reeves, Mr. Vernon Rigby, Mr. Sautley, Mr. Thomas, Mr. C. Henry. Tickets, 3s., 5s., and 10s. 6d. now ready. Subscription for series of ten concerts, admitting also to the Great Choral Meeting of 1000 Voices at Exeter Hall, and to the Handel Festival Performances at Crystal Palace in June next: Stalls, £2 2s.; Area, numbered in rows, £2 2s.; Unreserved, 41s. Office, 6, Exeter Hall.

L. R. HANS VON BULOW will give his FIRST PIANO-FORTE RECITAL, at ST. JAMES'S HALL, on WEDNESDAY MORNING, NOV. 19, to commence at Three o'clock precisely. Sofa Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Balcony, 5s. Admission, 1s. Tickets may be obtained of Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co., 84, New Bond-street; Mitchell's Library, 23, Old Bond-street; Keith, Prowse, and Co., 45, Cheap-street; Hays, Royal Exchange-buildings; Mr. George Dolby, 62, New Bond-street; Austin's Office, St. James's Hall; and of Messrs. Chappell, 50, New Bond-street.

MARK TWAIN at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS. Mr. George Dolby begs to announce that, owing to the success which attended Mark Twain's first course of lectures, he has succeeded in engaging him to REAPPEAR at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS on MONDAY EVENING, DEC. 1, when he will deliver his lecture entitled OUR FELLOW-SAVAGES OF THE SANDWICH ISLANDS. The lecture will be repeated Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight; and on Wednesday and Saturday Afternoons at Three. Stalls, 5s.; Unreserved Seats, 2s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets are now ready, and may be obtained of Messrs. Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street; at the usual Ticket-Office and Libraries; and of Mr. George Dolby, 62, New Bond-street, London, W.

larger portion of this huge metropolis. These "outward and visible signs" of a thoroughly organised system of municipal government are not, perhaps, of any great value in themselves, but that reality for which they stand is quite as desirable for the population outside the walls of the City as for that within them. It is hardly creditable to our times that no plan has yet been devised—or, at any rate, adopted—for extending the invaluable advantages of municipal organisation to the millions of the inhabitants of the metropolis who are still without them. No doubt, the difficulties in the way are great and formidable; but can it be affirmed with truth that they are insuperable? Perhaps, as years roll on, the necessities of the case will overwhelm the spirit of antagonism which has been too potent in its influence upon the treatment of this question. London, perhaps, is too vast, too multitudinous, too various in its social elements, to admit of that unity which characterises even the greatest of our provincial municipalities. But one cannot but wish that the City Corporation may before long be linked in some kind of friendly association with other metropolitan organisations of a like character, and that the Lord Mayor of London may come at length to be looked upon, in reality as well as in fiction, as bearing rule over its entire population. Meanwhile, we recognise with grateful feelings the good that we already possess, and if we are anxious in any way to modify it it is only in order that it may be more largely and equally shared by the immense numbers of fellow-citizens who need and deserve it.

THE COURT.

The Queen, with Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold, continues at Balmoral Castle. Prince Leopold has been confined to the house for a few days from slight indisposition. The Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, passed three days last week at the Glassalt Shiel, returning to the castle on Saturday last. The weather was inclement during her Majesty's sojourn at the Royal Cottage. Lady Cecilia Hay arrived at Balmoral. On Sunday the Queen and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service in Crathie church. The Rev. Archibald Campbell of Lomay officiated. The Rev. Dr. Taylor and the Rev. Archibald Campbell dined with her Majesty. On the following day Sir Thomas and the Hon. Lady Biddulph dined with the Queen. Her Majesty, with Princess Beatrice, has taken her accustomed daily drives on Deeside.

The Queen has appointed George Burrows, M.D., F.R.S., physician extraordinary to her Majesty, to be one of the physicians in ordinary to her Majesty, in the room of Sir Henry Holland, Bart., deceased, and Edward Henry Sieveking, M.D., to be one of her Majesty's physicians extraordinary.

The Queen has raised to the Peerage Admiral the Hon. Edward Grenville Howard, of Castle Howard, Yorkshire, under the title of Lord Lannerton.

The Hon. Francis Drummond has succeeded the Hon. Mary Pitt as Maid of Honour to her Majesty.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales returned to Sandringham House yesterday (Friday) week from visiting the Maharajah Dhuleep Singh, at Elvedon Hall, Suffolk; the Princess of Wales, with her children, having continued at Sandringham during his Royal Highness's absence. The Prince attained his thirty-second year on Sunday. The auspicious anniversary was observed with the customary honours. The cottagers and work-people upon the Royal estates in Norfolk had their usual dinner at Sandringham on the birthday eve, and the accustomed presents were distributed. Prince Arthur joined the family circle at Sandringham. In the metropolis Royal salutes were fired, and the bells of various churches rung. The Prince's tradespeople dined together, to the number of 240, at Willis's Rooms, on Saturday evening, the Prince having presented two fine bucks for the occasion. The illuminations of those establishments under Royal patronage were general. At Windsor Royal salutes were fired on Monday. The Prince left Sandringham on Monday on a visit to Lord Walsingham at Merton Hall, Norfolk. The Princess and the Royal children remain at Sandringham.

THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.

The Duke of Edinburgh left Coburg on Sunday for Darmstadt, whence his Royal Highness proceeded to England. The Duke arrived at Charing-cross station on Wednesday morning by the ordinary mail-train from Dover. His Royal Highness drove in one of the Prince of Wales's carriages to Buckingham Palace—his own residence, Clarence House, undergoing extensive enlargement and repairs. The Duke has since left for Sandringham, on a visit to the Prince and Princess of Wales.

His Excellency the Russian Ambassador and Countess Brunnow have returned to Cheam House from Brighton.

The Duchess of Sutherland arrived at Stafford House, on Tuesday, from Dunrobin Castle.

The Marquis and Marchioness of Ailesbury have arrived at their residence in Pall-mall from Jervaux Abbey, Yorkshire.

The Marquis of Ripon has returned to Studley Royal from visiting the Maharajah Dhuleep Singh, at his seat in Norfolk.

His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and Countess Spencer have left Spencer House, St. James's, for Dublin.

The Countess of Feversham has arrived at Albert-gate from Duncombe Park, York.

Earl Grosvenor has arrived at Eacrick Park, York, on a visit to Lord and Lady Wenlock.

Viscount and Viscountess Sidmouth have arrived at No. 7, Mansfield-street, from Upottery Manor, Devonshire.

Lord and Lady Ruthven have left Freeland House, Perthshire, on a visit to the Duke and Duchess of Cleveland at Raby Castle.

Lord and Lady Clarence Paget have left Brown's Hotel for Plasallanfair.

Lady Charles Wellesley and the Misses Wellesley have arrived at Conholt Park, Andover.

Field Marshal Sir William and Lady Gomm have left town for Brighton.

Field Marshal Sir William Gomm, G.C.B., entered upon his ninetieth year on Monday, in the enjoyment of excellent health.

The report on the health of the Navy, recently published, contains the death of a seaman who had been in the habit of smoking forty cigars a day.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The directors of the Bank of England yesterday week raised the minimum rate of discount from 8 to 9 per cent. It has not been so high since May, 1866.

Mr. Richard Davy, F.R.C.S., lecturer on anatomy and teacher of operative surgery in the medical school, has been elected surgeon to the Westminster Hospital, in the room of Mr. G. Legge Pearce, F.R.C.S., resigned.

A large political meeting in favour of the equalisation of the county and borough franchise was held on Tuesday night in Crenome Gardens. Sir Charles Dilke and Sir Henry Hoare were the principal speakers.

Mr. Peter McKinlay, iron merchant, of Paul's Pier Wharf, has been elected to represent the ward of Castle Baynard in the Court of Common Council, in the room of Mr. Parker, who resigned in consequence of ill-health.

After the swearing-in of Alderman Lusk as the new Lord Mayor, on Saturday last, Sir Sydney Waterlow gave the last banquet of his year of office at the Mansion House, having his successor on his right hand.

The members of the Society of Friends have this week held a conference, the principal object of which is "to inquire into the causes that are retarding its increase and producing a marked diminution in the attendance at the meetings."

The evening meetings for the discussion of subjects of general interest, held during the winter months in the hall of Sion College, were resumed on Tuesday, when the opening address, on "The Reign of Law," was delivered by Dr. Carpenter, Registrar of the University of London and President last year of the British Association. At the second meeting, to be held on Tuesday, Dec. 2, the introductory paper, on "The Temple at Jerusalem," will be read by Mr. Fergusson.

The volunteer fire brigades from Barnet, Beckenham, Bromley, Crawley, Croydon, Eastbourne, Finchley, Hendon, London and Suburban, Penton, South Metropolitan, South Norwood, West Kent, and Wood-green, entered into competition at the Crystal Palace, on Monday, for prizes offered by the company, to encourage the competing brigades to greater skill and efficiency in their useful work. The whole competition was most interesting and successful. In the evening the last exhibition of fireworks for 1873 was given.

The boys in the Orphan Working School, Haverstock-hill, have been remarkably successful in the Science and Art Department at South Kensington this year. Six passed first class in animal physiology, six second, and only one failed. Edward C. Hawkins, who is only thirteen years of age, has won one of the four medals given for the United Kingdom, and is the youngest boy who has gained a medal this year. In physical geography one boy passed first class, thirty passed second, and only eight failed. In drawing this institution has maintained its place at the head of all the "common schools" in England.

At the meeting of the London School Board on Wednesday, Mr. Freeman, in bringing up the report of the finance committee, moved a resolution which authorised the borrowing from the Public Works Loan Commissioners of the further sum of £250,000 (making £750,000 in all), for the purpose of providing accommodation for 112,635 children in the district of the metropolis as required by the Education Department; the above sum of £250,000 to be secured by a charge on the school fund and local rates, and to be repaid, with interest at the rate of £3 10s. per cent per annum, by fifty equal instalments. The resolution was carried, with a verbal modification.

At a meeting of the Chemical Society on Thursday week—Dr. Odling, F.R.S., &c., president, in the chair—the president delivered a short address congratulating the Fellows on taking possession of their new rooms in Burlington House. A paper was then read by Mr. David Howard "On the Optical Properties of some Modifications of the Cinchona Alkaloids," being an elaborate investigation of the variations in the rotatory powers of this class of bodies when examined by the polarimeter. The other communications were a "Preliminary Notice on the Oils of Wormwood and Citronella," by C. R. A. Wright, D.Sc.; "On the Estimation of Nitrates on Potable Waters," by W. F. Donkin, B.A.; and a "Note on the Action of Iodine Trichloride upon Carbon Disulphide," by Mr. J. B. Faraday. The meeting adjourned until Thursday, Nov. 20.

The births in London last week were 2458, and the deaths 1852. After making due allowance for increase of population, the births exceeded by 48 and the deaths by 296 the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. The annual death-rate from all causes, which in the four preceding weeks had been equal to 19, 20, 22, and 26 per 1000, further rose last week to 28, a considerably higher rate than has prevailed in any previous week this year. A considerable proportion of the excess of deaths may be directly referred (the Registrar thinks) to the recent low temperature, which caused a large increase in the mortality from diseases of the lungs. The mean temperature of the air was 44.9 deg., or 0.8 deg. below the average in the corresponding week of the fifty years 1814-63, as determined by Mr. Glaisher. The highest day temperature in the shade was 55.2 deg. on Monday, and the lowest night temperature 28.7 deg. on Tuesday.

Lord Mayor's Day was celebrated, on Monday, with the usual formalities. The civic procession set out from Guildhall about half-past one, and, slowly threading its way through some of the City streets, entered the ward of Aldgate, of which the new Lord Mayor is the representative in the Court of Aldermen. An address of congratulation was there presented to his Lordship, who having briefly replied, progress was resumed. The procession reached Westminster shortly before three o'clock, and the principal civic dignitaries having entered the Court of Exchequer, the Lord Mayor was introduced to the Judges by the Recorder, and a complimentary speech was made by the Lord Chief Baron. His Lordship deviated from the beaten path of judicial compliment, and offered some pregnant suggestions relative to civic administration. He expressed strong sympathy with the movement initiated by Sir Sydney Waterlow for improving the homes of the poor. Having declared a doubt about the speedy intervention of Parliament to confer a chamber of commerce on the City, his Lordship mentioned the dormant Court of Hustings as a commercial tribunal which might be easily revived and adapted to present circumstances. The Lord Mayor having made the usual declarations, the pageant returned to the City by way of the Thames Embankment. As on former occasions, the line of route was crowded with spectators, although the weather, more especially in the early part of the day, was wet and cheerless. The ceremony at Westminster was followed by a splendid banquet at Guildhall, which was attended by a large number of distinguished guests, including most of her Majesty's Ministers. The Prime Minister made a long speech, in which he rebutted the recent charge of "plundering and blundering" by showing that the nation was never before so strong, peaceful, and prosperous. In a like hopeful strain the other Ministers present responded for their departments of the public service.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

There may possibly still be a few old-fashioned race-goers who retire into winter quarters immediately after the Houghton meeting, and resolutely abjure any further sport until roused by the sound of the Lincoln saddling-bell; but that does not alter the fact that the Messrs. Topham afforded their patrons four most enjoyable days at Liverpool last week, where the size of the fields far exceeded those which usually come to the post at Newmarket, and many very high-class horses competed. Tuesday was the least interesting day, but we must not omit to note the victories of Surinam and Sir Robert Walpole—two horses that have hitherto treated their backers very cruelly; while Tangible once more showed his fine speed by successfully conceding age and weight to most of his seven opponents over a five-furlong course. He is one of the handsomest horses in training, and, being quite sound, will probably prove a cheap purchase to Sir George Chetwynd at 1200 gs.

On Wednesday Eucalyptus (8 st. 12 lb.) ran very well indeed in the Molyneux Nursery, for though defeated by the King of Trumps—Ella filly (7 st.), it was no mean feat to succeed in giving weight to all the rest of the field, which included Pagant (8 st.). Though there were only two runners for the Bickerstaffe Cup, it was decidedly the race of the week, and Prince Charlie's warmest admirers might well feel nervous when they saw him set to concede 14 lb. to a horse like Oxonian. People connected with the Woodyates stable said that it was impossible he could win; but there is evidently no such word in the Prince's vocabulary, and, leaving the post with the quickness of a pony, he waited on his opponent till they got inside the distance, and then won as he chose by a length. In all his ten successive victories this year, he has never, in our opinion, shown form quite equal to this; and, though it might pay best to send him to the stud at once, we sincerely trust that he will be allowed another season on the turf. There are so many weight-for-age races such as the Queen's Stand Plate, the Fernhill Stakes, the Stockbridge Cup, the Fitzwilliam Stakes, &c., that he could scarcely lose, and a match between him and Sterling over the D.M. would indeed be an addition to the programme of the Newmarket Craven Meeting. In the Great Lancashire Stakes Kingcraft (7 st. 12 lb.) gained his first victory since the Derby, and, though it is poor compensation for eighteen successive defeats, we believe that Lord Falmouth will be satisfied with it, and that the fire-looking coward has run his last race. He was wonderfully lucky in meeting the worst field that ever contested the "blue ribbon," and we believe that his heart was broken in that desperate struggle for the Middle Park Plate, when he ran home head and head with Frivoly and Sunshine. Vanderdecken (8 st. 12 lb.) was not a length behind Kingcraft; but his performances this year have hardly fulfilled the high promise which he gave towards the end of last season.

The Grand Sefton Handicap steeplechase was the chief event of the Thursday, but it only brought out a moderate field, and was won easily by Congress (10 st. 12 lb.), Mr. Studt's unlucky mare Jealousy (10 st.) being second. Reform (13 st. 2 lb.), in spite of his welter weight, won the Becher Handicap just as he chose, and the performance was the more remarkable from the fact that he was quite worthless as a flat racer. Only fifteen came to the post for the Liverpool Autumn Cup, which, according to recent precedent, was run on the last day of the meeting. Any deficiency in numbers was, however, amply redeemed by the quality of the competitors, which included two previous winners of the race, Whynard (6 st. 7 lb.) and Vanderdecken (8 st. 11 lb.); two Chester Cup winners, Inveresk (8 st. 2 lb.) and Field Marshal (8 st. 5 lb.); an Ebor Handicap heroine, Louise Victoria (7 st. 6 lb.); and a Cesarewitch winner, King Lud (7 st. 12 lb.), besides such well-tried performers as Sterling (9 st. 4 lb.), Lillian (8 st. 3 lb.), Bertram (8 st. 6 lb.), and Syran (8 st.). Redworth (6 st. 4 lb.), who was said to have been tried to be as good as Kingcraft at level weights, ran well to the distance, when he was done with, and one of the grandest finishes ever seen resulted in the success of Sterling by a head, Louise Victoria beating King Lud for second place by the same distance. The victory of Sterling (who, it is said, will not run again) was a fitting sequel to his two superb efforts in the Cambridgeshire, and quite eclipses all previous handicap performances this season, if we except that of Winslow at Lewes.

The Border Union (Longtown) Coursing Meeting, which took place last week, was a great success, the weather being very favourable, and, except on the first day, hares proving good and plentiful. Among the sixty-four nominations in the Netherby Cup were several Waterloo dogs; but favourites had a very bad time of it, Joan, Dreaded Falcon, Diacicus, Iona, Grig, and Iron Shell all failing to win a single course. In the first ties matters did not improve much, and eventually two rank outsiders—Tyrant and Riot Act—divided. The puppies which ran in the Derby and Oaks Stakes were not, on the whole, a very grand lot, though Fugitive, by Cock Robin—Fortuna, who divided the Derby with Trumpeter, by Master Birnie—Leah, must be pretty smart, as it is scarcely a month since he divided the Wigtownshire St. Leger. The Oaks was divided between Indian Squaw, by Abercrombie—Mog, and Pell Mell, by Blairgowrie—Paragon, the latter of whom was very recently purchased by her present owner for only £15. The Sundorne (Salop) Meeting was completely ruined by the scarcity of game, so, though many good greyhounds were engaged, neither the Uffington nor Sundorne Cups could be run through twice.

Recent American papers inform us of the death of J. C. Heenan, the opponent of Tom Sayers in the great international prize-fight which took place in 1860. Heenan has never been really well since his fight with King in 1863, when there can be little doubt that he was poisoned.

The winter meeting of the London Athletic Club will take place at Lillie Bridge this (Saturday) afternoon.

The Board of Trade statistics for October and the last ten months of the present year show that our import and export transactions continued steadily to increase. During the ten months of this year the value of our imports was £307,485,011, and our export £216,016,759, compared with £293,123,189 and £212,872,388 respectively in 1872. It will thus be seen, however, that our imports are increasing at a greater rate than our exports. Among the former the principal increase is in wheat.

A meeting of the Glasgow Chamber of Commerce was held, on Monday, to consider the operation of the Bank Act of 1844 in view of the present monetary crisis. After a long discussion, the Chamber, by a large majority, declared that the said Act was unsound in principle, throwing upon one establishment the entire pressure of a financial crisis and placing in the hands of its directors the entire control of the monetary affairs of the country. The meeting condemned the extension of its operation to Scotland because it tended to monopoly and was opposed to freedom of trade. Such a state of matters as was manifested by the results of the Act should not be allowed to continue, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer should be urged to have the matter fully considered.

S K E T C H E S I N J A P A N .

NIGHT.

MORNING.

THE GRAVE OF WILL ADAMS, NEAR YOKOSKA, JAPAN.

THE RIGHT HON. ANDREW LUSK, M.P., LORD MAYOR OF LONDON.

MR. ALDERMAN AND SHERIFF WETHAM.

MR. SHERIFF JOHNSON

THE NEW LORD MAYOR AND SHERIFFS.

The Right Hon. Andrew Lusk, M.P., who has this week begun his tenure of the highest municipal office as Lord Mayor of London for the ensuing year, in succession to Sir Sydney H. Waterlow, is a native of Ayrshire, being a son of the late Mr. John Lusk, of Barr, near Girvan, in that county. He was born in 1813, and has been many years engaged in commercial pursuits in London, as a "general merchant and ships' provision dealer" in Fenchurch-street, and also at Wapping. He was chosen a Common Councilman about twenty years ago, and was elected Alderman of the Ward of Aldgate in 1863, having served as one of the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex two years previously. Mr. Alderman Lusk has sat in Parliament as M.P. for Finsbury in the advanced Liberal interest since July, 1865, as the colleague of Mr. M'Cullagh Torrens. He is married to Eliza, daughter of Mr. James Potter, of Falkirk, North Britain.

Mr. Alderman and Sheriff Charles Whetham is a son of the late Mr. Stephen Whetham, of the firm of S. Whetham and Sons, flax and hemp manufacturers, of Bridport, of which firm he is now the senior partner. The father of the new Sheriff married Miss Tucker, a daughter of Mr. Tucker, of Bridport, by whom the works were previously conducted. Their second son, Charles, was born in 1812; and, after receiving his education at the Rev. Matthew Anstis's Grammar School in his native town, came to London early in life. He married the only daughter of the late Mr. George Langley, and is the father of a large family. Mr. Whetham has long been a Justice of the Peace, as were his father and elder brother, and is also a Deputy Lieutenant of London. In 1842 he was elected a member of the Court of Common Council for the Ward of Bridge; subsequently he was chosen deputy of the ward, and on the death of the late Sir Joseph Causton he was elected Alderman of the ward. He is deputy chairman of the National Provident Institution.

Mr. Sheriff Johnson is a son of the late Mr. John Johnson and was born at Knightsbridge, in 1827. He received his education in England and Germany. He married, about five years ago, the daughter of Mr. Foster, shipowner, of Scarborough. Mr. Johnson is the sole representative of the old-established house of Messrs. John Johnson and Son, of the Corn Exchange. His residence is St. Osyth Priory, Essex; and his town residence, 76, Portland-place.

The portrait of the Lord Mayor is engraved from a photograph by Mr. Diederi, of Brook-street; that of Alderman and Sheriff Whetham, from one by Messrs. Maull and Co.; and that of Mr. Sheriff Johnson, from one by Messrs. Elliott and Fry.

NEW MAYORS.

The following are the names, as far as the returns have reached us, of the gentlemen elected to be Mayors during the ensuing year:—

Aberystwith—Philip Williams	Liskeard—John Elliott
Abingdon—John Kent	Liverpool—A. B. Walker
Andover—William Henry Parsons	London—Alderman Lusk, M.P.
Ashton—Abel Buckley	(Lord Mayor)
Bath—John Philip Barford	Longton—John Yates Carrier
Barnsley—C. Newman (re-elected)	Lynn—J. O. Smitham (re-elected)
Barnstaple—T. May (re-elected)	Macclesfield—Alderman W. Carr
Barrow-in-Furness—T. Smith (re-elected)	Manchester—Alderman Watkins
Bath—William Hunt (fifth time)	Monmouth—A. Ralls (fourth time)
Batley—W. Brodie	Newark—Alderman G. Harvey
Beverly—Alderman Young	Newbury—Alderman Hickman
Birmingham—H. E. Silvester	(fourth time)
Birmingham—John Norroway	Newcastle-on-Tyne—Addison Potter
Birmingham—J. Charnelain	Newcastle (St. J.)—Arthur Leach
Blackburn—Councillor Pickop	Newport (Mon.)—Nelson Hewison
Bolton—Alderman Marsden	Northampton—R. Turner
Bolton—William Givens	Norwich—S. G. Buxton
Boston—W. Haigh Byles (re-elected)	Nottingham—Ald. John Howitt
Bradford—Mansel Raikes	Oldham—Alderman Whittaker
Bradford—T. D. Darnell	Oxford—John Galpin
Bradford—J. R. Smith (re-elected)	Pembroke—W. Williams
Bridport—C. Tucker	Pemryn—Michael Lavin
Brighton—Alderman John Bridgen	Penzance—Ald. F. Boase (sixth time)
(third time)	Plymouth—A. Rooker
Bristol—Alderman Thomas Barnes	Poole—John Sidney Hudson
Bristol—Councillor Massey	Portsmouth—Ald. Mark Pearson
Bury St. Edmunds—C. D. Leach	Portsmouth—George E. Kent
Cambridge—Alderman John Deane	Preston—Ald. J. James (sec. time)
Canterbury—George Harrison	Reading—Mr. Beale
Cardiff—William Bachel	Ripon—Alderman Thompson
Cardiff—J. Clarke	Rochester—Alderman G. Whitaker
Canary—J. Rees (re-elected)	Rochester—Town C. J. L. Edwards
Chester—W. M. Williams	Ryde—T. L. Bannister (re-elected)
Colchester—Edwd. Augustus Round	Saffron Walden—Alderman Clarke
Coventry—Henry Soden	(tenth time)
Derby—G. Wheldon	Salford—Alderman Harwood
Devonport—A. Norman	Salisbury—Henry Brown
Dewsbury—Alderman Joseph Day	Scarborough—George White
Doncaster—C. Clark (third time)	Sheffield—Alderman Hallam
Dorchester—G. J. G. Gregory (re-elected)	Southampton—Councillor E. Jones
Dover—F. S. Peirce	South Molton—W. Gould Smith
Droitwich—S. S. Roden	South Shields—Ald. Terriotti (Glover)
Dublin—Maurice Brooks (Lord Mayor Elect)	Stalybridge—Ald. S. Fernihough
Durham—Alderman W. Wilkinson	Stamford—S. G. Mason
Durham—Randal Stevenson	Stockton-on-Tees—G. Metcalfe
Evesham—Alderman Oswald New	Sunderland—Alex. Geo. Mackenzie
Exeter—C. J. Follett	Swansea—Alderman S. Powell
Falmouth—R. Chaffer Richards	Southport—Sam. Swire (re-elected)
Gateshead—George Charlton	St. Ives—George Williams
Gloucester—Henry Allen	Stockport—T. Bayley
Goldmanchester—Alderman Brown	Tamworth—Peter Aitkin
Gravesend—W. Lake	Tiverton—W. N. Row (re-elected)
Glossop—William Sidebottom	Tranham—Lawrence Ridge
Hallifax—Alderman S. Wymann	Truro—James Tanshill
Hanley—Henry Cartledge	Tynemouth—R. W. Surtees
Hartlepool (West)—John White	Torrington—R. L. Tapley
Hastings—C. Gousden	Warrington—J. R. Pickinere
Huddersfield—Alderman Brooke	Wakefield—T. W. Haigh (re-elected)
Hull—J. L. Seaton	Walsall—Alderman R. W. Brownhill
Huntingdon—Philip E. Tillard	(re-elected)
Ipswich—Barrington Chevalier	Warwick—Lieut.-Colonel Greenway
Kendal—G. F. Brathwaite	Wells—J. G. Everett
Kidderminster—H. Dixon	Weymouth—J. Robertson (third time)
Lancaster—Thomas Story	Wigan—N. Eckerley (fourth time)
Launceston—S. Stephens	Widener—Buldon
Leeds—Alderman Marsden	Windsor—Ald. J. Jones (third time)
Leicester—Alderman Kempson	Wolverhampton—W. Highfield Jones
Lichfield—F. Webb	Worcester—H. G. Goldingham
Lincoln—Joseph Maltby	Wrexham—Mr. Lloyd
	Yarmouth (Great)—Henry Toasdale
	Yeovil—Alderman Curtis (third time)
	York—Ald. J. March (Lord Mayor)

Mr. A. B. Walker marked his election as Mayor of Liverpool by a most liberal act. He announced his intention to provide a fine-art gallery for that town at a cost of £20,000.

At Newport, Monmouthshire, on Monday, the retiring Mayor, Mr. Windham Jones, was presented with a silver cradle, a son and heir having been born to him during his year of office.

Dr. Victor Ernst Richard von Bojanowski has been approved of as Consul-General in London for the German Empire.

Professors Duncan, Carey Foster, and Rutherford will deliver at South Kensington Museum a series of lectures to women on the elements of physical science. The course, consisting of three parts—geology, physics, and physiology—began on Wednesday. —Mr. Ernst Pauer will deliver a course of nine lectures, three on the different forms of vocal, instrumental, and dance music, and six on the art and science of pianoforte-playing. The course will begin on the 22nd inst.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

(From our Correspondent at Paris.)

PARIS, Thursday, Nov. 13.

The past week has been one of surprises for the Republicans and of deceptions for the Royalists. The slight victory gained by the De Broglie Cabinet on the opening day of the Session has been followed by a great Republican triumph. The Committee appointed by the Bureau to examine the Ministerial proposition of prolonging Marshal MacMahon's powers for ten years has rejected that proposal, and voted another drawn up by M. Casimir-Périer, limiting the Marshal's term of office to five years beyond the duration of the present Assembly, which, under any circumstances, cannot legally last for more than about a couple of years longer, and will most likely dissolve itself as soon as the constitutional laws have been voted.

In yesterday's sitting of the Assembly the Duc de Broglie proposed that M. Léon Say's interpellation with reference to the vacant seats should be postponed until after the vote had been taken on the prolongation of the President's powers. M. Challemeil Lacour, however, opposed any adjournment of the interpellation, maintaining this did not in any way affect the government of the country, but solely the Ministry, which he energetically attacked, observing that the Duc de Broglie could be replaced without any vital interests being compromised. On a division the postponement, being supported alike by the Right and the Left and Centre, was agreed to, and subsequently the Assembly decided to appoint the day following the vote on the prolongation of the executive power for discussing the question of the interpellation. The other sittings of the National Assembly have been utterly void of interest. Upwards of a thousand petitions, generally on most frivolous subjects, have been disposed of in the course of the week, three fourths of the members being busily occupied in the bureaux discussing the pros and cons of the situation during the debates. M. Buffet was re-elected to the Presidency by 384 votes, the whole of the Left abstaining from voting in accordance with instructions from "Major-General" Thiers, as the Royalist prints now term the ex-President of the Republic. The latter has received several provincial deputations this week, and in his replies has spoken most confidently of the triumph of the Republic, repeating again and again his favourite formula that it is the only government now possible in France. On Sunday last prayers were offered up in all the churches imploring the Almighty to guide the coming deliberations of the Assembly, the Archbishop of Paris delivering a political sermon at Notre Dame, in presence of the Governor of Paris and several of the Ministers. The service in the chapel of the Versailles Palace was attended by Marshal MacMahon in full uniform, M. Buffet, the Duc de Broglie, and more than 400 deputies and functionaries.

The Ministry is profiting by the brief interval it has yet to live to suppress and intimidate the Republican press. Besides forbidding the sale in the streets of a Republican journal in the Aude—where M. de Broglie and his colleagues are desirous of preventing the election of General Sausier, an officer who has imitated the example of General Carré de Bellemare, by publicly declaring that he will only serve the Government of the Republic—the Ministry have recently suppressed the Avenir of Rennes and the Républicain of Nevers, for commenting favourably on the recent speeches of MM. Grévy and Dufaure.

The trial of Marshal Bazaine has continued at Trianon throughout the week, and on Friday last a rather important incident transpired. M. Hulme deposed that on Aug. 20, 1870, he conveyed an important despatch from Marshal Bazaine to the Emperor, and subsequently to Marshal MacMahon, who affirmed, however, in writing, that he had no recollection of the circumstance. An animated discussion followed, and several witnesses were called, all of whom corroborated M. Hulme's evidence. The incident reflected unpleasantly on Marshal MacMahon, and it is now currently asserted that Colonel Stoffel is screening the President of the Republic from a series of accusations which, were they proved, would considerably lessen the reputation he enjoys for honesty and capacity. The Colonel has been cited before the Tribunal of Correctional Police on the charge of outraging General de Rivière, for which he is liable to a period of imprisonment extending from six days to five years. Among the principal witnesses examined this week is General Coffinières, who stated that he considered the proper part for Bazaine's army to play was to remain in Metz and threaten the enemy's communications; and, further, that more energetic action was necessary than that which had been displayed. Marshals Canrobert and Le Boeuf, on being recalled, expressed their belief that no despatch arrived in Metz from MacMahon on Aug. 23, as Colonel Lewal, one of Bazaine's bitterest enemies, had asserted; and, in reference to another point, they agreed with General de Ladmirault in declaring that there was always a good supply of ammunition.

Four Communists have recently been sentenced by the Autun Tribunal of Correctional Police to terms of imprisonment ranging from four to two years. They were charged with being members of the International, and having considerable quantities of arms and ammunition in their possession. It is asserted by the Ragabot journals that they had conspired to seize the Marchioness de MacMahon and several bishops and priests as hostages, as a prelude to a Socialist movement which was to have taken place in the south of France. The question was, however, not raised at the trial.

Victorin Sardou's new comedy, "Uncle Sam," which is a brilliant caricature of American life, has been brought out with great success at the Vaudeville Theatre; and the Gymnase is preparing a new sensational drama by M. Alexandre Dumas fils, entitled "Monsieur Jules."

HOLLAND.

The Second Chamber has passed, by forty-nine votes against five, the Indian Budget of expenditure, with all the fresh propositions of the Government.

BELGIUM.

King Leopold II. opened the Chambers on Tuesday. The Speech from the Throne expressed satisfaction with the foreign relations and the financial condition of the kingdom. His Majesty announced that the Ministry will introduce several bills, comprising a measure for limiting or suspending the coining of silver money.

ITALY.

On Saturday last the Cavour memorial at Turin was unveiled in presence of King Victor Emmanuel, the Princes of the Royal family, the members of the Cabinet, deputations of both Houses, representatives of the diplomatic body, and of the civil and military authorities. In the evening there was a banquet, at which Sir H. Paget, the British Minister, spoke of the great esteem in which the name of Cavour was held in England, and said that this country had from the beginning favoured the regeneration of Italy, which had finally been constituted under the sceptre of a loyal King. These remarks were enthusiastically received.

SPAIN.

Carlist advances announce that a great battle took place on Friday week at Miranda del Arga, near Tafalla, in the province of Navarre, resulting in a complete victory for the Carlists. According to these despatches "the fighting commenced at six o'clock in the morning, near Mount Oleiza, and was decided in favour of the Carlists by the cavalry and the 2nd Navarrese battalion. General Primo de Rivera was killed and General Moriones was wounded and made prisoner, together with six superior officers and thirty-five other Republican officers of lower grade. One hundred and fifty Republican cavalry, many of their rank and file, four guns, and a quantity of muskets were also captured. The Carlists sustained heavy loss. The chiefs Valdespina and Verula are among the killed. Radica and Olla are wounded." By the Government at Madrid these statements are officially declared to be unfounded. General Primo de Rivera, it is said, was not even wounded, and the Government received communications from him on Sunday. The engagement was caused by the advance of General Moriones's headquarters to Los Arcos, which movements he succeeded in accomplishing, even by Carlist accounts, though it seems likely that he was driven back from attempts to occupy points in advance of this place. Carlist advances from Estella, received at Bayonne, state that more fighting took place in Navarre on Saturday and Sunday last. The losses of the Carlists were 217 killed and wounded, while those of the Republicans are estimated at 1300. Other advices received at Bayonne represent that General Moriones was, on Sunday afternoon, in full retreat, after having left twenty ammunition-waggons in the hands of the Carlists. A Te Deum has been celebrated at Estella for the alleged Carlist victory, and a day of public rejoicing is to be held. Don Carlos is said to have been on the field during the action, and to have seen shells falling near him. The latest Estella telegram says that the Carlists have no Republican prisoners. Barcelona accounts accuse the Carlists of further cruelties—sacking houses, shooting prisoners, and burning volunteers to death in a church; and in Madrid several petty successes over the Carlists have been announced, including one in Sabinal, by Colonel Portillo, over 1300 men under the chiefs Rico and Salva. Both chiefs and 216 Carlists were taken prisoners. A Carlist army census is furnished from Bayonne. It places the total strength of Don Carlos's adherents at twenty-nine battalions, of which eleven are in Navarre, eight in Biscay, and eight in Guipuzcoa.

The provinces of Barcelona and Lerida have been declared in a state of siege, and it is expected that Girona and Tarragona will also be subjected to the same measure.

Carthage still holds out. The revolutionary Junta has been reconstituted, and is now in the hands of the military leaders. The new batteries to be directed against the place are unmasked, and the insurgents have made a few unsuccessful sorties in the hope of disabling them. The Spanish squadron, which had been away to coal, again arrived off the port on Saturday last. It seems the Junta promptly gave up the German prisoners and a ship they had captured on hearing of the approach of a German squadron.

A special telegram from Madrid describes an exploit of brigands perpetrated on the train from Lisbon. It was stopped by ten armed men at a small station near Ciudad Real and every passenger was stripped of his valuables. The thieves did not take time to examine luggage, but everything portable in the shape of money, watches, or jewellery was collected.

The Cuban blockade-runner Virginus was captured by the Spanish gun-boat Tornado on Oct. 31, off the Jamaica coast, after an eight hours' chase. The tribunal of Santiago sentenced four of the crew of the Virginus to death, and they were shot on the morning of the 4th inst. One of the prisoners thus speedily tried, sentenced, and executed bears the name of General Ryan. At Madrid, General Sikes, the United States Minister, seems to have gone early to the Government, and obtained the dispatch of orders staying proceedings; but it was too late. The Madrid Government, on Saturday, sent a second peremptory order to Cuba forbidding the execution of any more of the prisoners until the case had been reported to Madrid. But advices from Havannah received at New York announce that on the 7th the captain and thirty-six of the crew, and on the 8th twelve of the volunteers, captured on board the Virginus were executed at Santiago. A telegram from Washington states that the Spanish Commander in Cuba has had eighty insurgents, captured in a recent engagement, shot.

GERMANY.

The Prussian Parliament was opened on Wednesday. Herr Camphausen, Vice-President of the Prussian Cabinet, read the Speech from the Throne. The financial state of the country is said to be most satisfactory, the public debt has been reduced, and last year's surplus is still untouched. The Speech says that the laws passed last session, regulating the relations between Church and State, had met with unjustifiable opposition from the Roman Catholic Bishops; but that the Government is determined to carry out those laws, and, if necessary, supplement them with others of the same nature. These passages were especially applauded, and at the end three cheers were given for the King. Count Stolberg was elected President of the Upper House, Herr von Bernuth First Vice-President, and Herr von Hasselbach Second Vice-President.

By an order of the 9th inst. the Emperor relieves Field Marshal Count von Roon of his office as Minister of War, and at the same time warmly expresses to the Count his gratitude. According to the Provincial Correspondence, General von Kamecke has been appointed Minister of War. In accordance with his own request, Field Marshal Count von Roon has been relieved of the function of President of the Prussian Ministry, and is succeeded by Prince Bismarck, Herr von Camphausen being appointed Vice-President of the Cabinet.

An important motion was sanctioned by the Lower House of the Bavarian Diet on Saturday, but only by a bare majority. It was nothing less than the extension of the jurisdiction of the empire over the whole civil legislation of Bavaria.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

The Lower House of the Austrian Reichsrath elected its President on Monday. Herr Rechbauer was the successful candidate, 255 votes out of 286 being recorded in his favour. Herren Vidulich and Pillerdorff were elected Vice-Presidents.

On Tuesday the Government introduced a bill empowering them to raise a loan of 80,000,000 fl., with the joint object of relieving the monetary pressure and promoting public works.

In the Hungarian Lower House, at Pesth, the Prime Minister (M. Slavy) has opened business with a retrospect of the legislative work of last Session. In describing the Ministerial measures to be introduced, he assured the deputies that effectual aid would be rendered against the commercial crisis. The settlement of the Bank question will be directed to this end.

TURKEY.

Cheket Pasha, the Governor of Scutari, in Albania, has met his death accidentally by drowning; and Daoud Pasha, the Minister of Public Works in Turkey, died at Baris last week.

RUSSIA.

The St. Petersburg authorities are advised of the safe arrival at Tashkend of the last column of the Turkestan detachment engaged in the Khivan expedition.

The Government has sanctioned the construction of a railway from Syzran, on the Volga, south of Samara, to Orenburg. The Morschanak-Pensa-Syzran line, connecting Syzran with Moscow, will shortly be finished.

AMERICA.

We learn from Washington that the United States Government has determined to suspend its judgment with respect to the execution of the Cuban leaders captured on board the Virginian until the facts of the case are known. Meanwhile, the press condemns the conduct of the Spanish authorities.

A conspiracy to publish false accounts in New York and London concerning the Erie Railway has been discovered and fully exposed by Mr. Lucius Robinson, the vice-president of the company, who affirms the entire correctness of the accounts given by the president, Mr. Watson.

The financial crisis in America is causing great distress among the working classes, and it is anticipated that the present winter will be one of the severest that has ever been experienced in that country. Thousands of seamstresses and domestic servants have been thrown out of employment in New York, and all trades connected with the production of articles of luxury are paralysed. Wages are being greatly reduced, and there is only one class of workmen on strike in New York. In Philadelphia 3500 men were idle when the mail left, and between 300 and 400 mechanics and about 1000 labourers had been discharged from the Washington Navy Yard.

CANADA.

The new Ministry has been constituted as follows:—Mr. Mackenzie, Premier and Minister of Public Works; Mr. Cartwright, Minister of Finance; Mr. D. A. Macdonald, Postmaster-General; Senator Christie, Minister of State; Mr. Dorion, Minister of Justice; Senator Letellier, Minister of Immigration; Mr. Fournier, Minister of Inland Revenue; Mr. Coffin, Receiver-General; Mr. Ross, President of the Council; Mr. Albert Smith, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; Mr. Bursee, Minister of Customs; Mr. Laird (of Prince Edward Island), Minister of the Interior. The post of Minister of the Militia remains vacant.

Parliament has been prorogued, and probably will not re-assemble until February.

Mr. Crawford has been sworn in as successor to Mr. W. P. Howland in the post of Governor of Ontario; and Mr. Tilley, late Finance Minister of the Dominion, becomes Lieutenant-Governor of New Brunswick. Both appointments were made by the late Ministry on the day it resigned office.

INDIA.

Very active measures are being taken to obviate the threatened famine in Bengal, and there seems to be yet time to mitigate it. The Viceroy announces that he will not interfere with the export of rice until an extreme necessity arises. The Madras and Burmah authorities are instructed to purchase grain gradually through traders, and are to pay labourers in food, and to lend to municipalities and agriculturists money for the purchase of seed. Payment of the road cess is postponed in all afflicted districts. Measures are to be adopted to facilitate the migration of labour, and to reimburse importers who distribute food cheaply. Subscriptions are invited.

Some news relative to the threatened famine in Bengal is telegraphed by the Calcutta correspondent of the Times:—The Viceroy has left for Agra. Prices are slowly rising. The new crop is entering the market. Behar, Dinagore, Rungpore, Bogra, Goruckpore, and the South Mirzapore districts are hopeless. Central and Eastern Bengal will, probably, be self-supporting. Chittagong, Backergunge, and Orissa are exporting. From Allahabad and the west the reports are very good, except from Rajpootana and Oude. In Chuttegurh the crop is poor. Messrs. Bernard, Geddes, Robinson, and another civilian have been appointed to special duties in anticipation of the famine.

The Bishop of Bombay has started on a visitation tour to the stations of the Deccan, and it is arranged that the three Indian Bishops shall meet at Nagpore for the discussion of diocesan arrangements.

A Calcutta telegram gives news of Mr. Forsyth's expedition down to Oct. 14. It had then got through the Karakorum Pass, and reached Aklagh, all well.

The expedition against the Assam Duffles consists of 1200 sepoy and the 32nd and 42nd Regiments.

The cable between Hong-Kong and Shanghai is interrupted.

Another Canadian lake steamer, the Bavarian, has been burnt, with the loss of fourteen lives.

Sir Andrew Clarke was sworn in last week as Governor of the Straits Settlements.

For the first time the result of a Melbourne Cup race has been telegraphed from the Antipodes. The winner in this case was Don Juan.

A correspondent informs the Field that there are now in Brittany more wolves and wild boars than have been known for the last twenty years.

Dog-fighting has been prohibited throughout Japan, and any transgressors in this respect are to be fined, and the dogs will be killed.

The Rev. Titus Bentley, of Rathmines, Dublin, has received bulls from the Holy See appointing him Bishop of Montana, North America.

Satisfactory evidence of the increasing prosperity of New Zealand is afforded by the agricultural statistics of that colony, which have been received for the year ending July, 1873.

Monsignor Verez, Bishop of the Island of St. Pierre, near Newfoundland, has been assassinated by a man named Emile Pelletier, who subsequently gave himself up to the authorities.

By invitation of the Roman Catholics of Belgium, Archbishop Ledochowski, of Posen, who has been punished in various ways for breaches of the Prussian ecclesiastical laws, will take up his residence at Brussels.

A gold pen has been sent to the Pope by the Roman Catholic soldiers of the garrison of Malta, with an address expressing the hope that his Holiness may soon be able to announce with it the triumph of the Church.

The Chilean Congress is holding an extraordinary session. Trade is dull; but, by way of compensation, public health is good, and the new railways are proceeding rapidly. The Charlotte, a Liverpool barque, had gone ashore near Valparaiso and became a total loss.

Silver medals forwarded by the Norwegian Government have been presented to Charles Blampied and Elias Whitley for gallant services in rescuing the crew of the Norwegian vessel Isabella Northcote, which was wrecked off Jersey in a heavy sea. They went off in a small boat, and in two trips saved the whole of the crew, eighteen in number. A labourer in Mr. Blampied's employ, who accompanied them, received £5.

Some discoveries have been lately made at Pompeii. A shop, supposed to be a tanner's, has been excavated, and a number of tools used in the manipulation of leather found. It is somewhat singular to remark the strong resemblance these tools bear to those used at the present day.

Mr. George Strachey, now her Majesty's Secretary of Legation at Berne, has been appointed Secretary of Legation at Dresden. Mr. F. M. Sartoris, Mr. Walter Baring, Mr. H. E. H. Jerningham, and the Hon. H. G. Edwards, Third Secretaries in the diplomatic service, have been appointed Second Secretaries.

The will of the late King of Saxony is dated 1854. His Majesty has left his two favourite country seats, which were his private property, the one, Jahnishausen, to the Queen Dowager; the other, Castle Wessenstein, to his second son, Prince George.

Intelligence has reached Paris from the East of the death of the celebrated Algerian chief Abd-el-Kader, who for ten years defied the best Generals of France. He was captured in 1843, and kept in prison till the proclamation of the Empire, when the Emperor released him on his swearing never again to molest the French in Algeria.

Mr. Karl Eduard Arndt, described as a merchant, was lately brought up before the Berlin magistrate for insulting a policeman who had picked him up fast asleep on the steps of a house in Berlin. Mr. Arndt proved himself to be the person who snatched the pocket-pistol from Karl Blind when he was firing at the then Count Bismarck, in Unter den Linden, in 1866. In consideration of this deed he was discharged.

On the arrival of Governor Berkeley at Freetown, Sierra Leone, the Sierra Leone Native Association presented an address to his Excellency, and another was received from the Kissy Defensive Association. In replying to them he said that it would be his earnest endeavour to promote the moral and social condition of the settlements, and he looked with confidence for the co-operation and assistance of all classes. He thanked them for the reception he had received, and said that it would be a source of gratification to him to be brought into contact with a section of the inhabitants.

The Daily Telegraph says that the researches in Assyria conducted by Mr. George Smith for that newspaper are to be continued by the British Museum. The trustees some time ago made arrangements to furnish Mr. Smith with funds for a second expedition to the same spot, and requested the sanction of the Government for this project. The Prime Minister has approved the scheme, and Mr. Smith will leave next week for the scene of those successful labours which were interrupted by his official recall. The proprietors of the Daily Telegraph have made over to him for the museum the plant and material left at Koyunjik, together with the firman of his Majesty the Sultan.

The harbour works at Kurrachee are nearly completed, and have proved most successful, both as regards deepening the entrance channel and enlarging interior accommodation for shipping. Among the extensive works executed, a breakwater has been built, running out from Manora Point to a distance of 1500 ft.; and this affords complete shelter to the channel over the bar during the south-west monsoon. A channel has been opened through the bar with a depth of 19 ft. at low-water spring tides, 300 ft. in breadth (to be widened to 500 ft.). Vessels of the largest class may now enter or leave the port with perfect safety during the fair season, and vessels not exceeding 21 ft. of draught can enter or leave the port during all seasons of the year. Troops may therefore be embarked or disembarked at Kurrachee without the double shipment which has hitherto been the objection to this line being adopted.

The period for which the existing Russo-Chinese treaty of commerce was concluded is drawing to a close, and the Exchange Committee at Moscow has appointed a select committee to investigate the difficulties obstructing commercial intercourse between the two empires, to suggest remedies, and to bring to the knowledge of Government the desires of Russian commercial circles with regard to modifications. The committee urges that perfect liberty be henceforth granted to Russian merchants in dealing with all parts and dependencies of the Chinese empire, leaving them free to export their goods and dispose of them as they think fit, on the grounds—1, That the Chinese traders enjoy the same privileges in Russia and her dependencies; 2, that the treaty formerly in existence, and signed by General Ignatieff at Peking, on Nov. 2, 1860, already conferred the right demanded upon Russian merchants. The committee, in conclusion, requests its own Government not to proceed in the matter without the advice of the chambers of commerce and other commercial bodies in the country.

The official celebration of the opening of the Devon and Somerset Railway took place at South Molton last week.

The Hastings Town Council has decided to erect a new Townhall, at a cost of £10,000.

The Shrewsbury Hunt Ball took place, on Thursday week, at the Music Hall, Shrewsbury. Nearly 400 members of the principal county families were present.

In Warwickshire, and in some of the abutting districts of Oxfordshire and Northamptonshire, fresh outbreaks of the cattle-disease are recorded.

A serious misfortune threatens the Birkenhead poor-law guardians. The inmates of the parochial palace have intimated that if the master be superseded they will leave the house.

As the Cork harriers were in chase over the Mallow country, on Tuesday, they ran on to the railway, and, being overtaken by the mail train, several of them were killed.

In order to provide labour for a chain of forts intended for the defence of Chatham and Rochester, a new convict prison is about to be erected on a site overlooking the Medway. It is on the road from Rochester to Maidstone.

The Royal National Hospital for Consumption on the Cottage Principle, situate at Ventnor, has received two gifts of £1400 each from Messrs. Samuel and John Courtauld, of Essex, for the erection of two houses to accommodate twelve patients.

The number of paupers in London at the close of the first week of November was 100,663—viz., 35,225 indoor and 65,438 outdoor. The numbers in the corresponding week of 1872 and 1871 were 105,219 and 116,506 respectively. The vagrants relieved in the metropolis on the last day of the first week of November were 638—430 men, 170 women, and 38 children.

Pending Chancery proceedings with respect to the rights in Epping Forest, the gentlemen who have united in a body to resist further encroachments are watchful of every opportunity that may arise for practical protest. By a right conferred by Queen Elizabeth, the poor of Loughton are privileged at mid-night of every Nov. 11 to begin cutting wood, and continue so doing till April 26. The custom has been duly observed this year, and the assembly of "loppers" was addressed by Sir Antonio Brady and other gentlemen.

MASSACRE OF PERSIANS AT KHIVA.

A Russian artist, Mr. N. Karasin, who was an officer in the Turkestan battalions of the Russian army, has spent six years in travelling about Central Asia, and has collected in his sketch-books a great variety of remarkable scenes and figures. He sends us from St. Petersburg a few illustrations, one of which appears in this week's Paper. It represents the massacre by Turkomans of a large number of the Persian slaves who were liberated from their previous captivity by the Russian conquest of Khiva last May. This shocking affair demands a better explanation than has yet been published. It was said that there were nearly 30,000 Persians kept in slavery by the Khan of Khiva, and by the Turkoman Princes and chiefs of his dominion. There were also, we are told, a few subjects of the Russian empire, soldiers and mercantile clerks from Orenburg, who had been captured while marching or travelling along the shores of the Aral Sea. When General Kaufmann took possession of Khiva he released all the Persian slaves, and divided them into several columns, each 3000 strong, for their journey home to Persia. He was not able to spare any Russian troops for a protecting escort, as some of the Turkomans in the territory of Khiva still refused to pay the tribute stipulated with the Khan, and it was apparent that force would be needful to subdue their resistance. The Persians were therefore sent away by themselves; and it so happened that, while they toiled wearily through the deep and dry sand of their road, as they went past the wells of Massovar Orotogod they were suddenly attacked by an armed party of their vengeful former masters, and many hundreds were slain. The dead bodies were left where they lay, presenting a horrible spectacle at the time when Mr. Karasin made his sketch. A short time afterwards, on July 15, the Turkomans were severely punished by the defeat which they suffered in a conflict with part of the Russian army.

THE ASHANTEE EXPEDITION.

The correspondent of the Times at Sierra Leone, writing on the 16th ult., says:—The steam-ship Soudan has arrived here from the Leeward Coast. The news by her fully confirms the intelligence brought by the Monrovia as to the advance of the Ashantee army, headed by the King in person. When the Soudan arrived at Accra Captain Glover was engaged in holding a grand palaver with the young King of Akim, who had come into Accra to visit Captain Glover, attended by over 500 of his chiefs and leading warriors. The Akims, who are enemies to the Ashantees, and our allies during the present war, are a powerful and warlike race, whose territory lies inland from Accra and borders the Ashantee territory on the south-east.

According to present arrangements the Gold Coast Railway, on the road to Coomassie, will be twenty miles in length. The rails are in course of manufacture at the Darlington ironworks, and their delivery at the Woolwich Arsenal is almost completed.

Large purchase of provisions are being made for the expedition. The gross weight of biscuit, salt beef, and preserved meat to be sent out is estimated at 5000 tons. Most of the beef for salting was bought in the Metropolitan Market.

It has been decided to use mules and donkeys for transport, notwithstanding the doubts that are entertained of their being able to bear the climate.

The African Royal mail-steamer Elmina, which left the Mersey on Wednesday for the West Coast of Africa, took out a quantity of Government stores for the use of the English troops on the coast. A number of Government officials also sailed in the Elmina. Another large screw-steamer, the Marian, belonging to the same owners as the Lilian, has been engaged by the Government to follow with 1000 tons of provisions and stores to the Gold Coast.

To accommodate the prejudices of our allies on the Gold Coast, who prefer rough projectiles to the accurately-shaped bullets of modern rifle practice, leaden rods are being cut up into lengths, that the Fantee soldiery may indulge their peculiar ideas with respect to the best mode of shooting.

Mrs. Gladstone's Free Convalescent Home at Woodford has received a further donation of £1000 from "N. P. T."

It has been settled, says the Daily Telegraph, that Mr. Monsell will in a short time resign his duties at the General Post Office; but the Government has not yet decided on his successor.

The Marquis of Westminster, president of the Royal Normal College for the Blind, Upper Norwood, is to preside at a public meeting in Manchester on Wednesday next, to form scholarships for the more intelligent blind youth of that city, with a view to their education for self-supporting occupations.

Lord Lyveden, well known as Mr. Vernon Smith in several Parliaments previous to that which assembled in 1859, when he was raised to the Peerage by Lord Palmerston, died, on Monday, at his Northamptonshire seat, Farmingwoods. His Lordship, who was in his seventy-fourth year, is succeeded in the title by his eldest son, the Hon. Fitzpatrick Vernon.

A meeting of the Liverpool branch of the National Life-Boat Institution was held, last Saturday, in the Mayor's Parlour, for the purpose of presenting to Mr. James C. Fothergill, of Low Hill, Liverpool, a handsomely-framed testimonial, in acknowledgment of his efforts in assisting to save the lives of the crew of a smack called the Hero, wrecked in Douglas Bay, Isle of Man, in December last.

Among the recipients from the Humane Society of medals for saving life from drowning is that of Miss Olivia G. E. Maude, who rescued a servant-girl, who was bathing at Sea Point, near Monkstown. Miss Maude swam out with all her clothes on. A similar award was made for similar conduct to Miss Mary Kerridge, who saved a boy of fifteen at Wentworth, New South Wales.

It was resolved at a special meeting of the Commissioners of National Education in Ireland, held in Dublin last week, that the Rev. Mr. O'Keeffe should not be restored to the post of manager of the Callan Schools. Father O'Keeffe has given notice to the Commissioners that he shall appeal to the Government against their decision. Pending the appeal, he is willing, in the interests of education, as well as for the sake of peace and charity, to accept the proposal of the Board to place the schools under the charge of Lord Clifden's agent.

The nominations for the School Board at Sheffield closed on Saturday night. Twenty-seven candidates are nominated, including United Church, five; Un denominational, eight; one Roman Catholic, and an independent candidate. Sixty-eight candidates, including one lady, had been nominated at Liverpool up to Saturday night. The triennial School-Board election for Manchester was held on Wednesday. Two Roman Catholic candidates head the poll. Mr. Herbert Birley, a Churchman, chairman of the late board, stands third; another Catholic fourth; six Churchmen follow; and five unsectarians have been returned, lowest on the poll, making fifteen in all. The six rejected candidates are two unsectarians, two Wesleyans and two Independents—viz., a Republican and a teetotaler.

THE KHIVA EXPEDITION: LIBERATED PERSIAN SLAVES SLAIN BY TURKOMANS.

"RESTORING THE SIGN." BY T. GREEN.

THE GRAND DUCHESS MARIA ALEXANDROVNA OF RUSSIA.

"ONE AT A TIME," BY E. KNAUS.

The Extra Supplement.

THE

GRAND DUCHESS MARIA ALEXANDROVNA.

This amiable Russian Imperial Princess, the destined bride of our Queen's second son, his Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh, will very soon make the acquaintance of the English people; and we have much pleasure in aiding the personal introduction by now presenting them with her engraved portrait. The Grand Duchess Maria was born Oct. 17, 1853, and is the only daughter of the present Czar Alexander II., who succeeded to the throne in February, 1855, and of the Empress Maria, who was married to him in 1841, and who is a daughter of Louis II., Grand Duke of Hesse-Darmstadt. The Imperial Princess of Russia has five brothers living, the eldest of whom is the Czarowitch, or Imperial Prince Alexander, married to Princess Dagmar of Denmark (Maria Feodorovna), a sister of our Princess of Wales. Our Portrait of her Imperial Highness is copied from the photograph by M. Bergamasco, of St. Petersburg.

"RESTORING THE SIGN."

There is a sly touch of satirical humour in Mr. Townley Green's drawing of a street scene in some old English country town or village in the early part of the last century. A reference to the history of political parties during the period when Jacobite intrigues were rife in combination with the unscrupulous rivalries of the Whig and Tory factions, under the reigns of Queen Anne and the first two Georges, might perhaps supply a choice of more than one concurrence of circumstances, giving a particular significance to the restoration of this ducal portrait on the signboard of an accustomed tavern. There were many ups and downs, and many ins and outs, in the public and personal fortunes of that age, for which we can hardly now find a parallel in the affairs of our own country at this day, but which are more than equalled, as we see, by the frequent and sudden revolutions of power in France. It is evident that, in the case before us, whatever has been the course of events, there is considerable difference of sentiment among the bystanders; and the gentleman in the laced coat, with his cocked hat and cane, has an opinion which is likely to disagree with that of the Puritan wig-maker at the door of the next house, who piously meditates on the mutability of earthly things.

"ONE AT A TIME."

The proverbial admonition "One at a time!" has received an exemplary illustration from the pencil of a German artist, whose work is copied in our Engraving. In the feeding of geese or turkeys, or barndoor fowl, or any other poultry, as well as in the feeding of pigs, one has frequent occasion to bid them mind their manners. Turkeys are the greediest of domestic birds, and have a prodigious capacity for gobbling as much as they can get. They and the geese should be sent out daily to pick up a large part of their needful nutriment in some field or common ground; but a good breakfast and supper are also due to them from the hands of such a careful mistress as we see in this picture. When fowls are kept in confinement, a mid-day meal should likewise be administered; and it is desirable on all these occasions, as well for the birds' own health and comfort as for the sake of the principle involved, that they should not be allowed to eat too rapaciously, but with a moderate restraint of appetite; so that none be stuffed and none be starved, but each consume a due portion, decently and in due order, "One at a time." The Engraving is drawn from a photograph of the picture, issued by the Berlin Photographic Company.

THE LONDON BOOK MARKET.

Mr. Murray, of Albemarle-street, gave his annual entertainment to the booksellers of London at the Albion, in Aldersgate-street, yesterday week, when about sixty gentlemen sat down to dinner.

During the evening specimen copies were shown of a work just ready for publication, on the Prince Consort's Memorial at Kensington, which was much admired, as well as Messrs. Nagayth and Carpenter's forthcoming work on The Moon, with original drawings made by the aid of powerful telescopes, and Mr. George's work on The Mosel, in a series of twenty exquisite etchings.

Orders were received for the following new works and other publications:—1500, Mr. Motley's Life and Death of John of Barneveld, with the Primary Causes of the Thirty Years' War—2 vols.; 500, Dr. William Smith's Ancient Atlas; 3000, the fourth volume of The Speaker's Commentary on the Bible; 500, Mr. Belt's narrative of his Rambles as a Naturalist in Central America; 600, Captain Duncan's second volume of his History of the Royal Artillery; 1400, Mrs. Somerville's Autobiography; 300, Mr. Ferguson's History of the Modern Styles of Architecture; 700, The Minor Works of Mr. Grote; 500, The Prize Essays on the Church of England as an Established Church; 400, Mr. Millington's work on The Ten Plagues of Egypt; 300, Mr. Parker's work on The Archaeology of Rome; 700, New Edition of Canon Robertson's History of the Christian Church—vol. 1; 400, Canon Tristram's Land of Moab; 500, Proverbs, or Words of Human Wisdom; 400, Memoir of William Ellis, the Missionary; 300, Mrs. Chisholm's Stories of Arctic Adventure and Discovery; 2000, Dr. Smith's Bible Dictionaries; 2500, Dr. Smith's Classical Dictionaries; 7500, Dr. Smith's Latin Dictionaries; 800, Mr. Darwin's work; 8000, Mrs. Markham's Histories; 6000, Mr. Smiles's Popular Biographies; 1000, Dean Stanley's works; 1100, Sir Charles Lyell's Geology; 12,500, Murray's Students' Manuals, a series of historical class books; 900, Professor Blunt's works; 1000, Lord Byron's Poetical Works; 1200, Grote's History of Greece; 1500, Dean Milman's Historical Works; 2000, Hallam's Historical Works; 11,000, Dr. Chaplain's Benedicite; 600, Kirke's Handbook of Physiology; 26,000, Dr. Smith's English, Greek, and Latin Courses; 12,000, Little Arthur's History of England; 1000, Murray's British Classics; 900, Newth's Natural Philosophy; 700, James's edition of Aesop's Fables; 12,000, Dr. William Smith's Smaller Histories for the Lower Forms.

A meeting of wholesale tea-dealers was held in Glasgow, last Saturday, at which resolutions were passed approving of the general scope and object of the Adulteration of Food Act, but protesting against its being put in force against those dealers who sell teas which, in accordance with trade practice, have been "faced" with innocuous materials to suit the public taste.

Ill winds appear to have blown good to the Yarmouth fishermen, whose hauls during the late rough weather were enormous, one week's catch amounting to a total of 32,000,000 herrings, all of excellent quality.—The catches made by the Lowestoft boats have been good this year. Last week it is computed that 18,000,000 herrings were landed at the port.

THE CHURCH.

PREFEMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Auchmuty, A. C., to be Vicar of Lucton, Herefordshire.
Ayre, Richmond Leigh; Vicar of Holy Trinity, Ulverston.
Brice, Edward; Curate of St. Thomas's, Dudley.
Brighton, J. G.; Rector of Kingston, Worcester.
Browne, B. G.; Secretary and Chaplain to the Bishop of Winchester.
Browne, F.; Vicar of Christ Church, Enfield, Middlesex.
Cautley, P. L.; Vicar of Cratfield, Suffolk.
Cholmondeley, Richard Hugh; Rector of Hodnet, Salop.
Colvin, J. W.; Perpetual Curate of St. Mark's, Lakenham, near Norwich.
Cordeaux, John; Rector of Hooton Roberts.
Cumberlege, S. F.; Rector of St. Paul's, Covent-garden.
Cuthbert, G.; Rector of Aberlasp, Montgomery.
Dumbleton, E. N.; Rector of St. James's, Exeter.
Edmonds, Walter John; Rector of Highbray, Devon.
Flamstead, A. R.; Vicar of St. George's, Gloucestershire.
Glencross, Ernest Henry; Vicar of St. Veep.
Griffith, Edward; Incumbent of St. Matthew's, Moorfields.
Hartley, Percival; Curate of St. Luke's, Birmingham.
Heyliger, Robert; Vicar of St. Barnabas, King's Square.
Hill, Rowley, Vicar of St. Michael's, Philico; Vicar of Sheffield.
Horsley, H.; Rector of Totterham, near Moreton-in-the-Marsh.
Hutt, Charles John; Incumbent of St. Silas's, Islington.
Irving, Robert; Sole Charge of St. Mary's, Wavertree.
Jenkins, David; Vicar of Tideford.
Mackey, Clement W.; Rector of Alveley, Bridgenorth.
Maddison, Canon; Rector of Richard's Castle, Herefordshire.
Maddox, Ralph Henry; Vicar of Shelley, Huddersfield.
Midwinter, A.; Assistant Chaplain of the Lock Hospital.
Monson, Thomas J.; Rural Dean of Pocklington.
Morris, John; Curate of Slesbech-cum-Minwre, Pembrokeshire.
Owen, Lewis W.; Chaplain to the Bishop of Winchester.
Parker, E. W.; Vicar of Montgomery.
Pix, G. B.; Rector of Caeby, Rural Dean of Aslackhoe.
Richings, Herbert A.; Minor Canon in Chester Cathedral.
Risley, John Holford; Rector of Nuffield, Henley-on-Thames.
Rooker, John; Director of the Missionaries' Children's Home.
Sanderson, John; Vicar of Hartley, Wintney.
Sayer, Arthur B.; Vicar of St. Katharine's, Filton-common.
Scott, Charles; Vicar of Chertsey.
Sheppard, B. H.; Rector of Leigh with Bransford, Worcester.
Skirne, Clamont; Incumbent of Emmanuel Church, Wimbledon.
Street, A. J.; Vicar of Whittlebury-cum-Silveston, Northamptonshire.
Thompson, W. O.; Vicar of Nampton-on-the-Hill, Warwick.
Watkins, W.; Perpetual Curate of Bridgetown, Totnes.
Weeks, S.; Vicar of St. Matthew's, Chadderton, Lancashire.
Wilson, Matthew Herbert; Vicar of Lynminster, Sussex.
Winthrop, Edward; Rector of Wolverdington, Warwick.
Wood, E. J.; Vicar of St. Peter's, Leeds.
Yates, E. T.; Rector of Burgh, near Aylsham, Norfolk.

A new church at Eaton, Norfolk, has been opened by the Bishop of Norwich.

The Bishop of Oxford has reopened the Church of St. Peter and St. Paul, Bradwell.

The seventh annual county meeting of the Yorkshire Church Association, which was continued two days, was held at Huddersfield last week.

Last week the parish church of Ditchingham, Norfolk, was reopened, after the addition of a north aisle and the removal of an unsightly west gallery.

The foundation-stone of the new Church of St. Nicolas, Manea, was laid on SS. Simon and Jude's Day, by Mrs. Whitting, the wife of one of the largest contributors.

A beautiful memorial window has been erected by the parishioners of Winkleigh, North Devon, to commemorate the restoration of the church by Mr. J. H. Pickard, of Godalming.

Lord Shaftesbury laid the foundation-stone of the Holy Trinity National Schools at Bournemouth, on Tuesday. He urged working men to support a system of education in which religion was the first consideration.

The Church Herald states that the Rev. Prebendary Clark, of Taunton, after duly considering the offer made by Mr. Gladstone of the vacant bishopric of Gibraltar, finds himself unable to accept it.

The subscriptions to a testimonial to the Bishop of Winchester, on his translation from the see of Ely, amount to more than £1000. A portion of this sum is to be expended on a presentation portrait and a piece of plate, and it is expected that the balance will be applied to a diocesan purpose.

The foundation-stone of a new church at St. Leonards-on-Sea was laid, last week, by Mr. Beresford-Hope, M.P., in the presence of a large congregation. The ceremony was preceded by services in the present church. It is intended to erect a very handsome building. The offertories amounted to over £800.

At a county meeting at Winchester, last week, it was resolved to erect a monument to the late Bishop Wilberforce in the cathedral. Any surplus funds will be devoted to the improvement of the edifice. A letter was read from the Earl of Carnarvon suggesting a canopied tomb with recumbent figure. A proposal to ask the opinion of Sir Gilbert Scott was ultimately agreed to.

The Archbishop of Canterbury arrived at Stonehouse, St. Peter's, Thanet, on Saturday last, after visiting the churches and schools in Tunbridge and Tunbridge-wells for three days. His Grace proposes to remain for four or five weeks resident in the eastern division of the diocese of Canterbury. The Archbishop was to consecrate the new church at Cliftonville, near Margate, on Thursday.

The foundation-stone of All Saints' Church, in the parish of Moss, near Doncaster, was laid, on the 1st inst., by Mrs. Bacon Frank, of Campsall Hall. The church is being built from designs of the late Mr. C. Buckridge, at the expense of Schole Birch, Esq., as a memorial church, and will cost between £2000 and £3000. The endowment is still to be provided. The sites for the church and parsonage have been given by Mr. Scholes Birch and the Rev. F. W. Peel.

A new parish church, dedicated to St. John the Evangelist, was consecrated at Reading, last week, by the Bishop of Oxford. Recently the districts of St. John's and St. Stephen's were formed into one parish, and the old Church of St. John was found to be too small and very ill adapted to the requirements of the district. It was therefore pulled down, and a new church erected in the French Gothic style of the thirteenth century. Although the interior is completed, a tower and spire 150 ft. high have yet to be erected. The building will seat nearly 1000, and, when completed, will have cost £5500.

The revisers of the authorised version of the New Testament met, on Tuesday, at the Jerusalem Chamber, and revised the translation of the twenty-fifth chapter of the Acts of the Apostles. The members present were the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol (in the chair), the Bishop of Salisbury, the Bishop of St. Andrew's, the Dean of Westminster, the Dean of Rochester, the Dean of Lincoln, the Master of the Temple, Archdeacon Bickersteth, Archdeacon Lee, Canon Kennedy, Canon Lightfoot, Canon Westcott, Professor Eadie, Professor Moulton, Professor Newth, Dr. Scrivener, Dr. Vance Smith, Mr. Humphry, and Mr. Hort.

Yesterday week the first stone of a new parish church was laid at Eltham by Sir Charles Mills, M.P. The new building is to be erected a little to the north of the present one, and it is intended to complete as soon as possible its nave, chancel, and north aisle, the nave being on the site of the north aisle of the present building, and the south aisle, hereafter to be built, on that of the existing nave. By means of this arrangement Divine service is enabled to be carried on without interruption in the old church while the building of the new one is being proceeded with. The sermon was preached by the Bishop of Rochester. The old church, which is 500 years old, and contains the remains of Bishop Horne, will be pulled down.

The Bishop of Winchester, on Tuesday, laid the foundation-stone of the Church of St. Mark, near Clapham Junction. It is designed to be a chapel of ease to the parish church of St. Mary, Battersea, and the Curate of the latter will undertake the duties. The new church will be Gothic in character, and built of brick, with stone facings. It is designed to hold 600 persons, and will cost upwards of £5000. In the morning his Lordship consecrated the Church of St. Saviour, Cedar-road, Clapham-common, which was built, in 1863, by the late Rector of Holy Trinity, Clapham, as a chapel of ease to the parish church and as a memorial to his wife. Owing to some difference, however, between the Rector and the late Bishop in respect to some of the adornments of the interior, the church was never consecrated, and was simply licensed.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

At Oxford, the Derby Memorial Scholarship has been conferred by the trustees on Mr. Alfred Goodwin, B.A., Fellow of Balliol College, whose University career has been a succession of honours and distinctions from Michaelmas term in 1869 to the present period.—The Macbride Scholarship at Magdalen Hall, of the value of £50 per annum, tenable for three years, has been awarded to E. G. Tylee, Meeke Scholar, of Magdalen Hall. Proxime accessit—A. F. Thornhill, from Merchant Taylors' School, has been elected to an exhibition.—F. W. G. Perry, Exhibitioner of Worcester, has obtained one of the Hody Exhibitions for Hebrew at Wadham; but the other has not been awarded.—The election to two fellowships at Merton has terminated in favour of Mr. J. W. Russell, Lecturer of Balliol, as Mathematical Fellow; and Mr. A. S. L. Macdonald, commoner, as Natural Science Fellow.—Mr. R. G. C. Mowbray, commoner of Balliol, and Mr. Henry Offley Wakeman, commoner of Christ Church, have been elected to fellowships at All Souls.—Mr. Henry J. S. Smith, Savilian Professor of Geometry, has been admitted a Professor Fellow of Corpus Christi. At the same time, the Rev. E. Palmer, Corpus Professor of Latin, and Sir Henry Maine, Corpus Professor of Jurisprudence, were placed upon the governing body of the college.—The following have been elected Hulmeian Exhibitioners at Brasenose:—C. E. E. Williams, scholar on the Somerset foundation; and H. S. Butler, Colquett Exhibitioner.

For the fifth time Dr. Cookson, Master of St. Peter's College, was last week elected to the Vice-Chancellorship of Cambridge. There was no opposition. Dr. Cookson first held this distinguished office in 1847.—In his valedictory retrospect of the academic year, on the previous day, the Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge University abandoned Latin in favour of the vernacular. Among the pending schemes for enlarging the usefulness of the University, he instanced one for examining public schools in conjunction with Oxford, and another for the establishment of science lectureships in industrial centres. A warm tribute was paid to the memory of Professor Sedgwick.—The Le Bas prize, given annually at Cambridge for the best English essay on a subject of general literature, to be occasionally chosen with reference to the history, institutions, and probable destinies and prospects of the Anglo-Indian Empire, has been adjudged to J. Langfield Ward, B.A., Pembroke. Mr. James Smith, B.A., has been elected a Fellow of St. Peter's; and Mr. Thomas Joseph Lawrence, B.A., LL.B., a resident Fellow of Downing.—The Rev. H. G. C. Moule, Fellow of Trinity, has been awarded the Seatonian prize for the fifth year in succession. The subject was "The Brazen Serpent."—The unmentioned have been elected Fellows of St. John's:—H. Cowie, B.A. (1872), bracketed fourth in the classical tripos; A. Garrod, B.A. (1872), Prosecutor of the Zoological Society; T. E. Page, B.A. (1873), second classic and bracketed as Chancellor's Classical Medallist, Davies University Scholar, and late Porson University Scholar. Mr. Page has during his undergraduate career carried off many classical prizes.—Mr. J. Smith, B.A., has been elected Fellow of St. Peter's. He graduated in 1872 as twenty-first Wrangler, and was also at the head of the moral sciences tripos.—Mr. J. T. Lawrence, B.A., has been elected a resident Fellow of Downing. He obtained the Senior Whewell Scholarship in International Law in 1868, and graduated as senior in the moral sciences tripos in 1871. In 1872 he was bracketed senior in the law and history tripos.—The Esquire-Bedellship has been conferred on Mr. Gross, Fellow of Caius, who polled 211 votes to Captain Leeson's, of Downing, 178. Mr. Gross is a Fellow and Librarian of Caius, and graduated as eighth Wrangler in 1866.—Mr. Alfred George Greenhill, M.A., Fellow of St. John's and late Professor of Applied Mathematics at the Indian Civil Engineering College, Cooper's-hill, has been elected to a fellowship at Emmanuel, and has also been appointed mathematical lecturer at the latter college. Mr. Greenhill graduated in 1870 as second Wrangler, and was declared equal as Smith's prizeman with Mr. Pendlebury, of St. John's, the senior Wrangler of that year.—The Maitland Prize, awarded every three years for the best English Essay on some subject connected with the propagation of the gospel through missionary exertions in India and other parts of the heathen world, to be written by a graduate of the University, has been adjudged to Herbert Courthorpe Bowen, B.A., Corpus Christi. The subject of the essay is "The Principle of Buddhism and of Christianity compared with Special Reference to the History of their Comparative Success."—Twenty-six freshmen have commenced residence this term as non-collegiate students. The whole number of these students now in residence is fifty-seven.—The entry for the local examinations held in December next is closed. The total number of candidates is 3550, being an increase of fifteen per cent on last year's numbers. The new centres are:—For boys, Dorchester, Mauritius, and Ramsgate; for girls, Islington, Jersey, Wolverhampton; for boys and girls, Dover, Hastings, and South Shields. These centres contribute 300 candidates. The number of boys entered is 2482, last year 2223; of girls, 1068, last year 847. The local examination syndicate recommend that the system of examination for women over eighteen years of age be extended to men.

The handsome prize of £100 lately placed at the disposal of the senators of the University of St. Andrew's by Dr. John Muir, Edinburgh, to be awarded to the competitor who showed the greatest proficiency in Hebrew scholarship and in the critical knowledge of Old Testament Scriptures, has, after examination, been divided between Mr. Henry G. Shepherd, Dundee, and Mr. Henry Stevens, Aberdeen. The competition was open to all Masters of Arts in the Scottish Universities of not more than six years' standing.

The session of the Edinburgh University was opened last week, when an address was delivered by Principal Sir Alexander Grant; Principal Caird delivered an address to the students at the opening of the session of Glasgow University; and the University of St. Andrew's was opened for the session by a lecture from Principal Shairp.

The Rev. Dr. Thornton has resigned the Wardenship of Trinity College, Glenalmond, Perthshire.

A memorial signed by forty-three out of forty-five assistant masters of Eton has been sent to the governing body protesting against the censure which has been passed upon the Head Master, and made public through the newspapers.

An influential deputation from the vestry of Harrow has had an interview with the governing body of the school to protest against the new statutes for amending the application of the funds. The deputation urged that the benefits of the foundation ought to be confined to Harrow, and they opposed strongly the throwing open of scholarships to competition.

Canon Liddon preached on Sunday, at King's College Chapel, on the completion of the alterations. Hundreds were unable to obtain admission. Canon Liddon preached with his usual eloquence and power, riveting the attention of the crowded congregation while he justified the use of the highest arts in God's service. The decorations have been carried out from designs by Sir Gilbert Scott.

Five House scholarships of £80 and five exhibitions of £50 will be awarded at Malvern College on Dec. 19.

DISASTERS.

There was an explosion of firedamp at Mr. Clayton's Gwersyllt Colliery, near Wrexham, last Saturday morning, and seven men were severely burned.

During the commemoration, on Nov. 5, of "Gunpowder treason and plot," some lads at Hanley fired a cannon, which, rebounding, struck a boy named John Williams, fracturing his thigh in two places. The sufferer died on Saturday.

At a fire in the Broadleywood Cotton-Mill, near Rochdale, last week, Samuel Tiffin, superintendent of the West of England Insurance Company's fire brigade, stationed at Whitworth, was killed by being thrown from the top story of a wall that fell in while he was standing upon it.

Another lamentable accident, through carelessness in leaving a loaded gun within reach of children, has occurred at Biston, in the Black Country. A little boy, having got hold of a fowling-piece in the house of his brother, was playing with it when it went off; and, though the charge was only peas instead of shot, an infant was so sadly mutilated that it died shortly afterwards.

There have been several railway accidents lately, and a few lives have been lost. A passenger-train, in crossing the river Severn, had a miraculous escape from total destruction. As it approached the bridge the crank axle of the locomotive broke, throwing it partly off the rails. On making this discovery the driver shut off steam and leaped from the engine. Contrary to expectation, the train got safely across the bridge, though it tore up the rails all along.

The ship Nagpore, from Calcutta to Liverpool, put into Kingstown harbour on Sunday night on fire. There being a heavy gale at the time, she ran into several vessels and inflicted much damage before she could be brought to anchor. She first fouled a schooner deeply laden, and after a fearful crash the vessel gave a few heavy lurches and sank, the crew escaping by jumping into the bowsprit rigging of the Nagpore, which continued her course till she came into collision with the schooner Pilot, and in a few moments reduced her to a wreck. The Nagpore then struck the Echo, Captain Ellis, who was thrown overboard and drowned. The vessel, when cast loose, went rapidly to leeward, and in a few moments was broken to atoms. The body of Captain Ellis has been washed ashore. Three sailors are missing.

Warnings of a renewal of the storm of the 7th were issued from the Meteorological Office, and on Sunday a strong gale blew along the east coast of England, causing several disasters to shipping. The Beatitude, from London to Boston (Lincolnshire), with a cargo of maize, was wrecked off the Skerries, and all hands were lost. The Herbert Ingram life-boat, belonging to the Life-Boat Society, put off from Skegness, Lincolnshire, during a storm on Monday morning to render assistance to two foreign vessels which were in distress off this place. The life-boat fortunately succeeded in putting men on board both the ships, which were afterwards taken safely into harbour. One was the barque Die Schwalbe, of Rostock, bound from Christmestad to Alicante. She was assisted from her dangerous position into Clayhole. The other was the brig Françoise Marie, of Caen, on a voyage from Christiania to Dieppe, which vessel, in a damaged state, was taken to Grimsby. This valuable life-boat, which has often done good service in saving life, is named after the late Mr. Herbert Ingram, M.P. for Boston, the boat having been presented to the institution a few years since by some of his friends.

About three o'clock in the morning yesterday week Mr. Axworthy, a cabinetmaker at Stonehouse, near Plymouth, discovered that his house—the upper rooms of which were occupied by himself, his wife, and his six children—was on fire. There being no fire-escape in the town, the only possible means of rescue was by the window of the lower room, and the staircase was already on fire. Axworthy dragged his half-suffocated wife and five of his children through the smoke and flames to this outlet, where the neighbours received them and bore them from the burning house. But Axworthy's youngest child, a boy three years of age, still remained above, and the flames had by this time made such progress that the staircase seemed impassable. Hearing the cries of his child, however, Axworthy made three desperate attempts to pass through the fiery furnace, and thrice he was driven back, only desisting when the fire had so far invaded the lower rooms that he had to leap from the window to save his own life. Ladders were brought, but it was too late; the house was now a mass of flame, and the little boy was burned to death. Two of the survivors so heroically saved are in a dangerous state.

The Flying Fish, a gun-boat of the composite class, was successfully launched from Chatham Dockyard last Saturday.

Mr. Mundella, M.P., in laying the foundation-stone of a new set of unsectarian schools at Lenton, a populous suburb of Nottingham, on Saturday, said England, with all its wealth and grand advantages, was, in respect of education, the worst Protestant country in the world. He had recently made a tour in Switzerland, where it was difficult to find a child at twelve that could not read and write and go through arithmetic with perfect facility. With regard to the financial conditions of the country, he said he would not affirm we were secure against any change in our commercial prosperity; but he believed we had much more hopeful times before us if only we made use of our advantages.

LAW AND POLICE.

The forthcoming winter circuits have been settled by the learned Judges as follow, viz.:—First Division (Mr. Justice Keating)—Stafford, Worcester, Somerset, Hants. Second Division (Mr. Justice Archibald)—Glamorgan, Gloucester, Chester, Leeds. Third Division (Mr. Baron Pigott)—Essex, Kent, Surrey, Sussex, Warwick. Fourth Division (Mr. Justice Honeyman)—Newcastle, Durham, Bucks. Fifth Division (Mr. Justice Quain and Mr. Baron Pollock)—Manchester, Liverpool.

On Wednesday, being the morrow of St. Martin, the Lords of her Majesty's Privy Council met in the Court of Exchequer, Westminster Hall, to nominate the Sheriffs of England and Wales for the ensuing year. The list, as finally settled, will be submitted to her Majesty, and in January next the appointment of one of the three names selected for each county will be made at a meeting of the Privy Council to be convened for that purpose.

Last year the fees on patents to the Attorney-General were £5538. By the new appointment of Mr. H. James the fees will be abolished, and both Attorney-General and Solicitor-General will be paid by salary—one £7000 and the other £6000, with certain fees.

The Master of the Rolls has made orders for winding up the following undertakings:—The Metropolitan Consumers' Co-operative Association, the Braganza Gold-Mining Company, the Co-operative Supply Association, the Traders' Co-operative Association, and the Western of Canada Oil, Lands, and Works Company.

In the Court of Bankruptcy, on Tuesday, it was announced that Messrs. Donald Nicoll and Co., the debtors, who carried on an extensive business as clothiers, in Paternoster-row, have filed a petition for liquidation, alleging their debts at £71,000, and assets £40,000, in addition to some private property which will be brought into the estate. An application was made for an injunction against one or two of the suing creditors, and to appoint a receiver and manager. The necessary affidavits having been produced, the application to restrain was granted.

The Court of Queen's Bench has enlarged the rule made in the early part of this year providing for the trial of the Tichborne Claimant. It originally ran to the present Michaelmas Term, and has now been extended to November, 1874.

In the Court of Queen's Bench, yesterday week, an application was made for a rule nisi with a view to a new trial in an action for breach of promise of marriage, tried at the last Lancashire Assizes, in which a verdict for the plaintiff had been returned, damages £1750. The defendant possessed property to the amount of £6000, and since the breach of his promise to the plaintiff had married another lady. The Court refused to interfere with the verdict.

A civil suit is proceeding against the unfortunate Joint-Stock Bank of Jersey. Five creditors, impatient to discover the real state of the bank, brought an action against the liquidators for money deposited. Their defence was that they hoped to pay a dividend of 10s. in the course of a few weeks. Having elicited this soothing information, the plaintiffs consented to an adjournment, with a view to private arrangement.

Eight persons have been on trial at the Middlesex Sessions for complicity in an extensive system of robbery practised on the London and North-Western Railway Company. Several of them are carmen, lately in the company's service, and the others were charged as receivers. The indictments resulted in convictions, sentence being deferred.

John Jones, Scripture reader, was fined by the magistrates at Torquay, on Monday, in the sum of £4, for neglecting to have his four children vaccinated.

Several persons were fined in small sums at Lambeth, on Saturday, for not sending their children to school. Mr. Ellison called attention to the growing evil of parents saying that their children were beyond their control, and thus having them sent to the industrial schools at the expense of the ratepayers.

Benoni le Blanc, or Leblanc, a Frenchman, living at 89, Bervick-street, was charged at Marlborough-street, on Monday, with forging and fabricating the trade mark of Messrs. Moët and Chandon, the champagne producers. Evidence was given of the labelling by the prisoner of large numbers of champagne bottles with labels bearing the names of the prosecutors, and prisoner was remanded.

A charge was heard before the Marylebone police magistrate, on Monday, against a man who refused his name, address, and occupation, of throwing snuff in the eyes of a pawnbroker's assistant, in the Edgware-road, and running off with three diamond rings of the aggregate value of a hundred pounds. The prisoner was remanded.

Two factory girls have been convicted at the Thames Police Court of assaulting and intimidating two of their fellow-workers who had refused to go on strike. Each of them was sentenced to a month's imprisonment, with hard labour.

At Westminster, two persons, named Stanley and Havens, described respectively as a gentleman and an architect, were charged with causing a disturbance at the Victoria railway station, and assaulting Mr. Owen, a member of the Stock Exchange, and a youth named Knight in the company's service. The disorderly conduct of the accused, who were observed to be in a state of semi-intoxication, had caused something like a riot at the station; and in the case of Stanley the magistrate inflicted a sentence of fourteen days' hard labour in addition to a fine. The other prisoner was fined £5, and ordered to find sureties for his better behaviour.

At Southwark, on Tuesday, Mr. Edwin Tapbell, a stock-broker's managing clerk, residing at East Croydon, was summoned for travelling on the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway without having previously paid his fare and with intent to avoid payment. The prosecuting solicitor stated that the defendant had been for some time a season-ticket holder. His last ticket expired on July 24 last; and, although he had received notice from the office, he had not renewed it. For the defence it was stated that the defendant was a member of the Stock Exchange, and managing clerk to Mr. Fox, a stock-broker, of Austinfriars. For some time past he had been much harassed, owing to severe illness in his family and over-working in the office. The result was that he forgot to renew his ticket. Mr. Fox gave the defendant the best of characters for integrity and attention to business, and had no doubt that it was a case of forgetfulness. Mr. Woolrych doubted that, and fined the defendant forty shillings and costs.

Charles Stuart Monro, describing himself as a colliery owner and coal merchant, of 37, Pancras-road, N., and Alfred Ford, his clerk, were brought before Mr. Partridge, at Southwark, yesterday week, on warrants for final examination, charged with selling for best Wallend (at 32s. per ton) a quantity of slate and rubbish. Inspector Fox, M division, said that 37, Pancras-road, was a small house that had formerly been a greengrocer's. In the window were a few lumps of coal of fair quality. The prisoner had no wharf or premises containing coal. He had neither horses nor vans. He purchased the most inferior coal from merchants, and hired a greengrocer's van or other vehicle to send the orders. Mr. Partridge had no doubt that an extensive system of fraud had been committed, and it was shameful that coal merchants should supply such people with rubbish they could not sell themselves. He fined Monro £10 and £5 5s. costs, and Ford £3 and 2s. costs.—A coal-dealer at Colney Hatch, named Lefeber, was fined by the Highgate magistrates, on Monday, £3 and £1 1s. costs, for having in his possession an unjust weighing machine and a light weight. Another coal-dealer was fined, at the same court, £2 14s. for a like offence.

Two cases under the Adulteration of Food Act were before the magistrate at Marylebone yesterday week. Obed Tilbury, milk-seller, of 15, Manning-street, Lisson-grove, was fined 30s. and costs for mixing water with his milk to the amount of 10 per cent; and John Jones, grocer, of 13, James-street, Oxford-street, was ordered to pay the costs of summonses for selling a quarter of a pound of coffee mixed with chicory, and two ounces of mustard adulterated with turmeric and flour.—A Sussex farmer was charged at Bow-street, on Saturday, with having sold adulterated milk. He had entered into a contract with a London company to supply them with a specified quantity of "new, sweet, marketable cow's milk." In consequence, however, of complaints from the company's customers, the milk received from the defendant was analysed, and was found to contain from 25 to 30 per cent of water. A penalty of £10, with £5 costs, was imposed.—At Westminster Frederick Cassell, of 27, Lower George-street, Chelsea, was on Monday summoned by the vestry of St. Luke's, Chelsea, for selling adulterated milk under the pretence that it was genuine. It contained 20 per cent of water. The magistrate said the defendant must pay a fine of £2 and £1 1s. costs. It was understood the defendant intended to appeal against the decision.—The first prosecution at Nottingham under the Adulteration Act of last Session took place on Tuesday, when James Harris was summoned before the Mayor and sitting magistrates on the charge of selling milk adulterated with water. The Town Clerk, who prosecuted, said the samples of milk which had been obtained from the various dealers in the town for the purpose of analysis had, on the whole, been found tolerably pure. The certificate of the borough analyst in reference to the sample obtained from the defendant showed, however, that it contained 10 per cent of water, allowing for its originally being of poor quality, and 20 per cent if it were originally good milk. Evidence in support of the case was given, and the defendant was fined 40s., including costs.—Mr. M'Kim was charged, on Wednesday, at the Glasgow Police Court, with having sold green tea adulterated with Prussian blue, turmeric, and French chalk. As it was the first case of the kind, a fine of 10s. 6d. only was imposed.

An unhappy maniac named Wilson, who is reputed to have been, when in a sane condition of mind, a most affectionate and indulgent father, is in custody on the terrible charge of murdering one of his sons, a lad of ten. Having dealt the child seven cuts on the head with an axe, he prostrated himself on the body, and was moaning piteously over it when he was pulled away. Dr. Lankester held an inquest on the body of the poor boy. The mother gave evidence of the assault, and a verdict of "Wilful murder" was returned by the jury.

A murder for the sole purpose of gain, as it appears, has been committed in Limerick. During the absence of a tradesman from his house, the female servant left in charge was killed, and property in money and valuables was carried off. A woman recently discharged from service in the house has been arrested, and some of the stolen property found concealed in her hair and about her clothing, which is bloodstained.

MR. IRVING AS RICHELIEU.

The assumption by Mr. Henry Irving of the character of Richelieu, in Lord Lytton's tragedy, has become a feature in the theatrical history of the period. His portrait of the old Cardinal-Statesman is marked by many distinguishing and peculiar touches, which give it sufficient individuality, and, indeed, make it worthier of consideration as a work of art. It is marked rather, however, by intellectual power than physical energy; and where the latter is required a strain on the system is perceptible which substitutes natural incapacity for simulated weakness, and so far interferes with the spectator's enjoyment. The scene (act ii. scene 2) selected by our Artist for his Illustration is that wherein the Cardinal tries his ancient battle-sword, that proves too large and heavy for the old man, and makes manifest to him the infirmity of age, which for the moment, being excited, he had forgotten. The business and action of the scene are very interesting, but require judicious handling. Mr. Irving is studiously picturesque, and his action scarcely suffers anything by comparison with that of Mr. Macready. Altogether, the treatment of the incident is highly creditable, we think, both to the actor and the artist.

CHARING-CROSS THEATRE.

At this theatre, on Wednesday, a new play, in three acts—by far the best of all the pieces that Mr. Nation may at any time have placed on the boards—was produced with deserved success. It is entitled "Our Pet," and is a genuine comedy of fair average merit. Its dialogue is frequently good, and many a fair hit is made at social manners and events of the day; but its story is rather commonplace, and somewhat improbable. The characters are distinctly drawn, and not unskillfully coloured. The first act is devoted to the Pet's birthday—that of Amy Raye (Miss Louisa Carlyle), the daughter of Franklin Raye (Mr. C. West). The young lady is affianced to one Arthur Chaloner, an artist (Mr. H. C. Chippendale). But a cloud hangs over the festivities in the shape of a scheming individual, Godfrey Eames (Mr. T. H. Allen), who knows too much of the secrets of Raye's life, and, notwithstanding that he has "fallen into the vale of years," aspires to the hand of Amy. In the second act he has succeeded in promoting the ruin of Raye; and, to deliver her father from his difficulties, Amy, in the absence of her lover, consents to be his wife. In the third act we find that the marriage has been delayed in consequence of Amy's illness, and it is even reported that Chaloner is dead. He returns, however, to claim his bride. Eames, of course, objects; but a wildish kind of youth, Willie Burton (Miss Caroline Parkes), contrives to bring in a member of Scotland-yard, who has business with Eames just in the nick of time, and who carries off the schemer on the charge of murder. The acting of the play in all the parts was thoroughly respectable. The author is Mr. Conway Edwards, to whom we have been indebted already for two or three creditable dramas.

The Civil Service Commissioners have given notice that an open competitive examination for the appointment of assistant schoolmaster in her Majesty's Dockyard at Sheerness will be held in London on Monday, Dec. 15, and following days.

THE DISASTROUS FIREWORKS EXPLOSION.

Our town news of last week mentioned this shocking accident, on the Tuesday morning, at the house in Broad-street, Lambeth, occupied by Mr. Fenwick, a manufacturer of fireworks, who was then busy in preparing his perilous wares for the popular entertainment of the Wednesday evening—that of Guy Fawkes' Day. The wreck of the house No. 51, Broad-street, is shown in our Engraving. It was a six-roomed building, a few doors from the old Lambeth Workhouse, and near the South-Western Railway arch. This house, together with the adjoining tenement, is held on lease by Mr. Sanderson. He sublet No. 51 to Mr. Fenwick, who occupied the two parlours; the first floor was tenanted by Mr. Lewis, his wife, and two children; and the top attic and kitchen by Mr. Wood, his wife and three children, and his mother. Fenwick, unknown to his neighbours, carried on his business of a firework-maker in the house. The explosion blew out the front parlour window, hurled Fenwick's lifeless body through the opening, cracked the walls, blew up the ceiling, killed Mrs. Fenwick, and set fire to the house. The neighbours rushed from their dwellings to the spot. Fenwick's body lay in the roadway, entirely naked. Through the opening in the front the dead body of Mrs. Fenwick could be seen, lying against the wall. The house was on fire, the flames rising high above the roof. At the windows of the second floor Mrs. Wood, with her two grandchildren, were seen shrieking for help. Below them, at the first-floor window, were Mrs. Lewis and her two children crying for assistance. Nothing could at the moment be done for them. The people in the street called loudly to them to jump out of the windows into the outstretched arms of many a willing and ready bystander. They seemed afraid to approach too near the window, because of the smoke and flames. In the next instant the whole interior of the house seemed to give way, and fell in. The fire-engines came, and quickly subdued the flames; but the remains of eight human bodies were found in the ruins of the house. These were Ralph Fenwick, aged 44; Jessie Fenwick, 32; Drusilla Lewis, 48, and her two children—Alice, aged 9, and Sarah, aged 3; Phillis Wood, 72, and her two grandchildren—Anne Wood, 5, and Alfred Wood, 24. Those saved were the fathers of the children—Lewis, a lighterman, and Wood, a slater, who were out at their work; also the wife and youngest child of Lewis; these were sitting in the kitchen, and had just time to get out of the window into the back yard. The fire-brigade men discovered some firework cases, the remains of a small 10 lb. keg of gunpowder, the bottom of another keg upon which were the exploded remnants of "fizzing powder," a composition of sulphur, charcoal, and steel filings; a press for making rockets; tubes, and funnels for filling the cases, and a charred piece of wood to which were fastened nine movable figures, evidently representing the Oxford or Cambridge eight with their coxswain. It is thought by some that Fenwick was at work making fireworks when, by over-compression or by a spark from the fire flying into the powder, the explosion happened; and that his clothes were burnt or torn off his body, as does sometimes happen, by the fiery blast. Another opinion is that Fenwick and his wife were blown out of bed by the explosion. An inquest has been held by the district coroner. The law prohibiting this dangerous manufacture in common dwelling houses should be more strictly enforced.

"With this I, at Rochelle, did hand to hand engage the stalworth Englishers."

SCENE FROM "RICHELIEU," AT THE LYCEUM THEATRE.

THE DUCAL LINE OF STEAM-SHIPS.

The new steam-ship Duke of Devonshire was built at Barrow-in-Furness, and was launched some time ago in the presence of his Grace the Duke, of Sir James Ramsden, High Sheriff of the county, and a distinguished company. She was the first large ocean steamer built in the very extensive and convenient yard of the Barrow Ship-building Company, who have since launched a sister steamer, the Duke of Buccleugh, to be followed very shortly by the Duke of Lancaster, and others. The Duke of Devonshire is 3012 tons register, with engines of 400-horse power, nominal;

she is classed A 1 twenty years in the Liverpool book, and forms one of Messrs. Carlyle Brothers and Co.'s "ducal line" of steamers from London to Calcutta direct, by the Suez Canal. She has been designed and built especially for this trade; and it is satisfactory to know that the pioneer boat of the line, the Duke of Argyll, now on her second voyage, has proved herself eminently satisfactory, and is one of the finest vessels in the Eastern trade. These steamers carry first-class passengers only. The cabins are placed amidships, where there is the least possible motion. They have spacious saloons, and large, well-ventilated berths, with baths, ice-house, and every convenience for a tropical voyage. They are dispatched from London by Messrs. M'Diarmid, Greenfield, and Co., of East India-avenue, Leadenhall-street, and from Calcutta by Messrs. Cox, Steel, and Co.

SCENE OF THE FIREWORK EXPLOSION IN LAMBETH.

THE SASSOON INSTITUTE, BOMBAY.

THE SASSOON INSTITUTE, BOMBAY.

The Corporation of the city of London, as we have stated, last week paid a high compliment to Sir Albert Sassoon, the wealthy and liberal Jewish merchant of Bombay. His late father, the revered David Sassoon, who died in 1864, had set him a good example of munificent charity and public spirit. This ancient and noble family of the true Israelite race, which was removed from Bagdad to Bombay in the preceding generation, has spread its great commercial activity and influence across the vast breadth of Asia to all the chief mercantile centres of India, China, and Japan. Among the frequent money gifts of the late David Sassoon to his fellow-townsmen of Bombay was one of 60,000 rupees towards a new building for the Mechanics' Institute. When he died, there was a public subscription for a personal memorial of him, which amounted to 30,000 or 40,000 rupees. Of this sum 20,000 rupees were granted to the building fund of the Institute, and 12,000 rupees for a statue of David Sassoon to be placed in the new building. The share of the public subscription being added to the donation of Mr. David Sassoon, the committee of the Mechanics' Institute decided that the building should bear the name of its princely founder. A site on the Esplanade was granted by the Bombay Government, and on Feb. 21, 1867, the foundation-stone was laid by Sir Bartle Frere, then Governor of Bombay. The estimate for the building amounted to 145,000 rupees; but it was completed for 10,000 rupees less, and the Bombay Government again came forward and supplied the balance, with the proviso that the work should be carried out under the superintendence of the Government engineers. This was done in a most satisfactory manner by Colonel Fuller, R.E., Architectural Executive Engineer, P.W.D. The building was formally opened, three years ago, by Governor Sir Seymour Fitzgerald. It consists principally of two large halls, beautifully decorated, one on the ground floor and one on the first floor, the former of which is used as a museum and the latter as a reading-room. The other small rooms necessary in such an institution branch off from these halls, and the reading-room opens out into a fine arcaded verandah 62 ft. by 13 ft., which is a comfortable place for reading during the close evenings of the hot season. In the vestibule of the staircase leading to the first floor is placed the statue of David Sassoon, in white marble, a fine specimen of Mr. Woolner's art. It represents the venerable Israelite, in his Oriental costume, standing, with his hands extended, in an attitude of prayer. The likeness is said to be perfect and the benevolent expression of countenance is very pleasing. Above the porch, also, has been placed an alto-relievo bust of David Sassoon, by Mr. Kipling, of the Bombay School of Art, which is as happily conceived as, and hardly inferior in execution to, the beautiful statue by Woolner.

THE STEAM-SHIP DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE, BUILT AT BARROW-IN-FURNESS.

WORK AND WAGES.

The Cornish tin-smelters last week reduced the standards for tin ores 4s. per ton all round.

The Motherwell miners' strike has been settled by the men accepting a compromise offered by the employer.

A great demonstration of Durham miners took place last Saturday, in Chester-le-Street, to protest against the Criminal Law Amendment Act, the Masters and Servants Act, and the Contagious Diseases Act. Speeches were delivered by Mr. Crawford, Mr. J. Foreman, and others.

The Duke of St. Albans, in a speech on Saturday last to the Nottingham Chamber of Agriculture, advocated the building of better cottages for labourers, but could not understand why the farmers should be under any moral obligation on this matter not at the same time incumbent upon manufacturers. The Duke expressed a hope that they would soon see more tenant-farmers in the House of Commons.

The annual dinner of the Isle of Thanet Agricultural Association was held at Ramsgate, on Tuesday evening, and was presided over by Earl Mountcharles, who, in presenting the prizes to the successful competitors, remarked that he looked upon an association of that kind as being the best possible means of keeping up that good feeling which should always exist between labourers and farmers.

Two thousand miners, withdrawn from work at the Colsett Iron Company's collieries, in consequence of a determination that a discharged blacksmith, named Brown, shall be reinstated, whether the employers desire his services or not, have so far prevailed as that the matter in dispute shall be referred to the Coal Office in Newcastle; and, while the question remains undecided, the men consent to resume labour.

The annual fair for the hiring of servants in husbandry was held at Doncaster on Wednesday. There was a much larger attendance of servants than usual, which probably might be accounted for by the fineness of the weather, as many servants—women, more especially—now come only for pleasure, and get hired through the register offices. Still, there was a very large business doing in the fair, and many of the principal farmers in the neighbourhood were hirers in this public labour market.

Both the Midland and Lancashire and Yorkshire engine-drivers are agitating for an advance of 3s. per week. At a meeting of railway servants held in Edinburgh, last Saturday, a proposal was made on the part of the employees to have a bill introduced into Parliament for the purpose of restricting the hours of labour of railway servants to ten per day. Mr. McLaren, M.P., and Mr. J. Miller, M.P., who were present by invitation, promised to give such a measure their support, and expressed their conviction that a large number of accidents were caused by the overwork and exhaustion from which railway officials in many cases suffered.

The prospects of the iron trade for the coming winter are dull in the extreme. The Cyfarthfa Ironworks have been stopped to a large extent during the last fortnight, and they will probably remain stationary for a considerable period. The loss which the workmen would, under ordinary circumstances, sustain has been obviated by the announced intention of Mr. Crawshaw to continue to pay them the ordinary rate of wages. In North Wales the colliers are seeking an advance of 25 per cent on the present wage rate. The demand for iron in South Staffordshire is decreasing, and there is ground to fear that the dearthness of coal will cause the present dullness to continue.

MADAME SAINTON-DOLBY'S VOCAL ACADEMY.—The first term in 1874 will commence on MONDAY, JAN. 19. Candidates for admission can be received by Madame Sainton-Dolby, at her residence, 71, Gloucester-place, Hyde Park, W., on every Tuesday afternoon, between the hours of Three and Four o'clock. Prospectuses may be obtained of Mr. George Dolby, 32, New Bond street; and of Messrs. Chappell, 50, New Bond street, W.

AUTOTYPE GRAND FINE-ART GALLERY.—ON VIEW, AUTOTYPE FACSIMILES of the Oxford Drawings, Louvre Pictures, and Ancient and Modern Masters. Christian subjects. 36, Rathbone place (next to Winsor and Newton's).

AGRICULTURAL PUPILS. A Gentleman who, after farming in Scotland and Yorkshire, has passed through the course at the Agricultural College, Cirencester, has taken an Estate in Devonshire, and is open to ENGAGE with several PUPILS, who would live in the house with him, on this and the adjoining estates, comprising nearly 5000 acres, and to which the pupils would have access. Stock-breeding, deep and shallow draining, brick and tile making, stone quarrying, building, road-making, tree planting, and artificial manure making are being carried on in the most approved manner. The parish church is on the estate. Highest London references given and required. Terms, £100 per annum, inclusive, payable half-yearly in advance. Address "H.E." care of Messrs. Drake and Sons, Solicitors, 3, Clock-lane, Cannon-street, E.C.

TO SELL JEWELLERY, Watches, Plate, and other Valuables.—DEBENHAM, STORR, and SON'S Great Auction Mart, King-street, Covent-garden, W.C. Goods received daily. Sales three or four days in each week.

TO SELL SILKS, Apparel, Woollen Drapery, Furniture, Glass, and Miscellaneous.—DEBENHAM, STORR, and SON'S Great Auction Mart, King-street, Covent-garden, W.C. Goods received daily. Sales four or five days in each week.

DISEASES OF WOMEN Specially Treated at the SURGICAL HOME, BOLTON HOUSE, Clapham-road, Surrey, conducted as a Private Hospital, and ensuring to Patients Medical supervision and Appliances such as cannot be secured at their own residences. Physician, David Jones, M.D. Consultations Daily at town residence, 15, Welbeck-street, Cavendish-square, from eleven till one, or by letter inclosing fee.

A LADY, HAVING A RECIPE of a most simple nature, that will at once safely remove SUPERFLUOUS HAIR, preventing their reappearance, will have pleasure in forwarding it upon application to MRS. BLACKNE L, Vero Wood Villa, Thornton-ham, Surrey.

DRESS PAPER PATTERNS for the WINTER. Price—List, 1 stamp.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

A COMPANION VOLUME TO "HOW TO DRESS ON 415 A YEAR AS A LADY."

BEAUTY: What It is and How to Retain It. By a LADY. Price One Shilling, boards; post-free 14 stamps.—FALCONER, WARRER and Co., Bedford-street, Strand.

THE MONEY MARKET. Price One Shilling, boards; or post-free 14 stamps.
THE MONEY MARKET: What it is, What it Does, and How it is Managed. Rewritten to present date by a CITY MAN. FREDERICK WARRER and Co., Bedford-street, Strand.

Now ready, in 2 vols. 8vo, 30s.
MY RECOLLECTIONS, FROM 1806 TO 1873. By Lord WILLIAM PITT LENNIX. HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Cheap Edition, Illustrated by Sandbourne, 5s.
SAM SLICK'S AMERICANS AT HOME, forming the New Volume of "Hunt and Blackett's Standard Library."

MISS BRADDON'S NEW NOVEL. New Novel, by the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret," &c. In 3 vols., at all Libraries.

LUCIUS DAVOREN.

New Edition, with Map, price 5s.
ASHANTER: A MISSION FROM CAPE COAST CASTLE TO ASHANTER, with a Description of the Country and an Account of the People. By the late F. EDWARD BOWDICH, Esq., with Preface by his Daughter, GEORGINA and FARRAN, St. Paul's churchyard.

Just published, post 8vo, price 7s. 6d.
JOAN OF ARC AND THE TIMES OF CHARLES VII., King of France. By Mrs. BRAY, Author of "The Good St. Louis," "Life of St. Edward," &c. GUTHRIE and FARRAN, St. Paul's churchyard.

PLEASANT PAGES FOR YOUNG PEOPLE. By S. PROUT NEWCOMBE. Containing a Series of Moral Tales, Natural History Lessons, Object Lessons, Music, &c. In Six Volumes. 21s. (Vol. 1, 3s. 6d.). London: HODGKINS and SONS, 7, Paternoster-square.

NEW BOOKS.

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY AND MEMOIR OF THOMAS GUTHRIE, D.D. Edited by his Son, Rev. DAVID K. GUTHRIE and CHARLES J. GUTHRIE, M.A. 2 vols. post 8vo. Immediately.

THE HUGUENOTS IN FRANCE, AFTER THE REVOCATION OF THE EDICT OF NANTES, with a Visit to the Country of the Vaudois. By SAMUEL SMILES, Author of "Self-Help," &c. Crown 8vo, 10s. 6d.

NATIONAL EDUCATION IN GREECE IN THE FOURTH CENTURY BEFORE CHRIST. By AUGUSTUS S. WILKINS, M.A., Professor of Latin in the Owens College, Manchester. Crown 8vo, 5s.

PET, or, Pastimes and Penalties. By the Rev. H. R. HAWKES, M.A., Author of "Muses and Mounds." With 50 Illustrations by M. E. HAWKES. Crown 8vo, cloth gilt extra, 5s.

LADY BELL: A Story of Last Century. By SARAH TYLER, Author of "Cecily Jane Jacqueline," &c. 3 vols., post 8vo.

LIVING VOICES. Selections chiefly from Recent Poetry. With a Preface by the ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. Small 8vo, cloth extra, 4s. 6d.

OUT AND ALL ABOUT: Fables for Old and Young. By H. A. PAGE, Author of "Golden Lives." With 50 Illustrations. Crown 8vo, cloth gilt extra, 5s.

LAUTERDALE: A Story of Two Generations. 3 vols., post 8vo.

By Author of "Schönberg-Cotta Family,"
AGAINST THE STREAM: A Story of an Heroic Age in England. 3 vols., post 8vo.

THE PRECINCTS OF PAMPHILON. By Mrs. PARK, Author of "Dorothy Fox." 3 vols., post 8vo. For Schools and Libraries in Art.

THE OLD MASTERS AND THEIR PICTURES. By SARAH TYLER, Author of "Papers for Thoughtful Girls." Crown 8vo, 4s. 6d.

W. LEBSTER and Co., 56, Ludgate-hill, London.

THE SUNDAY MAGAZINE. Sixpence, Monthly.

PATHS OF PEACE, THE CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF THE SUNDAY MAGAZINE, will be published with the December Magazine. Beautifully Illustrated, price Sixpence.—W. LEBSTER and Co., 56, Ludgate-hill, London.

GOOD WORDS. Sixpence, Monthly.

GOOD CHEER. The Christmas Number of GOOD WORDS will be ready with the December Magazine. Price Sixpence, beautifully illustrated.

Robert Holt's Illusion. Marie Hackett. A Wife's Revenge. W. LEBSTER and Co., 56, Ludgate-hill, London.

COULON'S HANDBOOK OF DANCING. The new Edition of this celebrated Treatise is now ready, and is by far the most complete Work on the subject, containing 170 pages of Letterpress and upwards of thirty Woodcuts and Diagrams. Price 1s. A. HARMON and Co., 5, Vigo-street, W.

Third Edition, price 6s. in cloth.
ON INFANCY AND CHILDHOOD: embracing the whole subject of Maternal Management from Birth, with Hints to Young Mothers for the Management of themselves as well as their Offspring, &c.

By T. J. GRAHAM, M.D., Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh. "The author displays, as in his previous works, much judgment." Medical Chronicle and Lectures in Art.

"Broad principles and rules, the adoption of which by parents will materially conduce to the health and happiness of their children in after years."—Witness.

Also (by the same Author), in one thick volume, the Fourth Edition, price 10s.
MODERN DOMESTIC MEDICINE. Forming a comprehensive Medical Guide for the Clergy, Families, and Emigrants.

"Far exceeding every publication of its class."—British Standard, February, 1869.

Published by SIMPKIN, MARSHALL, and Co., Stationers' Court. Sold by all Booksellers.

HOMOEOPATHIC WORKS. DISEASES OF INFANTS AND CHILDREN. By post, 1s. 1d. DISEASES OF WOMEN. By post, secured, 1s. 1d. FAMILY INSTRUCTOR (Epitome of). By post, 1s. 2d. DISEASES OF DOGS. By post, 1s. 1d.

JAMES ERLE and Co., 43, Threadneedle-street; and 170, Piccadilly.

Price 6s., free by post.
THE WOMAN'S GUIDE: Showing the Causes, Symptoms, and Homoeopathic Treatment of the Diseases of Females and Children. By R. S. GUTTERIDGE, M.D. LEATH and Sons, 5, St. Paul's churchyard; and 9, Vere-st., Oxford-st.

Twenty-second Edition, 8vo, cloth, price 10s., post-free.
HOMOEOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE. By J. LAURIE, M.D. The most comprehensive guide for private families, Clergymen, and Emigrants, devoid of all technicalities. No medicines are prescribed without full directions for their selection and the doses to be administered, whether in the form of globules, pills, or tinctures.

A complete CHEST, comprising all the Medicines prescribed in the above Work, in the form of globules, price 5s.; in pills or tinctures, price 6s.; Cases containing a selection of the Medicines in most common use, from 15s. See Prospectus, sent free.

An EPITOME of the above, price 5s., a guide to those wishing to converse this system in family practice. 128th Edition. A complete Chest, containing all the Medicines for this Work, in the form of globules, price 30s.; in pills or tinctures, price 42s. LEATH and Sons, 5, St. Paul's churchyard; and 9, Vere-st., Oxford-st.

CORPULENCY AND ITS NEW DIETARY GUIDE. By A. W. MOORE, M.B.C.S. "The originator of the system."—Lancet. Price, post, 2s. 7d. VERNAN and Co., 30, Finsbury-road, E.C.

PAMPHLET, 4 stamps, on the Use of the Portable Turkish Bath for Curing Gout, Rheumatism, Indigestion, &c. Apparatus, complete, 42s.—Sole Agent, T. HAWKLEY, 4, Blenheim-street, Bond-street, London.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

NEW and POPULAR NOVELS.

Now ready, at Every Library.
NANCY. By Miss EDOUARD. 3 vols., crown 8vo.
THE MASTER OF GREYLANDS. By Mrs. BERNY WOOD. 3 vols., crown 8vo.

THE WOODING OF. By Mrs. ALEXANDER. In 3 vols., crown 8vo.
TOM BULKELEY OF LISSINGTON. By Mr. JEFFERSON. In 3 vols., crown 8vo.

RICHARD BENTLEY and Sons, New Burlington-street.

NEW WORKS PUBLISHED by J. BARNARD and SON, Manufacturing Artists' Colourmen, Printers, and Finishers.—London: 36, Oxford-street, W., and at all Artistic Reproductionists throughout the Kingdom.

VITREMANIE.—The new Art of DECORATING WINDOWS, containing Full Instructions and Plates of all the Designs. Two vols., 10s. 6d. Any one desirous of beautifying their houses should read this work.

A MANUAL OF PAINTING ON GLASS FOR THE MAGIC LANTERN. By P. GARNIER. Post-free, 1s. 2d. Contains all the requisite information for the use of Oil, Oxydation, or Oxyhydrogen Lanthorns.

HINTS ON ILLUMINATING, with an Essay on the Art of Ornamenting Gold on Metals, the method of beautifully producing the Gold and Illuminating of the Metallic Ages. By H. M. LUCIEN. Post-free, 1s. 2d.

DECORATIVE ART, as applied to the Ornamentation of Churches, Schools, &c.; with Original Designs and Practical Instructions. By W. R. HARRISON. Post-free, 1s. 2d.

"Useful to all who desire to decorate their rooms for festivals."

CHROMO PRINTED PICTURES (on the use of the MAGIC LANTERN. By S. T. PIKE. With full directions for making slides at a small cost. Post-free, 7d.

"A truly useful work for clergy and schoolmasters."

VITREMANIE.—Windows decorated in the beautiful Arts by experienced Workmen, for Churches and Public Buildings. Plans and Estimates free at the Inventors' J. BARNARD and SON, London, 36, Oxford-street, W.

NEW WORK ON POINT-LACE MAKING. Price 2s. 6d.; per post, 2s. 9d.

FLOWERS IN POINT LACE. With Coloured Illustrations and Designs by E. SCOTT. London: W. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road.

Now ready,
THE ILLUSTRATED PENNY ALMANAC for 1874.

containing Twelve Engravings of the Castles of All Nations, from the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS; Tables of Stamps, Taxes, and Licences; Fisheries, Remarkable Events, Postage Regulations, &c.; a great variety of useful and interesting information. The Trade supplied by G. VICKERS, Angel-court (172), Strand and H. Williams, Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row, London.

MARIE STUART and DONCASTER, 10s. each, with Jockey, beautifully coloured, 36 by 24. The First Issue now ready. Also, the Penny Wren. G.D. KILBY, 41, Russell-street, Covent-garden.

SCRAPS FOR SCREENS, SCRAP-BOOKS, &c.—Flowers, Figures, Landscapes, Animals, &c., in great variety, from 1s. per sheet; or one dozen assorted, 10s. 6d. London: W. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road.

WHITE WOOD ARTICLES for PAINTING, FEEN-PRINTING, and DECALCOMANIE. Hand-screens, Book-Covers, Boxes, &c. Priced Lists on application. W. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS. At HENRY RODRIGUES, 41, Piccadilly, London.

Drawing Bags, 4s. to 650.
Lining Cases, 21s. to 650.
Jewel Cases, 21s. to 650.
Jewel Boxes, 10s. 6d. to 650.
Handkerchief Boxes, 10s. to 650.
Flower Vases, 21s. to 650.
Card Trays, 21s. to 650.

Writing Table Sets, of new and elegant designs, 11s. 6d. to 650.
Rodrigues's long-jawed silver-plated Travelling Dressing Bags.
Rodrigues's long-jawed Ladies' Dressing Cases, silver-plated.
And a Large and Choice Assortment of English, French, and Italian Novelties, suitable for Presents, from 6s. to 650.

POURTRAIT ALBUMS, at RODRIGUES'S, the new make, with Patent Leather Guards, Four Portraits on a Page, interleaved for Vignettes and Cabinet Portraits, from 10s. 6d. to 650. Presentation and Regimental Albums—42, Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES'S MONOGRAMS, CRESTS, and ADDRESSES designed, and Steel Dies engraved as usual. Note-Paper and Envelopes stamped in colour relief and brilliantly illuminated in gold, silver, and colours—42, Piccadilly, London, W.

VISITING-CARDS, at H. RODRIGUES'S, A Card-plate elegantly engraved and 100 superfine cards printed for 4s. 6d. Ball Programmes and Bills of Fare arranged and printed in the latest fashion—42, Piccadilly, W.

ALL PROGRAMMES at RODRIGUES'S. Ball Programmes of novel and beautiful designs, arranged, printed, and stamped in the latest fashion. Bills of Fare, Guest-books, and Invitations in great variety—42, Piccadilly, London.

BALL-ROOM PROGRAMME FAN (Registered, Highly Perfumed. The London Lace Paper Company have just published the above. No Ball-Room complete without it. Price 6d. each; per post 7d.—J. T. WOOD and CO., 278, 279, and 280, Strand; Manufacturer, Clare-court, W.C.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's Inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d., or stamps. Arms Painted and Quartered and Engraved on Steel Dies, &c.—FUCH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, London, W.C.

LINCOLN'S INN HERALDIC OFFICE. PRESENTATION ADDRESSES, Corporate Seals and Presses, Book-Plates, &c.; Hatchments; Sheriff's Seals and Trumpet Banners.—FUCH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, W.C.

MACMICHAEL'S NOVELTIES in RAISED RUSTIC MONOGRAMS and Ladies' Christian Names. Five quires of thick Note and 100 thick Envelopes stamped in four rich colours, with any Christian name, or Monogram of one, two, or three initials in raised rustic letters, for 5s. Specimens free. Macmichael, Stationer to the Queen, 207, King's-road, S.W.; and 42, South Audley-street, W.

PHOTOGRAPHY.—Anyone can take good Photographs with DUBRONI'S Patent Apparatus. No previous knowledge required. No dark room wanted. Complete and portable apparatus from 62. Book of instruction, four stamps per post.—LECHERTIER, BARBE, and CO., 60, Regent-st., London.

DON CARLOS STAMPS, issued by Don Carlos, with his Portrait, 2s. 6d. each. Priced Catalogue of Stamps, 2d. each. The Lincoln Stamp Album, 1s. 6d., post-free. W. LINCOLN, 228, High Holborn, London.

OROIDE GOLD (the perfect Substitute for 18-Carat Gold). Registered—Spiral Rope Long Chains, best finish, 15s.; Brazilian Alberts Dittos, 7s. 6d.; Dog Whistles to attach, 2s. 4d. 6d. Post-free.—C. C. ROWE, 58, All Saints-road, London, W.

BENSON'S WATCHES and CLOCKS. These far-famed Watches suit all pockets, all tastes, all climates, and the means and occupations of everyone. Two hundred thousand have already been sold, and are in all parts of the world, ranging in price from 2s. to 200s. See Illustrated Watch and Jewellery Pamphlet, post-free, 2d. each, for prices, &c. Watches sent safe by post to all parts of the world.—Old Bond-street and Ludgate-hill.

OROIDE (Holt's, Registered).—Alberts, 6s. 6d.; Shirt Studs, 2s.; Pencils, 3s. 6d.; Scarf Pins, 2s. 6d.; Scarf Rings, 2s. 6d.; Whistles, 2s. 6d.; Cluster Rings, 7s. 6d.; Snake Rings, 2s. 6d.; Lin. 2s.; Brooch, 4s. Illustrated list free.—W. HOLT, 136, All Saints-road, Westbourne Park, London, W.

NEW MUSIC.

MUSICAL PRESENTS for the NEW YEAR.—HILL has much for Amateurs, students, and others. Bound, at greatly reduced prices.

Published only by ROBERT COCKS and Co.

THE LADIES' GUIDE to the most POPULAR MUSIC of the day (Vocal and Instrumental), fully selected from some thousands of works issued by the London publishers. Gratis and post-free.

London: Published only by ROBERT COCKS and Co.

LET THE HILLS RESOUND. Arranged with a preface by the Composer. The public having accorded to THE HILLS RESOUND, it will be frequently repeated at the Royal Concerts, with Military Band and Orchestra at the Crystal Palace, &c. &c. The Vocal Quartet, 4s.; Song, 2s.; Piano Arrangement, 4s.; Duets, 4s.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

HAMILTON'S MODERN INSTRUCTIONS for the PIANO-FORTE. 12th Edition. 4s. 6d. per volume. It is much improved by anything of the kind, and is the best of the kind. It is a most useful and interesting treatise. "The perfect pianist."—The Standard. "A gem in the piano literature."—The Illustrated London News. Appendix in Duets. 4s. 6d. Post-free for post-payers.

London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

THE GARDEN PARTY QUADRILLE. 1st Edition. 4s. The same as Piano-forte Duets, 4s. 6d. The same as Piano-forte Duets, 4s. 6d. The same as Piano-forte Duets, 4s. 6d.

THE MOBILE QUADRILLE. For the Piano-forte. Composed by WILLIAM MALLWOOD. Illustrated Titles, 4s. The same as Piano-forte Duets, 4s. Post-free at half price in stamps.

London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

I BUILT A BRIDGE OF FANCIES. Song, by the Composer of "Fading Away," &c. A melody with much grace and feeling.—Vice Court Circular. "A charming melody."—Liverpool Journal. 4s. As a Piano-forte Solo, by Edw. 4s. Post-free at half price, in stamps.

London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

NEW VOCAL DUETS.—The following contraltos are now ready as Duets, for soprano and alto, by Feet. M. Lindway, 4s. Tired. M. Lindway, 4s.

Too Late. M. Lindway, 4s. Fair Away. M. Lindway, 4s. A Rose in Eden. Abt. Happy be Thy Dream. Abt. the Hills of Light. Abt. Post-free for 24 stamps each.

London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co.

ROBIN. New Song. Words and Music by the Composer of "Fading Away," &c. "I built a Bridge of Fancies." 4s.; post-free for 15 stamps. "Easy, pretty, and catching."—Wide News of the World.—London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street. Order of sale.

GEO. F. WEST'S APPENDIX to HAMILTON'S MODERN INSTRUCTIONS for the PIANO-FORTE. 12th Edition, consisting of Preludes, Exercises, and Studies, 4s. 6d. per volume. 2s. 6d. post-free at half price.

FRANZ ABT'S APPENDIX to HAMILTON'S MODERN INSTRUCTIONS for the PIANO-FORTE. 12th Edition, consisting of Preludes, Exercises, and Studies, 4s. 6d. per volume. 2s. 6d. post-free at half price.

London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co.

POPULAR SONGS by W. C. LEVEY. The Merry Song, sung by The Merry Month of May. 4s. The King and the Beggar-Maid. 4s. The Merry Month of May. 4s. The King and the Beggar-Maid. 4s.

Half price.—DUFF and STREAW, 147, Oxford-street.

ABSENCE AND RETURN. FRANZ ABT'S New Song. "One of Franz Abt's latest and most taking compositions."—The Graphic, Oct. 25. Sent for 2s. DUFF and STREAW, 147, Oxford-street.

I LOVE MY LOVE. By CIRO PINSETTI. "Signor Pinsetti has produced nothing happier than this fresh, brilliant song before us. It is tuneful without being commonplace, and is adapted in masterly fashion."—Queen. Sent for 2s.—DUFF and STREAW, 147, Oxford-street.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S BEST NEW SONGS. Would You be a Sailor's Wife? O, Willie, boy, come home. 4s. The Merry Month of May. 4s. The King and the Beggar-Maid. 4s.

Half price.—DUFF and STREAW, 147, Oxford-street.

THE ANGEL AT THE WINDOW. By BERTOLD TOURS. This much-admired new song may be sung in B flat, for soprano or tenor; also in G, for contralto. Sent for 2s.—DUFF and STREAW, 147, Oxford-street.

WHEN THE BAINRINS ARE ASLEEP. New Song. By LEO BAKER. "This is more than dancing; it is a highly meritorious composition, and will be a pleasure wherever it is heard."—Queen, July 27. Sent for 2s. DUFF and STREAW, 147, Oxford-street.

ALFRED SCOTT GATTY'S Comic Songs. Canonic Tea. 4s. Never lose your head. 4s. He mustn't do this. 4s. A Peculiar Song. 4s. 1st price, free.—E. C. BOUSBY, 2, Little Angel-lane, W.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIANO PIECES. He wore a wreath of roses. Sweet Home. On the valley. Rockella. Mount Blanc. Notaro.

Each post-free 15 stamps.

LONDON: J. WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, W.; and 121, Chancery-lane.

THE BOY AND THE BROOK. New Song. By J. L. HATTON; the Words by Longfellow. "One of J. L. Hatton's best compositions, and most becoming popular."—Queen. Sent for 2s. DUFF and STREAW, 147, Oxford-street.

MAPLE and CO.

BRASS and IRON BEDSTEADS.—Five Thousand to select from. From 12s. to 30s. Handmade Brass Bedsteads, 5s. Bedding of every description manufactured on the premises, and all warranted.

FURNITURE.—MAPLE & CO.—Families who study economy with durability and elegance should visit this establishment before giving their orders. A Ten-roomed House furnished complete in twenty-four hours. An illustrated Catalogue post-free.—145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road, London.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE.—100 Suites, of various designs, to select from, from 10s. for Suite complete in 10 rooms, including Siberian Ash, Satin Wood, Hungarian A. B. Oak, from 15s.—MAPLE and CO., 145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road.

BED-ROOM SUITES in SOLID ASH, from 30s. to 50s. Bed-Room Suites in Black and Gold, very choice and handsome style, from 40s. to 80s. The largest assortment of Bed-Room Furniture in London to select from.

BED-ROOM SUITES in WHITE ENAMEL and Gold, very elegant and choice in design, from 40s. to 100s. Bed-Room Suites in Solid Ash, Medival, real inlaid, very handsome, 50s. to 100s.—MAPLE and CO., Tottenham-court-road.

BED-ROOM SUITES in Solid Ash, real ebony mouldings, very handsome, from 60s. All Bedding is made on the premises, and warranted pure. Catalogue free. MAPLE and CO.

THE BEAUFORT BED-ROOM TOILET WARE, the greatest novelty of the day, new in shape and design; elegant, colours very choice. The Ware is manufactured expressly for Messrs. Maple and Co., price from 15s. 6d. to 5s. 6d. The Trade supplied.—MAPLE and CO., Tottenham-court-road.

BEDSTEADS. MAPLE and CO.

BEDSTEADS. MAPLE and CO.

BEDSTEADS. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO. For BEDSTEADS in Wood, Iron, and Brass, fitted with Furniture and Bedding complete. Suites for Bed-Rooms, fitted with each. See Illustrated Catalogue. MAPLE and CO., 145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road; 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, Tottenham-place, London.

FURNISHING EXHIBITION.—Visitors to London should INSPECT the EXTENSIVE DISPLAY of DECORATIVE ARTICLES of every description for the complete furnishing of a House of any class, with a view to artistic taste combined with utility. The goods are arranged in departments, and visitors are conducted through the spacious Show Rooms and Galleries without the slightest interruption to purchase. Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality. OETZMANN and CO., 67, 68, 71, and 73, Hanover-street (near Tottenham-court-road and Great-street station). Established 1848. A detailed Catalogue, the best furnishing guide extant, post-free. The Establishment is visible from Tottenham-court-road.

ESTIMATES for HOUSE FURNISHING. OETZMANN and CO.'s System for Estimating the Cost of completely furnishing a House of any class with every requisite supercedes any other method. See "A Guide to House Furnishing," sent post-free on application. All goods are very carefully packed free of charge. This system will be found the most advantageous to the purchaser.—OETZMANN and CO.

AUSTRIAN BENT WOOD FURNITURE. The wood being bent by a patent process avoids the constant recurrence of joints; the grain of the wood remaining intact throughout the curve combines lightness and elegance of form with great strength and durability. OETZMANN and CO.—Illustrated Price-List post-free.

OETZMANN and CO.'S BED-ROOM SUITES in PINE. Polished, Enamelled, and Inlaid. Imitations of grey ash, satin, walnut, and other woods, from 10s. Also in Spanish mahogany, walnut, birch, &c. Long Show-Rooms for the above, with Bedsteads and Bedding fitted up complete, always on view.

LOGGINGS.—EXTRA BED. A Strong Iron FOLDING BEDSTEAD, 6 ft. long by 2 ft. 6 in. wide, with a wool mattress, bolster, and pillow, complete for 21s. Mattress, 2s. 6d.; bolster, 2s. 6d.; pillow, 2s. 6d. Also a portable package. Also, to suit the above, 3 white calico sheets, 1 ditto bolster-case, 1 pillow-case, 3 white flannel blankets, and counterpane, for 25s. 6d. the set.—Address order to OETZMANN and CO.

GREAT SALE of CARPETS. OETZMANN and CO. beg respectfully to solicit an inspection of their present immense Stock of Carpets, and to draw attention to the fact that the probability of the several advances which have taken place in cost of Carpets, purchased largely beforehand, O. and Co. are therefore in a position to offer the same considerably below market value. The Stock consists of HANDSOME TURKEY CARPETS, RICH VELVET PILE CARPETS, BEST BRUSSELS CARPETS, STOUT KIDDERMINSTER CARPETS, SUPERIOR ROK DYE, The Persian Figure, elegant ALL-WOOL DUTCH CARPETS, IMPERIAL TWILL CARPETS, and every kind of Carpeting manufactured; also an immense Stock of to match the above various low prices. SEVERAL THOUSAND HEARTH-RUGS will also be cleared out at a great reduction, the Best Axminster Hearth-rugs, listed page 98 in our Catalogue at 21s., will be sold out at 15s. 6d. per pair; other descriptions listed at 15s. 9d. are reduced to 12s. 6d.; the 12s. 9d. to 10s. 6d.; the 10s. 9d. to 8s. 11d.; and other goods in this department are reduced in proportion. An early visit of inspection respectfully solicited.

BLANKETS, FLANNELS, and COUNTERPANES.—Clearing out, at considerable reduction, stout heavy Blankets, coloured wool, 4s. 6d. per pair; good white ditto, 7s. 6d. per pair; heavy ditto, superior quality, best white wool, 2s. 6d. per pair; 2 yards, weight 7 lb., 11s. 8d. per pair; stout Welsh Flannel at 1s. per yard. A large stock of Counterpanes, Sheetings, Tablecloths, Calicoes, Damasks, Reps, &c., at reduced prices. Persons purchasing for charities, public institutions, hotels, or large establishments should write for OETZMANN and CO.'s Reduced Price List.

VIENNA EXHIBITION PATTERN COAL VASES. much admired, handsomely japanned, and rich burnished gold ornamentation, with opal handles and improved hand scoop, strong long lasting, a great convenience and saving in war. price, complete, 21s.; also the "Portland" Coal Vase, excellent in quality, price 10s. 6d., forwarded, carefully packed, upon receipt of order.—OETZMANN and CO.

CHINA and GLASS DEPARTMENT. Superior cut-glass Tumblers, 3s. 9d. per dozen; Wine, 2s. 6d.; 1st 1/2-cut Decanters, 7s. 6d. per pair; Lustres, Vases (the 5s. pair of Vases are a marvel of cheapness and elegance), Marble and Gilt Ormolu Clocks, Bronze, Statuettes, the Parian Figures; elegant Cases of Stuffed Birds, Wax Flowers under glass shades, handsome China Flower Pots, Jardinières, &c.; China Tea Services, from 5s. 9d.; elegant ditto, 10s. 9d.; Ironstone China Dinner Services, in great variety of patterns, from 17s. 6d. upwards; Dessert Services from 11s. 9d. The 12s. 9d. to 10s. 6d., the 10s. 9d. to 8s. 11d.; for best Worcester China. Handsome Toilet Sets, ewer, basin, &c., 6s. 11d. per set; superb ditto, 10s. 6d.—OETZMANN and CO., 67, 68, 71, 73, Hanover-street, three minutes' walk from Tottenham-court-road and Great-street Station, Metropolitan Railway. All Goods sent carefully packed. A detailed Catalogue post-free on application. OETZMANN and CO.

LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO., 71 to 75, Brompton-road, COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHERS (Established 1810). Deliver all Country Orders Free, regardless of distance.

LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO.'S NEW ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, with 600 Designs, forwarded gratis, on application.—71 to 75, Brompton-road, London.

EASY - CHAIRS, COUCHES, SOFAS

Upwards of 300 different patterns on show. Catalogues post-free.—FILMER and SON, Upholsterers and Decorators, 31 and 32, Berners-street, W.

GAS CHANDELIERS and GASFITTINGS. The mansion or cottage fitted throughout. Estimates free. 1. Two-Light Gaseliers, bronze or ornamental, 18s., 24s., 27s., 35s. 2. Three-Light Gaseliers, new patterns, 40s., 52s., 64s., 115s. 3. Five-Light Gaseliers, rich and elegant, 60s., 68s., 79s., 81s. 4. Globe Hall Lights, from 10s. 6d.; with sliding dish, from 50s. 5. Gas Cooking Stoves for families, from 27s. 6d. to 214. 6. Gas-Heating Stoves, requiring no fire, 20s., 24s., 29s., 55s. 7. Gas Hot-Water Bath, complete; cheap, 62s.; improved, 214 5s. DEANE and CO.'S complete Illustrated Catalogue free by post. Deane and Co., 46, King William-street, London Bridge, E.C.

GASIELERS, in Crystal, Glass, Ormolu, or Bronze, Medival Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures. D. BULFITT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn.

SLACKS' SILVER ELECTRO-PLATE is equal in appearance and wear to Sterling Silver.

	Fiddle Pattern.	Strong Fluted.	Thread Pattern.	Fancy Pattern.
12 Table Forks ..	1 0 0	1 10 0	1 10 0	2 10 0
12 Dessert Forks ..	1 0 0	1 10 0	1 10 0	2 10 0
12 Table Spoons ..	1 10 0	1 10 0	1 10 0	2 10 0
12 Dessert Spoons ..	1 0 0	1 10 0	1 10 0	2 10 0
12 Tea Spoons ..	0 10 0	0 10 0	0 10 0	1 10 0
12 Salt Spoons ..	0 10 0	0 10 0	0 10 0	1 10 0
1 Mustard ditto ..	0 10 0	0 10 0	0 10 0	0 10 0
1 Egg ditto ..	0 10 0	0 10 0	0 10 0	0 10 0
1 Gravy Spoon ..	0 10 0	0 10 0	0 10 0	0 10 0
1 Soup Ladle ..	0 10 0	0 10 0	0 10 0	0 10 0
1 Fish Knife ..	0 10 0	0 10 0	0 10 0	0 10 0
1 Butter Knife ..	0 10 0	0 10 0	0 10 0	0 10 0

Crust Frames, 12s. 6d. to 70s.; Tea and Coffee Services, 70s. to 300s.; Corner Dishes, 28 1/2s. the set of Four; Cake Baskets, 28s. to 50s.; and every article for the table, suitable for Wedding or other Presents; and as durable as Silver. Catalogue free. Richard and John Slack, 336, Strand, London, W.

GOOD FLOOR-CLOTH. Good Materials, Choice Designs. TRELOAR and SONS, 69, Ludgate-hill.

NOTICE.—VIENNA EXHIBITION. TWO FIRST-PRIZE MEDALS HAVE BEEN AWARDED THE LITTLE WANDER SEWING-MACHINE, for its superiority over all others. Vide "London Gazette," Aug. 26, 1873. Complete, 24 1/2s. Price lists and all information free. Chief Offices: 4, Grosvenor Place, London, W. Branch Office: 75, East-street, Brighton.

WEIR'S 55s. SEWING-MACHINE, Improved and Patented (Prize Medal), Works by Hand or Foot. Five years' guarantee. Free trial allowed. Weir's old pattern 55s. Machine is now sold as "The Guide" Family Sewing-Machine, Reduced Price, 30s. complete. Illustrated Price-List and Nine Samples free. Jas. G. Weir, 2, Carlisle-street, St. John's, London.

DON'T BEAT YOUR CARPETS; have them thoroughly cleaned and colours revived. Price 1d. &c., per yard. Bed and Mattress Purifiers. METROPOLITAN STEAM BLEACHING and DYEING COMPANY, 472, New Oxford-street; and 17, Whit-street, City-road.

SILK DRESSES.—5s. 6d. and 6s. 6d. are now our only prices for DYING or CLEANING any size or quality. METROPOLITAN STEAM BLEACHING and DYEING COMPANY.

FADED CURTAINS DYED equal to new, in a few days, at a moderate charge. Price-List sent METROPOLITAN STEAM BLEACHING and DYEING COMPANY, 17, Whit-street, City-road; and 472, New Oxford-street.

DUTCH FLOWER ROOTS.—DANIELS BROU. 40s. CASE contains 60 Hyacinths, choice named and mixed; 400 Crocus, in four colours; 48 Tulips, double and single; 96 Anemones, choice double and single; 48 Ranunculi, 16 Jonquils, 16 double white, 250 Narcissus, 20 Snowdrops, 24 Iris, 24 Polyanthus Narcissus, 16 Scillas, 16 Lilies. Half the above quantity, 21s.; quarter ditto, 11s. 6d., with full cultural directions. Case and package included, and carriage-free on receipt of P.O.O. Daniels Bros., Seed and Bulb Merchants, Exchange-street, Norwich.

TAMAR INDIEN.—A Laxative, Refreshing, and Medicated Fruit Liqueur—the immediate Relief and specific Cure of Constipation, Headache, Bile, Hemorrhoids, &c. Tamar (unlike pills and the usual purgatives) is agreeable to take, and never produces irritation. 2s. 6d. per box; postage, 2d. extra. R. GRILLON, 34, Coleman-street, E.C.

FURROWS in the SKIN, Indentations and Flabbiness of Flesh, quickly removed by ALEX. ROSS'S SKIN TONIC, which makes all faces young in look. 3s. 6d. Sent for stamps.—Alex. Ross, 248, High Holborn, London.

ALEX. ROSS'S GREAT HAIR-RESTORER.—Grey Hair becomes its Original Colour by using this wonderful Restorer. Large Bottles, 3s. 6d.; sent for Post Office order. The best possible.—Alex. Ross, 248, High Holborn, London.

HAIR DYE.—BACHELOR'S INSTANTANEOUS COLUMBIAN. New York Original Formula, the best in the world, black or brown. The only one that removes the evil effects of bad dyes, 4s. 6d., 7s., and 14s., of all Perfumers and Chemists.—Wholesale, HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 93 and 95, City-road, E.C.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR RESTORED by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. Price 10s. 6d. Testimonials post-free.—HOVENDEN, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ROBARE'S AURIFOLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Warranted to last. Price 10s. 6d., 15s., 20s., and 30s., of all Perfumers. Wholesale, HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 93 and 95, City-road, E.C. London; Planaud and Meyer, 37, Boulevard de Strasbourg, Paris; 31, Graten, Vienna; 44, Rue des Longs Champs, Brussels; Caswell, Hazard, and Co., Fifth Avenue, Broadway, New York.

DOES YOUR HAIR TURN GREY? Then use HERRING'S PATENT MAGNETIC BRUSHES and COMBS. Brushes, 10s. and 15s. each. Combs, 2s. 6d., 3s., 7s., 10s., 15s., and 20s. each. Pamphlets upon application.—Great Marlborough-street, W.; 93 and 95, City-road, E.C.; and of all Perfumers.

LADIES' ORNAMENTAL HAIR. LUNWILL and ALBERT, Court Hairdressers, 24, Piccadilly, and 6, Belgrave Mansions, Piccadilly, invite an inspection of their Ladies' Perukes and Coverings for Thin Partings, perfect copies of nature.

COILS of LONG HAIR and SPANISH COMBS, with Curl falling on the Neck.—UNWIN and ALBERT supply the Coils, 28s. long, for 21s.; Combs, 5s.; Curis, 10s. 6d., on receipt of P.O. order. 24, Piccadilly; and 6, Belgrave Mansions, S.W.

DUCHESSE MARIE COIFFURE.—The advantages of this Head-dress are—the hair can be arranged by a Lady, hitherto an impossibility, and there is no style to which it cannot be adapted. Description sent.—UNWIN and ALBERT, Hairdressers, 24, Piccadilly; and 6, Belgrave Mansions, Piccadilly.

ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL preserves, strengthens, and beautifies the human Hair. 3s. 6d. per bottle, and 10s. 6d. family bottles, equal to four small ROWLANDS' KALYDOR coils and refreshes the face and skin, 4s. 6d. per bottle. ROWLANDS' ODONTO whitens and preserves the Teeth, 2s. 9d. per box. Of all Chemists and Perfumers.

POWELL'S RHEUMATIC EMBROCATION for Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Sciatica, Sprains, Chilblains, &c.—The extraordinary curative power of this Preparation is attested by H.R.H. the Duke of Anjou, the late Earl of Clarendon, K.G., and many other eminent persons. Price 1s. 11d. and 2s. 9d., of all Chemists. Depot, 266, High Holborn, London.

GOUT and RHEUMATISM.—The excruciating pain of Gout or Rheumatism is quickly relieved and cured in a few days by that celebrated Medicine, BLAIR'S GOUT and RHEUMATIC FILLS. They require no restraint of diet or confinement during their use, and are certain to prevent the disease attacking any vital part. Sold by all Medicine Vendors, at 1s. 11d. and 2s. 9d. per Box.

KEATING'S COUGH LOZENGES are daily recommended for Coughs, Colds, Asthma, &c., by the Faculty. Testimonials from the most eminent may be seen. Sold in Boxes, 1s. 11d., and 2s. 9d., and by all Druggists.—N.B. They contain no opium or preparation thereof.

VELVETEENS, Black, Coloured, and Black, (striped)—Our Patent Moken Lyons Silk Striped, and (501 Brevet) small Colours, from 1s. 6d. per yard. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS! Plain, Striped, and Fancy Silks, Evening, Wedding, and Dinner Silks, 25s. 6d. to 50s. Patterns free. BAKER and CRISP.

BLACK SILKS! BLACK SILKS! BAKER and CRISP'S BLACK SILKS are all of the richest, widest, and most durable makes, 1s. 9d. to 10s. 6d. yard. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

JAPANESE SILK. JAPANESE SILK, at BAKER and CRISP'S. 18s. 6d. to 25s. 6d. Full Dress. Japanese Silk in every Colour. } 18s. 6d. to 25s. 6d. Japanese Silk in every Pattern. } 25s. 6d. Patterns free.

JAPANESE SILKS, for Evening, Wedding, and Dinner Wear. 18s. 6d. to 25s. 6d. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

GRENADINES, for Evening, Dinner, or Weddings, from 6s. 9d. to 50s. Full Dress. Algerian Grenadines, with Silk Stripes, 6s. 9d. to 50s. French Grenadines, with Silk Stripes, 6s. 9d. to 50s. Chamberlain Grenadines, with Silk Stripes, 6s. 9d. to 50s. Washing Grenadines (Evening wear), 6s. 9d. to 21s. BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

EVENING DRESSES, 6s. 9d.—BAKER and CRISP. Thousands of yards of Evening Dress Fabrics, from 6s. 9d. Full Dress. Patterns free. Baker and Crisp, Regent-street.

BLACK SILK LYONS VELVETS of Extraordinary Quality. 100 Pieces Now Selling, 6s. 9d. to 10s. 6d. per yard. Patterns Free. BAKER and CRISP, Regent-street.

300 PIECES FRENCH MERINO, 1s. 6d. to 2s. 6d. per Yard, in every conceivable colour. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

DRESS FABRICS.—BAKER and CRISP'S New Dress Fabrics for the season in all the new shades of Navy Blue and other Colours. 1000 Patterns sent free, from 1s. yard.

BAKER and CRISP'S DRESS FABRICS New Single, Double, and Treble Silk Reps, &c. Serges, Diagonal Cloths, Satin Cloths. The largest and best assortment in the kingdom at the lowest prices. 1000 Patterns sent free, from 10s. 6d. Full Dress.—198, Regent-street.

MARVELS of CHEAPNESS.—GLOVES and FANCY GOODS.—Roman Scarfs, 3s. 11d.; worth 12s. 6d. Two-Button Kid Gloves, 1s. 11d. Real Shetland Shawls, 2s. 11d. each. Beautiful China Silk Scarfs, embroidered ends, 5s. 11d. each; worth 10s. 6d. 100 Ladies' Silk Vests, 6s. 11d. Ivory and oxidized handles. Silk Aprons, 6s. 11d. each. The Queen of Aprons, silk or Velvet, Embroidered Gold or Silver, 8s. 6d. Ladies' Beadskin Hats, 3s. 11d., 5s. 9d., 7s. 9d.; Gent's, 6s. 11d. and 10s. 6d. Herringbone Hatbandkerchiefs, 1s. 11d. the whole dozen. BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

200 SEALSKIN HATS, 2s. 11d., 4s. 11d., and 5s. 6d. each. Extraordinary Bargains. Sent for four extra stamps. BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

ODDS and ENDS. Bargains. 50-yards Bundles, for 23s. 6d., 35s. 6d., 45s. 6d., 55s. 6d. Sent for P.O.O. BAKER and CRISP, Regent-street.

HENRY GLAVE'S NEW WINTER DRESSES. NAVY SERGES, 1s. 9d. a yard. NAVY SERGES, 1s. 9d. a yard. NAVY SERGES, 1s. 9d. a yard. FRENCH MERINOS, 1s. 6d. a yard. FRENCH MERINOS, 1s. 11d. a yard. FRENCH MERINOS, 2s. 9d. and 2s. 11d. VICTORIA TWEEDS, 2s. 11d. a yard. VICTORIA TWEEDS, 3s. 11d. and 4s. 11d. VICTORIA TWEEDS, 4s. 11d. wide. ABERDEEN LINSEYS, 1s. 9d. a yard. ABERDEEN LINSEYS, 1s. 9d. a yard. ROUSE SATTEENS, 1s. 2 1/2d. a yard. ROUSE SATTEENS, 1s. 4 1/2d. a yard. ROUSE SATTEENS, 1s. 6d. a yard. SHAH CORDS, 9d. a yard. SHAH CORDS, 1s. 9d. a yard. SHAH CORDS in every colour. SATTEEN STRIPES, 1s. 4 1/2d. a yard. SERGE STRIPES, 1s. 2 1/2d. wide. A cheap lot of Serge Stripes at 7 1/2d. a yard. A manufacturer's stock of all the best goods at 1s. 9d. Patterns of all dress or post-free, from 534 to 537, New Oxford-street.

BURGESS. POST-FREE. WINTER PATTERNS. 65, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

HOMES-SPUN, HAND-WOVEN, from 1s. to 3s. 6d. R.Y.C. SERGES. 1s. to 3s. 6d. The Great Stock in London. BURGESS, 65, Oxford-street.

LYONS FINISHED VELVETEENS (Registered). Fast Black Genoa Pile, Silk. Finished, 1s. 11d. to 4s. 6d. per yard. Patterns free. BURGESS, 65, Oxford-street.

FRENCH MERINOES, WOOL-DYED. Having a world-wide celebrity for the quality and choice of these useful and everlasting wearable fabrics, I am determined to maintain it by selling the wide width at the price of inferior offered goods. Patterns free. BURGESS, 65, Oxford-street.

DOUBLE WOOL REPS. 1s. 3d. to 3s. 3d. per yard. A new fabric in all the prevailing Colours. Patterns free. BURGESS, 65, Oxford-street.

DOUBLE DIAGONALS. 1s. to 3s. 11d. An immense variety, in all shades. Patterns free. SATIN-CLOTH, Roubais Manufacture. BURGESS, 65, Oxford-street.

INVERCAULD TWEEDS. Shower and Mist resisting. Patterns free. BURGESS, 65, Oxford-street.

THE IRISH WAREHOUSE. INGLIS and TINKLER, 147, REGENT-STREET, LONDON.

IRISH POPLINS. The Largest Stock in the United Kingdom. All the New Colours for the Season, Dublin prices charged. Manufacture—7 and 8, Eastace-street, Dublin.

IRISH LINENS. Damask Table Linen, Sheetings, Towellings, and every article in House Furnishing Linens of the best manufacture and at moderate prices.

IRISH HOSIERY. Real Balbriggan and Winter Hosiery, in Ladies' Gentlemen's, and Children's Hosiery, and Half-Hose.

IRISH LACES. Carrickmacross, Limerick Point, Gullane Appliqué, &c. Patterns post-free. Parcels carriage-paid. INGLIS and TINKLER, 147, Regent-street.

CASHMERE HATS for LADIES.

Registered. "The Novelty of the Season."

"Some of the black Hats ornamented with the new drooping ostrich feathers are eminently picturesque."—The Queen.

CRAPE.—Messrs. JAY, having bought at the International Exhibition "The ALBERT CRAPE" exhibited there during this past season, will SELL it at a very low price. JAYS.

FRANCE.—The political state of France has had the effect of reducing the prices of Manufactured Silk, and Messrs. JAY are glad to announce they can now sell a Fashionable BLACK SILK CORD at 3s. 6d. per yard. THE LONDON GENERAL MODERN WAREHOUSE, 243, 245, 247, 249, 251, Regent-street. JAYS.

IMPROVED JANUS CORD (Registered). To be had only at JAYS. 21 1/2s. 6d. the Dress. For some years past Messrs. Jay have recommended Black Janus Cord as the best wearing material ever manufactured. A recommendation which countless purchasers of the dress have confirmed. The Improved Janus Cord has both sides alike, but the price remains the same. JAYS.

FURS.—"If the prognostications of weather prophets should be realised by an unusually severe winter, it will be well for those who may be furnished with a resistance to the cold."—Daily Press. Messrs. JAY have a very superior Stock of FURS, and also Mantles trimmed with Fur, for Morning and Ordinary Costume, which they invite their Patrons to inspect, as early purchasers will secure the best advantages, both in selection and price. JAYS.

THE PRICE of WOOL.—There are daily large importations of Foreign Wools to the port of London, and yet the price is continually rising. Messrs. JAY, having made previous contracts for the best Wools in Roubaix, are enabled to offer the new Black Fabrics for Autumn and Winter without any advance in price. JAYS.

THE LONDON GENERAL MODERN WAREHOUSE, 247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS.—Several important parcels, price 1s. 9d. to 10s. 11d. Black Velvet, a large purchase, prices 3s. 11d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 11d., 8s. 11d. Black Velveteens, 1s. 9d., 2s. 9d., 3s. 9d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 9d., 6s. 9d., 7s. 9d., 8s. 9d., 9s. 9d., 10s. 9d. Patterns post-free.—N.B. Particular attention is invited to the above. Z. SIMPSON and COMPANY, 65 and 66, Farringdon-street, E.C.

Z. SIMPSON and COMPANY Invite notice to their STOCK of COSTUMES and of DRESS FABRICS, of every variety for present wear. Patterns post-free. 65 and 66, Farringdon-street, E.C.

SEALSKIN JACKETS.—Also, a Large General Stock of FURS of every description. Z. SIMPSON and COMPANY, 65 and 66, Farringdon-street, E.C.

EXHIBITION SALE. GASK and GASK beg to announce that their PREMISES will be CLOSED on SATURDAY (15th Day), in order to arrange the VIENNA EXHIBITION GOODS for sale on Monday. 18 to 63, Oxford-street; 1 to 5, Wells-street.

NEW MUSIC

ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S New Opera

THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD. Crastono,
Paper cover, 16s. 6d.; cloth boards, 12s. 6d. net.
CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

HENRY SMART'S Sacred Cantata
JACOB.
Paper cover, 6s.; cloth boards, 8s. net.
CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER'S DANCE ALBUM for 1874
With elegant cover and dedicatory page in gold and brown.
Quadrille " Les Bardi Mariott.
" "
" "
Lancers " Merry old Times Mariott.

Galop "Fun of the Ball"	Godfrey.
Polka "Peerless Pier"	Martinet.
	Price 2s. 6d. (net); sent post-free for 3s. 6d.	Martinet.
The above-named pieces are sold separately, with handsomely
Illustrated Frontispieces, 2s. each
CHAMBER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

NEW SOLOS by Favourite Composers

Bertram's Valse Légère	Auguste May 6d.
Rimeneschi's My Queen (transcription) 6d.
De Kootski's Le Jaguar Valse 6d.
Fernandez's Valse Brillante 6d.
Goldner's Saitanella 6d.
Osborne's Fisher-maiden	Myerhoff 6d.
Paladilhe's Bianca and Chant de Frouilles 6d.
Bernier's Minerva and Tout Seul! 6d.
Wahl's Daisy, Forget-Me-Not, and Harebell 6d.
CHAMBER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

TREKELL'S NEW COMPOSITIONS

The Merry Widow	$.
Les Colonneurs	Impromptu	" "
Le Trianon	Gavotte	" "
Lullaby	Cradle Song	" "
The Magic Harp	Caprice	" "
The Woodland Sprites	Morceaux de Salon	" "

CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

RENDANO'S CHANT DU PAYSAN.

Played "by command," before her Majesty at Windsor Castle by permission of Her Majesty's Theatre.

CHAMBER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

OFFENBACH'S C'EST L'ESPAGNE.
 Transcribed for the Pianoforte by BERTHOLD WURM.

MARRIOTT'S NEW DANCE MUSIC
Alpine Schottische, Pearless Pier Polka, Fun of the Guardians of the Night, Salute, and Shah Galop. Nacht and warriors of fairlight waltzes. Snap Dragon and the Quadrilles. All beautifully illustrated. 6s. each.

CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

IZELER BELA'S NEW DANCE MUSIC

DIE LETZTEN GLUCKS-STUNDEN WALTZ. 4s. "This waltz is one of the most charming of the season, the time is marked and the melody soft and pretty."—Review.
TRAUM GLUCK (Polka masurka). 4s. Equally pretty dance as the waltz.
DIE GLUCKSGOTTEN (Polka Française). 4s.
J. B. Cramer and Co. have much pleasure in announcing that they have made arrangements with Káiser Béla for the publication of

NEMESIS SONGS and DANCE MUSIC
(encores nightly at the Strand Theatre):—"The League Love" (sung by Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Hillier, Mr. Howard)

OFFENBACH'S C'EST L'ESPAGNE.
Certainly the most popular song of the day. Sung

MUSIC HALF* PRICE and POST-FREE

IV. The largest and most varied Stock of Music, by all the principal Publishers. CRAMER and CO. undertake to forward return of post (on receipt of remittance), all sheet Music sent from them, no matter by whom published, at half price and free. CRAMER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

ALUMINIUM WATCHES, £1 15s., £1 10s., £1 5s., £1 2s. Keyless Watches, £2 2s., £2 3s., £4 4s.
 yellow Timekeepers, machine-made. Small size. Very light.
 quite little gems. Illustrations, 4 each, 2s. Highly recommended for India and the Colonies. —MILLIKIN and LAWLEY, 105, St.

JOHN BENNETT'S WATCHES
 65 and 64, CHEAPSIDE.
JOHN BENNETTS GOLD PRESENTATION WATCHES 20 gu. 50 gu.
JOHN BENNETTS LADIES' GOLD KEYS 20 gu. 50 gu.

JOHN BENNETT'S SILVER WATCHES, WITH KEY ACTION, from 30 g. to

JOHN BENNETT'S GOLD KEYLESS HALF-CHRONOMETER, from 30 g. to

JOHN BENNETT'S SILVER HALF-CHRONOMETER, from 30 g. to

JOHN BENNETT'S SILVER HALF-CHRONOMETERS from 16 to 18
JOHN BENNETT'S HALF-CHRONOMETERS are compensated for variations of temperature, adjusted in positions, and no key.
JOHN BENNETT'S ENGLISH HALL-CLOCKS, CHIMING QUARTERS from 16 to 18
JOHN BENNETT'S RICHLY-GILT DRAWING-ROOM CLOCKS from 16 to 18 CLASSIC DESIGNS

JOHN BENNETTS MARBLE DINING-ROOM 'LOCAL'
WITH ANTIQUE BRASS
JOHN BENNETTS 16-CARAT HALL-MARKED CHINA
CHOICE JEWELLERY
JOHN BENNETTS CLOCK AND WATCH MANUFACTORY
65 AND 64, CHEAPSIDE.

London (opposite the Bank). The best wrought silver and and FINE, fiddle pattern, 7s. 6d. per ounce; Queen's 7s. 6d. per ounce. Many other patterns, plain and ornamental
Fiddle Pattern	Os.	s.	d.	Queen's Pattern.	Os.
15 Table Spoons	30	..	11 0 0	12 Table Spoons	29
15 Dessert Ditto	30	..	7 6 8	12 Dessert Ditto	29
15 Table Forks	30	..	11 0 0	12 Table Forks	29
15 Dessert Ditto	30	..	7 6 8	12 Dessert Ditto	29
3 Querry Spoons	10	..	13 4 4	3 Querry Spoons	10

3 Ovary Spoons	10 ..	3 12 4	1 Soup Ladle	11 ..
1 Soup Ladle	10 ..	3 12 4	1 Sauce Ditto	13 ..
1 Sauce Ditto	10 ..	3 12 4	4 Salt Spoons (gilt)	11 ..
4 Salt Spoons (gilt)	..	1 0 0	12 Tea Spoons	14 ..
12 Tea Spoons	10 ..	3 12 4	1 Pair Sugar Tongs	..
1 Pair Sugar Tongs	..	0 15 0

4 Engraving illustrated with 200 Engravings containing

SECONDHAND SILVER.—

M APPIN BROTHERS, Manufacturers
of
SILVER PLATE. OUTLETRY.
Tea and Coffee Services. Ivory Table Knives.
Two Trays and Waiters. Dessert Knives and Forks.

Spoons and Forks. Fish. &c. &c.
Dishes and Dish Covers. Fish Carvers.
Spergers, Fruit Stands, Centenies of Cutlery.
&c. &c.

The Stock they keep in London, at 67 and 68, King William-London Bridge, also at 220, Regent-street, W., is very large and assorted, being all of first-class quality and design. It is sent from their own Works, at Baker's-hill, in Sheffield. Dru-Chalmers sent from
Address 67 and 68, King William-street, London Bridge;
Regent-street, W.

Established A.D. 1830 at Sheffield

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 150, Strand,
Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex,
GEOFFREY C. LAURENCE, 150, Strand, aforesaid. - SAT
NOVEMBER 13, 1873.

Digitized by Google

THE LIVINGSTONE AID EXPEDITION.

MYUMI, USAGARA.

CAMP AT REHENNIKO, OVERLOOKING THE MAKATA SWAMP.

BY THE WAY.

Lord Mayor's Day brought the sort of weather that may be expected in the English November, and, when we had hoped that not more than the average number of colds were caught, we should, in ordinary circumstances, have dismissed the subject. But some reasons present themselves for saying a few words in addition to the meteorological register and the philanthropic wish. The Standard contends that by reason of the new Judicature Act, which abolishes the Barons of the Exchequer, there will be no necessity for procession to Westminster next year. We imagine, however, that some provision has been made, or will be made, for administering the oaths which are supposed to be requisite in order to restrain the King of the City from unconstitutional practices. Our liberties must be secured somehow. Future Lord Mayors cannot be allowed to send out their officers and compel us all to come into the Mansion House and eat turtle, after the manner of the very decided Amphytrion in the parable. We do not tremble much about this. But what a wise and good thing it would be to reform the City Calendar, and throw Lord Mayor's Day into June, or July, when London could enjoy its holiday-show! How this is to be done we know not; and of course it would be irregular, and illegal, and dangerous, and new-fangled, and all the rest, just as the rectification of the other calendar was declared to be when even the mob rioted and demanded to have back the days of which they had been robbed. But the thing was done, and England stands. In the interest of the myriads for whom the day is a thing of joy and delight, we urge on the Fathers of the City to consider whether they cannot give the Show in summer, and revive the water procession, which could be seen so well from the Embankment. All the Ministers and notoriety would be in London at that time, moreover. Then, the Courts of Law must be finished some time or other—perhaps during the present century—and it would scarcely be worth while fitting up a pageant to proceed no farther than new Temple Bar. There seems such good reason for a change which would add to the glories of mayoralty that we hope some benevolent successor of Henry Fitzwain will take the matter in hand.

Archbishop Manning and Mr. Newdegate are at war, in consequence of the member having accused the prelate of declaring in a sermon that, though Guido Fawkes and his accomplices were made felons on earth, they were made angels in heaven. The Archbishop denies having said this, and a gentleman's denial must be accepted. We have, however, a distinct impression of having read a recent Catholic discourse, by an eminent person, in which reference is made to certain persons who were felons here and angels above. Speaking from memory only, we do not say that Dr. Manning was the preacher, and we certainly think that the criminals alluded to were not Fawkes and his accomplices, but some of the Jesuits who were executed in Queen Elizabeth's time. We do not imagine that Garnet, for instance, is quite the sort of person whom an English gentleman of the present day would select as a type of an "angel." Dr. Lingard, the Catholic historian, quotes this from a paper which is extant in Garnet's own writing. "In cases of lawful equivocation, the speech being by equivocation saved from a lie, the same speech may be, without perjury, confirmed by an oath, or by any other usual way, though it were by receiving the sacrament, if just necessity so require." Mr. Newdegate, however, is called upon by the Archbishop's solicitors to verify his statements; and, as the passage referred to, and relating to somebody, has certainly been uttered within the last few months, there should be no difficulty in clearing up matters. While on the subject, we may add that Dr. Cullen has, within the last few days, made public proclamation of the dogma that "outside the Church of Rome there is no salvation." She has, of course, a perfect right to say so; but we claim an equal right to say that "inside the Church of Rome there is none." One statement is exactly as true as the other; and when Catholics and Protestants have mutually consigned each other to perdition, can they not shake hands, and try to make this world as pleasant as is consistent with its being a vale of tears?

Our contemporaries give us accounts of the production of M. Sardou's play "Uncle Sam" in Paris. It appears to be a success, and to deserve to be one, if double entendre, caricature, and sensation situations ever merited good fortune. Why any rational American could have thought it worth while to be offended with the piece we do not understand. It is simply a ludicrous misrepresentation of American life and manners, and is of the family of pieces in which English life and manners have been treated on the French stage for the last hundred years. We have never complained because boxing-matches were fought in an English drawing-room, or that Sir John sold his wife in "Smiffeld," or that our ladies drank porter-beer in the mornings. These were the features of the older plays, and the modern ones are equally outrageous, if not so coarse. There seems to us to be only one incident that may be called American in the piece, and that is at the end, where these two men fight a duel all over the hotel, firing at each other whenever they get a chance. Such things are done, we suppose, in some of the States. But, as a lighter punishment has been given to the gentleman who deliberately shot Mr. Fiske than we award to a postman who steals letters, the holding up a fair duel as an illustration of manners cannot be held to be very savage satire. For the rest, the play does not seem up to M. Sardou's mark, and we read that the ladies' costumes are what theatrical Paris is talking about. By-the-way, in the French piece produced this week in London there is an effective finish. None of the characters are any better than they should be, but one is so much worse that to ensure the happiness of a reformed lady it is necessary that he should promise to keep out of her way for ever. He is repentant and says he will give the promise, but, finding himself distrusted, he shoots himself through the heart, and expires remarking, "Now, perhaps, you will believe me."

The police are "catching it," as the schoolboys say, "hot." Their accusers crop up every day, and are ready with complete testimony to the brutality, insolence, and perjury of some members of the force. We do not take all this for gospel, but there must be a good deal of fire where there is so much smoke. It is pretty clear that, with the exception of one division, the body of officers has deteriorated, and, instead of battling with truths, the best way is to consider how to remedy evils. If the pay is not high enough to tempt the best kind of men, let it be raised. We grumble at taxation, but are not such idiots as to grumble at the expense necessary to ensure the safety of society. It is observed that though many policemen are very ready to be rough with decent persons, the force is not so prompt to be rough with roughs; and we perpetually read of attacks on the police without reading also of that wholesome chastisement which we should like to find following such outrage. Just at this time the police force does not stand well with the British public, and, as we believe it to be, in spite of exceptions, a valuable and meritorious body, we should be glad to see it taken in hand for the improvements for which people are—not ignorantly—clamouring.

We have not lately heard much of the proposal to place a splendid set of chimes in our metropolitan cathedral. No doubt such an addition would be an advance to the completion of the edifice, and London ought not to be without that which almost every second-rate Continental city has. There can, moreover, be no greater contrast than the chimes with their varying melodies and the monotonous noises of our bells. This leads us to a suggestion of a practical kind. Every rational person has long regarded church bells in London as an anachronism and a nuisance. Everybody has ample means of knowing what time to go to church, and nobody is dragged thither by half an hour of maddening clank. Why not pass a short Act of Parliament ordaining that all the bells in London shall be sold, and the produce be applied towards purchasing for St. Paul's the finest set of chimes that can be obtained for money. There would not only be two excellent things thus procured, silence in a hundred steeples and beautiful music in one, but there would be a sort of poetical justice in thus turning engines of torture into ministrants of pleasure.

THE LIVINGSTONE RELIEF EXPEDITION.

We have received from Assistant-Surgeon W. E. Dillon, R.N., second in command of the Livingstone Search and Relief Expedition in East Africa, three sketches from which are drawn the Engravings in this Number of our Journal, accompanied by a letter from that gentleman, dated M'dabura, in Ugogo, July 17, relating as follows the chief incidents of the inland journey, from Bagamoyo on the sea-coast, opposite the isle of Zanzibar:—

"Our first camp was at the outpost of Kikoka, about ten miles from Bagamoyo. Here we remained some time, collecting our Pagazi; but set out again, on March 29, for the interior. Near this place, a waterbuck and a hartebeest were shot by Messrs. Fairlie and Campbell, who had joined us for a few days. After eleven days' travelling, we reached Masuwah, where our first honga, or toll of cloth (sixty dhoti) had to be paid, contrary to preceding custom. On April 16, after incessant journeying through an undulating densely-wooded country, it was refreshing to get a view of the Duthumi hills or mountains from our camp near the Unkerengeri river. This river we forded on the 17th (as shown in my sketch), and again on the 24th, near the Lion city, Simbamweni. This city is in exactly the same position as when it was seen by Mr. Stanley, but the walled city has been washed away. It is much smaller than when seen by Mr. Stanley, and it is difficult to conceive whence he took his sketch, or where he found that strange little box of houses with the twenty-five huts arranged in five regular rows; there are at least 180 dwellings in the present town. We encountered no difficulties in crossing the Unkerengeri or the Makata river; the great swamp was in good travelling order, and we reached Rehenniko, in Usagara, May 1. We were here detained one month, waiting for Murphy, a Lieutenant in the Royal Artillery, who had volunteered from Aden, where he was quartered, to join the expedition, and Moffat, a nephew of Dr. Livingstone. Murphy arrived on May 26, but poor young Moffat had fallen a victim to the fever of the country on the day previous. He was a healthy, wiry-looking young fellow when he joined us at Bagamoyo, full of energy and work, and, having been born in South Africa, was never out of the country. The people here were sufficiently civil, fearing the Snider and other breech-loaders. On the day after our departure another caravan on its way to Unyanyembe was attacked by the chief. Six men killed and wounded, and some fifty bales of cloth taken.

"After crossing the Usagara mountains we came on the Makondokwa river. The united caravan, numbering 240 souls and twenty-one donkeys, camped at Myumi, June 1. Here we were delayed by a very untoward event. We sent Pagazi and Askari to M'bumi to purchase corn. One of the latter mistaking one of the men of the village for one of a robber tribe, shot him. The Askari, however, states that it happened quite accidentally. Our blood-money came to eighty dhoti of cloth (value eighty dollars), two flint guns, and the value of two slaves, besides causing a delay of ten days. Some days after leaving Myumi, we came in sight of the lake and peak of Ugombo. Of this insignificant sheet of water Mr. Stanley says that an increase of 30 ft. in the height of its water would extend the lake over M'pwapwa and the Marenga M'kali, giving it a length of one hundred miles and a breadth of fifty miles. It is evident that either he had no barometer, or he did not use it. At the lake our barometer stood at 27.92; at a spot eight miles distant it stood at 27.40, which makes something like 400 ft. in height; and at M'pwapwa it had fallen to 26.54. On June 26 we encamped at a ziwa or pond, where we launched our indiarubber boat, and two of us got into her, which astonished the natives. Teal and widgeon were plentiful here. On July 10 we reached Useki. From this point of view the plain of vast extent is dotted here and there with strange hillocks of rock, enormous boulders, and columnar rocks of granite springing abruptly from the ground. I sketched a group of Wagogo at M'dabura. Brass and ivory armlets, bracelets, necklets, are worn in profusion, the black wool of the women being studded with beadlike pieces of brass, some of the necklets being very prettily designed of brass chainwork. The hair of the men is interwoven with fibre and twisted into minute ringlets. Both men and women are ugly, but all well-grown and intelligent. They are exceedingly troublesome, crowding round the tent doors until driven away and kept at a distance by a strong fence. We expect to reach Unyanyembe in about twenty-five days, and we shall leave that place for Ujiiji as soon as possible."

The Gloucestershire annual show of produce has this year eclipsed most of its predecessors. A number of handsome prizes were offered, and excited active competition. The general display of roots and grains was considered highly creditable.

Dr. Hancock, in his tenth annual report on the judicial statistics of Ireland, states that between 1864 and 1872 there was a diminution in the yearly aggregate of indictable offences from 10,865 to 7716 cases. Against this, however, he has to place an increase in the number of riots and of crimes against life.

The twentieth meeting of the Scottish Arboricultural Society at Edinburgh was brought to a close, on Thursday week, by interesting discussions on the pruning of trees and on the comparative advantage of planting in groups or in mixed plantations. On the same evening the winter session of the Edinburgh Geological Society was opened with an address by the president, Professor Geikie, on "Earth Sculpture." There was a large attendance. The winter session of the Edinburgh Philosophical Institution was opened, yesterday week, by an address, on the conditions of intellectual discipline, from Dr. Temple, Bishop of Exeter, in the Music Hall, where the Lord Provost of the city presided. The winter course of lectures at the Philosophical Institution began, on Tuesday evening, with the first of two lectures on "Popular Government," from Mr. Fitzjames Stephen, Q.C.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

Complaint was made the other day by Mr. Butt, M.P., at Limerick, that it is not the habit of Irish members to hold annual confabulation with their constituents. May not the reason be that they are inwardly conscious that they have no constituents? There are voters, to be sure, who go to the poll under difficulties, in their bodies; but, so far as volition is concerned, even under the ballot, are they not mere machines, worked by well-known influences, just as much as water-mills are? Possibly, Mr. Butt himself would not have appeared at an assembly of voters at Limerick if it were not that he chooses every possible opportunity of carrying out his Home-Rule mission.

It seems that Mr. Ward-Hunt is filling a large space in the political world. He has attained to a sort of sub-leadership of the Opposition in the House, and very effectively he does his work. As a critic, he was always keen; and of late, as a censor of the Government, he has been sharp and even epigrammatic. When making his annual confession to his electors recently, he was in his happiest vein, and full of the sarcasms and gibes which drop so quietly from his lips, on which there hovers a smile, so that a deaf person, who could not hear what he said, would imagine that he was emitting soft and delicate compliments. The Government, as a whole and in detail, was scathed; but every other word was "Lowe;" and, according to Mr. Hunt's description, whatever was done by the late Chancellor of the Exchequer was either foolish or knavish, or almost so—not that either phrase was actually uttered, but the conglomerate of his speech was nothing less.

A Parliamentary Secretary to the Treasury is generally a public-speaking man. Insinuating whispers, delicate satiries, half promises, mild jokelets, perpetual smiles, gentle nudges, and expressive looks are more in his line. All the Mr. Arthur Peel, the new Government "whip," will have to rehearse in the vacation and practise next Session. In the meantime he is doing what seems the ordered duty of the likely Ministerial subordinates—namely, defending partly and altogether praising the Government to which he belongs. The honourable gentleman's sermons to his constituents at Warrington last week, was elaborate in no ordinary sense. There was about his speech a solidity which would have rendered it cumbrous if it had not been that he exhibited an earnestness which could only have been caught by supreme belief in a Ministry that has discovered qualities in him which, to the general body of observers, were latent, and which rendered it desirable that, in a manner, its fate should be committed to his hands. Erskine said of the English Constitution that its ultimate result was only the getting of twelve men into a box; and of Ministries it may be said that the result of all their doings is only the getting a certain number of members of Parliament into a division lobby. That it will be henceforth Mr. Arthur Peel's function to do, and no doubt he will show there a much ability as will.

On the face of it, it is curious to find Sir Thomas here, not only at Moreton-on-the-Marsh, but by the side of Lord Redesdale, and at an agricultural and horticultural gathering. But Sir Thomas has long ceased to be a mere Manchester man, and in more counties than one he enacts the part of a country gentleman. Therefore he appropriately gave his benign presence (the epithet is truly applicable to his personal appearance) to his neighbours in Gloucestershire on this occasion, and he was very pleasant with them. He rather eschewed the agricultural part of the affair, and took up the horticultural section, as it were, disporting himself amongst the flowers, and gathering similes and illustrations from them in a pleasing, benevolent way. Having only to make himself agreeable, inasmuch as there were no politics lurking beneath dahlias and china-asters, it was possible for confraternity to exist between him and even so grim a Tory as Lord Redesdale, with whom as a public man he has no point of contact.

A Financial Secretary to the Treasury, as we have recently reason to know, ought to be the confidential aide-de-camp to a Chancellor of the Exchequer. Presumably Mr. Selator-Booth, in the last Conservative Government, stood in that relation to Mr. Ward-Hunt; and, if following suit in criticism of the existing Ministry is a proof of their cordiality, Mr. Selator-Booth has given that proof in a colloquy he held with his friends in North Hants, last week. He rehearsed the part of censor a good deal last Session, sometimes in an interim way, and once or twice in a formal and predetermined manner. Indeed, once it seemed as if he sought to bring on a party debate; but when the day came few men who were members were to be found, the Opposition benches were a desert, and the Ministerial side was, perhaps, eighty or ninety strong, even in those penultimate hours of the Session. So Mr. Booth delivered his speech in a picktooth manner; some sort of reply was given to it by Mr. Lowe, who probably then had practically ceased to be Finance Minister; and the matter, which did not rise to a squabble, was over. On the late reconstruction of the Government Mr. Booth was slightly jocular, in his speech the other day, and intended, no doubt, to be severe. Especially he evinced his horror of round men being put into square boxes; and no doubt he was sincere in his objections, for reason which to those who know him would be sufficiently obvious.

There have appeared lately, in an extra-Parliamentary way, a few of the rising young members, of some of whom note may be taken. Perhaps Mr. H. Brand would take exception to be called a rising member, as he probably considers himself as having quite risen to the height of a personage in the House. Doubtless, considering the frequency with which he favours that assembly with his opinions and the dogmatism with which he lays them down, he might be allowed to hold something of a position; but possibly some cynical people may think that he is adopting a very old device, to which ambitious young Parliament men often have recourse. It is just a question, however, whether Mr. Brand has arrived quite at that point at which it is thought by a Government desirable to quench a talking young member who more or less takes up his position on their flank, by submerging him into an Under-Secretaryship. His speech, the other day, to a working-class association at Cheshunt, in the county which he represents, was as good a specimen of his rather dry rhetoric as could be had.

If ever a man tried to have it understood that he had an old head on young shoulders, that is the case with Mr. Maden Holt, one of the Conservative members for North-East Lancashire. His demeanour is solemn, his utterance measured and emphatic, and his sayings oracular. It would doubtless be a congenial office to him to address a meeting which had for its object a protest against ritualistic practices in the Church, as he has been doing lately; and one is bound to say that he so acquitted himself as to maintain to the utmost his character as a sage, grave man, whose every word was weighty—in more senses than one.

In every respect save one Sir Thomas Acland is a model county member, so far as a Liberal can fulfil that character. He has been heard to say, in his place in Parliament, "that he was not a hunting man." That, however, seems not to be a disqualification, any more than his Liberalism is, with a section of the electors of North Devon. Possibly no better mode of showing the reason why this is the case could be found than by referring to a recent speech which he delivered at a meeting of a labourers' association in his county. Of a surety he did not merge the proprietor of land in the Liberal; and, as the labourers whom he addressed have not yet got the franchise, he was quite safe in telling them that the land question was in a more or less satisfactory state, and that content was the "sovereignest thing on earth" for the tillers of the soil.

It must be satisfactory to Sir Charles Dilke to discover, by foregathering with his constituents at Chelsea, that a body of them, sufficiently numerous to be contained in a very large place of meeting, are satisfied with him, notwithstanding certain political proceedings which shocked some people of tender sensibilities. As to Sir Henry Hoare, he has never done anything to peril his popularity in the borough; and, as he is an occasional enlivener of debates, it is to be hoped that the electors will take care to preserve him for the amusement of any future Parliament.

SKETCHES IN JAPAN.

(From Our Special Artist.)

NIGHT AND MORNING AT A TEA-HOUSE.

Japan presents great facilities for travelling. In this it is unlike most eastern countries. There are no inns, in our sense of the word, but their place is amply supplied by what are called "tea-houses," and one or more of these places may be found in most villages. In some they are large buildings; they are all kept most scrupulously clean, and often have a back-garden laid out in the Japanese style, with miniature rocks, waterfalls, lakes, temples, and dwarf trees. The European traveller has only to provide himself with a few articles of food, for Japanese food would scarcely satisfy him; also with some drinkables, sheets, a pillow, and blankets. Coolies or porters, to carry the things, are easily got, so one may travel with the greatest comfort in Japan. The rooms in these tea-houses have very fine soft straw mats for the floors, and three sides of the room are made of sliding panels, made of paper, and painted with Japanese landscapes. When the house is shut up for the night, there is an outer defence of sliding panels, made of wood, and these can be barred so as to make the house secure. In the morning no light can come into your room till these outer panels are removed. The first night I slept in one of these places, when I awoke in the morning, the night lamp had expended itself, and all was dark. I wondered what the hour might be, but felt too comfortable to be at the trouble of striking a match to see what o'clock it was. I could hear that people were stirring about the place, and after a few moments a noise like that of thunder sounded within a few yards of me. The roar of this noise lasted for a second or so, and then ceased, but it was soon succeeded by a second burst, which sounded as if the house was going to pieces. What could it possibly be? A third clap of this loud thunder demanded a solution of the mystery; so, putting out my hand, I could push the sliding panel aside, and the maker of this thunder became visible. It was merely one of the girls of the house opening the outer panels, and shoving them along in a groove to a press at the corner made to keep them during the day. The whole house being made of wood, and paper stretched on frames as tight as drums, the simple operation of moving these outer panels produces a sound as if Jove himself were launching his bolts. I was amused at the contrast of the terrible noise and the simplicity of the cause which produced it. I had expected to see something terrible, and instead I saw the picturesque costume of the girl, who was merely beginning her day's work. Outside was the quaint garden, with its strangely-cut miniature trees, rocks, and lakes; and the bright morning came as a contrast to the darkness in which I had been only a minute or so before. The girl, seeing me looking out, gave me the usual salutation of "Ohiyo;" and soon had a dish, like the caldero of the Italians, with a charcoal fire in it, for the winter mornings are cold in Japan, and a supply of tea in a quaint teapot with a bamboo handle to it. It was pleasant to sip the tea before getting up to dress.

I had been much struck the evening before with the girl who brought in the light, and had noted her as a subject for my sketch-book. As soon as it is dark this very strange-like lamp, or lantern, is brought in. The lanterns are the same in every tea-house, consisting of a wooden stand and frame, with paper pasted round it to preserve the flame from draughts. The flame is produced by a small brass vessel with oil and a wick, like the primitive cruces of early days. The large paper surface of this lamp, being illuminated, casts a fair amount of light around the room; but I did not find it sufficient to write or read with; so a candle is necessary, if you wish to do anything in the evenings.

THE GRAVE OF WILL ADAMS.

I send you also a sketch of the grave of William Adams, near Yokoska; for the discovery lately made, that an Englishman had lived and died in Japan in the beginning of the seventeenth century, is a subject of much interest to the European community, and particularly to his fellow-countrymen now in Japan. An American author named Hildreth compiled a very elaborate work called "Japan and the Japanese," in which he stated, from works that he had read, that William Adams and Captain Saris, of the British ship Clove, had entered the bronze statue of Dai Boot, in the summer of 1613, and had, as was the custom, written their names on the figure. Mr. J. Walter, now a resident of Yokohama, made a visit to the Temple of Dai Boots, and inquired of the priest there if he knew anything of these names; but the priest was in complete ignorance of the matter. The priest, however, made inquiries, and in a native book called Mimashi he discovered that Adams, or Anjin-Sama, had lived and died at Hemi-Mura, a small village near Yokoska. Mr. Walter then went to this village, and in the temple there found a small bronze Buddhist image, which had been left by Adams. It was still preserved in the temple, as well as a slip of bark or leaf covered with what is supposed to be Siamese writing. The present mayor of the village had also a letter in the Japanese character written by Adams. It has no date, but is written from Jeddo to Hemi-Mura, thanking the villagers for bringing evergreens to decorate his house at the Matsuri festival. The priest led Mr. Walter to the grave of Will Adams and his Japanese wife. It is on a hill not far from the village, and was overgrown with vegetation. The monument is that of a Hatamoto, a rank which Adams held under Gongen Sama. No inscription or date could be made out; but on the monument of his wife could be traced the words—"Kan-jiu-ichi-nen, 7th month, 16th day"—equal to our A.D. 1633, or 239 years ago. From this it is supposed that the wife survived him thirteen years, for his will, which is still preserved in the archives of the India House in London, is dated Dec. 7, 1620.

Mr. Hildreth gives an account of Adams in his work. He was born on the banks of the Medway, between Rochester and Chatham, and went to sea when twelve years of age. He was apprenticed to Master Nicholas Diggins, of Limehouse, near London, whom he served twelve years. He acted afterwards as pilot in her Majesty's (Queen Elizabeth's) ships; then, for eleven or twelve years, he was employed by the Worshipful Company of the Barbary Merchants. The Dutch traffic with India beginning at that time, he was desirous, as he tells us, "to make a little experience of the small knowledge which God had given him," so he entered that service.

Mahay's squadron, in which Adams sailed as chief pilot, was composed as follows:—The ship Hope, of 250 tons and 130 men; Faith, 150 tons and 109 men; Charity, 160 tons and 110 men; Fidelity, 100 tons and 86 men; Good News, 75 tons and 56 men. But these names of good omen did not save the ships from disasters. Some returned to Holland, and the Charity, in which Adams was, alone went on her course, and reached Kiusiu, or the southern part of Japan, on April 11, 1600. Her crew was reduced to twenty-four men, and four or five only of these were able to walk, and as many more to creep on their hands and knees. The Portuguese Jesuits accused them of being pirates, and they were put in prison. It was some time before the antagonism of the Portuguese was got over; but at last the Emperor took Adams into his service to build ships on the European model. Adams began to pine for home, and applied for leave to return to England, where he had a wife and daughter. But the Emperor of Japan had found out that he had a good man in his service, and, to pacify him he made him lord of the village of Hemi-Mura, where his grave now is. The village contained about a hundred households, and he had power of life and death over everyone. This did not satisfy Adams, but he could not help himself.

When the first Dutch Embassy came to Japan in July, 1611, the Emperor's Court was at Suruga, and Adams arranged the interviews and acted as interpreter. On the arrival of the Clove, commanded by Captain Saris, the Prince of Firando at once sent for Anjin-Sama, or Adams, and would not permit the letters from the King of England, James I., to be read till Adams arrived. The Clove left Japan for England on Dec. 5, 1613, and carried home letters from Adams. In these letters Adams explains his reasons for not returning at that time. One inducement to remain was that he had then a wife and daughter in Japan. He held a good position as head of the town, people, and lands of Hemi-Mura, but he had little or no money, and did not care to return to his family in England with an empty purse. It would also seem that he had quarrelled with Captain Saris, who attempted to drive a very hard bargain with him for his passage home. Another English ship paid a visit to Japan. This was the Royal James, belonging to the East India Company. She left Japan on Dec. 16, 1620, and brought home the news of Adams's death. She also brought home a copy of his will, in Japanese characters, which is still preserved by the East India Company. He left 2465 dollars and 29 cents, which he divided equally between his English and Japanese families. "The English share to go, one half to the wife and the other half to the daughter, it not being his mind," so Cocks wrote, "his wife should have all, in regard she might marry another husband, and carry all from his child." By the same ship Cocks made a remittance to the English family, having delivered "one hundred pounds sterling to divers of the Royal James's company, entered into the purser's books, to pay in England two for one." This last is a curious point, as showing the rate of exchange in those days.

Such are the main features of this Kentish pilot's strange life, and from these we can see that he was no ordinary man. The letter still preserved in Hemi-Mura shows that he had learned to read and write the Japanese language; and the position he attained in the service of the Emperor of Japan makes it clear that he had made the best of the "small knowledge God had given him." The care with which he had made out his will indicates a desire to be strictly just as far as it was possible in the unusual position in which he was placed. It is said that he selected the spot for his grave, and it is evident that it must have been a favourite haunt of his. It is a prominent knoll among the wooded hills and undulating valleys about Yokoska. The sea can be seen to the east and to the south, and in the opposite direction the snowy peak of Fusi-yama is visible. It is such a spot as a home-sick man would wander to, it is so very beautiful; the blue sea, with islands, rocky cliffs, wooded capes, hill and dale, great pine and cedar trees around, and the "matchless mountain" over all. Few spots in the world can compare to it; but, beautiful as it is, the heart of Will Adams pined for the Medway. The ocean beneath was the path that led there, and that must have been, among many attractions, one of the chief to him.

Great credit is due to Mr. Walter for having discovered this interesting memorial. He has also been at considerable expense in having it repaired and put in order, so as to preserve it for the future. The stone platform, stone rail, and stairs were all erected by him. I had the pleasure of visiting the spot in his company and that of another friend, and, while we were in the temple at Hemi-Mura, the mayor, now a very old man, presented Mr. Walter with the original copy of the letter written by Adams. On the first visit to the village Mr. Walter offered to buy the letter at any value they chose to put upon it, but they would not part with the relic. This free gift shows how highly they appreciate what he has done in putting the monuments in order. If I mistake not, Mr. Walter intends sending either the original or a facsimile of this letter to the India House, to place beside Adams's will.

The English Roman Catholic bishops have, it is stated, instructed Monsignor Capel to undertake the formation and management of an English university.

A conclave of the Roman Catholic clergy in Limerick diocese has been held, under the presidency of Bishop Butler, in the cathedral, to consider the Irish Bishops' recently published programme. Bishop Butler addressed the meeting at length on the education question, abandoning all hope of the Catholic University scheme being carried out by Government, and looking to the success of the Home Rule movement as the only chance for ameliorating Irish grievances. In view of a forthcoming collection in aid of the Roman Catholic University, a pastoral from Cardinal Cullen was, on Sunday, read in all the Catholic churches in the diocese of Dublin. In this document the Cardinal strongly enforced the necessity of upholding religious education, and deprecated the growing indifference to religion which was manifested.

Among the appointments that were thrown open to public competition by Mr. Lowe shortly after his transfer from the Exchequer to the Home Office was that of inspector of coal mines. The regulations under which persons will be allowed to compete for these appointments have now been published, and last Friday's Gazette contains a notice, dated from the office in Cannon-row, stating that a competitive examination for two situations as inspectors of coal-mines will be held in London shortly. This competition will be open to all persons between the ages of twenty-three and thirty-five, who, within the last five years, have been employed for two years underground in a coal-mine. The subjects of examination include "a theoretical and practical acquaintance with coal mines and mining," and "a knowledge of metalliferous mines," as well as elementary subjects—such as reading, writing, and arithmetic.

THE FRENCH POLITICAL CRISIS.

The letter of our Paris correspondent last week described the scene at the National Assembly at Versailles on the Wednesday, in the debate which followed the Duc de Broglie's reading of Marshal MacMahon's message, calling upon the Assembly to establish a strong executive Government for France. The message was applauded by a large majority of the members of the Assembly, and a resolution was immediately proposed to continue the powers now intrusted to Marshal MacMahon, as President of the Government, for the period of ten years. In opposition to this, a motion was made by Baron Eschassériaux, and supported by the Bonapartists, demanding a vote by universal suffrage, or plebiscite, on the choice between three different forms of Government—the Republic, the Empire, and Constitutional Monarchy. It was then proposed that the first-mentioned resolution should be discussed as a matter of "urgency," in preference to the Legislative business of the Session, which, according to previous orders of the day, should have been a committee for the detailed revision of the existing constitutional laws. The same claim of precedence, as a subject of "urgency," was instantly put forward by M. Eschassériaux and his twenty-two followers, as partisans of the Napoleon dynasty. There was an eager debate upon this important question of the order of proceedings, and it was at length resolved, by a narrow majority of 362 votes against 348, that the proposal to renew Marshal MacMahon's governing powers for ten years should be kept separate from the legal and constitutional reforms submitted to the Parliamentary Committee. During the sitting of the National Assembly, a good deal of popular excitement was shown by the gathering of anxious crowds near the doors of the building; but the gendarmes had no difficulty in preserving order. The sketch contributed by our Paris Artist shows the scene at the Porte du Maroc.

THE GIANT CITIES OF BASHAN.

(To the Editor.)

May I ask for a few lines' space on the subject of your article on Bashan in the Illustrated London News of Nov. 1?

Dr. Parry, in the itinerary of his journey through the country, is, I think, inaccurate on two points which may be worth setting straight for the sake of truth. He speaks of some education of the children carried on through the goodwill of the late Consul at Damascus and Mr. Pritchett, but concludes with "This is all that had been attempted, and the work had ceased." I do not of course know when Dr. Parry travelled in Bashan, but, having gone carefully through all the land this last spring-time, I am able to set Dr. Parry's mind at rest on this point. I met Mr. Wright, of the Irish Presbyterian Mission, in the heart of the Hauran. He had come from Damascus with a Scripture reader, and, as long as we were together, was busily employed in explaining and selling portions of the Bible, besides talking to the people on the desirability of establishing better schools than they have at present. This was his second missionary tour in this region; and on several occasions, in answer to his offer of books, he was shown by the Arabs some portion of Holy Scripture which had been given to them before. Besides this work, Mr. Pritchett, who has spent three or four winters in Syria, making it his amusement to ride alone through such unfrequented districts as the land of Moab distributing copies of the Bible, told me in July that he had found the people of the Hauran willing to receive the books, which he gave to a great many. I think he said that he had been in the Hauran twice; but he was certainly there last year. Probably more efforts than these have been made in the Hauran; but this is sufficient to show that something is still done.

One other point—the antiquity of the cities. Dr. Porter's account, though true in particulars, unfortunately does not give a correct idea of their general appearance and mode of construction.

Probably Dr. Parry went expecting to find very much more hoar antiquity than is there. The prevailing idea of the cities is of the Roman period and Eastern Roman work, and some of the most interesting specimens extant of Early Byzantine architecture are to be found at Bozra and Edrei in the Christian churches. Better builders build better houses; and so we may fairly suppose that the Romans, who were the undoubted builders of the theatres and temples in the principal cities, would improve upon the domestic architecture of those who preceded them—taking hints, however, from the original style, which is entirely suitable to the requirements of the place, especially in the adoption of the long split stones for roofing, resting on brackets at the top of the wall-veil, and massive stone doors moving in stone sockets, just as those do which we find in some of the Inquisitorial dungeons of Germany. In the Hauran the style is not Roman, but the work is Roman, for the most part by far, in its square lined masonry and ornamented doorways. If we grant that they borrowed the style, why not also the stones, which lay ready to their hands? This seems to explain the existence of a few very rough buildings which we came across; and I can see no reason why we should reject the opinion that in them we see the actual doors and lintels, untouched by any tool since times not very far removed from Og; just as we do not disbelieve that the Ichorites lived in the caves of Petra, though we know that the Egypto-Roman façades to many of them were the work of a later people. It is not likely that there was ever much wood in Bashan, so the early builders of fenced cities would naturally reverse the order of architectural advance and make their first efforts in stone. There are, however, no folding stone doors in Bashan nearly approaching in size and workmanship to a splendid pair (as far as I remember, almost 15 ft. high) which belonged to a late Roman temple at Palmyra; while, on the other hand, I saw none ruder than some very small ones, which the few Arabs who inhabit the great temple at the same place have built with their lintels into the walls of their gardens. These are exactly like those in Bashan. We may fairly think it far more probable that we are looking at an Eastern than a Western invention. The Pyramids of Egypt were closed with stone slabs moving in a groove, and in a rock-cut tomb near Jerusalem the entrance was closed by an ingenious adaptation of a movable stone unlike anything Roman that we know of.

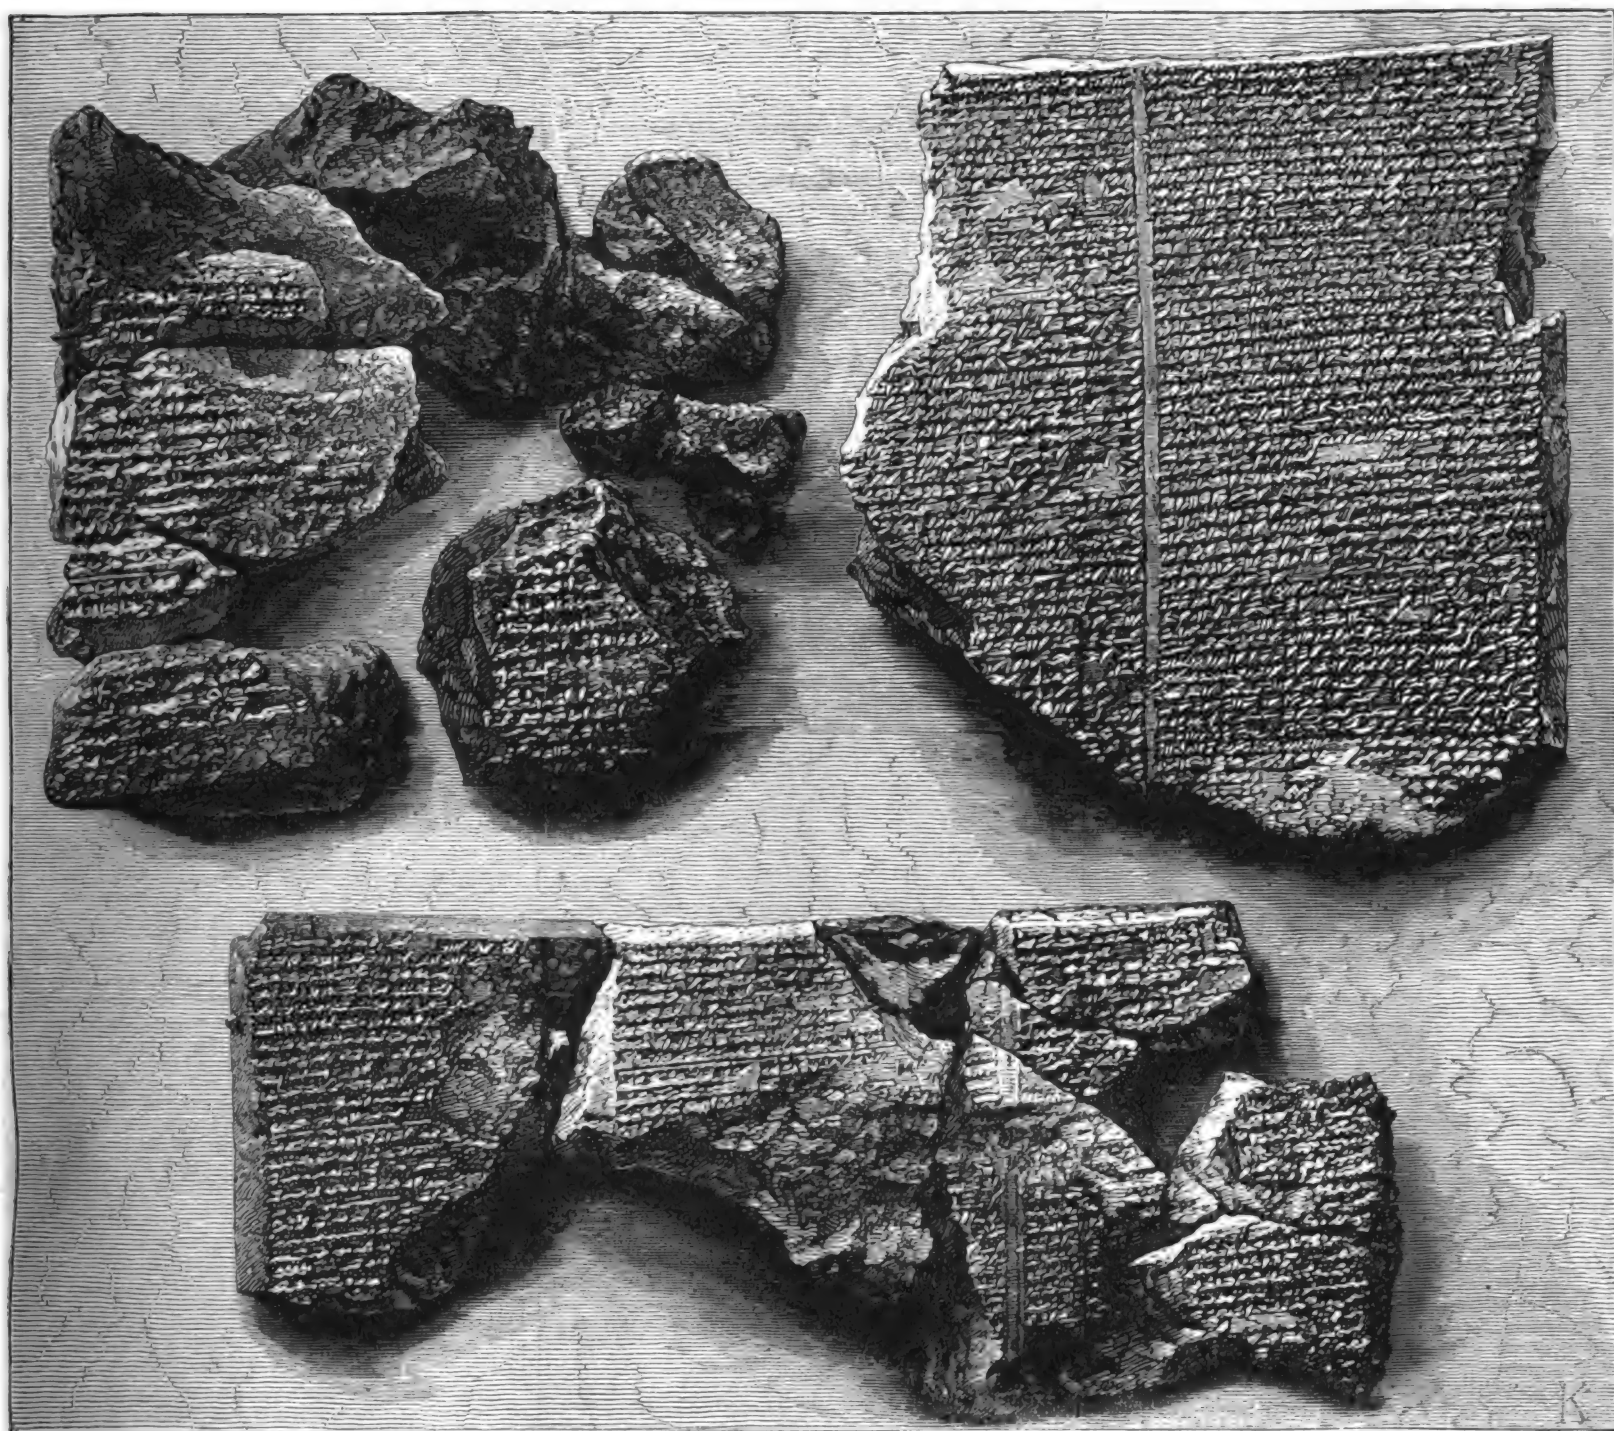

H. G. WATKINS, Jun.

A full-dress parade of all the officers and men of the Royal Marines took place, yesterday week, on the parade-ground, Chatham, to behold the presentation of a silver medal and gratuity of £15 awarded by the Admiralty to Sergeant-Major George Lockyer for long service and exemplary conduct, on his leaving the corps, on a pension of £45 per annum, to take the appointment of Adjutant at the Royal Naval School, Greenwich.

The meeting of the local executive of the British Association was held, on Monday, at Bradford; and the financial account, which was submitted, showed the total expenses of the late meeting in that town to amount to about £3300. The guarantee fund subscribed amounted to £5200. A call of 50 per cent upon this sum was made a short time ago, and it was resolved to make a further call of 1s. 6d. in the pound.

THE ENTRANCE TO THE FRENCH NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

INSCRIBED STONE, GIVING AN ACCOUNT OF THE DELUGE.

NINEVEH AND ITS RECORDS:

At a meeting of the Society of Biblical Archaeology, on Dec. 3, 1872, Mr. George Smith, of the British Museum, read a description of the newly-discovered Chaldean tablets brought from Nineveh, containing an account of the Deluge which in some points resembles that in the Book of Genesis. The date of these tablets is in the reign of Assurbanipal, King of Assyria about B.C. 668, but they are believed to be copies of mere ancient tablets, which Mr. Smith would place as far back as B.C. 1000. Photographs have been taken by Mr. Stephen Thompson, and are published by Messrs. W. A. Mansell and Co., 2, Percy-street, Tottenham-court-road, by whose permission our Engraving is drawn from them. The inscription has been deciphered and translated. It only introduces a narrative of the story of the Deluge as an incident in the biography of a King named Izdubar. The King, having been afflicted with sickness, goes to visit a famous sage called Sisit, the Xisuthrus of Greek authors. This philosopher, instead of giving him any medicine, tells him about the flood. Sisit declares that to him, as to Noah, the gods revealed beforehand that approaching catastrophe of the world. He also was commanded to build a ship and to embark therein his family and the seed of all life. There is a break here of fifteen lines, which probably related the method of his work. Sisit goes on to tell how the Ark was finished and caulked with bitumen; and how he then placed in it all his treasures, his wife and children and servants, beasts and all cattle, and fowls of the air. The command was then given him to enter the Ark and shut the door, when the great rain and the great flood began, various deities being engaged in this operation. The history further relates the stranding of the Ark on a mountain in Nizir, east of Assyria, which must be in Armenia, and may be Mount Ararat. There Sisit, like the patriarch in the Hebrew Scriptures, sends out different birds to see if the waters have abated—first a dove, next a swallow, lastly a raven. The dry land appearing, the animals and men come out of the Ark, upon which Sisit builds an altar and offers a sacrifice of thanksgiving to the God whom he adores. After narrating this story, the wise man gave Izdubar some directions how to cure himself of his malady, which Izdubar performed, and returned to his native city of Erech.

It will be remembered that, about the beginning of this year, Mr. George Smith went to the site of Nineveh, with six months' leave of absence from his official duties, by an arrangement between the trustees of the British Museum and the proprietors of the Daily Telegraph; the latter undertaking to pay the expenses of his making some researches among the ruins of the ancient Assyrian capital, while the British Museum was to get such monumental relics as Mr. Smith could procure and remove to England. His labours have been successful, and their results will form a valuable supplement to those obtained in 1846 by Mr. Layard. We engrave a sketch by Mr. Smith, which gives a general view of the site of Nineveh, with the mounds of earth and stones called the Birs Nimroud, as seen from the top of the Khan Balco, near Mosul. There will be further occasion to notice this subject.

THE SITE OF NINEVEH, FROM A SKETCH BY MR. GEORGE SMITH.

WINTER EXHIBITIONS.

SOCIETY OF FRENCH ARTISTS.

The collection which has now been brought together under the direction of M. Durand-Ruel, at the gallery in New Bond-street (the fifth of the Winter Exhibitions we have already noticed), is superior to any of its predecessors. Although numerically small (there being only 130 works in the two rooms) the gathering contains a much larger proportion of important or interesting pictures than heretofore. The latest phases of Parisian fashion in art are, as usual, to be found here, and there are some good examples of long-established reputation.

Eight works by the veteran Corot may be taken to represent much that is new in French art, though the style might carry us back many years. The painters' influence is unquestionably great, as may be seen in Pizarro's "Autumn" (12), Sisley's "Isle St. Denis" (114), two studies of landscape effect by Madame Cazin, and several other works here. And where an artist's influence is great it is safe to assume that his works contain something original and valuable. Corot's peculiarities are due apparently to a reaction from close and toilsome imitation of nature, and, like all reactionists, he has partisans and opponents who each rush into extremes. It may be urged with justice that his mode of interpreting nature is excessively conventional and wanting in particular truth; that his execution is mannered, his colouring and effect limited, sketchy, and often poor, and that he repeats himself ad nauseam. On the other hand, it is equally true that his simple and broad indications of beautiful natural effects of atmosphere and light, and his elegant compositions of speckled foliage, flowery sward, and stray cloudlets are poetically suggestive to minds unfettered by urgent memory of the varied fulness of natural realities. M. Corot's most ambitious work here, "Une Pastorale" (66), a large picture from the last salon, is, however, to our mind far less acceptable than many of his smaller productions. The elements of the landscape are of a pseudo-idyllic, secondhand order, and the pseudo-classical figures are equally hackneyed in motive. Pretentious as is the work in its dimensions and general aspect, it is wearisomely empty and unmeaning. Far preferable, to us, is the small "Village Street" (41), which we infer, from the definite character of its lighting and details, belongs to an earlier time. "The Fallen Tree" (24), also, is not without charm in its shimmer of stray glints of light. The secret of the painter's fascination is, however, best seen in "The Somme, One Hour Before Sunrise" (54), though a mere sketch of the slightest and rapidest. The all-pervading tone of dewy, silvery atmosphere, and subdued yet palpitating light, is exquisitely suggestive. However limited in range, this is truly refined art. Another master of indicative breadth relieved by points of effect, though working generally in a much more powerful naturalistic key, is C. F. Daubigny. "Washing on the Oise" (33) is a small but characteristic example; "Windmills at Dort, Holland" (21), though much larger, is comparatively tame. Courbet likewise aims at breadth of treatment. But his leading peculiarity is his contempt for everything picturesque, in the ordinary sense; indeed, he frequently prefers the ignoble and the repulsive in figures and landscape. He is, in short, the apostle of Communism in art. A dismal view of level sands near Honfleur (17), under an equally dismal sky, bears out our remarks. Jules Dupré and Diaz are both great masters of the technical qualities of vigorous effect, rich colour, and bold impasto. But the means to the end are always palpable—the results often exaggerated, and therefore more or less artificial. This, however, does not, it would seem, depreciate their works in the eyes of rich connoisseurs. In "Fishing Boats" (23), by the former, one might fancy that the artist had been thinking less of nature than Rembrandt in his later style, though the dark blueish colouring is different from any scale of hues the great Dutchman ever worked in. "An Opening in the Forest of Fontainebleau" (65) is a large and fine work by Diaz, but even more than usually black in the shadows. The recherche for effect is but too apparent in the contrasts of the white, lichened beach-stems against the dark foliage, and the sun-burst of the middle-distance against the sombre storm-clouds.

J. F. Millet occupies a place apart, in virtue of the pathetic sentiment almost invariably infused into his landscapes and rustic figures. No. 118, entitled "November," well illustrates his grave, sad mood. It represents a hillock in a lately-ploughed field, the brown mass of which is relieved against a lowering, rainy sky, with a streak of watery light along the horizon. A harrow lies in the foreground; a few leafless trees fringe the crest of the hillock; a man disturbs a dense flight of crows that, rising upwards from their quest of the scarce-covered seed in the furrows, quite darkle the air to the left. From these simple elements are produced a picture, of the impressiveness of which we could give but a faint idea. By T. Rousseau there is a beautiful little landscape, "A Farm on the Banks of the Oise" (45), from the Laurent-Richard sale, where it fetched about £1700. The trees in sunlight and their reflections in the placid waters of the river, are painted by this, the father, as he is sometimes called, of French landscape, with an unsophisticated, loyal love of nature which many of the artists above named would do well to imitate. The influence of Constable, Bonington, Crome, and other painters of the early English school may still be traced in some of the landscapes we have named, as also in Michel's "View in the Pas-de-Calais" (22) and Van Marke's large and fine "Rope-Making in Normandy" (44). A smaller cattle-piece by the last is, however, more like—indeed, too like—his master, Troyon. "The Last Valley, Newport, U.S., the Scene of Bishop Berkeley's Meditations" (18) is a remarkable scene—the valley being formed by two curiously-shaped spurs of low hills which terminate suddenly at the sea-shore, and in the picture are gilded by alant sunbeams. We welcome the work as by Mr. J. Lafarge, an American artist of high repute in his own country, as well as on account of its very considerable merits. Another American artist, Mr. Whistler, is still more at home in the latest French school. He sends a coast scene, with yachts, to which he appends the punning title, "The Yacht-Race—a Symphony in B sharp" (110). The subject is more comprehensible than usual; and the "symphony" alludes, we suppose, to the tender harmony of the grey tints. Boudier's "Sunset on the Marne" (47) and Rico's "On the Seine" (5) deserve mention, as also Fantin's still-life pieces, though unequal in merit. The largest and best represents "Un Coin de Table" (83), with a breakfast spread on a white cloth and a rhododendron plant in flower in the foreground—a lovely piece of colouring.

The most important figure picture is "The Entombment" (20), by Eugene Delacroix, from the Faure collection—the best of several versions of this subject by the same master. The excellence of this picture is not to be found in its design, composition, or the expressions of the figures, but in the singularly rich harmony of its low-toned colouring and its fine chiaroscuro—qualities, however, which are not wholly original, but rather recall those of some of the later Italian masters. Ribot's "Girls Reading" (12), as usual, closely resembles Velasquez in his harder manner, with black shadows. Four large female figures, intended to personify the seasons, by H. Levy, are very spirited decorative works in a French semi-classical taste. The artificiality of feeling admissible in such subjects is, however, quite misplaced in the same painter's large and theatrical altar-piece, "Christ in the Sepulchre" (93). "Paying the Tithes" (76), by J. Garnier—peasant-girls and children presenting levies to a conqueror of the Maximilian times—has clever points, but the colouring is florid and artificial. "Spanish Belles" (51), by Villefroy; "Young Marguerite" (35), by Landelle; "The Choir" (91), by L'Hermite; "An Arabian Market" (97), by Huguet; and pictures by L. Monzies, Dargelas, and Duez are likewise commended to the visitor's notice.

MUSIC.

Last Saturday's Crystal Palace Concert, the sixth of the new series, included the remarkable pianoforte-playing of Dr. Hans von Bulow in Beethoven's concerto in E flat (the "Emperor"). The alternate grandeur and delicacy of his performance, the rare mechanical skill and still more admirable powers of rhythm and declamation, produced a marked impression, and called forth demonstrative applause. The orchestral pieces were Hadyn's fine symphony in D (No. 6 of the "twelve grand" composed for Salomon's concerts in London), Cherubini's overture to "Faniaka," and Beethoven's second overture to "Leonora." Miss Jessie Jones, prize soprano at this year's music meetings, made a favourable impression by her singing in the difficult scena from "Fidelio" and Mozart's aria "Lento il pie." The other vocalist was Signor Gustav Garcia, who was much applauded in M. Gounod's sacred scena, "Abraham's Request," conducted by the composer, and the romance from "Tannhäuser," the latter of which was accompanied on the pianoforte instead of by the orchestra.

The Glasgow Musical Festival closed last Saturday afternoon with "The Messiah," the previous evening having been devoted to the production of the two works specially composed for the festival—a miscellaneous concert having been given on the Thursday evening. Of the preceding programmes we spoke last week; and it now only remains to refer to the novelties of the festival. First in performance on Friday week came Mr. Lambeth's setting of the 86th Psalm, "Bow down thine ear," for chorus, four solo voices, and orchestra. The composer is a highly-esteemed resident professor, who officiated as conductor at most of the festival performances. The principal solo portions of the psalm were sung by Mdlle. Titens, Mr. Vernon Rigby, and Mr. L. Thomas. The work and its composer were much applauded. In this piece, as elsewhere, the fine singing of the Glasgow Choral Union was a conspicuous feature. The psalm was followed by Mr. Best's skilful execution of Handel's first organ concerto, with orchestral accompaniments; and this closed the first part of the programme, the second part of which was devoted to Mr. Henry Smart's sacred cantata, "Jacob." The composer has long been eminent, not only as a masterly performer on the organ, but also for a large number of productions in various styles, the present work being the most considerable piece of sacred music that he has yet put forth. A previous important festival commission given to Mr. Smart resulted in the dramatic cantata, "The Bride of Dunkerron," produced at Birmingham in 1864. In this, successful evidence was offered of Mr. Smart's skill in writing for the combined effects of solo and choral voices and orchestra, especially in the command of the varieties and contrasts of the latter feature. "Jacob" is divided into three parts, distinctively entitled "The Flight," "The Marriage," and "The Return." The text has been compiled by Mr. McCaul, and is based on the leading incidents of the scriptural narrative. The cantata opens with a short orchestral introduction. Among the most important pieces in the first part is a very effective and well-written chorus, "Blessed is the man;" others being the tenor air, "Oh! Thou that hearest," for Jacob, sung by Mr. Lloyd, and the elaborate and highly-coloured scene of the "Vision," for chorus, solos, and orchestra, terminating the first part. The second part commences with an orchestral prelude of a pastoral character, and full of melodious grace. The prominent pieces of this division of the work are an expressive soprano air, "Who is this that cometh?" for Rachel, sung by Miss Wynne; another for Laban (baritone), "The Good Shepherd," assigned to Mr. Santley; a duet for Rachel and Jacob, "Tell me, O fairest of women," and a bright concluding chorus, "Happy art thou." The final part is introduced by a few bars of orchestral symphony, leading to a contralto recitative and air for the Angel, the latter movement, "Be thou patient," a piece of smooth cantabile writing well suited to the voice and style of the singer, Madame Patey. A well-written duet, "Wherefore didst thou flee away," for Jacob and Laban, and a trio, "Come, let us sing," for them and Rachel, lead into a chorus, "Praise the Lord," of jubilant character and well sustained. Passing over a duet, "Behold, Esau!" for the Angel and Jacob, and other short numbers, we come to the final chorus, "O, praise the Lord," which, although neither so long nor so important as the other choral movement last referred to, is full of vigour, and forms an imposing climax to a work of high merit which must inevitably be soon heard in London. The cantata met with the most favourable reception, and Mr. Smart was called for at its conclusion. The success of the festival will not only benefit, as intended, the Glasgow Western Infirmary, but will lead to triennial meetings of the kind dating from 1877, which is to be the next occasion, in order not to interfere with the Birmingham festival, which will recur in 1876. Four years hence Glasgow will be in possession of a noble Townhall, more worthy of the place and its festivals than the inconvenient City-Hall in which the music meeting has just been held.

The sixteenth season of the Monday Popular Concerts began this week, with a programme of sterling interest, although devoid of novelty. The selection commenced with Mendelssohn's first quartet (in E flat), performed by Madame Norman-Néruda, Mr. L. Ries, Mr. Zerbin, and Signor Piatti; the lady violinist having been associated with Mr. Charles Hallé in the execution of Beethoven's duet-sonata in A minor (op. 23), for piano and violin; and with him and Signor Piatti in Schubert's first trio (in B flat); Miss Alice Fairman was the vocalist and Mr. Zerbin the accompanist. At the afternoon performance of to-day (Saturday) Dr. Hans von Bulow is to be the solo pianist, as also at the concert of next Monday evening. The first recital of this great artist will take place on Wednesday next.

M. Rivière's Promenade Concerts, at Covent-Garden Theatre, are continuing their successful career. Among the latest features of interest have been the revival of the late M. Jullien's "British Army Quadrille" and the successful appearance of Miss Antoinette Sterling, the contralto singer from America.

The second concert of the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society took place on Thursday night, when Bach's St. Matthew "Passion Music" was performed; the solo singers announced having been Miss Spiller, Madame Patey, Mr. Cummings, and Mr. Thurley Beale.

The Wagner Society began its second season, yesterday (Friday) evening, with the first of a series of six concerts. The programme included two extracts from Wagner's opera, "Die Meistersinger von Nürnberg," Spontini's overture to "Olympia," that by Berlioz to "King Lear," a new pianoforte concerto by Joachim Raff (to be played by Dr. Hans von Bulow), and Beethoven's symphony in C minor. Of the performances we must speak next week.

THEATRES.

Mr. Buckstone has resumed the conduct of the Haymarket, and on Saturday commenced his season with the revival of "The School for Scandal." His selection of this comedy is noteworthy on account of the several hundred nights' consecutive run of it at the Vaudeville. Nothing daunted, however, the experienced manager of the Haymarket mounts it again, without allowing for an interval of repose, with perfect confidence. Nor is he disappointed. The expected public response is not withheld, and he begins work with satisfactory encouragement. The cast of the piece, of course, follows custom; but it is eminently efficient. Miss Madge Robertson as Lady Teazle, Mrs. Chippendale as Mrs. Candour, Mrs. Fitzwilliam as Lady Sneerwell, and Miss H. Massey as Maria, form a group of artistes on whom entire dependence may be placed. With Mr. Howe as Joseph Surface, Mr. Kendal as Charles, and Mr. Chippendale as Sir Peter, is represented an attractive triad, sufficient for the support of any drama. Then there were Mr. Buckstone himself as Sir Benjamin Backbite, Mr. Rogers as Sir Oliver, and Mr. Clark as Moses. The remaining parts, also, were respectably filled; the audience expressed their satisfaction by calling the principals to the footlights; and we doubt not that the week's business has been remunerative.

The Adelphi likewise reopened on Saturday with Madame Celeste as the star, in her favourite character of Mamma, in "The Green Bushes." This play still maintains its pathos and interest, and the venerable actress is still as picturesque as ever in the leading situations. The cast was good. Miss Edith Stuart as Geraldine, and Miss Hudspeth as Nelly, were, as usual, equal to their parts. Mr. J. G. Shore acted Connor O'Kennedy with care and effect. Mr. Brittain Wright, as Grinidge, made sport of the character and extorted laughter; and Jack Gong, in the hands of Mr. Barsby, was full of humour; nor was Mr. T. W. Ford's Wild Murtoch wanting in effect. The other parts were efficiently represented. The farce of "Two Heads are better than One" concluded the performance.

Sadler's Wells has been opened by Mr. Henry Powell for equestrian performances, such as "Mazeppa," the hero being represented by Miss Bessie Reid, who is well qualified for the part. She is much applauded, and frequently recalled. Miss Mandelbert also appears in "All that Glitters is not Gold." On the whole, Mr. Powell's management promises success.

Messrs. Spiers and Pond have erected a new theatre in Focadilly, called "The Criterion," which is a structure of great elegance designed by Mr. Thomas Verity, of Northumberland-street, Strand. The sculptural embellishments are by E. W. Wyon, Esq. The building consists of dining-saloons and dancing-rooms, as well as of a theatrical auditorium and a ample stage. The former is constructed to contain about 800 spectators. The accommodation and decorations are all in superior style, and the whole design is of an advanced order.

The celebrated picture, by J. Portaels, of Brussels, representing "The Drought in Egypt," which has this year obtained the special gold medal offered for the best picture exhibited by a living artist at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham, without regard to school, style, or subject, has been purchased for the museum of Washington, United States, at which a collection of paintings by modern artists is about being formed.

The Government has purchased of Queen's College, Oxford, a lease of the manorial rights over Plumstead-common, just as the Metropolitan Board is maturing a scheme for the preservation of the common as an open space for the use of the public. Complaints have recently been made by the inhabitants that the verdure of the common has been destroyed by the military horses, a large number of which are employed there daily in the teaching of riding and drill, and the military authorities have persisted in their right to use the space for that purpose, even without the powers which they have now purchased.

Mr. Bright has addressed the following letter to Mr. G. W. Sanders, of Stockton-on-Tees, in reply to an inquiry from that gentleman as to the meaning of the term "free land":—"I have often explained in my speeches what is intended by the term 'free land.' It means the abolition of the law of primogeniture, and the limitation of the system of entails and settlements, so that 'life interests' may be for the most part got rid of, and a real ownership substituted for them. It means, also, that it shall be as easy to buy or sell land as to buy or sell a ship, or, at least, as easy as it is in Australia and in many or in all the States of the American Union. It means that no legal encouragement shall be given to great estates and great farms, and that the natural forces of accumulation and dispersion shall have free play, as they have with regard to ships, and shares, and machinery, and stock-in-trade, and money. It means, too, that while the lawyer shall be well paid for his work, unnecessary work shall not be made for him, involving an enormous tax on all transactions in connection with the purchase and sale of lands and houses. A thorough reform in this matter would complete, with regard to land, the great work accomplished by the Anti-Corn-Law League in 1846. It would give an endless renown to the Minister who made it, and would bless to an incalculable extent all classes connected with and dependent on honest industry."

A meeting of the Royal National Life-Boat Institution was held on Thursday week, at its house, John-street, Adelphi—Mr. Thomas Chapman in the chair. Mr. Richard Lewis, the secretary, having read the minutes of the previous meeting, payments to the amount of £3200 were ordered to be made on life-boat establishments, including rewards to the crews of many life-boats for good services rendered during the heavy gales recently experienced on our coasts, when they were instrumental in saving fifty-five lives, besides assisting to rescue four vessels from destruction. Rewards were also granted to the crews of shore-boats for saving life from wrecks. Several contributions to the society were announced, including £50 collected by Mrs. H. F. Penny, of Liverpool, on behalf of the Rhosneigr life-boat station. The following legacies have been left to the society:—The late Alexander Findlater, Esq., of Kingstown, £200; the late John Coleman, Esq., of Melbury Osmand, £50; the late Mrs. H. Clarke, of Elloughton, £19 19s.; and the late B. Barnes, Esq., of Ipswich, £5. New life-boats have been forwarded by the institution to Dunwich, Suffolk; and to St. Andrew's, N.B. The former was named the John Keble, after the well-known author of the "Christian Year"; the boat having been presented by members of his family. The St. Andrew's life-boat is called the Ladies' Own, its cost having been contributed by the ladies of England, mainly through the exertions of Miss Smithers, of Newark.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE EARL OF LISBURN.

The Right Hon. Ernest Augustus Vaughan, Earl of Lisburne, in the Peerage of Ireland, died on the 9th inst. His Lordship was born on Oct. 30, 1800, the eldest son of John, third Earl of Lisburne, by Lucy, his wife, daughter of William, second Viscount Courtenay; and succeeded his father May 18, 1831. He was a magistrate and Deputy Lieutenant for Cardiganshire, served as its High Sheriff in 1851, and sat in Parliament for that county from 1854 to 1859. Lord Lisburne married, first, Aug. 27, 1835, his cousin, Mary, second daughter of the late Sir Laurence Palk, Bart., by whom (who died July 23, 1851) he had three sons and a daughter; and secondly, April 5, 1853, the Hon. Elizabeth Augusta Harriet (Maid of Honour to Queen Adelaide), daughter of the late Colonel Hugh Henry Mitchell, by his wife, Lady Harriet Isabella Elizabeth Somerset, daughter of Henry, fifth Duke of Beaufort. He is succeeded by his eldest son, Ernest Augustus Malet, Lord Vaughan, now fifth Earl of Lisburne, who was born June 26, 1836; married, June 24, 1858, Gertrude Laura, third daughter of Edwyn Burnaby, Esq., of Baggrave Hall, Leicestershire, and has issue.

THE HON. F. R. FORBES.

The Hon. Francis Reginald Forbes, who died at Geneva on the 5th inst., aged eighty-two, was the second son of George, sixth Earl of Granard, by Lady Selina Frances, his wife, fourth daughter of John, first Earl of Moira. His elder brother, the late Viscount Forbes, was father of George Arthur Hastings, present Earl of Granard, K.P. Entering the diplomatic service, Mr. Francis Forbes was attached to the Embassy at St. Petersburg, 1812, and to that at Vienna 1814. In 1817 he became Secretary of Legation at the latter Court, in 1822 at Copenhagen, and in 1823 at Lisbon. In 1832 he was appointed H.M.'s Minister at Dresden, and in 1857 raised to the rank of Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at that Court. In 1858 he went as Minister to Rio de Janeiro, and in the following year retired from the diplomatic service. He died unmarried.

MR. OSGOOD HANBURY.

Osgood Hanbury, Esq., of Holfield Grange, Essex, died there on the 4th inst., in his eightieth year. He was eldest son of Osgood Hanbury, Esq., of Holfield Grange, by Susannah Willett, his wife, daughter of John Barclay, Esq., of London, banker. He was educated at Christ Church, Oxford; and, succeeding his father in 1852, became senior partner in the old London banking firm, Hanburys and Lloyd. He was Deputy Lieutenant for Essex, and served the office of High Sheriff for that county in 1858. He married, July 21, 1817, his cousin, Eleanor Willett, daughter of William Hall, Esq., of Hilton Castle, Northumberland, by whom he had a numerous family. His eldest son, Mr. Osgood Hanbury, of Howe Hatch, near Brentwood, a justice of the peace and a Deputy Lieutenant for Essex, and a partner of the banking firm, succeeds to the family estates.

MR. CORRANCE, OF PARHAM HALL.

Frederick Corrance, Esq., of Parham Hall, in the county of Suffolk, whose death is just announced, was the only son and heir of Snowdon White, Esq., M.D., of Nottingham, by Mary, his wife, daughter and coheir of Major John Corrance, of Parham Hall (distinguished at Dettingen, Fontenoy, and Culloden). He was born Sept. 3, 1791, and was educated at Trinity Hall, Cambridge. In 1837 he assumed, by Royal licence, the surname of Corrance in lieu of his patronymic, White. He was a J.P. and D.L. of Suffolk. Mr. Corrance married, Sept. 27, 1819, Frances Anne, third daughter of William Woodley, Esq., Governor of Barbice, and of St. Kitts, and leaves four sons and a daughter. His eldest son, Frederick Snowden Corrance, Esq., late 11th Hussars, J.P. and D.L., is M.P. for East Suffolk.

MR. TAYLEUR, OF BUNTINGS DALE.

William Tayleur, Esq., of Buntingsdale, Shropshire, died there on the 5th inst. He was born Sept. 10, 1803, the elder son of John Tayleur, Esq., of Buntingsdale, Deputy Lieutenant, by Penelope, his wife, daughter of Thomas Pearson, Esq., of Tettenthall Wood, in the county of Stafford. In 1827 he served as High Sheriff of Shropshire, and sat in Parliament for Bridgewater, 1833-4. Mr. Tayleur was never married.

M. DE METZ.

M. de Metz, the founder of the agricultural school and colony of Mettray, in France, which has served as a model for social reformers and philanthropists both here and in other countries, died recently, in his seventy-seventh year. It is now nearly forty years since M. de Metz began his labours in the reformation of young criminals. In 1836 he went to the United States to study the penitentiary system; and in 1840, on returning to France, he resigned several lucrative employments in order to give himself entirely to the great work of his life. Soon afterwards he established the Reformatory School and Agricultural Colony of Mettray, near Tours—the model of all similar establishments on the Continent and in England. He began with ten boys; at the end of the first year he had 300, and this number soon increased to 600. Since then, many thousand children have passed under his care at Mettray. M. de Metz was buried, last Saturday, in the cemetery at Mettray.

The proceedings of the Epping Forest Commission have taken an archaeological turn. Mr. Fisher, who represents a large number of commoners, put in at last meeting various charters relating to the forest. One of them dated as far back as the time of Edward the Confessor. Another was an attested copy of the Doomday Book.

Captain Jutelet, who commands one of the mail-steamers between Dover and Calais, was on Tuesday entertained at dinner at Dover and presented with the clasp of the Royal Humane Society, for rescuing one of a party of excursionists from drowning, whilst on an excursion from Dover to Calais. Captain Jutelet had already received the medal and parchment for previous acts of gallantry.

A soirée, to celebrate the opening of the new central stores of the Leeds Co-operative Society, took place in the Leeds Townhall on Tuesday night. About 4000 persons were present. The society numbers over 10,000 members, and made £4000 last year in profits. The new stores have cost £11,000. The society possesses several smaller stores in different parts of the town. Alderman Carter, M.P., and the Mayor were amongst the speakers.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

* All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed "To the Editor of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS," &c., and have the word "Chess" legibly written on the outside of the envelope.

W. O'B. Isle of Skye.—I do not recollect, and have no file at hand to refer to, or we would gladly inform you. 2. Your problem shall have early attention.

QUEEN'S KNIGHT.—Send us a specimen or two of your best.

F. A. Key.—Giving check to your adversary's King does not deprive him of his right to castle, provided his King does not move.

CHESS PROBLEM.—We received, with thanks, from W. Grimshaw—Messrs. W. and J. Pierce—W. S. Parvitt—Sherriff Spens—W. O'Brien—T. Haseou—J. O.—Howard Taylor—R. Blizard—T. Brown—and A. Townsend.

REV. M. CLARK.—A problem, to be sound, should admit only of one solution. We do not see how White can mate in Problem No. 1547, as you propose, by 1. Q to K 8th (ch), nor how mate can be given in Problem No. 1544 as you suggest. Oblige us by not asking questions regarding a problem until you have thoroughly mastered the position. We have no space to spare.

W. of Ipswich.—Your programme should have been sent to us ten days earlier.

G. Collins.—Several correspondents ask how mate can be prevented in your Problem No. 1548 if White begin with 1. F takes P. You appear to have overlooked entirely that line of play.

O. Ipswich.—They shall receive early attention.

D.—Accept our thanks for your obliging consideration.

B. W. K.—The collection of chess problems by the Messrs. Pierce will be published, we believe, before Christmas.

LEWIS.—1. Wait, and join the St. George's Chess Club, at the beginning of the approaching new year, sending your name meanwhile to the secretary, T. Hampton, Esq., 20, Kingstreet, St. James's. 2. The book you mention has been out of print for twenty years.

R. M. B.—A very elegant little game, which has been marked for insertion.

H. T. W.—Be good enough to send us a few more specimens. Those just received hardly do justice to the well-known capabilities of the players.

QUID PRO QUO.—Let us have them by all means, if you can warrant their being genuine and hitherto unpublished.

THE CORRECT SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1549 has been received from A. B. C.—C. M.—P. R. S.—W. Alrey—St. Clare—J. Dale of Otley—J. Allaire—R. D. T.—R. M. P.—W. V. G. D.—Runcorn—J. Kouth—C. P. A. and T. K. M.—East Marden—R. H. T.—Box—S. T. H.—M. D.—Lex—S. W. B.—Queen's Knight—Rubb—Dox and Cox—A. Wood—W. E. R.—A. B. Tallantire—H. P.—Pip—J. C. K.—Chicago—T. W. and Tiny—Holhausen and Groux—Fox—T. W. of Canterbury—S. Robson—Amphitryon—E. Frau of Lyons—D. M.—O. P. Q.—P. M.—Q. E. D.—Belais—Bunny—T. Wilson Morris—Bisford—N. M. S. Brittain—E. D. Way—Ferdinand and Miranda—M. D.—J. H. W.—J. Jaulon—K. Mark—Caza—S. F. Q. B. of Bruges—F. S. A.—Mouso—Peterskin—Frank and Diana—R. E.—W. S. G.—Harry and Emma—Benjamin—Try Again—Clive—George—Maufred and Man Friday—Cosmopolitan—Egbert—R. A.—Percy.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1550.

WHITE. BLACK. WHITE. BLACK.

1. R to Q 2nd B takes R 2. Q to Q sq (ch) K moves

If he play Kt to B 7th, the reply is 2. Q gives check and 3. Kt gives mate.

PROBLEM No. 1551.

By Mr. C. W. M. DALE.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

THE VIENNA TOURNAMENT.

Game between Mr. ROSENTHAL and Dr. HERAL, a young but highly promising player of the Viennese Club.—(Sicilian Opening.)

BLACK (Mr. R.) WHITE (Dr. H.)

1. P to K 4th P to Q 4th

2. Kt to Q B 3rd Kt to Q B 3rd

3. P to K Kt 3rd P to K 3rd

4. B to K Kt 2nd P to Q Kt 3rd

5. K Kt to K 2nd B to Q Kt 2nd

6. Castles R to Q B sq

7. P to Q 3rd B to Q 3rd

8. P to K B 4th B to Q Kt sq

9. P to K B 5th P to K R 4th

This move was not sufficiently considered, and was a source of danger and embarrassment to Dr. Heras for some time.

10. P to K R 3rd P to K R 5th

11. P to K Kt 4th Kt to K B 3rd

12. B to K Kt 5th Kt to Q 5th

13. Kt to K B 4th Q to Q B 2nd

14. Q to Q 2nd Kt to K Kt sq

15. K Kt to K 2nd

A curious move, but having at least the merit of originating some novel combinations.

16. Q to K R 7th (ch) P takes P

17. R to K R sq P takes P

18. Kt P takes P R to K R 4th

19. B to K B 4th Q to Q B 3rd

20. B takes B

Mr. Rosenthal plays below his ordinary strength in the present game. Here he had a favourable opportunity of bringing his Rook into the field by planting it at K Kt sq.

21. Kt to K B 4th R takes B

Spite of the adversary's threatened move of R takes K B P, Mr. Rosenthal would have done better, we believe, by playing his Q to K 5th.

22. Q Kt to Q 5th R to K Kt 4th Q to K R 3rd

BLACK (Mr. R.) WHITE (Dr. H.)

A very good move, preparatory to a still better one.

23. P to Q B 3rd Kt takes K B P

This capture Mr. Rosenthal evidently overlooked.

24. K to K sq

Taking the Kt would be fatal, as Dr. H. would then have taken the Bishop with his Rook, giving check, &c.

25. K R to K Kt sq K to K 6th

26. K to Q sq K to B sq

27. Kt takes B Q to K R 4th (ch)

28. K to Q B 2nd Q to K 7th

29. Q R to K sq Q takes Q (ch)

30. K takes Q Kt to K 2nd

31. Kt to K B 4th Kt to Q B 3rd

32. B to K B 3rd Kt to K 4th

33. B to Q sq P to K B 4th

34. P takes P R takes P

35. Q R takes Kt R takes Kt

36. K to K 3rd R to K B 3rd

37. B to K Kt 4th P to Q 3rd

38. R to Q 5th R to K sq (ch)

This Rook has long been inactive. It comes into play at last, however, with powerful effect.

39. K to Q 2nd Kt to K B 8th (ch)

40. R takes Kt

Distressing, but unavoidable. Dr. Heras has now a self-winning game.

41. K to Q B 2nd R takes R

42. K to Kt 3rd R to K B 3rd

43. P to Q B 4th K to K 2nd

44. K to Q R 4th R takes R

45. P takes R R to B 5th (ch)

46. K to Kt 5th R takes B, and wins.

CITY OF LONDON CHESS CLUB.—The following is the result of the first pairing in the annual handicap tourney of this club.

Colburn versus Ingold.	Pfeze versus Rippin, E. C.
Mayow " Lord.	Pfahl " Wikser.
Bird " De Vere.	Zukertort " Vyse.
Potter " Maas.	Beveridge " Lambert.
Walrod " Stevens.	Chappell " Lowson.
Nicholson " Cox.	Gastineau " Wilson.
Woodard " Dr. Ballard.	Echwege " De Soyres.
Rippin, G. H. " Sothers.	Rabbette " Leigh.
Cohen " Pannell.	M'Leod " Reynolds.
Henke " Morris.	Down " Cohnfeld.
Bussey " Watts.	Lovelock " Major Martin.
Osborne " Webb.	Zappert " Cutler.

BLINDFOLD CHESS-PLAYING.—The Nottingham Daily Express, which has recently started a chess column, announces that Mr. Blackburne will give one of his extraordinary séances of blindfold chess at the Mechanics' Institution of Nottingham, on the 16th inst. On this occasion he engages to play ten games simultaneously, without a chess-board, against ten of the best players Nottingham can pit against him.

CHESS MATCH BETWEEN THE CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY AND THE BATH CHESS CLUBS.—The Bath has accepted a challenge from the Cambridge club to play two games, by correspondence, for a handsome set of ivory chessmen and suitable board.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will and two codicils of Sir Henry Holland, Bart., were proved, on the 8th inst., by his sons, Sir Henry Thurston Holland and the Rev. Francis James Holland, the executors, the personal property (including leaseholds) being sworn under £140,000. The bequests in the will and codicils, with the exception of legacies to his servants, are entirely to testator's children. His eldest son, the present Baronet, is appointed residuary legatee of the personalty, and he gets all the real estate absolutely.

The will, with two codicils, of Sir Edwin Landseer, R.A., was proved, on the 8th inst., by Charles Landseer, R.A. (the brother), and Thomas Hyde Hills, the surviving executors, the personal estate (including leaseholds) being sworn under £160,000. The testator bequeaths to his brother Charles £10,000; to Mr. T. H. Hills, £5000; to Mrs. Ashton, 500 gs.; to Dr. R. D. Harling, £250; to Miss Marion Lee, an annuity of £100; and to his servant, William Butler, £100, all free of legacy duty; to his sister Jessie he gives all the jewellery and other articles given to him by her Majesty the Queen. The residue of his property is divided equally between his brother Thomas and his three sisters, Jessie, Annie, and Emma.

The will of Sir Richard Frederick, Bart., of Burwood Park, Surrey, and of Berkeley-square, was proved, on the 5th inst., by the Rev. Henry John Fellowes, Thomas Henry Clark Terry, and John Folder, the executors; the personalty being sworn under £50,000. The testator directs his real estate to be sold, and, after giving out of the proceeds legacies to his sisters, gives the remainder to the children of his three sisters—Mrs. St. Ieger, Mrs. Fellowes, and Mrs. Tyler. There are some legacies to connections and servants, and the residue of the personal estate he gives to the Rev. H. J. Fellowes and Mr. T. H. C. Terry.

The probate granted in Ireland of the will and codicil of Valentine O'Brien O'Connor, of Dublin, was sealed at the principal registry, London, on the 4th inst., the aggregate personal estate in England and Ireland being sworn under £300,000. The acting executors are Major William Blount, Miss Margaret O'Connor and Mrs. Monica O'Connor, the relict. The widow gets a residence with furniture and £5000 per annum for life, charged on estates which the testator bought of Lord Derby; and these estates are, subject thereto, settled on testator's only son. The residue of his property, after payment of some legacies, testator gives upon trust for his four daughters.

The will of Edward Tootal, late of Weaste, in Pendleton, Lancashire, was proved at the Manchester district registry, on the 30th ult., by Margaret Tootal, the relict, Robert Alexander Kennedy, William Langton, and Arthur Barff, the nephews, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £80,000. The testator bequeaths to the Weaste National School, the Eccles National School, the Pendleton Ragged School, the Nure-Training Institution, Manchester, and the Recreation Ground, St. Luke's, Weaste, £200 each; to the Salford and Pendleton Royal Hospital and Dispensary and the Ardwick and Ancoats Dispensary, £250 each; to the Manchester Royal Infirmary, £500; and there are numerous other pecuniary legacies. To his widow he gives £1000, all his furniture, and an absolute power of appointment over the residue of his property.

The will and codicil of William Hill, formerly of Thorpe Lee, Egham, but late of Clanricarde-gardens, Kensington, were proved, on the 3rd inst., by Mrs. Ann Hill, the relict, William John Bruty, John Pipler Kedell, and Charles Richard Stanham, the executors; the personalty being sworn under £80,000. Testator bequeaths to his widow all his furniture, plate, and household effects, £1000, and a further sum of £300 to distribute amongst such persons as in her opinion have a claim to their consideration; to each of his executors a complimentary legacy of £50; and the annual income of the residue of his real and personal estate to his widow for life—at her death the capital to be divided between his children.

Admiral the Hon. Edward Granville Howard, brother of the late Earl of Carlisle, is about to be raised to the Peerage.

Mr. Charles Mervyn Doyne has been appointed Deputy-Lieutenant for the county of Wexford, in the room of Charles Arthur Walker, deceased.

The office of Richmond Herald, vacant by the decease of Mr. M. C. H. Gibbon, has been given to Mr. H. H. Molyneux-Seel, Blue Mantle Pursuivant of Arms.

As indicating the approaching return of her Majesty from Balmoral, notice is given in the Gazette that the state apartments at Windsor Castle will be closed to the public on and after to-day, the 15th inst.

A return relative to the endowed charities of the county of Northumberland has been issued in accordance with an order of the House of Commons. The total gross income of the charities is given as £27,424 12s. 2d., of which £5199 is devoted to purposes of education, £675 to endowments of clergy and lecturers and for sermons, £1223 to Church purposes, £412 to Dissenting places of worship and ministers, £10,367 to public uses; £8437 to almshouses, their inmates, and pensioners; £54 to distribution in kind, and £1260 to distribution in money.

A public meeting was held in Plymouth on Tuesday, under the presidency of Lord Graves. It was resolved to petition the Board of Trade to erect, at a cost of about £20,000, a breakwater at Mount Batten, in order to improve the harbour of Calcutwater, an arm of Plymouth Sound. This scheme has often been mooted, and it has now been revived in consequence of a portion of the Channel Fleet the last time it was at Plymouth having to anchor in the exposed water of Cowsand Bay, the Sound being occupied by so many merchantmen.

An important addition to the Birmingham Queen's Hospital was made, yesterday week, by the opening of a new wing for out-patients, the cost of erecting which has been defrayed chiefly by subscriptions of the working classes of the town. The building, which will cost when complete £15,000, owes its existence to the movement begun by the working men, headed by Mr. Sampson Gamgee, about four years ago. The working men's contributions from 505 factories and shops alone amount to £4000. About £12,000 has been raised by means of the working men's organisation, including the proceeds of a fund in aid headed by the Queen with £200. The new structure is connected with the main building by glazed galleries, and will afford, besides the required accommodation for out-patients, additional beds for twenty in-patients. At the opening ceremony there were present Alderman Biggs, the Mayor; Captain Bullock, chairman of the managing committee; the Bishop of Worcester; Lord Wrottesley; Mr. S. Gamgee, the originator of the movement; Mr. Priddey, the secretary to the working men's committee; and a numerous body of the clergy, the medical men, and the municipality. Addresses were read by the secretaries to the hospital and the fund, and speeches were delivered by the Mayor, the Bishop, Lord Wrottesley, and others. The Prince and Princess of Wales have assented to the request of the Corporation of Birmingham to allow the new wing to be named after her Royal Highness.

SCHOLARSHIPS and EXHIBITIONS.

AN EXAMINATION will be held at MALVERN COLLEGE on DEC. 19 and 20, for the award of FIVE HOUSE SCHOLARSHIPS of £60 and FIVE EXHIBITIONS of £50. The awards will be for one or two years, according to merit, and to either Classical or Mathematical Candidates.

For particulars apply to the Head Master.

NORTH LONDON or UNIVERSITY

COLLEGE HOSPITAL.—ASSISTANCE is URGENTLY NEEDED to meet current expenses, owing to the high price of provisions, fuel, and other hospital requisites. The reliable annual income is much below the ordinary expenditure. DONATIONS will be thankfully received by Edward Enfield, Esq., Treasurer, 19, Chester-lane, Regent's Park; and at the Hospital.

HENRY J. KELLY, R.N., Secretary.

WRITING, BOOKKEEPING, &c.

Persons of any Age, however had their writing, may in Eighteen Lessons acquire permanently an elegant and flowing style of penmanship, adapted either to professional pursuits or private correspondence. Bookkeeping by double entry, as practised in the Government, banking, and mercantile offices; Arithmetic, Short-hand, &c.—Apply to W. Smart, at his Sole Institution, 57a, Quadrant, Regent-street. West of England Insurance Agency.

NICE.—HOTEL DES ANGLAIS.—A First-

Class Hotel, facing the sea, and under English Management. R. BAKER HAYS, Secretary, 80, Coleman-street, London, E.C.

THE PALL-MALL

This RESTAURANT is removed to more spacious and commodious premises, 14, Regent-street, Waterloo-place (embracing the late Gallery of Illustration, which will be available for Recreational Dinners and similar parties). Entrance to Private Rooms in Carlton-street, adjacent. Open for Suppers, as before, under an exemption license.

THE VICTORIA WINE COMPANY.

Head Office, 16, Mark-lane, London. PORTS and SHIRAZ. CLARETS and SAUTERNES. STILL WINE. MARSALA. Full Price-List of 150 different qualities of Wines and Spirits on application. For the convenience of COUNTRY CUSTOMERS a single dozen or more of Wines or Spirits, assorted or not, will be sent by any Railway Station in England, BOTTLES, CASKS, and CARRIAGES included, at an additional charge of 2s. per dozen on above prices. F.O.O. payable to W. W. Hughes.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY.

This celebrated and sweet delicious old mellow spirit is the very CREAM OF IRISH WHISKIES, in quality unrivalled, perfectly pure, and more wholesome than the finest Cognac Brandy. Note the Red Seal, Pink Label, and Cork Brand—Kinahan's LL Whisky. Wholesale—20, Great Titchfield-street, Oxford-street, W.

HOOPER'S BRIGHTON SELTZER, 4s.

per dozen. Six dozen carriage-free. To be obtained of all Chemists and Wine Merchants, or direct from the Manufacturer's London Depot, 7, Pall-mall East, E.W., and 55, Grosvenor-street, W.

THE DIPLOMA OF HONOUR, being the highest distinction, has been awarded to LIEBIG COMPANY'S EXTRACT OF MEAT. Acquire the Certificate, in the name of the Inventor (Baron Justus V. Liebig) signature on the Trade-Mark Label.

COMPAGNIE FRANCAISE (Limited),

Wholesale Manufacturers of and in CHOCOLATE, COCOA, COFFEE (as in France), CONFECTIONERY, &c. Thirty Gold and Silver Medals have been awarded. Every Article warranted pure, of the best quality, and at the lowest possible prices. To be obtained of first-class Grocers, Confectioners, and others. Factories—Barnesbury New-road, London; and in Paris.

CHOCOLAT MENIER for BREAKFAST.

AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Observe Trade Marks and Real Names.

CHOCOLAT MENIER for LUNCHEON.

AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Observe Trade Marks and Real Names.

MENIER'S COCOA. Sold in 1/2 and 1 lb.

packets and 1 lb. tin. AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Observe Trade Marks and Real Names.

MENIER'S ESSENCE of COCOA. Sold in 1/2 and 1 lb. tin. AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Observe Trade Marks and Real Names.

MENIER'S CHOCOLAT POWDER, Plain and Vanilla Flavour. Sold in 1/2 and 1 lb. tin. AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Observe Trade Marks and Real Names.

CHOCOLAT MENIER defies all honest competition. Annual consumption exceeds 8,000,000 lb. AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Observe Trade Marks and Real Names. Factories and Warehouses: Southwark-street and Worcester-street, Borough.

VIENNA INTERNATIONAL

EXHIBITION.—The "Medal for Progress" has been awarded to J. & FRY and SONS, Manufacturers of the celebrated Swiss Cocoa.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE and COCOA.

The award of the "Medal for Progress" at the Vienna Exhibition is a fresh proof of the high position assigned to the firm by a competent Jury.

FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.

"A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard. "The caracas cocoa of such choice quality."—Food, Water, and Air, Edited by Dr. Hasall. Nine Prize Medals awarded to J. & FRY and Sons.

E P P S'S COCOA.

By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast-tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. Civil Service Gazette. "Manufacturers of Cocoa." We will now give an account of the process adopted by Messrs. James Epps and Co., manufacturers of dietetic articles, at their works in the Boston-road, London. See article in Cassell's Household Guide.

Sold simply with boiling water or milk. Sold by Grocers in packets only, labelled, JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMOPATHIC CHEMISTS, 45, Threadneedle-street; and 170, Piccadilly. Work for Dietetic Preparation, Boston-road, London. EPPS'S GLYCERINE JUJUBES for Throat Irritation.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA.

Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder. Guaranteed all Cocoa with the excess of Fat extracted. Promoted by the Faculty "the most nutritious, perfectly digestible Beverage for BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER." Keeps in all Climates. Requires no Cooking. In Air-Tight Tins at 1s. 6d., 2s., 3s., 4s., 5s., 6s., 7s., 8s., 9s., 10s., 11s., 12s., 13s., 14s., 15s., 16s., 17s., 18s., 19s., 20s., 21s., 22s., 23s., 24s., 25s., 26s., 27s., 28s., 29s., 30s., 31s., 32s., 33s., 34s., 35s., 36s., 37s., 38s., 39s., 40s., 41s., 42s., 43s., 44s., 45s., 46s., 47s., 48s., 49s., 50s., 51s., 52s., 53s., 54s., 55s., 56s., 57s., 58s., 59s., 60s., 61s., 62s., 63s., 64s., 65s., 66s., 67s., 68s., 69s., 70s., 71s., 72s., 73s., 74s., 75s., 76s., 77s., 78s., 79s., 80s., 81s., 82s., 83s., 84s., 85s., 86s., 87s., 88s., 89s., 90s., 91s., 92s., 93s., 94s., 95s., 96s., 97s., 98s., 99s., 100s., 101s., 102s., 103s., 104s., 105s., 106s., 107s., 108s., 109s., 110s., 111s., 112s., 113s., 114s., 115s., 116s., 117s., 118s., 119s., 120s., 121s., 122s., 123s., 124s., 125s., 126s., 127s., 128s., 129s., 130s., 131s., 132s., 133s., 134s., 135s., 136s., 137s., 138s., 139s., 140s., 141s., 142s., 143s., 144s., 145s., 146s., 147s., 148s., 149s., 150s., 151s., 152s., 153s., 154s., 155s., 156s., 157s., 158s., 159s., 160s., 161s., 162s., 163s., 164s., 165s., 166s., 167s., 168s., 169s., 170s., 171s., 172s., 173s., 174s., 175s., 176s., 177s., 178s., 179s., 180s., 181s., 182s., 183s., 184s., 185s., 186s., 187s., 188s., 189s., 190s., 191s., 192s., 193s., 194s., 195s., 196s., 197s., 198s., 199s., 200s., 201s., 202s., 203s., 204s., 205s., 206s., 207s., 208s., 209s., 210s., 211s., 212s., 213s., 214s., 215s., 216s., 217s., 218s., 219s., 220s., 221s., 222s., 223s., 224s., 225s., 226s., 227s., 228s., 229s., 230s., 231s., 232s., 233s., 234s., 235s., 236s., 237s., 238s., 239s., 240s., 241s., 242s., 243s., 244s., 245s., 246s., 247s., 248s., 249s., 250s., 251s., 252s., 253s., 254s., 255s., 256s., 257s., 258s., 259s., 260s., 261s., 262s., 263s., 264s., 265s., 266s., 267s., 268s., 269s., 270s., 271s., 272s., 273s., 274s., 275s., 276s., 277s., 278s., 279s., 280s., 281s., 282s., 283s., 284s., 285s., 286s., 287s., 288s., 289s., 290s., 291s., 292s., 293s., 294s., 295s., 296s., 297s., 298s., 299s., 300s., 301s., 302s., 303s., 304s., 305s., 306s., 307s., 308s., 309s., 310s., 311s., 312s., 313s., 314s., 315s., 316s., 317s., 318s., 319s., 320s., 321s., 322s., 323s., 324s., 325s., 326s., 327s., 328s., 329s., 330s., 331s., 332s., 333s., 334s., 335s., 336s., 337s., 338s., 339s., 340s., 341s., 342s., 343s., 344s., 345s., 346s., 347s., 348s., 349s., 350s., 351s., 352s., 353s., 354s., 355s., 356s., 357s., 358s., 359s., 360s., 361s., 362s., 363s., 364s., 365s., 366s., 367s., 368s., 369s., 370s., 371s., 372s., 373s., 374s., 375s., 376s., 377s., 378s., 379s., 380s., 381s., 382s., 383s., 384s., 385s., 386s., 387s., 388s., 389s., 390s., 391s., 392s., 393s., 394s., 395s., 396s., 397s., 398s., 399s., 400s., 401s., 402s., 403s., 404s., 405s., 406s., 407s., 408s., 409s., 410s., 411s., 412s., 413s., 414s., 415s., 416s., 417s., 418s., 419s., 420s., 421s., 422s., 423s., 424s., 425s., 426s., 427s., 428s., 429s., 430s., 431s., 432s., 433s., 434s., 435s., 436s., 437s., 438s., 439s., 440s., 441s., 442s., 443s., 444s., 445s., 446s., 447s., 448s., 449s., 450s., 451s., 452s., 453s., 454s., 455s., 456s., 457s., 458s., 459s., 460s., 461s., 462s., 463s., 464s., 465s., 466s., 467s., 468s., 469s., 470s., 471s., 472s., 473s., 474s., 475s., 476s., 477s., 478s., 479s., 480s., 481s., 482s., 483s., 484s., 485s., 486s., 487s., 488s., 489s., 490s., 491s., 492s., 493s., 494s., 495s., 496s., 497s., 498s., 499s., 500s., 501s., 502s., 503s., 504s., 505s., 506s., 507s., 508s., 509s., 510s., 511s., 512s., 513s., 514s., 515s., 516s., 517s., 518s., 519s., 520s., 521s., 522s., 523s., 524s., 525s., 526s., 527s., 528s., 529s., 530s., 531s., 532s., 533s., 534s., 535s., 536s., 537s., 538s., 539s., 540s., 541s., 542s., 543s., 544s., 545s., 546s., 547s., 548s., 549s., 550s., 551s., 552s., 553s., 554s., 555s., 556s., 557s., 558s., 559s., 560s., 561s., 562s., 563s., 564s., 565s., 566s., 567s., 568s., 569s., 570s., 571s., 572s., 573s., 574s., 575s., 576s., 577s., 578s., 579s., 580s., 581s., 582s., 583s., 584s., 585s., 586s., 587s., 588s., 589s., 590s., 591s., 592s., 593s., 594s., 595s., 596s., 597s., 598s., 599s., 600s., 601s., 602s., 603s., 604s., 605s., 606s., 607s., 608s., 609s., 610s., 611s., 612s., 613s., 614s., 615s., 616s., 617s., 618s., 619s., 620s., 621s., 622s., 623s., 624s., 625s., 626s., 627s., 628s., 629s., 630s., 631s., 632s., 633s., 634s., 635s., 636s., 637s., 638s., 639s., 640s., 641s., 642s., 643s., 644s., 645s., 646s., 647s., 648s., 649s., 650s., 651s., 652s., 653s., 654s., 655s., 656s., 657s., 658s., 659s., 660s., 661s., 662s., 663s., 664s., 665s., 666s., 667s., 668s., 669s., 670s., 671s., 672s., 673s., 674s., 675s., 676s., 677s., 678s., 679s., 680s., 681s., 682s., 683s., 684s., 685s., 686s., 687s., 688s., 689s., 690s., 691s., 692s., 693s., 694s., 695s., 696s., 697s., 698s., 699s., 700s., 701s., 702s., 703s., 704s., 705s., 706s., 707s., 708s., 709s., 710s., 711s., 712s., 713s., 714s., 715s., 716s., 717s., 718s., 719s., 720s., 721s., 722s., 723s., 724s., 725s., 726s., 727s., 728s., 729s., 730s., 731s., 732s., 733s., 734s., 735s., 736s., 737s., 738s., 739s., 740s., 741s., 742s., 743s., 744s., 745s., 746s., 747s., 748s., 749s., 750s., 751s., 752s., 753s., 754s., 755s., 756s., 757s., 758s., 759s., 760s., 761s., 762s., 763s., 764s., 765s., 766s., 767s., 768s., 769s., 770s., 771s., 772s., 773s., 774s., 775s., 776s., 777s., 778s., 779s., 780s., 781s., 782s., 783s., 784s., 785s., 786s., 787s., 788s., 789s., 790s., 791s., 792s., 793s., 794s., 795s., 796s., 797s., 798s., 799s., 800s., 801s., 802s., 803s., 804s., 805s., 806s., 807s., 808s., 809s., 810s., 811s., 812s., 813s., 814s., 815s., 816s., 817s., 818s., 819s., 820s., 821s., 822s., 823s., 824s., 825s., 826s., 827s., 828s., 829s., 830s., 831s., 832s., 833s., 834s., 835s., 836s., 837s., 838s., 839s., 840s., 841s., 842s., 843s., 844s., 845s., 846s., 847s., 848s., 849s., 850s., 851s., 852s., 853s., 854s., 855s., 856s., 857s., 858s., 859s., 860s., 861s., 862s., 863s., 864s., 865s., 866s., 867s., 868s., 869s., 870s., 871s., 872s., 873s., 874s., 875s., 876s., 877s., 878s., 879s., 880s., 881s., 882s., 883s., 884s., 885s., 886s., 887s., 888s., 889s., 890s., 891s., 892s., 893s., 894s., 895s., 896s., 897s., 898s., 899s., 900s., 901s., 902s., 903s., 904s., 905s., 906s., 907s., 908s., 909s., 910s., 911s., 912s., 913s., 914s., 915s., 916s., 917s., 918s., 919s., 920s., 921s., 922s., 923s., 924s., 925s., 926s., 927s., 928s., 929s., 930s., 931s., 932s., 933s., 934s., 935s., 936s., 937s., 938s., 939s., 940s., 941s., 942s., 943s., 944s., 945s., 946s., 947s., 948s., 949s., 950s., 951s., 952s., 953s., 954s., 955s., 956s., 957s., 958s., 959s., 960s., 961s., 962s., 963s., 964s., 965s., 966s., 967s., 968s., 969s., 970s., 971s., 972s., 973s., 974s., 975s., 976s., 977s., 978s., 979s., 980s., 981s., 982s., 983s., 984s., 985s., 986s., 987s., 988s., 989s., 990s., 991s., 992s., 993s., 994s., 995s., 996s., 997s., 998s., 999s., 1000s., 1001s., 1002s., 1003s., 1004s., 1005s., 1006s., 1007s., 1008s., 1009s., 1010s., 1011s., 1012s., 1013s., 1014s., 1015s., 1016s., 1017s., 1018s., 1019s., 1020s., 1021s., 1022s., 1023s., 1024s., 1025s., 1026s., 1027s., 1028s., 1029s., 1030s., 1031s., 1032s., 1033s., 1034s., 1035s., 1036s., 1037s., 1038s., 1039s., 1040s., 1041s., 1042s., 1043s., 1044s., 1045s., 1046s., 1047s., 1048s., 1049s., 1050s., 1051s., 1052s., 1053s., 1054s., 1055s., 1056s., 1057s., 1058s., 1059s., 1060s., 1061s., 1062s., 1063s., 1064s., 1065s., 1066s., 1067s., 1068s., 1069s., 1070s., 1071s., 1072s., 1073s., 1074s., 1075s., 1076s., 1077s., 1078s., 1079s., 1080s., 1081s., 1082s., 1083s., 1084s., 1085s., 1086s., 1087s., 1088s., 1089s., 1090s., 1091s., 1092s., 1093s., 1094s., 1095s., 1096s., 1097s., 1098s., 1099s., 1100s., 1101s., 1102s., 1103s., 1104s., 1105s., 1106s., 1107s., 1108s., 1109s., 1110s., 1111s., 1112s., 1113s., 1114s., 1115s., 1116s., 1117s., 1118s., 1119s., 1120s., 1121s., 1122s., 1123s., 1124s., 1125s., 1126s., 1127s., 1128s., 1129s., 1130s., 1131s., 1132s., 1133s., 1134s., 1135s., 1136s., 1137s., 1138s., 1139s., 1140s., 1141s., 1142s., 1143s., 1144s., 1145s., 1146s., 1147s., 1148s., 1149s., 1150s., 1151s., 1152s., 1153s., 1154s., 1155s., 1156s., 1157s., 1158s., 1159s., 1160s., 1161s., 1162s., 1163s., 1164s., 1165s., 1166s., 1167s., 1168s., 1169s., 1170s., 1171s., 1172s., 1173s., 1174s., 1175s., 1176s., 1177s., 1178s., 1179s., 1180s., 1181s., 1182s., 1183s., 1184s., 1185s., 1186s., 1187s., 1188s., 1189s., 1190s., 1191s., 1192s., 1193s., 1194s., 1195s., 1196s., 1197s., 1198s., 1199s., 1200s., 1201s., 1202s., 1203s., 1204s., 1205s., 1206s., 1207s., 1208s., 1209s., 1210s., 1211s., 1212s., 1213s., 1214s., 1215s., 1216s., 1217s., 1218s., 1219s., 1220s., 1221s., 1222s., 1223s., 1224s., 1225s., 1226s., 1227s., 1228s., 1229s., 1230s., 1231s., 1232s., 1233s., 1234s., 1235s., 1236s., 1237s., 1238s., 1239s., 1240s., 1241s., 1242s., 1243s., 1244s., 1245s., 1246s., 1247s., 1248s., 1249s., 1250s., 1251s., 1252s., 1253s., 1254s., 1255s., 1256s., 1257s., 1258s., 1259s., 1260s., 1261s., 1262s., 1263s., 1264s., 1265s., 1266s., 1267s., 1268s., 1269s., 1270s., 1271s., 1272s., 1273s., 1274s., 1275s., 1276s., 1277s., 1278s., 1279s., 1280s., 1281s., 1282s., 1283s., 1284s., 1285s., 1286s., 1287s., 1288s., 1289s., 1290s., 1291s., 1292s., 1293s., 1294s., 1295s., 1296s., 1297s., 1298s., 1299s., 1300s., 1301s., 1302s., 1303s., 1304s., 1305s., 1306s., 1307s., 1308s., 1309s., 1310s., 1311s., 1312s., 1313s., 1314s., 1315s., 1316s., 1317s., 1318s., 1319s., 1320s., 1321s., 1322s., 1323s., 1324s., 1325s., 1326s., 1327s., 1328s., 1329s., 1330s., 1331s., 1332s., 1333s., 1334s., 1335s., 1336s., 1337s., 1338s., 1339s., 1340s., 1341s., 1342s., 1343s., 1344s., 1345s., 1346s., 1347s., 1348s., 1349s., 1350s., 1351s., 1352s., 1353s., 1354s., 1355s., 1356s., 1357s., 1358s., 1359s., 1360s., 1361s., 1362s., 1363s., 1364s., 1365s., 1366s., 1367s., 1368s., 1369s., 1370s., 1371s., 1372s., 1373s., 1374s., 1375s., 1376s., 1377s., 1378s., 1379s., 1380s., 1381s., 1382s., 1383s., 1384s., 1385s., 1386s., 1387s., 1388s., 1389s., 1390s., 1391s., 1392s., 1393s., 1394s., 1395s., 1396s., 1397s., 1398s., 1399s., 1400s., 1401s., 1402s., 1403s., 1404s., 1405s., 1406s., 1407s., 1408s., 1409s., 1410s., 1411s., 1412s., 1413s., 1414s., 1415s., 1416s., 1417s., 1418s., 1419s., 1420s., 1421s., 1422s., 1423s., 1424s., 1425s., 1426s., 1427s., 1428s., 1429s., 1430s., 1431s., 1432s., 1433s., 1434s., 1435s., 1436s., 1437s., 1438s., 1439s., 1440s., 1441s., 1442s., 1443s., 1444s., 1445s., 1446s., 1447s., 1448s., 1449s., 1450s., 1451s., 1452s., 1453s., 1454s., 1455s., 1456s., 1457s., 1458s., 1459s., 1460s., 1461s., 1462s., 1463s., 1464s., 1465s., 1466s., 1467s., 1468s., 1469s., 1470s., 1471s., 1472s., 1473s., 1474s., 1475s., 1

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1786.—VOL. LXIII.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1873.

WITH EXTRA SUPPLEMENT {SIXPENCE.
By Post, 6d.

"A LEISURE HOUR," BY W. M. WYLLIE.
FROM THE EXHIBITION AT THE DUDLEY GALLERY.

BIRTHS.

On the 7th inst., at Prague, Bohemia, Baroness Gudenan, of a son.
On the 13th inst., at 14, Park-street, Grosvenor-square, Lady Henry Vere Cholmondeley, of a daughter.
On the 9th inst., at 37, Hill-street, Lady Churston, of a son and heir.

MARRIAGES.

On the 11th inst., at Christ Church, Waterloo, by the Rev. H. Stanton Maye, Vicar of Fairfield, Liverpool, Andrew Kay, of Nottingham, London, to Elizabeth (Lizzie) Warre Caroline, eldest daughter of Warre B. Wells, Esq., Somerset House, Waterloo, near Liverpool. No cards.

On the 13th inst., at St. John's Church, Woolwich, by the Rev. J. Bent, William A. Brodribb, Cape Civil Service, to Frances Maria, widow of Major O. R. N. Lloyd, of Rookville, in the county of Roscommon, Ireland. No cards.

On the 23rd ult., at the parish church of St. Peter Basseterre, St. Christopher, by the Rev. George Yeo, assisted by the Rev. C. C. Culpeper, the Hon. Arthur Wyndham Holmes-Court, son of Lord Heytesbury, to Annie, daughter of the Hon. Thomas Berkeley, Vice-President of the General Council of the Leeward Islands.

On the 11th inst., at Ballymodan Church, Bandon, Sir Henry Monson de la Poer Beresford Peirse, Bart., to Lady Adelaide Mary Lucy Bernard, fifth daughter of the Earl and Countess of Bandon.

On the 13th inst., at Craigsands, Renfrewshire, the Hon. George A. Montgomerie, youngest son of the late Earl of Eglinton, to Janet Lucretia, daughter of the late Boyd Alexander Cunningham, Esq.

On the 19th inst., at the Church of the Assumption, formerly known as the Royal Bavarian Chapel, in Warwick-street, Regent-street, Lord Walter Talbot Kerr, son of the Marquis of Lothian, to Lady Amabel, youngest daughter of George Augustus, sixth Earl Cowper, and sister of the present peer.

DEATHS.

On the 3rd inst., at Gothenburg, suddenly, Mary, the beloved wife of H. P. Monkhouse, Esq.

On the 5th inst., at Bank House, Newbiggin-by-the-Sea, Mary, relict of the late Rev. Henry Parker, Rector of Hilderton, Alnwick, Northumberland.

On the 10th inst., at Chappelfleur, Linlithgowshire, John Congreve, Esq., late of Fitchy, Inverness-shire, only son of the late John Freer Congreve, Esq., Stony Stratford, Bucks.

On the 10th inst., at Darland, Chatham, Lord George Lennox, aged 80.
On the 5th inst., Elizabeth, the wife of Lord Henry Paget, aged 32 years.

* * The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOV. 29.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 23.
Twenty-fourth Sunday after Trinity.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m. the Rev. W. H. Milman, Minor Canon; 3.15 p.m., the Rev. Canon Gregory; 7 p.m., the Bishop of Peterborough (for the Additional Curate's Society).
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., the Rev. Canon Kingsley.
St. James's, noon, probably the Rev. John Edward Kempe, Prebendary, Rector of St. James's, Piccadilly.
Whitehall, 11 a.m. and 3 p.m., the Rev. Erskine W. Knollys.
Savoy, 11.30 a.m. and 7 p.m., the Rev. W. J. Loftie, Assistant Chaplain of the Savoy.
Temple Church, 11 a.m., probably the Rev. Dr. Vaughan, Master of the Temple; 3 p.m., the Rev. Alfred Ainger, Reader at the Temple.
French Anglican Church of St. John ("La Savoy"), Bloomsbury-street, services in French, 11 a.m. and 3.30 p.m., by the Rev. F. B. W. Bouverie, Incumbent.

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 24.
London Institution, 4 p.m. (Professor Duncan on the Carboniferous Period and the Formation of Coal).
Medical Society, 8 p.m.
Gresham Lecture, 7 p.m. (Dr. H. Wyld on Music).
Royal Geographical Society, 8.30 p.m. (Captain J. Moresby and the Rev. W. Wyatt Gill on New Guinea).
St. James's Hall, Monday Popular Concert, 8 p.m.
Institute of Actuaries, 7 p.m.
Crystal Palace, Chrysanthemum and Winter Flower Show.
South Kensington Museum, 2.30 p.m. (Mr. Ernst Pauer on Vocal, Instrumental, and Dance Music).
Society of Arts, Cantor Lecture, 8 p.m. (Mr. Norman Lockyer on Spectrum Analysis).
Royal Academy, 8 p.m. (Professor Barff on Chemistry).
Young Men's Christian Association, Exeter Hall, 8 p.m. (Rev. W. M. Puncheon on the Men of the Mayflower).
Institution of Surveyors, 8 p.m. (Mr. E. P. Squarey on Agricultural Geology).

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 25.
Michaelmas Term ends.
Croydon Races, November Meeting.
Institution of Civil Engineers, 8 p.m. (Mr. L. F. Vernon-Harcourt on the Harbour at Braye Bay, Alderney).
Royal Medical and Chirurgical Society, 8.30 p.m.
Croydon November Steeplechases, &c. (three days).
Gresham Lecture, 7 p.m. (Dr. H. Wyld on Music).
Dr. B. Behr's Lecture on German Literature at Willis's Rooms, 8 p.m.
Friend of the Clergy Corporation, general meeting for elections, at Willis's Rooms, noon.
Anthropological Institute, 8 p.m. (Mr. Rudler, Report on Anthropology at the British Association Meeting at Bradford: papers by Dr. G. W. Leitner and Mr. J. Park Harrison).
Crystal Palace, English opera, 8 p.m. ("Don Giovanni").

BIRMINGHAM CATTLE AND POULTRY SHOW.—The TWENTY-FIFTH GREAT ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF FAT CATTLE, SHEEP, PIGS, DOMESTIC POULTRY, CORN, ROOTS, and IMPLEMENTS, will be held at BINGLEY HALL, on SATURDAY, NOV. 29. Admission, 10s.; on Monday, Dec. 1, Admission, 5s.; Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, Dec. 2, 3, and 4, 1s. For Excursion Trains and other special railway arrangements see the advertisements and titles of the various companies.

MASKELYNE and COOKE, EGYPTIAN HALL.
NEW DRAWING ROOM.—These Wonderful and Only Recognized EXPOSERS OF SPIRITUALISM are giving TWO REPRESENTATIONS daily at Three and Eight. Box Office open from Ten till Five. Reserved Seats, 5s.; Reserved Seats, 2s.; Reserved Seats, 1s. Tickets also at Mitchell's, 28, Old Bond-street; Hay's, 4, Royal Exchange-building; and all Agents.

MARK TWAIN.—Mr. George Dolby has much pleasure in announcing that MARK TWAIN has arrived in London from America, and will make his reappearance at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS on MONDAY EVENING, DEC. 1, when he will deliver his HUMOROUS LECTURE ENTITLED OUR FELLOW-SAVAGES OF THE SANDWICH ISLANDS. The Lecture will be repeated Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight; and on Wednesday and Saturday Afternoons at Three. Stalls, 5s.; Reserved Seats, 2s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets are now ready, and may be obtained of Chappell (Cherry-street; Hay's, 4, Royal Exchange-buildings; Mr. George Dolby, 52, New Bond-street; and at the Hanover-square Rooms.

Sheriffs' Fund Society, Sessions House, Old Bailey, annual meeting, noon.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 26.
Princess Maud of Wales born, 1869.
London Institution, 7 p.m. (the Rev. M. Creighton on Dante).
British Archaeological Association, 8 p.m.
Rutland Agricultural Society: Exhibition at Oakham.
Royal Society of Literature, 8 p.m. (Dr. H. Brunn on the Demeter of Cnidus).
South Kensington Museum, 2.30 p.m. (Prof. Duncan on Geology).
Society of Arts, 8 p.m. (Sir Francis C. Knowles on the Manufacture of Iron and Steel).
St. James's Hall, 8 p.m., London Ballad Concerts (Mr. John Boosey).
Crystal Palace, Instrumental Concert.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27.
Princess Mary of Cambridge, Duchess of Teck, born, 1833.
Moon's first quarter, 8.13 a.m.
Re-election of the London School Board.
National Thanksgiving Day in the United States.
Middlesex Hospital, quarterly court, noon.
Infant Orphan Asylum, Wanstead, Election at the London Tavern.
National Benevolent Institution, anniversary, 10 a.m.
Middlesbrough Poultry Show.
Dramatic Authors' Society, committee, 2.30 p.m.
Crystal Palace, English opera (the last of the season), 3 p.m. ("Lucresia Borgia," 8 p.m., Mr. E. Pauer's Lecture on Haydn and Mozart).
Royal Academy, 8 p.m. (Professor Barff on Chemistry).
Royal Albert Hall Choral Society, 8 p.m., Mr. Barnby ("Israel in Egypt").
Royal Society, 8.30 p.m.
Society of Antiquaries, 8.30 p.m. (Dr. J. J. Howard on the Will of Edward Grimston, A.D. 1449; Mr. H. C. Coote on a Mithraic Inscribed Stone recently found near Bristol).
St. James's Hall, Mr. Walter Bache's Concert, 8 p.m.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 28.
Quekett Microscopical Club, 8 p.m.
Clinical Society, 8.30 p.m.
London Athletic Club, assault of arms at St. James's Hall.
Royal Hospital for Incurables, Putney, annual meeting, London Tavern, 11 a.m.
Crystal Palace, Chrysanthemum and Winter Flower Show.
South Kensington Museum, 8 p.m. (Professor Marshall on the Human Form).

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29.
Royal Horticultural Society, promenade, 2 p.m.
Birmingham Cattle and Poultry Show, and National Cat Show (five days).
Scottish Corporation Festival—the Lord Mayor in the chair.
St. James's Hall, Saturday Popular Concert, 8 p.m.
Crystal Palace, the London Rifle Brigade, and ninth Saturday Concert.

THE CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF THE
ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS
FOR 1873,
TO BE ISSUED ON DEC. 13, WILL CONSIST OF
A LARGE COLOURED ENGRAVING,
ENTITLED
LITTLE GOODY TWO-SHOES,
AND
TWO SHEETS AND A HALF
OF CHRISTMAS PICTURES, TALES, AND SKETCHES.

Among the Literary Contents will be—

TITA'S WAGER, by WILLIAM BLACK,

Author of "A Daughter of Heth," &c.;

THE LOVER'S LEAP, by R. D. BLACKMORE,

Author of "Lorna Doone," &c.;

UNDER THE MANGROVES, by CAPT. MAYNE REID,

Author of "The Death Shot," &c.

Price of the Christmas Double Number, ONE SHILLING; by Post, a HALFPENNY extra.

OFFICE, 198, STRAND, W.C.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE
NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.
Lat. 51° 28' 6" N.; Long. 0° 18' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF					THERMOM.		WIND.		General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.	Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Minimum, read at 10 a.m.	Maximum, read at 10 p.m.
November	Inches.	°	°	°	0-10	°	°			Miles.	In.
12	30.007	39.4	33.1	80	4	34.7	45.3	NE. ENE.		183	.000
13	29.845	36.3	34.1	92	—	27.0	44.0	ENE.		108	.000
14	29.995	43.5	38.9	75	9	36.2	47.8	NE. NNE.		426	.000
15	30.326	42.5	32.4	70	6	41.4	45.5	NE. ENE.		256	.000
16	30.435	42.1	30.0	70	10	37.0	44.9	NNE. N.		164	.000
17	30.420	43.2	39.2	87	10	41.0	45.1	N. NNE.		172	.000
18	30.317	43.4	39.0	86	10	41.5	45.1	NE.		143	.000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten a.m. :—
Barometer (in inches) corrected .. 30.070 29.863 29.955 30.308 30.442 30.457 30.357
Temperature of Air .. 39.0° 32.5° 43.5° 42.5° 42.4° 42.9° 44.1°
Temperature of Evaporation .. 36.2° 31.5° 41.7° 39.7° 39.7° 41.5° 41.7°
Direction of Wind .. ENE. ENE. NE. NE. N. N. N.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE
FOR THE WEEK ENDING NOVEMBER 29.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
3 40	4 0	4 20	4 40	5 2	5 2	5 20

STEAM.—LONDON TO CALCUTTA Direct, via Suez
Canal. Taking goods for Rangoon, Moulemein, Chittagong, and Akyah, at through rates.—CARLYLE BROTHERS and CO.'S DUCAL LINE OF STEAM-SHIPS. These magnificent, full-powered steam-ships have been built expressly for the trade, and will be found on inspection as fine and substantial vessels as have ever been built in this country. The cabins are elegant, light, and commodious, with every convenience for tropical climates, and are placed amidships, where there is the least motion. Each steamer is provided with bath-rooms (hot and cold water) and ice-house, and carries a surgeon and stewards.

	Tons.	Captain.	To Close.
Duke of Devonshire	3015	Whittle.	Dec. 24.
Duke of Sutherland	3015	Edward.	Jan. 20.
Duke of Buccleuch	3015	Barrie.	Feb. 20.
Duke of Argyll	3015		March 20.
Duke of Lancaster	3015

The Duke of Devonshire will be dispatched about Dec. 24. Rates of passage, for first-class passengers, 50s. and 55s., according to the accommodation required. For further particulars apply to Messrs. D. Greenfield, and Co., No. 1, East India Avenue, London-lane, London, E.C.; and No. 2, Drury-lane, Liverpool.

DORE'S GREAT PICTURE OF "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRETORIUM," with "The Night of the Crucifixion," "Christian Martyrs," "Francesca di Rimini," "Neophyte," "Andromeda," &c., at the DORE GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Ten to Six. Admission, 1s.

NINTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF WATER-COLOUR
DRAWINGS BY BRITISH AND FOREIGN ARTISTS is NOW OPEN at T. M'LEAN'S NEW GALLERY, 7, Haymarket.

THE SOCIETY OF PAINTERS in WATER COLOURS.
The TWELFTH WINTER EXHIBITION OF SKETCHES and STUDIES WILL OPEN on MONDAY, DEC. 1, 5, Pall-mall East. Ten till Five. Admission 1s. ALFRED D. FRIPP, Secretary.

S. T. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly.
Every Night at Eight; Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday, Three and Eight. ALL THE YEAR ROUND.

THE LONGEST ESTABLISHED and MOST POPULAR ENTERTAINMENT IN THE WORLD.

THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS.

NOW IN THE NINTH YEAR OF ONE CONTINUOUS SEASON AT THIS HALL, an event altogether unparalleled in the history of the world's amusements.

NO FEES or EXTRA CHARGES.

LADIES CAN RETAIN THEIR BONNETS IN ALL PARTS OF THE HALL.

New and Luxurious Private Boxes, acknowledged to be the finest in London, 1s. 11s. 6d. to 2s. 12s. 6d.; Fauteuils, 5s.; Sofa Stalls, 5s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. Tickets and places at Mitchell's, 33, Old Bond-street; Ollivier's, Old Bond-street; and at Austin's, St. James's Hall, from Nine a.m. till Ten p.m.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.
Conductor, Mr. Barnby. THURSDAY, NOV. 27, at Eight o'clock, Handel's ISRAEL IN EGYPT, with Additional Accompaniments (by G. A. Macfarren)—Miss Edith Wynn, Miss Ferrari, Madame Patey, Mr. Kerr Gedge, and Mr. Sims Reeves. Organist, Dr. Stainer. Boxes, £3 3s., and £1 10s.; Stalls, 7s. 6d. and 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets at Novello's, 1, Berners-street, and 35, Poultry; the usual Agents; and at the Royal Albert Hall.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY, EXETER HALL.
Conductor, Sir MICHAEL COSTA.—FRIDAY, DEC. 5, Handel's ISRAEL IN EGYPT. Principal Violoncello, Madame Sherrington, Madame Patey, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. M. Smith, Mr. Lewis Thomas, and Mr. Santley. Tickets, 3s., 5s., and 10s. 6d., now ready. Subscription for ten concerts, £1 1s., £2 2s., and £3 3s., at Exeter Hall.

DR. HANS VON BULOW will give his SECOND RECITAL in ST. JAMES'S HALL, on WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON, NEXT, NOV. 26 at Three o'clock precisely. The Programme will include Weber's Sonata in D minor, Beethoven's Sonata in A (op. 101), and selections from the works of Handel, Mendelssohn, Chopin, Mocheles, and Rubinstein. Sofa Stalls, 7s. 6d.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets may be obtained of Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co., 84, New Bond-street; Mitchell, 33, Old Bond-street; Keith, Frowse, and Co., 45, Chesapeake; Hay's, Royal Exchange-buildings; Mr. George Dolby, 52, New Bond-street; Czerny, 31, Beaufort-street; at Austin's Ticket Office, St. James's Hall, Piccadilly; and of Messrs. Chappell, 50, New Bond-street.

LONDON BALLAD CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL.
Under the direction of Mr. JOHN BOBBY.—EIGHTH YEAR. THREE CONCERTS will be given before Christmas, on WEDNESDAY EVENINGS, NOV. 26, DEC. 3, and 10. The First Concert, on WEDNESDAY NEXT, the following artists will appear—Miss Otto-Alvén, Miss Poyntis, and Madame Patey; Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Henry Jones, and Mr. Pyatt; Violin, M. Sautet; Pianoforte, Madame Carren; and Mr. H. Meyer Lutz. Prices of Admission: Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery and Orchestra, 1s. Tickets to be had of Austin, St. James's Hall, usual Music-sellers; and Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

MADAME SAINTON-DOLBY'S VOCAL ACADEMY.
The FIRST TERM in 1874 will commence on MONDAY, JAN. 13. Candidates for Admission can be received by Madame Sainton-Dolby, at her residence, 71, Gloucester-road, Hyde Park, W., on every Tuesday Afternoon, between the hours of Three and Five o'clock. Prospectuses may be obtained of Mr. George Dolby, 52, New Bond-street; and Messrs. Chappell, 50, New Bond-street, W.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, F. B. Chatterton.—Last Three Weeks of ANTONY and CLEOPATRA, and CLEOPATRA, concentrated into Four Acts and Twelve Scenes. Characters by Mr. James Anderson, Messrs. Ryder, H. Russell, A. Glover, Dolman, J. Morris, Thorne, M. D. Hyatt, Lickfold, Milton, Sanders, T. Clifford, and H. Sinclair; Miss W. Meddies, H. Coveney, Banks, Melville, Adeline Godde, and H. Sinclair; Miss W. Meddies with a Farceful Musical Eccentricity, in one act, entitled NOBODY'S BUSINESS After "Antony and Cleopatra," a Ballet Divertissement, in which Miss Kate Lester, her celebrated Ballet Troupe of Mr. Frederick Walker, Conductors, Mr. J. L. Lester, and Herr Meyer Lutz. Prices of Admission: Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery and Orchestra, 1s. Tickets to be had of Austin, St. James's Hall, usual Music-sellers; and Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET, now Open for the regular Season.—Every Evening at Seven, THE CRIMSON SCARF, and the Haymarket Comedy, in three acts, THE O'BRIEN ROUTE—Mr. Buckstone as the original character of Mr. Lovibond. Concluding with HIS FIRST CHAMPAGNE.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—50th Consecutive Night of Lord Lytton's Play, RICHELIEU.—Every Evening, at Seven, SIMPSON and CO. in the character of Miss Pouncefort. At Eight, RICHELIEU—Richelieu, Mr. Henry Jones, Messrs. John Clayton, Beaumont, Forester, Howard, Charles Carter, Edgar, and George; Miss Le Theatre, and Miss Isabel Bateman. Scenery by Henry Carter, Esq., and Musical Director, Mr. Robert Stoepel. Conclude with SIX MONTHS AND A DAY. Clayton. Box office open from Ten till Five. Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. L. Baines. Morning Performance of RICHELIEU to-morrow, Saturday, Nov. 22.

NATIONAL STANDARD THEATRE, Bishopsgate.
Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. John Douglas.—Last Week and grand scene of the great Adelphi Drama, THE WANDERING JEW—Messrs. B. Webster, F. Hamilton, Madames Alfred Mellon, Murray, Phillips, and Stella Brewster. 7808 Pictorial Vistas—Characters by the Company.

THE VICTORIA INSTITUTE, or PHILOSOPHICAL SOCIETY OF GREAT BRITAIN. Founded 1819.

Ninth Session.—The Meetings of this Session will be held at Eight o'clock on the following Mondays:—The first in December, and the first and third from the next January to May inclusive (except in April, when the meeting for the 6th will be held on 15th). The anniversary will be held on June 10th. Among the subjects to be taken up are:—The Identity of Reason in Science and Religion (R. Mitchell, Dec. 1); Buddhism (Bishop P. C. Claughton, D.D., Jan. 13); Between Crystallisation and Life (J. Elliot Howard, F.R.S., Feb. 2); Nature and Cause of Evidence for Scientific Purposes (Dr. M. C. Adams, March 2). Other papers are expected from Professors Dawson, Nicholson, Huxley, Morris, and others. Rev. W. J. Irons, D.D.; W. R. Cooper, Esq., and others favourable to the objects of the Institute will be invited to deliver addresses.

The Reading and Writing Rooms and Library are open from Ten to Six daily. This Institute was founded to associate Men of Science and Authors for the purpose of investigating, fully and impartially, the most important questions of Philosophy, Science, and Literature, and more especially those that bear upon the great truths of Scripture, with the view of reconciling any apparent discrepancies between Scripture and Science.

Among the subscribing members (four hundred and seventy-three at present) are:—Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury and many leading clergy and laymen; Professors of Oxford, Cambridge, and other Universities (both English and foreign); literary and scientific men. Subscriptions:—Members, 2s. (1 guinea entrance); Associates, 1 guinea; Students, 2s. 6d. or 10s.; Vice-presidents, 60 guineas. The Transactions are published in quarterly parts and annual volumes, which are sent free to members or associates at home or abroad. All information as to the admission of members or associates and their prices may be obtained on application by letter or otherwise. The lists for 1874 are now open. Apartments of the Society, 8, Adelphi-terrace, W.C., near Charing cross.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

LONDON, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1873.

Despatches have been received at the War Office from the Gold Coast. They contain tidings of some importance as well as of pleasant augury. They narrate in graphic terms the story of a small military expedition undertaken by the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, Major-General Sir Garnet Wolseley, with a view to punish the treachery of nominal allies in the Fantee country; and, at the same time, to impress the Ashantees with a due sense of British power. They bring out with sufficient distinctness the qualities of the men upon whom her Majesty's Government has devolved the heavy responsibility of welding the material force of the British empire in the Gold Coast Settlements, to beat back the incursions of the Ashantee King into the territory under British protection, and to exact from him binding engagements as to his future behaviour. The expedition—not of very formidable magnitude—was entirely successful. Its importance is chiefly due to the lessons which it will teach, or, it may be said, has already taught, the nominally friendly tribes on the Gold Coast, the Ashantees with whom we are at war, and the military authorities in Africa and at home to whom is committed the enterprise we have involuntarily undertaken.

The centre of the district within which the expedition detailed in the despatches was performed was the town of Elmina, westward of which a strip of the coast is dotted with villages, governed by Fantee chiefs ostensibly under the protection of British arms, but really, though secretly, in league with the enemy. These villages are at no great distance from Elmina, but are separate from it by seven or eight miles of dense bush, which the Ashantees had persuaded them would be found impenetrable by any European force. Accordingly, they allowed parties of the enemy to harbour there, and thence to receive supplies of ammunition by way of the sea, and to store them up in a dépôt in the bush, to be afterwards, as opportunity might occur, conveyed to the headquarters of the Ashantee army. The petty chiefs of these villages, having been summoned to Elmina to give account of themselves, and having consulted with their Ashantee friends, treated the summons with disdain. This state of affairs presented a fitting opportunity for Sir Garnet Wolseley to make the Ashantees acquainted with the kind of metal with which they would hereafter have to deal. Accepting a plan sketched out by the Commandant of Elmina, Lieutenant-Colonel Evelyn Wood, he forthwith adopted measures to have it carried into effect. It was indispensable to his success that all the preliminary steps towards the execution of those measures should be taken in such manner as not to excite the smallest suspicion as to the end which he had resolved upon achieving. The Fantee country swarms with spies, and the intentions of the British authorities, civil and military, are made known to the Ashantee chiefs almost as soon as they have been indicated or expressed. Sir Garnet Wolseley, therefore, effectually threw the Ashantees off the scent by a ruse de guerre. A rumour was quietly propagated over the whole neighbourhood that Captain Glover was in trouble at Addah, some hundred miles distant from Cape Coast Castle, and that he had made urgent application for prompt reinforcement. Sheltered by this fiction, Sir Garnet collected together a considerable portion of the naval and military forces within his reach, embarked them on a couple of her Majesty's steamers, and, by way of further confirming the false rumour, started with them towards the east. It was but a feint. In the darkness of the night the steamers reversed their course, and succeeded in landing at Elmina, before break of dawn, the troops which they conveyed, without the slightest hint of the fact having transpired to the Ashantee foe. A line of march was instantly organised. Altogether, some eight hundred men, comprising combatants and carriers, started for the bush, Sir Garnet Wolseley himself accompanying them. They succeeded, though not without meeting with opposition from concealed foes, in reaching the dépôt of which we have made mention, and in destroying its stores of ammunition and spirits. Then descending to the coast, they marched from one to another of the offending villages, already deserted by their inhabitants, and destroyed them by fire. The work which they had in hand being completed, they returned to Elmina the same night, with a loss of two men killed, and of less than a score wounded.

The moral effect of this dashing and highly successful military expedition is spoken of in the despatches which have come home as of the most gratifying character. It has reassured the wavering, it has reanimated the loyal, it has struck dismay into the ranks of the foe. The Ashantees have been wont to pride themselves upon the uniform success with which they resorted to strategical surprises. They have themselves been outwitted in their own line. They deemed themselves invincible by Europeans in the bush, and they have been met in the bush and beaten. Possibly both friend and foe have taken an exaggerated view of the affair, and the rumours which were in circulation on the Gold Coast when the despatches left may have arisen from excited imagination. To these rumours Sir Garnet Wolseley and Colonel Wood make no allusion in their several letters. Nevertheless, they may have some foundation in fact. It is said, for instance, that the Ashantees are withdrawing as speedily as possible to the other side of the river Pra, and are carrying with them the stores they have collected during the period of their irruption into Fantoo territory; and, we believe, credence may be given to the fact that the Major-General has opened communications with the Ashantee King, and stated the conditions, his compliance with which will constitute a basis of peace. We fear that the inference to be deduced from this information does not greatly tend to encourage hope in the early termination of the war. Sir Garnet himself has seen reason to conclude that even the best of his native levies will prove comparatively of little service to him, and, we believe, has applied for a considerable addition to the British force under his command. An arduous enterprise seems to be before him—an enterprise far more difficult and dangerous than even he had anticipated. He has given proof, however, of special capability to adapt his movements to the exigencies of the warfare in which he is engaged. Let us hope that the event will correspond with his desire and determination, and that before Parliament meets there will be a satisfactory end of this unexpected war, in which no advantage adequate to its cost is to be reaped, and no national glory to be gained.

Her Majesty has signified her intention of aiding, by a gift of £200, the Scottish Church extension scheme in Aberdeen.

The free library committee of the Manchester City Council has issued its annual report, which shows that the institution is working with great success and maintains its popularity. In the past year 609,462 volumes were issued for home reading, and 1,741,960 persons used the reading-rooms.

Sir John Aubyn, in laying the foundation-stone of a Wesleyan school at Camborne, yesterday week, observed that, though a Churchman, he was sensible that Nonconformists often entertained the kindest feelings towards the Church, and he desired to reciprocate them. Dr. James, the ex-President of the Wesleyan Conference, thanked Sir John for his attendance.

At a recent meeting of the Marine Society it was announced that donations of £1000 had been received from "W. T. S." for the Warspite training-ship, and £100 from the Naval Knights of Windsor. At the same meeting six orphans of seamen were apprenticed, in accordance with the terms of a bequest left by William Hickes, Esq., a merchant of Hamburgh, in the year 1762.

The death of Mr. Thomas Baring, the leading partner in the great mercantile firm of Baring Brothers and Co., and M.P. for Huntingdon, took place, on Tuesday evening, at Fontnell Lodge, Bournemouth, whither he had gone with the view of recruiting his shattered health. By the death of Mr. Baring a sixth seat is rendered vacant in the House of Commons. The others are Cambridgeshire, through the succession of Lord Royston to the earldom of Hardwicke; Exeter, through the elevation of Sir John Coleridge to the judicial bench; Oxford, through the appointment of Mr. Vernon Harcourt to the Solicitor-Generalship; Edinburgh and St. Andrew's Universities, through the appointment of Dr. Lyon Playfair to the office of Postmaster-General; and Haverfordwest, through the appointment of Lord Kensington as Groom in Waiting to the Queen. On Wednesday Lord Kensington, Liberal, and Colonel Peel, Conservative, were nominated for Haverfordwest. The polling takes place on Monday.

THE COURT.

The Queen, with Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold, continues at Balmoral Castle. Prince Leopold has been suffering from indisposition. If the health of his Royal Highness will permit, the Court will leave the Highlands on Tuesday next and return to Windsor Castle. The Queen gave a dance to the servants of the Royal household at Balmoral in celebration of the birthday of the Prince of Wales. Dancing took place in the servants' hall, her Majesty and Princess Beatrice, with the ladies and gentlemen in waiting, being present part of the time. On Thursday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, visited the barracks at Ballater, and inspected the detachment of the 78th Highlanders. Lady Cecilia Hay left, and Mr. R. Holmes arrived at, Balmoral. On the following day Sir John and Lady Clark dined with her Majesty, and passed the night at the castle. Sir William Jenner arrived at Balmoral. On Sunday the Queen and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service, performed at the castle by the Rev. Dr. Taylor. On Wednesday her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Beatrice, drove to Braemar; and, after changing horses at the Invercauld Arms Hotel, proceeded to Loch Callater, which was frozen over, the surrounding hills being covered with snow. The Queen and the Princess walked alongside the loch, and afterwards returned to Balmoral. Her Majesty has also taken her usual daily out-of-door exercise. The Queen held a council on Thursday, at Balmoral.

The Queen has appointed the Rev. Henry White, M.A., Chaplain to the House of Commons and of the Chapel Royal Savoy, and Honorary Chaplain to the Queen, to be one of the Chaplains in Ordinary to her Majesty; also the Rev. Francis James Holland, M.A., Minister of Quebec Chapel, Marylebone, and one of the six Preachers of Canterbury Cathedral, to be an Honorary Chaplain to her Majesty; and the Rev. Malcolm Campbell Taylor, D.D., Minister of Crathie, to be an Extra Chaplain in Ordinary to her Majesty in Scotland.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales returned to Sandringham House on Saturday last from visiting Lord Walsingham at Merton. His Royal Highness and the Princess of Wales received numerous guests at Sandringham, among whom were his Excellency the Belgian Minister, the Duke of St. Albans, Viscount and Viscountess Sydney, Lord Suffield, Sir Samuel and Lady Baker, Sir Arthur Helps, Sir John Rose, and the Rev. G. H. Wilkinson. Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Lowe were prevented by public business accepting their Royal Highnesses' invitation. On Sunday the Prince and Princess, Prince Albert Victor, and Prince George of Wales, with the several visitors, attended Divine service at St. Mary Magdalen's Church, Sandringham. The Rev. G. H. Wilkinson, Vicar of St. Peter's, Eaton-square, and the Rev. W. Lake Onslow officiated. On Monday the Prince left Sandringham on a visit to Mr. Villebois. Their Royal Highnesses' visitors also left. The Princess, with her children, continues at Sandringham.

THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH.

The Duke of Edinburgh presided at a meeting of the committee of management of the Royal Albert Hall Amateur Orchestral Society held, on Monday, at Buckingham Palace.

The Dean of Westminster will perform the Protestant service at the marriage of the Duke with the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia at St. Petersburg in January next. The Prince and Princess of Wales will be present. By direction of the Queen, the Lord Chamberlain and Lady Augusta Stanley (one of her Majesty's women of the bedchamber) will be present on the occasion.

Prince Arthur went to the Court Theatre on Wednesday.

His Excellency the Turkish Ambassador and the Mdles. Musurus arrived at the Turkish Embassy in Bryanston-square, on Saturday last, from Hampton.

His Excellency Count Beust has left the Austrian Embassy, Belgrave-square, on a visit to the Earl and Countess of Carnarvon, at Highclere Castle.

His Excellency the German Ambassador and the Countess Olga Münster have left Carlton House-terrace, on a visit to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and Countess Spencer, at the Viceregal Lodge, Dublin.

The Marquis of Headfort and Ladies Adelaide and Florence Taylour have left The Lodge, Virginia, for Underley Hall.

The Earl and Countess of Derby have arrived at Pau from Bordeaux.

The Earl of Malmesbury has arrived in town from Heron Court, near Christchurch.

The Dowager Countess of Morton and Lady Agnes Douglas have left town for Rome.

Lord Wenlock left Escrick Park on Saturday last for Bourton Cottage, Much Wenlock.

The Hon. Cornwallis Fleming Maude, son and heir apparent of Viscount Hawarden, attained his majority on Saturday last, when a deputation of the Tipperary tenantry presented a congratulatory address to Lord Hawarden and his son at Dundrum Castle.

The coming of age of the eldest son of Lord Hill-Trevor was celebrated at Brynkynalt, on Wednesday, with great rejoicing. Congratulatory addresses were presented and a public dinner was given. Lord and Lady Hill-Trevor gave a fancy-dress ball on the following day.

Dr. Lyon Playfair has been appointed to fill the office of Postmaster-General; and Mr. Vernon Harcourt has become Solicitor-General in succession to Mr. Henry James, who succeeds Sir J. D. Coleridge as Attorney-General. It is stated that Sir J. D. Coleridge, the new Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, will be raised to the Peerage.

A meeting of the Social Science Association was held on Monday, when a paper on "International Copyright" was read by Mr. T. Webster, Q.C., who, in speaking of copyright as affecting British authors in the colonies, United States, and foreign countries, said that property in intellectual labour was recognised by most civilised nations, and the laws of such property, as regards subject matter and ownership, may be regarded as substantially the same in all countries, but the practice and procedure are widely different. The assimilation of law, practice, and procedure affecting such property was one worthy the attention of the Social Science Association. In considering the subject it would be desirable to ascertain the actual state of the existing law, the difficulties and grievances which have arisen, or are alleged in its operation, and the suggestions made and schemes proposed for their removal. He then alluded to the various Acts relating to the law of copyright, which Acts are said to have proved a complete failure. The subject of the paper was discussed by the meeting, and amongst the speakers were Mr. Frederick Hill, Mr. White, and Mr. Longman, the latter observing that if copyright was property it should have extended to it the same protection as any other property.

The Extra Supplement.

"MENDING THE OLD CRADLE."

This pleasing incident of domestic life in a comfortable working-class family, which is the subject of a picture by Mr. A. Stocks, shown at the last Royal Academy Exhibition, tells its own tale of happy marriage and parental affection. We heartily congratulate the good young husband and father upon his opportunity of doing such a timely job of carpentry for the sweet-looking woman and her baby, who are watching his easy work. The artist may have intended to suggest, by the introduction of pussy and her kitten, a blessed truth of kindly Nature's ways touching the universality of the maternal instinct; or he may only have sought to relieve the simplicity of his main subject with a little by-play in that corner. Some doubt will perhaps arise concerning the relation of the little girl holding the kitten to the youthful matron, whom we are glad to see doing so well after her recent gift of a new recruit to the army of humanity. It can scarcely be supposed, in the absence of positive testimony, that she is the mother of such a child, apparently nine years old; and, if it were so, why then it would be natural to look round for several intermediate brothers and sisters, who should have taken their turns in the same cradle before the advent of the present baby. We prefer to believe that the cherished and honoured wife has been permitted to invite her little sister, perhaps an orphan, to share the modest home where the love of an honest and industrious man has placed her, not more than two or three summers ago; but, whatever be the date of their happy union, they shall have our best wishes for the future tenour of their peaceful life.

"A LEISURE HOUR."

Old Isaak Walton's "Complete Angler," comprehensive as are its pretensions, does not recognise such a disciple of the gentle art as this—does not furnish any moral reflections appropriate to his present circumstances. How then are we, having but a very limited acquaintance with angling or fishing of any kind, to put into "ship-shape" any comments worthy of the occasion? Even if we asked the boy himself to account for his being thus memorialised on canvas he might reply, almost in the words of the needy knife-grinder, "Story, God bless you, I have none to tell, Sir." Of him, also, it may possibly be said, "His hat has got a hole in it—so have his breeches." Yet, humble sea-waif though he be, we will venture to say that he does not answer to somebody's contemptuous definition of an angler—"a hook at one end of a line and a fool at the other." No: he is not spending his time foolishly, as that glistening bunch of mackerel, which, too, he knows well how to dress and bring to table, amply testifies. Cabin-boy and cook, probably, on board a coaster, his duties are many and various. 'Tis he that boils the pork and greens and concocts the mighty sea-pie. When in port, 'tis he that acts as valet and body servant when the skipper dons the white shirt front and black satin waistcoat, the steel watchguard and chimney-pot hat, and goes in state to see his owners or consignees. Young as he is, the boy has seen men and cities, his ideas are cosmopolitan, he has fine foreign phrases, he will tell you of "Haver" and "Deep" (meaning Havre and Dieppe), and knows what a gale in the Bay of Biscay is like. Sometimes, when the work is done, and a gentle breeze ruffles the surface of the deep, he puts out his mackerel lines, as now, and so usefully beguiles "a leisure hour." And who does not know the ship's dog, the natural friend and ally of the boy? The dog's keen relish of the sport is quite in keeping with his proverbial sagacity. This amusing and very well-painted picture (which we engrave from the exhibition at the Dudley Gallery) is by Mr. W. M. Wyllie, the father of two young and promising painters, whose sea-coast and shipping subjects are already very favourably known to the public. The copyright of the picture belongs to Mr. Lloyd, of Gracechurch-street.

An intimation has been received by the treasurer that the Rev. Charles Ingleby, late of Wood Bank, Cheddle, has bequeathed £19 19s. to the Devonshire Hospital, Buxton.

At a public meeting in the Townhall, Manchester, on Wednesday, it was agreed to raise funds for six Manchester Scholarships at Norwood Normal College for the Blind.

The Aldershot season closed, on Thursday week, with a brilliant sham fight. The 19th and 20th Hussars, 93rd Highlanders, 19th, 38th, and a few battalions of the 14th and 16th formed the attacking force; the defenders were the Scots Greys, part of the 20th Hussars, 79th Highlanders, and battalions of the 103rd and the Rifle Brigade.

Nature states that the Copley medal and the two Royal medals in the gift of the Royal Society have this year been awarded as follow:—The Copley medal to Professor Helmholtz, the distinguished physiologist, physicist, and mathematician, of Berlin; a Royal medal to H. E. Roscoe, F.R.S., Professor of Chemistry in Owens College, Manchester; and a Royal medal to Dr. Allman, Professor of Biology in the University of Edinburgh.

The Bristol Chamber of Commerce has adopted a memorial for presentation to the Chancellor of the Exchequer, complaining of the unjust operation of the Adulteration Act as affecting tea-dealers, and praying that Government analysts may be appointed to test all teas on landing.—The anniversaries of the four societies which annually commemorate the good deeds of the Bristol philanthropist, Edward Colston, were held on Thursday week—the Anchor (Liberal) for the 105th time, the Dolphin (Conservative) for the 124th time, the Grateful (neutral) for the 113th time, and the Parent (also neutral).

Mr. J. W. Walton has just completed a large portrait-picture intended to be historically commemorative of "The First London School Board." The picture represents the members of the board as assembled at one of their most animated meetings; and those of the members who have been most conspicuous in the cause of education occupy a corresponding prominence in the artist's work. A plan of the school in Old Castle-street, Whitechapel—the first opened under the auspices of the board—lies on the table. The portraits—which, we are informed, have been in nearly every case painted from nature—are evidently faithful; and among those which will be most readily and widely recognised are Lords Lawrence and Sandon, Sir Thomas Tilson, Canons Miller and Barry, Doctors Rigg, Angus, and Cromwell, Professor Huxley, Messrs. Samuel Morley, W. H. Smith, C. Reed, Alex. McArthur, Freeman, Currie, Green, Lucraft, Hepworth Dixon, and McGregor, and Mrs. Garrett Anderson. The great difficulty, in all pictures containing many portraits, of avoiding formality in the grouping has been successfully overcome; and, although greater breadth of light and shade might be desiderated from an artistic point of view, no single likeness has been sacrificed to pictorial requirements. An engraving of the picture is to be published by Mr. H. Graves, and will no doubt be acceptable to many.

SKETCHES IN CHINA AND JAPAN.

THE CAVE OF MOSHIMA, JAPAN.

Our Special Artist, Mr. Simpson, writes as follows upon the Shanghai passenger-boat, which is called a sanpan, and which is the subject of one of his sketches:—

"On reaching Shanghai and going ashore on board a sanpan, I was much struck to find the inside of the slight awning of mats, which is peculiar to these boats, neatly covered with cuttings from the illustrated newspapers, the Illustrated London News and Punch being the greatest favourites. In fact, so addicted are the Chinamen to these two journals, one might suppose that all the sanpans on the Woosung river were hired as advertising mediums, in the same way that omnibuses and railway carriages are in England. These sanpan Celestials are not men of wealth, so it is difficult to suppose that they can all be subscribers to the two journals above named. This suggests a curious problem as to where they find the pictures with which to decorate the cabin of their boats. I saw they were pictures of a tolerably late date, the paper all clean and fresh, and neatly pasted on. The boatmen seem proud of them, and are pleased when the passenger takes notice of what is manifestly an evidence of taste on their part. There are many hundreds of these boats on the rivers, and I doubt if there is one that is not decorated as here described. The word 'sanpan' means 'three planks, suggesting that it is a development from something like the catamarans of Madras, which are formed of three pieces of wood.

A SANPAN AT SHANGHAI.

A circular cover, formed of reeds and matting, is over the seat for the passenger in the centre, and the man is behind, where he propels the boat with a rudder, or large oar, which he uses something in the way we scull with one oar. These sanpans are kept very clean, and are bright with red and white paint; a cushion and red cloth form the seat. A gallery of illustrations all round, and a good-natured Chinaman to deal with, necessarily forces on one's mind the contrast with boatmen, cabmen, and all similar classes at home, the contrast telling very much in favour of the Celestial."

In the other sketch engraved for this Number our Artist's pencil transports us to Japan. He visited the singular temple, with its colossal bronze statue, of the deity called the Dai Bootz, which is in the place of Kamakura, not very far distant from Yokohama. Thence he went to see the Cave of Moshima. This is an island about five or six miles to the west of Dai Bootz. There is a narrow neck of sand, which is dry at low water, and you can then walk or ride to the island. The name means the "Island in the Bay." The cave seems to be a place of pilgrimage. You enter the village at the end of the neck of sand by a tori, or gate, which is peculiar to temples in Japan, and you pass several of them on the path over the island to the cave. The cave is a great fissure in the rock, with a slight, slippery path on the side to enter by. The sea runs up the cave for some twenty or thirty yards, and sends its waves splashing on the narrow way, so that those entering have to look out if they wish to keep their feet dry. About thirty yards farther on there is a small temple of wood, richly girt; this is dedicated to the goddess of the cave. Behind the temple the cave is very low and narrow, but the pilgrims can penetrate about a hundred yards beyond. The views from Mianima, looking towards Olawarra and the volcanic mountain of Pasiyama, are very fine.

GEORGIAN MOUNTAINEERS.

GEORGIAN MOUNTAINEERS.

The provinces of Georgia, Mingrelia, and Imeritia, extending along the south-western slopes and valleys of the Caucasus, between the Caspian and the Black Sea, are now likely to become more familiar to European travellers through the opening of the Poti and Tiflis Railway. M. Gustav Kalarantoff, a Russian artist and photographer at Tiflis, has furnished us with a collection of figures illustrative of the strangely mixed races of people inhabiting those districts; and we have received a few others from a different hand. In the eastern parts, belonging to Georgia, there is a large admixture of the Armenians, who have mostly laid aside their national dress and customs; but the so-called Tartars and the Kuris may be readily distinguished. These commonly spoken of as Tartars, at Erivan and Baku, have nothing of the Mongol physiognomy, but are one of the handsomest races of mankind. The beauty of their women is concealed, indeed, by their wearing a thick veil, as prescribed by Mohammedan law. These people are more probably derived from a Persian immigration, or from Arabs of Mesopotamia, driven northward by Tartar conquests, than from the Tartar stock. As for the Kuris, they are regarded as the descendants of the ancient Medians, or highlanders next to Persia. They lead a wandering life, and get their subsistence by the breeding of cattle, but in the Caucasian provinces are said to behave as quiet and honest folk. Their costume is not unlike that of the Turks; they are of brown complexion, with rugged and angular features. Their present chieftain, Djafar Aga, who governs the Kurish tribes of the Caucasus, holds the rank of General in the Russian army, having done good service to that empire in its wars in Turkestan.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

(From our Correspondent in Paris.)

PARIS, Thursday, Nov. 20.

The Government has been victorious in the Assembly, and by majorities that their most sanguine adherents could hardly have hoped for.

After the Committee of Fifteen had spent a week in examining the various proposals and amendments for prolonging Marshal MacMahon's powers, and M. Laboulaye had prepared an elaborate report of something like fifty folio pages, the illusions of those who still dreamed of a five years' continuation of the Pact of Bordeaux—the famous truce of parties—were swept mercilessly away by a second message of the President of the Republic.

The Assembly met on Monday with the view of discussing the Committee's report, which M. Laboulaye had read at the close of Saturday's sitting; but the situation assumed quite a fresh aspect on the Duc de Broglie mounting the tribune and reading the new Presidential communication. By this document, the wording of which is calculated to wound the susceptibilities not merely of the Republicans, but of all the supporters of legal government, the Marshal insists upon the prolongation of his powers for seven years, and upon their not being made dependent on the voting of the Constitutional laws. The message concludes by declaring that, should the Assembly prolong the Marshal's term of office, he will resolutely defend Conservative principles, for he is convinced that the majority of the nation is as firmly attached to these principles as the majority of the Assembly. The reading of the Message was followed by a short debate, M. Laboulaye demanding that the Assembly should adjourn until the following day, and the Right only allowing the Committee of Fifteen an interval of two hours to prepare an answer to the message. On the Chamber meeting again at five o'clock, however, M. Laboulaye explained that it was necessary that the Committee should confer with the Ministers, and the sitting was eventually raised.

The scene on Tuesday was exciting in the extreme. The diplomatic tribune was filled with Ambassadors and Ministers Plenipotentiary, and the elite of the French political and literary worlds occupied the seats reserved for the general public. M. Laboulaye opened fire by a short speech, in which he declared that the Committee of Fifteen maintained its conclusions by which the prolongation of the Marshal's powers for five years is made dependent on the voting of the Constitutional bills. M. Bertauld, who is an authority in the House on matters of jurisprudence, then mounted the tribune. His speech was in every respect a great success. Turning to the Legitimists, he asked them if they were willing to promise not to plot for the restoration of the Monarchy, during the seven years' prolongation of Marshal MacMahon's powers, to which question M. Duhirel, an eccentric member of the Extreme Right, immediately answered "No!" causing no little sensation among the other groups of the Chamber. M. Bertauld then demanded of the Right Centre whether they promised not to conspire for the appointment of another President or Lieutenant-General of the country; and of the Left Centre if they would swear not to attempt anything in favour of the Republic? He declared himself in favour of the maintenance of the Pact of Bordeaux, and concluded a powerful address by reminding the Duc de Broglie of the story of Bolingbroke, who, for conspiring for the return of the Stuarts, was impeached, condemned, and forced to go into exile. "Now," said M. Bertauld, "I do not demand that the Vice-President of the Council be impeached and exiled from his country, but I do demand that he be exiled from the Ministry"—words which were, of course, most frantically applauded by the Left. The next speaker was M. Prax-Paris, an Imperialist, who advocated a plebiscite, and condemned the Duc de Broglie's conduct in forcible language. After him came the Marquis de Castellane, who defended the proposals of the Right, but whose address was thoroughly eclipsed by the powerful oration of M. Jules Simon. With pitiless logic the ex-Minister of Public Instruction easily exculpated M. Thiers from the charge of having been a "personal monarch"; and heaped facts upon facts to show that all the concessions refused to the late President of the Republic were granted tenfold to Marshal MacMahon. "The Monarchists," he exclaimed, "afraid of the triumph of M. Thiers, do not think of the law, they think only of him. They thought only of him when they reconciled the Count de Chambord to the Count de Paris. They paid no attention to principles, and the exile of Frohsdorf himself had to remind them of them. Today also they forget their principles, and prefer a personage to a constitution." M. Jules Simon spoke of the Marshal with profound respect, but he reminded the Assembly that he was not the man of the 18th Brumaire—he did not possess the genius of Napoleon nor the traditions of the Bourbons. He would never be anything else than the Sovereign of a day, whose sole claim to power would consist in a majority of ten votes, which he would not have obtained had the Government convoked the unrepresented electoral colleges. M. Simon was followed by M. Cheureuil, who defended his opponent during the Fusionist intrigues, and M. Ernoul, Minister of Justice, who in vain attempted to reply to M. Simon's arguments.

The three principal speeches yesterday (Wednesday) were successive demands for a plebiscite. The first was urged by M. Rouher, who caused sensation among the Conservatives by warning them that their septennial presidency might prove the foundation of a Republic; the second was advanced by M. Magné, a Republican; and the third by M. Roual Daval, who went so far with the Left as to declare that if the people wanted a Republic they should have one. M. Laboulaye, the reporter of the Committee, argued that a dissolution, followed by regular elections, would gain the same end as a plebiscite, and in a safer way. The amendment in favour of an appeal to the people was voted upon, and rejected by 499 against 53. Then M. Dupeyre, arguing that the proposition of the majority of the Committee implied distrust of Marshal MacMahon, brought on the second vote, to decide whether the President's powers should be conferred for seven years independently of the vote of the Constitutional laws. M. Laboulaye did his best to oppose this measure, proposed by the minority of the Committee. At a night sitting the Duc de Broglie supported it on behalf of the Government; urging that by the counter-proposal the President would exercise power under existing conditions at present, and afterwards in accordance with the Constitutional laws. M. Grévy concluded a long speech, loudly applauded by the Left, by protesting against an institution which would be a usurpation full of dangers and calamities. M. Buffet then put the first clause of the counter-proposal to the vote—that the executive power should be conferred upon Marshal MacMahon for seven years from the time of the promulgation of the present law, and that the power should continue to be exercised, with the title of President of the Republic, under the present conditions, until the modification which the Constitutional laws might bring about. This clause was adopted by 383 against 317, giving a majority for the Government of 66. This amounted to a definite defeat of the bill of the Committee. Next M. Waddington supported an amendment reproducing clause 3 of the Committee's bill, and setting forth that the article defining the President's term of office should not have a Constitutional character till after the organic laws were passed. This amendment was rejected by a similar majority. With two other votes distinctly and at all points defeating the Left, the memorable sitting terminated. The Assembly adopted, by 370 votes against 330, a proposal of the minority of the Committee declaring that a committee of thirty to report on the Constitutional laws should be appointed by ballot at a public sitting. "The Left demanded that this committee should be appointed by the Bureaux, as was the Committee of Fifteen; but the Assembly, by 375 against 310, adopted the entire counter-proposal of the minority of the Committee of Fifteen." Thus the Government is victorious. The next sitting will take place on Monday.

After Wednesday night's sitting of the Assembly, the Ministers went to Marshal MacMahon and tendered their resignation. The Marshal requested them to retain their portfolios until a new Ministry had been formed. It is believed that this will be effected before next Monday.

Measures of precaution have been adopted by the Government to prevent any disturbance, and patrols of dragoons are passing along the leading thoroughfares.

While the Assembly have been disputing over the question of prolonging the Marshal's powers, France has once more affirmed her Republican convictions by returning Generals Sausier and Letellier-Valazé at the head of the poll in the departments of the Aube and the Seine-Inferieure. At Friday's sitting of the Chamber, M. Philopoteaux, an obscure member of the Left Centre, brought forward a project rendering officers in active service ineligible for election as deputy, a project which was received with unbounded applause by the Right, who declined, however, to vote the urgency of a counter-project pronouncing the ineligibility of Ambassadors and public functionaries generally. This disgraceful electoral manoeuvre failed, however, in preventing the return of the two Generals: the first of whom obtained 30,203 votes to 12,844 given to M. Argence, his Bonapartist opponent; and the latter 83,069 votes against 48,290 given to M. Desgenettes, a Royalist.

The trial of Marshal Bazaine has continued at Trianon throughout the week, but until Monday the evidence was of an uninteresting character. On that day M. Blondin, who at the time of the siege was director of the Bank of France in Metz, and now occupies a similar post in Lyons, deposed that on Aug. 20 General Coffinières urged him to conceal the money which he had in the bank, telling him at the same time that the Prussians would be in Metz in the course of a few days. This evidence made a great impression on those in court; and, after several witnesses had deposed to the effect that communication between Metz and the rest of France was easy until the end of August, the sitting was raised, amid considerable agitation. On Tuesday General Bourbaki was examined. He related that Marshal Bazaine had introduced him to Regnier, who said he had been sent by the Empress, and stated that she and Prince Bismarck were on the point of concluding peace, and that she required the presence of General Bourbaki at Chiselhurst. The General set out with this ambiguous envoy, who was remarkably familiar with all the Prussian generals and officers they met; and on arriving alone at Hastings he discovered that the Empress knew little or nothing of him and his negotiations. M. Bourbaki concluded his evidence, which was very damaging to Marshal Bazaine, by relating the circumstances under which he was induced to offer his sword to the Government of National Defence. M. Regnier was called as a witness yesterday (Wednesday), but did not appear. Generals Coffinières, Jarras, Arnous, and Rivière, and M. de Kératry were examined, but nothing of importance was elicited.

Colonel Stoffel, who, it will be recollected, alluded in his evidence to General Rivière's report as only being worthy of his contempt and disgust, has been tried for that offence by the Versailles Correctional Tribunal. He refused to retract the expressions, but expressed his regret that temper led him to forget the place in which he gave utterance to his feelings. He was sentenced to three months' imprisonment, but is reported to have appealed to a higher tribunal.

SPAIN.

Don Carlos has ordered a medal to be struck, commemorating the engagement of Monte Jura. This token will be conferred on all the Carlist adherents who took part in that affair. In a flattering letter to Elio, Don Carlos has appointed that officer Captain-General of the Carlist army, the rank being equivalent to that of Marshal. The command-in-chief of the Carlist forces in Valencia has been intrusted to Palacios. Carlist advices claim a victory over General Loma while he was attempting to retake Tolosa. On the other hand, the Carlists are reported to have been repulsed with severe losses in an attack upon Bagnolas. From Barcelona we learn that three companies of regular troops, who were sent to Mombay to replace some volunteers who had been ordered to disarm, fraternised with them, and paraded the streets, shouting "Long live the Federal Republic!" A strong column had ultimately to be sent to disarm the volunteers. It is announced that the British Consul is now the only foreign diplomatist agent remaining at Carthagena.

Further particulars of the Cuban executions which have reached New York state that they were perpetrated in the face of emphatic consular protests, and aggravated by disrespectful treatment of the American Consul. A communication from the Foreign Office confirms the report that sixteen British subjects were among the crew of the Virginians executed at Santiago. On learning this, Earl Granville instructed the English Minister at Madrid, the Consul-General at Havana, and the Vice-Consul at Santiago that her Majesty's Government would hold the Spanish Government and all persons concerned responsible for further executions of British subjects. There are seven of these among the surviving prisoners—six of them coloured lads under age. A reported execution of fifty-seven prisoners on the 10th inst. is denied. Her Majesty's ship Niobe arrived at Santiago on the 8th, and since that date no more of the prisoners have been shot. The captain of the Niobe had, it seems, very actively interfered on behalf of the British and other foreign prisoners in the hands of the Spaniards. It appears from a report which reached Washington on Tuesday that of the men belonging to the Virginians who escaped death four have been sentenced to imprisonment in chains for life, and three to eight years' imprisonment. The remainder have been liberated. Active negotiations continue between the British, United States, and Spanish Governments. President Grant has decided to submit the whole matter to Congress; but meanwhile naval preparations are being actively carried on. Senor Castelar has declared that Spain will make every preparation in her power, consistent with justice and honour. It is stated at Havana that numerous arrests have been made in connection with a conspiracy, the object of which was to aid the landing of the Virginians expedition. A battle, lasting four hours, has been fought in the central department between the Spanish troops and the Cuban insurgents. The latter were completely routed, with a loss of one hundred killed. The Spanish lost fifty-four killed.

ITALY.

King Victor Emmanuel opened the Parliament on Saturday. In the course of his speech his Majesty said that Italy had shown that Rome could become the capital without diminishing the independence of the Pope in his spiritual relations with the Catholic world. The Government, however, while respecting religious feeling and religious liberty, would not allow the law to be violated. The King then referred to the satisfactory state of the foreign relations, specially alluding to his visit to the Emperor of Austria and the Emperor William. Italy and Germany had both constituted themselves, he said, a principle of nationality. The relations between the two Governments were in conformity with the sympathies existing between the two nations, and formed a guarantee for the maintenance of peace. His Majesty next referred to various measures relating to the army, the navy, and the finances, and concluded by declaring that, as in the past, he had confidence in the nation, and the nation had confidence in him. His Majesty was enthusiastically cheered, and the speech is said to have produced a very favourable impression on the public mind.

The Chamber of Deputies has elected Signor Biancheri to the post of President by 189 votes out of 228. Signori Pannelli, Restelli, and Pivoli have been elected Vice-Presidents.

The Pope receives the members of the American and German Colleges on Sunday.

A convention has been signed by the delegates of the Roma Railway Company and the Government for the purchase of the line by the latter.

The committee appointed to carry out the liquidation of the ecclesiastical property took possession of eight more convents yesterday week.

GERMANY.

Berlin telegrams indicate a decided improvement in the health of the German Emperor. His Majesty has conferred the honorary colonelcy of the 1st Regiment of Artillery upon Archduke William of Austria. It is stated that the Emperor has given his consent to the introduction of a bill rendering civil marriage obligatory.

A Berlin despatch states that Herr von Blankenburg has declined the office of Minister of Agriculture, which was offered him a fortnight ago.

In Saturday's sitting of the Chamber of Deputies, Herr von Beamingsen (National Liberal) was elected President by 261 votes out of 346. Herr Lowe-Kalbe (Party of Progress) with a relatively equal number of votes, was elected as the first Vice-President, and Herr Friedenthal (Liberal Conservative) as second Vice-President. The Minister of Finance stated on Monday that there was a surplus for 1872 of 27,720,055 thalers, of which 12,500,000 would be available for 1874. The public debt had been reduced in 1872 to the extent of 80,000,000 thalers. According to the estimates for 1874 the expenditure will be 231,699,236 thalers, and the revenue the same.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

In Tuesday's sitting of the Austrian Lower House the Minister of Finance submitted the estimates for 1874. The expenditure amounts to 387,300,000 fl., or 2,500,000 fl. less than in the preceding year, and the revenue to 389,800,000 fl., leaving a surplus of 2,500,000 fl. to be carried forward to 1875. The Minister of Finance includes in his estimate of the revenue the sale of the Rentes authorised by the Chambers in 1871 and 1873, but which has not hitherto been effected, and also the balances of the Central Treasury. The Minister states that up to the end of September the financial crisis had had no perceptible effect on the public revenues, and that the receipts from indirect taxation up to that time exceeded those of 1872 by nearly 3,000,000 fl.

Arrangements are nearly completed for the issue of a new Hungarian loan of 150,000,000 fl. in the form of five-year bonds, with interest payable in gold.

INDIA.

Some idea has been formed by the Indian Government as to the extent of the rice famine impending over a portion of the Bengal presidency. It is estimated that over an area which contains a population of 25,000,000 the yield of grain will be less than half, or about three eighths of an average crop. The Administration has already sanctioned an outlay of a quarter of a million sterling for the purchase of rice and the execution of public works in the districts threatened. Some further news of preparations to meet the famine is telegraphed by the Times correspondent at Calcutta. Sir G. Campbell, by the Times correspondent at Calcutta, has issued detailed orders for Lieutenant-General of Bengal, has issued detailed orders for the famine relief, and urged the prohibition of food export. The Viceroy declines such a measure. In the meanwhile Sir George Campbell asked a credit of half a million sterling, but is directed to use the provincial funds to the extent of a quarter of a million sanctioned for grain. The press recommends the importation of food from America. Advances are offered to landholders to import cheaply, and, at 6 per cent, to traders unconditionally. Inland transport is organised.

The Viceroy entered Agra on Friday last. There was a procession of fifty-five elephants. He received sixteen chiefs on Saturday and returned their visits on Monday.

The Yarkand Envoy joined Mr. Forsyth at Shah Doola on Oct. 24. The mission left for Yarkand on the following day.

An extradition treaty has been concluded between Russia and Switzerland.

The second Dutch expedition against Acheen has started from Batavia.

A Renter's telegram from St. Petersburg says the Neva was on Wednesday frozen over, and a heavy fall of snow had set in. Navigation at Cronstadt continued, but with difficulty.

The Town Council of Munich has presented a congratulatory address to Dr. Dollinger, on the occasion of the fifty years' jubilee of his professorship.

An Ultramontane protest against the expulsion of priests by the Berne Government has been rejected by the Swiss Federal Council.

We learn by telegram from New York that William Tweed has been found guilty upon three of the charges preferred against him in connection with the Tammany Ring scandal.

The Barons de Rothschild have informed the Mayors of Paris that they hold at their disposal, as in preceding years, a sum of 50,000*fr.*, destined to aid in paying the rent of indigent persons during the winter.

A declaration made by Mr. Hall, the Danish Minister of Instruction, in reference to the North Schleswig question, shows that the Government of Copenhagen believe a settlement of the long-pending difficulty to be at hand.

Greenland is suffering under a terrible famine. The seal-fishing having failed this year, the inhabitants are deprived of their usual winter food; and it is stated that at Naparso 150 persons have died from hunger.

At a meeting of the International Tonnage Commission, held at Constantinople last week, it was decided that the net tonnage of sailing-vessels should be established in almost the same manner as by the English system.

A battle has been fought between the Arabs and the Turkish troops, at a place about thirty miles from Lahej, in which 300 of the former and seventy of the latter were killed and wounded. But a termination has been put to the Aden question by the prompt action of the Porte in sending telegraphic instructions for the immediate withdrawal of Turkish troops from any part of Lahej which they may have occupied.

An official statement published by the Russian Government shows the emigration of Czechs from Bohemia to the Russian province of Volhynia to continue unabated. The settlers are attracted by certain privileges, such as exemption from military service and permission to retain the use of their native tongue in purely municipal affairs, and to erect Roman Catholic schools and churches. The number of Czech immigrants in Volhynia in 1872 amounted to 6746—that is, 1340 families.

An original project is being discussed in the Constitutional Assembly of Panama for neutralising a section of the isthmus, about twenty miles wide, to include the town of Panama and the railway. A bill to promote this object has passed the first reading. According to a statement in the Panama Star and Herald, an understanding has been arrived at between Guatemala, Salvador, and Nicaragua to take possession of Honduras and divide it between them, on the ground that it is incapable of governing itself.

It will give some notion of the vastness of the spoil of war that has fallen into German hands, irrespective of the pecuniary indemnity, when it is stated that the share of gun-metal from captured cannon allotted to Bavaria alone, as the due of her two army corps, amounts to no less than 460 tons. Of this King Louis has ordered fifty tons to be distributed to certain parishes to be turned into the church bells they are in need of. The rest is handed over to the Bavarian Government arm-foundry for future conversion into German guns.

The Russian Government, which is much in want of university and middle-class school teachers, has created at Leipsic a high school for the study of classical philology, at the head of which are Professor Ritche and Dr. Horschelmann. The pupils, who are kept at the cost of the Government, are obliged to serve for every year which they have passed at the school two years as professors in the Russian Government schools. Persons able to teach classics or science in middle-class schools are, it is stated, eagerly sought and well remunerated by the Russian Government.

Two stuffed Russian bears, presented to the Sultan, have been placed one on each side of the entrance to the grand saloon of Dolma Bagtché palace at Constantinople. The Levant Times says they were sent by the Grand Duke Nicholas as souvenirs of his visit to Constantinople, when, in his interview with the Sultan, the conversation turning on bear-hunting, his Imperial Highness promised his Majesty the finest specimen his next season's chase should afford him. One of these was killed by the Grand Duke's own hand, as an inscription states. It is a magnificent jet black beast of towering height, and stands erect, clutching the trunk of a tree, the branches of which are tastefully made to serve for a candelabrum. The other bear, which is a brown one, holds a plate between his paws.

The proceedings of the Royal Colonial Institute during the present year have been published. They contain many interesting papers, and the reports of the discussions thereupon, which are of great value and imperial importance to all persons, whether they may be colonists or not. The Washington Treaty, the San Juan award, the fisheries of Canada, the timber wealth of Tasmania, and especially the much-vexed question of colonial defence, have all been very ably treated at the various meetings of the institute. The council, already including among its members many of the chief authorities on colonial subjects, has received some notable additions for the coming year. The honorary secretary, Dr. Eddy, is most indefatigable in his exertions to promote the success of the association and to extend its sphere of usefulness. One of his latest acts has been to address a letter to each of the forty colonial chambers of commerce, recommending them to join the association of chambers of commerce of the United Kingdom, it having been ascertained from the authorities of the associated chambers that the application would be readily acceded to. In case the colonial chambers fall in with this suggestion, the Colonial Institute offers to be the medium of communication or to obtain any information in its power.

The collections on Sunday week, in aid of the Amalgamated Charities of Birmingham, amounted to £6120 15*s.* 6*d.*

NATIONAL SPORTS.

Though the end of a heavy racing season is now so near at hand, the sport was pursued with undiminished vigour last week at Shrewsbury, where Mr. Frail brought off a meeting that can well bear comparison with any of his former gatherings. Flat, steeple, and hurdle racing were so judiciously mixed that the admirers of each must have been thoroughly satisfied. The only blot on the whole proceedings was the eleventh-hour withdrawals of Wedmore and Suleiman from the Great Shropshire Handicap and Shrewsbury Cup respectively. The former was the worse case of the two, as Wedmore's jockey actually walked about in Mr. Fisher's colours before the race; and the affair has been most severely commented on by the press. It is said that the Jockey Club will investigate the case. The two-year-old running was uninteresting, and no high-class animals competed; but among the three-year-olds Lunar Eclipse secured a couple of races in such style that there were clearly good grounds for supporting him so heavily for the City and Suburban, though for some reason he was eventually not started for that race. King Lud was the hero of the week, for though he failed to give Louise Victoria 3 lb. in the Severn Cup, yet on the following day he won the Newport Cup, beating Syrian, the winner of the Great Shropshire Handicap, and Oxonian; and, an hour and a half later, carried off the Shrewsbury Handicap with great ease, though it was over the same distance as the Severn Cup; and on this occasion he was conceding 6 lb., instead of 3 lb. to Louise Victoria. The probable explanation of this contradictory form is that King Lud, like Uhlan, requires a very strongly-run race, and yet cannot make his own running. The Duke of Hamilton was successful in three of the "jumping" contests, and in Fantome, the winner of two of the steeplechases, he possesses a very useful representative.

On Monday last Earl Fitzwilliam had a nasty fall, while hunting with his own pack. His horse fell, and, throwing his Lordship heavily, broke his collar-bone. We are glad to say that by the latest accounts he is progressing favourably.

A very successful coursing meeting was held at Blankney last week, over Mr. Chaplin's estate. Hares were plentiful and good, and afforded capital sport. The Blankney Cup, for all ages, fell to Negro, by Master M'Grath—Victory. He won a stake for puppies over this ground last spring, and is about the best of the famous Irish dog's stock that has yet appeared in public. Old Deodora's Daughter was once more placed in the slips, but succumbed to Negro in the first ties. The Altcar Club meeting, which took place about the same time, proved fairly successful; and Mr. Hedley, who judged for the first time here, did pretty well. The Sefton Stakes for dog-puppies fell to Hamilton, by Glenowen—Confidence, who beat Lamplighter, by Cock Robin—Caitness, in the final spin. Genuine Business, an own brother to the famous Peasant Boy, ran with great fire, but was put out very unluckily in the second ties. Lord Haddington had four representatives left in at the conclusion of the Croxteth Stakes—a most unusual circumstance; and old Chameleon divided the Altcar Club Cup with Birdlime, after two "no-goes."

The last meeting of the London Athletic Club took place at Lillie Bridge on Saturday afternoon last. The best performance of the afternoon was that of W. Slade, who ran two miles in 9 min. 54 sec. Considering that he had a great number of men to get through, and that the day was cold and unfavourable, this must be considered the best performance ever done by an amateur at this distance. On Wednesday Slade won the strangers' race (distance one mile) at Exeter College, Oxford, making the splendid time of 4 min. 29½ sec., and beating E. A. Sanford by more than a hundred yards.

By the latest accounts, the English cricketers who have gone out to Australia were in excellent health and spirits. When last heard of, they were passing through the Suez Canal.

SOCIETY OF ARTS.

The hundred-and-twentieth session of the Society of Arts was opened on Wednesday evening, at the society's house, Adelphi.

The chair was taken by General Sir Eardley Wilmot, who, when the formal preliminary business had been disposed of, read the inaugural address for the year. Having noticed the gratifying fact that the session opened with a list of ninety-seven new members, he recalled the distinguished old ones who had been lost during the past year—Lord Westbury, to whom the society owed the Fine-Art Copyright Act; Sir F. Ronald, one of the earliest pioneers of electric telegraphy; Mr. Varley, their oldest member, who died at the age of ninety-two, having been for sixty years a member of that society; and Sir E. Landseer, who, although not a member of the society, had, in 1814, been awarded the silver Isis medal—"To Master Edwin Landseer for his drawing of a Hunting Horse." They had lost also Sir J. Bowring, Dr. Crace Calvert, Baron Liebig, Sir W. Tite, Mr. S. R. Graves, M.P., Dr. D. Dalrymple, M.P., and one or two others. Of the subjects which had engaged the attention of the council, he might mention economy in coals, to be produced by the use of improved grates and stoves. The possibility of utilising peat; the expediency of State management for railways; the best mode of checking fires, of preserving meat fresh, and the possibility of importing tinned and other fresh meats from the Baltic, had also engaged the council's attention. There had taken place a cab competition, under the presidency of the Prince of Wales, who had himself purchased a cab of the design sent in by Messrs. Forder. The cheapening of telegrams down to the Continental tariffs had been considered, and the Session just opened would be in part occupied with the consideration of the above important subjects. The Swiney prize of £200 for the best public work on jurisprudence would be competed for on Dec. 1 next. The foundation-stone of a new training school for music, to be established in close vicinity to the Albert Hall, would be laid on Dec. 18 next, by his Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh. Mr. Norman Lockyer would in the course of the session give two lectures on spectrum analysis, as aided by and aiding the arts. The society numbered over 4000 members.

On the conclusion of the address Mr. Le Neve Foster read the list of prizes which had been awarded by the society during the past year. It included the gold medal of the society to Dr. Hiddingh, of Stellenbosch, Cape of Good Hope, for his exertions in promoting the local cultivation of silk; and the silver medal to Mr. T. Wills, for his paper on the manufacture of gas as an illuminating power. Mr. T. R. Clarke had obtained the Prince Consort's prize of 25*gs.* for the scholastic distinction he had obtained in various branches of knowledge. Smaller prizes had been awarded to Messrs. Heywood, Mullens, and Mills.

Mr. Webster, Q.C., moved, and Mr. Saywell seconded, a vote of thanks to the president for his inaugural address, which was carried by acclamation.

The next mails for Australia and New Zealand will be dispatched from London as follow:—Via Southampton, on the morning of Thursday, the 20th inst.; via Brindisi, on the evening of Friday the 28th inst.

MR. DISRAELI IN GLASGOW.

Mr. Disraeli arrived in Glasgow on Monday night. He received an enthusiastic welcome from the University students, and a large crowd of people assembled at the railway station. He was met on his arrival by Mr. Dalglish, M.P. for Glasgow; Colonel Campbell, M.P. for Renfrewshire; the Very Rev. Principal Caird, and by a number of the members of the Conservative Club. These gentlemen were introduced to the distinguished visitor, as were also several students and office-bearers of the Conservative Association in connection with the college. The corporation was not represented. A procession of students carrying blazing torches followed Mr. Disraeli to his hotel.

On Wednesday Mr. Disraeli was installed as Lord Rector of Glasgow University, in Kibble's Crystal Palace, a building capable of accommodating about 5000 persons, which was filled to overflowing. A "capping" ceremony, in which LL.D. degrees were conferred on the new Lord Rector, Sir W. Stirling Maxwell, Dr. Hooker, Sir E. Colebrooke, Mr. Gordon, M.P., and Dr. Rainey, preceded the installation address. After a few introductory remarks in acknowledgment of the honour conferred upon him, he said that, in view of the fact that the young men before him were about to enter life at a period which promised to be momentous—perhaps he should say which menaced—he thought it would be appropriate to offer some observations which might tend to assist them in their coming trials. The man who desired to succeed in life required two kinds of knowledge, the first of which was self-knowledge, the acquisition of which was a theme upon which philosophers had written endless treatises for countless ages. By severe introspection only could self-knowledge be obtained; but, supposing that a man had acquired the indispensable insight into the true range of his powers and the right bent of his character, the next thing required was an acquaintance with the spirit of the age in which his faculties were to be exercised. The spirit of the present age was a spirit of equality; but equality was a word of wide import, round which various schools of thought might assemble and arrive at conclusions not only different, but contradictory. He held that civil equality—that was, the equality of all citizens before the law, and that a law which secured the personal rights of all citizens—was the only foundation of a perfect commonwealth—that was, a Government which secured liberty, order, and justice. Having alluded in touching terms to the misfortunes of France, Mr. Disraeli said it was civil equality which was aimed at in Britain, social equality in France; but social equality did not satisfy the latest philosophers. They wanted material equality also. They would destroy private property, and acknowledge only the rights of labour. This was not the only or the highest happiness, nor a safe basis for a commonwealth. The spiritual side was stronger than the physical. By religion alone could men be guided to their benefit. Mr. Disraeli concluded by observing that he who conceived best his relations to God was best prepared to fulfil his duties towards man. In the perplexities of life he himself had found in those beliefs solace and satisfaction, and he now delivered them to the students, to guide their consciences and their lives. Throughout his address and at its close the Lord Rector was enthusiastically cheered.

In the evening Mr. Disraeli was entertained at a banquet in the City Hall—the Lord Provost presiding, and Mr. Dalglish, M.P., occupying the vice-chair. The guests numbered five hundred. The freedom of the city was presented to him on Thursday, and to-day (Saturday) he will address a meeting of Conservative working men. During the week he has received several deputations.

THE RUSSIANS AT KHIVA.

We are indebted again to Mr. McGachan, the special correspondent of the New York Herald, who accompanied the Russian military expedition in Central Asia six months ago, for placing at our disposal two more sketches, by M. Formstecher and M. Gibert, representing scenes of particular interest. The first sketch is a view of the passage of General Kaufmann's troops across the river Amoo Darya, or Oxus, where that river is a mile wide. This division, led by the commander-in-chief in person, consisted of six companies of infantry and six sotnias or squadrons of Cossacks, accompanied by 5000 camels laden with stores and baggage; but it was joined, on May 12, by another division from Kasalinsk, making up a force of about 5000 soldiers, besides drivers and camp-followers. The route was from the north-east, starting from the Russian forts in Khokan, and passing along the northern confines of Bokhara; while a third column advanced from Tchikislar, on the shore of the Caspian Sea, to enter Khiva from the opposite direction. The passage of the Oxus, as shown by our illustration, was not opposed by the enemy; and the city of Khiva was soon yielded without much attempt at resistance. This easy conquest was probably due to the personal imbecility of Mohammed Rachim Khan, who minds nothing but his women and his favourite sport of hawking. In the other sketch furnished by the same correspondent we see the Russian troops marching through one of the city gates. This Turkoman metropolis is situated on the banks of two watercourses belonging to the network of the Palban Ata canal, and is protected by a clay wall, about five miles in circumference and 10 ft. high. Within this wall there is another, about two or three miles in circumference and 22 ft. high, the foundations and lower portions of which are 28 ft. thick. This interior wall protects the palaces of the Khan, the houses of the most important dignitaries, and some ecclesiastical schools (Medressah), of which there are no less than twenty-two in the place. The better to defend the inner town, which serves as a citadel, twenty guns are placed on the wall. The whole town has 20,000 inhabitants, with seventeen mosques and 300 shops; the space between the inner and the outer wall being to a great extent planted with gardens, amidst which is the summer residence of the Khan.

The annual ball given by Lord Wenlock and the officers of the Yorkshire Hussars was held last week in the Great Assembly Rooms, York, the most magnificent suite of rooms in the north of England. The company, numbering upwards of 600, embraced the representatives of most of the aristocratic and county families of Yorkshire.

At the Athenæum Assembly Rooms, Temple-row, Birmingham, on Sunday evening, a spiritualistic service was being held, and a medium named Benjamin Hawkes, a toy-dealer of New-street, spoke for fully half an hour, and described with startling vividity a séance in which the Apostle Peter had clasped hands with him, so that he felt the close pressure of the Apostle's grasp. From this he argued that it was quite possible to understand how Thomas of Didymus thrust his hand into the side of "the Personification of Divine Love." The instant these last words were out of the speaker's mouth he fell back on a chair dead. The meeting broke up in wild confusion. At his inquest Mr. Hadley, surgeon, who had made a post-mortem examination, said he was of opinion deceased had died from syncope asphyxia, resulting from congestion of the lungs. The jury returned a verdict of "Died by the visitation of God."

THE RUSSIAN EXPEDITION TO KHIVA: GENERAL RAUPMANN'S DIVISION CROSSING THE GREAT

MENDING THE OLD CRADLE.

BY A. STOCKS,

RUSSIAN TROOPS ENTERING THE CITY OF KHIVA AT THE HAZAR-ASP GATE.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERRMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Andrewes, J. William, to be Curate of Foxearth, Essex.
 Barnes, F.: Rector of Stotterbury.
 Boniface, Thomas: Curate of Aylesbury, Bucks.
 Brewster, E. J.: Vicar of Ampney Crucy; Vicar of Leyton, Essex.
 Brown, J. E.: Organising Secretary of the Additional Curates' Society for the district comprising Wales and the diocese of Hereford.
 Cholmondeley, Richard Hugh: Rural Dean of Hodnet.
 Clements, Canon, Vicar of Gainsborough; Vicar of Grantham.
 Cornwall, W. A.: Vicar of Widcombe, Somerset.
 Fleming, James: Vicar of St. Michael's, Chester-square.
 Fremantle, S. J.: Examining Chaplain to the Bishop of Ely.
 Gordon, C. O.: Vicar of Mayland; Rector of Gratwick-cum-Kingstone.
 Harrison, William: Honorary Canon in Rochester Cathedral.
 Johnson, F.: late Senior Curate of Oakham; Curate of Ewell, Surrey.
 Luckock, H. M.: Examining Chaplain to the Bishop of Ely.
 Neville, Latimer: Honorary Canon in Rochester Cathedral.
 Nolan, Dr.: Vicar of St. Saviour's, Paddington.
 Parkes, F. B.: Vicar of Atcham, near Shrewsbury.
 Phipps, P. W.: Vicar of Upton-cum-Chalvey, Bucks.
 Shaw, Thornton S.: Curate of North and South Lopham, Norfolk.
 Smith, B. F.: Rector of St. Paul's, Rushall; Rector of Crayford, Kent.
 Thompson, W. O.: Rector of Napton-on-the-Hill, Warwickshire.
 West, C. F. C.: Fellow of St. John's College; Vicar of Charlbury, Oxon.
 Whitlock, J. Aston: Vicar of Holy Rood, Southampton.
 Wilcox, Arthur Marwood: Curate of Old Shoreham, Sussex.
 Wilson, Stephen Lea: Honorary Canon in Chester Cathedral.

Lord Houghton laid, on Monday, the foundation-stone of a new tower at St. Botolph's Church, Knottingley.

Lady Perners has given £100 to the funds for the repair of Christ Church, Leicester, and also to purchase a new organ for the sacred building.

At the annual court of the Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy it was reported that during the year 1396 persons had received grants. The Primate and Lord Chelmsford were re-elected presidents of the board of management.

It is decided that the memorial to the late Bishop Wilberforce shall consist of the maintenance of a body of clergy and the provision of a building for home-missionary work in South London, diocese of Winchester.

A circular issued by the Archbishop of Canterbury calls upon the clergy of his diocese to celebrate Dec. 3 as a day of prayer and thanksgiving for missionary work at home and abroad. These services are meant for a sequel to the recent day of intercession for missionaries.

The Archbishop of Canterbury opened the Church of St. Paul, at Margate, on Thursday week, and subsequently presided at a luncheon. His Grace referred to the signs of quickened vitality in the Church which he met in all directions, and ridiculed the cry of "The Church in danger."

The Marquis of Ripon presided, on Wednesday afternoon, at an influential meeting in the Leeds Church Institute, in support of a scheme for providing Church of England boarding-schools for the midland and north midland district. The speakers included the Bishop-Elect of Ely, the Deans of York and Manchester, Mr. F. S. Howell, M.P., and the Hon. Charles Wood Percival Heywood.

The reopening of Harbury church, near Leamington, took place on the 6th inst., after having been rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, from the designs of the late Mr. C. Buckridge, architect. Towards the cost of the work, which is yet incomplete in some of its details, although £3300 have been expended, Miss Ryland has given £1000, and Miss Hill, Miss Caroline Hill, and the Rev. M. H. Hole, Vicar, £500 each. The Bishop of Worcester preached.

The new hall and Sunday schools in connection with the parish church of St. Michael and All Angels, South Hackney, were opened, last Saturday, by Bishop Claughton, Archdeacon of London, who delivered a brief address, in which he insisted on the paramount duty of the community to see that all children are brought up Christians. The new buildings, which will provide for the instruction of 250 boys and 250 girls, have cost, including the purchase of the site, £3500.

At the instance of a parishioner the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol has issued a commission to inquire into certain charges of Ritualistic practices laid against the Rev. J. Edwards, jun., Vicar of Prestbury. The points involved are, for the most part, a revival of those supposed to have been settled by the judgment of the Judicial Committee in the Purchas case—viz., the use of candles, the position of the celebrant, the mixed chalice, wearing other vestments than the surplice, &c.

The church of Huish Episcopi was reopened, on the 14th inst., by the Bishop of Bath and Wells, after having been closed for a year and a half for restoration. The chancel has been rebuilt by Mr. Christian, architect, on behalf of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, at a cost of £600; while the repairs of the body of the church, at an expense of £1500, were superintended by Mr. Ferry, the diocesan architect. Two stained-glass windows, by O'Connor and Heaton and Co., in memory of Sir John and Lady Michell, and of Mrs. Kelway, are among the gifts to the church.

On the ground of an important technical objection, the Court of Arches has reversed the decision of Dr. Tristram respecting the exhibition of "the stations of the cross" in St. Peter's Church, Folkestone. A monition was obtained by Mr. Lee, the secretary to the Archbishop of Canterbury, for the removal of the stations, but the monition did not disclose that Mr. Lee had private or public interest in the matter. The Dean of Arches held that the proceedings were in consequence bad in law, and gave judgment accordingly.

A meeting of Churchmen of Northumberland and Durham was held on Tuesday, at Newcastle, when it was resolved to present an address to the Bishop of Durham expressing the sympathy of the laity with his Lordship in his endeavour to check the progress of Ritualism in the diocese, and their thanks for the general course of action he has adopted. It was resolved to raise a guarantee fund to pay the costs of the Bishop in the action pending against him brought by Canon Dykes, of Durham, and also the costs of any future proceedings. Upwards of £5000 was subscribed at the meeting.

The parish church of St. Petroc Minor, Cornwall, having been rebuilt by the late Rector, Sir Hugh Henry Molesworth, Bart., whose purpose of decorating the interior was frustrated by his early and sudden death, the work was continued by his widow, Beatrice, Lady Molesworth, who dedicated to his memory a window of stained glass in the aisle, and placed in the chancel a reredos of Minton's tiles; the present Rector, the Rev. G. W. Manning, having added a small window to his memory, as the restorer of the church, and another to that of his own deceased wife, and also decorated the walls and roof of the chancel and the pulpit. The work was recently completed by the staining and varnishing of the roofs of the nave and aisle by the churchwardens, and the painting and decorating of the walls throughout by the Rector.

The tide of church restoration which has been gradually flowing westwards for some years past has now fairly reached the county of Pembroke, where eighteen of the old churches are under various stages of restoration or rebuilding. The first of these, at Uzmaston, near Haverfordwest, was reopened by the Bishop of the diocese on the 13th inst., after having been closed for nearly two years. A century or more of churchwardenism, whitewash, and neglect had nearly extinguished every feature of archaeological interest; but three fifteenth-century windows, the old Norman font and stoup, and a couple of hagioscopes have been repaired and preserved. The old foundations have been utilised wherever practicable, but it was found necessary to increase the size both of nave and chancel, and to add a north aisle, vestry, south porch, and organ-chamber. A handsome stained-glass window, by Wailes, of Newcastle, in memory of the Rev. S. O. Meares, the late Rector, has been inserted at the west end.

The Incorporated Society for Promoting the Enlargement, Building, and Repairing of Churches and Chapels, resumed its usual monthly meetings on Monday last, at 7, Whitehall—the Earl of Romney in the chair. There were also present Archdeacons Harrison and Jennings; the Revs. Arthur Cazenove, John Evans, S. W. Lloyd, and C. F. Norman; Messrs. J. Boodle, G. Cowburn, J. F. France, A. J. C. Lawrie, A. Powell, W. Rivington, and the Rev. George Ainslie, M.A., secretary. Grants of money were made in aid of the following objects, viz.—Building new churches at Hoxton, St. Peter, Middlesex; Manningham, St. Mark's, Yorkshire; Rhosybol, in the parish of Amlwch, Anglesea; and Weybridge, Surrey; enlarging or otherwise increasing the accommodation in the churches at Alderminster, near Stratford-on-Avon; Coates, Holy Trinity, near Whittlesea; East Winch, near Lynn; Evesham, Warwickshire; Faversham, Kent; Gedney Hill, near Wisbeach; Marlborough, St. Mary; and Watlington, Oxon. Under urgent circumstances, the grants formerly made for enlarging and restoring the churches at Ash Priors, near Taunton; Clewer, near Windsor; Henstridge, near Blandford; Herne-hill-road, St. Saviour, Surrey; and Kelvedon Hatch, near Brentwood, were each increased. Grants were also made from the School, Church, and Mission-House Fund towards building, &c., school or mission churches at Chelsea, St. John's, Middlesex; Fisherton, in Rolleston parish, Notts; and Rowley-hill, in the parish of Christ Church, Stafford.

A handsome testimonial, consisting of a silver salver, valued at £100, accompanied by a purse containing £700, has been made to the Rev. J. M'Connell Hussey, Vicar of Christ Church, North Brixton, by his congregation and friends. Mr. Hussey first came into the neighbourhood of Brixton in 1843, and on his own responsibility became minister of St. James's Episcopal Church, Kennington-park-road. He remained there six years, and in 1854, entirely at his own cost, converted what was then called Holland Chapel into a district parish church, with a separate ecclesiastical district, whereby a church and distinct parish have been obtained in perpetuity. Since that time national schools have been built and the vicarage erected, while the congregation has so increased that recent alterations in the church had to be made in order to provide additional accommodation.—The parishioners of St. Clement's, Notting-hill, have presented the Vicar, the Rev. A. Dalgarno Robinson, with a handsome testimonial of plate, on the occasion of his recent marriage, as a mark of their appreciation of his work amongst them during the last fourteen years.—On the 5th inst., at a public meeting, at which Archdeacon Clark presided, a silver tea and coffee service from his parishioners of Narberth, a silver biscuit-box from the church, Sunday, and day schools, and a massive silver salver from his parishioners of Robeston Wathen, were presented to the Rev. John Morris, M.A., late Curate of Narberth and Robeston Wathen, Pembrokeshire, in token of affection and respect for his eight years' faithful ministry amongst them.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

At Oxford the Taylorian Scholarship in German has been awarded to E. A. Sonnenschein, University; and the Taylorian Exhibition in German to L. A. Montefiore, Balliol. The examiners make honourable mention of M. W. E. de Bunsen, Christ Church, and H. W. Just, Corpus Christi.

In opening the class of Divinity and Church History in Edinburgh University, on Tuesday, the Rev. Professor Wallace took occasion to define what he considered to be implied by the term ecclesiastical history, and pointed out its uses.

The delivery of prizes to the pupils of the Liverpool Institute, and to those who had gained honours in the examinations of the Oxford, Cambridge, and London Universities, and the Government Science and Art Classes, took place on Thursday week.—Mr. Anthony Trollope presiding. The distinguished novelist presented the prizes, and in the course of the evening delivered an address. There was a large attendance.

The Rev. Henry Martin, B.A., Assistant Classical Master in Elizabeth College, Guernsey, to be Vice-Principal of the Training College, Cheltenham.

On Monday the Bishop of Winchester distributed the annual prizes at Queen Elizabeth's Grammar School, Southwark. The reports of the examiners were most satisfactory. In the Oxford Local Examinations the school again stood at the head of the metropolitan division for first-class honours. Gunston stood at the head of the mathematical list, and also at the head of the natural science section for the whole country. He was also placed third in the first class in the section for music. He also stood high in the first class of section of English language and literature. In his person the exhibition of £70 per annum offered by Balliol and Worcester Colleges, Oxford, to the best candidate, had for the fourth time in five years been offered to a boy in St. Olave's School. Tout stood at the head of the section of English language and literature for the whole country. Thus, out of the four great divisions in examination St. Olave's School supplied the head in three.

On Wednesday the annual distribution of prizes and delivery of speeches took place in the large room of St. Saviour's Grammar School, Summer-street, Southwark. The Bishop of Winchester presided. During the past year the following distinctions have been gained by pupils of the school:—Mr. W. H. Ruston, eighteenth Wrangler in the Cambridge Mathematical Tripos; Mr. J. Coutts, Exhibition at Emmanuel College, Cambridge; Mr. W. P. Pulley, Preliminary Law Examination, Associate of Arts at the Oxford Senior Local Examination; Mr. J. T. Brett, Preliminary Examination at the College of Surgeons; and Mr. W. D. Grindley, certificate at the Oxford Junior Local Examination.

The Archbishop of Canterbury distributed the prizes and certificates won at the recent Oxford local examination for the Margate centre on Tuesday afternoon. His Grace, after a long address on educational subjects in general, said he did not wish to introduce controversy—and they knew there was controversy enough on the subject of education in the present day—but still he could not, feeling as he did and being who he was, rise up to speak on the subject of education in such an assembly as that without raising his solemn protest against any low idea of man's education which would teach them that it had only to do with the few fleeting years of life here on earth. If education

(he said) is to be worthy—I do not say of Christians, but of men—it must not look merely to that which is to prepare us for a few fleeting years here. It must not take that dreary view of human life which tells us that no man knows whence we come and no man knows whither we are going, and that all we have to do is to shut out contemplation of an unknown past before we were born and contemplation as to an unknown future which is to come after we are dead, and that we are only to live and labour and study and train our youth for these few fleeting years. No wonder that those who embrace this dreary view of human life should have their melancholy fits which oppress them with sadness which they cannot describe and which nothing can alleviate. No wonder that we should be anxious that the youth whom we rear should in those melancholy moments be taught to look forward to brighter thoughts—that they should not be allowed to feel that a sudden collapse will end all the results of their education. But we should teach them that, whether they live long or die early, the laborious training which they receive from us is to fit them not only for the beginning or the middle, but also for the end of life and for that which comes after it.

SCHOOL BOARDS.

The usual weekly meeting of the London School Board was held on Wednesday in the Council Chamber, Guildhall—Lord Lawrence in the chair. A letter was read from Mr. W. H. Smith, M.P., which stated that, as there were only two scholarships at present founded—one by the Mortimer Scholarship Fund, and the second by the Clothworkers' Company—he (Mr. Smith) begged to offer a third, and was prepared to place the sum of £120 for the four years' payment to the scholars who might be selected by the examiners. He was not willing at present to hand over the capital sum as an endowment, as the fashion of the free handling of endowments which prevailed at the present time rendered it doubtful whether the object he had in view—viz., the higher education of deserving but poor children—might not at a future day be frustrated by the action of some commission. He trusted that, before the week closed, the board would receive provision for a fourth scholarship. On the motion of the chairman, a vote of thanks was given to Mr. Smith, and the letter was ordered to be placed on the records of the board. A long discussion took place with reference to the payment of teachers in board schools, and other business of a routine character was transacted.

A numerously-attended public meeting was held on Wednesday evening at Exeter Hall, the object of its promoters being "to sustain and extend the unsectarian policy of the London School Board."

The Birmingham School Board election has resulted in the triumph of the candidates known as the Liberal Eight. The following names are those of the elected members:—George Dixon, Jos. Chamberlain, Miss Sturge, the Rev. C. Vine, J. S. Wright, the Rev. R. W. Dale, George Dawson, James Collings, the Rev. Canon O'Sullivan (Catholic), S. J. Lloyd (Churchman), the Rev. Dr. Burgess (Churchman), S. E. Kingston (Churchman), U. L. Sargent (Churchman), the Rev. F. S. Dale (Churchman), the Rev. Dr. Wilkinson (Churchman).

The election of fifteen members of the Liverpool School Board took place on Wednesday. There was a very small amount of excitement exhibited in the contest.

With respect to the School Board election at Sheffield, which should have taken place on Wednesday, but which lay in consequence of an informality in the nominations, the Mayor is still in consultation with the Education Department. The expected issue is a re-election of the old board under a special proviso in the Education Act.

LABOUR AND WAGES.

The refusal of the coalowners of Durham to grant the miners an advance of 20 per cent upon their present prices is looked upon as the forerunner of a dispute of an alarming character.

The Ruabon colliery masters have refused the advance of 25 per cent asked for by the men. It is stated that the men will persist in their demand.

One of the Scotch miners' unions has passed a resolution to fine every member 7s. 6d. upon every occasion of his breaking the rule of the union not to work above five days a week.

A trade outrage is reported from Sheffield. Four driving-bands have been secretly cut in the cutlery-works of Messrs. G. Wostenholme, in consequence of which 200 workmen were thrown temporarily idle.

A meeting of delegates from the various engineering firms throughout the metropolis was held on Saturday evening, at which a memorial was resolved upon asking that the minimum amount of wages might be made 38s. per week.

The conference of the National Miners' Association began, on Tuesday, in Leeds, under the chairmanship of Mr. Alexander Macdonald. The president's opening speech contained the statement that there had been no strike or occasion for levy during the last twelve months. The list of delegates at the conference was read over, and an announcement made that the number of miners represented was 130,000. The president then announced that the deputation appointed to rebut the statement that the miners were the cause of the present high price of coal had come to the unanimous conclusion that the country had not suffered from this cause, and that the charge against the miners of driving trade out of the country might be met by the statement that trade had not been driven out nor lessened since the colliers' wages had been raised. The home consumption had been greater than ever, and the foreign trade had gone on increasing. The charge of bringing misery on the poor might with equal justice be brought against provision-dealers, clothiers, or house proprietors. In no sense could working miners be called the originators or promoters of such evils. The report then went into numerous details of production and demand, and justified the action of the colliers in seeking increased wages when the price of coal was rising so enormously. All that the colliers did was to seek to obtain a very moderate share of the extra money paid by coal consumers. The report concluded by urging the men to make their demands only at the proper time, and to enforce them only by legitimate and legal means. The conference lasted through the week.

The executive committee of the National Agricultural Labourers' Union met, on Monday, at Leamington. Many districts having taken premature action as to a sick and benefit club, the committee resolved that, as the National Agricultural Labourers' Union are taking necessary steps to secure on a sound basis a sick and benefit society, it is desirable that districts should await the result of the efforts of the union before attempting to undertake so important a matter without due consideration. Mr. Holloway, chairman of the Oxford district, said that he hoped to sail for New Zealand with a party of emigrants, consisting of 500 families, on Dec. 15. Various grants were made to assist intending emigrants, and it was stated that emigration, especially to New Zealand, was proceeding very satisfactorily, union agents having instructions to give great prominence to this subject. The committee made grants of money to districts in which men were standing out against farmers who threatened a reduction of wages, and stated their determination to uphold unionists resisting such reductions. Mr. J. Cox, president of the Reformers' Union, attended to arrange for a soiree to be given to Mr. Arch, president of the National Union, on his return from Canada. The Birmingham Post says that Mr. Arch and Mr. Clayden, who have returned, fully believe in Canada being a most eligible field for the emigration of agricultural labourers. Mr. Arch is going to try and send out 10,000 emigrants in the spring, when he will again visit Canada, and hopes to take out with him 500 families. Mr. Arch's impression is that both Canada and the United States afford ample scope for English agricultural labourers; but, owing to the present stagnation of trade in America, he considers it would be injudicious for artisans to emigrate.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Sir Thomas Erskine May and Sir Henry Sumner Maine have been elected benchers of the Middle Temple, honoris causa.

The Bank rate was lowered on Thursday from 9 per cent, to which it was raised on the 7th inst., to 8 per cent.

In acknowledging the receipt of the resolutions on the county franchise adopted at a recent meeting in Chelsea, Mr. Gladstone intimated that his own opinions on the subject remain'd as they were.

A communication has been received from Mr. Lowe intimating that, in consequence of the pressure of other more important matters, the Government cannot undertake to deal with the question of the government of the metropolis next Session.

One of the largest collections of poultry ever brought together in this country was exhibited to the public, this week, at the Crystal Palace, there being over 3600 entries. The value of the prizes was nearly £1000.

In re-electing its chairman, Colonel Hogg, the Metropolitan Board of Works paid a tribute to his impartiality and attention to business. It was prognosticated that various schemes of importance would be brought forward during the coming year.

The Court of Aldermen, at their meeting on Tuesday, passed a unanimous resolution of thanks to Sir Sydney Waterlow, the retiring Lord Mayor, for the able and satisfactory manner in which he had acted as president of the court during his year of office.

At the ordinary meeting of the Institute of British Architects, on Monday evening, the presentation was announced from Lady Tite of a large water-colour drawing representing the buildings of Iago Jones. Mr. J. T. Perry read a paper on the "Medieval Brickwork of Pomerania."

The opening of the City and Spitalfields School of Art took place in the new school-room, Primrose street, Bishopsgate, on Thursday. Addresses were given by the Right Hon. G. J. Goschen, Mr. Henry Cole, and other gentlemen, in the large hall, Skinner-street. The chair was taken by the Rev. W. Rogers.

Another death has occurred at Plaistow among the "Peculiar People" in consequence of neglect of medical remedies. The deceased, Emma Benton, suffered from erysipelas, but she preferred to trust to the Lord, and would not call medical help. The Coroner's jury expressed regret that there were no means of punishing this criminal neglect.

The number of metropolitan paupers in the last week of November was 101,481, viz.:—outdoor, 66,057; indoor, 35,424. The numbers in the corresponding week last year were 71,090 and 34,562 respectively. The vagrants relieved in the metropolis on the last day of the second week of November were 635—476 men, 132 women, and 27 children.

In consequence of an official communication received by the Lord Mayor, from which it is understood that the Prince of Wales hopes to be present at the unveiling of the equestrian statue of the Prince Consort erected by the Corporation of London at the western end of the Holborn Viaduct, the ceremony, which had been fixed for Monday next, has been postponed. It will be held, probably, early in January.

Employés of the London Post Office mustered in great force, on Tuesday night, at Finsbury-square, and marched thence in procession to Exeter Hall, where a crowded and enthusiastic meeting was held, under the presidency of Mr. Roger Eykyn, M.P. Speeches on behalf of the postmen's demand for less work and more pay were delivered by Mr. Staveley Hill, M.P., Mr. Watkin Williams, M.P., Mr. W. Fowler, M.P., and Sir John Bennett.

The Lord Mayor at the Mansion House, on Monday, took occasion to refer to the subject of the expected famine in Bengal, and said that, although the Viceroy of India and others in high authority would do everything in their power, yet many benevolent people in this country had urged him to open a fund at the Mansion House for the receipt of subscriptions. No doubt the tidings which had been received were very alarming, and he would make it his business to gather all the information he could, so that, if necessary, steps should at once be taken to enable the public to give expression to their charity.

The births in London during the week ending last Saturday were 2377, and the deaths 1636, the former having been 57 above and the latter 59 below the average of the past ten years. The deaths included 105 from measles, 32 from scarlet fever, 4 from diphtheria, 35 from whooping-cough, 47 from different forms of fever, 13 from diarrhoea, and not one from smallpox. Thus to these seven principal diseases of the zymotic class 236 deaths were referred, against numbers increasing from 171 to 231 in the four preceding weeks. The deaths from these diseases were, however, 58 below the corrected average number in the corresponding week of the last ten years. Attention is drawn by the Registrar-General to the fact that under the influence of the recent cold weather the deaths registered in London in the past three weeks have exceeded by 30 per cent those recorded in the three preceding weeks of moderate temperature. Among children and adults aged between five and sixty years the increase is equal to 20 per cent, among infants and young children under five years of age it is 33, and among persons over sixty years 45 per cent.

A Home Rule conference was opened, on Tuesday, at the Rotundo, Dublin, under the presidency of Mr. Shaw, M.P., at which resolutions were proposed and discussed claiming a separate Parliament for Ireland, which shall legislate for the internal government of that country, leaving to the Imperial Parliament all legislation in connection with the colonies and the relations of the empire with foreign countries. Large meetings in favour of the release of the remaining Fenians in prison were held on Sunday at Belfast and Waterford. A Home Rule meeting was held at Ballinamore, in the county of Leitrim, on Saturday. Baron Ffrench has given in his adhesion to Home Rule principles.

LAW AND POLICE.

Sir John Duke Coleridge was sworn in as a Judge, on Wednesday, in the Court of Queen's Bench, and afterwards took his seat as Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas. The appeal of Lord Rendlesham from a decision of the revising barrister for East Suffolk came before the Court of Common Pleas on the same day. The name of his Lordship, who is an Irish peer, had been struck off the list of county electors, as not being entitled to vote in the election of members of the House of Commons; and the Judges—consisting of Lord Chief Justice Coleridge and Justices Keating, Brett, and Grove—unanimously held that the revising barrister was right. The appeal was therefore dismissed, with costs.

In the Birmingham County Court an insolvent was sued for an original debt, on the ground that the post-office order by which his dividend had been remitted to him was not a legal tender, and that it had arrived a day late. The Judge decided in favour of a post-office order being a legal tender.

The case of Mr. Younghusband (Christian) was decided in the Court of Criminal Appeal last Saturday. He had been convicted, at the Central Criminal Court, for having converted to his own use a cheque for £336, intrusted to him as a stock-broker by a widow. His counsel on the trial raised a legal point which Mr. Justice Honyman reserved for the superior Court. The conviction was now confirmed.

On the reopening of the Tichborne trial, on Monday, Mr. Hawkins applied for a further adjournment, on account of the non-arrival of his American witnesses. Some from New York are expected on Saturday, but one from New Orleans cannot arrive till next Tuesday. Dr. Kenesly opposed the motion for adjournment on the general ground that their Lordships had no power to adjourn, and also on the insufficiency of the affidavit respecting the American evidence. The first point was argued at length by Mr. M'Mahon, who contended that there were no precedents, and quoted against it one of the reports of the Common Law Commissioners, which had been drawn up by the Lord Chief Justice himself. He cited an Act of William IV., which suggested doubts if the Court had power to sit as long as it had none. Nevertheless, the adjournment was granted, Mr. Hawkins undertaking to be prepared to go on when the Court resumes, on the 27th inst.

At the Middlesex Sessions, on Thursday, Robert Richmond, sixty-four, who was convicted in September last of stealing silk to the amount of £120, the property of Mr. Robert Senecal, silk manufacturer, of Spital-square, was brought up for judgment. His total defalcations amounted to £1000. The Judge said this was an offence calling for a severe sentence, which was that the prisoner should be imprisoned and kept to hard labour for two years.

At the Mansion House, on Monday, a man was sentenced to seven days' hard labour for obtaining money under false pretences. He had called on Mr. Samuel Price, a solicitor in Cheap-side, and, under pretence of being a distressed attorney from Holywell, in Flintshire, had told a tale of woe, which extorted from the sympathising man of law the price of a dinner. It afterwards transpired that the name of a respectable Welsh lawyer had been nefariously used in the affair; and hence the charge and its result.

At Bow-street, yesterday week, a firework-maker was fined £20 for having manufactured fireworks in an unlicensed house, and for illegally storing material for the preparation of the same. At Guildhall, a resident of Notting-hill was fined 40s. for having attempted to defraud the Metropolitan Railway Company, and for using abusive language to some of the officials. At Marlborough-street a case was heard in which a Frenchman, living in Berwick-street, was prosecuted for forging the trademark of M.M. Moët and Chandon. The defendant was remanded on bail.

Extensive charges of forgery and embezzlement were preferred at Guildhall, on Tuesday, against William Gwinnett Davies, a managing clerk in the office of a firm of solicitors, in Basinghall-street. The prisoner was remanded.

The time of metropolitan police magistrates has of late been taken up in an unusual degree in the investigation of charges of robbery from employers. At the Mansion House, on Saturday, there were four cases of this description, one of the defendants being in the service of Alderman Sir J. C. Lawrence, M.P. In none of the instances, however, did the prosecutor appear, and the Lord Mayor dealt with them as belonging to the category of unlawful possession, and imposed fines. At Guildhall two receiving porters were convicted, on their own confessions, of stealing from their respective employers, and each of them was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, with hard labour. In another case the punishment was one month's imprisonment, with hard labour. At Bow-street three men employed by the Civil Service Supply Association were brought up on similar charges, and a fourth was accused of receiving the stolen property with a guilty knowledge. A remand was granted.

George Wilson, who stands charged with murdering his son, Thomas Wilson, by striking him on the head with an axe, has been finally examined at Clerkenwell Police Court and committed for trial. The evidence disclosed mental aberration, which, however, the magistrate observed, would be a question for the jury to consider.

The persons convicted of various robberies on the premises of the London and North-Western Railway Company were brought up for judgment at the Middlesex Sessions on Wednesday. Goozee and Taylor were sentenced to ten years' penal servitude; Barnard to seven years'; Hobson, Gray, Dalton, and Brooks to five years' penal servitude; and Pearce to two years' imprisonment, with hard labour. As soon as the sentences were pronounced, the wives and relatives of the prisoners, who had been seated behind the dock, set up a violent scream, rose up, and, with uplifted arms, implored the Judge for mercy, and one or two fell down in fits, and were with difficulty carried out of the court.

Seven years' penal servitude is the sentence passed on Daniel Donoghue, the dock-thief who had a fierce struggle with the Millwall watchman, Terence Reilly, and his dog. The animal was thrown by the prisoner into the dock. Mr. Serjeant Cox complimented Reilly, and ordered him a reward of £2.

A sensational episode occurred during the trial of a clerk and a carman in the employment of the Great Western Railway Company for the theft of 600 chairs. Three men, who were called as witnesses to the sale of the chairs by the prisoners, so implicated themselves by their evidence that the solicitor for the railway company gave them into custody for receiving. Sentence was deferred on the original prisoners.

Several adulteration cases have been before the metropolitan police magistrates. At Worship-street Edward James, a tea-dealer, carrying on business in Kingsland High-street, was summoned for selling adulterated tea. Dr. Tripe, the analyst for the district, said he found the "tea" contained 8½ per cent of iron, sand, and small stones, "not necessarily injurious to health." The tea was green, of a very mixed quality, and was "faced." The defendant read a long statement in his defence, denying his responsibility of the adulteration, and urging that, as the Government enforced a duty of 6d. a lb. on it as "tea," they should take the responsibility of ascertaining its condition. Mr. Hannay imposed a fine of 20s., and 12s. 6d. costs. At Marlborough-street Mrs. Ann Horton, 15, Denmark-street, was summoned for selling milk alleged to be adulterated with water. Dr. Redmond, analyst to the Board of Works, St. Giles's, said that, in addition to the removal of the cream, there was an adulteration by water of 10 per cent; in fact, the milk might be called skimmed milk adulterated with water. Mr. Newton fined the defendant 20s., and 2s. costs. At the same court Robert Cunningham, 1, Lloyd-court, was summoned for a like offence. A fine was inflicted of 5s., and costs. A cowkeeper and dairyman was convicted at Clerkenwell on Wednesday of having sold adulterated milk, and was fined £3 and costs. Two bad-meat cases have been disposed of at Guildhall. Benjamin Manton, butcher, of Bedford, for sending diseased pork to the London market, was fined £5 and £2 costs, which he paid. William Stephenson, described as a meat-factor, of Leicester, who had sent unwholesome mutton to London, was sentenced to two months' imprisonment. For attempting to convey to market the carcass of a pig which was in an unwholesome state, a butcher at Twickenham was fined, on Saturday, 10s. Defendant had said that "it was as good as half the meat sent to Twickenham, and quite good enough for sausages." At Doncaster Henry Simpson, a wholesale butcher who exposed meat in a shocking state of unwholesomeness, was fined £11.

Eight tradesmen were charged at Southwark, on Tuesday, with Sunday trading, and were severally fined 3s. and costs.

At Worship-street, on Tuesday, George Willis, a young man, was committed for trial for highway robbery and violence.

A man, aged seventy-five years, was charged at the Preston County Police Court, on Monday, for the twentieth time, with poaching, and committed to prison for three months, with hard labour. It is said that if the old man lives to get half way through his latest sentence he will have spent twenty Christmas Days in prison.

A lamentable instance of homicidal mania has occurred among the Tipperary constabulary. Two officers left the barracks together, both armed, and when proceeding along the road-side one of them took the life of his comrade, running him through the body with his bayonet and then beating in his skull with the butt-end of his rifle. The homicide next inflicted a gash in his own throat, from which he died soon after reaching his lodgings.

DISASTERS.

The Court of Inquiry at Hull into the loss of the steamer Anlaby has suspended the captain's certificate for six months.

Mr. M. T. Bass, M.P., met with an accident, on Wednesday night, at Lichfield railway station. In going to the high level station he slipped and fell heavily on his head. He was taken up insensible, and remained in that state for five minutes, but was afterwards able to proceed to his residence at Rangemore.

The Board of Trade inquiry respecting the loss of the steam-ship Beulah, of North Shields, after three days' hearing, was concluded on Monday. Captain Wright's certificate was returned, and the Court recommended the Board of Trade to have a survey respecting the sunken rock off Cape de Gatt, on which the steamer struck and foundered.

Broadlands, near Romsey, Hants, the seat of the late Lord Palmerston, now occupied by his stepson, the Hon. W. Cowper-Temple, M.P., narrowly escaped destruction by fire on Sunday last. Holland's Mill, one of the finest cotton-factories in Lancashire, was destroyed by fire on Tuesday. The mill contained 90,000 spindles, and 500 hands will be thrown out of employment by the disaster. Of five fires which occurred in London on Tuesday night three were caused by the upsetting and careless use of paraffine or spirit lamps.

A collision occurred on Sunday night between the Dutch ship Kanagawa, 1200 tons register, which was running down the Channel before a strong easterly wind, and a steam-ship, the name of which is not known. The steamer shifted her course three times as the vessels neared each other. The steam-ship's side lights and masthead light continued to show, when suddenly her course was shifted to right across the ship's bows, and the officer commanding was heard to cry "Full speed ahead!" The result of this change was that the steam-ship—evidently a large vessel—came down with terrific force on the Kanagawa, tore away her bowsprit, head-gear, and fore-castle bulwarks, and started her butts and seams forward, threw her over on her beam-ends, and she narrowly escaped foundering. Three of the seamen of the Kanagawa are missing. The conduct of the steam-ship has caused great indignation, and a liberal reward is offered for any assistance in tracing her. The Kanagawa has been taken into Plymouth for repairs.

In the year ended March 31 last there were 1,043,884 packs of playing-cards on which the stamp duty of 3d. per pack was paid, producing £13,048 11s.

Attempting to stop a prize-fight, near Birmingham, three policemen were brutally maltreated, one of them receiving such injuries as to endanger his life. The fight was resumed and brought to a close after the constables had been disposed of.

Whatever brings England and the United States into more intimate connection is a gain to both. We are, consequently, glad to observe the increasing circulation in this country of American magazines, one of which, at least, is of first-rate quality. One of the principal attractions of the Atlantic Monthly is this month brought to a close by the termination, for the present, of Mr. R. Dale Owen's most interesting autobiography. He indicates, however, an intention of resuming his narrative on a future occasion, and narrating the circumstances which induced him to embrace the principles of "Spiritualism," so repugnant to the convictions of his youth. The history cannot fail to possess high interest in a psychological point of view. The account of the late Mr. Chase is a most pleasing picture of that great national blessing—a great citizen. "Gunnar" and "Honest John Vane" are excellent fictions of widely different classes; and the poetry is, as usual, far in advance of that of any English magazine. Scribner's Monthly is by no means on the same literary level, but contains two remarkable contributions—a history of St. Alban's Abbey, by Mr. Froude, the first of a series on the abbeys of England, and one on the present condition of Louisiana, illustrated by most excellent woodcuts. The misfortunes of this luckless State are truly deplorable; but never did any community more wilfully bring its calamities upon itself. Some of the notes upon American society at the end of the magazines are also interesting, and prove that all Americans are not addicted to immoderate self-glorification. Old and New is chiefly remarkable for several papers on the financial crisis, including a project for the abolition of gold as a circulating medium.

A WHITE-BEER ROOM, BERLIN.

VICE-CHANCELLOR HALL.

The new Vice-Chancellor appointed successor to the late Sir John Wickens took his seat in his court last week. "Mr. Charles Hall," says the Solicitors' Journal, "is well known to our readers as a lawyer of great experience and eminence. He was for a considerable time one of the conveyancing counsel to the Court of Chancery, which appointment he only recently resigned, and is an acknowledged authority on the law of real property. His general practice in the court has also been very extensive. Mr. Hall was called to the Bar in the year 1838, and, like his predecessor, has never worn a silk gown." The portrait is from a photograph by Mr. John Watkins.

A BERLIN BEER-CELLAR.

One of the first things that strikes a stranger in Berlin is the apparent absence of anything like the London public-house and that of the Paris marchand-de-vins. But one very soon discovers that, in addition to the ample provision for drinking at all places of public entertainment, there are an endless number of shady beer-gardens in the very heart of the city, which are screened by the fronts of the houses, and are completely invisible from the street. Moreover, in most localities the basement of every fifth house is a "Bier-Local" or a "Wein-Stube;" in other words, they are cellars where inebriating liquids are consumed. This ingenious system of hiding the insobriety of the capital from the general gaze is certainly peculiar, and might be imitated with advantage in our own large towns. Whether it is due to a sense of shame on the part of the Berliners themselves, or whether it is the authorities who prescribe this concealment of one the vices of the capital behind brick walls and in the bowels of the earth, might be difficult to say. The scene represented in our Artist's sketch is the interior of a white-beer cellar. Here crowd the lovers of that very frothy beverage which at

VICE-CHANCELLOR CHARLES HALL.

Berlin is called white beer. The landlord, who is pouring it out of a stone bottle into a big goblet of glass, was once a favourite comic actor, but retired from the stage ten years ago. The company, as may be seen from their appearance, are of mixed ranks and characters; among these toppers are the pensioned old soldier, the city tradesman, the University student, the counting-house clerk, and the street porter in his uniform of service. They all imbibe the refreshing draught of white beer, and inhale the atmosphere of this cellar, heavily laden with smoke of foreign or German tobacco. This is one way of seeking pleasure at Berlin.

"PASSING SHOWERS:
FOREST OF GLENTANNER, ABERDEENSHIRE."

The picture we engrave was in the last exhibition of the Royal Academy, and is the work of a young landscape-painter—Mr. E. A. Waterlow—of whom the public may, with us, entertain high expectations. The subject and "point of station" are admirably well chosen, and the treatment throughout evinces artistic feeling. The scene is one of the many picturesque views among the wilds of distant Aberdeenshire. It comprises almost every element of pictorial landscape. Mountain and valley, or "glen," forest and field, river and rapid, rock and boulder, cloud and mist, sunshine and rain, contribute to complete the comprehensive panorama. The herd of deer so skilfully introduced in the mid-distance serve to break the far-reaching solitude where nothing living besides intrudes. They are picking their way to safer haunts, through the shallows of the point of land that is threatened to be submerged ere long by the swelling flood of the stream in spate. A sturdy stag and an adventurous buck lead the way, and in another minute they, followed by the whole herd, may be bravely stemming the swift mid-current. Further variety and

"PASSING SHOWERS—FOREST OF GLENTANNER, ABERDEENSHIRE," BY E. A. WATERLOW.

CHAPMAN'S, NOTTING-HILL, Opposite Holland Park, W. Patterns of all Goods free.

£5000 WORTH OF BLACK SILKS.
EXTRAORDINARY PURCHASE OF BLACK LYONS SILKS.
LYONS GROS GRAIN, 24s. twelve yards; or 2s. 6d. per yard.
LYONS GROS GRAIN, 24s. twelve yards; or 2s. 6d. per yard.
LYONS GROS GRAIN, 24s. twelve yards; or 2s. 6d. per yard.
LYONS GROS GRAIN, 24s. twelve yards; or 2s. 6d. per yard.
LYONS GROS GRAIN, 24s. twelve yards; or 2s. 6d. per yard.

JAPANESE SILKS.
The Largest Assortment in the World.
JAPANESE SILKS, in every leading colour, 1s. 11d. per yard.
JAPANESE SILKS, Rich Figures, Spots, &c., 1s. 11d. per yard.
JAPANESE SILKS, Special Make, 2s. 6d. per yard.
JAPANESE SILKS, Rich Satin Stripes, 2s. 6d. per yard.

LYONS SILK VELVETS.
To 11d. 9s. 11d. and 12s. 11d. per yard.
Very Rich Quality, 29 inches wide, 2s. per yard; worth 3s.
CHAPMAN'S, Notting-hill, W.

COLOURED VELVETEENS.
"The new patent Silk Finish."
27 in. wide, all one price, 2s. 11d. per yard.
BLACK IMPROVED, NEW PATENT FINISH
VELVETEENS, Incomparable.

FRENCH MERINOS.
Always in fashion. Forms a dress unrivalled of its kind.
Finest quality manufactured, 2s. 11d. per yard, 45 inches wide.
Second quality, 1s. 11d. per yard.

GRANVILLE TWILL.
A capital new, cheap, useful Texture for ordinary wear, in Navy and all fashionable colourings. Price 9s. 11d. ten yards; 27 in.
wide, 1s. per yard.

SERGES, BEST, ALL WOOL.
1s. 6d., 1s. 11d., and 2s. 6d. per yard.
CHAPMAN'S, Notting-hill, W.
Patterns free.

GRENADINES ALGERIENNES.
for Weddings, Balls, Dinners, and Evening Wear.
GRENADINES, Satin Stripes, 1s. 11d. per yard.
GRENADINES, Rich Satin Stripes, 1s. 11d. per yard.
GRENADINES, Algeriennes, White, Coloured, or Black
Grounds, 1s. 6d. per yard.
GRENADINES, ONE HUNDRED VARIETIES.
Stock Unrivalled. Prices most Economical.
CHAPMAN'S, Notting-hill, W.
Patterns of all goods free.

CASHMERE HATS FOR LADIES.
Registered. "The Novelty of the Season."
JAYS.
"Some of the black Hats ornamented with the new drooping velvet feathers are eminently picturesque."—The Queen.

CRAPE.—Messrs. JAY, having bought at the International Exhibition "The ALBERT CRAPE" exhibited there during this past season, will sell it at a very low price.

FRANCE.—The political state of France has had the effect of reducing the prices of Manufactured Silk, and Messrs. JAY are glad to announce they can now sell a Fashionable BLACK SATIN CORD for 6s. 6d.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
245, 247, 249, 251, Regent-street.
JAYS.

IMPROVED JANUS CORD (Registered).
To be had only at JAYS. 4s. 11d. 6d. the Dress. For some years past Messrs. Jay have recommended Black Janus Cord as the best wearing material ever manufactured, a recommendation which countless purchasers of the Dress have confirmed. The Improved Janus Cord has both sides alike, but its price remains the same.
JAYS.

FURS.—"If the prognostications of weather prophets should be realised by an unusually severe winter, it will be well for those who may be furnished with a resistance to the cold."—Daily Press.
Messrs. JAY have a very superior Stock of FURS, and also Manillas trimmed with Fur, for Mourning and Ordinary Costume, which they invite their Patrons to inspect, as early purchasers will secure the best advantage, both in selection and price.
JAYS.

THE PRICE OF WOOL.—There are daily large importations of Foreign Wools to the port of London, and yet the price is continually rising. Messrs. JAY, having made previous contracts for the best Woolen Goods in Roubaix, are enabled to sell the new Black Fabrics for Autumn and Winter without any advance in price.
JAYS.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

IRISH POPLINS.
H. I. H. GRAND DUCHESS MARIE.
"Messrs. O'REILLY, DUNNE, and CO., Irish Poplin
Manufacturers, have been favoured with an order from her Imperial Highness for a magnificent selection of their beautiful fabrics, which have obtained a worldwide celebrity. Some clau-
"tarnes are included in the selections."—Irish Times.
O'REILLY, DUNNE, and CO., Manufacturers, Dublin.
M.R. LUSTROUS BLACK POPLINS as supplied to her Majesty
SCOTCH TARTANS FOR CHILDREN.
Patterns post-free. Parcels delivered carriage paid.

BURGESS. POST-FREE.
WINTER PATTERNS.
65, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

HOME-SPUN, HAND-WOVEN,
from
1s. to 2s. 6d.
per yard.
R.Y.C. SERGES.
The Largest Stock in London.
BURGESS, 65, Oxford-street.

LYONS FINISHED VELVETEENS
1s. 11d.
per yard.
BURGESS, 65, Oxford-street.

FRENCH MERINOES, WOOL-DYED.
1s. 11d. to 2s. 6d.
per yard.
BURGESS, 65, Oxford-street.

DOUBLE WOOL REPS.
1s. 3d. to
2s. 3d. per yard.
BURGESS, 65, Oxford-street.

DOUBLE DIAGONALS.
1s. to 2s. 11d.
per yard.
BURGESS, 65, Oxford-street.

INVERCAULD TWEEDS.
Shower and Mist resisting.
Patterns free.
BURGESS, 65, Oxford-street.

WEDDING TROUSSEAUX,
£20 to £250.
List post-free.
Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, 27, Piccadilly.

BABY LINEN.
A Layette for £20.
List post-free.
Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, 27, Piccadilly.

COSTUMES, 3s. to 4s.
Latest Paris Fashions.
Best Materials and Make. Patterns free.
Mrs. ADDLEY BOURNE, 27, Piccadilly.

THE NEW PARISIAN RUFFLE, in any
Colour, at 5s. for 14 yards; in Silk Velvet and Lace, 2s. 6d.
Order from the Manufacturers, CHAMFORD and CO., 10, Chancery
Lane, London.

HENRY GLAVES'S NEW AND FASHIONABLE COSTUMES. 15s. 6d., 21s., 25s., 31s., and 42s. complete, with the newest ornamental Trimmings. 534 to 537, New Oxford-street.

HENRY GLAVES'S NEW WINTER DRESSES.
NAVY SERGES, 1s. 11d. a yard.
NAVY SERGES, 1s. 11d. a yard.
NAVY SERGES, 1s. 11d. a yard.
FRENCH MERINOS, 1s. 11d. a yard.
FRENCH MERINOS, 1s. 11d. a yard.
FRENCH MERINOS, 1s. 11d. a yard.
VICTORIA TWEEDS, 2s. 11d. a yard.
VICTORIA TWEEDS, 2s. 11d. a yard.
VICTORIA TWEEDS, 2s. 11d. a yard.

ABERDEEN LINSEYS, 8d. a yard.
ABERDEEN LINSEYS, 1s. 11d. a yard.
ROUSE SATTEENS, 1s. 11d. a yard.
ROUSE SATTEENS, 1s. 11d. a yard.
ROUSE SATTEENS, 1s. 11d. a yard.
SHAH CORDS, 9d. a yard.
SHAH CORDS, 1s. 11d. a yard.
SHAH CORDS, 1s. 11d. a yard.
SATTEEN STRIPES, 1s. 11d. a yard.
SERGE STRIPES, 1s. 11d. a yard.
SERGE STRIPES, 1s. 11d. a yard.

BAKER AND CRISP.
VELVETEENS, Black, Coloured, and
Striped, and Velveteens.—Notice. The second delivery of 1000 Yards of a manufacturer's stock, and have been sold at 1s. 11d.
Patterns of all Dresses post-free, from 534 to 537, New Oxford-street.

SILKS! SILKS! SILKS!
Plain, Striped, and Fancy Silks,
Evening, Wedding, and Dinner Silks,
25s. 6d. to 5s. Patterns free.
BAKER AND CRISP.

BLACK SILKS! BLACK SILKS!
BAKER AND CRISP'S BLACK SILKS
are all of the richest, widest, and most durable makes, 1s. 9d.
Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

JAPANESE SILK, at BAKER AND CRISP'S.
18s. 6d. to 20s. 6d. Full Dress.
Japanese Silk in every Colour. 18s. 6d.
Japanese Silk in every Pattern. 20s. 6d.
Japanese Silk in every width. 20s. 6d.
Patterns free.

JAPANESE SILKS, for Evening, Wedding, and Dinner Wear.
18s. 6d. to 20s. 6d. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—BAKER AND CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

GRENADINES, for Evening, Dinner, or Weddings, from 6s. 9d. to 50s. Full Dress.
Patterns free.
Algerian Grenadines, with Silk Stripes, 6s. 9d. to 50s.
French Grenadines, with Silk Stripes, 6s. 9d. to 50s.
Chambray Grenadines, with Silk Stripes, 6s. 9d. to 50s.
Washing Grenadines (Evening wear), 6s. 9d. to 21s.
BAKER AND CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

EVENING DRESSES, 6s. 9d.—BAKER AND CRISP.
Thousands of yards of Evening Dress Fabrics, from 6s. 9d. Full Dress. Patterns free.
Baker and Crisp, Regent-street.

DRESS FABRICS.—BAKER AND CRISP'S
New Dress Fabrics for this season in all the new shades of Navy Blue and other Colours. 1000 Patterns sent free, from 1s. yard.

BAKER AND CRISP'S DRESS FABRICS
New Single, Double, and Treble Silk Repps, &c.
Serges, Diagonal Cloths, Satin Cloths.
The largest and best assortment in the kingdom at the lowest prices. Patterns sent free, from 10s. 6d. Full Dress.—198, Regent-street.

MARVELS OF CHEAPNESS.—GLOVES
AND FANCY GOODS.—Roman Scarfs, 2s. 11d.; worth
12s. 6d. Two-button Kid Gloves, 1s. 11d. Real Shetland
Shawls, 2s. 11d. each. Beautiful China Silk Scarfs, embroidered ends, 6s. 11d. each; worth 10s. 6d. 100 Ladies'
Silk Umbrellas, 6s. 11d. each; worth 10s. 6d. 100 Ladies'
Silk Aprons, 6s. 11d. each. The Queen of Aprons, Silk or Velvet, Embroidered Gold or Silver, 6s. 11d. Ladies' Sealskin Hats, 2s. 11d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 9d.; Gents', 6s. 11d.
and 10s. 6d. Hemmed-Stitch Handkerchiefs, 1s. 11d.
the whole dozen. Patterns sent free, from 10s. 6d. Full Dress.—198, Regent-street.

200 SEALSKIN HATS,
3s. 11d., 4s. 11d., and 5s. 6d. each. Extraordinary
1 argentine. Sent for four extra stamps.
BAKER AND CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

ODDS AND ENDS. Bargains.
50-yards Bundles,
for 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d. Sent for P.O.O.
BAKER AND CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

WATERPROOF CLOAKS.
THE INDISPENSABLE (Registered)
WATERPROOF CLOAKS and COSTUMES at 12s. 9d. to 21s. 6d. the Illustrated Catalogue extra stamps.
BAKER AND CRISP'S, Regent-street.

REAL SEALSKIN
The time to buy,
JACKETS, at half the Winter prices—viz., 5s. to 20s.
See Price-List.—BAKER AND CRISP'S, Regent-street.

SEE ENGRAVINGS.—SATIN and SILK WALKING-SKIRTS, Quilted and Kilted. The largest and most varied Stock in the Kingdom, from 12s. 6d. to 5s.—BAKER AND CRISP'S.

A LADY'S COSTUME.
(The Filmmoll Serge Costume (Registered), in Navy
Blue and other Colours, trimmed with silk or any other Colour. Suitable alike for Sea-side, Road, or Rail Wear. 25s. 6d.—BAKER AND CRISP'S, 198, Regent-street; and Eastbourne.

VIENNA EXHIBITION.
GASK and GASK are NOW OFFERING for SALE the whole of their extensive PURCHASES in the VIENNA EXHIBITION, comprising a great part of the superb SILKS, Velvets, Satins, Costumes, Dress Fabrics, Mantles, Furs, Bronzes, Gloves, &c., shown by the first manufacturers of France, Lyons, Austria, Germany,
Italy, India, Turkey, &c. Amongst others—
Milton and Lervier, Lyons.
F. Gautier, Lyons.
Blumer et Cie., Austria.
Biroletti, Gatti et Cie., Italy.
Victor J. Herndl, Austria.
Riot et Drouard, Paris.
Frans Birgman, Austria.
F. Marzinger, Austria.
J. Glueck, Austria.
Kubitz et Cie., Austria.
Koch et Cie., Italy.
Krich et Schivran, Austria.
Wichrill et Cie., Austria.

These Goods, having been manufactured for exhibition, are of the highest character, and, having been bought 33 per cent to 50 per cent from cost prices, will be sold very cheap.
Patterns of the Silks and Dress Fabrics will be sent to the Country.
Terms of Sale.—All Goods marked in plain figures, at the lowest price, for ready money.
58 to 63, Oxford-street; and 1 to 5, Wells-street.

"EXTRAORDINARY VALUE."—Scarlet
Ribbed Saxony Hose, or any other colour, two pairs for 2s. 11d. Real China White Nagasaki Scarfs, 1s. 6d. Leather Belts with silver or oxidized chiselings, 1s. 11d. and 2s. 11d. The Shah's Court Diamond Scarfs, 1s. 8d. Real Shetland Wool Shawls, two yards square, any colour, 2s. 11d. Japanese Lawn Handkerchiefs, 1s. 9d. half dozen. Brussels Kid Gloves, two buttons, 1s. 9d.; in one button, 1s. 5d.; all Colours. Gettemen's Black Silk or Coloured Scarfs, 1s. 3d. Ladies' or Gentlemen's Sealskin Hats, 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d., and 4s. 11d. Lace Puffs, new shapes, 1s. 11d., 2s. 11d., and
3s. 11d. Post-free, stamps or P.O.
E. L. KELSEY, 248, Regent-street, London.

Z. SIMPSON AND COMPANY
Invite attention to important purchases, comprising Black Silks, 1s. 9d. to 10s. 11d. Black Velvets, prices 3s. 11d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 11d., and 6s. 11d. Black Velveteens, 1s. 9d., 2s. 4d., 2s. 6d.,
2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d., and 4s. 11d. Patterns post-free.—Z.
SIMPSON AND COMPANY, 45 and 46, Farringdon-street, E.C.—N.B.
Costumes and Dress Fabrics in every variety for present wear.

"THE GUINEA" QUILTED SATIN SKIRT.—KNIGHT and CO., Silkmercers, &c., 217, Regent- street, having purchased a Manufacturer's Stock of French Satin, are now showing the best value ever offered in Skirts, being wholly Satin, of the full average size, finished in the best manner, and obtainable in Black and every shade of Colour. Patterns, for choice of colour, post-free.

KNIGHT and CO., Silkmercers, Fancy
Dress Warehousemen, &c., 217, Regent-street, are now displaying their Registered Novelty for the season in a new and Silk Skirts, Velveteens and Fair Costumes, Fur Seal, and other Jackets,
&c.—Agents for Booth and Fox's Down Skirts Dressing-gowns, &c.

WINTER DRESSES. Extraordinarily
Cheap.—The CO-OPERATIVE DRAPERY STORE are now
SELLING off a STOCK consisting of All-Wool Satin Cloths,
1s. 6d. to 1s. 24d.; Wool Serges, 9d. to 1s. 44d.; French Merinoes,
1s. 4d. to 1s. 11d.; All-Wool Diagonal Cloths, 10d. to 1s. 24d.;
fine Scotch Linseys, 7d. to 10d.; best Aberdeen Tweeds, 1s. 9d. to 1s. 44d.; Trouser Cloths, 10d.; Interlocky Tweeds, 6d. to 1s. 44d.
Black Velveteens, 1s. 13d. to 2s. 11d.; rich Black Silks, 1s. 9d. to 6s. 11d.; all quite 3d. to 8d. a yard under drapers' prices. Patterns free.—The Drapery Store, 118, 120, Edgware-road.

G. W. JONES'S BONNETS, HATS,
CAPS, and HEAD-DRESSES, all of the choicest description, at the most moderate prices. Country orders, accompanied with post-office order or town reference, promptly attended to.

G. W. JONES'S CHOICE FLOWERS and FEATHERS for Bonnets and Evening Wear, mounted in the most tasteful manner. Specialties for Bridal Wreaths, Bouquets, Veils, Favours, &c. All at the most moderate prices.

G. W. JONES'S PARIS NOVELTIES in Chapeaux, Bells, Fans, Pins, Buckles, Daggers, Tortoiseshell, Whitties and Paris Jet Jewellery, Spanish Combs, &c.
N.B.—101, Oxford-street, corner of Great Portland-street.

WEAR-RESISTING FABRICS
are manufactured in every style of
BOYS' and YOUTHS' CLOTHING.
SAMUEL BROTHERS, 50, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

WEAR-RESISTING FABRICS.
Suit for a Boy 4ft. in height, C Class, 25s.; Class D, 30s. 6d.
Prices ascending or descending according to size. Patterns free.
SAMUEL BROTHERS, 50, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

LONG, Short, and Weak Sight treated by the scientific use of TINTED SPECTACLE LENSES, which impart an immediate sense of coolness and relief, so essential to defective vision. Persons can be suited in the country. Simple Directions free.—S. and B. BOLLOMONT, 39, Abchurch-lane, Piccadilly.

LADIES' ORNAMENTAL HAIR.
UNWIN and ALBERT, Court Hairdressers, 24, Piccadilly, and 6, Belgrave Mansions, Piccadilly, invite an inspection of their Ladies'
Perukes and Coverings for Thin Partings, perfect copies of nature.

COILS of LONG HAIR and SPANISH
COMBS, with Curl falling on the Neck.—UNWIN and ALBERT supply the Coils, 25 in. long, for 21s.; Combs, 5s.;
Curls, 10s. 6d. per receipt of O. order.
24, Piccadilly; and 6, Belgrave-mansions, S.W.

DUCHESSE MARIE COIFFURE.—The advantage of this Hair-dress, as the hair can be arranged by a Lady, hitherto an impossibility, and there is no style to which it cannot be adapted. Description sent.—UNWIN and ALBERT, Hairdressers, 24, Piccadilly; and 6, Belgrave Mansions, Piccadilly.

HAIR DYE.—BACHELOR'S
INSTANTANEOUS COLOMBIAN. New York Original Packages, the best in the world, black or brown. The only one that removes the effect of bad dyes, &c. and restores the hair to its natural colour, and restores the hair to its natural colour, and restores Perfumers and Chemists.—Wholesale, R. HOVENDEN and SONS,
5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 93 and 95, City-road, E.C.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR
RESTORED by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. Price 10s. 6d. Testimonials post-free.—HOVENDEN, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ROBARE'S
AUREOLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Warranted not to injure the hair. Price 5s. 6d. and 10s. 6d., of all Perfumers. Wholesale, HOVENDEN and SONS,
5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 93 and 95, City-road, E.C.
London; Finaud and Meyer, 37, Boulevard de Strasbourg, Paris;
21, Graben, Vienna; 44, Rue des Longs Chariots, Brussels; Caswell, Hazard, and Co., Fifth Avenue, Broadway, New York.

DOES YOUR HAIR TURN GREY?
Then use HERRING'S PATENT MAGNETIC BRUSHES and COMBS. Brushes, 10s. and 15s. each. Combs, 2s. 6d., 5s., 7s. 6d., 10s., 15s., and 20s. each. Pamphlets upon application.—5, Great Marlborough-st., W.; 93 and 95, City-road, E.C.; and all of all Perfumers.

TO LADIES.—BEAUTIFUL HAIR,
Flatts, Rolls, and Tails of Long Hair for every purpose. An immense Stock, in every colour and length, and of first quality only.
Any article sent on observation, by post, and exchanged if not approved of. List of prices free.
C. W. STACEY and CO., Hair Dressers and Manufacturers, 45, Cranbourne-street, W.C. London. Established 1848.

FURROWS IN THE SKIN, Indentations and Flabbiness of Flesh, quickly removed by ALEX. ROSS'S SKIN TONIC, which makes all faces young in look. 2s. 6d. Sent for stamps.—ALEX. ROSS, 248, High Holborn, London.

NEURALINE, the instant Cure for TIO
DOLOUREUX, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Tooth
ache, Rheumatism, Gout, and all Nerve Pain.

GLYKALINE, the new Cure for all descriptions of Colds, Coughs arising from Colds, Hoarseness, Loss of Voice, and Difficulty of Breathing.—LEATH and ROSS, Homoeopathic Chemists, 5, St. Paul's Churchyard, and 9, Vere-street, London, W.
The above sold by all Chemists, in bottles, 1s. 11d.
and 2s. 6d.; by post, 1s. 3d. and 2s.

SEDADENT.—CURE for TOOTHACHE.
Price 1s. 11d.; post-free, 1s. 3d. Sold by all Chemists; and by the Inventors, Messrs. GABRIEL, Dentists, 72, Ludgate-hill, City; and 56, Harley-street, W.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.
PULVERMACHER'S PATENT
GALVANIC CHAIN-BANDS, BELTS, BATTERIES, &c.,
RECENTLY IMPROVED.
Approved by the Academy of Medicine at Paris and other Medical authorities in England and abroad.
This Self-Applicable Physical Curative is of an efficacy vastly superior to all other external remedies.
Owing to the physiological, physical, and chemical effects of the Electricity they gently and permanently impart into the system, these appliances exercise an internal action, promoting the digestion, circulation, and nutrition, thereby assisting Nature in her efforts to restore the normal balance of health and vigour in a debilitated constitution.
Hence the remarkable cures they daily effect in cases of—
Rheumatism, Head & Tooth Ache, Epilepsy, Lumbago, Indigestion, General and Local Sciatica, Liver Complaint, Debility, Neuralgia, Paralysis, Functional Disorders, &c.
after all other remedies have failed, and thus popularising Electricity in accordance with the authentic conclusions in the medical and scientific press.
Recent improvements in these appliances by the Inventor render their self-application extremely comfortable and effective, and thus remediate former inconveniences.
Medical and scientific extracts, and a selection of the daily pressing number of Testimonials together with Price-List, are embodied in pamphlet, "Nature's Chief Restorer of Impaired Vital Energy," sent post-free on application to the sole Inventor and Patentee,
J. L. PULVERMACHER,
GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT,
194, REGENT-STREET, LONDON, W.

TO MOTHERS, NURSES, and INVALIDS.
ELASTIC SILK ABDOMINAL SUPPORTERS, of superior
construction, for Debility, Corpulency, &c. Directions for Self-Measurement and prices by post, free.—ELAM, 106, Oxford-street.

WATER CUSHIONS for INVALIDS
(HOOPER'S), affording instant relief from pressure, and effectually preventing bed-sores by their ease, softness, and elasticity.
Illustrated price-list free by post.—Hooper, Manufacturer of Water Mattresses and Water Cushions to the Queen, 7, Pall-mall East, S.W.;
and at 55, Grosvenor-street, W.

J. and P. COATS' BEST SOFT SIX-
CORD SEWING COTTON, suitable for all Sewing-Machines.

J. and P. COATS' EXTRA GLACE
COTTON.—This cotton, being greatly improved in quality and finish, will be found unsurpassed for Machine or Hand Sewing.
On reels, 100, 200, or 500 yards.

J. and P. COATS' CROCHET or TATTING
COTTON.—In skeins or on reels, of the finest quality.
To be had of all Wholesale and Retail Drapers throughout the United Kingdom.

DON'T BEAT YOUR CARPETS; have them thoroughly cleansed and colours revived. Price 4d.
&c. per yard. Bed and Mattress Purifiers. METROPOLITAN STEAM BLEACHING and DYEING COMPANY, 47, New Oxford-street; and 17, Wharf-road, City-road.

SILK DRESSES.—5s. 6d. and 6s. 6d. are now our only prices for DYEING or CLEANING any size or quality. METROPOLITAN STEAM BLEACHING and DYEING COMPANY.

FADED CURTAINS DYED equal to new,
in a few days, at a moderate charge. Price-List sent.
METROPOLITAN STEAM DYEING and BLEACHING COM-
PANY, 17, Wharf-road, City-road; and 47, New Oxford-street.

DUTCH FLOWER ROOTS.—DANIELS
BROS.' 40s. CASE contains 60 Hyacinths, choice named and mixed; 400 Crocus, in four colours; 40 Tulips, double and single;
96 Anemones, choice double and single; 48 Ranunculi, 16 Jonquils,
16 double white sweet Narcissus, 200 Snowdrops, 24 Iris, 24 Polyanthus Narcissus, 16 Scillas, 16 Ixias. Half the above quantity, 21s.; quarter ditto, 11s. 6d., with full cultural directions. Case and package included, and carriage free on receipt of P.O.O.
Daniel Bros., Seed and Bulb Merchants, Exchange-street, Norwich.

FINE OLD PORT from the Wood, only
24s. dozen, bottles included. Half-dozen for sample, carriage-free; afterwards three dozen and upwards on same terms.—The CADIZ WINE COMPANY, 60, St. James's-street, S.W. Established 1847.—W. PAAS, Manager.

EPPS'S COCOA.
BREAKFAST.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast-tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette.
"MANUFACTURE OF COCOA.—We will now give an account of the process adopted by Messrs. James Epps and Co., manufacturers of dietetic articles, at their works in the Easton-road, London."—
See article in Cassell's Household Guide.

Made simply with boiling water or milk.
Sold by Grocers in packets only, labelled,
JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMOEOPATHIC CHEMIST,
48, Threadneedle-street; and 170, Piccadilly.
Works for Dietetic Preparations, Easton-road, London.
EPPS'S GLYCERINE JUJUBES for Throat Irritation.

BEST FOOD for INFANTS.
"Resembling mother's milk as closely as possible."—Dr. H.
Barker on Right Foods.
"The Infant Prince thrives upon it as a Prince should."—See. Sci.
Rev.
"Highly nourishing and easily digested."—Dr. Massall.
No Boiling or straining required.
Tins, 1s., 2s., 5s., and 10s. Prepared by
SAVORY and MOORE,
144, New Bond-street, London.
Procureable of all Chemists and Italian Warehousemen.

THE USE OF
THE GLENFIELD STARCH
ALWAYS SECURES
The Delight of the Landlady,
The Admiration of the Beholder,
And the Comfort of the Wearer.

FIELD'S PATENT "OZOKERIT"
CANDLES.
Improved in Colour.
Improved in Burning.
Made in all Sizes, and
Sold Everywhere.

UPRIGHTNESS, CLEANLINESS, ECONOMY, and SAFETY,
by using the
WESTMINSTER WEDGE-FITTING COMPOSITE CANDLES, which require neither paper nor scraping.
Sold everywhere. Wholesale only of
J. C. and J. FIELD, LAMBETH

NEW MUSIC.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S New Oratorio
THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD

OF THE WORLD.
Paper cover, 10s. 6d.; cloth boards, 12s. 6d. at CRABBE and Co., 202, Regent-street, W.

HENRY SMART'S Sacred Cutes
JACOB.
Paper cover, 6s.; cloth boards, 6s. net.
CRABBE and Co., 202, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER'S DANCE ALBUM for 1st

With elegant cover and dedication page in gold and silver

Quadrille	"Les Bavards"	Mr.
Waltz	"Linda"	Mr.
Leaves	"Merry Old Times"	Mr.
Gaiety	"Fun of the Ball"	Mr.
Folk	"Peerless Pier"	Mr.

Price 2s. 6d. (net); sent post-free for 2s. 8d.

The above-named Dances are sold separately, with limited illustrations Frontispiece, 2s. each

CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street, W.

NEW SOLOS by Favourite Composers
Bertram's Valse Ligeia	Angelo May
Blumenthal's My Queen (transcription)	"
De Kontak's Le Joueur Valse	"
Ferraris's Valse Brillante	"
Goldner's Saltarelle	"
Osborne's Fisher-maiden, Maypole	"
Paisiello's Bianca and Count de Famille	"
Reinler's Minerva and Tant Seul	"
Wahl's Daisy, Forget-Me-Not, and Harbald	"

CHASMAN and Co., 211, Regent-street, W.

TREKELL'S NEW COMPOSITIONS.

T. Boerre. In F major h
Les Eclairciss. Impromptu c
Le Trianon. Gavotte d
Lullaby. Cradle Song e
The Magic Harp. Caprice f
The Woodland Sprite. Minuet de Salon g

CHASMAN AND CO., 281, BROADWAY, N.Y.

RENDANO'S CHANT DU PAYBAN. &
 Played, "by command," before her Majesty at Windsor Castle by the talented Composer. A most charming musical drama.
 CHAMBER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

OFFENBACH'S C'EST L'ESPAGNE
Transcribed for the Piano-forte by BERTHOLD POPPE
"A very effective drawing-room morn'g."
CRAMER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

MARRIOTT'S NEW DANCE MUSIC
Alpine Schottische, Peerless Pier Polka, Fun of the Ball, Guardians of the Night, Saluts, and Shah Galops and Warblers of Fairlight Waltzes

CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street, V.

WELER BELA'S NEW DANCE MUSIC

TRAUM GLUCK (Polka mazurka). An elegant song and dance as the waltz.

DIE GLUCKSGOTTEN (Polka Française). A

J. B. Cramer and Co. have much pleasure in announcing to

NEMESIS SONGS AND DANCE MUSIC
 (announced nightly at the Strand Theatre: "The Love Love" sung by Edna Edwards; "My Heart's a-Beating," "What are a lady's wants to-day?" "Don't make me—Will you take my arm," "Quadrilles and Glee," J.
 B. CHAMBERLAIN; and Wallace, Swain, and Doe & Co.; and
 J. B. CHAMBERLAIN and Co., 301, Regent-street.

OFFENBACH'S C'EST L'ESPAGNE &
 Certainly the most popular song of the day. Sing:
 Mesdames Trebelli, Lablache, Pauline Rita, Calvert & Co.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and POST-FREE.
The largest and most varied Stock of Music, by all the principal Publishers. CRAMER and CO. undertake to bring a return of post (on receipt of remittance), all their Music from them, no matter by whom published, at half price as per free. CRAMER and Co, 231, Regent-street, W.

NEW PIANOFORTE MUSIC, by W. SMALLWOOD:—"The Orphan Boy's Prayer," "Echoes," "Juliette Waltz," "Rays of Hope," "Lily Bell," &c. &c. &c. W. Smallwood's pianoforte music, and musical instruments, are sold by all the principal Music Dealers in the Kingdom.

for the drawing-room, and are intended by the Artists for the development of pure taste and style, and are written in a most fascinating style. They are well calculated to contribute to the rapid progress of the pianists.

BREWSTER and Co., 22, Bishopsgate-street Within.

THE LITTLE SERAPH.—A Collection of Hymns, with suitable Tunes, arranged for Young persons, by JOHN OWEN. Title beautifully illustrated. 2s. 6d. The Music in this work is arranged in the simplest manner and is admirably adapted to the capacities of young children.

TRAVIS'S AMATEUR ORGANIST and to be had in sixty books, price at each volume 12s. 6d. each. The high patronage and extensive sale of this truly beautiful and classical work has caused some of the nobility, gentry, and musical public at all seasons solicited to order "Travis's Amateur Organ."

London: Baskware and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

BREWER and CO'S COTTAGE
 PIANOFORTES, 30 gu., elegant in appearance & music.

JOHN BENNETT'S WATCHES.
65 and 64, CHEAPSIDE.
JOHN BENNETT'S GOLD REFINERY WATER.

JOHN BENNETT'S GOLD FALCON
JOHN BENNETT'S LADIES' GOLD KEYS
JOHN BENNETT'S SILVER WATCHES, WITH ACTION,
JOHN BENNETT'S GOLD KEYS HALF

JOHN BENNETT'S SILVER HALF-CHRONOMETERS are JOHN BENNETT'S HALF-CHRONOMETERS are for variations of temperature, adjusted in position and no key.
JOHN BENNETT'S ENGLISH HALL-CLOCK CHIMING QUARTERS.
JOHN BENNETT'S RICHLY-GILT DRAWING-ROOM
CLASSIC DESK.

JOHN BENNETT'S MARBLE DINING ROOM CHAIRS
WITH ANTIQUE BRASS
JOHN BENNETT'S 18-CARAT HALL-MARKED CHAINS
CHOICE JEWELRY
JOHN BENNETT'S CLOCK AND WATCH MANTY
CLOCK, CHEAP PRIDE

A LUMINIUM WATCHES, £1 1s., £1 10s.
 £1 1s., £2 2s. Keyless Watches, £2 2s., £3 3s., £4 4s. &c.
 various Timekeepers, machine made. Small and large, of all qualities little gems. Illustrations, 4 stamps. Right for export for India and the Colonies. — MILLIKIN and LAWLAT, 10, 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52, 54, 56, 58, 60, 62, 64, 66, 68, 70, 72, 74, 76, 78, 80, 82, 84, 86, 88, 90, 92, 94, 96, 98, 100, 102, 104, 106, 108, 110, 112, 114, 116, 118, 120, 122, 124, 126, 128, 130, 132, 134, 136, 138, 140, 142, 144, 146, 148, 150, 152, 154, 156, 158, 160, 162, 164, 166, 168, 170, 172, 174, 176, 178, 180, 182, 184, 186, 188, 190, 192, 194, 196, 198, 200, 202, 204, 206, 208, 210, 212, 214, 216, 218, 220, 222, 224, 226, 228, 230, 232, 234, 236, 238, 240, 242, 244, 246, 248, 250, 252, 254, 256, 258, 260, 262, 264, 266, 268, 270, 272, 274, 276, 278, 280, 282, 284, 286, 288, 290, 292, 294, 296, 298, 300, 302, 304, 306, 308, 310, 312, 314, 316, 318, 320, 322, 324, 326, 328, 330, 332, 334, 336, 338, 340, 342, 344, 346, 348, 350, 352, 354, 356, 358, 360, 362, 364, 366, 368, 370, 372, 374, 376, 378, 380, 382, 384, 386, 388, 390, 392, 394, 396, 398, 400, 402, 404, 406, 408, 410, 412, 414, 416, 418, 420, 422, 424, 426, 428, 430, 432, 434, 436, 438, 440, 442, 444, 446, 448, 450, 452, 454, 456, 458, 460, 462, 464, 466, 468, 470, 472, 474, 476, 478, 480, 482, 484, 486, 488, 490, 492, 494, 496, 498, 500, 502, 504, 506, 508, 510, 512, 514, 516, 518, 520, 522, 524, 526, 528, 530, 532, 534, 536, 538, 540, 542, 544, 546, 548, 550, 552, 554, 556, 558, 560, 562, 564, 566, 568, 570, 572, 574, 576, 578, 580, 582, 584, 586, 588, 590, 592, 594, 596, 598, 600, 602, 604, 606, 608, 610, 612, 614, 616, 618, 620, 622, 624, 626, 628, 630, 632, 634, 636, 638, 640, 642, 644, 646, 648, 650, 652, 654, 656, 658, 660, 662, 664, 666, 668, 670, 672, 674, 676, 678, 680, 682, 684, 686, 688, 690, 692, 694, 696, 698, 700, 702, 704, 706, 708, 710, 712, 714, 716, 718, 720, 722, 724, 726, 728, 730, 732, 734, 736, 738, 740, 742, 744, 746, 748, 750, 752, 754, 756, 758, 760, 762, 764, 766, 768, 770, 772, 774, 776, 778, 780, 782, 784, 786, 788, 790, 792, 794, 796, 798, 800, 802, 804, 806, 808, 810, 812, 814, 816, 818, 820, 822, 824, 826, 828, 830, 832, 834, 836, 838, 840, 842, 844, 846, 848, 850, 852, 854, 856, 858, 860, 862, 864, 866, 868, 870, 872, 874, 876, 878, 880, 882, 884, 886, 888, 890, 892, 894, 896, 898, 900, 902, 904, 906, 908, 910, 912, 914, 916, 918, 920, 922, 924, 926, 928, 930, 932, 934, 936, 938, 940, 942, 944, 946, 948, 950, 952, 954, 956, 958, 960, 962, 964, 966, 968, 970, 972, 974, 976, 978, 980, 982, 984, 986, 988, 990, 992, 994, 996, 998, 1000.

COLT'S NEW BREECH-LOADER
LARGE-BORE DERINGER PISTOL can be carried in a waistcoat pocket. Shoots accurately, and with great force. For sale. New supply of superior Cartridges. Colt's New Breech-Loader Cartridge.

Central-Fire Revolvers have the same
Address Colt's Firearms Company, 14, Pall-mall, London

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 100, Strand
Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex
GEORGE C. LEARMON, 100, Strand, above-mentioned. -
NOVEMBER 23, 1872.

THE DUC DE BROGLIE, PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL OF MINISTERS IN FRANCE.

A SHIP ON FIRE IN KINGSTOWN HARBOUR.

WRECK OF A SCHOONER AT DOVER.

BY THE WAY.

Abd-el-Kader has died, and, it is said, at Mecca, to which holy place he made a pilgrimage in extreme youth, and again in 1828, when he was about twenty. His name has so long ceased to be heard that the news will produce slight impression on the majority of readers. Yet the old hero must not be permitted to pass away without a word of tribute. Some must remember his history, and how, when the French set themselves in earnest to conquer Algiers, Abd-el-Kader, a highly-educated and conspicuously pious man, began to preach a holy war. He gathered large armies and waged deadly strife with the French, and at length, in 1834, obtained recognition from them as the Emir of Muscara. A sort of treaty was made between him and the French; but it was soon broken, and war on a larger scale followed, until, in 1835, the Emir inflicted a signal defeat upon the invaders. Then, of course, the great nation was roused to strike hard; yet Marshal Bugeaud by no means crushed his enemy, and, indeed, found it best to confirm him in his title, with increased territory. Then the indomitable Emir "lengthened his cords and strengthened his stakes," and there came another outbreak, the indignation of France awoke, and it was resolved to bring the contest to an end at any price. Bugeaud acted with immense energy, and in 1842 Algiers was declared to belong to France, and the Emir was a "rebel." Still he fought on and on, harassing the French inconceivably, and allying himself with Morocco, on which, in consequence, he brought down French vengeance. European skill and courage at length proved too much for him, and General Lamoricière, who had resolutely hunted him down, received him as a prisoner in 1847, but granted, as did the Duc d'Angoulême, condition that Abd-el-Kader should be sent to Alexandria or Acre. The French Government would not ratify these terms (possibly remembering that Napoleon, sent to Elba, gave some subsequent trouble to his victors), and the Emir was kept in one prison or another—but treated indulgently—until the late Emperor released him, in 1852. The hero's work was then over. He lived in retirement, but in 1855 came to Paris to see Louis Napoleon and to visit the Exhibition. He has since remained in obscurity, but has occasionally been heard of doing kindly and generous actions, and it is pleasant to read that he has died in the sacred city, with all the consolations of his faith. For

’Tis the cause that alone should give grace to the fight,
And win for the champion a smile;
But honour be done to the true-hearted knight,
Let the steel that has cloven the way for the right
Have been tempered in Seine or in Nile.

To the gunpowder part of the good news from the Gold Coast ample reference is made elsewhere. We may just note here that the flora of the district seems to have excited the enthusiastic homage of all the correspondents. Though marching on a novel and dangerous business, and though suffering from the effects of the abominable odours of the marsh land, these gentlemen were not prevented from paying the closest attention to the glories of the flowers which were seen in such profusion of splendour. Unconsciously the writers have produced a novel artistic contrast by the introduction of these delightful descriptions, which we specially commend to our own readers. People who have hitherto been able to form only a squalid and gloomy idea of the country in which we are at war will find their impressions greatly brightened by being told that our soldiers advance to battle with the blacks through riches which might be imagined by Mr. Beverly when inventing the "Treasure Garden of Queen Flora, and Home of Ten Thousand Flowers."

Really, Mr. Lowe "must just be a proud man the day," as the Scotch say. A deputation of licensed victuallers waited upon the Home Secretary, and he so astounded them, in the first place, by not giving them a severe jobation, and so delighted them, in the second, by his affable, nay, genial manner, that their leader has felt it a duty to give Mr. Lowe a public testimonial of character. Certainly, there are occasions when praise is not exactly desirable, inasmuch as it sometimes implies that what was expected was conduct worthy of dispraise. Perhaps, on the whole, a more delicate compliment would have been paid Mr. Lowe by the acceptance of his gentlemanly behaviour as matter of course. But, again, a certain class do not see anything rude in saying that a man "can be very much of a gentleman when he likes," as if a gentleman ever liked to be anything else. We hope that Mr. Lowe will not be unduly elated at the testimonial from the victuallers; we perform the part of the attendant in the Roman triumph, whose duty was to whisper to the crowned victor, Ne sibi placeret—"Remember that thou art but a man!"

Another lull in the monster trial, which we all hoped would at this time be rapidly proceeding to an end. Nearly another fortnight was conceded on Monday—that is, the work begins again next Thursday. The prosecution required leisure to find out what the new witnesses from America have to say. No doubt that time will be saved and the interests of justice will be promoted by counsel being able to shape the examination in a compact form, and with a distinct purpose, or the Court would not have granted the delay. It may have been noted that to a railway rearrangement was due the fact that the Lord Chief Justice could not get to town on Monday until late in the day. His Lordship has been in the habit of working in the "off" days on board his yacht, and he could hardly do a wiser thing than escape from the effluvia of a crowded court into the sea air. But the train by which he was accustomed to come up had been taken off the line. Considering what railway officials are, and the exquisite courtesies they display on all occasions, some persons are weak enough to wonder that nobody had the grace to remind Sir Alexander of the change; and certainly the dispatch of a time-bill, with a red smear and a halfpenny stamp, would not have ruined the company which the Lord Chief Justice had been patronising for months. We do not share that weakness.

A late Indian letter states that considerable sensation has been caused by the act of a gentleman named Melville, long "a name of worship" in India, who had been a great many years a covenanted servant. He has embraced the Mohammedan religion, and taken an Oriental name. He has done this for the same cause that loses Mark Antony the world at Drury Lane every evening. Mr. Melville wished to espouse a lowly-born maiden of the Mohammedan faith, as King Cophetua loved the beggar-maid. It is proposed, or at least suggested, that he should be visited with such official punishment as can be inflicted—that is to say, he is not to be employed outside the conditions of his covenant. Now, if it were not that he is stated to have a Christian wife besides the Mohammedan one, we should unhesitatingly say that such a course would be abominable persecution. Since when has our Government learned to punish a man for changing his religion? And, considering that the Queen of England sways more Mohammedans than any other Sovereign, it might be considered also, whether this kind of insult to their creed be judicious or generous. We suppose that in the interest of Philistia we had better say, as of course the fact is, that we deeply regret that an educated man should be so absurd as to prefer the Mohammedan creed to our own. But that is beside the question. Let society mark the eccentricity in its own way, but Government has no concern with the creed of non-ecclesiastical servants of the public. If the gentleman were a clergyman, who had sworn that he would teach Protestantism, and yet taught hybrid Romanism, retaining the money given him to teach the former, it would be a different question. But it is not for the Ministers of the Empress of India to punish a man for preferring belief in the mission of Mohammed.

THE DUC DE BROGLIE.

The President of the Council of Ministers in Marshal MacMahon's French Government is a Liberal statesman, of the Moderate or Constitutional party. Charles Jacques Victor Albert de Broglie is eldest son of the late Duc de Broglie, Achille Charles Léon Victor de Broglie, who died three years ago, and who held office under M. Guizot in 1832 and 1834, and was, in 1851, a member of the National Assembly suppressed by Louis Napoleon's coup-d'état. The Duke's ancestors, in the eighteenth century and during the reign of Louis XIV., were distinguished military servants of the ancient Monarchy. They bore the title of Prince. Three of them in succession won the rank of Marshal of France; the next, as a Royalist, emigrated to Russia at the Revolution between 1789 and 1793; but his son, who was father of the late Duke and grandfather of the present one, chose the side of the democratic party, and was guillotined under its Reign of Terror. The subject of this notice was born in June, 1821. He was educated at the University of Paris. Taking political literature for his career, he became one of the editors of the Correspondant, in which journal, with the late Count de Montalembert, he advocated respect for the Catholic religion combined with the principles of constitutional liberty. He proceeded to enter the diplomatic service, and was secretary to the embassies at Madrid and at Rome. After the revolution of 1848 he retired for a long time from public life, but was elected a member of the French Academy in 1862, upon the ground of his literary reputation. His chief work, of other than a polemical character, is that on the "History of the Church under the Roman Empire in the Fourth Century." In 1871, after the fall of the Empire, the Duc de Broglie was elected a member of the Versailles National Assembly; but he was soon afterwards appointed by M. Thiers to be French Ambassador in London. This post he lately relinquished to hold the chief place in the Ministry formed by Marshal MacMahon. We have engraved the portrait of the Duc de Broglie after a photograph by Reutlinger, of Paris.

A BURNING SHIP IN HARBOUR.

A terrifying sight, accompanied with serious disaster to property and some loss of life, was beheld in Kingstown harbour, Dublin Bay, at midnight on Sunday week. The ship Nagpore, a very fine iron-built vessel of 1500 tons burden, on her voyage home from Calcutta to Liverpool with a cargo of jute, cotton, hempseed, and fifty tons of saltpetre, and with a crew of thirty-seven men, had been discovered to be on fire, when off the Isle of Man, at five o'clock in the evening that day. The captain at once determined to run before the wind, a strong gale from E.S.E., and get into Kingstown Harbour, while the pumps were worked to extinguish the fire, if possible, by throwing water into the hold and between decks. The crew were greatly alarmed lest the saltpetre should explode and blow them all up; the decks, too, became so hot that they could hardly keep their footing. Nevertheless, they persevered in their work, and the ship got into Dublin Bay at half past ten o'clock, and made her way into Kingstown. The ship was a clipper, fully rigged; every inch of canvas was set, and the sails were oiled to catch the wind better; she drove in at a furious speed before the gale. The crew were so much engrossed with fears and cares for their own safety, that they did nothing to shorten sail or slacken speed. In this plight the Nagpore, shortly before twelve o'clock at night, dashed round the East Pier, and into the harbour. She caused a great fright among the vessels anchored there, most of which instantly attempted to clear out of the way, a matter not easily accomplished in the rough state of the weather. First, the ship ran foul of the schooner Pilot, from Wexford, laden with coals, which was very seriously damaged, the bowsprit and mainmast being lost. The crew were able to scramble on board the ship; but the master, Mr. English, was unfortunately crushed between the vessels, and sank. The ship then fouled the schooner Margaret, of Llangelly, in Wales; she filled at once and sank, the crew escaping likewise on board the ship which had been the cause of the disaster. A trader, the Diligence, and also a trawler, came to grief from collision with the ill-fated ship, whose anchors had in the meantime been cast, but dragged, in consequence of the speed with which she entered the harbour, and the force of the wind. She was finally brought to, opposite the Royal Irish Yacht Club, in about 20 ft. of water at full tide. Captain Barnes, Commander of the cutter Fanny, Commander Seymour, R.N. of the Coastguard, Captain Richard Hutchinson, R.N., and Mr. John Francis, with the harbour master's crew, boarded the vessel, and remained all night, throwing water into the hold on the burning cargo. At half past nine in the morning the Dublin City fire brigade, under Captain Ingram, arrived with three hand-engines, one of which was placed in a boat and laid alongside the ship; but it was found impossible to work it, so rough was the water. After a consultation between Captain Barnes, of the Fanny, and Captain Ingram, it was determined to send a few round shot into the burning vessel between wind and water. If the fire had reached the saltpetre and an explosion had taken place, considerable damage might have been done, not only to the shipping in the harbour, but to Kingstown itself. The crew were ordered forward out of danger, and the Fanny sent half a dozen 6-lb. shot through the sides of the vessel below the water-line. The Nagpore then began to fill and settle down. She had settled on the bottom at about one o'clock, and, as the water was a foot or two above her deck, all danger was over. The Nagpore is the property of Messrs. McKinnon and Co., Liverpool. The ship and cargo were estimated at £75,000. The vessel, however, has since been floated. Our illustration is from a sketch by Mr. T. N. Deane.

A WRECK AT DOVER.

Mr. J. R. Kirby, of the Royal Cinque Ports Yacht Club, contributes to our Journal his sketch of the wreck of a schooner at Dover on Sunday week, with the following account:—
"As the inhabitants of Dover were preparing for church on Sunday morning, the wind blowing a gale from E.S.E., they were startled by the sudden preparation for launching the life-boat. On looking out they perceived that a large billyboy schooner had struck the rocks outside the harbour's mouth, and was inevitably doomed to quick destruction. It was evident that the only thing to be done was to endeavour to save the lives of the crew. The life-boat was soon launched at the usual place, the stone apron opposite Waterloo-crescent, and was on her way to the schooner, which had in the mean time been driven, by the seas that were continually striking her, close to the south pier head. She came so close to the pier that it became possible to rescue the crew by means of ropes and other appliances. But one poor fellow, the master, had his leg broken, and was otherwise seriously injured, in this operation. The men being saved, there was no need of the life-boat; and she was pulled by her crew back into the harbour. The doomed schooner, after bravely resisting the heavy seas about a quarter of an hour, was at last struck by an unusually heavy one. She was seen literally to dissolve into innumerable fragments of planks, most of which floated into the harbour till it appeared to be quite covered with them. The sketch was taken at the time the crew were being rescued. The schooner was the Ocean Queen, loaded with wheat, and bound to Calais. She had been fouled by a steamer in Yarmouth Roads, and had four feet of water in her hold when she struck; hence the apparently desperate resolution of the master in attempting to take the harbour before there was water for her.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

It is universally acknowledged that Mr. Trevelyan was the pioneer of that sweeping Army reform which has been proceeding of late years. Now he has undertaken to lead the van on the question of the assimilation of the county and borough franchise. His bill of last Session having that object, though it did not go beyond the inchoate stage, was in the abstract a success, and everyone now believes that it will be taken up next year by the Government. In the mean time its author is putting the subject before the country, as his manner is with any question that he stands godfather to; and he has opened his itinerary at Sheffield, which is as good as any other place, though no particular reason may be observed for the choice, at least by the uninitiated. Perhaps Mr. Trevelyan may see, what others more obtuse than he do not, an advantage in having Mr. Mundella for his immediate "follower and henchman," and so went to Sheffield, which that gentleman more or less represents. Of him it may be said that his out-of-seasonal activity has been very great this year, and several constituencies, other than his own, have had the benefit of his nervous eloquence and breadth of political view. It was not a bad idea of Mr. Charles Reed, while he is canvassing the municipal electors of Hackney to give him his seat as their representative at the School Board of London, to appear in his other capacity as member for the borough, and deliver his annual extra-Parliamentary exercitation. Despite of a little sing-song in his delivery, Mr. Reed is a very good, even a pleasant, speaker, while his capacity for his dual membership is undeniable. There is therefore no doubt that he will continue to hold his places in the House and at the School Board, and that the chairmanship of the latter will fall to him as a certainty.

Any person for the first time hearing Mr. Hinde Palmer addressing the House would probably be reminded of that which is said to be a sight for the gods—a good man struggling with difficulties. He is fluent enough, and earnest enough, but there is a sort of melancholy tone about him which seems to be generated by a consciousness that he has never been sufficiently appreciated; that he has a great deal in him which he cannot get out in such quantity as he would desire; in fact, that he does not succeed in wholly liberating his mind. And yet in a certain sense he is at present one of the most appreciated of members, for did not the electors of Lincoln, at the last general election, return him voluntarily and spontaneously in his absence, and without his being at that time a candidate? To be sure, he had failed three times before to gain the suffrages of the electors of that town, which is traditionally supposed to have some special attraction for the great enemy of mankind; and therefore his having been chosen, and in such a manner, at last, may well be set down rather to a desire to render him compensation than to caprice. A speech of his to his constituents very recently was as good a defence of the Government as might be expected from a practised advocate who had prepared his own brief.

The House as an audience generally knows nothing of Lord Arthur Russell, the member for Tavistock; but socially within its precincts he is well known and esteemed. He has been addressing the constituents of the Duke of Bedford—which is the same thing as saying his own—at the snug little family borough, and he delivered rather a curious speech. His inspiration (as was only natural) seemed to come from Earl Russell, who has for some time been enacting the part of the "candid friend" to the present Ministry with especial pointedness. Lord Arthur takes the notorious "rest and be thankful" axiom of his noble relative and political sponsor for his text; and insinuated, and something more, that the country is rather tired of the Gladstonian policy of bringing down ancient institutions with a resounding crash; and he even seems to think that the prospects of the Tories are, on the whole, promising. In short, he presented a specimen of that Whiggery which once did duty for Radicalism, and which is now in a fossil state, as represented by Earl Russell, who, in times past, was its special type.

Amongst the novelties imported into the House at the last general election was Mr. Pemberton, who sprang up a full-grown county member at once. As a member, he gives the idea that he could do a great deal more than he has done, which has been only the injection of a smart speechlet or two into the crevices of important debates. But the other day, somewhere in Kent—a division of which he represents—he gave a larger taste of his quality, and showed that that quality is very good. In a word, he took Mr. Bright for his theme, and handled some of the special utterances of that gentleman, which have been taken up as watch words by the extreme Liberals, in a masterly manner, from his own point of view. It is not too much to affirm that he ingeniously showed that many of those sayings of Mr. Bright, which have been adopted by the Liberals as shibboleths, are mere phrases, signifying little or nothing when reduced to practical tests. This was as bold as it was ingenious; and, whatever may be the opinion of some people of the argument, nobody can deny the skill of the arguer.

Perhaps the arduousness of the Liberals of Bristol, which induced them to get up political festivities precedent to the great anniversary of "Colston," may have had a depressing influence on their party gathering of that day. Efforts were probably made to enlist a Cabinet Minister or two for the occasion, but they were not successful; and only two Peers—one of whom is an Under-Secretary and the other the Master of the Buckhounds—and the Solicitor-General, then in the process of transition to the Attorney-Generalship, were there to represent the Government at the "Anchor" branch of the "Colston" Institution. To be sure, the Marquis of Lansdowne did his best, and Mr. Henry James was vivacious and pointed; but, somehow, the chronicle of the Liberal section of the annual canonisation of Colston does not give an idea of any special animation. As to the "Dolphin," which is the Tory side of the festival, the assemblage was still less sensational. Beginning with the end of the list of more or less celebrities present, it may be said that one could not expect much that was lively from Mr. R. N. Fowler, amiable and sympathetic as he is towards all men, and even to all politicians; Mr. Richard Bright, being from Somersetshire, could not be expected to be brilliant; and even Mr. Neville-Granville did not exactly cornuscate as he sometimes does in a small way. The battle-horse of the occasion was Mr. Stephen Cave, who is a sage, grave man and member, weighty of opinion on finance, and measured and sententious in his utterances. But he affects humour, and really he does now and then manufacture elaborate witticisms and ponderous jokes, which, pronounced in a sepulchral tone, and with a visage of the most portentous immobility, at first cause an inclination to laugh; but ere the cachinnation is completely formed there comes a reaction, and it dies away abortively in a sense of sadness. But surely there might have been expected some enlivening from Mr. Greene, who had come from far Bury St. Edmunds. He is the very Yorick of the Conservative party in the House, a man of infinite jest, who sets the benches in a roar whenever he speaks, whether it be in a plaintive or an excited vein, to both of which he is prone, and one does not know in which he is most amusing. In truth, he is as much in earnest as Mr. Cave appears to be; but he shows it in an odd way, for he cannot open his mouth but out there flies a trope, though he jokes lachrymously and almost with tears in his eyes. At Bristol he had, as he naturally would, a high place assigned him in the list of speakers; but he was apparently not himself, for he seems to have only pronounced a serious political creed, and no mirth-raising is attributed to him. It is conceivable that, being positively and bona fide serious, he must have been unendurable.

There have been many efforts made during the recess to show that Mr. Bouverie had reconciled his differences with the Government—differences, it is said, arising from non-appreciation of his merits as a would-be official. It was supposed that those severe bombardments on the rear of the Ministers which he gave out last Session were caused by his not having been invited to enter their ranks. A change, it was whispered, had, however, come over him, because he had been offered places, from the Postmaster-Generalship up to the Home Secretaryship. Let anyone who cherished this idea only consider a speech he has just delivered to his constituents, and be disillusioned. To be sure, all the vacant offices have been filled up, and neither of them by him; so he may have relapsed into his old bitterness of spirit.

MUSIC.

The second season of the Wagner Society began well, on Friday week, when a series of six concerts was inaugurated—the success of the three performances given in February, March, and May last having led to this extension of the scheme. Another change is that the selections from the music of Richard Wagner will be interspersed with pieces by the acknowledged great composers from Bach to the present time. The specimens from Wagner given at the concert now referred to consisted of the "Meeting of the Master-Singers" and the introduction to the third act of the opera, "Die Meister-Singer von Nürnberg," a work which, although dating after his "Tannhäuser" and "Lohengrin," is less elaborate in design and detail than his subsequent works. The second of the pieces just named had been given with much effect at two of the previous concerts of the society, and again pleased greatly, having had to be repeated. The other extract lost much by the absence of the requisite voices of the twelve master-singers, without which features of the score it should not have been given. The remainder of the programme consisted of Spontini's overture to "Olympia," that by Berlioz to "King Lear," and Beethoven's symphony in C minor, all having been splendidly played by a fine orchestra, ably conducted by Mr. Edward Dannreuther. Among the many points of interest at the concert referred to was the extraordinary pianoforte-playing of Dr. Hans von Bülow, as displayed in a very long, and in some portions very dry, concerto by Joachim Raff, and in Liszt's brilliant fantasia on Hungarian airs. In both these performances the great pianist manifested those high and exceptional powers on which we have several times commented. The applause was enthusiastic, especially after the fantasia. Apart from the special purpose of the society—the appropriation of surplus profits to the fulfilment of the projected production of Wagner's newest opera at Bayreuth in 1875—must be recognised the care and preparation exercised in the performances at these concerts, at which a band of about eighty of the best orchestral players is engaged, and thorough rehearsals are ensured.

Bach's St. Matthew "Passion Music" was very finely given by the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society on Thursday week, conducted by Mr. Barnby, as on several previous occasions. The principal singers were Miss Spiller, Madame Patey, Mr. Cummings, Mr. Thurley Beale, and Mr. Pope. The choruses and chorales were very impressively rendered by the gigantic choir. In association with the solo pieces, noticeable features were the admirable flute obligato of Mr. Svendsen to the soprano air "For love my Saviour suffered" (sung by Miss Spiller), and Mr. Pollitzer's skilful execution of the elaborate violin solo associated with the contralto air "Have mercy upon me" (sung by Madame Patey). Dr. Stainer presided at the organ, and Mr. Randegger at the pianoforte. The third concert of the society's second season will take place on the 27th inst., when Handel's "Israel in Egypt" will be given.

Last week's Saturday afternoon concert at the Crystal Palace was the seventh of the new series, and the selection included the first performance there of a work by Mr. Silas—an "Elegy" for pianoforte and orchestra, the principal part in which was played by the composer, who has long been distinguished as a clever pianist, as well as by many skilful productions, both instrumental and vocal. The piece referred to contains some effective writing, both for the orchestra and the solo instrument, and it was exceedingly well played in both respects. In this and in two unaccompanied solos, also of his own composition, Mr. Silas was warmly applauded. Beethoven's seventh symphony (in A), Mendelssohn's overture to "Ruy Blas," and that by Gade entitled "Hamlet"—all finely rendered—made up an interesting instrumental selection. Madame Edna Hall, a débutante, was very favourably received in her two solos—the scena from "Der Freischütz" and a song by Robert Franz; and Madame Patey sang, with her usual success, Haydn's "Spirit Song," and Giordani's aria, "Caro mio ben," the latter of which had to be repeated.

At this week's Monday Popular Concert Dr. Hans von Bülow was the solo pianist, his performances having consisted of Beethoven's sonata in A flat, op. 110 (that with the fugue); the pianoforte part of Brahms's quartet, and of Chopin's sonata for piano and violoncello, which last was given for the first time at these concerts. In each instance the great artist justified his reputation as a player who is admirable alike in the bravura and the classical styles. In reading and in execution the interpretation of the solo sonata would have been perfect but for a little (momentary) faltering of memory towards the close. Apart from his rare qualities as a pianist, Dr. von Bülow's mnemonic powers are such as were never equalled among musicians; but even these may be overstrained. The alight and transient hesitancy alluded to was, however, but as a speck of dust on a fine picture. In the duet sonata the co-operation of Signor Piatti, with his incomparable tone, style, and execution, combined, with the admirable playing of Dr. von Bülow, to realise a splendid interpretation of one of the best of Chopin's larger works. The exquisite largo movement was encored with enthusiasm. Haydn's bright quartet in C (from op. 33) terminated the selection. Herr Straus was leading violinist, Mr. L. Ries the second violin, and Mr. Zerbini the viola. Mdlle. Limia was the vocalist, and her refined singing of the aria, by Lotti, "Pur dicesti," and that by Handel, "As when the Dove," was received with great and general applause. Sir Julius Benedict conducted. At the first of this season's Saturday afternoon performances, last week, Dr. von Bülow was likewise the pianist, having then been heard in Beethoven's "Sonata Appassionata" and the pianoforte part of Schumann's quintet. M. Sainton was the leading violinist, the other members of the stringed quartet having been the same as usual. Mdlle. Gaetano was the vocalist and Mr. Zerbini the accompanist.

The programme of Dr. von Bülow's pianoforte recital at St. James's Hall, on Wednesday afternoon, comprised Hummel's fantasia (op. 18), Bach's "Italian" concerto, Sir W. Sterndale Bennett's new sonata, "The Maid of Orleans," Beethoven's sonata in E (op. 109), and pieces by Liszt.

The Sacred Harmonic Society was to inaugurate its forty-second season at Exeter Hall, yesterday (Friday) evening, with an interesting and varied programme, comprising Haydn's first mass (in B flat); Mendelssohn's unfinished oratorio, "Christus;" and Handel's "Dettingen Te Deum." In addition to the revival of Dr. Crotch's "Palestine," we believe it has lately been determined to produce during the season Mr. G. A. Macfarren's "St. John the Baptist," the success of which at the Bristol Musical Festival was recently recorded by us.

The third concert of the present series of the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society will take place on Thursday next, the 27th inst., when Handel's "Israel in Egypt" will be performed, with G. A. Macfarren's additional orchestral accompaniments.

The London Ballad Concerts, directed by Mr. John Boosey, will commence their eighth season at St. James's Hall on Wednesday evening next. Among the vocalists announced for the first concert are Madame Otto-Alvalesben, Madame Patey, and Mr. Sims Reeves.

THEATRES.

PRINCESS'S.

Our record of theatrical matters this week is more than ordinarily interesting. We have to register more than one effort of dramatic activity, much to the honour of those who have made it. First on our list stands the "Griselda" of Miss Braddon, with Mr. and Mrs. Rousby in the characters of the suffering wife and her arbitrary lord. We need not remind our readers how this tale is to be found in Chaucer and Boccaccio, and in many other shapes. Nor is it now dramatised for the first time, as Miss Braddon has shown, though she has omitted in her catalogue the version of a Danish poet, which is, perhaps, superior to all in poetic vis and stage adaptation. Miss Braddon's treatment is perfectly original, and evades a difficulty which her predecessors found it hard to deal with. To justify the harsh conduct of the Marquis of Saluzzo towards his lady is impossible, Miss Braddon has, therefore, to undertake to account for it. According to her, the husband is incited to try his wife's patience by an ambitious and envious cousin, who for his own interest provokes the trial, and in her lord's absence makes love to herself. He feigns to her that the Marquis has appealed to the Pope for a divorce, and contrives to abduct her child, the effect of the last outrage being to imperil her reason. Just at this juncture the Marquis returns, and, finding how treacherously his cousin has behaved, resolves upon a generous revenge. He commands a feast in order to celebrate a second bridal, at which the nefarious Cosmo is present. The Marquis directs him to unveil the bride; he does so, and is astonished to behold the countenance of Griselda. Such is the classical termination of this excellent drama. The whole is exceedingly well constructed, and the dialogue is, for the most part, pleasingly poetical. Of the acting we can speak with entire approval. Mr. W. Rignold, as the Marquis, was dignified and impulsive; high-purposed, but liable to be misled; open to flattery, and confiding rather than self-reliant. All this was skilfully indicated, and the actor gained the sympathy of the audience. Mrs. Rousby, as the patient wife, was as lovely and pathetic as ever. Her bright intelligence shed a light on the affecting situations in which she was placed, and ensured the admiration of all good judges. Mr. Rousby, as the delinquent Cosmo, had a strong character, and sustained it with wonderful power. In one scene he reminded us of the elder Kean, and rose to a high standard of excellence, both as an elocutionist and an actor. This flash of genius was at once appreciated by the audience, and extorted unbounded applause. The performance was throughout successful, and will, we trust, prove popular. The scenery and costumes were costly and appropriate.

QUEEN'S.

On Saturday Mr. Charles Reade's new drama of "The Wandering Heir," dramatised from his novel, was placed upon the boards of this theatre, now under the management of Mrs. Seymour. The romance has been so widely read that we need not detail its plot. The story itself is to be found in Howell's State Trials, "a single volume of which," Mr. Reade tells us, "presents the same individual as defendant in a trial for murder and plaintiff in a trial at bar for the recovery of great estates and titles." The resemblance to "the Claimant's" case is patent, and the popularity of the new drama may somewhat depend on its progress. Mr. Reade has treated the subject in his usual broad and dashing style. In the first two acts we have the incidents which led to the young Lord Althams being kidnapped and shipped off to Philadelphia as a slave. Here we see him in the service of a slave-holding Quaker, named Surefoot (Mr. Artand), watched over by his sweetheart in boy's clothes, Philippa Chester (Mrs. John Wood). The wandering heir is represented in the first act as a child by Miss K. Maccabe, in a highly interesting manner; but in the third Mr. E. Leathes continues the part, and retains it to the end of the play. The ability displayed by this young actor is of the highest promise. Mrs. Wood, as Philippa, was wonderfully energetic, both in her male and female attire; bordering frequently on extravagance, but always right in the kind, if not in the degree, of her passion. With such determined acting as hers, it is impossible for a play not to succeed. The home adventures and trial-scenes of the third and fourth acts have not the same wild interest as the previous portions. Nevertheless, they are worked out by the author with unwearied skill; and the fifth act, consisting of the famous trial, is a most elaborate set-scene, full of the most extraordinary situations. These the author has set forth with singular boldness, but with a success that is not to be doubted. The audience were somewhat startled at the daring and free handling of the incidents; but they will learn, in the long run, to appreciate the judgment as well as the courage of the dramatist. There is every probability that the performance will command a continuous run.

DRURY LANE.

The manager has supplemented the spectacle of "Antony and Cleopatra" with a new ballet, in which Miss Kate Vaughan and her characteristic troupe appear, and dance most fantastically to airs from "La Fille de Madame Angot." The principal dancer wears black muslin trimmed with gold, and, as the Spirit of Darkness, literally spell-bound the audience. The effect of the whole is so wild and weird that the astonished spectators called vociferously for an encore; but this, owing to the exertion previously exhibited, could not be complied with. It will certainly bear to be seen twice, but it must be on different evenings.

COURT.

"An eccentricity" was produced at this theatre on Saturday, under the title of "The Wedding March," a piece adapted by Mr. Latour Tomline, from the French extravaganza "Le Chapeau de Paille d'Italie." The whole of the interest turns on the strange fact that a horse has eaten a Leghorn hat belonging to a lady. A Mr. Woodpecker Tapping, who is about to be married, makes himself responsible for purchasing a new hat, and in endeavouring to acquit himself of his responsibility encounters all manner of adventures, and nearly misses being married. Other strange incidents follow on this, making three acts of wild and incoherent fun, which it is impossible to describe, but which was unquestionably successful.

OPERA COMIQUE.

Another most eccentric production has been produced at this house, in the shape of a burlesque by Mr. Burnand, called "Little Tom Tug," in which "the jolly young waterman" is depicted with all the extravagance of that real life which is stranger than fiction. Besides, the extravagance is set off by some very elegant scenery. The first scene was sufficient to conciliate the audience. Bundle's Botanical Gardens at Battersea, with picturesque groups of moving and talking figures, at once threw the entire house into good humour. Nor was the scenery of the regatta less successful, with the accident to the steam-boat and the upset of the rival craft; while Tom and his wherry arrive in time, distance competitors, and win the Belle of Battersea. The music employed in the piece is selected and composed by Mr. Stanislaus. The hero was acted in the liveliest style by Miss Pattie Laverne, who was ably assisted by Miss Emily Muir as the beloved Wilhelmina. Mr. Charles Lyall was excessively comical, and sang "Mary and her Canary" with a humorous pathos which commanded an encore. The residue of the characters received due support, and the whole performance reflects great credit on the management.

GAIETY.

A new version, by Mr. Farnie, of "La Fille de Madame Angot" has been produced at this theatre, and met with much approval, well deserved by the neat style of versification adopted and the close adherence to the plot which is maintained. Miss Soldene, as Mdlle. Lange, had an enthusiastic reception, and received immense applause throughout. Miss Annie Sinclair made an exceedingly good Clairette. The rest of the characters are respectably filled, and the scenery and costumes are remarkably splendid.

The second morning performance of "Richelieu" at the Lyceum takes place this (Saturday) morning. In the evening this piece will have been played fifty consecutive nights.

RE-NAMING OF STREETS IN LONDON.

The Metropolitan Board of Works has directed the following alterations to be made in the names of streets and numbering of houses within the metropolitan district:—West-street North, Bermondsey, to be re-named Fream-street; of the two streets named Cross-street, leading out of Canterbury-road, Old Kent-road, the one nearest Old Kent-road to be called Wagner-street. The whole line of thoroughfare from the Eyre Arms to the toll-bar at the Swiss Cottage to be re-named Finchley-road, the subsidiary names abolished, and the houses re-numbered. No alteration will be made in the name of the Vauxhall-bridge-road. Prince Consort-road, Belsize Park, will be re-named Belsize-crescent. Everdon-road, East Dulwich, to be re-named Ashbourne-grove. The line of thoroughfare between the Crown and Sceptre and Streatham-hill station to be re-named Streatham-hill-road. No alteration will be made in the name of Holland-villas-road, Kensington. Charlotte-row, Rotherhithe, to be re-named Purnell-place. The whole line of thoroughfare now known as North-grove West, North-grove, South-grove West, and South-grove, last to be re-named Mildmay-grove; Wright's-buildings, Spa-road, Bermondsey, to be called Vauban-street; Commercial-street, Rotherhithe, to be re-named Osprey-street; a new street to lead out of Albany-road, Camberwell, to be called Domville-grove; and a new street and mews to lead out of Greenvile-place, Cromwell-road, to be called Emperor's-gate and Aplin-mews, on the conditions that no barriers be at any time erected, or other obstruction caused, to the free use of the streets by the public; Coburg-lane, Rotherhithe, to be incorporated with Bond-street, under the name of Irwell-place; Bridge-road-mews, Loudoun-street, St. John's-wood, to be re-named Loudoun-road-mews. The house now improperly known and described as 21A, Elvaston-place, will be re-numbered and known as No. 1, Gore-street, South Kensington; George-street, Rotherhithe, to be re-named Renforth-street. In consequence of the unfinished condition of Reynold's-court, Moor-lane, as to buildings, the court will not at present be incorporated with Moor-lane. New-street, Adam-street, Rotherhithe, to be called Hatteraick-street. The houses in the following places will be re-numbered, and the subsidiary names abolished:—Rhodeswell-road, Stepney; Hawley-road West, Kentish Town; Willingham-terrace, Brecknock-road; Allcroft-road, Kentish Town; Adam's-gardens, Bush-road, Chilton-street, Kimbourn-street, Manor-lane, and Wellington-street (which will be called Trident-street), Rotherhithe. The houses in Portadown-road, Maida-hill, will not at present be re-numbered.

The Poplar district board suggests that the following thoroughfares, having two names, Gates-street and Canton-street, Thomas-street and Gough-street, Hind-street and Paynton-street, may have one name substituted for the entire length; also that a street between Byron-street and St. Leonard's-avenue, Bromley, may be named Hack-street; and that the thoroughfare called Charles-terrace and Stewart-street may be incorporated under the latter name.

The suggestions forwarded to the board include a letter from Messrs. Hoare and Sons, complaining of the repetition of the name Nelson-square in the S.E. district; from the Westminster district board, that Park-street and Queen's-square may be incorporated under one name; from the Chelsea vestry, asking that the line of thoroughfare between Blenheim-street and Arthur-street should be re-named Briston-street.

THE CASTELLANI COLLECTION IN THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

THE MISER (ROMAN COMEDY).

THE recent purchase of the Castellani collection of art-antiquities by the trustees of the British Museum has added to the public property of this kind some things of considerable value for their beauty or curiosity. Among those which may be esteemed beautiful is the bronze head of Aphrodite or Venus, now said to have been found in Armenia. This is of heroic size, with the back and crown of the head partly battered in and wrenched away, and with the eye-sockets empty; but for the rest, presenting a front view quite unimpaired, with nose and mouth perfect and uninjured. We give an illustration of this noble head of the Goddess of Love. There are other bronzes in the collection. Next come the marbles, among them a Sicilian Juno or Heré: this colossal head was found at Girgenti, and is remarkably complete. There is a series of Roman Imperial busts, of which the most important are a young Augustus, in good preservation, and a Tiberius in old age, besides a Roman sarcophagus. Another sarcophagus, belonging to the class of terra-cottas, is one of the articles which must be regarded as more curious than beautiful. It exhibits a group of two figures, those of a man and woman; the former recumbent on a couch, the latter sharing a feast with him. This is a specimen of Etruscan art. Among the minor terra-cottas are many figures of the ordinary ornamental kind found in tombs, a few lamp-moulds and miscellaneous curiosities, and a unique set of figures of Roman actors, the miser, the glutton, the parasite, and the thief, which were conventional types of character in Roman comedy. These four terra-cotta figures stand from six to eight or nine inches high. Their aspect is ludicrous enough, as is shown by our Engravings. The collection also contains a variety of cups and vases moulded in the shape of animals.

THE VIENNA CITY WATER-WORKS.

The opening of the new water-works at Vienna was celebrated, on the 24th ult., in the presence of the Emperor of Austria, the Imperial Crown Prince, the Archdukes, the foreign Ambassadors, chief officers of the State and the municipality, with several foreigners of distinction. The site chosen for the ceremony was the space in front of the BRONZE HEAD OF VENUS.

THE PARASITE (ROMAN COMEDY).

Schwarzenberg Palace, opening from the Ring Strasse, where a fountain had been constructed capable of displaying the immense pressure of the water. On the terrace fronting the palace and facing the fountain was a tent for the reception of the Imperial party. The surrounding gardens were tastefully decorated with flags, and a military band added to the gaiety of the scene. A little before twelve the Archdukes and different members of the Court arrived, and punctually at noon came the Emperor, accompanied by the Crown Prince. His Majesty was received by the Burgomaster, Dr. Felder, and was conducted to the tent amidst the cheers of the assembled multitude, mingled with the strains of the National Anthem. Dr. Felder read an address to the Emperor, and laid before him a document containing a history of the works, which the Emperor signed, to be deposited among the municipal archives. The water of the fountain, which till that moment had been playing to the height of a few feet, was now turned on to its maximum height of 180 ft., considerably surpassing in power the famous fountain of Wilhelmshöhe. The Emperor then addressed a few words to the different gentlemen engaged in this work. His Majesty in particular congratulated Mr. Gabrielli on the energetic and successful way in which he had carried out the works. In the evening the fountain was illuminated by electric light, and the members of the municipality gave a banquet, to which the contractor, Mr. Gabrielli, was invited to meet the Ministers and chief personages of the State.

We now proceed to give a brief description of the works. In 1862 a commission for inquiring into the water supply of Vienna was appointed. Till then the city had been most inadequately supplied with water chiefly derived from the Danube, which was really unsuitable for drinking purposes. After much discussion the commission finally decided, in 1865, to supply the city with water from the springs of Kaiserbrunn and Stixenstein. The first of these springs is situated in the Hohenalpe or Hell Valley, at the foot of the Austrian Alps, which separates Austria from

THE THIEF (ROMAN COMEDY).

Styria, and is fifty-eight miles from Vienna and 1148 ft. above the Danube. The Stixenstein spring rises in one of the numerous valleys of the same range, and is about ten miles nearer to Vienna. The final plans and estimates having been prepared on April 30, 1869, the contract was allotted to Mr. Gabrielli, the Admiralty contractor, who is well known in this country by his connection with the Chatham Dockyard Extension Works, and many other important works executed in our colonies, and in other foreign countries. The works were begun in 1870, and according to the contract four years were allowed for the completion. However, Mr. Gabrielli carried on the undertakings with such energy that, at the end of last year, he found it would be possible to finish the works one year before

THE GLUTTON (ROMAN COMEDY).

ETRUSCAN SARCOPHAGUS (CASTELLANI COLLECTION).

OPENING OF THE NEW CITY WATER-WORKS AT VIENNA.

the contract time, and his proposals to this effect were unanimously accepted by the municipality.

The most important features of the work are the great tunnel in the Hollenthal, which is 10,200 ft. long, and passes through a very hard dolomite rock; the aqueduct crossing the valley at Baden, consisting of forty-three arches varying in spans from 30 ft. to 48 ft., and in height from 30 ft. to 72 ft.; the aqueduct at Mödling, consisting of seven arches, with spans of 51 ft. and a height of 37 ft.; and the aqueduct at Liesing, with forty-six arches, and spans varying from 36 ft. to 40 ft. The canal is chiefly built of rubble masonry, either vaulted with stone or brick, and lined with 2 in. of Portland cement and sand, polished with iron plates till its surface becomes like marble. The water passes from the canal into a small receiving reservoir on the Rosenhügel, which has a capacity of 80,000 cubic feet, and from this it is distributed into the two main reservoirs on the Schmelz and Wienerberg. From these two reservoirs the town receives its supply through a network of pipes 137 miles in length. The whole design and execution of the works has excited the general admiration of the numerous visitors who have inspected them during the course of construction.

THE ASHANTEE EXPEDITION.

Accounts have been received from the Gold Coast showing that Sir Garnet Wolseley has made a very successful march into the bush country round Elmina, destroying five of the villages or towns occupied by the Ashantees, and driving them out of the shelter afforded by the hostile tribes, with considerable loss. The force employed consisted of 163 marines of the Simoom, two companies of the West India Regiment embarked in the Barracouta, and 126 Houssas. The latter did not support the reputation they had previously acquired for skill and bravery in bush-fighting. On the other hand, the white troops executed a very difficult service, admirably. The principal engagement was at a village called Assamun, where the Ashantees lost heavily. On our side three officers and three men were wounded, while of our African auxiliaries two Houssas were killed and twenty wounded. This movement took place on Oct. 14, and on the 24th Sir Garnet Wolseley issued a proclamation to "the tribes and people" stating what had been accomplished.

The daily papers publish long letters from their correspondents with the Ashantee Expedition. The following letter from the correspondent of the Western Morning News at Cape Coast Castle, dated Oct. 14, gives a condensed account of the successful bush-fighting of our troops:—

"At midnight on Oct. 13 163 marines from the Simoom, sixty-five West India privates from the shore, and General Sir Garnet Wolseley and staff, embarked on board her Majesty's ships Barracouta and Decoy, and proceeded to Elmina under cover of the night. This body of men, reinforced by forty-six officers and men of the Barracouta, landed at Elmina, where they were joined by a party of 126 Houssas. The Ashantees of the towns of Ampenee, Akimfoo Amquana (on the coast), and Ashaman Assamun (inland) having frequently harboured and supplied the Ashantees with arms, &c., were the ones proceeded against—a large body of Ashantees being reported to be in the vicinity of these towns. A party of men from the Barracouta garrisoned Forts William and St. Jago at Elmina, the Simoom's men and batteries of the naval brigade garrisoning Cape Coast Castle and its forts. The Argus and Decoy moved up the coast and anchored off the Coral Reefs; the steam-launch of the Barracouta and the paddle-box boats of the Argus going inside the reefs, whence their guns were fired with great effect. On the three first-named towns, at eight a.m. on the 14th, the Argus opened fire at 2000-yards' range. Immediately on landing, the expedition on shore marched off about four miles and a half in a north-east direction, exchanging fire with the enemy as they went. The field-guns having been got into position under a smart fire, most of the casualties happened here; the town of Essecomaw, Essumbuno on the new map (probably Assamun), was taken and destroyed. The enemy were in large numbers in the bushes. Their loss must have been considerable, but the bush was so thick that little could be seen of them. That town having been destroyed, the expedition struck off at right angles for the westward, for the coast at Ampenee and Akimfoo, and taking the enemy there in the rear drove them towards the sea. The Argus and Decoy landed their crews, sheltered under the reefs (and under cover of their ships' fire), thus forming a second naval brigade. The whole force closing in, the enemy was routed with great loss, but the numbers of their killed are not known. The places being destroyed, the General, Captain Fremantle, and staff embarked on board the Decoy and proceeded to Cape Coast Castle, the naval brigade and army marching back to Elmina. The naval brigade and marines being all (except wounded) embarked before midnight, the Argus returned to Elmina, the Barracouta to Cape Coast Castle. Casualties:—Ten Houssas killed, Captain Fremantle, of the Barracouta, severely wounded in the arm; Corporal M'Neil, V.C., wounded very severely in the left forearm; Captain Forbes, of the 2nd West India Regiment, slightly; sixteen Houssas wounded, one since dead; three native carriers slightly. Of the naval brigade, which numbered 299, five were wounded. At the latest intelligence the wounded were going on satisfactorily. Numerous rumours are current that the Ashantees intend to attack Elmina and Cape Coast Castle. The naval brigade is ready to land at the first signal. The steamer Wavree has arrived and gone on to the Volta, where Captain Glover's expedition is getting into splendid condition."

In the account given by a correspondent of the Daily News we are told that, as a means of secrecy, it was announced, before the expedition of the 14th, that Sir Garnet Wolseley had heard from Addah some bad news respecting Captain Glover, who begged for assistance. It was thought, therefore, that the expedition was bound for Addah, and this seems to have put the natives off their guard. On the actual march this writer says the representatives of three or four morning papers led the rearguard. The appearance of the bush path, says one of the descriptions in the Daily News, is quite unlike anything else in the world. In the middle is the actual track itself, barely wide enough to allow one man to pass. To right and left the bush has been often, at some time or other, cleared to a few yards in width, especially in the immediate neighbourhood of villages. Over this cleared ground there grow again immediately creepers and towering plants innumerable. Sometimes the space from the path way to the dense bush is covered with one delicate green mass of feathery sensitive plant, which, as the rough foot of the passenger touches it, quivers and closes before him. This again more often is all interlaced with strings and ropes of creepers, some of exquisite delicacy, some of vigorous strength, which clamber and tangle and twist with one another in a strange confusion of colour and form. Masses upon masses and ropes upon ropes of passion-flower, and every variety of shape and tint and size of yellow convolvulus. At times the ground is all saffron with one delicate plant, at times it is all blue or purple with another, and now again they mix and mass, and set one another off with those strangely lovely artistic touches of which Nature in her glory alone is capable, while here and there white nodding bunches glisten from among the waving branches of one palm-tree or rich yellow clusters from another. All this display, glorious and varied as it is, crowds itself in between, or barely crests, the top of bushes on either hand, so dense that they form walls, usually almost as impenetrable as if they were rigid, though rigidity is the last quality which the eye attributes to their ever-changing form. For the most part nothing is to be seen beyond the bank eight feet or so high, and a few yards back on each side. But here and there an old pathway through the bush, over which the branches have stretched and tangled again into a dense roof that droops almost down to the leafy floor, gives a little light between, or would admit dangerous passage to a lithe and skilful foe. And now and then the path a little widens or the near bush a little lowers, and then are to be seen acres upon acres of ever rambling, irregular, and various-tinted green. Through such a path as this there slowly moved, during the early hours of Tuesday, Oct. 14, their every step impeded by this luxuriant vegetation, a group of men, in garb and look and gait as picturesque as it would be easy to conceive.

The special correspondent of the Times, writing on Oct. 23, says:—"Much excitement was caused yesterday by the arrival of messengers from the Ashantee camp. Sir Garnet Wolseley sent a manifesto to the King of Ashantee, demanding certain concessions, and holding out the hope, if they were granted, of honourable terms. This letter was opened in the camp by the Ashantee General, who took upon himself to dictate a message, written in the amatory patois of the coast, and ending with the expression of endearment, 'I send my love to you.' The General did not deign to take notice of Sir Garnet's demands, but made some demands of his own. The King had not sent him against Cape Coast; the King had no quarrel with the white man, but only with the kings of Wassaw, Denkers, Assin, and Akim, whom he requested the Governor to deliver up, and then there would be peace. Those countries, he said, belonged to Ashantees. Sir Garnet sent back the messengers to-day, with the reply that his letter had not been intended for the General, but for the King, and begged to refer him to the last treaty (that of 1831), in which the King of Ashantees renounced all claims to the countries above-named."

This writer maintains that the Ashantees will never cease from making war upon us until it has been proved that we are able to subdue them, and at present they do not think that possible. He says:—"The Ashantees have no hatred against Europeans as such, but they wish to reign over the factories at Cape Coast Castle and Elmina, as the King of Dahomey reigns over white men at Whydah. The Ashantee monarch, indeed, affects to consider these settlements as already belonging to him. In the early part of the year he sent down a message to the Administrator saying he had heard the forts at Cape Coast Castle and Elmina were in a very dirty condition, and desired that they might be cleaned and whitewashed, as he intended to come and inspect them. When messengers visit Coomassie from the tributary tribes beyond, the King tells them that the Queen of England is one of his wives, and she manages his cotton and tobacco plantations, and that all white men are his slaves. Such pretensions, however absurd they may be, indicate the ambition of this people. I repeat, they will never leave us at rest as long as they can wage war; but the taking of Coomassie will render them for ever powerless. Nothing short of that will secure us from them for the future."

Just before the departure of the mail intelligence had been brought in that the Ashantees were much amazed by the news that forces led by Englishmen were operating all around them. They had therefore held a council of war, determined to retreat, and were endeavouring to remove across the Prah all the slaves they had captured during their year of occupation and all their plunder. Sir Garnet Wolseley had started in pursuit of them on the 26th ult.

Despatches from Sir Garnet Wolseley state that it will be impossible to lay down the proposed railway on the Gold Coast, and therefore no more rails or railway plant will be shipped for the coast of Africa.

Sir Garnet Wolseley's official report respecting his successful movement against the Ashantees, who were sheltering in the bush round Elmina, was published on Wednesday. In consequence of these despatches two battalions of English troops leave immediately for the Gold Coast, and a third will be held in readiness to proceed at the shortest notice.

Accounts from Simon's Bay are more assuring as to the health of Commodore Commerell. He was able to be moved about in a chair, and to spend part of the day on the lawn of Admiralty House.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of Mrs. Charlotte Tinney, late of Salisbury, was proved, on the 31st ult., by the Rev. Henry Thomas May and Lieutenant-Colonel Michael John Rowlandson, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £40,000. The testatrix has bequeathed to the Salisbury Association of the Church Missionary Society and the Church Pastoral Aid Society £500 each; to the British and Foreign Bible Society and the Salisbury Infirmary £50 each; and such legacies are directed to be paid, free of legacy duty, within three calendar months after her decease.

The will and codicil of Samuel Trehawke Kekewich, M.P., late of Peamore, Devon, have been proved at the district registry, Exeter, by Mrs. Louisa Kekewich, the relict, the sole executrix, the personalty being sworn under £25,000. The testator leaves all his real and leasehold estates to his eldest son, Trehawke Kekewich, and gives the residue of his personalty to his widow.

The will and codicil of Francis Tussaud, of No. 105, Maryledone-road, were proved, on the 31st ult., by Rebecca Tussaud (the relict) and Francis Curtius Tussaud, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £40,000. The testator bequeaths to his wife a pecuniary legacy of £800 and an annuity of £1500 per annum for life. After making provision for his daughters, and giving various legacies to persons in the employ of "Madame Tussaud and Sons," he leaves the residue to his three sons.

The will, with two codicils, of Major-General Edward Matson, R.E., late of No. 30, Norfolk-crescent, was proved, on the 22nd ult., by Henry Bacon Fector Dickinson, the nephew, and John Boyton, the executors, the personalty being sworn under £35,000. Subject to a legacy of £100, free of duty, to each of his executors, the provisions of testator's will are wholly in favour of his widow and children.

The will of William James Garnett, formerly M.P. for the borough of Lancaster, late of Quernmore Park, Lancashire, was proved at the Lancaster district registry, on the 17th ult., by Mrs. Frances Anne Garnett, the relict, and William Garnett, the son, the executors, the personalty being sworn under £40,000. The testator appoints to his daughter, Eliza Hale Garnett, £7000, and to his son, Cecil Francis Garnett, £8000; to the Boys' Reformatory School at Bleadale, so long as it shall be carried on, he leaves £20 per annum. After giving some other legacies, he gives the rest of his personal estate and all his real estate to his eldest son, William.

The wills of the following persons have recently been proved—viz., Sir John Campbell Lees, under £3000; Elizabeth Ann Hambleton, under £20,000; Sir Francis Ronalds, under £3000; H. R. Cottam, under £25,000; Charles Spyns Edmiston, of Charing-cross, under £20,000; George Browne, of Sutton Coldfield, under £25,000; Fanny Kidd, under £18,000; and the Rev. J. Wilkie, of Richmond, under £30,000.

CURIOUS WILLS.

(Contributed by the Author of "Flemish Interiors.")

WILL OF L. CORTUSIO, JURISCONSULTUS OF PADUA, 1418.

Cantabat maeris tibi funeribus.—OVID.

We are indebted to several sources for the following testamentary document: mention is made of it by the celebrated Paolo de Castro; by Scardeon, who gives it more in detail in his "Vies des Jurisconsultes de Padoue," Book II., chap. viii.; in P. Garasse's "Doctrines Curieuses," page 912; and in Deuix de Radier's "Récréations Historiques," Tome I., p. 232.

By his last will and testament, the testator in question, Messer Lodovico Cortusio, forbids any of his friends and relatives to weep at his funeral. He among them who shall be found so weeping shall be disinherited; while, on the other hand, he who shall laugh most heartily shall be his principal heir and universal legatee. It would have been superfluous to address to such a man Young's apostrophe—

Lorenzo, hast thou ever weighed a sigh,

Or studied the philosophy of tears?

It is quite evident he appreciated their value.

The testator next prohibits that his house or the church in which he is to be buried should be hung with black, desiring, on the contrary, that it shall be strewn with flowers and green branches on the day of his funeral. While his body should be borne to the church, he ordered that music should take the place of tolling bells. All the musicians (or minstrels) of the town were to be invited to his burial; however, the number was to be limited to fifty, who were to walk with the clergy, so many to precede, and so many to follow the body, and they were to make the air ring with the sound of lutes, violins, flutes, hautboys, trumpets, tambourines, and other musical instruments; the performance was to wind up with a hallelujah as for an Easter rejoicing; and for their services each was to receive the pay of half a crown. The body, inclosed in a bier covered with a cloth of divers colours, which were to be bright and striking, was to be carried by twelve young girls habited in green, who were to sing cheerful and lively songs. To each of them the testator bequeathed a certain sum as her dowry. Young boys and girls were to accompany the procession carrying branches or palms, and were to wear on their heads crowns of flowers, while their voices were to join in chorus with those of the bearers. All the clergy belonging to the church, attended by a hundred torch-bearers, were to precede the procession, with all the monks in the town, except those whose habit was black—the express desire of the testator being either that they should wear a light-coloured costume or refrain from attending, in order not to sadden the spectacle by an appearance of mourning. The executor appointed by this singular testator was solemnly charged to carry out all these directions in their fullest detail, or was to have no participation in the beneficial clauses of the will. Lodovico Cortusio died on July 17, 1418, Festival of St. Alexia. Strange to say, his wishes were conscientiously complied with. He was buried in the church of St. Sophia, at Padua, the ceremony having the appearance rather of a wedding than of a funeral.

By way of a singular contrast to the above, we append the testamentary caprice of a devout spinster who died in the early part of the seventeenth century:—

Shocked by the irreverent manner of the clergy and other functionaries who took part in funeral ceremonies, and who, doubtless from continual familiarity, showed little solemnity of conduct on such occasions, she determined to reform this abuse—at all events, as regarded her own interment. She therefore included in her will a special clause declaring that if any ecclesiastic should dare so much as to smile during any part of the ceremony he should be excluded from any share in the large sum she destined to the fees of the chapter, and that the portion thus fined from the laughter or laughers should be divided among the non-laughers.

Not long after, the good lady died, and her brother, who was to be her heir, convoked the clergy and communicated to them the article in the deceased's will prescribing a rigid attention to decorous conduct. The ecclesiastics professed a pious horror of the levity implied; but scarcely had the procession started, when there was not one priest who did not turn to look at his neighbour, and, recollecting the singular clause, did not begin to laugh; presently this mirth gained the whole of them, and during the entire trajet, even in the church and at the grave, there was a broad laugh on every countenance.

On this, the brother, falling back on the testamentary prescription, refused to pay any of the fees to the clergy; the affair came before the tribunal; the lawyer for the heir pleaded the wisdom of the clause and the extent to which it had been infringed; but the counsel on the other side replied that it was impossible, under such singular circumstances, to witness without a smile the hypocritical zeal of a brother, heir to a wealthy succession; and, further, that the absurdity of the prohibition was in itself a provocation to violate it. The clergy, it seems, gained their cause.

* We find a clause somewhat similar to this in the will of a prebend of the Church of St. Peter at Geneva, dated the 15th of February, 1600, whose name was Dominic de Viry. Founding thereby an anniversary for himself, he ordered that whichever of the canons should be absent, slumbering, or gossiping during any portion of the function to be celebrated on the said anniversary—these are his expressions—were to be deprived of their share of the annuity he assigns them, and such share or shares were to be divided among the rest.

Mrs. Rowland Elliott, who has given a new window for the south transept of the Abbey Church, Bath, in commemoration of the restoration to health of the Prince of Wales, has also given the following sums to the different charities of the city—viz., £500 to the Royal United Hospital, £500 to the Female Penitentiary, £500 to the Sutcliffe Industrial School, and £200 to the Fund for Preserving the Park.

A memorial fountain was erected, last Saturday, at the south end of George Fourth Bridge, Edinburgh, near the entrance of Old Greyfriars'-churchyard, to commemorate the fidelity of a terrier named Greyfriars' Bobby. The fountain is of Peterhead granite, stands seven feet high, and is surmounted by a figure of Bobby in bronze. The pedestal bears the following inscription:—"A tribute to the affectionate fidelity of Greyfriars' Bobby. In 1858 this faithful dog followed the remains of his master to Greyfriars'-churchyard, and lingered near the spot until his death, in 1872." The fountain has been erected at the expense of Lady Burdett-Coutts.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

BLACK

White to play, and mate in three moves.

EAST ANGLIAN CHESS TOURNEY.

(From an Occasional Correspondent.)

THE TRANSIT OF VENUS.

In accordance with suggestions from Mr. De la Rue and Mr. Proctor, a photographic observation would be made in Northern India, for which purpose the necessary instruments had been sent out. Regarding Marquesas Island, he had some years ago made representations to the French Government. The war with Germany had interrupted the correspondence on the subject, but he still hoped for a revival. In the Sandwich group he had proposed to add two subsidiary stations. The chain of the Kerguelens extended over some fifty or sixty miles. There was a landing-place discovered by Captain Cook, called Christmas Harbour, which would answer well. The United States Government would probably take a station to the south-east of this, near Whisky Bay, on Herd's Island. He pointed out on an Admiralty chart the intended course of her Majesty's ship Challenger, observing that on leaving Bahia she had orders to go to the Kerguelen Islands in order to obtain information. If this information should fail to reach here before the setting out of the expeditions, it could be picked up at the Cape of Good Hope. But the determination of the most promising stations was not the only question at issue. The parts best suited for observation might, to all intents and purposes, be inaccessible; and, besides this, the consideration how the visitors were to live there was of no little importance. He and his colleagues were determined not to have a station devoid of anchorage or human inhabitants. As far as our present knowledge went, there was the one at Kerguelen, but not the others; while at Rodrigues the case was reversed. Nobody thought of going to Crozet Island or anywhere else where a boat was only able to get ashore about once a month. Besides the British stations, the United States would probably establish eight, France five, and Germany four. Regarding the staff of the expeditions, they were not quite so well prepared. If the Duke of Cambridge relaxed his orders, volunteers from the military service might come to join. At present the students of the Naval College and some private individuals, among them Father Perry, were the main resource. The volunteers were now undergoing a complicated drill at Greenwich Observatory; for it was necessary that everyone should have some knowledge of all that had to be done. The determination of longitude might in an emergency be postponed, but local time would have to be accurately established at every station. A transit instrument would be required at every place, and if any member possessed a portable one, its loan would be exceedingly welcome. Six equatorials were ready: the Cambridge Observatory had lent two, and Mr. De la Rue one telescope; but all these were subsidiary matters to the critical observations which had to be performed. He had constructed a model which he would be glad to show to any member at Greenwich before two o'clock in the morning. The Astronomer-Royal then explained the use of the double-image micrometer, after which no one would probably think of again proposing the use of the ordinary worm micrometer. The photographs would give a four-inch picture of the sun; the diameter of Venus would be about one thirtieth of that. He then explained Janssen's method of photographing by means of a rotating plate, not the entire, but only that portion of the disc where Venus would happen to be. He believed that by using dry collodion instead of the wet process, a number of hands might be saved.

Mr. De la Rue drew attention to an article in the last number of the association's monthly notices by Mr. Proctor, containing reflections on the conduct of those in official charge of the matter before them. The council expressed their regret that the article should have appeared, and threw the responsibility entirely upon the editor, who had never consulted them about it.

Lord Lindsay held, with the Astronomer-Royal, that the dry process would be advantageous. The other would involve the exposure of a man to noxious vapours during four hours.

LIFE-BOAT SERVICES.

A new Italian barque, the Filatore, of Genoa, 650 tons, bound from Bremerhaven to Cardiff, in ballast, ran on the Cross Sand, off the Norfolk coast, in the midst of the breakers, while the wind was blowing in squalls from the N.N.E., before daybreak on the 16th inst. She had all sails set at the time. In response to her signals of distress, the Caistor large life-boat, belonging to the National Institution, proceeded out, and found that the sea was breaking heavily over the stranded vessel, and that, prior to her arrival, the ship's boat had broken away with four men in it, who had been picked up by a steamer. At the request of the master, eleven of the crew of the life-boat went on board to try to save the ship, and the services of two steamers were also engaged; but all efforts in that direction were unavailing, and at last, after some hours had elapsed, she began to break up and fill with water as the tide flowed. The attention of those in the life-boat had, therefore, to be wholly directed to the rescue of the barque's crew and the beachmen who had boarded her. This was difficult and dangerous work, for the sea was now even heavier than ever, and came down on the life-boat thundering and foaming, wellnigh crushing the crew with its weight. The men from the ship had to drop more than twenty feet into the life-boat by means of ropes, and the boat was repeatedly dashed against the vessel's bow, till the stem of the life-boat was knocked out. The foreigners seeing this, were in great consternation; but, thanks to the valuable properties of the boat, she was able to continue her glorious work, and in about three quarters of an hour she was instrumental in saving all from the wreck, consisting of ten men, besides the beachmen.

Mrs. Chesney, the widow of the late General Chesney, the Indian traveller and projector of the Euphrates Valley Route, has been granted apartments in Hampton Court Palace, in addition to a pension of £100 per annum.

It is officially announced that the bill for the amalgamation of the London and North-Western and the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railways will not be reintroduced in the coming Session, the companies having agreed to postpone it till 1875.

In our list of mayors, given last week, it was stated that Mr. P. E. Tillard was elected for Huntingdon and Mr. Bateman Brown for Godmanchester; whereas Mr. Brown was returned for Huntingdon, and Mr. Tillard for Godmanchester. The new Mayor of Droitwich is Mr. W. Nutt. Major Collins Lyon Mackenzie is Provost of Inverness.

Lord Wharnccliffe, on Thursday week, turned the first turf of a coal-field at West Carlton, about four miles from Barnsley. The spot is close to the Midland line of railway from Leeds to Sheffield, and the extent of the ground, which is leased from his Lordship by the Yorkshire and Derbyshire Coal and Iron Company, is 1500 acres, the coal being of the first quality, nearly nine feet in thickness, and lying about 300 yards from the surface.

NORTH LONDON or UNIVERSITY COLLEGE HOSPITAL.—ASSISTANCE is URGENTLY NEEDED to meet current expenses, owing to the high price of provisions, fuel, and other hospital requisites. The reliable annual income is much below the ordinary expenditure. DONATIONS will be thankfully received by Edward Keefe, Esq., Treasurer, 15, Charter-house, Regent's Park, and at the Hospital.

HERBERT J. KELLY, R.N., Secretary.

COMPANION.—A Single Lady, aged Twenty-three, the daughter of a Colonel in the Army (not wholly dependent), is desirous of offering her services as a Companion to an Elderly Lady, or in a good Family, where she can be usefully occupied; and would not object to travel. Salary not so much an object as a good position. Satisfactory references can be given, and will be required. Answers may be addressed to Miss G. W., care of Messrs. Raynall and Son, 44, Chancery-lane, W.C.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND. BANKERS to the GENERAL GOVERNMENT OF NEW ZEALAND, the PROVINCIAL GOVERNMENTS OF AUCKLAND, WELLINGTON, CANTERBURY, OTAGO, &c. Paid-up Capital, £800,000. Reserve Fund, £180,000. HEAD OFFICE—AUCKLAND. BRANCHES AND AGENTS IN THE NEW ZEALAND—

Akaroa	Grahamstown	Naseby	Roxburgh
Alexandra	Greytown	Nelson	Stewart
Arrow	Greymouth	New Plymouth	Tenapa
Blenheim	Hokitika	Omarama	Tokomairiro
Christchurch	Invercargill	Palmerton	Waiuku
Clutha-Ferry	Kaitake	Pleasanton	Waitahuna
Coromandel	Lyttelton	Queenstown	Wellington
Dunedin	Marton	Rangiora	Westport
Gisborne	Napier	Ross	Wetherston

This Bank grants Drafts on any of the above-named places, and transacts every description of Banking Business connected with New Zealand and Australia on the most favourable terms. The London Office receive Deposits for fixed periods on terms which may be learned on application.

F. LARKWORTH, Managing Director.

No. 50, Old Broad-street, London, E.C.

LOSS OF LIFE or LIMB, with the consequent LOSS OF TIME and MONEY, provided for by a policy of the RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY. Office—44, Cornhill; and 10, Regent-street. WILLIAM J. VIAN, Secretary.

NICE.—HOTEL DES ANGLAIS.—A First-Class Hotel, facing the sea, and under English Management. R. B. BAKER, Esq., Secretary. 80, Coleman-street, London, E.C.

THE PALMALL. This RESTAURANT is removed to more spacious and commodious premises, 14, Regent-street, Waterloo-place (embracing the late Gallery of Illustration, which will be available for Regiments, Dinners and similar parties). Entrance to Private Rooms in Carlton-street, adjacent. Open for Suppers, as before, under an exemption license.

THE VICTORIA WINE COMPANY. Head Office, 14, Mark-lane, London. PORTS and SHERRIES. CLARETS and SAUTERNES. STILL WINE. BRANDY, PALE or BROWN. Full Price-List of 180 different qualities of Wines and Spirits on application. For the convenience of COUNTRY CUSTOMERS a single dozen or more of Wines or Spirits, assorted or not, will be sent by any Railway Station in England, BOTTLED, CASED, and CARRIAGE included, at an additional charge of 2s. per dozen on above prices. P.O.D. payable to W. W. Hughes.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY. This celebrated and most delicious old mellow spirit is the very CREAM OF IRISH WHISKIES, in quality unrivalled, perfectly pure, and more wholesome than any other. Note the Red Seal, Label, and Cork branded "Kinahan's LL Whisky." Wholesale—20, Great Titchfield-street, Oxford-street, W.

HOOPER'S BRIGHTON SELTZER, 4s. per dozen. To be obtained of the principal Chemists and Wine Merchants. Wholesale Depot, 7, Pall-mall East, S.W.

LEA and PERRIN'S SAUCE (THE WILTSHIRE). Pronounced by the "the only good sauce," improves the appetite and aids digestion. Beware of imitations. Sold wholesale by GOSBIE and BLACKWELL, and retail by all Grocers and Oldmen universally.

ESSENCE OF ANCHOVIES. The Original and Superior is only Manufactured by JOHN BURGESS and SON, 107, Strand (corner of Savoy-street), London. Established 1790.

IMPROVED AND ECONOMIC COOKERY. Use LIEBIG'S COMPANION'S EXTRACT OF MEAT as "stock" for Boiled-Tee, Soups, Made Dishes, and Sauces. Gives fine flavour and great strength. Invariably adopted in households where fairly tried. Caution.—Genuine only with Baron Liebig's Facsimile across Label.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA. Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder. Guaranteed all Cocoa with the excess of Fat extracted. Pronounced by the Family "the most nutritious, perfectly digestible Beverage for BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER, than the finest Cocoa." Requires no Cooking. In Air-Tight Tins at 1s. 6d. 2s. 6d., by Chemists, Grocers, &c. Samples free by post. Cocotina is the Vanilla at same prices.—H. Schweitzer and Co., 10, Adam-street, Adelphi, London.

CHOCOLAT MENIER for BREAKFAST. AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Beware of Imitations. Observe Trade Marks and Real Name.

CHOCOLAT MENIER for LUNCHEON. AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Beware of Imitations. Observe Trade Marks and Real Name.

MENIER'S COCOA. Sold in 1/2 and 1 lb. packets and 1 lb. tin. AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Beware of Imitations. Observe Trade Marks and Real Name.

MENIER'S ESSENCE OF COCOA. Sold in 1/2 and 1 lb. tins. AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Beware of Imitations. Observe Trade Marks and Real Name.

MENIER'S CHOCOLAT POWDER, Plain and Vanilla Flavour. Sold in 1/2 and 1 lb. tins. AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Beware of Imitations. Observe Trade Marks and Real Name.

CHOCOLAT MENIER defies all honest competition. Annual consumption exceeds 8,000,000 lb. AWARDED MEDAL at the VIENNA EXHIBITION. Beware of Imitations. Observe Trade Marks and Real Name. Factory and Warehouse: Southwark-street and Worcester-street, Borough.

VIENNA INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION.—The "Medal for Progress" has been awarded to J. & FRY and SONS, Manufacturers of the celebrated Caracac Cocoa.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE and COCOA. The award of the "Medal for Progress" at the Vienna Exhibition is a fresh proof of the high position assigned to the firm by a competent Jury.

FRY'S CARACAC COCOA. "A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard. "The caracac cocoa of such choice quality."—Food, Water, and Air, Edited by Dr. Hamall. Nine Prize Medals awarded to J. & FRY and SONS.

COMPAGNIE FRANCAISE (Limited). Wholesale Manufacturers of Dealers in CHOCOLATE, COCOA, COFFEE (as in France), CONFECTIONERY, &c. Thirty Gold and Silver Medals have been awarded. Every Article warranted pure, of the best quality, and at the lowest prices. To be obtained of first-class Grocers, Confectioners, and others. Factories—Barbomancy New-road, London; and in Paris.

FURNISHING EXHIBITION.—Visitors to LONDON should INSPECT the EXTENSIVE DISPLAY of DECORATIVE ARTICLES of every description for the complete furnishing of a House of any class, with a view to artistic taste combined with utility. The goods are conveniently arranged in separate departments, all communicating, and visitors are conducted through the spacious Show-Rooms and Galleries without the slightest impediment to purchase. Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality. OETZMANN and CO., 57, 59, 71, and 73, Hampstead-road (near Tottenham-court-road and Government-station). Established 1868. A detailed Catalogue, the best furnishing guide extant, post-free. The Establishment is visible from Tottenham-court-road. OETZMANN and CO.

ESTIMATES FOR HOUSE FURNISHING. OETZMANN and CO.'S System for Estimating the Cost of completely Furnishing a House of any class with every requisite supercedes any other method. See "A Guide to House Furnishing," sent post-free on application. All goods are very carefully packed free of charge. This system will be found the most advantageous to the purchaser.—OETZMANN and CO.

FURNITURE DEPARTMENT. ELEGANT DRAWING-ROOM SUITES, handsomely carved Italian walnut-wood, covered in rich damask, from 8s. 6d. to 50s.; Dining-Room suites, in solid mahogany, 8s. 6d. to 30s.; fine mahogany ditto, upholstered in best morocco leather, 14s. 6d. to 40s.; double-glazed Chimney Glasses, large size, 8s. 6d. to 15s.; handsome laid and hand-painted glass mountings, from 2s. 6d. upwards; massive mahogany telescopic Dining Tables, from 2s. 15s. upwards; Chiffoniers, sideboards, &c. May-Chairs, from 14s. 6d. upwards. An immense assortment to select from.—OETZMANN and CO.

PAINTINGS, ENGRAVINGS, CHROMOS, &c.—A choice assortment, in neat and effective frames, various subjects, well chosen for Home Furnishing. Many of the paintings are by well-known artists of acknowledged merit, and names guaranteed.

OETZMANN and CO.'S BEDDING, manu- factured on the premises. Work warranted. Only best materials used. Excellent mattresses, full size, 12s. 6d. upwards; Feather Beds, from 30s. upwards; Iron Bedsteads, from 6s. 6d. to 15s.; superior Iron French Bedsteads, 15s. 6d. to 25s.; Toilet Glasses, best plate, size of plate 16 by 12, 6s. 6d.; 8 ft. Mahogany Washstand, with marble top, 18s. 6d.; Chests of Drawers, Wardrobes, &c.

OETZMANN and CO.'S PATENT MATTRESS, the "Compendium," requires no other Mattress, Palliases, or Bed to be used with it, and is at once the healthiest, softest, most economical and complete Bed extant. Descriptive Catalogues post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

CARPETS.—OETZMANN and CO. CARPETS! CARPETS! CARPETS! Without exception the largest and best assortment in London to select from. O. and CO. have upwards of 150 pieces of Brussels, different patterns, now on show in their carpet window, besides an immense variety in the Show-Room. Members of Co-operative supply Associations are invited to inspect our stock and compare prices.

MADRID STRIPED CURTAINS, all Wool, 3 yards long by 48 inches wide, 15s. per pair; 3 1/2 yards 17s. 6d.; 4 yards 20s.; best Worcester Damask Curtains, in green, crimson, or any self colour, plaited top, bordered all round with best embroidered silk lace, 3 yards long by 51 inches wide, 25s. per pair; 3 1/2 yards 30s.; 4 yards 35s.; best repe ditto, 3 yards by 48 inches wide, 25s.; 3 1/2 yards 30s.; 4 yards 35s. 6d. Forwarded same day on receipt of order. One trial will insure recommendation. No compromise in quality or price. Descriptive Catalogues post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

FURNISHING IRONMONGERY DEPARTMENT.—Strong Branded Fenders, from 1s. 6d. each; ditto, circular ends, with standards, from 2s. 6d.; ditto, very handsome, 3s. 6d.; Fireirons from 1s. 6d. per set; handsome ditto, 2s. 6d. and 3s. 6d.; Japanned oval Tea-Trays, 3s. 11d. per set of three, 16 in., 14 in., and 12 in.; Teapots; warranted Table Cutlery, best Electro-plate (durability guaranteed); Coal Vases, Dish Covers, Japanned Toilet Baskets, &c.; Kitchen Ironmongery of every description; Mats, Matting, Brooms, Brushes, Pails, &c. OETZMANN and CO.

CHINA and GLASS DEPARTMENT. Superior cut-glass Tumblers, 3s. 6d. per dozen; Wines, 5s. 6d.; richly cut Decanters, 7s. 6d. per pair; Lustres, Vases (the 5s. pair of Vases are a marvel of cheapness and elegance); Marble and Gilt Ormolu Clocks, Brooms, Statuettes, fine Porcelain Figures; elegant Cases of Stuffed Birds, Wax Flowers under glass shades, handsome China Flower Pots, Jardinieres, &c.; China Tea Services, from 5s. 6d. to 15s. 6d.; elegant Dinner Services, from 10s. 6d. to 25s. 6d.; in great variety of patterns, from 17s. 6d. upwards; Dessert Services from 11s. 6d. Depot for Wedgwood and Co.'s celebrated Ware; also for best Worcester China. Handsome Toilet Sets, ever, basin, &c., 5s. 11d. per set; superb 10s. 6d.—OETZMANN and CO., 57, 59, 71, 73, Hampstead-road, three minutes' walk from Tottenham-court-road and Government-station, Metropolitan Railway. All Goods sent carefully packed. A detailed Catalogue post-free on application. OETZMANN and CO.

MAPLE and CO.

BRASS and IRON BEDSTEADS.—Five Thousand to select from. From 12s. to 30s. Handsome Brass Bedsteads, 5s. Bedding of every description manufactured on the premises, and all warranted.

FURNITURE.—MAPLE & CO.—Families who study economy with durability and elegance should visit this establishment before giving their orders. A Ten-roomed House furnished complete in twenty-four hours. An Illustrated Catalogue post-free.—145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road, London.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE.—100 Suites, of various designs, to select from, from 10s. for Suite complete. Bed-Room Suites, enamelled Siberian Ash, Baltic-Wood, Hungarian Ash, Oak, &c., from 15s. 6d.—MAPLE and CO., 145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road.

BED-ROOM SUITES in SOLID ASH, from 30s. to 50s. Bed-Room Suites in Black and Gold, very choice and handsome style, from 40s. to 80s. The largest assortment of Bedroom Furniture in London to select from.

BED-ROOM SUITES in WHITE ENAMEL Bed-Room Suites, in Solid Ash, Medlar, real inside, very handsome, 50s. to 100s.—MAPLE and CO., Tottenham-court-road.

BED-ROOM SUITES in Solid Ash, real ebony mouldings, very handsome, from 60s. All Bedding is made on the premises, and warranted pure. Catalogue free. MAPLE and CO.

THE BEAUFORT BED-ROOM TOILET WARE, the greatest novelty of the day, new in shape and design; elegant, colours very choice. The Ware is manufactured expressly for Messrs. Maple and Co., price from 5s. to 8s. 6d. The trade supplied.—MAPLE and CO., Tottenham-court-road.

BEDSTEADS. MAPLE and CO.

BEDSTEADS. MAPLE and CO.

BEDSTEADS. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

103 to 108, OXFORD-STREET, November, 1873. Madam.—Having bought for net cash the Stocks of the following Foreign Manufacturers exhibited in the VIENNA EXHIBITION, I shall sell the same at prices considerably under cost of production, on MONDAY, NOV. 24, and following Days.

These extensive purchases represent the most excellent and highly-commenced productions of the looms of ITALY, FRANCE, and AUSTRIA, which were pronounced by the Jury the grandest collections ever exhibited. Yours, very respectfully, PETER ROBINSON.

The Stock consists of SILKS, SATINS, AND VELVETS, from F. Reichert, of Vienna (to whom the Diploma of Honour was awarded), S. Trebbich, of Vienna, Claude Ponsen, of Lyons, Broad, of Milan and Como, Jaubert, of Lyons, Tapissier Fils and Debry, of Lyons, J. Guinet, of Lyons.

DRESSES OF STANDARD AND NEW FABRICS, from C. G. Hornbostel and Co., of Vienna; SEAWALS, WRAPS, AND POLONAISES, from Hlawatsch and Isary, of Vienna; Trecca, Thoral, and Ratienville, of Paris.

SILK POPLIN, VELVET, YOKOHAMA SERGE, CASHMERE, RUSSIAN POPLIN, and other COSTUMES AND POLONAISES, in perfectly New Styles and of great effect. PETER ROBINSON. Silkmercer to her Imperial and Royal Highness the Crown Princess of Germany and Prussia, Oxford-street, London.

SPECIAL SILK NOTICE. Black and Gold Ground Silks, with floral designs, 3s. 3/4d. per yard. Châle Silks, suitable for Dinner, 3s. 1 1/2d. per yard. Coloured Gros de Sues of the best manufacture, 3s. 9/4d. per yard. Gristle Striped Silks, especially suitable for this season, 3s. 2d. per yard. The above special lots are unusually cheap. Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

REGISTERED NOVELTY FOR LADIES' DRESSES. RUSSIAN CORDED POPLIN (Wool). A special purchase of this charming fabric, amounting to 1000 pieces, now ready, in all the new shades of Bronze, Violet des Alpes, Écarlate, Navy, Ardoise, Grenat, Bleu, &c., at 2s. 6d. the Extra Full Dress.—Patterns free.

ALSO, IN ALL THE ABOVE COLOURS, THE RUSSIAN POPLIN COSTUME, ready for Wear, 2s. 6d. to 3s. 6d., elegantly made, according to the latest Paris Modes. Several hundred always in stock. At PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

FOR WINTER OR TRAVELLING DRESSES. RUSSIAN AND INVERARY TWEEDS. In rich Heather Mixtures, Iron Greys, Écarlate, Bronze, Violet des Alpes, &c., from 16s. 9d. to 25s. the Dress. Patterns free. PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

FOR WINTER OR TRAVELLING DRESSES. SILK TERRY POPLIN. Popeline d'Hiver, Drap Vigogne, Drap d'Italie, and many other Novelties suitable for the present and approaching Season, 2s. to 4s. the Dress.

FOR WINTER DRESSES. YEDDO POPLIN.—ALL WOOL. A special purchase, amounting to upwards of 3000 pieces, of this charming fabric, beautifully soft, well adapted for the present and approaching season, 15s. 6d. the Dress (Patterns free). Black and 48 shades of Colours. Specially prepared for PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

IN WHITE, BLACK, AND ALL COLOURS. VELVET—FINISHED VELVETEEN. Beautifully Soft Velvet Pile, Fast Black, and in Écarlate, Bronze, Violet, Brown, Green, &c., 2s. 4d. to 4s. 6d. per yard, very wide. Patterns free. PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

The "Leather" Make of Reversible YOKOHAMA SILK, in Winter Colours. This splendid novelty in White, Black, and all new Colours, including Claret, Écarlate, Bleu, Vert, and all shades of Grey, Vert de Thé, Gris d'Argent, Ardoise Foncé, &c., is 48 in. wide. 25s. 6d. to 34s. the Dress, being made expressly for, can be obtained only from PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London. Patterns free.

FOR EVENING, DINNER, OR WALKING DRESSES. RICH JAPANESE SILKS. In White, Black, and forty-eight Shades of Colour, including the new Écarlate, Bronze, Vert de Thé, Violet des Alpes, Crème de la Crème, Corail, &c., 2s. 6d. the Dress, or 3s. 4d. per yard. These goods are all of the highest quality. Patterns free.

TULLE, TARTAN, MUSLIN, OR GRENADINE. MADE WEDDING and BALL DRESSES. Now ready, several hundred Robes, new Designs in White, Black, and all Colours, from 15s. 6d. to 30s. The "Ada," a most charming dress, with Panier, Flounces, and ample trained Skirt, 1 guinea—a substantial box included. The Book of New Illustrations for this Season post-free. PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

PETER ROBINSON'S REGISTERED HOME-SPUN CHEVIOT SERGES, beautifully soft and warm, in all the New Mixtures, 25s. 6d. to 35s. the Dress.

SEVERAL THOUSAND PIECES OF FINE FRENCH MERINOES, in all the Colours, from 2s. 6d. to 5s. 6d. per yard. Fancy Shirting Flannels (fast colours), 1s. 6d., 2s. 3d., 3s. 6d. per yd. PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.—(Patterns free.)

WINTER FASHIONS. An immense and beautiful Stock of FUR-TRIMMED JACKETS in CLOTH, VELVET, and the new SEAL CLOTH, ready for inspection. Prices range from 2s. to 30s. 6d. PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

RUSSIAN FUR SEAL JACKETS, at Last Year's Prices. PETER ROBINSON still continues to sell his beautiful Fur Seal Jackets, both Plain and Trimmed Beaver, without any advance upon the prices of last season. The sizes are from 22 in. to 33 in. in depth, and the prices from 9s. to 30s.

WATERPROOF MANTLES, thoroughly Waterproofed, and in every way suitable for seaside wear and for travelling, in a variety of New Shapes, and in all the New and Fashionable Tweeds, both in plain colours and all the favourite mixtures, 25s. 6d. to 50s. The GUINEA WATERPROOF, with or without Sleeves, in all the grey mixtures, both light and dark. PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

500 VIENNA WRAPS, useful as a Shawl, Travelling-Rug, or covering for Couch, 21s. each. PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

1000 BEAUTIFUL MANTLES, called "The Hyde Park," very suitable for Evening wear, 18s. 6d. each. PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London, W.

BOOTH and FOX'S PATENT DOWN QUILTS, DOWN SKIRTS, and VESTS—Warmth without weight. Elegance and economy. No cold can penetrate a Down Garment. Down Quilts have the warmth of three blankets and not the weight of one, and are very durable. Ladies' Down Skirts are light, warm, graceful, durable, and render crinolines superfluous. Highest medical testimonials. The only prize medals. All genuine articles bear the names and trade mark of Booth and Fox. Sold by Drapers and Upholsterers. Manufacturers, 51, Hatton-garden, London. Manchester, Cork, and Glasgow.

NEW GOODS FROM PARIS. PETER ROBINSON has no ready inspection, at his MOURNING WAREHOUSE, a choice selection of very beautiful Mantles, Silk and Material Costumes, Polonaises, Millinery, Flowers, Confections, and Fashionable Novelties, which his Buyers have secured from the leading Houses. The Court Mourning Warehouse, 256, Regent-street, London.

RUSSIAN SEAL FUR JACKETS. New Shapes, trimmed with a variety of Choice Furs, at moderate Prices. PETER ROBINSON'S Mourning Warehouse, 256, Regent-street.

A GOOD BLACK SILK for £3 10s. the Dress of 14 yards (Dagoré's). PETER ROBINSON, 256, Regent-street, W. For a Pattern direct to Regent-street, as above.

SUPERIOR BLACK SILKS at PETER ROBINSON'S MOURNING WAREHOUSE. Peter Robinson has now on Sale some very rich Black Silks purchased in Lyons very advantageously.

Excellent Black Gros Grains, at 2s. 11d. to 3s. 6d. per yard, and Glaces, &c., at 4s. to 6s. the Dress. And Superior and most elegant, at 6s. to 12s. 6d. per yard, during qualities, &c., at 2s. 3d. to 27s. 10s. the Dress. Also Shades in Greys, Slaten, Mauves, White, &c., equally cheap. Address for Patterns as above.—256, Regent-street, London.

URGENT MOURNING. "ON RECEIPT OF LETTER or TELEGRAM." MOURNING GOODS will be forwarded to all parts of England on approbation—no matter the distance—with an excellent fitting dressmaker (if required), without extra charge. PETER ROBINSON'S MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 256, Regent-street, London.

MOURNING FOR FAMILIES, IN CORRECT TASTE, can be purchased at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street, at a great saving in price. SKIRTS, in New Mourning Fabrics, 3s. to 5s. trimmed crapes.

SUPERIOR CRAPE.—Special Qualities, that will not spot with rain. At PETER ROBINSON'S MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 256, Regent-street.

FROM ROUBAIX.—New Goods for the Autumn Season. In Black and various novel textures, from 15s. 6d. the Dress upwards. At PETER ROBINSON'S, Mourning Warehouse, 256, Regent-street.

LEWIS and ALLENBY beg to announce that prior to the close of the year they will SELL their SURPLUS STOCK, in all departments, at greatly reduced prices, commencing on MONDAY, NOV. 24. Lewis and Allenby are now giving their customers the full advantage of the fall in the price of silk. Five per cent discount for Cash payments. Regent-street and Conduit-street, London.

BRIDES and BRIDESMAIDS are invited to inspect at CAPPER, SON, and CO.'S Warehouse, the various qualities and designs in Underclothing, Silks, Fancy Dress Materials, Costumes, Millinery, Mantles, Shawls, Towelling, Tablelinen, Blankets, Quilts, and all similar requisites for personal as well as for household use. These articles are all made up on the premises, and Ladies can select at the counters their Silks, Linens, Laces, Madras Waxes, Longcloths, and other fabrics before they are sent to the various workrooms. Ladies with Prices, on application to CAPPER, SON, and CO., Gracechurch-street, and Fenchurch-street, London, E.C.

FRENCH TWILL FLANNELS.—The largest assortment of these beautiful Goods we are now offering at 1s. 4d. per yard. Very soft and warm, brilliant colours, finest Saxony Wool. JOHN HOOPER, 22, Oxford-street, W.—Patterns free.

WOOL SERGES EXTRAORDINARY. A MANUFACTURER'S STOCK now selling at little more than half price. Beautiful Winter Colours, wide widths. Price 7d. per yard. Patterns free.—JOHN HOOPER, 22, Oxford-street, W.

VELVETEENS.—Very Rich Genoa Velvet. Pile, in the choicest shades of colour, very wide, all one price, 2s. 11 1/2d. per yard. Brilliant Black Velveteen, 2s. 6d., 3s. 6d., 4s. 6d. per yard.—JOHN HOOPER, 22, Oxford-street, W. Patterns free.

LADIES' CORK-SOLED ELASTIC BOOTS, for Damp Weather, 2s. Velvet Slippers, with bows, 2s. 6d. THOMAS D. MARSHALL, 129, Oxford-street, W.

JUDSON'S DYES.—18 Colours, 6d. each. RIBBONS, WOOL, SILK, FRATHERS, completely dyed in ten minutes without soiling the hands. Full instructions supplied. Of all Chemists and Stationers.

PESTACHIO-NUT HAIR OIL.—PIESSE and LUBIN'S.—The beauty of the raven tresses of the Spanish Ladies has excited the admiration of every visitor to Madrid. No other hair-dressing fluid is used but the EXPRESSED OIL of PESTACHIO NUT, which is as common here with the mountain peasant as the Court beauty, 2s. 6d. bottles; also the famous Pesticchio Nut Toilet Powder, 2s. 6d. a box. Sold by Piesse and Lubin, Parfumerie Factors, 2, New Bond-street, London; and by Druggists and Perfumers everywhere.

OPPONAX.—PIESSE and LUBIN'S NEW PERFUME. Thus I have my perfume cherished, Where unrivalled odours dwell; Now the subtle essence spreading, Folds us like an Eastern spell. Opponax, the Royal Hunt, and the true Jockey Club Perfume 2s. 6d. each; or the three, 7s. Laboratory of Flowers, 2, New Bond-street, London.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR. If your hair is turning grey or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. Certificate from Dr. Verneaux on every bottle, with full particulars. Ask any Chemist for "The Mexican Hair Renewer," prepared by H. G. GALLUP, 493, Oxford-street, London.

ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL preserves, strengthens, and beautifies the human Hair, 3s. 6d., 7s., and 10s. 6d. family bottles, equal to four small ROWLANDS' KALYDOR cools and refreshes the face

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1787.—VOL. LXIII.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1873.

WITH EXTRA SUPPLEMENT {SIXPENCE
By Post, 6d.

A DETACHMENT OF THE ROYAL ARTILLERY LEAVING WOOLWICH FOR THE GOLD COAST.

BIRTHS.

On Sept. 1, at Los Angeles, California, the wife of Frederic Preston Howard, of a son.

On the 16th inst., at Vienna, Madame von Schweinitz (née Jay), wife of the German Ambassador at the Austrian Court, of a son.

On the 23rd inst., at Great Massingham Rectory, Norfolk, Lady Charlotte Arnold, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 25th inst., at St. John's Church, Torquay, by the Rev. William Finch Hatten, M.A., Rector of Weldon, Northamptonshire, uncle of the bride, and the Rev. Richard Mence, M.A., Vicar of Bockleton, Worcester-shire, assisted by the Rev. C. E. R. Robinson, M.A., Honorary Canon of Rochester, and Vicar of St. John's, Torquay, Hugh Fraser, Esq., of Achmagair, Inverness-shire, and late of the 71st Highland Light Infantry, to Florence, only daughter of Edward W. Finch Hatten, Esq., of St. Elmo, Torquay.

On Aug. 13, at Christ Church, North Adelaide, S.A., by the Ven. Archdeacon Marvatt, Walter Neilson Goalen, R.N., to Maria Catherine, only daughter of Henry Price, Esq., of Bathurst, New South Wales.

On the 7th ult., at Zeerust, by the Rev. Henry Sadler, B.A., Richard, only son of Isaac Penny, Esq., J.P., of Lisard Manor, Birkenhead, to Isabel Emmeline, second daughter of J. E. Hutton, Esq., J.P., and Land-lord of the district of Marico, South African Republic. No cards.

DEATHS.

On the 24th inst., at Weymouth, Jemima Catherine, widow of the late Rev. Joseph Varnne, Rector of Staplehurst, Kent, and Vicar of Grays, Essex, and only child of the late Rev. George Varnne, D.D., Rector of Westley, Vicar of Elm, and Lecturer of Wisbeach, Cambridgeshire, aged 77.

On the 26th inst., at Bath, Thomas Henry Allen Poynder, Esq., of Hartham Park, Wiltshire, and 21, Upper Brook-street, London, in his 60th year.

On the 23rd inst., at St. Leonard's, William Cobb, Esq., late of, Mar-gate, aged 69.

On the 20th inst., at Charlton House, Charlton-Mackarel, Som-erset, Harriet Norris, a good and faithful friend and servant, in her 58th year.

On the 15th inst., at The Grove, Clapham, Sir Frederick Pott Price, Bart., of Spring Grove, Richmond, Surrey, aged 67.

On the 19th inst., at Blatherwycke Park, Northamptonshire, the Hon. Emma, relict of Stafford O'Brien, Esq., aged 85.

On the 22nd inst., at Villa Elvina, Cannes, Arthur James Ferdinand Strousberg, younger son of Dr. Strousberg, of Berlin, aged 23.

On the 20th inst., at Bournemouth, Hants, Richard Beamish, Esq., C.E., F.R.S., in the 76th year of his age.

On the 22nd inst., at Longfleet, Poole, Sarah Elworthy Pedler, aged 83.

On the 26th inst., John Benson Rose, Esq., of 11, Clarendon-road, Kensington.

On the 23rd inst., at her residence, Crossingford House, Putham, Norfolk, Massey, the relict of Philip Buxton Etheridge, of Norwich, in her 83rd year.

On the 24th inst., at 46, Queen's-gate-terrace, South Kensington, after a very short illness, Lady Emily Esther Anne, widow of Lloyd Barnford Hesketh, Esq., of Gwyrrh Castle, Denbighshire, and youngest daughter of William, first Earl Beauchamp, aged 75.

On the 21st inst., at Folkestone, the Hon. William Stourton, son of William, seventeenth Lord Stourton, aged 63 years. R.I.P.

* * The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING DECEMBER 6.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 30.		SOCIETY FOR BIBLICAL ARCHAEOLOGY.
Advent Sunday.		8.30 p.m. (Mr. H. Fox Talbot on the Assyrian Relief in the Punishment of the Wicked; Mr. A. M. Cameron, Notes on Borneo, illustrative of Passages in Genesis).
St. Andrew's Day.		Dr. B. Behr's lecture on German Literature, at Willis's Rooms, 8 p.m.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., the Very Rev. the Dean, Dr. Church.		Royal Medical Benevolent College, extraordinary general meeting, 8 p.m.
3.15 p.m., the Rev. Canon Gregory.		Sion College, evening meeting (Mr. James Fergusson on the Temple at Jerusalem).
7 p.m., the Rev. Dr. Hannah, Vicar of Brighton.		Sculptors of England, 7 p.m.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m. and 3 p.m., the Rev. Canon Kingsley.		London Anthropological Society, 8 p.m. (Dr. Inman on the Fall of Nations; Dr. Kaines on Western Anthropologists and a true Cerebral Theory necessary to Anthropology).
St. James's noon, the Rev. Francis Garden, M.A., Sub-Dean of the Chapel Royal.		WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3.
Chapel Royal Savoy, 11.30 a.m., the Rev. Henry White, Chaplain of the Savoy and of the House of Commons; 7 p.m., the Rev. Joseph Wallis, M.A., Vicar of St. Andrew's, Stockwell.		Day of Intercession appointed by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York on behalf of Christian missions.
Temple Church, 11 a.m., probably the Rev. Dr. Vaughan, Master of the Temple; 8 p.m., the Rev. Alfred Ainger, Reader at the Temple.		Royal Horticultural Society, 11 a.m., exhibition of tree carnations, &c.
Lincoln's Inn Chapel, the Warburton Lecture on behalf of Revealed Religion, by the Rev. Canon E. H. Gifford.		Mainstone Poultry and Pigeon Show.
French Anglican Church of St. John ("La Savoy"), Bloomsbury-street, services in French, 11 a.m. and 3.30 p.m., by the Rev. F. B. W. Bouvier, Incumbent.		Royal Agricultural Society, noon.
MONDAY, DECEMBER 1.		London Institution, 7 p.m. (the Rev. W. W. Skeat on the Science of the English Language).
The Princess of Wales born, 1844.		Royal Microscopical Society, 8 p.m.
Birmingham Cattle, Poultry, Cat, and Dog Show (four days).		Geological Society, 8 p.m. (Mr. H. G. Fordham on Structure Developed in Chalk; papers by Mr. R. Pinchin and Lieutenant A. W. Stiffe).
Royal Institution, general monthly meeting, 2 p.m. (election of president).		Pharmaceutical Society, 8 p.m.
London Institution, 4 p.m. (Professor Duncan on the Carboniferous Period).		Obstetrical Society, 8 p.m.
Water-Colour Society, opening of winter exhibition.		St. George's Hall, musical evening, 8 p.m.
Royal Society, anniversary, 4 p.m.		St. James's Hall, London Ballad Concerts, 8 p.m. (Mr. John Boosey).
Victoria Institute, 8 p.m. (the Rev. R. Mitchell on the Identity of Reason in Science and Religion).		Society of Arts, 8 p.m. (Mr. J. T. Fallows on Australian Vines and Wines).
Monday Popular Concert, St. James's Hall, 8 p.m.		Amateur Mechanical Society, 8 p.m.
Odontological Society, 8 p.m.		South Kensington Museum, 2.30 (Professor Duncan on Geology).
Entomological Society, 7 p.m.		THURSDAY, DECEMBER 4.
Medical Society, 8 p.m.		Full moon, 4.20 p.m.
Royal Academy, 8 p.m. (Professor J. Marshall on Anatomy).		Dramatic Authors' Society, general meeting, 2.30 p.m.
Society of Arts, 8 p.m., Cantor Lecture (Mr. Norman Lockyer on Spectrum Analysis).		Chemical Society, 8 p.m.
Society of Engineers, 7.30 p.m. (Mr. C. J. Light on Setting out Slopes of Earthwork).		Society of Antiquaries, 8.30 p.m.
Scottish Corporation Dinner, Freemasons' Tavern (the Lord Mayor in the chair).		Royal Academy, 8 p.m. (Professor J. Marshall on Architecture).
Royal Institute of British Architects, 8 p.m. (Mr. Scott Russell on the Central Iron Dome of the Vienna Exhibition Building).		Royal Caledonian Asylum, quarterly court: elections, noon.
TUESDAY, DECEMBER 2.		Linnean Society, 8 p.m. (Mr. J. G. Baker on Tulipae).
Accession of Francis Joseph, Emperor of Austria, 1848.		FRIDAY, DECEMBER 5.
Pedro II., Emperor of Brazil, born, 1825.		Royal Archaeological Institute, 4 p.m.
Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, 2 p.m.		Entomological Society, 7 p.m.
Pathological Society, 8 p.m.		Philological Society, 8 p.m. (the Rev. Isaac Taylor on Etruscan Numerals; Mr. C. H. E. Carmichael on Philology in Italy).
St. Paul's Cathedral, Lectures to Men, 8 p.m. (Bishop Claughton on Superstitions).		Geologists' Association, 8 p.m. (Mr. W. H. Hudleston on the Yorkshire Oolites).
Institution of Civil Engineers, 8 p.m. (Discussion on Braye Harbour, Alderney).		Royal Toxophilite Society, anniversary dinner and general meeting.
Bromley Races, winter meeting.		Sacred Harmonic Society, Exeter Hall, 7.30 p.m. (Handel's "Israel in Egypt").
London Athletic Club: annual dinner, at Guildhall Tavern.		Crystal Palace, scientific conversation, 8 p.m.
Zoological Society, 8.30 p.m. (Dr. J. Hector on Cnidarians and Calcitrans; papers by Mr. W. H. Hudson and Mr. A. G. Butler).		SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6.
		Society of Schoolmasters, 2 p.m.
		Royal Horticultural Society, promenade, 2 p.m.
		St. James's Hall, Saturday Popular Concert, 8 p.m.
		Ulverston Canary and British Cage Bird Show.

THE CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS FOR 1873,

TO BE ISSUED ON DEC. 13, WILL CONSIST OF
A LARGE COLOURED ENGRAVING,
ENTITLED
LITTLE GOODY TWO-SHOES,
AND
TWO SHEETS AND A HALF OF CHRISTMAS PICTURES, TALES, AND SKETCHES.

AMONG THE ENGRAVINGS ARE THE FOLLOWING:—

My First Christmas. Drawn by A. Hunt.
When we were boys together. Drawn by A. Muir.
Evensong. Drawn by S. Read.
Illustration to "The Lover's Leap." Drawn by Marcus Stone.
Hide and Seek. Drawn by A. Hopkins.
Illustration to "Tita's Wager." Drawn by H. Herkomer.
Among the Mangroves. Drawn by V. W. Bromley.
Moorish Baptism. From the Picture by Edwin Long.
The Christmas Watch. Drawn by H. Petherick.
The First Quadrille. Drawn by F. Barnard.
The Last Galop.
Aahantee Sketches, and other News Illustrations.

THE LITERARY CONTRIBUTIONS INCLUDE THE FOLLOWING:—

Tita's Wager, by William Black, Author of "A Daughter of Heth," &c.;
The Lover's Leap, by R. D. Blackmore, Author of "Lorna Doone," &c.; and Among the Mangroves, by Captain Mayne Reid, Author of "The Death Shot," &c.
Reviews of Illustrated Books, Notices of Musical Publications, Scientific Results of the Month, Archaeology of the Month, and several other Articles.

Price of the Christmas Double Number, ONE SHILLING; by Post, a HALFPENNY extra.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

Advertisements for the Christmas Double Number must be sent in before Noon on Wednesday, Dec. 10. The lowest charge for an Advertisement—not exceeding four lines (about thirty words)—in the Christmas Number will be Twelve Shillings; and for every additional line (averaging ten words) the charge will be Three Shillings.

Office: 198, Strand, W.C.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.
Lat. 51° 28' 8" N.; Long. 0° 18' 47" W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOM.		WIND.		General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.	Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning.
	Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Maximum, read at 10 a.m.	Minimum, read at 10 p.m.	Direction.	Force.
November	Inches.	°	°	0-10	°	°				Miles.	In.
19	30.140	43.0	40.7	30	9	41.7	47.0	NE. ENE.	1.31	0.00
20	30.119	42.5	34.9	77	6	35.5	47.7	SE. E.	1.10	0.00
21	29.826	41.5	37.5	77	7	37.2	46.6	E. SW.	4.01	0.207
22	29.622	49.2	37.5	67	9	35.5	54.0	WSW. WNW.	4.50	0.00
23	29.690	50.2	40.7	72	—	46.4	58.1	WSW. WNW.	2.54	0.00
24	29.900	47.4	44.6	91	8	43.0	60.0	SW. W.	1.15	0.00
25	30.146	42.7	41.7	97	6	34.1	50.7	W. SSW.	1.73	0.10

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten a.m.:—
Barometer (in inches) corrected 30.199 30.141 30.098 29.409 29.607 29.901 30.177
Temperature of Air 44.4° 43.7° 38.7° 53.3° 57.0° 47.3° 37.2°
Temperature of Evaporation 43.4° 40.3° 37.5° 48.3° 48.5° 45.2° 36.9°
Direction of Wind NE. SE. WSW. W. WNW. SW. W.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING DECEMBER 6.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
10 23	11 6	11 35	12 0	12 23	1 16	1 40
2 2	2 52	3 22	3 52	4 22	4 52	5 22

STEAM.—LONDON to CALCUTTA Direct, via Suez
Canal. Taking goods for Rangoon, Moulmein, Chittagong, and Akyah, at through rates.—CARLYLE BROTHERS and CO'S DUCAL LINE OF STEAM-SHIPS. These magnificent, full-powered steamships have been built expressly for the trade, and will be found on inspection as fine and substantial vessels as have ever been built in this country. The cabins are elegant, light, and commodious, with every convenience for passengers, and are placed sunshades, where there is the least motion. Each steamer is provided with bath-rooms (hot and cold water) and ice-house, and carries a surgeon and stewardess.

Duke of Devonshire	Tons.	Captain.	To Close.
Duke of Devonshire	3015	Whittle.	Dec. 21.
Duke of Sutherland	3015	Elward.	Jan. 21.
Duke of Buccleuch	3015	—	Feb. 21.
Duke of Argyll	3015	Barris.	March 21.
Duke of Leinster	3015	—	—

The Duke of Devonshire will be dispatched about Dec. 24. Rates of passage, for first-class passengers, 50s. and 55s., according to the accommodation required. For further particulars apply to Messrs. Dalrymple, Greenleids, and Co., No. 1, East India Avenue, Leadenhall-street, London, E.C.; and No. 2, Drury-lane, Liverpool.

WILL CLOSE THIS DAY (SATURDAY).

NINTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS BY BRITISH AND FOREIGN ARTISTS, AT T. M'LEAN'S NEW GALLERY, 7, Haymarket.

DORE'S GREAT PICTURE OF "CHRIST LEAVING THE TETRACH." with "The Night of the Crucifixion," "Christian Martyrs," "Francisco di Rimini," "Neophyte," "Andromeda," &c., at the DORE GALLERY, 26, New Bond-street. Ten to Six. Admission, 1s.

THE SOCIETY OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.
The TWELFTH WINTER EXHIBITION OF SKETCHES AND STUDIES WILL OPEN ON MONDAY NEXT, DEC. 1. 5, Pall-mall East. Ten till Five. Admission, 1s. ALFRED D. FRIPP, Secretary.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—Last Two Weeks of ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA. On MONDAY and during the Week will be performed Shakespeare's Tragedy of ANTONY AND CLEOPATRA, concentrated into Four Acts and Twelve Scenes. Characters by Mr. D. Byrnes, Lickfold, Milton, Sarcent, H. Clifford, and the world's assessment. Medals, H. Coveney, Banks, Melville, Adeline Gadda, &c. The Starlight; Mr. Byrnes, in one act, entitled ROBOY IN LONDON. After "Antony and Cleopatra," a Ballet Diver, in which Miss Kate Vanessa, her celebrated Ballet Troupe will appear. To conclude with an Original Comedy of Action entitled THE RIVALRY. Prices, from Sixpence to Five Guineas. Doors open Half-past six; commence at a Quarter to Seven. Box-office open from Ten till Five daily.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET, now Open for the regular Season.—Every Evening at Seven, THE CRIMINAL SCARF, after which the Haymarket Comedy, in three acts, THE OVERLAND ROUTE, after which the original character of Mr. Lovibond. Concluding with A CO-OPERATIVE ROYALTY.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Every Evening, at Seven, SIMPSON AND CO.—Mr. Beveridge and Miss Pannett, at Seven, Richelieu, Mr. Henry Irving; Messrs. John Clayton, Beaumont, J. H. Carter, Edgar, and Conway; Misses La Thiere and Miss Isabel Bateman. On MONTHS AGO—Mr. John Clayton. Box-office open from Ten till Five. Doors open at Seven.

NATIONAL STANDARD THEATRE, Bishopsgate. Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. John Douglas.—MONDAY, DEC. 1, Mr. Douglas, the eminent Tragedian, with Mrs. Charles Viner, of the Olympic Theatre, will give Every Evening in the Drama of AMBITION; or, the Throne, the Tomb, and the Scaffold. New Scenery, Dresses, and Appointments.

S. T. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly. Every Night at Eight; Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturdays, Three and Four. THE LONGEST ESTABLISHED AND MOST POPULAR ENTERTAINMENT IN THE WORLD. NOW IN THE NINTH YEAR OF ONE CONTINUOUS SEASON AT THIS HALL, an event altogether unparalleled in the history of the world's amusements. NO FEES OR EXTRA CHARGES. LADIES CAN RETAIN THEIR BONNETS IN ALL PARTS OF THE HALL. New and Luxurious Private Boxes, acknowledged to be the finest in London, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100. Places at Mitchell's, 22, Old Bond-street; Ollivier's, Old Bond-street; and at Austin's, 1, St. James's Hall, from Nine a.m. till Ten p.m.

MARK TWAIN will make his reappearance at the HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS on MONDAY EVENING NEXT, DEC. 1, at 8 o'clock, when he will deliver his Humorous Lecture entitled PHILLOMATHES OF THE BANDWAGON ISLANDS. The Lecture will be repeated Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight; and on Wednesday and Saturday Afternoons at Three. Tickets, 2s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets are now ready, and may be obtained of Messrs. Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co., 84, New Bond-street; Mitchell, 22, Old Bond-street; Keith, Prowse, and Co., 48, Chancery-lane; Hays, Exchange-building; Walsby, 61, Regent-street; Mr. George Dobby, 52, New Bond-street; at Austin's Office, St. James's Hall, Piccadilly; and of Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SIMS REEVES, SANTLEY, EDITH WYNNE, and WEDNESDAY NEXT, Prices from 1s. to 5s. Tickets of Austin, St. James's Hall, Boney and Co., Holles-street.

DR. HANS VON BULOW will give his THIRD and Last PIANOFORTE RECITAL, on MONDAY EVENING NEXT, DEC. 1, at 8 o'clock, when he will deliver his Humorous Lecture entitled PHILLOMATHES OF THE BANDWAGON ISLANDS. The Lecture will be repeated Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight; and on Wednesday and Saturday Afternoons at Three. Tickets, 2s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets are now ready, and may be obtained of Messrs. Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co., 84, New Bond-street; Mitchell, 22, Old Bond-street; Keith, Prowse, and Co., 48, Chancery-lane; Hays, Exchange-building; Walsby, 61, Regent-street; Mr. George Dobby, 52, New Bond-street; at Austin's Office, St. James's Hall, Piccadilly; and of Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY, EXETER HALL. Conductor, Sir MICHAEL COSTA.—FRIDAY NEXT, DEC. 5, Handel's MESSIAH. EGYPT. Madame Sherrington, Madame Paley, Mrs. Suter, Mr. Sims, &c. &c. Mr. Lewis Thomas, Mr. M. Smith. Organist, Mr. William T. MESSIAH, FRIDAY, DEC. 12 and 19. Tickets now ready.

THE VICTORIA INSTITUTE, or PHILOSOPHICAL SOCIETY OF GREAT BRITAIN. Founded 1819. The First Meeting of the Ninth Session will be held at Eight o'clock on Dec. 1, the primary object of the Society is to investigate fully and impartially the most important questions of Philosophy and Science, but more especially those that bear upon the truths revealed in Holy Scripture, with the view of reconciling any apparent discrepancy between Christianity and Science. Among its present subscribers are the Archbishop of Canterbury and many of the leading clergy and laymen of the Universities, and other leading literary and scientific men. Subscriptions:—Members, 1 guinea; ordinary members, 5s.; and other privileges. All those who are eligible for admission as members, or associates. The classes of 10 will take place on Dec. 1, and every fortnight afterwards. Society's House, 8, Adelphi-terrace, London, W.C. F. PERCY, Sec. Gen.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

LONDON, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1873.

In the earlier portion of the month of October last there fell upon Bengal the shadow of an approaching gigantic calamity. There seemed then a possibility that it might be averted. There is now, we fear, none. The heavens have not, according to their natural wont, "dropped fatness," and the largest and most populous of the provinces of British India is now face to face with the prospect of famine. The news which comes to us from our Eastern Dependency deepens in gloom week by week. Our Indian rule is about to suffer a strain upon its wisdom and its energy greater than that to which it was subjected by the sepy mutiny. It will presently be seen whether we can contend with the awful forces arrayed against human life in Bengal as successfully as we mastered the outbreak of human passions some eighteen years ago, and whether British supremacy in India can justify itself by saving life, as it once asserted and vindicated itself by inflicting death.

The almost entire failure of the periodic rains throughout the month of September over extensive districts of the province of Bengal has resulted in the almost total destruction of the crops of rice upon which the teeming population of that province exclusively depends for food. The coming harvest threatens to be no harvest at all. It is estimated that of seventy million people which the last census has set down as the resident population of Bengal, one half at least will be exposed to the action of this impending calamity. The rice crop has failed to an extent which will reduce it to three-eighths of an average, and it has yet to be proved whether so frightful a deficiency can be so far made up by administrative foresight, skill, and energy as to stave off the enormous loss of life which it threatens. If in any country in the world those qualities may be relied upon, it is in British India; but it is certain that they will be sorely tried, and it is yet uncertain whether they will be competent to cope with an evil of such overwhelming magnitude. On the first intimation of danger ahead, Lord Northbrook hurried down from Simla to Calcutta, staying on his way to consult with Sir George Campbell, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, as to the measures best to be adopted. It is matter of regret that on one important point—namely, a prohibition of the export of grain from the Peninsula—a difference of opinion for the present prevents entire concert of action between the two. We trust, however, that such difference will soon be overruled, and that, without laying too great stress upon the laws of economic science in circumstances so utterly abnormal, the Governor-General will see his way, before it is too late, to the necessity of dealing with the pressure which is upon him, and of keeping within his reach all the food resources which he can command. The difference between himself and the Lieutenant-Governor may, after all, be nothing more than one relating to the most opportune time for resorting to this extreme measure; but the necessity is becoming so urgent that even a very brief time may possibly involve the loss of myriads of lives.

In relation to all other precautionary measures there would seem to be at head-quarters not merely a disposition, but a determination, to plan deliberately, to act promptly, and to be guided by a true spirit of beneficence. The task to be performed is so huge in its proportions as to require at once the coolest head and the warmest sympathies of the heart. The Council at Calcutta has wisely given to the Governor-General carte blanche as to the exercise of his authority, and he, on his part, has selected three gentlemen, presumably possessed of his entire confidence, to devise and superintend measures for obtaining a supply and regulating a distribution of sufficient grain to meet the exigency of the case. The latter, perhaps, will prove to be the most difficult duty of the two. Time favours an adequate discharge of the former, for the pinch will not be felt until February or March. To collect rice enough to keep body and soul together for upward of thirty millions of people may be possible. So to distribute it that it may be available when needed in those numberless villages which are situated at a distance from the ordinary lines of communication and transport may well tax the inventive resources of the most able administrators. Experienced men at home are throwing out useful suggestions which, albeit they may, on the surface, appear to be conflicting, may yet in practice prove available according to the circumstances of the localities in which they are applied. Here and there, there may be wisdom in establishing relief works, especially such works as will lessen the difficulties of intercommunication. In other districts, relief works may rather tend to aggravate than to remedy the evil. After all, the main responsibility will rest with the official staff in India. They alone can obtain and make use of the various local information by which suitable action must be guided. For the present the Government of India declines to appeal to the liberality of the British public in aid of the measures it may think fit to adopt. Doubtless, it desires to call out to as large an extent as possible the native resources of the threatened province. Should the time arrive—as it is probable it will—at which the wealth of the landed proprietors of Bengal can bear no further drain, the British public will have the opportunity presented to it of showing its sympathies with her Majesty's subjects in the East by the liberality of its benefactions, as well as by the promptitude of its aid.

The crisis is as suggestive as it has been unexpected. We have now a claim made upon us to exhibit in striking contrast the spirit of our rule in India with that which animated the Mohammedan chiefs whom we gradually dispossessed. In 1769 there was a famine in Bengal similar in most respects to that which seems to be approaching. No calamity of which we read in history was more extensively destructive of human life. It is said that at least ten millions of the people perished of starvation. The miserable inhabitants of the province parted with all they had to obtain food. They sold their stock, they bartered away their implements of labour, they parted with sons and daughters as slaves, they crawled into the fields to extract what sustenance they could get from grass and leaves, and some of them are said to have appeased the gnawings of hunger by feeding upon the dead bodies of their own kind. These are extremities of suffering which, we trust, no lack of forethought, no strain of energy, no fear of public expenditure, will permit to be repeated. Our Indian Government has now to prove, by deeds which all may appreciate, that it is where it is, and what it is, not for the sake of England herself, but for the advantage of the people whom she rules. In war we have always maintained our superiority over the softer and more effeminate people of India; we have now to grapple with a more formidable foe than any which has been hitherto mastered by the sword of the empire. In many respects, the same organisation, the same discipline, the same promptitude and fertility of resource, the same coolness and courage, and the same cheerful acceptance of moral responsibility, are called for which have made us the dominant power in the Peninsula. Our motives, however, are higher, nobler, more in harmony with the religion which we profess, than could have animated us in our wonderful career of conquest. We have now to save life, not to destroy it; to permeate society, throughout all its means and modes of access, with a view to relieve the sufferings of, not to heap miseries upon, its multitudinous members. The responsibility has been laid upon us not by our own ambition, but by the All-wise Disposer of events. Heaven grant that in what we undertake and do we may not come short of the opportunity before us! It is a fearful trial that is steadily nearing us. As we shall, no doubt, confront it with all the presence of mind and all the remedial agencies which we have at our command, so we cherish the hope that when the worst is over we may be permitted to look back upon this passage of national experience with the consolatory assurance that we have done our best, and have done it successfully.

THE COURT.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold, is expected to arrive at Windsor Castle at nine o'clock this (Saturday) morning from Scotland. Prince Leopold has so far recovered from his indisposition as to have been able to take driving exercise during the past week. Lord Aberdare, the Right Hon. the Lord Justice Clerk, and the Right Hon. the Lord Advocate of Scotland dined with her Majesty, on Wednesday week, at Balmoral. Sir Arthur Helps arrived at the castle. On the following day the Queen held a Council, at which Lord Aberdare, the Right Hon. the Lord Justice Clerk, and the Right Hon. the Lord Advocate of Scotland were present. Sir Arthur Helps was Clerk of the Council. At the Council Parliament was further prorogued to Thursday, Feb. 5 next, and the Convocations of the Provinces of Canterbury and York to the following day, Feb. 6. Lord Aberdare and Sir Arthur Helps dined with her Majesty. The Lord Justice Clerk and the Lord Advocate of Scotland left the castle. Yesterday (Friday) week was the thirty-third anniversary of the birthday of the Imperial Crown Princess of Germany (Princess Royal of England). In the evening the Queen gave a dance to the servants, in the servants' hall, in celebration of the birthday. Her Majesty and Princess Beatrice, with the ladies and gentlemen in waiting, were present part of the time. The day was observed at Windsor with the customary honours. Lord Aberdare left the castle, and Sir Arthur Helps and Mr. R. Holmes left the following day. On Sunday the Queen and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service at Crathie church. The Rev. Dr. Taylor, one of her Majesty's Chaplains and minister of the parish, who has been lately appointed to Morningside church, Edinburgh, preached a farewell sermon to his congregation. In the afternoon the Queen visited the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Taylor at Crathie Manse. On Monday there was a grand deer-hunt in the woods of Balmoral and Abergeldie. The Rev. Dr. Taylor dined with her Majesty. The Queen, with Princess Beatrice, has taken her usual daily drives. The Queen has presented two beautiful stained-glass windows to Crathie church, which have been placed one on each side of the pulpit. The window on the right represents King David, and is in commemoration of the Prince Consort. That on the left is a representation of St. Paul, and has been erected to the memory of the late Dr. Norman Macleod.

Princess Louis of Hesse-Darmstadt (Princess Alice of England) is about to visit the Queen at Windsor Castle.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales continue at Sandringham House. Their Royal Highnesses have during the week entertained the Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, and other guests. The Prince and Princess will visit the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough early in the ensuing month, at Blenheim Palace. The Prince has presented £250 to found a scholarship in connection with the Norfolk County School, the foundation-stone of the building for which was laid by his Royal Highness in April last. The Prince has also sent a donation of 25 gs. to the Newspaper Press Fund and £25 to the fund for building a new pavilion on the Cambridge University Cricket-Ground.

His Excellency the Austrian Ambassador returned to the Austrian Embassy on Saturday last from visiting the Earl and Countess of Carnarvon, at Highclere Castle. His Excellency entertained Earl and Countess Granville and a party at dinner on Monday at the Embassy, Belgrave-square.

His Excellency the Danish Minister and Madame de Bülow have left town for Dorsetshire on a visit to the Earl and Countess of Ilchester at Melbury.

His Excellency the Chevalier Cadorna has returned to the Italian Legation, Hill-street, from a tour in Ireland.

The Duchess of Hamilton (née Princess Marie of Baden) and her daughter left the Château Stéphanie, Baden, on Tuesday, for London, in order to attend the marriage of the Duke of Hamilton and Lady Mary Montagu, which is fixed to take place at Kimbolton on the 10th proximo.

The Duke and Duchess of Northumberland have arrived in town from Alnwick Castle.

The Earl and Countess of Londesborough have arrived at the Royal Victoria Hotel, St. Leonards-on-Sea.

The Countess of Harrington and the Ladies Stanhope have left Elvaston Hall, Derbyshire, on a visit to the Duke and Duchess of Cleveland, at Raby Castle.

Lady Carington has arrived in town from visiting Lady Willoughby de Eresby, at Grimsthorpe, Lincolnshire.

The First Lord of the Admiralty and Mrs. Goschen have arrived at his Lordship's official residence at Whitehall from Seacox-heath. The right hon. gentleman and Mrs. Goschen entertained a large party at dinner on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Forbes of Newe have arrived at their residence in Queen's-gate-terrace from Castle Newe, Aberdeenshire.

POSTAL CHANGES.

Letters for Constantinople which the senders may desire to have forwarded by the route of Odessa will be so sent if specially addressed "via Odessa." Correspondence intended to be thus forwarded must be posted in or reach London in time for the morning mail of each Tuesday and Friday, and the rates of postage will be as follow, viz.:—Letters, 6d. per ½ oz.; newspapers, 5d. per 4 oz. each; book packets and patterns, not exceeding 1 oz., 2d.; above 1½ oz. and not exceeding 2 oz., 4d.; above 2 oz. and not exceeding 4 oz., 6d.; and so on, adding 6d. for every additional 4 oz. in weight.

The Post Office of Canada having given notice to the General Post Office that packets containing jewellery or other articles of value received in the Dominion are chargeable with customs duties, the Postmaster-General thinks it necessary to make this regulation known to the public, and to state that any letters or packets containing such articles sent through the post to Canada are, according to the laws of the Dominion, liable to be detained and not delivered to the addressees until the customs duties have been paid.

Lord Kensington was returned, on Monday, as member for Haverfordwest by 610 votes, against 558 recorded for Colonel Peel, his Conservative competitor.

At the Institute of Civil Engineers Mr. L. F. Vernon-Harcourt read an account of the harbour-works at Alderney. Their total cost up to 1872 was given at £1,274,200, of which £57,000 had been expended in repairs.

THE ASHANTEE WAR.

Our news of last week comprised the account of Sir Garnet Wolseley's first engagements with the enemy on the Gold Coast of West Africa. It was on the 14th ult. that a column which was formed of 29 bluejackets, with one 7-pounder gun; one rocket-trough, 20 Royal Marine Artillery, 129 Royal Marine Light Infantry, 205 2nd West India Regiment, 126 Houssas, 10 armed police, 30 axemen, and 270 carriers, marched from Elmina, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel Evelyn Wood, V.C., and destroyed the disaffected villages of Essaman, Amquana, Akimfoo, and Ampenee. The Commander-in-Chief, Sir Garnet Wolseley, accompanied this force in person. The four villages named are within a very few miles of the British fort and town of Elmina. It has been mentioned that Elmina is nine miles from Cape Coast Castle. Amquana, Akimfoo, and Ampenee are on the seacoast, to the west of Elmina; Essaman is four miles inland. The Ashantee army, under a General named Amanquata, was at Mampon, a short distance in the interior; but there was an Ashantee captain with a detachment of the enemy's forces at Essaman, who had continually sent to the fishing-villages on the coast, to buy powder, rum, and provisions for the Ashantee army. The people of Ampenee had also captured and killed the crews of two canoes belonging to Cape Coast Castle. For the punishment, therefore, of Ampenee and Akimfoo, which lie but half a mile from each other, they were first bombarded, the same morning, by H.M.S. Decoy, under command of Lieutenant Hext, and then a party landed from that gun-boat and H.M.S. Argus, aloop, which lay outside, under Commander Percy Luxmore. The remainder of the Naval Brigade, including 20 sailors from H.M.S. Barracouta, with the gun, under Lieutenant T. E. Maxwell, and 160 marines from H.M.S. Simoom, were with the and forces to the attack on Essaman; and Captain E. R. Fremantle, the senior naval officer commanding on the west coast of Africa, accompanied Sir Garnet Wolseley throughout the several actions of the day. It was at three or four o'clock in the afternoon, after returning victorious from the fight and the capture of Essaman, where both Captain Fremantle, R.N., and Colonel McNeill, V.C., were wounded, that the column arrived at Akimfoo and Ampenee, having rested an hour at Amquana. These three seaside villages were by that time deserted, having been shelled during several hours by the Argus and Decoy. The landing-party from those ships under Commander Luxmore consisted of sixty-two from the Argus and twenty-eight from the gun-boat. They had some skirmishing with the enemy, who came out of the bush and fired upon our men within thirty yards' distance, but only one sailor was slightly wounded. The houses of Ampenee and Akimfoo, built of bamboo, were not much damaged by the bombardment. As soon, therefore, as the troops with the Commander-in-Chief arrived, these villages were set on fire and quickly destroyed. Our illustration is from a sketch by one of the naval officers engaged. The village to the right hand is Akimfoo; to the left is Ampenee. The party from the ships are seen to the left of Ampenee, in conflict with the enemy in the bush behind; their boats, one a steam-launch, are upon or near the beach. The Decoy lies inside the barrier of surf, opposite Akimfoo, while the Argus lies outside.

A few days after the destruction of Essaman and the coast villages near Elmina, the Ashantee camp at Mampon was broken up, and the army there, which was 40,000 strong, began to retreat. Sir Garnet Wolseley, in his despatches of the 31st, expresses regret that he had no forces to pursue the enemy. Reconnaissances were made, however, from Fort Abayee and Fort Napoleon, supported by all the troops from Elmina, under Colonel Wood, on the 26th and 27th, but they could do nothing, because of the cowardice of our Fantee allies. A detachment of fifty men of the 2nd West India (negro) regiment and two 7-pounder guns, with Houssa gunners, was then sent forward, under Lieutenant-Colonel Festing, to Dunquah, twenty-five miles inland from Cape Coast Castle, by the new road lately constructed. Colonel Festing attacked, on the 27th, a camp of the Ashantees at a place called Escabio, caught them by surprise while cooking their dinner, and destroyed their camp, with heavy loss. Next day he was joined by Sir Garnet Wolseley, with more forces, consisting of 100 marines from the Simoom, under Captain Allnutt; 64 seamen from the Barracouta, 66 from the Simoom, and 34 from the Bittern; the Houssas under Lieutenant Gordon, and the native levies of Lieutenant Pollard. No further action is yet reported to have taken place. A portion of this force has been stationed at Abakampa, under Lieutenant Wills, but the remainder of the naval brigade have gone back to the ships. It is stated that the main body of the Ashantee army is near Esseruma and Beulah, on the Sweet River, north of Fort Napoleon; and that its retreat seems likely to be cut off.

LIFE ON BOARD A TROOP-SHIP.

The experiences of soldiering in the British Army differ from those of every foreign military service. Though enlisted in her Majesty's land service, it is the lot of almost every private or non-commissioned officer in a regiment of the Line or in the Royal Artillery to pass many weeks or months in long sea voyages, either to and from India, or between this country and the seat of a distant war. The redcoats and the bluejackets must frequently be embarked in the same floating bottom, and whenever any fighting is to be done at short notice within a few miles of the coast the sailors are ever ready to bear a hand in it with a zeal and alacrity which the soldiers know how to value. During the first days of the voyage, however, especially with troops who have not been at sea on any former occasion, the soldier finds himself rather puzzled by the novel conditions of his daily life, which cannot pursue exactly the same routine as in the barrack-yard on shore. The officers, indeed, knowing that idleness would do their men no good, will set and keep them to such employments as they are fit to share in the work of the ship. They help to swab and scrub the decks, by the aid of a hose, early in the morning of each day; and three or four of them may be seen holding the reel or winding up the line when the log is hourly cast into the water by one of the ship's warrant officers. Our illustrations of these incidents are from sketches by Lieutenant W. O. Carlile, R.A.

The homeward-bound Atlantic steamers which arrive in Liverpool bring a large number of artisans from America, who are compelled to return home through want of work in the States.

Our Special Artist lately in Japan supplied for last week's Paper a view of the Cave of Inoshima, a Japanese shrine of pilgrimage, on the seacoast, not very far from Yokohama. The name was misprinted "Moshima," which he desires to correct.

Search is being made for the will of the late President of Trinity College, Oxford, the Rev. Dr. Wilson, which document, together with a deed-vest or safe, that belonged to the deceased, is missing. The solicitors of Dr. Wilson, being aware that he had made proper disposition of a considerable estate, have advertised for information.

LIFE ON BOARD A TROOP-SHIP: HEAVING THE LOG

LIFE ON BOARD A TROOP-SHIP: WASHING THE DECKS.

THE WAR ON THE GOLD COAST: DESTRUCTION OF THE VILLAGES OF AMPENEE AND AKIWO, OCTOBER 14.

THE LATE MR. T. BARING, M.P.

The death of this gentleman, at Bournemouth, on Tuesday week, was announced in our last. He was seventy-four years of age, and had retired from business two years ago. He was head of the great mercantile house of Baring Brothers and Co., in Bishopsgate-street. This family is of German extraction. The founder of its greatness here was Mr. Francis Baring, of Larkbeare, Exeter, a woollen manufacturer and merchant. He came to London, married a niece of Archbishop Herring, was chairman of the East India Company, and was created a Baronet by Mr. Pitt in 1793. This first Baronet published one or two remarkable pamphlets on the financial policy of his time, and filled a leading place in the city of London. In 1810 he was succeeded by his eldest son, Sir Thomas Baring, who for some years was a member of the Bishopsgate-street house. He had as a partner his next brother, Alexander Baring, member for the city of London, the presenter, in 1820, of the famous "merchants' petition" in favour of Free Trade, and negotiator of the Boundary Treaty with America which bears his name; he having been in 1835 raised to the peerage as Lord Ashburton. The other partners were Francis Baring, second son of Alexander, and Humphrey St. John Mildmay, his son-in-law. Sir Thomas Baring was succeeded in the title in 1848 by his eldest son, Sir Francis Thornhill Baring, who was Chancellor of the Exchequer and First Lord of the Admiralty under the Melbourne and Russell Ministries. In 1866 he was created Lord Northbrook, and his son is now Governor-General of India. Thomas Baring, whose death we now record, was the next brother of Sir Francis, and was born Sept. 7, 1799. After the usual course of education at Winchester College he joined the banking-house of Hope and Co., at Amsterdam, and remained with them till 1828, when, in company with Joshua Bates and John Baring, he entered the London house. His eminent capacity for business soon made him a leading member of the partnership. It had for some years occupied the first place in the American trade, and was in the front rank of the great

THE LATE MR. T. BARING, M.P.

European firms concerned in the negotiation of loans and advances to foreign States. Mr. Baring enlarged and strengthened the influence of the house in both these directions, and he had the satisfaction of seeing Baring Brothers and Co. become more and more established as a centre of international finance. He cultivated a taste for art in its highest manifestations; and as a patron of efforts to advance excellence in painting, and as a collector of one of the most famous of private galleries, his influence has been of great service to the fine arts. For the advancement of knowledge he was ever ready to give time and money. There was scarcely an institution in the metropolis having any claims to the performance of useful scientific and educational work, which he did not support with liberality and constancy. For a long period he was chairman of Lloyd's. He was a director of the Bank of England from 1848 to 1867, when, on the union of the house of Messrs. Finlay, Hodgson, and Co. with his own, he retired in order that Mr. Kirkman Hodgson might remain in the Bank Court. He was a director of the East and West India Docks, chairman of the West India Mail Company, and a Neutrality Laws Commissioner. He was also chairman of the Royal National Life-Boat Institution, succeeding the late Mr. Alderman Thompson, M.P., in 1854. His politics were Conservative, but with a large infusion of independence and liberality, and a habit of thinking and acting for himself on all critical questions. He sat in the House of Commons for Great Yarmouth from 1835 to 1838, and contested the city of London in 1843, but was returned for Huntingdon in 1844, and retained its representation till his death. It is known that in March, 1852, Lord Derby pressed upon him the office of Chancellor of the Exchequer, an office which Mr. Baring declined, preferring his sphere of quiet usefulness as a member of the mercantile body. On a second occasion he declined an offer of the same distinguished position. It is also stated that he had the opportunity of becoming a peer, if he had so desired. The portrait of Mr. T. Baring which we have engraved is from the photograph by Mr. Henri Claudet, of Regent-street.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

(From our Correspondent in Paris.)

Thursday, Nov. 27.

Truly enough, "nothing succeeds like success," for the pro-rogation of Marshal MacMahon's powers has been followed by a vote of confidence in the De Broglie Cabinet which, under the sanction of the Versailles Long Parliament, may henceforth resume the Royalist intrigues to which it devoted the autumn recess. The much-talked-of Ministerial changes for which France has been anxiously waiting during the last few days are unimportant, although essentially anti-Republican in their character. A mere shuffling of the cards has taken place. The same men are retained, but in different capacities; the only new-comer being Duc Décazes, French Ambassador in London, who has never concealed his sympathies for the cause of the Comte de Chambord. The Duke obtains the portfolio of Foreign Affairs, which the Duc de Broglie, who finds M. Beulé too patient with the Republican journalists and municipalities, exchanges for that of the Interior; M. Beulé retires. M. Ernoul, whose resignation was looked upon as certain, retains the portfolio of Justice, relinquishing, however, the Presidency of the Council of State, which, according to usage, has always been associated with the Ministry of Justice.

Among the defeated schemers who have been unsuccessfully intriguing for portfolios, the most prominent is the Duc d'Audiffret-Pasquier. The Duc is the president of the Right-Centre Parliamentary group, and it seemed only natural that his services should have been fitly rewarded. He demanded, however, such a reactionary line of policy that the Duc de Broglie and his colleagues felt they could not accord him a place in the Cabinet without imperilling their own positions. Four Legitimists—MM. Baragnon, Desjardins, Vente, and Lefebvre—are appointed Under-Secretaries of State for the Interior, Public Instruction, Justice, and Finances; an Orleanist and a whilom subordinate of M. Gambetta, M. de Chaudordy, being rewarded with a similar post at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

It was on Monday that M. Léon Say brought forward his interpellation concerning the policy of the Government during the recess. At the opening of the sitting the Duc de Broglie read a short message from the President of the Republic, thanking the National Assembly for having prolonged his powers; and then, after the Chamber had negatived the urgency of a proposition of M. de Tanzé to compel officers elected deputies to make a choice between their commands and their senatorial duties, M. Léon Say mounted the tribune. He narrated, in forcible language, the history of the Fusionist intrigues, condemned the Cabinet for having participated in them, and reproached it with not having convoked the vacant electoral colleges, exclaiming, in conclusion, "The Ministry commenced by trying to corrupt the press, and it closes its career by attempting to falsify the votes of the Assembly."

M. Jules Favre coolly asserted, in reply, that the Cabinet had not favoured one party more than another. One of the shrewdest deputies of the Left, M. Bethmont, responded to M. Beulé, and his searching oration speedily brought the Duc de Broglie to the tribune. The Duke's speech, which was far from a successful one, was drowned in a continual tumult of laughter and interruptions on the part of the Left. He talked about the Commune, and petroleum, and the return of Henri V., but failed to answer any of the accusations brought against him. After a warm rejoinder from M. Bethmont, and a few words from other deputies belonging both to the Right and the Left of the Chamber, the Republican party proposed the following mild resolution:—"The Assembly, regretting the policy followed by the Government during the recess, passes to the order of the day." The order of the day, pure and simple, as demanded by the Government, was, however, voted by 364 ayes to 316 noes, giving the Ministry the large majority of 50 votes.

The sitting of the Assembly on Tuesday opened by MM. Georges Léon and Renvier, two Republican deputies, protesting against the calls to order with which they had been visited by M. Fuffet during the Duc de Broglie's speech on the preceding day. The President, however, maintained his decision, curtly remarking that they deserved more than a simple call to order. The remainder of the sitting was taken up with a debate on the new law on police surveillance, in the course of which M. Jules Favre made an important speech, from a legal point of view, against the measure.

The trial of Marshal Bazaine continues at Trianon, and this week the evidence of MM. Jules Favre and Gambetta has been taken. The former gave an account of his interview at Ferrières with Prince Bismarck, who, in answer to some remark, exclaimed, "But are you sure of Marshal Bazaine's obedience?" M. Jules Favre expressed his astonishment at this observation, and the Prince quietly rejoined, "I have every reason to believe that Marshal Bazaine is not with you." The evidence of the former Minister of Foreign Affairs created much excitement in court, still hardly so much as M. Gambetta's, although the latter deposition was not of the same sensational character. The ex-Dictator, after stating that at the moment he arrived at Tours the Government of National Defence had the greatest faith in Marshal Bazaine, gave an account of the attempts made to communicate with him, mentioning, moreover, that he met General Bourbaki at Tours, who did not so much as speak to him of any necessity for an armistice. A rather warm discussion arose between M. Gambetta and the Maître Lachaud on the latter point, and the Court adjourned amid considerable agitation. The most important deposition on Monday was that of Marshal Bazaine's brother, who delivered a long, declamatory speech on the Marshal's behalf. On Tuesday several inhabitants of the environs of Metz mentioned that they had frequently seen the Marshal pass beyond the French advanced posts on visits to Prince Frederick Charles. General Napoleon Boyer gave evidence concerning his mission in England. Asked by General Pourcet whether he made no attempt to inform the Government of National Defence of the state of affairs inside Metz, he answered, with a shrug of the shoulders, "Oh! I had nothing to do with those people," a reply which excited loud murmurs among the spectators, who were formally admonished by order of the Court for venting their disapprobation. M. Tachard, formerly French Minister at Brussels, gave his evidence in a most amusing manner, calling Madame Bourbaki a "rude femme," and applying most out-of-the-way epithets to the spy Regnier. He mentioned that Marshal Bazaine's wife said to him, shortly after she had had a dispute with General Boyer, "The Marshal is a lion on the battle-field, but in matters of business he is under the influence of that man Boyer, whom I have just driven from my premises."

A duel was fought on Tuesday in the forest of Fontainebleau, between Prince Soutz and Prince Khika. The latter was killed, and his adversary has escaped.

The trial of the directors of the Société Industrielle is still proceeding before the Paris Court of Criminal Appeal. M. Lefebvre Dumelle, the chief administrator, appears to have countenanced the fraudulent operations of Bureau, the acting manager, who swindled the société out of over £20,000, and who has escaped to America; while it is proved that Count de Coëtlogon, the secretary, regularly appropriated to himself a hundred pounds a month out of the company's funds. The Marquis de Rodepont and MM. Nalbronn and Welsley throw all the responsibility of the frauds upon Bureau. The only one of the accused against whom nothing has been proved is General Paté, who will in all probability be acquitted. The trial is causing a great sensation in the Paris financial world, and the public prosecutor demands that the accused be most severely punished.

HOLLAND.

The estimates for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs have been voted by 59 votes against 1.

The First Chamber has unanimously passed the East Indian Budget for 1874.

The Second Chamber has adopted, by 43 against 16 votes, a Ministerial proposal to send a fresh diplomatic mission to Portugal, particularly in view of the necessity of a treaty of commerce between Holland and Portugal.

In communicating to the Chamber of Deputies the departure of the Acheen Expedition from Batavia, the Colonial Minister stated that the Government had no intention of taking Acheen under its direct dominion; but, as a guarantee of peace, it would have to be placed under Dutch sovereignty. A telegram from Singapore announces that, on Monday, the second Dutch expedition against Acheen sailed from that port.

ITALY.

A demonstration in favour of settling international disputes by arbitration has been successfully made in the Parliament.

The second season of the Young Men's Christian Association in Rome was inaugurated on Wednesday by a breakfast in the hall of the association. Speeches were delivered by Mr. Henry Richard, M.P. for Merthyr Tydvil; the Hon. Dudley Field, the American jurist; the Rev. Dr. Davis, and others.

SPAIN.

Advices from Estella state that the Carlists have manufactured at their own foundry a new steel gun, which, on being tried, has proved satisfactory. They are also said to be producing 1000 muskets weekly in their own manufactories. Carlist accounts of General Loma represent him to have made several other unsuccessful attempts against the Carlist columns. According to advices from Valencia, the town of Morella has revolted against the Government and thrown open its gates to the Carlists, the garrison being obliged to take refuge in the citadel.

As the besieging force now prevents any communication with Carthagena, news as to the state of the town is cut off. Supplies are daily arriving for the besiegers, and the Spanish squadron is still lying off the harbour. Energetic measures have been taken by the Germans to recover the 25,000 pesetas taken from Imperial subjects by the insurgents of Carthagena. On Tuesday the German squadron placed itself in line of battle, and threatened to bombard the town if the money was not restored. The insurgents would fain have repaid the money in cantonal duros, but the coinage was declined, and they were compelled to recoup in Spanish gold.

Official despatches announce that the bombardment of Carthagena commenced at a quarter to seven on Wednesday morning and continued until three o'clock in the afternoon, with good effect. The Insurgent ironclad Numancia put out to sea in the afternoon at two o'clock.

In reference to the executions at Santiago, Senor Castelar has informed Mr. Layard that no British subjects were shot on Oct. 8—the fact being that the last of the executions took place on Oct. 7. The Captain-General has telegraphed that no prisoners have been shot since the receipt of Castelar's orders, and that henceforth the authority of the Spanish Republic will be respected in the island.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

The Lower House of the Austrian Reichsrath concluded the debate on the bill for the relief of the financial crisis at a special sitting held on Monday night. The paragraphs of the bill underwent a searching discussion, and the measure as brought in by the committee was ultimately read the second and third time, with but one modification.

The Vienna Town Council is about to issue a first instalment of 15 million florins of its intended 63 million loan.

The Lower House of the Hungarian Diet on Wednesday adopted the Loan Bill by a large majority. The discussion of the clauses of the bill was at once disposed of.

Count Paar, hitherto Minister in Copenhagen, has been appointed to the post of Ambassador to the Holy See.

GERMANY.

A dissolution of the German Parliament has been decided upon by the Federal Diet, and the new elections will be held in January.

The German mint proposes to restrict its coinage operations in 1874 to 138,700,000 marks. There will be eighty millions in 20-mark pieces, twenty millions in 10-marks, and twenty-nine millions in single marks.

We learn from Posen that Archbishop Ledochowski has been summoned to resign his office in eight days, or in default is to be cited before the Ecclesiastical Court at Berlin.

RUSSIA.

The text of the treaty concluded between Russia and Khiva on Aug. 25 has been published. Said Mohammed Rachim Bahadur Khan professes himself the obedient servant of the Emperor of all the Russias; all the territory on the right bank of the Amou is ceded to Russia, and Russia also acquires the right to build fortresses and factories on the left bank of the river. Khiva undertakes to pay by instalments, with 5 per cent interest, 2,200,000 roubles for war expenses.

TURKEY.

A Constantinople telegram, in confirming the report that the Turkish Government had ordered the withdrawal of the troops from the British-protected territory at Aden, adds that nothing is known of the alleged battle between the Turks and the Arabs.

Roumania has had withdrawn from her, by express intimation from Constantinople, the right of making treaties with foreign Powers, which hitherto has been tacitly conceded.

AMERICA.

The Times' correspondent at Philadelphia telegraphed on Wednesday as follows:—"Peace is assured. Responding to the American ultimatum, the Madrid Government has instructed Admiral Polo de Bernabe, Minister at Washington, to inform Mr. Secretary Fish that Spain is willing and resolved to restore the Virginian and yield other claims of the United States, provided the fact is first established that the Virginian was entitled to the protection of the American flag. The Secretary, in reply, took the ground that the United States alone, and not Spain, should decide whether the Virginian had forfeited her right to sail under the American flag and whether the people on board were violating the United States law; that the carrying of properly certified American papers and sailing under the American flag must be accepted as prima facie proof that she was an American vessel; and that the surrender of the Virginian with the survivors must precede all other measures. Admiral Polo de Bernabe telegraphed this to Madrid. No official reply has been communicated as yet to Mr. Secretary Fish, but General Sickles unofficially announces from Madrid that Spain has decided to restore the Virginian to the United States. Naval and military preparations continue unabated."

William Tweed, of Tammany Ring notoriety, has been sentenced to twelve years' imprisonment in the New York Penitentiary, and has been ordered to pay a fine of 12,750 dols.

Messrs. Jay Cooke and Co. have been adjudicated involuntary bankrupts. The Judge recommended the administration of the estate by trustees, and that a committee should be elected by the creditors, thus substantially acting upon the original proposal put forward by the firm.

CANADA.

Mr. Mackenzie, the Premier, has been re-elected to the House of Commons by acclamation.

INDIA.

The Times' correspondent at Calcutta telegraphs:—"Two thousand tons of rice purchased on account of the Government have arrived from Burmah. The Madras merchants are securing the surplus rice from Orissa. There are considerable foreign exports from Calcutta and Chittagong, and the natives are crying out to prevent the exports from increasing. Opium prospects are satisfactory. Cultivators are allowed to use land where the poppy fails. Daily reports are required from the opium districts."

Telegraphing on Monday, the same correspondent says:—"The Zemindars' Association report that they expect only 6-16ths of an average crop of rice for 60,000,000 people, excluding Orissa. They urge an immediate prohibition of the export of grain, except from Burmah. Large imports have already been made, and the relief committees believe that native charity will be displayed by the distribution of rice, but not by large subscriptions of money. The association acknowledges the foresight and promptitude of the Government. The Rent Bill and the Nawab of Moorshedabad Debts Bill have been passed. The Viceroy leaves Agra to-day for Bhurtore."

AUSTRALIA.

The Legislative Council of Victoria has rejected the Land Bill. Parliament has, in consequence, been prorogued, and will be dissolved in January next.

Sir James Martin has been appointed Chief Justice of New South Wales, to succeed Sir Alfred Stephen, C.B., who has resigned the office.

Charles Livingstone, brother of the traveller, and Consul at Fernando Po, has died at sea from an attack of fever.

Germany and Belgium have been negotiating for the mutual recognition of joint-stock companies in their respective courts.

Field-Marshal Prince Edward de Schwarzenberg died recently at his château of Korlik, near Prague, aged seventy.

The appointment of Lieutenant-Colonel Herbert Taylor Siborne, of the Royal Engineers, to be her Majesty's Vice-Consul in the Delta of the Danube, appears in the Gazette.

The Princess of the Royal family of Tanjore, according to the Times of India, is establishing an academy for the education of boys in three languages.

The Peninsular and Oriental steamer Malva, which arrived at Southampton on Monday night with the heavy Indian mails, brought £699,000 in specie.

The King of Siam, having attained his legal majority upon Sept. 25 last, retired to the monastery of Buddhataustau to become a priest according to the Siamese ancient custom. His Majesty returned upon Oct. 10, to resume his Royal prerogative, and was crowned at Bangkok upon Nov. 16.

The Eastern Telegraph Company's direct cable between Cornwall and Lisbon has been repaired. The Eastern Extension Company's cable between Singapore and Penang has been repaired, and communication is restored. The Shanghai Amoy cable is again interrupted, and messages for North China can only be sent via Russia.

Assim Pasha, the Governor of Bosnia, who either caused or enhanced the late difficulty of his Government with that of Vienna, has been superseded in his post. The official Turkish paper announces that Akif Pasha, late Governor on the frontier of Greece, has been appointed Vali of Bosnia, and thus all causes of irritation between the two Powers are removed.

A fresh missionary outrage has occurred in China. Père Hue and a native colleague had not been long settled in the province of Szechuen when a mob broke into their house, and, dragging them through the streets, beat them to death. The mandarin of the district has long been avowedly hostile to Christians, and during the riot he made no effort whatever to rescue the missionaries.

At the sitting of the International Tonnage Commission at Constantinople, on Tuesday, a motion was brought forward by Constat Stokes, the English delegate, declaring that the system of levying dues adopted by the Suez Canal Company since 1872 is illegal. This motion will be put to the vote to-day (Saturday). It is hoped that the French delegates, who have for some time absented themselves from the sittings, will then be present.

The Irish Registrar-General has published his return of the number of emigrants—natives of Ireland—who left Irish ports during the first ten months of the years 1872 and 1873. The number of emigrants in 1872 was 42,054 males and 29,556 females—in all 71,610; the number in 1873 was 48,798 males and 36,489 females—in all 85,287. The total emigration from Ireland since May 1, 1851—the date at which the collection of these returns at the several Irish ports commenced—to Oct. 31, 1873, was 2,247,883 persons.

At Monday's meeting of Honduras bondholders, Mr. Digby Seymour, Q. C., reported that less than a million sterling of the proceeds of the loans, amounting nominally to £3,347,720, had gone into the hands of the Honduras Government. The Committee had entered into a provisional contract with a firm of railway contractors in Kentucky to complete the line for two millions and a half sterling, taking payment for two millions in ten percent bonds. The bondholders were asked to find the other half million. After some discussion a resolution in favour of this scheme was carried by a large majority.

Colonel Baker and Lieutenant Gill arrived at Teheran on Monday, and left immediately for England, via Tabreez and Erivan. Travelling to the north from Meshed, they passed along the Turcoman frontier by Kelat, Abiverd, Dereguez, Annau, Astrabad, and Nissa. Striking south, they discovered the source of the Atrek, at Karakazan, an extraordinary spring near Shirvan, and followed the course of the river to a considerable distance north-west of Bojnoord, until stopped by hostilities between Bojnoord and the Turcomans. Striking into the mountains, they were enabled to trace the course of the river until it fell into the plains, and also to observe the great range of mountains which runs along the whole Persian frontier from Sarakhs to Kizil Arvat. Existing conjectural maps of this country are quite incorrect.

From New York we have intelligence of the wreck of the cable-steamer Robert Lowe, with the loss of eighteen lives. She had for several years been employed in laying submarine cables.

The new Sultan of Morocco has paid a visit to the city of that name, where he was most warmly received by the population. Order continues to prevail in that State, hitherto but little accustomed to see a change of reign without some disturbances. In consequence of the death of the English consular representative at Mogador, the French Consul at that port has been charged with British interests. Her Britannic Majesty's frigate Aurora remained two days before Mogador, and the Renard, French man-of-war, is still before Tangier, at the disposal of M. Tissot, Minister of France. The new Sultan has broken up the harem of his father. The establishment was composed, report says, of nearly 1000 women, more than one half of whom belonged to the negro race. He is believed to have declared that he will keep only a single wife, daughter of Muley Abbas.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Briscoe, J. R., to be Vicar of Naseby, Northamptonshire.
Cave, Browne F. A., Vicar of Padiham, Lancashire.
Dodd, T. F., Vicar of Lowick.
Ellis, E. W., Vicar of Grimsby, Salop.
Foster, Albert John, Curate (sole charge) of Cholderton, Salisbury.
Hickson, C. W., Vicar of St. Bartholomew's, Bristol.
Hare, Hugh James, Vicar of Docking, Norfolk.
Law, William, Naval Instructor in Her Majesty's Fleet.
Medland, Alfred, Chaplain of the Blind Asylum, Bristol.
Morphy, R., Rector of Hessel, Suffolk.
Obbard, A. N., Vicar of Worleston, Cheshire.
Quarrington, E. F., Vicar of Keresby, Coventry.
Raikes, Henry Puget, Chaplain of the Dorset County Gaol, Dorchester.
Russell, Robert, Perpetual Curate of St. Barnabas, Rotherhithe.
Teague, J., Vicar of Kingswood, near Bristol.
Thompson, C., Curate-in-Charge of Heme, Kent.
Woodhouse, A. J., Commissary to the Bishop of Montreal.

The church of Uzmaston, near Harverfordwest, which (as stated last week) was opened on the 13th inst., was restored under the directions of Mr. E. H. Lingen Barker, architect, of Buckingham-street.

Lady Hatherton, on Wednesday, laid the foundation-stone of a new church at Walsall, which has been largely endowed by her husband; and his Lordship spoke very strongly on the occasion in favour of the system of entirely free seats, declaring his conviction that pews and all reservations of the kind have done much harm, in discouraging persons from attending the services of the Church of England.

The twentieth session of the company for the revision of the authorised version of the Old Testament came to an end yesterday week. The following members have been present during the session:—The Dean of Canterbury, Mr. Bensly, Professor Chenevix, Dr. Davies, Dr. Guisburg, Dr. Gotch, Archdeacon Harrison, Dr. Kay, Professor Leathes, Canon Perowne, and Mr. Aldis Wright (secretary). Communications were received from the Bishops of St. David's and Llandaff, Dr. Alexander, Dr. Douglas, Mr. Field, and Dr. Weir, who were unable to attend. The company revised for the first time Psalms lxxxvii. to cxix. 88.

On Advent Sunday (St. Andrew's Day) the Bishop of Rochester will preach at Quebec Chapel in the morning in aid of the St. Andrew's Waterside Mission; and Bishop Piers Claughton will preach at St. Michael's, Paddington. At the same time there will be sermons for this mission in many other churches between London and the mouth of the Thames. About £1000 worth of books, illustrated papers, and magazines are annually distributed by the mission clergy on board ships leaving the Thames; and by providing the vessels with Bibles, prayer-books, &c., many floating churches are established and much good done. The mission is extending its work wherever there is an opening and as funds permit. It has furnished 700 ships with library-boxes free. Many of the boxes contain a volume of the Illustrated London News. Books directed to the Mission House, Gravesend, are carried free by goods-train from Bricklayers' Arms station. The great number of emigrants who now sail from the Thames make this work of the Church of the more importance.

A committee, comprising the most influential members of the congregation of All Saints' Church, Margaret-street, Cavendish-square, has been formed for the purpose of raising a memorial to their late Vicar, the Rev. William Upton Richards, who died early in the present year, after officiating in Margaret-street—at first in the little chapel, and afterwards in All Saints' Church—upwards of a quarter of a century.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

At Oxford the Hulmeian trustees have, upon the recommendation of the Principal and Fellows of Brasenose College, awarded two of their valuable exhibitions to Messrs. Charles Eccles Edmund Williams, a scholar on the Somerset foundation, and Henry Malme Price, Colquitt Exhibitioner of that society. The Hulmeian exhibitions are of the annual value of £135, with £20 to be spent in books to be approved of by the Principal, and can be held by residence only for four years.

It is announced from Cambridge that the Carus Greek Testament prize for undergraduates has been adjudged to J. E. C. Weldon, King's, and A. L. Williams, Jesus, who are declared equal in merit.—The fund being raised for the purpose of providing a suitable memorial to the late Adam Sedgwick, formerly Professor of Geology at Cambridge University, reaches nearly £10,000. Among the principal subscribers are the Prince of Wales, 100 gs.; the Duke of Devonshire, £1000; Professor Selwyn, £500; the Earl of Derby, £200; Professor Lightfoot, £200; and the Master of Trinity, £200.—At a special congregation on Thursday the Senate of the University decided, by 69 votes to 15, to sanction the proposal, agreed to by the Town Council, that the University become joint promoters with the town authorities of the bill for readjusting the relation between town and University, and for reconstructing the Board of Improvement Commissioners.

Mr. Disraeli has conferred with a committee of the Glasgow University council on a memorial to Parliament for certain changes in University administration which was adopted in April last. Its objects are that the general councils of the Scottish Universities should be placed in communication with each other; that they should be empowered to appoint committees for special purposes; that the representation of Glasgow University on the general council should be enlarged, and that the present method of electing a rector be abolished, instead of voting by nations it is desired to have voting in common. Mr. Disraeli promised to consider the various points of the memorial, and to express his opinion on them before the meeting of Parliament.

Mr. Brady, a distinguished Roman Catholic graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, has been appointed to the new Professorship of Classical Literature in the University. Mr. Brady is the first Roman Catholic Professor in Arts.

The annual meeting of the Regent's Park College, of which the Rev. Dr. Angus is the principal, was held, yesterday week, in the college library. The number of students attending classes during the past year had been forty-one; the income from all sources, £3125, and the debt had been entirely cleared off. The examinations of the students showed satisfactory results, one of them having been placed first in the matriculation examinations at the London University.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

It is officially announced that Parliament will meet for the dispatch of business on Feb. 5 next.

The Company of Goldsmiths has given £100 in aid of the funds of the Metropolitan and City Police Orphanage.

Dr. Lyon Playfair, the new Postmaster-General, entered upon his duties on Wednesday.

The directors of the Bank of England on Thursday reduced the rate of discount from 8 per cent (to which it was reduced last week) to 6 per cent.

At a meeting of the Metropolitan Board of Works, yesterday week, a recommendation from one of the committees was adopted, providing for an approach to the Thames Embankment from the bottom of Craven-street.

Handel's "Israel in Egypt" will be performed by the Sacred Harmonic Society at Exeter Hall, on Friday next, Dec. 5. It will be under the direction of Sir Michael Costa; and Madame Sherrington, Madame Patey, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. L. Thomas, and Mr. Santley are the principal vocalists.

Sir John Bennett presided at the annual meeting of the Fourth City Mutual Building Society, held in the City Terminus Hotel on Wednesday, when the report submitted showed that the receipts for the year amounted to £129,000; the interest payments on investing shares to £41,413.

The first of a series of winter lectures, under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association, was given, on Monday, at Exeter Hall, before a crowded audience, by the Rev. Dr. Morley Punahon. The subject selected was "The Men of the Mayflower."

The steam-ship Murillo, which ran down the Northfleet on the night of Jan. 22 last, causing a loss of nearly 300 lives, was sold at Lloyd's, on Tuesday, by order of the Court of Admiralty. The biddings opened at £6500, and the vessel was knocked down to a Spanish firm for £7050.

The births in London last week were 2353, and the deaths 1674, the former having been 42 above and the latter 26 below the average. The deaths included 130 from measles, 27 from scarlet fever, 13 from diphtheria, 36 from whooping-cough, 40 from different forms of fever, and 12 from diarrhoea.

The number of paupers relieved in the metropolis in the third week of November was 102,598—35,742 indoor and 66,856 outdoor. Last year the numbers were 34,886 and 71,947 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved in the metropolis on the last day of the third week in November was 557—386 men, 145 women, and 26 children.

A meeting of members of the wholesale tea trade was held on Wednesday, at which it was resolved to appoint a committee to co-operate with a similar body from the National Chamber of Trade for the purpose of organising a deputation to Mr. Gladstone, in order to bring before him the subject of the examination of tea in bond.

The Duke of Argyll has informed the Lord Mayor that sufficient information has not yet been obtained as to the apprehended famine in Bengal to show the necessity of opening a subscription in this country. His Lordship in announcing this communication added that if a subscription should be required he would do all in his power to bring it to a successful issue.

Dr. A. W. Barclay reports to the Chelsea guardians that he has analysed several samples of food sent to him by them. The milk contained 10 per cent of cream, and was unadulterated; the tea, though not of fine leaf, was genuine; the flour, sago, and arrowroot were unadulterated. The mustard, however, was largely mixed with flour, and deficient in pungency and true mustard flavour.

At a general meeting of Civil Service writers, on Monday, presided over by Sir James Lawrence, resolutions were adopted embodying a scheme to be submitted to the Government as a final compromise. It was proposed that the minimum rate of pay should be 1s. per hour, and that after five years' service a graduated scale of increase should come into operation, to continue till it reached 1s. 8d. per hour.

The grievances of the sorters, letter-carriers, assistants, porters, and rural messengers in the service of the Post Office have been embodied in a petition to the House of Commons. On the question of wages, it is urged that the cost of living has enormously increased since the existing rate of pay was fixed, and that all kinds of labour have risen in value. A commission of inquiry into the system of promotion, Sunday work, and other matters is prayed for.

The Lord Mayor presided, on Tuesday, at the annual meeting of the Spa fields Chapel Sunday School, established A.D. 1815. It contains nearly 800 children, and is conducted and maintained entirely by voluntary agency. The meeting was very crowded and enthusiastic. His Lordship was well supported by clergymen, ministers, and members of the various metropolitan and local boards, and addresses on the subject of religious education were delivered.

At a meeting of the Chemical Society on Thursday week—Dr. Odling, F.R.S., president, in the chair—a paper "On the Coefficient of Expansion of Carbon Disulphide," by J. B. Hannay, was read by the secretary. Dr. Russell then communicated his researches "On the Action of Hydrogen on Silver Nitrate," giving an account of the precipitation of metallic silver in the crystalline state by means of hydrogen. There were also a "Note on the Action of Zinc Chloride on Codeine," by Dr. C. R. A. Wright; "On the Chemical Properties of Ammoniated Ammonia Nitrate," by E. Divers, M.D.; and "On the Analysis of a Meteoric Stone and the detection of Vanadium in it," by R. Apjohn. The meeting was adjourned until Dec. 4.

Sir John Duke Coleridge, the recently-appointed Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, took formal leave, on Tuesday, of the Society of the Middle Temple, with which Inn of Court he has been connected as a student, barrister, reader, and bencher for the last thirty years. Nearly 200 members of the Inn, both barristers and students, dined in hall on the occasion. Lord Chief Justice Coleridge read grace both before and after dinner, and gave from the chair, without comment, the toast of "The Queen," which was received with the heartiest enthusiasm. No speeches were delivered. At the close of the dinner Sir John Coleridge, who was loudly cheered by the members, was escorted to the principal door of the hall by the benchers and the under-treasurer, and by the head porter bearing his staff of office.

As the Judge passed out the doors were closed upon him, and the bell in the hall tower was solemnly tolled for some minutes. The Lord Chief Justice subsequently re-entered the Parliamentary chamber as a guest of the benchers.—A dinner was given, last Saturday, at Willis's Rooms, by the past and present members of the Oxford Circuit to Mr. Henry James, Q.C., on his appointment as Attorney-General. Mr. Huddleston, Q.C., presided; and amongst those present were Lord Romilly, Mr. Justice Keating, Mr. Baron Pigott, Mr. Amphlett, M.P., and Mr. Kenyon, Q.C.

SCHOOL BOARDS.

At a dinner given to Lord Lawrence at the Albion, yesterday week, by the members of the London School Board—Mr. Charles Reed, M.P., in the chair—the Right Hon. Mr. Forster entered into a series of observations on the Education Act.—The board, which was elected Nov. 29, 1870, held its last meeting on Wednesday—Lord Lawrence in the chair. On the motion of Mr. Samuel Morley, M.P., seconded by Mr. W. H. Smith, M.P., a hearty vote of thanks was accorded to his Lordship for the ability and courtesy with which he had presided over the deliberations of the board. Lord Lawrence having responded, Mr. Crossman stated that the members of the board had subscribed £400 towards a scholarship for London elementary schools, to be called the Lawrence Scholarship, and he hoped subscriptions would come in from the public. Other votes of thanks were accorded to Mr. Charles Reed, M.P., as vice-chairman, and to the chairmen of the several committees.—The board consists of forty-nine members, who are returned by the ten divisions of the metropolis. The city of London elects 4; Chelsea, 4; Finsbury, 6; Greenwich, 4; Hackney, 5; Lambeth, 5; Marylebone, 7; Southwark, 4; the Tower Hamlets, 5; and Westminster, 5. For the forty-nine seats there were seventy-five candidates at the closing of the nomination lists. The results of the elections on Thursday were not known at the time of our going to press. In Finsbury there was no contest.—The first school erected under the auspices of the board in Southwark was opened, on Monday, at Monnow-road, Bermondsey. Mr. Alfred Lafone, one of the representatives of the Southwark division, presided.

At Liverpool the result of the election for the Board is as follows:—Five Catholics have been returned, four members pledged to Bible education in board schools, two members in favour of purely secular education, two Wesleyans, and two independent members.—After laying the foundation-stone of a new board school at Liverpool on Tuesday, Mr. Forster delivered an address reviewing at great length the administration of the Education Act. The board has resolved to send a certificated mistress to Hamburg to study the Froebel kindergarten system there, with a view to its introduction into the board schools.

At Bolton six Churchmen, two Roman Catholics, two Wesleyans, and three Nonsectarians were elected.

At Salford there were seventeen candidates for fifteen seats. Seven Churchmen (six of whom head the poll), five Unsectarians, two Roman Catholics, and one Wesleyan were elected.

The result of the Middlesbro' School Board election has been the return of five un denominational candidates, one Roman Catholic, one Churchman, and one Wesleyan.

The election at Leeds resulted in a Liberal majority of one. There were five Churchmen, two Roman Catholics, three Wesleyans, two Independents, one Quaker, one Unsectarian.

There were fourteen candidates for eleven seats at Stockport. The result was the election of eight Denominationalists, including four Churchmen, two Wesleyans, and two Roman Catholic priests; and three Nonconformists.

At Bradford, eight Unsectarians were returned, against five Churchmen and two Roman Catholics; at Nottingham there were six Conservatives, against seven Liberals; and Wolverhampton has six of each side, with a Catholic as odd member.

The Sheffield School Board held a special meeting last Saturday, at which a letter from the Education Department was read, stating that, as there was no election under the order of that Department, the members of the old board had the choice of serving if they thought proper. This alternative was accordingly offered to each member, and was accepted by all, thus bringing the difficulty to a definite settlement and obviating the necessity for an election.

A large meeting was held at the Guildhall, Cambridge, on Monday evening—under the presidency of Professor Humphry—at which a resolution was proposed that it was desirable that school boards should be established in Cambridge. This resolution was lost by a large majority, and resolutions were carried in favour of increased voluntary effort.

At the Dundee School Board, on Monday, the recommendation of a committee to supply additional school accommodation for 5000 scholars was rejected by 9 votes to 2, and it was agreed that only 2000 children should at present be provided for.

A DERRICK UNLOADING COLLIERIES.

A great improvement in the system of unloading colliers in the port of London has been introduced by Messrs. Cory, the owners of the largest fleet of screw-steamers employed in this trade. Most of the old sailing colliers, which still continue to make their slow and uncertain passages from the Northumberland and Durham colliery ports to the Thames, are unloaded here by the old method of setting a gang of men, "coal-whippers," as they are called, to raise the coal from the bottom of the ship's hold by their combined strength and weight, first ascending a few steps and then jumping suddenly backwards. Instead of this clumsy and barbarous fashion, Messrs. Cory have stationed in the river, nearly opposite Blackwall, a derrick fitted on each side with three steam-cranes, made to turn on a pivot, so that they can, after lifting the loaded box or basket from the ship, easily carry it round and pour its contents down the shoot, through which the coal descends into lighters or barges stationed beneath. Two ships can by these means be unloaded at the same time, one at each side of the derrick, and the process is so expeditious that a cargo of 800 or 900 tons may be disposed of in about six hours. A model of the invention is to be seen in the Patents Museum at South Kensington. Our Illustration shows it at work, with a few of the lighters in attendance, and the steam-tug which is to tow them up the river.

The first turfs of two shafts of a new coal-mine, at Lofthouse, near Wakefield, were "turned" on Thursday week.

Lord Colville, while with a party driving partridges on Tuesday at Orwell Park, Ipswich, was accidentally struck by four pellets in his head and neck.

SCREW-COLLERS UNLOADING.

TRAVELLING LAMAS AT DARJEELING, HIMALAYAS.

NEW BOOKS.

A very extraordinary, and in many respects an interesting and a thought-compelling, book is The Coming Man, by the Rev. James Smith, M.A. (Strahan and Co.). The two volumes contain a curious intermixture of the wild and the visionary with the sober and practical; and the author has dealt with the numerous topics upon which he touches in an earnest but by no means a bigoted spirit. His style is very original, and humour is conspicuous in page after page. The author died in 1837; and it appears to be "intended to write his life with some fulness," so that, at some future time, the whole world may know, if it please, who and what manner of man he was, and how it fared with him from his birth, in 1801, to his death. Meanwhile, for the benefit of readers who like to look before they leap, it may be well to state a few facts concerning him. It is recorded that "he was a Licentiate of the Church of Scotland, but preferred the larger pulpit of the press, and for fourteen years, as writer of the leading article in the Family Herald, charmed and instructed a vast multitude with essays which in their range and spirit are unique in popular literature." He is described as having been, in the words of Emerson "liberally hospitable to all manner of ideas;" and certainly his speculations seem to have been pervaded by a sort of eclectic pantheism. He had "implicit faith in every word and letter of the Bible;" he would settle difficulties (to his own personal satisfaction, presumably) "by ingenious turns of texts," and, at the same time, all his "confidence in the Bible did not prevent his recognition of Mahomet as a teacher, nor of Zoroaster or the oracles of Greece." He took much interest "in enthusiasts and erratics," and he delighted "to detect the normal in the abnormal, and to reconcile the extravagant and incredible with common sense." He had, moreover, a sneaking kindness for astrology; "for if the universe, he said, is interwoven part with part, and nothing without dependence on everything, it is obvious that stars and planets must have an influence upon earth and upon each item on earth, though the nature and measure of the influence may be difficult or impossible to determine." From all this it is quite plain that the gentleman took a broad and reasonable view of things in general; but some suspicion of him, as a theorist to be taken as a guide, is at once excited by the candid avowal that "of severe scientific discipline Mr. Smith had little." There was a gentleman of the same name, if memory may be trusted, who, by an unfair manipulation of decimal fractions and by other equally fallacious methods, used to be constantly demonstrating the possibility of squaring the circle, and thereby enabling the late Professor De Morgan to "keep his hand in" as a castigator of mathematical blunderers; and the late Rev. James Smith may be said to have had a somewhat similar "bee in his bonnet." He had, if he have been properly understood, a mystic number—five. Other speculators, including pawnbrokers, have preferred three; others seven; others, perhaps, sweet seventeen. The Rev. James Smith's pet idea, then, is declared to have been "that the power that produced five fingers should issue in five great monarchies, and that human life should perpetually unfold itself as a five-act drama." It is scarcely necessary to point out that no theory, however ingeniously constructed, based upon such an idea as this can have the least effect upon minds which might with equal reason be particularly struck with the fact that "the power" produced ten fingers, or two thumbs, or one stomach, or all the members collectively, and might expect human life to "unfold itself" in a drama with a corresponding number of acts. There is something, also, almost too ludicrous, even if it be not grossly irreverent, in supposing the ark to be symbolical of a human face, the "two cherubim of glory" being the two eyes, and "the Shekinah" being the nose, the apparent irrelevance of the latter notion being defended on the plea that "the nose, when pure and comely, is a noble organ," and that "amongst all nations an insult to the nose is an unpardonable offence." No allusion, it is believed, is made to the way in which the nose, the tip of the thumb, and the fingers are employed in the "five-act drama" expressive of derision. However, with all this, there is in the two volumes a great deal that is well worth reading. There is no "pretty story," though there are lovers amongst the characters; but the characters are principally used for the purpose of making sensible remarks and inculcating strange doctrines. Nor does "The Coming Man" at all resemble "The Coming Race;" in the former the author has attempted merely to develop "the leading idea of a coming age of universality or charity," with little or no exhibition of pleasant or unpleasant satire.

A great deal, within a comparatively small compass, is accomplished, after an agreeable and a readable fashion, by the anonymous author of the two far from closely-printed volumes entitled In the Isle of Wight (Sampson Low and Co.). Hypercriticism might, perhaps, urge that the title is somewhat delusive, inasmuch as the events described might equally well have happened anywhere in the world; and inasmuch as, in point of fact, some of the most important scenes do take place out of the Isle of Wight; but it is to be hoped that readers and writers who live in a free country are not to be confined within the narrow limits of hypercriticism. As for the story, some parts of it are so simple and vividly lifelike that it seems as if certain phases of ordinary existence had been caught up and printed off on the spot; it is true that they, for that very reason, savour more than slightly of the commonplace; but they, nevertheless, create a feeling of surprise and satisfaction, such as one experiences at seeing a very accurately executed sketch of a well-known place or person. Of plot, properly so called, there is little or nothing; but, as a makeweight, the interest, such as it is, is kept alive by a succession and arbitrary intermixture of what are, to all intents and purposes, independent love-affairs. Indeed it is seldom that so much of the grand passion is to be found in so few pages; the younger characters seem to have scarcely anything else to think of or to do but to fall in love, and, melancholy to relate, the majority of them do not observe the advice of the good old proverb, which admonishes both sexes to be off with the old love before being on with the new. Or, perhaps, it would be more correct to say that, in the novel under consideration, it would have saved a vast amount of unpleasantness and unbrotherly language, if a young lady, who shall be nameless, had taken care to be off with an old engagement before she was on with a first love, and if a handsome military gentleman, who shall also be nameless, had not displayed a tendency to be on with all the new loves possible without any regard for anybody but himself. Of course we who know anything of the world know that if a "golden-haired, bright-eyed" young lady have the chance of weighing in the scales of merit and loveliness two brothers, of whom one possesses all the virtues combined with clerical gravity, and the other unexceptionable whiskers combined with military gaiety, virtues will kick the beam and whiskers will have the preponderance. But when the young lady happens to be already engaged to the virtues, in the hope of being able by degrees quite to love the embodiment of them, and does not meet the adorable whiskers until things have gone so far, a terrible crisis is likely to result; and so, in the present instance, it does. A further difficulty ensues when the gay and whiskered one, after having, Jacob-like, supplanted his brother and become engaged to "the golden-haired and bright-eyed" young lady, proposes to somebody else. It is clear that there is now an entanglement from which strong measures are required for extrication; and "the golden-haired and bright-eyed" victim is removed from a world of whiskers and gaiety and heartless flirtation by the somewhat hackneyed but effectual instrumentality of a runaway horse and a stone wall, which between them cause the requisite amount of concussion of the brain. Such is an outline of the main love affair; the minor love affairs end happily, unless there be some fear that a handsome widow may be left with a hopeless secret gnawing at her vitals. The clerical gentleman is so amply rewarded ultimately for his sufferings that it may be permissible to make a remark, which might otherwise appear heartless, about the wonderful rapidity of his conversions; he is converted to Rome and back again, if not in what is popularly termed a jiffy, at any rate in an incredibly short time and in about twenty pages. The volumes are not remarkable for originality of invention or profound study of human nature, or brilliant writing, or picturesque description; but they have the charms of a fresh and unpretentious style, of realistic power, of occasional arch hits, and of a few humorous touches.

By a curious coincidence, two books, very dissimilar in some respects, but both treating of the same subject, and both very well worth reading, have been published at much about the same time and with the same title—The Pearl of the Antilles. The more business-like volume is that which appears under the authorship of Mr. Gallenga (Chapman and Hall), and the more romantic—the epithet being used without prejudice—is that which bears upon the titlepage the name of Walter Goodman (Henry S. King and Co.). It may be hardly necessary to add that the theme of each is the island of Cuba; but it may be more to the point to state that both authors were prompted by one and the same laudable desire of supplying personally-acquired information about that which in our modern jargon is denominated "the Cuban question." To the former volume recourse may be had by the reader who delights in naked facts; to the latter by him who prefers them dressed in the fashion prevalent amongst such excellent periodicals as All the Year Round, Cassell's Magazine, and London Society, to each of which the author originally contributed a few papers now included in his book; and to both the former and the latter by readers who wish to combine the greatest possible amount of the solid and practical with the greatest possible amount of the sprightly and agreeable. Let no one, however, erroneously conclude that Mr. Gallenga is dry; he is, on the contrary, both interesting and quite lively enough, but Mr. Goodman is more professedly and evidently studious of the picturesque, the gay, and the attractive. The very dedications serve to stamp their respective characters upon the two volumes; one is dedicated to the Governor of Jamaica, the other to a "travelling-companion and brother-artist." Again, Mr. Gallenga is decidedly of a statistical turn; Mr. Goodman in his preface declares himself to be anything rather than a statistician. The two authors, moreover, though ever running side by side, remind one rather of the curve and the asymptote than the curve and the tangent; they have almost no point of contact. You may think you have them in conjunction, when each of them is fairly established in the town or city which is inseparable from recollections of Cabana and Uppmann; but one gives a detailed and minute account of it, the other dismisses it with the remark that, "compared with Santiago," it offers few attractions to the traveller beyond "its tobacco," to which subject he will "accordingly" devote his attention; and even in orthography they are wide asunder, for one writes Havannah and the other Havana. But, as has already been hinted, let the two books be combined, and then it is probable that the reader will learn as much of every kind about Cuba, its insurrection, its slavery, its productions, its deadly hatreds and jealousies, its forms of politeness, its way of wooing and "depositing," and marrying, its life in doors and out, and its future prospects, as two gentlemen, taking up different points of view, but having almost equally good opportunities and powers of observation in their respective spheres and lines, could have been expected to collect.

Poetry, not in her old classic garb, whether epic, tragic, lyric, or idyllic, and not in any more modern costume, cut regulation-wise and according to some acknowledged fashion, whether severely plain and tight or extravagantly rich and free, but Poetry, nevertheless, in her most modern dress, wild, fantastic, harlequin-like, a mixture of the most violent contrasts, got up partly for a tragedy, partly for a comedy, partly for a quiet domestic drama, partly for a simple, pathetic elegy, partly for a rustic idyl, and partly for a burlesque, stands confessed in the pages of White Rose and Red, by the author of "St. Abe" (Strahan and Co.). The poem is a love story. A white man, a mighty hunter, of gigantic stature and of sufficiently handsome appearance, who describes himself as Eureka Hart, of Drowsietown, State of Maine, is out in the woods, far south of his own "location," and one fine day sees, Actæon-like, from his umbrageous lurking-place some lovely Red Indians, of the softer sex of course, bathing in a limpid stream, with many attendant women looking on. His feelings are such that his gun, which he holds loaded in his hand, goes off; he is detected, seized, bound hand and foot, and carried off to a settlement of Red Indians. The loveliest of the bathers there protects him and conceives a passion for him; they make love and are mated in unceremonious fashion. After a while the white hunter, as such men will do, grows weary of his life and returns to his own people, leaving with his dusky charmer, Red Rose, his name and address. Amongst his own people he falls in with White Rose, whom he marries with due religious ceremony. Red Rose tracks him down in his own cottage, and is confronted by White Rose, who discovers everything: tableau. But Red Rose, as well as her "papoose," has gone through so much in her search that already the shadow of Pauguk is impending over both; and, after having been humanely but semi-reluctantly tended by White Rose, mother and child are buried together. White Rose forgives but does not forget; she keeps her gigantic husband's escapade in remembrance as a rod in pickle for him. The poem is a singular mixture, in the most modern and intensely American style, of the beautiful and the grotesque, the tenderest sentiment and the lowest slang, the most glorious bursts of somewhat rough but melodious song and the commonest doggerel, the pure Castalian stream and ditch-water. The author runs riot, as if such matters were inexhaustible with him; in language, and rhythm, and rhyme; he is a master of description, and passion, and pathos; and the last two lines of his poem are, in a few words, a big volume of sardonic, bitter, truthful, and contemptuous satire upon a certain and very numerous class of white men. What he lacks is pure and refined spirituality; his emotion is fervent, and natural, and touching, but almost wholly of the sensuous kind.

Amidst the different views now rife upon the subject of national education, that of Mr. William Cave Thomas, the artist, is worthy of some attention. His little book of essays and illustrative notes, called Symmetrical Education, or the Importance of Just Proportion in Mind and Body (Smith, Elder, and Co.), sets forth a most essential truth. The mischievous tendency of modern systems is to cram the youthful mind with indigestible masses of information in special departments of knowledge. Instead of this unwholesome treatment, it is contended by Mr. Thomas that every boy and girl in England should be equally instructed and trained in certain things which will serve to develop, 1, the faculty of self-government; 2, the observing faculty; 3, the retaining faculty, or memory; 4, the reasoning faculty; 5, the speaking or expressing faculty; 6, the faculties of bodily strength, agility, dexterity, and grace. He gives a list of these proper subjects of general instruction, under the six different heads above mentioned, viz.:—1, Religion, ethics, and the laws of health; 2, drawing or modelling, music, writing, and geography (that is, the use and drawing of maps); 3, judicious exercises of memory upon all the other subjects to be studied; 4, arithmetic, algebra, and geometry; 5, the national language, grammar, reading, and composition; 6, gymnastics (with active sports and dancing). We entirely agree with Mr. Thomas that these are the things which ought to be taught in every common school, and that it is the duty of the State to provide for their teaching. The children of the poorest class, as well as those of the rich and respectable, have a right to such well-proportioned culture of their humanity from the mere fact of their birth; and the result, if this were supplied to one generation, would be an inconceivable degree of social improvement. It would also contribute, beyond all calculation, to the further progress of lucrative arts and manufactures, as well as to private happiness and virtue, and to the welfare of the nation. Mr. Thomas is probably right in his opinion, that it is by this method, not by instituting schools of technical instruction for different trades at the public cost, that the industrial prosperity of Great Britain may be secured; and we heartily commend his well-timed treatise to the members of every school board, and to all other persons who have any control over the work of popular education in their neighbourhood. As for the middle and upper classes of Englishmen and Englishwomen, their education is prescribed by mere custom, tradition, and fashion, without reference either to practical needs or to theories of what is best for knowing and doing.

A gentleman "who has lived for a quarter of a century in France, amidst ties and affections which have made that country his second home," is clearly competent to discourse upon the subject treated of in the volume entitled French Home Life (William Blackwood and Sons), and, though he withholds his name, yet the contents of his volume, having already appeared in Blackwood, are thereby almost more than sufficiently recommended; and, though his volume is bulky to look at, yet of so convenient a size is the type and of so universally interesting a nature is the matter that no complaint is likely to arise on that score. Universally interesting is said advisedly; for in the eight chapters into which the volume is divided his text is taken, respectively, from servants, children, furniture, food, manners, language, dress, and marriage, and everybody must take an interest in at least one of those subjects. As to servants, the author vouches for this incredible fact—the "distinctive feature of the French servant is that you are his master; he is not yours." With respect to children, he teaches that the French system of management will appear to an unprejudiced eye excellent for girls, but deplorable for boys. As for furniture, he comes to the conclusion that it has played an important part "in the progress of the nineteenth century." As regards food, he maintains that in France "the whole nutritive elements of every substance employed pass into the stomach, instead of being partially poured down the sink or sent out to the pigs, as is the case in this free and eminently great country." Touching manners, he significantly observes that, "if nearly everything had not broken down during the last two years, it would have been easy to defend the ostensible deceits which make up so much of our neighbours' manners." Concerning the French language, all that is advanced is deserving of attention, and is, besides, very amusing. In the matter of dress, it is aggravating to find that the author, contrary to the experience of some people and in conformity with common, and one feels inclined to say vulgar, opinion, declares that "our women cannot do it." And, lastly, as to marriage, the French must be a more happy people than is generally imagined, if our author be right in affirming that "it is far from easy to discover really unhappy marriages in France." Perhaps the word "unhappy" means something different from what would be intended if one were speaking of an English or an ordinary marriage.

A certain amount of amusement is, no doubt, to be extracted from the three volumes entitled Old Times in Ireland: by Lieutenant-Colonel the Hon. C. S. Vereker, M.A., F.G.S. (Chapman and Hall); and the process of extraction will result the most successfully for those, if there be any, who are not already sated with descriptions, not very skillfully done, of the ludicrous, the rollicking, the extravagant, and the sanguinary scenes which were characteristic of Irish life almost half a century ago. To enjoy the book thoroughly it will be necessary to care little about a plot or any closely-connected story, to attach small importance to the personal hold which some writers cause their characters to have over the reader, and to see a great deal of fun in riddles with a savour of antiquity about them, and in a phonographical representation of the Irish brogue. Howbeit, there are two or three tuneful and spirited songs. The most satisfactory part of the book is in the preface, where the author testifies that in Ireland "the clouds are vanishing" and "the sunshine is beaming forth;" let us hope that he speaks with authority.

It is a pleasure to record so welcome an addition to the generally excellent "Ancient Classics for English Readers" as Lucian, by the Rev. W. Lucas Collins, M.A. (William Blackwood and Sons). There is, however, one reason for regret: Lucian was so voluminous a writer that it was impossible for the editor of the little volume dedicated to him and his writings to do him, in the very limited space at command, anything like full justice. And yet Lucian, beyond almost any "ancient," is calculated to have a charm for "English readers" as well as for scholars; his beautiful Greek makes him doubly dear to the scholar, but his neatness of expression, his humour, and his satirical vein, are exactly of that description which is most highly appreciated by the nation which produced the "English Humourists." Besides all this, there is a mystery, connected with Christianity, about Lucian; and, whether he were himself an apostate Christian or not, it is pretty plain that "he knew a man who was;" and of that man, by name Peregrinus (called Proteus, in consequence, probably, of his many changes), he has left a very curious account. It is astonishing how much, biographical and illustrative, Mr. Collins has managed to comprise within a small compass; and it would, perhaps, be unreasonable, under the circumstances, to complain that the much is not more.

Truth Will Out, by Jeanie Hering, is a story so pleasantly told that the reader cannot help feeling interested in its two sets of heroes and heroines.

LAW AND POLICE.

TRIAL OF THE TICHBORNE CLAIMANT FOR PERJURY.

In the Court of Queen's Bench, yesterday week, Mr. M'Mahon, one of the counsel for the Tichborne claimant, moved for a rule to show cause why the rule prolonging the time of hearing the Tichborne case until next term should not be rescinded. The Judges unanimously decided that the Court had acted within its power, and refused the application.

The trial at bar of the Claimant was resumed, on Thursday, in the Court of Queen's Bench, before the Lord Chief Justice of England and Justices Mellor and Lush. Mr. Purcell, barrister-at-law, said he left England in October last for New York with the view of making inquiries about the evidence of Luie, and he arrived there on Nov. 2. He searched the arrivals at New York from July 1, 1853, to May 1, 1854. There was no vessel called the Osprey which arrived at New York within those dates; nor was there any vessel of the name of Osprey in the clearance books for the same period. The Osprey was also not to be found in the New Jersey pilots' book. He made inquiry for the stevedore Thompson mentioned by Luie, and found he was dead. He visited New Bedford and examined the arrivals and clearances in 1851, 1852, and 1853, to see if there was an Osprey or a Helvetia, and found neither name. He searched the register of vessels granted in 1850, 1851, and 1852. There was a register granted to one Osprey, and one only. It was an Osprey commanded by Captain M'Comber. He caused searches about a grog-shop to be made in New York and Chicago. At Brooklyn he discovered a ship-chandler named Kimber, a brother-in-law of Thompson, the stevedore. He found no trace of a shipowner named Falconberg. He was not able to find the slightest trace in New York of a person named Luie, whether a sailmaker or anything else. He went to everybody whose name Luie gave to Mr. Whalley. Paul Cornell, who had served in the custom-house barge which boarded all vessels entering the Narrows from foreign ports, gave positive evidence to show that the Osprey could not have been off Staten Island and loaded there at the time fixed by Luie. Francis Frederick Kruse, a stevedore, of West-street, New York, who succeeded to the business of Thompson, proved that there was no Osprey loaded by the firm during 1853 or 1854. His attention being directed to Luie, he said he never saw him in his life. Hercules Rosier, of Chicago, a detective, said there was no place in that city called Seventh-street. He could not find in Newbury-avenue a grog-shop kept by Jean Luie. He went to New York and inquired for Karl Anderson and Jean Luie in Nineteenth-street, Brooklyn, but could not hear anything of them. There was no Caroline-street in Jersey City.

Mr. Whalley, M.P., has withdrawn from the Tichborne case, the reason he assigns being "the premature and abrupt termination of the evidence for the defendant," which he regrets on public grounds. He therefore retires from any further action in the matter, excepting so far as the public questions involved may seem to him to demand.

An order has been issued by the Lord Chancellor closing the county court offices on Dec. 26 and 27.

A nice point of construction in the will of the late Lord Westbury was argued, on Monday, before Sir George Jessel, Master of the Rolls, on an adjourned summons from the Master's Chambers. The question was whether the trustees had power to invest, during the pendency of the administration, in certain American securities. Exercising the right of discretion which pertains to the Court, Sir George Jessel refused to sanction investments which he regarded as speculative.

The case of "Gilbert v. Enoch," being an action brought by Mr. W. S. Gilbert against the publisher of the Pall Mall Gazette for an alleged libel, was tried in the Court of Common Pleas on Thursday, before Mr. Justice Brett and a special jury. The jury found a verdict for the defendant.

During the hearing of a case in the Court of Exchequer it was stated that large quantities of liquorice were manufactured in this country under the Spanish brand; and that amongst the purposes to which it was applied were those of colouring beer and making black draughts.

Lord Romilly has delivered a number of important judgments in the European Assurance arbitration. In Mushat's and Dymock's cases, where transfers had been made to "men of straw," his Lordship ordered the transactions to be set aside and granted costs. In Dr. Ouseley's case, where an objection was taken that the shares had been purchased with the wife's money, it was decided that the money was sufficiently under the husband's control to fix him with liability.

The trial of Mr. Henry Reginald Corbett, a magistrate of Shropshire and master of the Cheshire hounds, for shooting at a labourer named Tomlinson, took place, on Wednesday, at Knutsford, before the magistrates at quarter sessions. The prosecutor, in company with other rustics, and in pursuance of an old local custom called "souling," had rung the bell of the defendant's house in order to ask for money; and this had led to the act for which Mr. Corbett is now on his trial. It was admitted that he had sent Tomlinson £25 as compensation for the injury, and had promised to pay the doctor's bill. After an absence of twenty minutes, the jury returned a verdict of "Guilty" on the first count—namely, that which charged prisoner with a common assault. The magistrates, having held a brief consultation, fined Mr. Corbett £100, and called upon him to enter into sureties, himself of £500 and two others of £250 each, to be of good behaviour to all her Majesty's subjects for twelve months.

At the Central Criminal Court, on Monday, John Henry Yates, formerly secretary to the Great Eastern Steam-Ship Company, who pleaded guilty at the last session to two indictments charging him with forging dividend warrants and other instruments, and thereby defrauding the company of more than £40,000, was sentenced to ten years' penal servitude.—On Tuesday David Garnshy, who had been committed on charges of feloniously wounding his wife and mother-in-law, with intent to commit grievous bodily harm, was convicted of unlawfully wounding, and sentenced to twelve months' hard labour. A similar sentence was passed upon Yonghusband Christian, a stockbroker, who at the last session was convicted of having misappropriated some securities entrusted to him for safe keeping. Three men, named Larkins, Clifton, and Pearson, were placed upon their trial for having stolen and received a quantity of leather, the property of Sir William Palliser. Two of them pleaded guilty, and judgment was postponed until the case of the other prisoner was disposed of. The grand jury ignored the bill against Mrs. Bidwell, the wife of Austin Biron Bidwell, one of the Bank forgers, who was committed to take her trial for unlawfully endeavouring to conceal the birth of her child. Henry Hayes, who threw snuff in the eyes of an Edgware-road jeweller and then bolted with three of his diamond rings, was sentenced to five years' penal servitude, with forty lashes.—At Wednesday's sitting Larkins, Pearson, and Clifton were again placed at the bar, charged with having committed a robbery at Sir W. Palliser's, and, having been convicted, each of them was sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment, with hard labour. George Wilson, who had killed his son, ten years of age, by striking him on the head with a hatchet, was pronounced insane, and was ordered to be detained in safe custody during her Majesty's pleasure. Francis Hill, a sailor and a man of colour, was found guilty of the manslaughter of Charles Wilson, and was ordered to be kept in prison, with hard labour, for twelve months.

Two grocers and tea-dealers were prosecuted at Bow-street Police Court last Saturday by the Vestry of St. Martin for having sold, as unadulterated coffee, a mixture of chicory, sand, and coffee. The magistrate imposed a penalty of £10 and costs in each case.—At Marylebone, Mr. John Williamson, of the Westminster Coal Company, having offices at 38, Regent-street, was summoned before Mr. D'Eyncourt by Mr. F. Foot, of 16, Boscobel-gardens, Regent's Park, for selling him half a ton of coals for and as a sort that they really were not. Mr. D'Eyncourt remarked that the advertisement, read in an ordinary sense, must mean the best Silktone coal in the market. The defendant had not supplied Silktone at all, but only mere rubbish. He fined the defendant £5 and 30s. costs.—Several prosecutions of Birmingham tradesmen for the adulteration of tea were on Wednesday disposed of by the stipendiary magistrate for that borough.—At the Sheffield Police Court on Tuesday, Luke Dickinson, provision-dealer, Hoyland, was fined £5 and £8 3s. 6d. costs, in default two months' imprisonment, for selling lard adulterated to the extent of thirteen per cent with water.—A milkman was fined £15 at Dublin last Saturday for selling as milk a mixture consisting of ninety per cent of water and ten per cent of milk; the magistrate explaining that he had not imposed the full penalty of £20 because he wished to leave himself a margin of £5 to meet the case of any enterprising trader who might carry adulteration to a yet further pitch.

A charge of forgery, brought at the Mansion House, on Monday, against Herbert Templeman, led to the disclosure of a planned fraud on Messrs. Roberts, Lubbock, and Co. The accomplices were a clerk in the service of the firm, Templeman, an attorney, and two Frenchmen—Giraud and Asselin. A cheque for £1242 was drawn in the name of Major-General Morris, of Tiverton, and presented for payment to a Paris banker, through whom it was ultimately cashed. The prisoner was remanded.

An ex-constable of the V division, who cried and pleaded guilty when placed in the dock of Wandsworth Police Court, has been committed for trial on the charge of stealing two knives and a fork from a gentleman's house on his beat. The prisoner had just been released from Horseonger-lane Gaol, where he had been detained a month, in default of paying a fine of £4, for misconduct.—At the same court, on Tuesday, a hairdresser was fined in the mitigated penalty of £5 for having sold a box of Rowlands' Odonto without a license.

William Parker, at Gravel-lane, Wapping, cut the throats of his two children—a boy and a girl—on Sunday morning, and then went to the police station and gave himself into custody, taking with him the knife with which the crime was committed. It appears that he had been in the employ of Messrs. Knight and Sons, soapboilers and candle-makers, but for some months had wanted work and bread. He assigns as a reason for the murder utter destitution and repugnance to allow his children to become inmates of the workhouse. The loss of his wife, some time ago, seems to have preyed upon his mind. It came out in evidence that his landlady had fed the children during the greater part of the six weeks he had been out of work. A verdict of "Wilful murder" has been brought against him by a coroner's jury.

DISASTERS.

The hemp and tar warehouse of Messrs. Irving and Co., Hull, was burned down yesterday week.

There was an explosion of firedamp, yesterday week, at the Meshes Colliery, Wigan. There were seventy-three men and boys in the pit at the time, several of whom were brought to bank much burnt. Five persons were killed.

Several casualties occurred during the gale which prevailed on Saturday and Sunday. A large barque, named the Clyde, was wrecked at Bray Head, near Valentia, on Monday. Nine lives were lost and three saved. The vessel is a total wreck.—Six seamen have been drowned off Liverpool by the stranding of a brig on the Jordan Flats.—Early on Wednesday morning a Middleboro steamer, the Eureka, laden with pig iron, was run down by another steamer, the Ryhope. Her crew of sixteen persons had a very narrow escape; the vessel having foundered almost instantly.

Owing to a landslip of some magnitude, the Somerset Coal Canal, near Bath, has been drained for a length of three miles by a gap in the embankment measuring 50 ft. in width by 30 ft. in depth. One curious effect of the mishap has been the landing of large numbers of fish high and dry, thus affording an unexpected boon to the inhabitants.

A boiler at the Springfield Ironworks, M'Neil-street, Glasgow, belonging to Messrs. D. Cameron and Co., exploded, on Saturday morning, while steam was being got up in it. Two men and two boys who were in the engine-house were killed; and so great was the force of the explosion that the windows of dwelling houses a hundred yards off were blown in.

The Board of Trade has issued a circular to the chairmen of the various railway companies calling attention to Captain Tyler's report of the accidents which took place last year upon the lines in the United Kingdom, exhibiting a state of things which, it is believed, has not only been continued, but aggravated, during the present year. A large proportion of the casualties are held to be due to causes which are within the control of the companies, and they are warned that the present insecurity of travelling imposes upon them the grave responsibility of finding appropriate remedies for so great an evil. Attention is also drawn to the frequent unpunctuality of passenger-trains; to the inconvenience, vexation, and loss thus produced; and to the increase of the chances of accident brought about by this cause. The Government reserve their own liberty to consider at any time the expediency of legislation upon any part of this important subject.—A collision between two goods-trains took place, last Saturday morning, at Kirkconnel station on the Glasgow and South-Western Railway, which resulted in a great destruction of property. The driver of one of the trains is in custody, and has been lodged in Dumfries Gaol.—Early on Monday morning the mail-train from Birmingham to Leamington ran at full speed into the engine of a goods-train whilst shunting at Adderley Park station, about three miles from Birmingham. Fortunately there were no passengers in the mail—the guard and driver of which were, however, injured.—On Tuesday morning a special train, laden with nearly one hundred passengers for Sheffield, came into collision with two engines which were standing on the line of the Midland Railway, near Nottingham. Sixteen persons were injured, but none seriously.

BUDDHIST TEMPLE AT DARJEELING.

Four hundred miles north of Calcutta, in the picturesque and salubrious highlands of British Sikkim, at an elevation of 7000 ft. above the sea, and within sight of one of the loftiest summits of the Himalayas, is the seasonable resort of many Europeans of the civil or the military service, or engaged in mercantile pursuits, whose health has suffered from the sultry climate of Bengal. Darjeeling has many local attractions and advantages; but our purpose now is only to introduce two Engravings, from photographs by Mr. R. Phillips, a photographic artist there resident, which present to view some groups of characteristic figures in the Buddhist temple at Darjeeling, known by the name of "Sunga Seedoupling Goomba." The community of Buddhist priests or Lamas, who are in charge of the temple, are natives of Sikkim. In their hands may be seen the instruments used by them in their religious ceremonies.

The head priest, officiating, seated on the left in our first illustration, is named Cho Bombo Lama. He wears the sacred hat (uche pasha) and his under-garment of cloth-of-gold (tongha), with the holy beads (tinghah) which they all wear. The peculiarly-shaped outer garment, without sleeves, which is worn by nearly all, is called saime. In front of him are three instruments of their ritual, the small tum-tum (dhuru), the brass sanctifying instrument (doorchee), and the bell (tibbu).

Next him is seated the second priest (Cho Chutumba Lama), in whose hands are the cymbals and a short horn. In the centre of the group is a student, who is under instruction to become a Lama. Before him are the sacred writings (kunji); they consist of single sheets of paper printed on both sides, and usually kept together between carved covers. In the temple is a library of these books.

The remainder of the instruments in the foreground, taken in rotation, are the small praying-wheel (mannee), the long horns and the shell horns, the small human thighbone horn, partly covered with brass (kongdong); the large drum with a handle, and the drumstick.

Over the doorway is a small idol (tubbah), and on each side of it are small brass cups containing rice and oil. Standing in the verandah are two travelling Lamas (Dupcheeng), natives of Lassa, in Thibet; one wears a peculiar cap with a peak of hair (tomrah). In the verandah, on the left, is the large praying-wheel. It is composed of a central wooden axis, the top and bottom of which are visible. Around this axis, but concealed from view by the outer painted covering, is wound layer after layer of paper, printed with the sentence, "Om, mannee padmee, Ouhm," the literal sense of which is "Oh! the gem in the lotus—Amen!" The layers of paper on the axis are upwards of two feet in thickness. Above this revolving drum a bell is hung, and to the top of the drum a stick is fastened. When the wheel or drum has made one revolution the bell sounds, which announces that some millions of prayers which the drum contains have been offered up. For a short devotion the drum is turned simply by the hand, but for prayers of long duration a thong is attached to a crank at the bottom. The wheel is kept in continuous revolution while any religious ceremony is going on inside the temple. The outside of the drum is covered with painted canvas, on which are inscribed large mystic characters.

The interior of the temple, which, being very dark, cannot be seen in the photograph, is gaudily decorated and painted. The side walls are covered with figures of saints and gods. On the altar, which may be seen through the doorway, stand a number of brass lamps and seven cups full of water, besides a large vessel of holy water and a brush for sprinkling; also, a brazier for incense. Behind the altar are three large seated figures of brass. The centre figure is Gooroo Pemah, holding the doorchee in his right hand, and the lotus and jewel in his left. The figure to the left is Suthaya Tobah, and the one to the right is Seebah Meh.

When Mr. Phillips visited this temple the head priest was not to be seen. The other priests assured Mr. Phillips that he had not been seen or heard for nearly four months, being confined in a small room over the temple where he was supposed to be praying and conversing with their gods, his food being supplied to him through a trap-door.

All around the temple on the outside are flags on long poles (turjin) from 20 ft. to 40 ft. high. These flags extend nearly the whole length of the poles, but are only 3 ft. or 4 ft. wide; they are printed from top to bottom with the same prayer that is offered up on the wheel, coupled with the names of those of their followers who have lately died, and thus they are prayed for, as they say that "their names are being blown towards God by the wind."

THE EAST AFRICAN SLAVE TRADE.

The operations of H.M.S. Briton and H.M.S. Daphne on the east coast of Africa, for the suppression of the slave trade, under the treaty concluded this year by the negotiations of Sir Bartle Frere with the Sultan of Zanzibar, have been attended by a painful incident, which made it needful to inflict severe chastisement on the murderers of a British naval officer. Sub-Lieutenant Marcus M'Causland, of the Daphne, having been cruelly and treacherously slain, on September 15, by the people of Kiunga, a native village concerned in the slave trade, about forty miles south of Lamoo, it was resolved that an example should be made of the offending village. This service was executed on the 22nd, by armed boats' parties from the Briton and the Daphne, under the command of Lieutenant Arthur Phillpotts, of the former ship. Our illustration shows the scene of the burning village, with the sailors who had landed on the beach exchanging shots with the enemy behind the stockade and in the bush; the boats are lying a short distance from shore, and one of them has been assisting with the fire of a swivel gun or a rocket. The affair has been described in a former account. We are indebted to Lieutenant J. Fillowes, of the Briton, for the sketch we have used on this occasion. He writes to us on the 21st ult., from Zanzibar. In connection with the subject, it is satisfactory to observe that Dr. Kirk, the British Consul-General for East Africa, has lately visited most of the ports on that coast, and liberated several hundred negroes who were held as slaves by persons amenable to the British jurisdiction, traders from Bombay and others.

With reference to the notice of an illustration in our Extra Supplement which represents the interior of a ju-ju house or idol's temple at Bonny, the book there quoted, "Wanderings in West Africa, from Liverpool to Fernando Po," is mentioned as though it were a book written by Mr. R. L. Harries, the gentleman who has supplied most of our sketches engraved in this Extra Supplement. We understand that this book, published by Messrs. Tinsley Brothers, though it bears on the title page no other sign of its authorship than "By an F.R.G.S.," is really one of the many interesting and instructive works of Captain Richard Burton, R.N., late Consul at Fernando Po, and now Consul-General at Trieste. Captain Burton's other books on West Africa, "A Mission to Dahomey" and "Abbeokuta and the Cameroons," are very well known.

BUDDHIST PRIESTS AT DARJEELING, HIMALAYAS.

AN EAST AFRICAN SLAVE-TRADING VILLAGE DESTROYED BY THE BOATS OF H.M.S. BRITON AND DAPHNE.

SKETCHES IN JAPAN.

Our Special Artist lately in Japan, after visiting the famous sacred mountain Fusi-yama, went on to another called Oyama, which is less known to us. The name is explained: the syllabic prefix "O" means "great," and is used in an honorific sense; while "Yama" signifies "a mountain." Mr. Simpson thus describes a scene he beheld there:—

"Oyama is about 6000 ft. high, and is finely wooded, with temples on its sides, which are great places of pilgrimage. On the day of my visit I met a continuous stream of men, women, and children visiting the various shrines. At one of them I was struck with the number of puppy-dogs all over the place. Some were sleeping in the sun, others were romping about. I watched what was going on, when I saw that the visitors gave a man a small coin, and that he then threw the food on the ground, causing a playful rush of the young barkers. The food was boiled rice made into small balls, and no one seemed to go away without paying for some to be given to the puppies. I saw no full-grown dogs, and I could not make out where they got such a quantity of young ones—there may have been about thirty of them. It recalled the similar custom of feeding the pigeons in the mosque at Stamboul, and at St. Mark's, in Venice. This was a Buddhist temple at Oyama; and it is, no doubt, one of the manifestations of that tenderness for life and that kindness to all things living which was one of the leading doctrines taught by Sakya Muni. He himself set the example in his own life; in his alms-dish he begged each morning his day's food, but he never tasted any of it before midday, and then not before he had placed half of it for birds and beasts to eat.

"Oyama was first ascended by Mr. W. H. Smith, Captain Roberts, of the 9th Regiment, Lieutenant King, R.M.A., and Lieutenant Hawes, R.M.L.I., during the night of Nov. 23, 1866. The Japanese authorities had kept a guard of soldiers near the summit, who had orders to let no foreigners pass; so the first efforts of Englishmen to reach the top were stopped, and no woman was allowed to go to the summit. The temples on the peak are now left to go out of repair, and anyone may ascend. There is a Shintoo temple near the top, with three very large swords hanging up. The largest sword is about ten feet long; both it and the scabbard are of beautiful workmanship."

SKETCHES IN JAPAN: FEEDING PUPPY-DOGS AT THE BUDDHIST TEMPLE OF OYAMA.

DISCOVERIES IN NEW GUINEA.

A meeting of members of the Royal Geographical Society was held, on Monday, in the theatre of the University of London, Burlington-gardens—Sir Bartle Frere in the chair. The object of the meeting was to hear two papers read—one, by Captain J. Moresby, R.N., "On Recent Discoveries at the Eastern End of New Guinea," and the other, by the Rev. W. Wyatt Gill, "On Three Visits to New Guinea."

Mr. Clements R. Markham, one of the secretaries, read Captain Moresby's paper. The paper entered at much length into the configuration and aspect of the country, which the author described as not unlike that of Australia. The islands outside the coast were remarkable for their beauty and fertility, and reminded him of Jamaica. It produced most of the tropical plants in great abundance. The natives were friendly and hospitable. They were strictly honest in their dealings, although they might pilfer a little amongst themselves. Captain Moresby allowed the crew to mix with the natives, and on both sides the best conduct was observed, although the natives were not aware that they had arms superior to their own. There was no trace of religious worship amongst the copper-coloured natives. From all he saw of the people, the old idea that they were the most savage of all races must be abandoned. Captain Moresby's paper described the utensils used by the natives, and looked forward to a better future for them in consequence of their connection with England. The chairman expressed the sense of satisfaction with which the paper was received.

The chairman then called on the Rev. Mr. Gill, who had been for a long period engaged in missionary work on the coast of New Guinea. The Rev. Mr. Gill related his experience, which in general confirmed that of Captain Moresby. The natives were cannibals, and advised him to become one, a request with which, he need not say, he did not comply. They were very timid, and looked on white men as they might look on some wild beast. Mr. Gill exhibited some of the utensils used by the natives, and a bow and poisoned arrow such as they employ in their warfare, and concluded a very interesting sketch amid cheers.

After a brief discussion, in which Mr. McFarlane and others took part, the meeting was brought to a close by the usual vote of thanks to the chairman.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

Some extraordinary statements about a case of mistaken identity were made, on Wednesday, at the weekly meeting of the Shoreditch guardians. The clerk said that a few weeks ago an old man sat down on the doorstep of a coffee-shop in the parish and suddenly died. Some of the passers-by recognised him as a man who had been in the employment of the gas company, and nine or ten of the men in that service identified the body as that of their fellow-workman. A deputation of their number was appointed to wait on his wife, who, after listening to them for a short time, told them her husband was up stairs in bed. This turned out to be the fact. The body was removed to the workhouse mortuary, where it was identified by about fourteen of the officers as that of a pauper who had been in the workhouse from twelve to fifteen months, and intelligence of the death was sent to his daughters in Manchester. One of the sons-in-law came up and identified the body as that of his father-in-law, and expressed deep sorrow at the death. An inquest was held, at which the daughters attended and swore that the deceased was their father, and, after cutting off a lock of his hair, directed an undertaker to conduct the funeral, at which they attended as mourners. On their return home they related the circumstances connected with the death to some friends in Devonshire, who replied in the course of a fortnight that the old man was living there and in good health. The son-in-law wrote to the undertakers saying he did not wish to incur expense in burying a stranger. The clerk suggested that a reply should be sent expressing regret at the mistake, and hoping that it would not occur again.

The following details of the capture of the Virginus are given by the American correspondent of the Times in a letter dated the 7th inst.:—"The Cuban insurgent privateer Virginus, which has so long eluded the Spaniards and landed cargoes of contraband goods on the Cuban coast, has at length been captured. She nearly always sailed under the American flag, and had American papers, seeking refuge, when pursued, in the harbours of Aspinwall, or Kingston, Jamaica, where her American character was recognised and protection afforded. The hatred felt against this noted vessel by the Spaniards was most intense, and her capture became a national wish. In the latter part of October the Virginus, in carrying on her usual vocation, appeared on the south coast of Cuba for the purpose of loading a contraband cargo, but was surprised and had to sail away. News of her appearance was speedily transmitted to the Spanish authorities, and the gun-boat Tornado was sent in search of her. The gun-boat, after a short cruise, sighted her, on the afternoon of Oct. 31, and at once gave chase. The Virginus, as usual, headed for Jamaica, sailing away from Cuba as quickly as possible, and putting on all steam. She threw overboard several horses and part of her cargo to lighten her, and also burnt portions of her stores, but could not get away from the gun-boat. At ten in the evening, near the Jamaica coast, the Tornado overhauled her, and the Virginus surrendered, with all on board—the crew and passengers numbering 170."

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

NEW NOVELS AT ALL LIBRARIES.

IN THE CAMARGUE. By EMILY BOWLES. Crown 8vo, 7s. 6d.

A LONG SUMMER'S DAY. By M. C. M. SIMPSON. 2 vols.

GABRIEL DENVER. By OLIVER MADDOX BROWN. 7s. 6d.

LUNA: A Mere Love Story. By MARGARET C. HELMORE. 2 vols. SMITH, RIDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

HAYDN'S DICTIONARY OF DATES. In ONE SHILLING MONTHLY PARTS.

HAYDN'S DICTIONARY OF DATES. Parts I. and II. now ready. Price One Shilling.

HAYDN'S DICTIONARY OF DATES. In Sixteen One Shilling Parts. Part I. and II. now ready. "The most universal book of reference in a moderate compass that we know of in the English language."—The Times. London: E. Moxon, Son, and Co., 1, Amen-corner, Paternoster-row, E.C.

THE BERNSE OBERLAND. Twelve Scenes among its Peaks and Lakes. By ELIJAH WALTON, F.R.S., with Text by T. G. BONNEY, M.A. In One Handsome Volume (17 in. by 14 in.), 4s. 4s. For particulars, list of views, &c., see Prospectus. London: W. M. Thompson, 20, Cockspur-street, Pall-mall, S.W.

PLEASANT PAGES FOR YOUNG PEOPLE. By S. PROUT NEWCOMBE. Containing a Series of Moral Tales, Natural History Lessons, Object Lessons, Music, &c. In Six Volumes, 2s. 1s. (Vol. 1, 2s. 6d.). London: HUTCHESON and Sons, 7, Paternoster-square.

BY THE RIGHT REV. BISHOP OXFORD, D.D.

1. THOUGHTS FOR ADVENT. Square fcap 8vo, cloth, antique, 2s. post free.

2. A SIMPLE EXPOSITION OF THE PSALMS. Two vols., small crown 8vo, cloth, each 3s. 6d.

3. SHORT LECTURES ON THE GOSPELS. Vol. I., Advent to Easter. Fcap, 12th Thousand, large type, 2s. 6d. Vol. II., Easter to Advent. Fcap, 10th Thousand, large type, 2s. 6d. HATCHARDS, 187, Piccadilly, London.

Ready this day (One Shilling, No. 168).

THE CORNHILL MAGAZINE for DECEMBER, with Illustrations by Marcus Stone and George du Maurier.

Young Brev. (With an Illustration.) Book IV. I.—The Carlton Club. II.—Outward Bound. III.—"The George." IV.—"Good-bye, Sweetheart." V.—Mrs. Brown. VI.—Emigrants. VII.—A Marquis.

Historical Photographs of Old Rome. The Ashmole. My Only Love. Ladies as Elementary Schoolmistresses. Artists. Foreign Journalists of To-day.

Zelda's Fortune. (With an Illustration.) Book the Last. III.—The Knight of the Snow's Ear. IV.—The Hôtel de la Belle Étoile. V.—The Gates of Home. VI.—Claudia's New Studio. SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

Now ready, MRS. HENRY WOOD'S MAGAZINE.

THE ARGOSY, being the Extra CHRISTMAS NUMBER of the Magazine.

CONTENTS. 1. The Master of Greyladies. By the Author of "East Lynne." Illustrated by Mr. Ellen Edwards. 2. The Window Gardening. 3. The Gentian. 4. Mrs. Todthelby's Earrings. By John Ludlow. 5. Fra Angelico. 6. A Midnight Meeting. 7. One White Lie. 8. Mary, the Major's Daughter. By the Author of "East Lynne." Price One Shilling.

H. BENTLEY and Sons, 8, New Burlington-street, W.

MODES FOR THE WINTER SEASON.

BEETON'S YOUNG ENGLISHWOMAN, DECEMBER, 1873, price 6d., postage 1d., contains:—

1. A Beautifully Coloured Plate of the Latest Fashions. 2. Large-sized Pattern Sheet for Cutting Out a Lady's Waterproof Cloak. 3. Letters on Etiquette. 4. Captain Wolfson's Songs. 5. Winter Costumes, Needlework Patterns, &c. 6. Our Drawing-Room, &c. London: WARD, LOCK, and TYLER, Paternoster-row, E.C.

WINTER FASHIONS—BERLIN PATTERNS.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE for DECEMBER, 1873, price 1s., postage 3d., contains:—

1. A Charming Berlin Pattern, entitled "The Carnation Chair Seat." 2. A Handsome Coloured Plate of Paris Fashions. 3. A Full-sized Pattern Sheet for Cutting Out a Lady's Morning Dress. 4. Thrive Wedded and Never a Wife. 5. Our Household and Homes. 6. A Mass of Engravings of Fashion and Needlework. London: WARD, LOCK, and TYLER, Paternoster-row, E.C.

INDISPENSABLE TO MILLINERS AND DRESSMAKERS.

THE MILLINER AND DRESSMAKER AND WAREHOUSEMAN'S GAZETTE for DECEMBER, price 1s. 6d., postage 2d., contains:—

Five Coloured Plates of Fashions. Large-sized Diagram Sheet for Cutting Out several articles of Dress. Illustrations of New and Coming Fashions, a mass of Information for the Wholesale and Retail Houses. Subscriptions—Yearly, 20s.; half-yearly, 10s.; quarterly, 5s. DRESS and FASHION, DECEMBER, price 6d.; post-free, 7d. A. GOSWOLD and Son, London: 30, Henrietta-street, Covent-garden, W.C.; Paris: 92, Rue Richelieu.

NEW WORKS PUBLISHED by J. BARNARD and SON, Manufacturing Artists, Colourmen, Printers, and Publishers—London: 230, Oxford-street, W., and at all Artistic Repositories throughout the kingdom.

VITREMANIE.—The new Art of DECORATING WINDOWS, containing Full Instructions and Plates of all the Designs. Post-free, 1s. 2d. Anyone desirous of beautifying their homes should read this work.

A MANUAL OF PAINTING ON GLASS FOR THE MAGIC LANTERN. By P. GARNIER. Post-free, 1s. 2d. Contains all the requisite information for the use of Oil, Oxycalcium, or Oxylithium Lantherns.

HINTS ON ILLUMINATING, with an Essay on the Art of Ornamenting in Gold on Metals, the method of brilliantly producing the gilding and illuminating of the Middle Ages. By H. M. LUCIEN. Post-free, 1s. 2d.

DECORATIVE ART, as applied to the Ornamentation of Churches, Schools, &c.; with Original Designs and Practical Instructions. By W. R. HARRISON. Post-free, 1s. 2d.

"Useful to all who desire to decorate their rooms for festivals."

CHROMO PRINTED PICTURES (on the use of) for the MAGIC LANTERN. By S. T. PIKE. With full directions for making slides at a small cost. Post-free, 7d.

"A really useful work for clergymen and schoolmasters."

VITREMANIE.—Windows decorated in this beautiful Art by experienced Workmen, for Churches and Public Buildings. Plans and Estimates free at the Inventors', J. BARNARD and SON, London: 230, Oxford-street, W.

FORTUNE-TELLING BY CARDS, promised in the LADIES' TREASURY for NOVEMBER, but unobtainable omitted, will appear in the DECEMBER NUMBER; also "The Oracle in the Column of Fate." Price Ninepence. London: BARNES and Sons, 10, Paternoster-buildings.

CHRISTMAS FARE AND HOW TO COOK IT—Christmas Games and How to Play Them—Island of Capri (Illustrated)—Thirty Years Ago, A Tale—The Castle of Bismarck (Illustrated)—Church Decoration—Honiton Lace Designs—Four Fashion Plates, &c. See the LADIES' TREASURY for DECEMBER. Price Ninepence.

London: BARNES and Sons, 10, Paternoster-buildings.

PAMPHLET, 4 stamps, on the Use of the Portable Turkish Bath for Curing Gout, Rheumatism, Indigestion, &c. Apparatus complete, 4s.—Sole Agent, T. HAWLEY, 4, Blenheim-street, Bond-street, London.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

MISS BRADDON'S NEW NOVEL.

The New Novel, by the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret," &c. In 3 vols., at all Libraries.

LUCIUS DAVOREN.

MACMILLAN'S MAGAZINE, No. 170, for DECEMBER.

Price 1s. Contents of the Number.

1. "Galileo and Papal Infallibility." By Sedley Taylor.

2. "A Princess of Thule." By William Black, Author of "The Strange Adventures of a Phœnix." Concluded.

3. "The Religion of Goethe." By A. Schwarz.

4. "Mirage," and "After the Chinese." By G. A. Simcox.

5. "Lincolnshire Scenery and Character as Illustrated by Mr. Tennyson." By a Lincolnshire Rector.

6. "Crime, Criminals, Punishment." By Lord de Mauley.

7. "My Time, and What I've Done with It." By F. C. Burnand.

8. "Charity Electioneering." By Sir Charles Trevelyan.

9. "Spanish Life and Character During the Summer of 1872." Part II.

CADRE DAILY: An Irish Home Story of 1847-8, will commence in the JANUARY Number of "Macmillan's Magazine." MACMILLAN and Co., London.

Sold by all Booksellers, Newsagents, and at all Railway Stations.

GOOD WORDS. Edited by the Rev. DONALD MACLEOD, one of her Majesty's Chaplains.

THE NEW STORY, by the Author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," will begin immediately in GOOD WORDS. Sixpence Monthly. Illustrated. W. LUTHER and Co., 56, Ludgate-hill, London.

Now ready, FAMILY HERALD.

Price Sixpence, (Part 366) Post-free, 1s. halfpenny stamps.

The "Saturday Review" says:—"Its novels and tales are quite as well written as the best circulating-library stories."

The "Graphic" says:—"Those who like to have plenty for their money will find an immense amount of instruction and amusement in the Sixpenny Monthly Part of the 'Family Herald.'"

London: WILLIAM STEVENS, 42, Strand, W.C.

NEW WORK ON POINT-LACE MAKING. Price 2s. 6d.; per post, 3s. 6d.

FLOWERS IN POINT LACE. With Coloured Illustrations and Designs by R. SCOTT. London: W. BARNARD, 118, Edgware-road.

NEW WORK.—Cloth, pp. 120, 1s. 6d.; post-free, 20 stamps.

ON CONSTIPATION and HYPOCHONDRIASIS. With Cases. By RICHARD EPPS, M.D., M.B.C.S. London: JAMES EPPS, 170, Piccadilly; 48, Threadneedle-street.

Price 6s., free by post.

THE WOMAN'S GUIDE: Showing the Causes, Symptoms, and Homœopathic Treatment of the Diseases of Females and Children. By R. S. GUTTERIDGE, M.D. LEATH and Ross, 5, St. Paul's-churchyard; and 9, Vere-street, W.

Twenty-second Edition, 8vo, cloth, price 16s., post-free.

HOMŒOPATHIC DOMESTIC MEDICINE. By J. LAURIE, M.D. The most comprehensive guide for private families, Clergymen, and Emigrants, devoid of all technicalities. No medicines are prescribed without full directions for their selection and the doses to be administered, whether in the form of globules, pills, or tinctures.

A complete CHEST, comprising all the Medicines prescribed in the above work, in the form of globules, price 50s.; in pills or tinctures, price 60s.; Cases containing a selection of the Medicines in most common use, from 15s. See Prospectus, sent free.

An EPILOGUE of the above, price 5s., a guide to those wishing to commence this system in family practice. 12th Edition. A complete Chest, containing all the Medicines for this work, in the form of globules, price 30s.; in pills or tinctures, price 40s.

LEATH and Ross, 5, St. Paul's-churchyard; and 9, Vere-street, Oxford-st.

CORPULENCY AND ITS NEW DIETARY GUIDE. By A. W. MOORE, M.B.C.S. "The originator of the system."—Lancet. Price by post, 2s. 7d. VENMAN and Co., 20, Piccadilly, S.W.

Now ready, THE ILLUSTRATED PENNY ALMANACK for 1874.

containing Twelve Engravings of the Coasting Craft of All Nations, from the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS; Tables of Steam, Tides, and Licences; Ecclesiastical, Remarkable Events, Postage Regulations, and a great variety of Useful and Interesting Information. The Trade supplied by G. VICKERS, Angel-court (172), Strand and H. Williams, Warwick-lane, Paternoster-row, London.

HOW TO GET OUT OF DEBT.—MR. HOWE'S Pamphlet, written for the guidance of all persons in embarrassed circumstances, price 6d. per copy, 10s. per copy. Accountancy Offices, 49, Leicester-square.

THE LARGEST MANUFACTORY in the WORLD of VALENTINE and CHRISTMAS STATIONERY, 278, 279, and 280, Strand. Manufactory, Clare-court.

BALL-ROOM PROGRAMME FAN (Registered), Highly Perfumed. The London Lace Paper Company have just published the above. No Ball-Room complete without it. Price 6d. each; per post, 7d.—J. T. WOOD and CO., 178, 278, and 280, Strand; Manufactory, Clare-court, W.C.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, at HENRY RODRIGUES, 43, Piccadilly, London.

Dressing Bags, 4s. to 50s. Envelopes Boxes, 2s. to 50s. Envelopes Cases, 2s. to 50s. Jewellery Boxes, 10s. to 50s. Glove Boxes, 10s. to 50s. Handkerchief Boxes, 10s. to 50s. Fan Boxes, 2s. to 50s. Card Trays, 2s. to 50s.

Writing-Table Sets, of new and elegant designs, 2s. 6d. to 25s. Rodrigues's 10-guinea silver-plated Travelling Dressing Bag. Envelopes 10-guinea Ladies' Dressing Case, silver fitted. And a Large and Choice Assortment of English, Vienna, and Parisian Novelties, suitable for Presents, from 5s. to 50s.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS, at RODRIGUES'S, the new make, with Patent Leather Guards, Four Portraits on a Page. Interviewed for Vignettes and Cabinet Portraits, from 10s. 6d. to 40s. Presentation and Regimental Albums—4s. Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES'S MONOGRAMS, CRESTS, and ADDRESSES designed, and Steel Dies engraved as seals, &c. Paper and Envelopes stamped in colour relief and brilliantly illuminated in gold, silver, and colours—4s. Piccadilly, London, W.

VISING-CARDS, at H. RODRIGUES'S. A Card-plate elegantly engraved and 100 superlative cards printed for 4s. 6d. Ball Programmes and Bills of Fare arranged and printed in the latest fashion—4s. Piccadilly, W.

BALL PROGRAMMES at RODRIGUES'S. Ball Programmes of novel and beautiful designs, arranged, printed, and stamped in the latest fashion. Bills of Fare, Guest-Cards, and Invitations in great variety. 4s. Piccadilly, London.

MACMICHAEL'S NOVELTIES in RAISED RUSTIC MONOGRAMS and Ladies' Christian Names. Five guinea thick card and 100 Envelopes stamped in four colours, with Christian name, or Monogram of two or three initials in raised rustic letters, for 5s. Specimens free.—MacMichael, Stationer to the Queen, 207, King's-road, S.W.; 42, South Audley-st., W.

PHOTOGRAPHY.—Anyone can take good Photographs with DUBRON'S Patent Apparatus. No previous knowledge required. No dark room wanted. Complete and portable apparatus, from 2s. Book of Instruction, four stamps per post.—LECHETTER, BARRE, and CO., 60, Regent-st., London.

LACROIX'S COLOURS for PAINTING on PORCELAIN, in Tubes, like oil colours, and ready for immediate use.—LECHETTER, BARRE, and CO., 60, Regent-st., London. Lists of prices on application.

LANDSEER'S BOLTON ABBEY. Beautiful Engraving, 24 by 18, free by post, 4s.; Proofs, 5s. Largest Set of Engravings, Engravings, and Frames. GEO. REES, 41, 42, 43, Russell-street (opposite Drury-lane Theatre).

DON CARLOS STAMPS, issued by Don Carlos, with his Portrait, 3s. 6d. each. Printed Catalogue of Stamps, 2d. each. The London Stamp Album, 1s. 6d. post-free. W. LINCOLN, 230, High Holborn, London.

NEW MUSIC.

MUSICAL PRESENTS for the NEW YEAR.

YEAR—High-class Music for Amateurs, Students, and others. To be had gratis and post-free, a LIST of 400 CLASSICAL Works, bound up, at greatly reduced prices. Published only by ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

STANDARD BOOKS for the MUSICAL LIBRARY.—Hopkins and Rimbault—History and Construction of the Organ. Second Edition, enlarged to 750 pp., 21 1/2s. 6d. The only authority upon this subject published in this country.

Mr. Rimbault—Early English Organ Builders. 3s. 6d.

Mr. Rimbault—The Piano for its History, Construction, &c. With nearly 500 illustrations. Reprinted from 51 1/2s. to 21 1/2s. 6d. Profusely illustrated with Woodcuts and Diagrams.

Poyce's Cathedral Music. New Edition. Edited by Joseph Warren. Three vols., extra fello. Reduced price, 21s. 6d. Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

LET THE HILLS RESOUND. National Anthem. Words by T. H. P. Du Ternois. Music by HENRY LICHARDS. "The second great success of Mr. Brinley Poyce's Graphic." 3s.; free by post, 1s. stamped. Class Copy, 1s. 6d. Vols. post-free for 10s. stamps. LONDON: R. COCKS and Co.

SONGS of RISING POPULARITY, post-free in stamps at half price.

The Old Sweet Story (M. A Rose in Heaven, in F and G). Libretto, 4s. (F. A. B.) 4s. each. Windy Shall I Sing to Thee? (Pinsuti). 3s.

In the Hills Resound (B. In Shadow Land (Pinsuti). 3s. Village Bells (Anne Fricker). 3s. The Duke's (Pinsuti). 3s. The Duke's (Pinsuti). 3s. The Duke's (Pinsuti). 3s.

London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co.

BURY THY SORROW. New Sacred Song. Poetry from "The Shadow of the Rock." Music by Miss M. LINDSAY (Mrs. J. W. Bliss). 3s.

LOST IN THE WILDERNESS. New Sacred Song. Words by Ben Franklin Langford. Music by FRANZ ABT. 3s.

THE HILLS OF LIGHT. New Sacred Song. Words by the Rev. E. Dudley Jackson. Music by F. ABT. Composer of the admired songs "A Rose in Heaven," "O Ye Tears," "Kathleen Aroon," "The Duckoo," "When the Swallows Return Home," &c. 3s. All sheet music half price, post-free, in stamps.

London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

LYNETTE'S POPULAR SONGS, all post-free at half price in stamps.

ONLY A YEAR AGO. Words by G. J. Whyte-Melville. 3s. HER MAGNANIMOUS ME BY J. H. EWING. 3s. London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co.

ALFRED'S ROSEN'S NEW SONGS.

BRINGING AT SUNSET. Poetry by Miss Haverall. 3s. AT SEA. Poetry by Ros. 3s. BEHIND THE GARDEN GATE. Words by T. S. Wilson. 3s. THE WHITE HORSE. Poetry by J. H. Mackay. 3s. KUNST FANCIES. Poetry by Charles Mackay. 3s. All post-free at half price in stamps.—London: Sole Publishers, ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street. Order of all Music-sellers.

THE RAFT. New Song. By CIRO PINO. "Contralto will hail this highly dramatic and forcible song as a boon. It is rare that anything of such importance is produced for this voice."—Queen. Sent for 2s. DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

POPULAR SONGS by W. C. LEVEY. The May Song, sung by The Merry Month of May. 3s. The King and the Beggar-Maid. Sent for 2s. DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

ABSENCE AND RETURN. FRANZ ABT'S New Song. "One of Franz Abt's latest and most taking compositions."—The Graphic, Oct. 25. Sent for 2s. DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

UNDER THE MISTLETOE. Juvenile Quadrille on Popular Melodies, by CHARLES GODFREY. "Very pretty and very easy; just the thing for juvenile players. The illustrated title-page is exceedingly good."—Orchestra. Sent for 2s.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

WHEN THE BAINRINES ARE ASLEEP. New Song. By Lady BAKER. "This is more than charming; it is a highly meritorious composition, and will not fail to please wherever it is heard."—Queen, July 27. Sent for 2s. DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

THE ANGEL AT THE WINDOW. By BERTHOLD TOURS. This much-admired new Song may be had in B flat, for soprano or tenor; also in C for contralto or baritone. Sent for 2s.—DUFF and STEWART, 147, Oxford-street.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIANO PIECES.

Si e wore a wreath of roses. Sweet Home. Non me voglio. Rochelle. Mont Blanc. Novaro. LENA. Each post-free 15 stamps. London: J. WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, W.; and 123, Cheapside.

THE BOY AND THE BROOK. New Song. By J. L. HATTON; the Words by Longfellow. "One of Mr. Hatton's best compositions, and must become popular." Price 4s.; sent free for 54 stamps. LASSBOND and Son, 2, Princes-street, Oxford-circuit.

THEMSELIEDER (Songs of the Thames) WALTZES. By JOSEF ENGEL. Nuremberg. The above Waltzes, performed with such great success by the composer at the Promenade Concerts, Covent Garden, and dedicated by special permission to H.R.H. the Princess of Wales, are now ready, price 4s.; post-free half price.—A. HAMMOND and Co., 5, Vigo-street, W.

COULON'S HANDBOOK OF DANCING. The new Edition of this celebrated Treatise is now ready, and is by far the most complete Work on the subject, containing 100 pages of Letterpress and upwards of thirty Woodcuts and Diagrams. Price 1s. A. HAMMOND and Co., 5, Vigo-street, W.

MUSICAL BOX DEPOT for NICOLE FRERES' celebrated Instruments. A very choice selection of Boxes, playing the most popular Airs, of the Times and Prices gratis and post-free—11 and 13, Cornhill, London.

MUSICAL BOX DEPOT, 22, Ludgate-hill, London.—Nicole's celebrated Musical Boxes, playing best secular and sacred music. Prices 4s. to 120s. Sunflowers from 18s. to 60s. Largest Stock in London. Catalogues gratis and post-free.—Apply to WALKER and McCULLOCH, as above.

SELF-SUPPORT FOR THE BLIND.
ROYAL NORMAL COLLEGE and ACADEMY OF MUSIC FOR THE BLIND, Upper Norwood.
 PATRON—HER MAJESTY THE QUEEN.
 PRESIDENT—The Marquis of Westminster, K.G.
 TRUSTEES—The Right Hon. the Earl of Shaftesbury, K.G.; the Right Hon. the Earl of Lichfield; George Moore, Esq.;
 W. H. Smith, Esq., M.P.
 CHAIRMAN OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE—The Hon. William Ashley.
 CHAIRMAN OF THE MUSICAL COMMITTEE—S. W. Stenhouse Bennett, Mus. D., D.C.L.

The object of the College is to qualify the youthful Blind, who have the requisite talent, to support themselves by various pursuits, especially as Organists, Teachers, and Pianoforte-Tuners.
 FUNDS are URGENTLY REQUIRED for current expenses and to erect necessary School Buildings.
 Donations and Annual Subscriptions will be thankfully received by the Treasurer, Sir Rutherford Alcock, K.C.B., 14, Great Queen-street, Westminster; and by the Bankers, Messrs. Hanson, Bonavia, and Co., and Messrs. Barings, Messrs. and Co. Further information will be gladly furnished by the Hon. Secretaries, C. H. Chambers, Esq., and Captain C. C. FitzRoy, 28, Mount-street, Grosvenor-square; and by the Principals of the College, P. J. Campbell, Esq.
 The College is close to the Crystal Palace Station, and is open to inspection daily.

NORTH LONDON or UNIVERSITY COLLEGE HOSPITAL.—ASSISTANCE IS URGENTLY NEEDED to meet current expenses, owing to the high price of provisions, fuel, and other hospital requisites. The reliable annual income is much below the ordinary expenditure. DONATIONS will be thankfully received by Edward Rufford, Esq., Treasurer, 19, Chester-terrace, Regent's Park, and at the Hospital.
 HENRY J. KELLY, R.N., Secretary.

MALVERN COLLEGE.
 President and Visitor, the LORD BISHOP OF WORCESTER.
 Head Master, the Rev. ARTHUR FABER, M.A., late Fellow and Tutor of New College, Oxford.
 There are TWO DEPARTMENTS—the CLASSICAL and the MODERN. Pupils are Bachelors for the Universities, the Civil and Military Examinations, and the Professions.
 There is a LOWER SCHOOL preparatory to either department, a Gymnasium, &c.
 There are five Boarding Houses within the college grounds, occupied by the Head Master and four of his resident staff.
 Board and Tuition under fourteen, £80; over fourteen, £90. For non-boarders an extra fee of £5. Special advantages for Sons of Clergymen and Home Boarders.
 For further information, apply to the Head Master.
 The next Term will begin on Monday, Jan. 28.

SCHOLARSHIPS and EXHIBITIONS.
 An EXAMINATION will be held at MALVERN COLLEGE on DEC. 19 and 20, for the award of FIVE HOUSE SCHOLAR-SHIPS of £80 and FIVE EXHIBITIONS of £50. The awards will be for one or two years, according to merit, and to either Classical or Mathematical Candidates.
 For particulars apply to the Head Master.

NICE.—HOTEL DES ANGLAIS.—A First-
 Class Hotel, facing the sea, and under English Management.
 B. BAKER, Esq., Secretary.
 80, Coleman-street, London, E.C.

DISEASES OF WOMEN Specially Treated at the BURGESS HOME, BOLTON HOUSE, Clapham-road, Surrey, conducted as a Private Hospital, and ensuring to Patients Medical Supervision and Appliances such as cannot be secured at their own residences. Physician, David Jones, M.D. Consultations Daily at town residence, 15, Welbeck-street, Cavendish-square, from eleven till one, or by letter inclosing fee.

WRITING, BOOKKEEPING, &c.
 Persons of any Age, however bad their writing, may in eight easy lessons acquire permanently an elegant and flowing style of penmanship, adapted either to professional pursuits or private correspondence. Bookkeeping by double entry, as practised in the Government, Banking, and other trades; Arithmetic, Shorthand, &c.—Apply to Mr. W. Smart, at his Sole Institution, 77a, Quadrant, Regent-street. West of England Insurance Agency.

FINANCIAL DIFFICULTIES Privately
 Arranged in Town or Country. Persons in Embarrassed Circumstances may address confidential communications to Mr. H. HOWSE, 49, Leicester-square.

MUSICAL BOXES, 12s. 6d. to £50.
 Bird Organs, for teaching birds to sing, £1 1s. Barrel Organs, 5s. 6d. to 25s. 6d. Catalogue 4 stamps.
 Old Musical Boxes taken in exchange.
 MILLIKIN and LAWLEY, 168, Strand.

ALUMINUM WATCHES, £1 1s. to £1 10s.
 £1 1s., £2 2s. Keyless Watches, £2 2s. to £4 4s. Marvellous Timekeepers, machine-made. Small sizes for ladies, exquisite little gems. Illustrations, 4 stamps. Highly recommended for India and the Colonies.—MILLIKIN and LAWLEY, 168, Strand.

MAGIC LANTERN, 7s. 6d.—Includes 36
 Pictures illustrating "Gulliver's Travels." Larger Sizes,
 10s. 6d. to £1 1s. Illustrated Catalogue of Lanterns and 4000
 Slides, 4 stamps.—MILLIKIN and LAWLEY, 168, Strand.

LECTURES for the MAGIC LANTERN.
 Fairy Tales, Travels, Adventures, Hymns, Sermons, Fables.
 Astronomy, &c. Eighty-one Lectures, beautifully illustrated, including Catalogue of Lanterns and 4000 Slides, post-free, 1s. 9d.
 Catalogue only, 4 stamps.—MILLIKIN and LAWLEY, 168, Strand.

BOX OF CONJURING TRICKS, 5s. 6d.
 Contains "Vanishing Jack," "Secret Purse," "Magic Bowls," "Vanishing Ball," "String Trick," "Secret Money-Box," "Sewing Trick," "Wand," "Illustrated Instruction Book." Larger sets, 7s. 6d. to £2 2s. New Illustrated Catalogue of Conjuror's Tricks, six stamps.—MILLIKIN and LAWLEY, 168, Strand.

AUTOTYPE GRAND FINE-ART GALLERY.—ON VIEW, AUTOTYPE FACSIMILES of the Oxford Drawings, Louvre Pictures, and Ancient and Modern Masters. Christmas subjects.
 36, Rathbone-place (next to Winsor and Newton's).

SCRAPS for SCREENS, SCRAP-BOOKS,
 &c.—Flowers, Figures, Landscapes, Animals, &c., in great variety, from 1s. per sheet; or one dozen assorted, 10s. 6d.
 London: W. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road.

WHITE WOOD ARTICLES for PAINTING, FERN-PRINTING, and DECALCOMANIE.
 Hand-Screens, Book-Covers, Boxes, &c. Priced Lists on application.
 W. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London.

WALKER'S CRYSTAL-CASE WATCHES.
 PRIZE MEDALS—LONDON, 1862; PARIS, 1867.
 68, CORNHILL; 230, REGENT-STREET; and 78, STRAND.
 SILVER WATCHES, from £3 5s. GOLD, from £8 6s.
 An extensive Stock of high-class Repeating, Chronometer, Centre Seconds, and Chronograph Watches always on hand. Price-List sent free.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.—JOHN
 JOSEPH MECHI has one of the largest Stocks in London of Articles expressly suited for CHRISTMAS, NEW YEAR, WED-DING, BIRTHDAY, or COMPLIMENTARY PRESENTS, and at prices suited to the requirements of all. It would be impossible to give a list of all the articles submitted to view in his magnificent Show-Room (55 yards long), but a visit is respectfully solicited.
 Catalogues post-free.—112, Regent-street, W.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.
 ASKER and SHERWIN,
 81, Strand; and 69, Oxford-street.

NOVELTIES from PARIS and VIENNA.
 ASKER and SHERWIN,
 81, Strand; and 69, Oxford-street.

CATALOGUE of PRESENTS,
 Beautifully Illustrated,
 post-free.
 ASKER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, W.C.; and 69, Oxford-street, W.

PERRY and CO.'S PATENT EVERLASTING INSTANTANEOUS require only to be filled with cold water, and in five minutes they give good ink. No. 1, 2s. No. 2, large, 3s. 6d.; No. 3, with saucer, 5s. Wholesale—37, Red Lion-square; 3, Cheap-side.

PERRY and CO.'S NEW INDIAN RUBBER PENS.
 As soft and more durable than the quill. A sample box post-free
 (no Shilling). Sold by Stationers. Wholesale—37, Red Lion-square;
 3, Cheap-side; and 35, Strand.

PERRY and CO.'S
 ADAMANTINE WHEEL
 Co's Glass better than the diamond. Price 1s. 6d.; post-free, 1s. 7d. Wholesale—37, Red Lion-square; 3, Cheap-side; and 35, Strand.

THE PALM AL L.
 This RESTAURANT is removed to more spacious and commodious premises,
 14, Regent-street, Waterloo-place (Embracing the late Gallery of Illustration, which is now available for Regiments' Dinners and similar parties).
 Entrance to Private Rooms in Carlton-street, adjacent.
 Open for Suppers, as before, under an exemption license.

MAPPIN BROTHERS, Manufacturers
 of
 SILVER PLATE
 Tea and Coffee Services.
 Tea Trays and Waiters.
 Spoons and Forks.
 Dishes and Dish Covers.
 Epergnes, Fruit Stands.
 &c., &c.
 CUTLERY.
 Ivory Table Knives.
 Dessert Knives and Forks.
 Fish do. do.
 Fish Carvers.
 Canteens of Cutlery.
 &c., &c.
 The Stock they keep in London, at 67 and 68, King William-street, London Bridge, also at 222, Regent-street, W., is very large and well assorted, being all of first-class quality and design. It is sent direct from their own Works, at Bakers'-hill, in Sheffield. Illustrated Catalogues sent free by post.
 Address 67 and 68, King William-street, London Bridge; or, 222,
 Regent-street, W.
 Established A.D. 1810 at Sheffield.

PLATE—GOLDSMITHS' ALLIANCE.
 Limited, Manufacturing Silversmiths, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London (opposite the Bank). The best wrought SILVER SPOONS and FORKS, fiddle pattern, 7s. 4d. per ounce; Queen's pattern,
 7s. 6d. per ounce. Many other patterns, plain and ornamented.
 Fiddle Pattern. OZ. 6 s. d. 12 Table Spoons 30 11 0 12 Table Spoons 30 11 0 12
 12 Dessert Ditto 20 7 6 12 Dessert Ditto 20 7 6 12
 12 Table Forks 20 11 0 12 Table Forks 20 11 0 12
 12 Dessert Ditto 20 7 6 12 Dessert Ditto 20 7 6 12
 12 Gravy Spoons 10 13 4 12 Gravy Spoons 10 13 4 12
 1 Soup Ladle 10 13 4 1 Soup Ladle 10 13 4 12
 1 Sauce Ditto 10 13 4 1 Sauce Ditto 10 13 4 12
 4 Salt Spoons (gilt) 10 13 4 4 Salt Spoons (gilt) 10 13 4 12
 2 Tea Spoons 10 13 4 2 Tea Spoons 10 13 4 12
 1 Pair Sugar Tongs 0 15 0 1 Pair Sugar Tongs 0 15 0 12
 A Pamphlet, illustrated with 300 Engravings, containing the prices of Tea and Coffee Services, and other articles required in furnishing, gratis and sent free on application.
 For the use of committees, a work has been published, with large lithographic drawings, of plate kept ready for presentation.

SECONDHAND SILVER.—An Assortment of Tea and Coffee Services, from £30; Tea Services, from £15; Teapots, 47 7s.; Cruet Frames, 42 6s.; 1 Waiters, 43;
 Cream Jugs, 30s. An assortment of Spoons and Forks, 43;
 G. A. GODWIN, 304, High Holborn, London. Established 1801.

ELECTRO-SILVER PLATE and CUTLERY.
 DEANE and CO.'S Catalogue, with Engravings, post-free.
 Table Knives, ivory, 10s. 2s. 6d. Fruit Stands, 3s. 4s. 5s. 6s.
 Dessert Knives, ivory, 10s. 2s. 6d. Dish Covers, 42 to £10 10s.
 Carvers, joint, ivory, 6s. 8d. Corner Dishes, £3, £10, £13 10s.
 Electro Spoons, table, 2s. 6d. to 4s. Stands, 18s. 3s. 6s. 6s.
 Electro Spoons, dessert, 17s. 6d. Liqueur Frames, 4s. 5s. 7s.
 Electro Forks, table, 2s. 6d. to 4s. Claret Jugs, 27s. 3s. 3s.
 Electro Forks, dessert, 17s. 6d. to 3s. Tea and Coffee Sets, 70s. to £24.
 Spoon Warmers, 19s. 2s. 6d. Fish Carvers, 10s. 2s. 6d. to 3s. 6d.
 Fish Knives and Forks, 8s. 12s. Waiters, 22s. 27s. 50s.
 Plated Desserts, ivory, 50s. 6s. Biscuit Boxes, 2s. 6s. 6s.
 A discount of 5 per cent for cash payments of £2 and upwards.
 Deane and Co., 45, King William-street, London Bridge. A.D. 1700.

SPOONS and FORKS.—SLACK'S SILVER
 ELECTRO-PLATE is a coating of sterling Silver over Nickel;
 the fact of twenty years' test is ample proof of its durability.
 Table Spoons or Forks, 30s. and 32s. per dozen; Dessert, 2s. and 3s.; Tea, 12s. and 15s. Catalogues gratis. Orders above £2 carriage-free.—Richard and John Slack, 335, Strand.

GASOLIERS, in Crystal, Glass, Ormolu, or Bronze, Medieval Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures.
 D. HULFITT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn.

CHUBB'S PATENT DETECTOR LOCKS,
 Fire and Thief Resisting Safes, and Street-Door Latches.
 Illustrated Price-List sent free.
 Chubb and Sons, 87, 88, Pall-mall-churchyard, London; Manchester, Liverpool, and Wolverhampton.

LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO.,
 71, 73, 75, and 81, Bromley-road, COV-ENTRY. FURNISHERS (Established 1810). Deliver all Country Orders
 Free, regardless of distance.

LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO.'S NEW ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, with 600 Designs, forwarded gratis, on application.—71, 73, 75, and 81, Brompton-road, London.

PURE WATER.—The Last Improvement.
 Dr. Owen says:—"The SELF-CLEANING CHARCOAL
 FILTER, patented by the celebrated LIPSICOMBE, of Temple-bar, is the only one that removes the disgusting sewage found in cistern water."

COLT'S NEW BREECH-LOADING
 LARGE-BORE DERINGER PISTOL can be carried in the waistcoat pocket. Shoots accurately, and with great force. Price
 New supply of superior Cartridges, Colt's New Breech-Loading
 Central-Fire Revolvers have the Best Cartridge.
 Address Colt's Firearms Company, 14, Pall-mall, London.

WEIR'S 55s. SEWING-MACHINE,
 Improved and Patented (Price Medals), Works by Hand or Foot. Five years' guarantee. Free trial allowed.
 Weir's old pattern 55s. Machine is now sold as "The Globe" Family Sewing-Machine.
 Reduced Price, Reduced Price, Reduced Price.
 Illustrated Price-List and Nominations sent free.
 Jas. G. Weir, 2, Carlisle-street, Soho-square, London.

NOTICE.—VIENNA EXHIBITION.
 TWO FIRST-PRIZE MEDALS
 have been awarded
 THE LITTLE WANDER SEWING-MACHINE, for its superiority over all others.
 Vide "London Gazette," Aug. 26, 1873.
 Complete, £4 4s.
 Price lists and all information free.
 Chief Office: 4, Great Portland-street, London, W.
 Branch Office: 75, East-street, Brighton.

GLENFIELD THREAD.
 This beautiful Thread is strongly recommended for Hand and Machine Use.
 It cannot be surpassed for strength, smoothness, and beauty of finish.
 Done up in Beautiful Boxes, suitable for a Christmas Gift, price Three Shillings each.

Ask your Draper to procure you a Princess or Matchless Box—be can be supplied by any of the following Wholesale Houses:
 Arthur and Co., Glasgow; Fore-Street Company, Pawson and Co.,
 Foster, Porter, and Co., and Ward, Start, and Sharp, London.

DON'T BEAT YOUR CARPETS; have them thoroughly cleaned and colours revived. Price 4d.
 &c. per yard. Bed and Mattress Purifiers METROPOLITAN STEAM DYEING and BLEACHING COMPANY, 472, New Oxford-street; and 17, Wharf-road, City-road.

SILK DRESSES.—5s. 6d. and 6s. 6d. are now our only prices for DYING or CLEANING any size or quality. METROPOLITAN STEAM BLEACHING and DYEING COMPANY.

FADED CURTAINS DYED equal to new,
 in a few days, at a moderate charge. Price-List sent METROPOLITAN STEAM DYEING and BLEACHING COM-
 PANY, 17, Wharf-road, City-road; and 472, New Oxford-street.

WATER CUSHIONS for INVALIDS
 (HOOPER'S), affording instant relief from pressure, and effectually preventing bed-sores by their ease, softness, and elasticity.
 Illustrated price-list free by post.—Hooper, Manufacturer of Water Mattresses and Water Cushions to the Queen, 7, Pall-mall West, S.W.;
 and at 55, Grosvenor-street, W.

TO MOTHERS, NURSES, and INVALIDS
 ELASTIC SILK ABDOMINAL SUPPORTERS, of superior
 construction, for Debility, Corpulency, &c. Directions for Self Measurement and prices by post, free.—BLAK, 196, Oxford-street.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
 CLARK'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is so granted to cleanse the blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For scrofula, scurvy, skin and blood diseases its effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 3s. 6d.; and in Cases of Six Bottles, 11s. 6d.; of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 27 or 123 stamps by G. Proprietor, F. J. Clarke, Chemist, Lincoln.

CASHMERE HATS for LADIES.
 Registered. "The Novelty of the Season."
 JAYS.
 "Some of the black Hats ornamented with the new drooping feathers are eminently picturesque."—The Queen.

FRANCE.—26 16s. 6d.—The Political Manufactured France has had the effect of reducing the prices of Manufactured SILK, and Messrs. JAYS are glad to announce they can now sell a Fashionable BLACK SILK COSTUME for 64s.
 JAYS.

£2 12s. 6d. each.—Fashionably Made-up Winter BLACK STUFF COSTUMES, in quantities and trimmed after models from the best houses in Paris, 21s. each.
 JAYS.

FURS.—"If the prognostications of weather prophets should be realised by an unusually severe winter, it will be well for those who may be furnished with a resistance to the cold."—Daily Press.
 Messrs. JAYS have a very superior Stock of FURS, and also Mantles trimmed with Fur, for Mourning and Ordinary Costume, which they invite their Patrons to inspect, as early purchasers will secure the best advantages, both in selection and price.
 JAYS.

SUDDEN MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY are always provided with experienced dressmakers and milliners, ready to travel to any part of the kingdom, free of expense to purchasers, when the emergencies of sudden or unexpected mourning require the immediate execution of mourning orders. They take with them dresses, bonnets, and millinery, besides materials, at 1s. per yard and upwards from the piece, all marked in plain figures, and the same price as if purchased at the London General Mourning Warehouse, in Regent-street. Reasonable estimates are also given for household mourning, at a great saving to large or small families.
 JAYS.
 THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
 243, 245, 247, 249, and 251, Regent-street, W.

VIENNA EXHIBITION.
 GASK and GASK NOW OFFERING for SALE the whole of their extensive PURCHASES in the VIENNA EXHIBITION, comprising a great part of the superb SILKS, Velvets, Satins, Costumes, Dress Fabrics, Mantles, Furs, Bronzes, Gloves, &c., shown by the first manufacturers of France, Lyons, Austria, Germany,
 Italy, India, Turkey, &c. Amongst others:
 Million et Lervier, Lyons. P. Gautier, Lyons.
 Blumet et Cie., Austria. Brioletti, Gatti et Cie., Italy.
 Brunet et Lecomte, Lyons. Victorini, Hemi, Austria.
 Burdon et Rittion, Lyons. Biot et Drouard, Paris.
 Lonnat et Cie., Lyons. Franz Birgman, Austria.
 Doyon et Cie., Paris. F. Marzinger, Austria.
 Clemeus Lux, Vienna. Kuhlitz et Cie., Austria.
 Kustin et Cie., Vienna. Koch et Cie., Italy.
 Brissan et Agnes, Lyons. Krich et Schivirin, Austria.
 Duvallier et Cie., Lyons. Wiehrill et Cie., Austria.
 Faye et Sievenon, Lyons. These Goods, having been manufactured for exhibition, are of the highest character, and, having been sold at 33 per cent to 50 per cent from cost prices, will be sold very cheap.
 Patterns of the Silks and Dress Fabrics will be sent to the Country.
 Terms of Sale.—All Goods marked in plain figures, at the lowest price, for ready money.
 58 to 62, Oxford-street; and 1 to 5, Wells-street.

HENRY GLAVE'S
 CHEAP LYONS SILKS.
 A good serviceable Black SILK,
 14 yards, wide width, for £2 1s. 5d.
 Black Draps de Paris, very rich,
 14 yards for £2 1s. 5d.
 Magnificent Cachemere de Lyons,
 14 yards for £3 10s. 10d.
 Superior Draps d'Italie,
 14 yards for £4 2s. 10d.
 Patterns free.—325 to 337, New Oxford-street.

HENRY GLAVE'S
 NEW AUTUMN DRESSES.
 French Gowns, 7 1/2, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100, 101, 102, 103, 104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 114, 115, 116, 117, 118, 119, 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 133, 134, 135, 136, 137, 138, 139, 140, 141, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 148, 149, 150, 151, 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 157, 158, 159, 160, 161, 162, 163, 164, 165, 166, 167, 168, 169, 170, 171, 172, 173, 174, 175, 176, 177, 178, 179, 180, 181, 182, 183, 184, 185, 186, 187, 188, 189, 190, 191, 192, 193, 194, 195, 196, 197, 198, 199, 200, 201, 202, 203, 204, 205, 206, 207, 208, 209, 210, 211, 212, 213, 214, 215, 216, 217, 218, 219, 220, 221, 222, 223, 224, 225, 226, 227, 228, 229, 230, 231, 232, 233, 234, 235, 236, 237, 238, 239, 240, 241, 242, 243, 244, 245, 246, 247, 248, 249, 250, 251, 252, 253, 254, 255, 256, 257, 258, 259, 260, 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 266, 267, 268, 269, 270, 271, 272, 273, 274, 275, 276, 277, 278, 279, 280, 281, 282, 283, 284, 285, 286, 287, 288, 289, 290, 291, 292, 293, 294, 295, 296, 297, 298, 299, 300, 301, 302, 303, 304, 305, 306, 307, 308, 309, 310, 311, 312, 313, 314, 315, 316, 317, 318, 319, 320, 321, 322, 323, 324, 325, 326, 327, 328, 329, 330, 331, 332, 333, 334, 335, 336, 337, 338, 339, 340, 341, 342, 343, 344, 345, 346, 347, 348, 349, 350, 351, 352, 353, 354, 355, 356, 357, 358, 359, 360, 361, 362, 363, 364, 365, 366, 367, 368, 369, 370, 371, 372, 373, 374, 375, 376, 377, 378, 379, 380, 381, 382, 383, 384, 385, 386, 387, 388, 389, 390, 391, 392, 393, 394, 395, 396, 397, 398, 399, 400, 401, 402, 403, 404, 405, 406, 407, 408, 409, 410, 411, 412, 413, 414, 415, 416, 417, 418, 419, 420, 421, 422, 423, 424, 425, 426, 427, 428, 429, 430, 431, 432, 433, 434, 435, 436, 437, 438, 439, 440, 441, 442, 443, 444, 445, 446, 447, 448, 449, 450, 451, 452, 453, 454, 455, 456, 457, 458, 459, 460, 461, 462, 463, 464, 465, 466, 467, 468, 469, 470, 471, 472, 473, 474, 475, 476, 477, 478, 479, 480, 481, 482, 483, 484, 485, 486, 487, 488, 489, 490, 491, 492, 493, 494, 495, 496, 497, 498, 499, 500, 501, 502, 503, 504, 505, 506, 507, 508, 509, 510, 511, 512, 513, 514, 515, 516, 517, 518, 519, 520, 521, 522, 523, 524, 525, 526, 527, 528, 529, 530, 531, 532, 533, 534, 535, 536, 537, 538, 539, 540, 541, 542, 543, 544, 545, 546, 547, 548, 549, 550, 551, 552, 553, 554, 555, 556, 557, 558, 559, 560, 561, 562, 563, 564, 565, 566, 567, 568, 569, 570, 571, 572, 573, 574, 575, 576, 577, 578, 579, 580, 581, 582, 583, 584, 585, 586, 587, 588, 589, 590, 591, 592, 593, 594, 595, 596, 597, 598, 599, 600, 601, 602, 603, 604, 605, 606, 607,

NEW MUSIC.

BOW DOWN THINE EAR. 7
Eighty-sixth Psalm. Composed for the Glasgow New Festival, 1873, by H. A. Lambeth. Containing a soprano written for and sung by Milla Tittens. Paper covers, 2s.; all lettered, 6s. Now ready. Post-free for stamps.—Glasgow: S and FENTLAND; and Chappell and Co., 54, New Bond-street.

TWO SONGS by MAYDA CREYKE
Publishers, CRAMER and Co.,
Regent-street.

JOHN BENNETTS' HALF-CHRONOMETERS are compensated for variations of temperature, adjusted in positions, and set by day.

JOHN BENNETTS' ENGLISH HALL-CLOCKS, CHIMING from 2 to 12.

JOHN BENNETTS' RICHLY-GILT DRAWING-ROOM CLOCKS, CHIMING from 2 to 12.

JOHN BENNETTS' MARBLE DINING-ROOM CLOCKS, CHIMING from 2 to 12.

JOHN BENNETTS' 18-CARAT HALL-MARKED CHAINS & WITH ANTIQUE BRONZE.

JOHN BENNETTS' 18-CARAT HALL-MARKED CHAINS & CHOICE JEWELLERY.

JOHN BENNETTS' CLOCK AND WATCH MANUFACTORY, 25, OLD & 24, NEWATRADE.

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL
Is sold ONLY in capsuled IMPERIAL Half-Pints, 2s. 6d.; Pints, 4s.
Quarts, 8s.; by all respectable Chemists and Druggists throughout the world.

SOLE COGNISERS,
ANNAR HARFORD, and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON.

OUR SPECIAL ARTIST'S VOYAGE TO THE GOLD COAST.

THE "TENDER PARTING" OPPOSITE NEW BRIGHTON.

MORNING BATH ON BOARD THE VOLTA.

Our Special Artist, Mr. Melton Prior, who has been sent by the proprietors of this Journal to the Gold Coast of West Africa for the purpose of making sketches to illustrate the campaign under Sir Garnet Wolseley against the Ashantees, wrote to us on the 12th inst. from Madeira, and sent us a few illustrations of his voyage. He sailed from Liverpool on the 6th, in the screw steam-ship Volta, which conveyed also fifteen or sixteen officers of different regiments, besides Assistant-Commissionary Wyatt, Surgeon-Major Reid, R.A., the Rev. R. G. Patterson, chaplain, and others connected with the expedition, with a missionary to the Fantees. Our Correspondent praises in high terms the accommodation on board the Volta, the quality of the provisions, and the obliging behaviour of all the officers of that ship, from the captain downwards; but his thanks are due more especially to the chief officer, whose cabin he is fortunately allowed to share. The weather, from Liverpool to Madeira, had not been agreeable; the wind blowing very heavily, the ship rolled a good deal; there was much sickness, and nearly all the live stock was lost. The first of Mr. Prior's sketches represents the Knight Templar (steam-tender) leaving the Volta off New Brighton in the Mersey. "As the two steamers parted company the friends of the officers and others on board the tender rushed on the bridge and, with hearty cheers, bade us farewell and a safe and pleasant voyage. This was a tender parting." Of another incident he remarks—"The officers on board the Volta up to Sunday had their baths, as represented in the sketch. The boatswain, after having had the deck washed, took the hose 'aft,' and, directing it as well as he could, played with the salt water upon those that were inclined for a souse; the captain generally looking on, as well as those officers and others who did not care for such cold work. It was most amusing to see the comical costumes of the bathers when leaving their berths for the douche, and the wry and extraordinary faces they made during the process, but all seemed to think it a treat." The subject of Mr. Prior's third sketch is the chaplain reading prayers on Sunday morning, the 9th inst., to the congregation of officers and passengers on the quarter-deck of the Volta. It is hoped that their fellow-countrymen and fellow-Christians at home will not forget, in the Sunday prayers of England and Scotland, to remember those who have gone out, at the risk of health or life in the pestilential climate of Guinea, to serve the British Empire and the progress of human civilisation.

The departures of troops for this war have excited more than usual interest. Our front-page Engraving shows the scene at Woolwich when a detachment of the Royal Artillery left the great barracks there for the port of its embarkation. It was the same at Chatham when a company of Royal Engineers left the School of Military Engineering, after a brief religious exhortation on the parade-ground by the Bishop of Rochester. Of the Royal Marines also, from the Chatham, Portsmouth, and Plymouth divisions, detachments are sent to the Gold Coast, and of the Land Transport and Army Hospital Corps. The 42nd Highlanders, under command of Colonel Sir Archibald Alison, will go from Portsmouth. The steam troopships Himalaya, Captain W. B. Grant, and Tamar, Captain W. H. Grubbe, have been lying in Plymouth Sound to receive the troops sent down by railway from different stations in England, and those from Plymouth Citadel. Our illustration shows the steam-tug Carron acting as a tender to place the troops on board the Himalaya. The troopships left Plymouth last week to proceed on their voyage to West Africa, but the Himalaya called at Queenstown for a battalion of the Rifle Brigade and one of the 23rd Regiment. It may here be mentioned that 166 miles of telegraph wire, manufactured at North Woolwich, will be sent for the use of the expedition; it may, perhaps, be fixed along the whole way from Cape Coast Castle to Coomassie.

SUNDAY MORNING ON BOARD THE VOLTA

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

Amongst recent extra-Parliamentary utterances there is noticeable a trilogy of Scottish members. Who can doubt that one of the most conspicuous representatives, not only of Scotland but of the United Kingdom, in the House is the large-headed, large-hearted member for Leith, "whose observation with extensive view" embraces the whole of our colonial empire, which he endeavours with unabating zeal more thoroughly to incorporate with the mother country than he thinks is the case now? It is to be feared that Mr. Macfie receives little sympathy in this laudable desire from the great body of the House, an idea having apparently fixed itself in the minds of most members that he is unconsciously comic, and they laugh when he is most earnest and emphatic. Whereupon he gets, it is not to be said angry, but still more emphatic—becomes breezy, then gusty, and then somehow vanishes in an explosion. It is, however, believed that he receives ample compensation in the esteem and confidence of the electors of Leith, as a whole. Perhaps a consideration of the reception which he received at a meeting there last week might lead to a conclusion that some of those who were present had not strength to follow him through the immensity of topics which he dealt with. For once and again there were sibilations, using that term as a milder one than hisses; and especially once, when he diverged into some remarks on Popery and the Pontiff, there were cries which, being interpreted, might mean, "be relevant and not prosy." A bitter humourist, writing in a local journal, elaborately compares Mr. Macfie to the sea-serpent; but we are not prepared to say that the comparison is established.

In the House Mr. Arthur Kinnaird is principally distinguished for the fatherly manner in which he gives advice to the Prime Minister, generally at sittings which are still going on between one and two in the morning. He has other distinctions, but at present mention of them may be postponed to the consideration of the proceedings at a public interview between him and the citizens of the fair city of Perth, which he represents. Apparently the burden of his speech was a justification of certain votes of his against the Government, and also served as a text for a discourse on Ultramontane aggression, which was listened to seemingly with a patience which was exemplary, and occasionally with applause. When, however, he came to speak of the disestablishment of established churches, and indicated sympathy with the crusade of which Mr. Miall is the leader, it was evident that two opinions were represented in that hall of audience. There were cheers, but, alas! too obviously there were hisses also; and one can well conceive the look of blank horror which came over the mild and benignant countenance of the hon. member. A gentle remonstrance—involuntarily, no doubt—came from him; but the key-note was given, and all through the speech, thereafter, whenever there was applause there were counter-irritant hisses. Nevertheless, at the close, the cheers were solely present; a jolly, rollicking kind of speech, delivered by one of Mr. Kinnaird's supporters, restored something like unanimity; and the result was such as to lead to a belief that Perth will long preserve to the House of Commons a member who in his way may be said to be unique.

When, after the last general election, Mr. Charles Parker, having won for the Liberal party from a distinguished man the county of Perthshire, his antecedents being considered, it was thought that he was a predestinate second-class official. It was known that from early youth he had been guanoing his mind, first with all sorts of scholastic lore, and then with blue-bookery, that he had undergone the training which is involved in a private secretaryship to a Cabinet Minister and in sundry commissionerships, and it was thought that the first under-secretaryship that became vacant in the Gladstone Government would be at his disposal. But places of that kind have come and gone in plenty, and there has been no sign of his having been offered one. The reason why may be conjectured by the very initiated, but the outside world only knows that Mr. Parker remains an independent, which may only mean an unofficial, member. To his electoral friends the other day he might perhaps have given out hints of his being unappreciated, and they would most likely have sympathised with him; but, as it was, he took the more dignified course of treating of matters relating only to the public weal from his point of view; and apparently his audience were satisfied with what he gave them, though it may not have been of that very "strong meat" which it is said assemblies of Scotchmen generally desire. By-the-way, there is at this moment the Secretaryship to the Board of Trade vacant. Why should not the time of Mr. Parker's official birth have come?

The leisure which his retirement from Ministerial life affords to Mr. Childers has enabled him lately to pronounce a discourse on church-building, which was as full of matter and as suggestive as any of his treatises on naval matters, and as that famous defence of the financial and tax-remitting course of the present Government which he delivered in the House last Session, and which might be called his valedictory blessing upon it. Another notable thing amongst sayings out of Parliament is that Mr. Goschen has had, impromptu, to defend Mr. Lowe from a rabid attack by Mr. H. Cole, C.B. It was at a meeting for the extension of art-culture, when the ex-ruler of South Kensington, with a courage and independence caught from the knowledge that he was no longer an official whose mounting aspirations had long been cribbed, caged, boxed in by the cold realism of a rule-of-three Chancellor of the Exchequer; but an independent, free, "bloated pensioner" (the description is his own), denounced Mr. Lowe as a starver of the art-development of the country; and, after heaping on that nowenthustically adored patron of the publicans all sorts of sarcastic epithets, capped the climax by pronouncing him to be a "milk water Rabelais." What this means in the abstract may not be clear to every mind, even amongst the thirteen million who have visited the South Kensington Museum, and may therefore have caught some of the genius of the place; but it is certain that it was intended to be the very acme of circumlocutory mination. It seemed to have somewhat shocked Mr. Goschen, probably because of the unknown quantity of abuse that it may be supposed to have contained, and the First Lord of the Admiralty was only mildly reproachful to the irate "pensioner" who had at last liberated his mind and relieved his bosom of much "perilous stuff" which had been accumulating there while he was under the oppressive and deadening influence (financial) of Mr. Lowe.

The circumstance that Mr. Anberon Herbert is about to retire for awhile from Parliamentary life was celebrated the other evening at Nottingham. That is, what is called a soirée was given in his honour, and an opportunity afforded him of delivering a valediction to the constituency which has enabled him to develop before the Commons of England that which it is supposed must be called his originality as a nascent statesman. A part of the proceedings consisted in excuses written by a great number of those whose privilege it was to see and hear him during his Parliamentary career; and, if any deduction is to be drawn from the various epistles, it is that the writers would rather go five hundred miles from Nottingham on this particular occasion than come one hundred, fifty—nay, twenty-five—in order to be present. In short, M.P.s left Mr. Anberon Herbert just where they did on the few occasions when he got one of his eccentric motions to a division—that is, alone, as far as they were concerned. If it be possible to conceive a man imbued with a modest self-conceit, such a disposition may be attributed to this gentleman as a member of Parliament. Personally gentle, amiable, and unpretending, when he gets astride an opinion on public affairs his whole nature seems to change, and he is pertinacious, obstinate, and unyielding to an infinite degree; and no man has stood up more steadfastly against the clamour of the House than he. Somehow, in the address—practically a farewell one—which he delivered to his friends at Nottingham the other day, there seemed a curious suggestion that he was taking a step in withdrawing from public life which ere long the country would feel and regret.

MUSIC.

The opening concert of the forty-second season of the Sacred Harmonic Society took place yesterday (Friday) week. The programme was one of strong interest and well-contrasted variety, having combined the solemn dignity of Handel's style, the bright, melodious beauty of Haydn's Catholic service-music, and the most modern development of genius in the oratorio, as exemplified in Mendelssohn's unfinished "Christus." The first work performed was Haydn's Mass No. 1, in B flat, one of the finest of the many pieces of the kind which the composer produced. The solos were effectively sung by Mrs. Suter, Mrs. Sidney Smith, Miss Enriquez, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Santley, and Mr. C. Henry. After the mass came the few pieces which Mendelssohn left towards the oratorio on which he was earnestly engaged at the time of his death, in 1847. These have been commented on by us in detail in a previous notice. Again the beauty of the trio for male voices, "Say, where is He born," the religious elevation of the chorus, "There shall a star," the vigour and dramatic force of the several choral movements leading up to that ("We have a sacred law") demanding the sacrifice of the Saviour, and the holy repose of the following lamentation, "Daughters of Zion," and the closing chorale, produced a profound impression. The trio first referred to was well sung by Messrs. Lloyd, Santley, and Henry; Mr. Lloyd having declaimed the subsequent intermediate recitatives, and Mrs. Suter that which precedes the trio. The "Te Deum," composed by Handel, in 1743, to celebrate the victory of Dettingen, formed an imposing climax to the concert. The solos in this were finely sung by Mr. Santley. The choral movements in each of the works named were given with grand effect by the immense choir of the Sacred Harmonic Society, and the features of the orchestral scores were powerfully rendered by the proportionately large band. Sir Michael Costa was warmly greeted on his reappearance at the conductor's desk, and Mr. Willing again presided at the organ. The second concert is to take place on Dec. 5, when "Israel in Egypt" will be performed.

The eighth Crystal Palace concert of the new series took place on Saturday, when the principal feature was the first performance of Sir Julius Benedict's symphony in G minor, two movements of which were produced at last year's Norwich Festival, the work having since been completed expressly for the Crystal Palace concerts. Of the first "allegro" and the "scherzo" we have already spoken, and have now to refer to the added portions—an "andante con moto" and a final "allegro con fuoco." The allegro is based on a charmingly-melodious theme of extremely graceful character, with occasional relief of strongly-contrasted passages, and some richly-florid ornamentation surrounding the recurrence of the principal subject. The finale is full of fiery impulse, well sustained, in alternation with occasional episodes of a more tranquil tone. The pervading passionate style and some reminiscences of the preceding movements give an impression of completeness to the whole work. Its performance, conducted by Mr. Manns, was throughout admirable; and the demonstration which followed was such as to necessitate the appearance of the composer on the platform in acknowledgment. The "scherzo" of Mendelssohn's ottet, as instrumented by himself for introduction into his symphony in C minor; Beethoven's overture, "Namensfeier," and Schumann's to his opera "Genoveva," completed the instrumental programme. The tenor scene from "Der Freischütz," and Mr. Sullivan's song, "Once again" (rearranged by him with orchestral accompaniments), were finely sung by Mr. Sims Reeves; and Miss Wynne gave, with good effect, Sir J. Benedict's song, "Love at Sea," and that by Professor Oakeley, "Tears, idle tears."

At M. Rivière's Promenade Concerts the "British Army Quadrille" has been for several weeks a prominent feature among the many attractions. This week's performances have included the production (for the first time in London) of Miss Gabriel's cantata, "Evangeline." The work was originally brought out, a few months ago, by Mr. Kuhe, at his Brighton Festival, and we have already spoken of its musical merits and characteristics. It was again well received, the solos having been effectively sung by Madame Corani, Miss Enriquez, Mr. G. Perren, and Mr. C. E. Tinney. Next week will be the last of the season, which will close on Dec. 6 with M. Rivière's benefit.

The marked impression made by the splendid performances of Dr. Hans von Bulow at his first recital, last week, and the large audience attracted to St. James's Hall on the occasion, would alone have sufficiently proved, had proof been previously wanting, that he has obtained a firm hold on the London public. The programme of his second recital (on Wednesday afternoon) comprised Weber's sonata in D minor, Beethoven's in A (op. 101), and a miscellaneous selection.

The eighth season of the London Ballad Concert, directed by Mr. John Beechey, commenced on Wednesday evening, with an attractive programme.

The programme of Mr. Walter Bache's annual concert—which took place on Thursday evening—was, as usual, of very special interest, having included the two movements "Tasso" and "Orpheus" from Liszt's series of orchestral pieces entitled "Poèmes Symphoniques" ("Symphonische Dichtung"); Schubert's great pianoforte fantasia (in C), arranged with accompaniment of orchestra by Liszt (Mr. Bache being the pianist); and other instrumental pieces. Of the performances we must speak next week, as also of that of "Israel in Egypt," at the Royal Albert Hall Choral Society's third concert, which took place on the same evening.

A very handsomely illuminated testimonial, signed by all the professors of the Royal Academy of Music, has been presented, by the Principal, Sir Sterndale Bennett, to Mr. G. A. Macfarren, complimenting him on the success of his oratorio, "St. John the Baptist," at the recent Bristol festival.

The concerts of the second season of the British Orchestral Society are fixed to take place on Jan. 22, Feb. 5 and 26, March 12 and 26, and April 8. At one of them, it is said, a new symphony by Mr. G. A. Macfarren is to be produced.

THEATRES.

At the Adelphi, on Saturday, Mr. Edmund Falconer's effective drama of "The Peep o' Day; or, Savourneen Deelish," was revived, and is likely to restore the fortunes of the house. Mr. Falconer appears again as Barney O'Toole, and won the wonted applause alike due to the naturalness of the character and the skill of the actor. Mr. G. Shore, as Harry Kavanagh, far exceeded the expectations of his friends; and Mr. J. W. Forde, as the villainous Purcell, was as careful in his delineation as he was true to the author's conception of a part which in unskilful hands would prove repulsive. Mr. Dewar represented the reverend and militant O'Cleary, and brought to our mind the original representative of the rôle somewhat to his disadvantage. Mr. McIntyre was Black Mullins. Miss Edith Stuart, as Kathleen Kavanagh, is admirable; and Miss Hudspeth, as Mary Grace, continues to be as fascinating as usual. The rest of the characters are well supported, and the scenery throughout is appropriate.

A new comedieta has been produced at the Vaudeville entitled "A Happy Cruise." The piece is by Mr. Ernest Cuthbert, the author of "Legacy-Love," and at any rate deserves praise for the "brevity" which "is the soul of wit." A married couple separate but cannot forget each other, and the husband, paying her a visit in disguise, sees his wife, in the garb of a Quakeress, being wooed by a former friend of his own. All this of course requires explanation, but is readily understood by the spectator. The matter, however, is capable of further development, and as it stands is suggestive of sportive combinations, which in some future compositions will doubtless stand the author in good stead.

The French plays continue to be performed with spirit at the Holborn. The comedy of "La Joie de la Maison" reminded the audience of a piece called "The Little Treasure," acted at the Haymarket several years ago, in which the heroine was personated by the late Miss Blanche Fane, whose performance of the part will be long remembered. The comedy has been well received on the present occasion.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

Upwards of 320 horses ran during the four days at Warwick last week, and the meeting was a brilliant conclusion to the season. Still there was no single race—like the Bickerstaffe Cup at Liverpool, in which Prince Charlie beat Oxonian—which was of more than passing interest, or will live in turf history. Vanderdecken was the best-class horse which ran at Warwick. He was very unlucky, as he ran second twice in the same races in which he was placed last year. In the Great Autumn Welter Cup he carried 11 st. 9 lb., the same weight as on the previous occasion, and disposed of all his field, except the Young Melbourne—Infanta colt (9 st. 2 lb.), who beat him easily by half a length. He was again made first favourite for the Great Midland Counties Handicap, with 8 st. 12 lb. on his back; but Laburnum (8 st. 3 lb.) cannoned against him heavily, just at a critical point of the struggle, and he could never catch Falkland (7 st. 8 lb.), who was very leniently handicapped, considering his Northumberland Plate victory and the very bold front he showed for more than two miles in the Cesarewitch. Vanderdecken, however, beat Merevale (7 st. 1 lb.), who secured this race last season, and whom he met on 9 lb. better terms than on that occasion. Prior to the Donnington Handicap, Oxonian was sold to Captain Macchell for 1100 gs., and, as he won that race in a common canter, carrying 9 st. 3 lb., he proved a cheap purchase, and Prince Charlie's Liverpool performance appears more marvellous than ever. The two year-olds which appeared at Warwick were very moderate, Eucalyptus being the best of them—and he is far from a first-class animal.

Colonel Harcourt entertained a large company at Nuneham Park on Monday, when the members of the South Oxfordshire Hunt presented the Countess of Macclesfield with a life-size portrait of her husband (painted by Mr. Graves), in recognition of the services he had rendered as Master.

There were several coursing meetings last week, but none of much importance, as so many dogs were in reserve for the great meeting at Newmarket, of which we shall give an account next week.

The Birmingham Dog Show begins on Monday next. There are nearly one thousand entries, and there is every prospect of a most successful exhibition.

James Grundy, the celebrated Nottinghamshire bowler, who was twenty years a leading professional cricketer at Lord's ground, was found dead in his bed on Monday morning.

An influential meeting of shipowners was held, yesterday week, to protest against the manner of measuring jute, cotton, and similar goods for shipment at Calcutta.

Mr. Disraeli was presented with an address from the Glasgow Conservative Working Men's Association, on Saturday last, and, in reply, spoke at some length upon current political topics. He justified at considerable length the allegations in his famous Bath letter, and quoted many instances of what he had termed the "plundering and blundering" policy of the Cabinet.

According to a return recently issued, the number of emigrants who left the United Kingdom during the quarter ending Sept. 30 last were as follow:—From England to the United States, 42,959; to British North America, 10,050; to the Australian colonies, 6120; to other places, 1563; in all, 60,692. From Scotland to the United States, 5021; to British North America, 1380; to the Australian colonies, 655; to other places, 56; in all, 7112. From Ireland to the United States, 57,507; to British North America, 12,447; to the Australian colonies, 6775; to other places, 1619; in all, 78,348. Of the emigrants 25,413 were English, 5526 Scotch, 16,849 Irish, 17,604 foreigners, and 3000 not distinguished as to nationality.

THE GREAT SUGAR REFINERY AT BRISTOL.

It has lately happened that sugar in its various forms has attracted very general attention. The importation of sugar into the United Kingdom last year amounted to nearly sixteen million hundredweight, and of this amount fourteen millions and a half were entered for "home consumption." We may remark, moreover, that this represents about half a hundred-weight a year for every individual in the population, so that, even reckoning a vast quantity consumed for making preserves and other articles of luxury and ordinary diet, a large quantity must be left for consumption in its natural or refined condition. We observe also that of the sugar destined for home use 5,224,470 cwt. came from British possessions, 3,091,275 cwt. from the Spanish West India Islands, 1,878,587 cwt. from Brazil; while 2,238,811 cwt. came from France and 34,816 cwt. from Germany, a large proportion of the latter two items being probably coarsely-prepared beet-root sugar of a low saccharine quality. It appears, indeed, from the returns that by far the largest quantity consisted of what is called raw sugar, and that a very considerable proportion of this must be converted into refined or loaf sugar, though doubtless the use of raw or moist sugar is still falsely regarded as economical among the poorer classes.

It is true that even some of the moist sugars undergo a process of refining, and that loaf or lump sugars of low quality are sold at a price so little above that of the raw sorts as to bring them within the reach of the million; but in neither of these forms is actual purity attained, and in both moist and lump sugars the saccharine or sweetening quality is frequently small because of the intermixture of beet and other low-class sugars, which are in this way sold at the same price as cane sugar.

By the old process, which is still retained in some refineries, either bullocks' blood or "finings," made by mixing a solution of alum with lime-water, is used for forming a coagulation, which rises to the surface and takes with it the impurities of the sugar, in the shape of scum, to the top of the "blowing-up pan." But a more complete result can now be obtained by filtering through animal charcoal, and this plan is mostly adopted. The question is, how to obtain perfectly pure sugar, which shall have the largest amount of saccharine property and can yet be sold at a price which brings it into direct competition with the coarse, impure sugars known as "moist." This result has been attained by complete crystallisation after refining, and the process by which it is produced may be seen at the largest refinery in England—that of Messrs. Finzel and Sons, of Bristol.

The Counterslip factory, at Bristol, was established within the present century by the father of the present senior partner and the grandfather of the junior partners—the late Mr. Conrad Finzel, who by his application of centrifugal machinery to the completion of crystallised sugar, and by the adoption of various improvements in the earlier stages of manufacture, achieved a great commercial success and reputation, in obtaining a new and cheap form of the pure product.

The original building at the Counterslip shared the fate of many other sugar factories, and was burnt to the ground. Of the present great block, which covers nearly two acres, one portion was not completed till 1847, the other having been erected in 1859; so that the three tall shafts which are visible almost as soon as we have left the railway station, mark the progress of a business which has grown with marvellous rapidity, until the weekly production of its special manufacture has reached 1,100 tons.

There is sufficient indication of its extent in the broad area between the factory and the warehouses—processions of drays and waggons bring boxes, bags, and tierces, which are conveyed on tramways to the lower part of the big building, to be converted into the brilliant colourless crystals, packages of which are coming out on another tramway in an almost endless train.

Arriving first at the sale-room and the sampling-room, where a surprising variety of raw sugars are inspected and purchased, we are conducted through the ordinary offices, and thence to the private room of the firm, on the first landing. We go up to the laboratory, a plain but very completely appointed apartment on an upper story, where sugars in every variety are tested, and afterwards experimentally submitted to the refining process. The apparatus here consists of vats, filtering cylinders, vacuum-pan, and centrifugal machine, by means of which an able practical chemist and analyst conducts in miniature the operations that are consummated on a gigantic scale in the adjacent building. It is worth noting, however, that even in this laboratory, as the experiments are intended to have a practical result, 10 cwt. of sugar can be carried through all the processes for converting it into crystals.

These processes, however, must be seen in the factory itself, and we will pass out of the commercial department and into the refinery, or rather into one of its departments on the first floor. Here casks, bags, and boxes of Demerara, Mauritius, and Havannah, together with baskets from Java, are disposed of with astonishing celerity by the men who receive them. Constantly as they come up, they are unhooped, ripped open, or staved in, and their contents are at once capsized through openings in the thick timber floor, beneath which lie the great boiling-pans, where the first operation of refining is effected by the reduction of the raw sugar to a brown viscid syrup, sufficiently fluid to be strained through coarse canvas bags, which are contained in a series of cisterns. This rough filtration removes from the sugar its coarser impurities, and it is allowed to pass from the bottoms of the bag-lined cisterns to a great reservoir, the magnitude as well as the contents of which enable us to contemplate it with a feeling like that of a fly peering over the edge of a dish of honey.

Presently, having safely surmounted the difficulties of a tortuous iron staircase, we are in a great, dim expanse of floors and beams, strange side-lights, and sudden shadows. This is, in fact, the floor where, by galleries and footways, we reach the mouths of a numerous series of deep filtering cylinders, each of which is filled with animal charcoal finely ground. Into these the brown, viscid syrup is pumped from the main tank or reservoir, and here the actual refining process may be said to be effected. So important is this second filtration, and, if properly conducted, so completely does it remove every particle of foreign impurity, that its results are very carefully watched. The operation of each separate cylinder is marked and recorded by means of copper pipes, one of which runs from the bottom of each, and terminates in a tap fixed over a long copper trough, so divided into compartments as to make it quite easy for an inspector to detect any imperfection in the syrup yielded by any one of the long series of filtering cisterns, and to trace it to its source.

The liquid syrup, or clarified fluid sugar, when it leaves these charcoal filters, is perfectly colourless and of intense sweetness, while its purity is so complete that crystallisation may be at once effected. A number of reservoirs receive it from the cylinders, and from these it is at once pumped up again into enormous vacuum pans, some of them capable of containing from 27 to 30 tons of sugar each; while two of them—the largest in the world—will turn out respectively 400 and 500 tons a week.

It is in these pans that the sugar is crystallised, by evaporation of the moisture and concentration of the clarified syrup, and this is the process which requires the greatest attention. By the old process this concentration was effected by boiling the syrup in open pans, where, of course, the temperature was much greater, and all kinds of devices were employed for regulating the heat to an even degree. Seventy years ago, we are told, the Hon. Charles Edward Howard, starting from the ascertained principle that fluids will boil in a partial vacuum at a much lower temperature than in an open vessel, invented a close copper pan or boiler, the middle of which was cylindrical, and the top and bottom spherical in form. This vessel had a double bottom, to the cavity of which steam was admitted, so that the contents of the pan could be raised to any required temperature, while a coil of copper pipe carrying steam through the body of the pan itself assisted the evaporation of the syrup. The bottom cavity contained steam at low pressure, the spiral coil being supplied with steam at high pressure, and consequently at great heat; and from the centre of the crown or dome of the pan a bent tube and apparatus was connected with an air-pump, so that the pan could be almost entirely exhausted of air, while a valve served to admit small quantities of air in case of a too rapid exhaustion. With this contrivance and the air-pump at work the sugar could be boiled at a temperature of 130 deg. to 150 deg., while the exact heat could at any moment be ascertained by properly adjusted thermometers and immediately regulated.

All modern adaptations of vacuum-pans are founded on Howard's invention, and the gigantic vessels used at the Counterslip refinery are on the same principle, with the addition of certain improvements and modifications which serve to reduce the degree of heat at which boiling may be effected, and to secure facilities for frequently testing the progress of crystallisation. The operation may be seen going on in the most extraordinary manner through a round, thickly-glazed peep-hole in the side of the copper monster, within which the sugar bubbles and stirs into aggregated crystal forms, which ultimately fall to the bottom of the vessel in a moist, warm, grainy mass.

This granulated mass is allowed to fall into one or other of a long row of copper coolers in a floor beneath the evaporating pans, and thence, when its temperature is considerably diminished, is subjected to the process which first distinguished Messrs. Finzel's sugar from that of other manufacturers.

It is this process which perfects the sugar and reduces it to pure saccharine divested of superfluous moisture and any remaining syrup by submitting it to the action of the centrifugal machines, a large number of which occupy two separate floors of the refinery, and are unceasingly at work.

These machines are large cylinders of copper, set in a frame or bed, like so many enormous camp soup-kettles without lids, but with this difference, that each cylinder is made to revolve with great rapidity on a central axis, and that within the cylinder itself is a lining of wire gauze, between which and the outer pan some space is left.

To these centrifugal cylinders the cooled crystallised sugar is brought by means of a travelling trough running above them along the whole length of the room, and each machine as it receives its charge is set rapidly in motion, revolving with such velocity that every particle of moisture is flung off the whirling crystals, which come from this finishing operation hard, dry, and beautifully lustrous in appearance. So rapidly is this operation effected (the cylinders making many revolutions in a second), that a hundredweight and a half of sugar is completed by each machine in a minute and a half.

From each cylinder the charge of sugar is taken by an attendant workman, who receives it in a perambulator, which conveys it to a lower floor to become perfectly cool.

The process of refining may now be said to be complete; but the mass of sugar has yet to be raised by means of lifts to the mixing-room, where a long detachment of workmen receive the products of the mechanical portion of the factory and deftly mingle it with wooden shovels. The mixing-room presents a very striking, and even a picturesque, appearance; for it is a vast lofty hall, in which are elevated a number of high stages or galleries built of timber, and bound at the edges with iron. These stages mark off a great square space on the floor below, which itself has some distinguishing divisions, and into which the crystallised sugar is shot from the perambulators in which it is conveyed along the upper galleries. The catarract of white crystals pouring down from the iron-bound edges of this upper gallery to augment the heaps below, amidst which the white dresses of the men offer an opaque contrast, suggests a confused recollection of early reports of Cape diamonds and rock crystals. But perhaps by this time the strong saccharine influence of the atmosphere is inducing a somnolent condition, which is only partially dissipated by an introduction to the basement of the building, where in the filling-room a series of traps in the ceiling admit the mixed sugar from the floor above into shoots, and so it is poured into the tierces, bags, and packages in which it is sent out. Each filler in this lower room has his particular shoot, and when he requires a fresh supply of sugar he gives a sharp peal on a bell, which apprises the mixers that they must open the trap with another discharge.

The necessity for this careful mixing is to be explained by the fact that the crystallisation differs in its various stages, so that crystals of various sizes are turned out of the vacuum pans, and require to be mixed in order to secure a certain uniformity of quality. The filling-room is, of course, one of the busiest departments of the factory, and the rapidity with which the sugar is rammed down into the various packages with great iron pestles, and the deft dispatch which distinguishes the heading in of casks, the hooping of tierces, and the making up of big parcels, is enough to make the observer wink.

It should be noted that each tierce and hogshead is entirely lined with a peculiar kind of waterproof paper, which excludes both dust and moisture, and that small parcels of sugar are made up in bags perfectly lined with the same material.

Of course the supply of casks and tierces is in itself a very large business, and this is the work of a branch establishment—St. Paul's Cooperage—where, two or three streets off, above a hundred and fifty men are employed, under the direction of Mr. William Finzel, the youngest son of the senior partner. There is an atmosphere of sugar here also, from the number of casks and boxes which are sent to be utilised after they have been emptied of their contents; but the saccharine flavour is almost superseded by the pervading sense of beech-wood, oak-wood, and ash, represented by piles and stacks of staves, by logs and trunks, which are to be reduced to heads and struts of casks by a great circular saw; by stores and sheds where rushes, hoops, and old rope (for caulking purposes) are kept, and by the merry din of a hundred stalwart coopers, who seem bent on hammering each other into permanent deafness. The average consumption of timber in the cooperage is 450,000 ft. every week, so that we may regard the package department as a very considerable branch of the refinery—though a visit to the boiler-house on our return obliterates the figures of the cooperage from our estimate. About thirty steam-engines are at work night and day to supply the motive power of this great factory of sugar, and thirty-one boilers are required to supply the steam, not only for the engines, but for the processes of the refinery.

With regard to the quality of this sugar, the latest analysis of the crystals gives:—

Pure cane sugar	99.923
Fixed ash018
Moisture059
				100.000

moisture, which is no more than .059, representing by far the larger portion of the total of foreign matter, which altogether amounts no more than 1-1300th part of the gross weight—as near an approach as possible to absolute purity, and with the additional advantage claimed for this sugar, that its integrity of substance prevents it from absorbing moisture from the atmosphere and renders it most valuable for preserving or confectionery purposes, since it is not likely to ferment or to deteriorate, and does not waste material by the formation of large quantities of scum during boiling.

And what about the 700 workpeople employed in this great hive? It would be almost impossible to visit a factory nowadays without seeking to know something of the relative position of "employer and employed." In this respect it is not too much to say that these relations at the Counterslip are characterised by liberality and mutual confidence arising out of a very pleasant organisation, which appears to have been originated by "the Good Conrad Finzel" (for by that title the founder of the house is still known in Bristol), and is well carried out by his present representatives.

The hands here receive a higher rate of wages than is paid at any other refinery in the west of England, since it is essential to secure competent workmen to conduct the processes for obtaining this highly-crystallised sugar. But apart from this there are several beneficial provisions in connection with this industrial colony. There is a library and reading-room, and religious instruction and ministrations by a duly qualified minister for the families of those who desire to embrace the privilege; there are also numerous beneficent provisions for the old, the sick, and the disabled, the widow and the orphan.

The "benefit club," supported by the men themselves, has the firm amongst its best subscribers; but the benefits established in connection with the factory itself are even of more importance, for they embrace provisions by which any man meeting with an accident serious enough to disable him receives half his wages if he has been more than seven years in the employ of the firm, and seven shillings a week if his services have been for a shorter period. Should the accident prove fatal and the man leave a widow, she receives five shillings a week for life. A large number of old and infirm workmen also receive superannuation pensions; so that in the little territory of the Counterslip some of the social problems of the day come near solution.

CATTLE SHOWS.

On Monday the certificates of entry for the forthcoming Smithfield Club Cattle Show, which is fixed to open at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, on Monday, Dec. 8, were completed, and, notwithstanding the new and stringent regulation of the club that no animal shall be permitted to enter the competition which has been exhibited at any other show within one month previous to Dec. 5 next, the entries this year by far exceed those of any previous year. The Duke of Richmond is the president this year; and the Duke of Sutherland, the Marquis of Exeter, the Earl of Leicester, the Duke of Marlborough, Lord Walsingham, the Earl of Feversham, Earl Spencer, Viscount Bridport, and the large mass of gentlemen farmers and most distinguished breeders in the kingdom, look upon the new regulation as being founded on a sound principle, not only as calculated to allay any impression that in the award of the prizes there can be any foregone conclusion as to the merits of animals on account of their having taken prizes at country shows, but as a protection against the possibility of disease from contact with other animals. The increase of the prize list has also without doubt proved a strong incentive to competitors. The money prizes in the cattle classes alone amount to £1450; for sheep £665; and for pigs £135; making the total amount in money reach £2250. In addition to this there is the champion cup, valued at 100 gs., for the best beast, and a champion cup of 50 gs. for the best pen of sheep in the show, two cups of £40 for the best steer or ox and the best cow and heifer in the classes, with four cups of £20 each for sheep, besides the gold and silver medals, making the aggregate value of the prizes close upon £3000.

The twenty-fifth annual exhibition of the Birmingham Cattle and Poultry Show opens at Bingley Hall to-day (Saturday); and, from the highly-satisfactory nature of the entries in every department, it seems likely that there will be an excellent display of stock and poultry. The amount of money (£2600) at the disposal of the judges is larger than on any previous occasion.

Mr. Henry Glasford Bell, Sheriff of Lanarkshire, died on Monday evening.

Sir Stafford Northcote presided, on Tuesday, at the general court of the Hudson's Bay Company, when a report for 1872 was submitted, and an interim dividend declared of 6s. per share. The governors and committee were re-elected.

A Scotch paper publishes a letter from Mr. David Gray, of Golspie, giving an explanation of the "great sea-serpent" which Mr. Jonas saw in Lochbeg and described to Mr. Buckland. The great sea-serpent was nothing more than a ridge of sand upon which seaweed had drifted.

One of a series of final sittings in the Albert Company arbitration has been held by Mr. Reilly, the assessor of Lord Cairns. Orders for payment were made on certain policyholders who refused to refund loans they had obtained on their policies. Discharges were given to a number of contributories who satisfied the assessor of their inability to pay.

Sir John St. Aubyn, Mr. J. D. Lewis, M.P., the Mayors of Plymouth and Devonport, and others took part on Tuesday in the public presentation of a silver service, valued at 300 gs., to Mr. May, who has filled the office of Mayor of Devonport for three successive years, during which he has been largely instrumental in promoting the construction of a railway to Devonport. Mr. May's portrait has been presented to the town, to be hung in the Townhall.

The third annual conversazione of the medical men of Yorkshire was held, on Tuesday, at the West Riding Lunatic Asylum, Wakefield, one of the largest and best asylums of the kind in England, in which are 1400 patients. The subject of the discussion was the physiology of the brain, and treatment of brain diseases. There was a large and fashionable company, including physicians and surgeons from all parts of the country. Lord Houghton presided; and Dr. Carpenter, of the University of London, gave an admirable lecture on recent advances in the study of the brain. Dr. Crichton Brown, the medical director of the asylum, and several eminent doctors, took part in the discussion that followed.

SUGAR-MAKING AT THE COUNTERSLIP REFINERY, BRISTOL

MR. DIBRAELI DELIVERING HIS INSTALLATION ADDRESS AS LORD RECTOR OF GLASGOW UNIVERSITY.

STEAM-TUG AT PLYMOUTH TAKING TROOPS TO THE HIMALAYA FOR THE GOLD COAST.

BY THE WAY.

We have not observed that any contemporary has mentioned the source whence the Lord Rector of Glasgow took the Greek quotation with which he closed his brilliant inaugural address. Some readers may like to know that the lines are from Sophocles. They are in the "Ajax," and are the conclusion of the long speech of Teucer, after the suicide of the hero. Teucer dwells upon the melancholy ends of Hector and of his adversary. "Observe ye, by the Gods I ask, the fate of these two men. Hector having been bound fast with the very girdle with which he had been presented by Ajax, by the steel-clad car was racked and mangled until he breathed out his life; while Ajax, possessing this [sword], the gift of Hector, perished by its means from a mortal fall. Was it not a Fury that forged this cimeter, and Hades the other, that fierce artificer. I then would say that the Gods devised both this and everything else for ever to mankind. But to whomsoever in opinion this is not pleasing, let him fondly cling to other, and me to this." The practical Chorus, with some little discourtesy, here interpose. "Extend no length of speech, but bethink thee how thou wilt bury thy brother." Mr. Disraeli artistically adapted the last lines to his own purpose; but it will be seen that they do not, in the text, convey any very comforting assurance "for our guidance in life." They will probably, however, be henceforth employed by many writers and speakers in the more cheerful sense, and will be by no means an isolated instance of a quotation becoming popular from the author's idea being improved upon, as is notably the case with—

One touch of Nature makes the whole world kin, now constantly used in a sentimental way, whereas the line is really part of a bitter satire. Ulysses proceeds ("Troilus and Cressida") :—

That all with one consent praise new-born gauds,
Though they are made and moulded of things past,
And give to dust that is a little gilt
More laud than gilt o'er-dusted.

The disaffected minority in Ireland will, no doubt, consider that anything like English thanks for aught they have done is injury and insult in the first degree. Still, acknowledgment must be rendered where it is due. To the Home Rulers and the Repealers who have been meeting in conference in Dublin her Majesty's Government and all her Majesty's loyal subjects are deeply indebted. Every effort has been made to render that demonstration formidable, and it has not even been respectable. The blundering tactics which have proved to the world how small and how unworthy of consideration is "the army of the aliens," have fatally wounded their previously moribund cause. Ireland is prosperous and content; and, although we agree with Mr. Disraeli that when the mask of Home Rule is pulled off something else will be seen, that something will be a matter for ridicule rather than for fear. Nearly every Irishman of rank, of commercial position, of social influence, has stood aloof; and, but for the wrangling among the Home Rulers and the Repealers, the proceedings would have been so flat as to be positively fatiguing to notice. We do not willingly inflict figures on our readers; but they will forgive us for stating two facts. At the recent demonstration names were given in "selected" from 24,000 said to have been collected. The number of electors on the Irish register in 1872 was 223,507.

Unpleasant as the circumstances were to the gentleman of whom we are about to speak, he has been made the means of bearing valuable testimony to the merits of the Charity Organisation Society, which is effecting so much good in the way of preventing the money of the benevolent from passing into the hands of the worthless and wicked. An official of the society was leaving his place of business the other evening, when two roughs came up and asked him whether he belonged to that association. On his replying in the affirmative, one knocked him down and the other kicked him savagely. It appears that assistance has lately been withheld from several undeserving objects, and thus they or their friends have shaped their protest against any interference with their privilege of living on the plunder of the kind-hearted. In Italy, the other day, a railway contractor who had discharged an insolent labourer, who, in consequence, had tried to kill him, was rather angrily rebuked for complaining: "You admit that you were depriving this man of his means of living?" And the Italian official appeared to think that the labourer was rather "in his right." We are not quite so gentle here, and we hope that the remonstrants against organised charity will come into the hands of policemen with resolution enough to do their duty. But, as the gentleman who sends the facts to the Times observes, the roughs thus do much to prove how greatly the institution was needed, and that it is working excellently. We commend it, somewhat early, to the attention of those who meditate almsgiving at Christmas.

The little capital of Pembrokeshire is not, perhaps, well known to many persons outside the Principality. The haven with which it is connected is known to every reader in the world. "We know it out of Shakespeare's art." The loving Imogen says,

How far is it
To this same blessed Milford? And, by-the-way, Tell me how Wales was made so happy as
To inherit such a haven?

Haverfordwest has been less fortunate; it has lacked the vates sacer, though we have some recollection of a legend, of the Ingoldsby type, in which a hypochondriacal Hebrew, having imbibed too much bad wine there, is stated to have put his clothes into bed, and hung himself over the chair instead. However, Haverfordwest will be heard of a little for the next few days, as it has had an election, and the Conservative reaction has not ousted Lord Kensington, who had to seek a new return on taking office. The borough must be content with such honour as its devotion to Liberal principles can afford it, and with the reflected fame of the haven which was "so happy" as to occur to the mind of Shakespeare when he wanted to send wandering the most entirely charming of all his heroines.

It must be possible, we suppose, to make a will in such a way that it cannot puzzle executors or invite contest, and if there were any one man in the world whom we should have believed to be capable of composing such a document it was the late Lord Westbury, whose intellect was at once so broad and so subtle. Yet Sir George Jessel has this week had, in his capacity of Master of the Rolls, to decide whether the late ex-Chancellor's representatives had a right under his will to make certain investments. "The profession" has an ungrateful proverb about a man who makes his own will—ungrateful because it is palpably for the interest of that institution that a testator should leave his arrangements open to costly challenge. But as Lord Westbury was "as far as the farthest," as Wordsworth says, from being that which an amateur will-maker is affirmed to be, we must suppose that when a man has to deal with his own affairs there comes some disturbing influence upon him, and he who would guide another in the most masterly fashion strays from the technical path when walking alone. It would perhaps be taking an unkind view of human nature to say that when a man is very much in earnest he forgets things that would occur to him were he coolly providing for the interests of folks he cares nothing about.

Odium theologicum has come into the School Board contests in full force. We have seen nothing like it in Parliamentary contests since the days of the Test and Corporation Acts and Catholic emancipation. The "ministers of all denominations" have freely mingled in the affray. The martial Bishop, after the battle in which he had distinguished himself, was complimented by his King, but modestly begged that it might be noticed that he had shed no blood, the fact being that he had stunned some two score of enemies with an iron mace. That weapon, in a moral sense, has been wielded pretty freely by our spiritual guides. However, it is good to see thoroughness and energy. Perhaps at Nottingham exultation has taken its oddest form. Rejoicing with delight that children are to receive a particular sort of education, the adults of Nottingham appropriately testified their joy by throwing up great numbers of rockets. However, Artemus Ward tells us that he felt it absolutely necessary to stand on a shed and fire off his gun during the greater part of an evening, because Mrs. Ward had presented him with twins.

MR. DISRAELI AT GLASGOW.

The installation of the Right Hon. Benjamin Disraeli, M.P., as Lord Rector of the University of Glasgow, as mentioned in our last, took place on Wednesday week, in the Kibble Crystal Palace, a large circular glass building in the Botanical Gardens, Great Western-road. The Common Hall of the new University buildings is not yet completed, and the chapel would only hold about half the number of persons who were admitted, by ticket, to witness the academical ceremony, and to hear the eloquent address of a distinguished statesman. We give an illustration of the scene in the Crystal Palace, where the Lord Rector is standing on an elevated platform in the centre, with a small desk before him; the Vice-Chancellor and the Principal of the University, the Very Rev. Dr. Caird, occupies a lower place at his right hand; and the Dean of Faculty, Mr. E. Strathern Gordon, Q.C., M.P. for Glasgow and Aberdeen Universities, is at his left hand. Mr. Disraeli wore his official costume as Lord Rector, a black silk robe trimmed with gold lace; Dr. Caird, as Vice-Chancellor, wore a black silk-velvet gown, with broad ermine facings; Mr. Gordon wore the ordinary academic gown. In the rear of these, and on a lower level, were ranged the members of the senate, in gowns and hoods; farther back and at the sides were some of the privileged spectators, with a few ladies. The proceedings began with a Latin prayer, uttered by the Principal; the first business was to confer the honorary degree of LL.D. upon Mr. Disraeli and several other gentlemen. After this ceremony the Lord Rector delivered his harangue, which has been read and commented upon by every newspaper reader. In the evening he was entertained by the Lord Provost of Glasgow in the City Hall.

ASTRONOMICAL OCCURRENCES IN DECEMBER.

(From the "Illustrated London Almanack.")

The Moon is in the neighbourhood of Jupiter on the morning of the 12th, to the right of the planet, and she is near the same planet on the morning of the 13th, but on the opposite side. She is near Mercury and Venus on the 18th; she is near Saturn on the 22nd, and Mars during the evening hours of the 23rd. Her phases or times of change are:—

Full Moon on the	4th	at 20 minutes after 4h.	in the morning.
Last Quarter "	11th	" 54 "	" 9 " evening.
New Moon "	19th	" 40 "	" 6 " afternoon.
First Quarter "	26th	" 5 "	" 4 " afternoon.

She is nearest to the Earth on the afternoon of the 24th, and most distant from it on the morning of the 12th.

MERCURY is a morning star, and is the most favourably situated for observation during the year; he rises on the 1st at about 1h. before the Sun, increasing by the middle of the month to about 2h., which is the longest interval in the year between the rising of Mercury and the Sun, and at the end of the month the rising of the planet precedes that of the Sun by a little less than 1h. 30m. On the 5th he rises at 6h. 44m. a.m., on the 15th at 6h. 0m. a.m., and on the last day about 6h. 40m. a.m. He is in perihelion on the 10th; in conjunction with Venus on the 10th; and in conjunction with the Moon on the 18th.

VENUS is still a morning star: rising on the 1st at 5h. 48m., or 1h. 58m. before the Sun; on the 12th at 6h. 22m.; on the 22nd at 6h. 52m.; and on the last day at 7h. 12m., or 1h. nearly before sunrise. She is in conjunction on the 18th.

MARS is an evening star, and sets at 8h. 12m. p.m. on the 3rd, and at 8h. 27m. p.m. on the 31st. He is in conjunction with the Moon on the 23rd. He is due south on the 1st at 3h. 55m. p.m.; on the 15th at 3h. 43m. p.m.; and on the last day at 3h. 28m. p.m.

JUPITER is a morning star: rising on the 1st at 1h. 3m. a.m.; on the 16th at 0h. 14m. a.m.; on the 19th at midnight nearly; on the 25th at 11h. 39m. p.m., or 3h. 32m. after sunset; and on the last day at 11h. 16m. p.m., or 3h. 7m. after sunset. He passes the meridian, or is due south, at 6h. 45m. a.m. on the 10th, at 6h. 9m. a.m. on the 20th, and at 5h. 28m. a.m. on the last day. He is in conjunction with the Moon on the 12th day, and in quadrature with the Moon on the 22nd day.

SATURN is still an evening star; setting on the 1st at 7h. 33m. p.m.; on the 10th at 7h. 3m., or 3h. 14m. after sunset; this interval decreases to 2h. 57m. by the 15th; to 2h. 39m. by the 20th; and to 1h. 54m. by the last day (planet setting at 5h. 52m. p.m.); and he is due south at 2h. 34m. p.m. on the 15th, and at 1h. 38m. p.m. on the last day. He is in conjunction with the Moon on the 22nd.

At the annual meeting of the Cheshire Chamber of Agriculture, yesterday week, Lord de Tabley was elected president.

The Dublin Art-Exhibition was closed on Saturday with a musical performance.

The Home Rule Conference at Dublin ended yesterday week. A "Home Rule League" was established, and Irishmen all over the world appealed to for assistance to the federal movement. Subscriptions to a special fund were opened, and contributions amounting to £1800 announced.

A crowded meeting of the Birmingham Spiritualists was held, on Sunday night, at the Athenaeum, Birmingham. Special reference was made to the death of Mr. Benjamin Hawkes, a local tradesman, who fell dead, on Sunday, the 16th inst., while addressing a meeting in the same place. Mr. John Collier stated that, at a seance held at his own house, on Wednesday night, the spirit of Mr. Hawkes appeared, and shook him by the hand. He (Mr. Collier) told the spirit that he intended publicly to refer to Mr. Hawkes's passing away, and asked what he wished to tell the Spiritualists of Birmingham and the world at large. The spirit then said, in his own voice, "Tell them I am quite well and happy."

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of Mary Caroline, Dowager Duchess of Grafton, who died at Euston Hall, Thetford, on Sept. 10, was proved, on the 17th inst., by her son, the Duke of Grafton, the acting executor, the personalty being sworn under £14,000. Subject to some remembrances to her children and servants, testatrix leaves all her property to her four younger children.

The Dublin probate of the will and codicil of Alexander Findlater, J.P., of The Slopes, Kingstown, who died at Harrogate, has been sealed at the principal registry, London, the aggregate personal estate in England, Scotland, and Ireland being sworn under £350,000. The executors are Adam Seaton Findlater, John Lloyd Blood, William Findlater, John Findlater, and John Findlater Corscaden. The testator bequeaths to the Hospital for Incurables, Donnybrook-road, Dublin, and the Stewart Institution for the Training, Education, and Maintenance of Idiotic and Imbecile Children, £500 each; to the Adelaide Hospital, the City of Dublin Hospital, the Coombe Lying-in-Hospital, the Hospital of Sir Patrick Dun, the Fever Hospital and House of Recovery, the Mater Misericordie Hospital, the Meath Hospital and Dublin County Dispensary, the Mercers' Hospital, the St. Vincent Hospital and Dispensary, the Charitable Infirmary, the Whitworth Hospital, Drumcondra, and the National Institution and Molyneux Asylum for the Blind, £250 each; to the Convalescent Home, the Old Men's Asylum, the Dublin Sailors' Home, and the National Life-Boat Institution, £200 each; and £200 to be distributed amongst the poor of Kingstown and neighbourhood. Very handsome provisions are made for his brother and nephews and nieces, and legacies are given to his servants. The remainder of his property, real and personal, is given to his brother, Adam Seaton Findlater, and his two nephews, William Findlater and John Findlater, in equal shares.

The will and codicil of William Peere Williams-Freeman, late of Pylewell Park, Southampton, were proved on the 4th inst., by Marlborough Robert Pryn and Henry Peregrine Birch, the executors, the personalty being sworn under £50,000. The testator leaves to his widow a pecuniary legacy and annuities to his younger children during the life of their mother, they and the widow being otherwise amply provided for by marriage settlement. The residue of his property, subjected to a legacy of £100 to his butler, testator gives to his eldest son, William.

The will of John Nix, late of The Hall, Worth, Sussex, was proved, on the 18th inst., by John Hemmings Nix and the Rev. Charles Devas Nix, two of the sons, the acting executors, the personal estate in the United Kingdom being sworn under £180,000. The testator bequeaths to his wife his real estate and the residue of his personal estate for life: at her death there are many legacies, including legacies to his daughters to make up their portions to £12,000 each, and the remainder of his personal estate testator gives to his four sons. After the death of the widow the eldest son takes the real estate for life.

The will and codicil of James Lys Seager, late of Milbank, were proved, on the 19th inst., by James Edward Hunt, Frederick Seager Hunt, and Walter Freeman Hunt, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £120,000. The testator bequeaths to the Westminster Hospital, £100; to the Western Dispensary, Broadway, Westminster, £100; and £100, the dividends to be applied towards the support of the national school at Trotterscliffe, Kent. Testator's widow being already amply provided for, testator leaves her a legacy in token of affection; and, after giving large legacies to various members of his family, he gives the residue to his grandson, Frederick Seager Hunt.

The will of Dr. Donald Dalrymple, M.P. for Bath, late of Thorpe, Norwich, was proved on the 20th inst., by Mrs. Sarah Dalrymple, the relict, and Robert Farre Dalrymple, the brother, the executors, the personalty being sworn under £45,000. The testator devises to his wife his mansion house and grounds, Thorpe Lodge, and all his real estate at Thorpe, absolutely; and, subject to an annuity to his mother, he gives her the income of the rest of his property for life. At her decease, after payment of some legacies, testator gives the residue to certain of his nephews and nieces and the children of Charles Morley Robison.

CURIOUS WILLS.

The dread of being buried alive has led many testators to give very particular directions as to the steps to be taken before the burial of their bodies to make sure that life is totally extinct. Some of these directions are very strange, but are so effectual for the purpose for which they were given, that, if faithfully carried out, all possibility of doubt would be removed about their being, when afterwards buried, absolutely dead. The testator must have been as dead as the celebrated Marley, "dead as a door-nail," if, previously to his interment, he had, in accordance with his will, his head cut off or his jugular-vein opened; and there are several wills directing one or the other of these to be done. Equally efficacious must have been the device of another testator, who directed his heart to be pierced through with a red-hot iron.

Mr. John Jacob Daniel Weiss, a surgical-instrument maker, of the Strand, whose will was proved in 1844, gave very precise directions on the subject, about which there is just a little touch of his business. He says: "And, lastly, it is my express desire that, on my death, a surgeon shall be called in by my executors, who shall place a seton needle four inches long through my heart, which shall remain there, and he be presented with a ring of the value of five guineas for his trouble."

Mr. James William Freshfield, by his will, proved in 1864, well states the very natural and common feeling on the matter, and gives it as a reason for special precautions to be taken:—"I have long desired," he says, "to make arrangements to guard against the possibility of premature interment, and have taken great care to avert a consequence so dreadful in every case in which I had a right to interfere. I therefore desire that, previous to my interment, my body may be opened and the heart effectually separated, and returned into the body."

A most singular condition was attached to the gift of several freehold and copyhold cottages and fields by the will of Henry Trigg, grocer, of Stevenage, Herts, proved in the Archidiaconal Court at Huntingdon, in October, 1724; they were given to his brother Thomas, upon condition of his fulfilling his wishes with respect to the laying of his body. These wishes are thus expressed:—"And as to my body, I commit it to the west end of my hovel, to be decently laid there upon a floor erected by my executor upon the purlin for the same purpose, nothing doubting that at the general resurrection I shall receive the same again by the mighty power of God." The legatee was to lose his legacy if he neglected or refused to lay the body where so desired. However, he seems to have taken care to get his legacy, for we believe the remains of the testator are still upon the purlin or rafters at the west end of his hovel.

A new way to pay old debts was discovered by Mr. Friedrich Adolph Zimmerman, whose will we have before had occasion to refer to. After directing payment of certain debts he goes on to say: "To a certain English lacemaker, however, named Steinbach, who pretends that I still owe him 147 dollars, I bequeath my recently-written novel, 'The Son without a Father with Two Mothers.'" Whether the creditor gave a receipt for the debt on getting his manuscript, whether he was satisfied with it, and whether it vindicated its paradoxical title, we know not; but, as we have never heard of the work being published, we suspect Mr. Steinbach would rather have had his 147 dollars in cash.

Thrifty people like to encourage thrift in their descendants, and often try, by the conditions imposed in their wills, to compel it. We should hardly have thought it was necessary to enforce its observance in Yorkshire; but a Yorkshire postmaster and letter-carrier left his second-best suit of clothes to one of his sons for his own wear, but if he should make merchandise of them or not produce them to the executors at the end of two years, he was to forfeit a legacy of £5, which was directed to be placed in the savings-bank in the mean time.

Admiral Jodrell Leigh's legacy to one of his nephews has a spice about it of one of Marryatt's rollicking naval heroes, and certainly is a good specimen of sailor-like frankness. In his will, proved in February, 1864, he writes:—"To my nephew, Egerton Leigh, I leave my single-barrelled gun; and if he will but hold it straight, and not flinch when he pulls the trigger, I will answer for it that the gun will do its duty well."

WILL OF A USURER.

(Contributed by the Author of "Flemish Interiors," &c.)

Jeremiah Drexellius, in his "Prodromus Eternitatis," cites, at p. 228 of the Latin edition of 1630, a singular document, of which the following is the translation:—"A famous usurer being near his death, sent for a notary with his witnesses, and proceeded to dictate his testament in very express terms, by which he declared his last wishes to be as follows:—"I ordain that my body shall be returned to the earth whence it was taken; I give my soul to the devil." His friends, who assisted at the dictation shuddered with horror at these extraordinary words, and asked him whether he really knew what he was saying; but the reprobate reiterated, three times, the same vow. "Let my soul," pursued he, "be given to the devil; more especially because I have acquired several things unjustly and by rapine. I give in like manner to the devil the soul of my wife and the souls of my children, who have been the cause of my extorting so much usury, in order to have more to spend on good living and fine dress. "Item: I give to the devil the soul of my confessor, who has encouraged me in usury by his silence and his connivance." He had no sooner concluded these words than he yielded up his miserable soul. "Wretch!" continues the narrator, "thou shalt have the heirs thou hast desired, and such funeral rites as thou hast deserved."

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

LORD RICHARD CAVENDISH.

Lord Richard Cavendish, who died on the 19th inst., was the youngest son of William Cavendish, Esq., by Louisa, his wife, eldest daughter of Cornelius, first Lord Lismore, and was grandson of George Augustus Henry, who was created Earl of Burlington, Sept. 10, 1831. He was thus brother to William, present Duke of Devonshire, K.G. (father of the Right Hon. Marquis of Hartington, M.P., Chief Secretary for Ireland); and to Lord George Henry Cavendish, M.P. for North Derbyshire. Lord Richard was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he graduated M.A. 1834, and proceeded LL.D. In 1837 he was raised by patent to the rank of an Earl's son, and in 1858 was accorded the precedence of the son of a Duke. His Lordship was never married.

SIR F. P. PRICE, BART.

Sir Frederick Pott Price, fourth Baronet, of Spring Grove, in the county of Surrey, who died on the 15th inst., was the second son of Sir Charles Price, second Baronet, by his wife, Mary Ann, daughter of William King, Esq., of King-street, Covent-garden, and was brother to Sir Charles Ruggo Price, Bart., whom he succeeded July 3, 1866. He was born on Sept. 5, 1806, and married, Jan. 8, 1863, Rosina Mary, daughter of the late Richard Price, Esq., of The Lawn, South Lambeth; but, having left no issue, his brother, now Sir Arthur James Price, Bart., succeeds him. Sir Frederick's grandfather, Sir Charles Price, who was created a Baronet Feb. 2, 1804, was M.P. and, in 1803, Lord Mayor of London.

The sales at the last Antwerp salon reached the respectable sum of over £13,000.

The private view of Mr. Holman Hunt's picture, "The Shadow of Death," also takes place to-day (Saturday) in the gallery, 39a, Old Bond-street, and the exhibition will open to the public on Monday next. Apropos of this latter exhibition a new French contemporary, Le Collectionneur Universel, makes a curious mistake in its second number, in which it announces that "L'Ombre de la mort," le célèbre tableau de Sir Noel Patow (sic) va être exposé à la galerie New British Institution. Cette nouvelle fera sans nul doute sensation dans le monde artistique; car, depuis longtemps, on cherchait cette œuvre, peut-être la plus importante du maître. Such is fame!

The first course of "Cantor Lectures" for the present session of the Society of Arts was begun, on Monday evening, by Mr. J. Norman Lockyer, F.R.S., who delivered a highly interesting address on "Spectrum Analysis as aided by, and aiding, the Arts." The portion of the subject dealt with chiefly treated of the art of photography in its spectroscopical relations. Mr. Lockyer, at the outset of his discourse, drew attention to a paper read before the society just thirty years ago on a science which—then only in its infancy—was destined afterwards to play so important a part in the scientific world. He carefully traced the progress of spectroscopy from a period slightly anterior to this down to the present day, quoting frequently from the records of various philosophers who had made this science a subject of close study and research. The application of photography to the investigation of the solar spectrum occupied a considerable share of attention, and was amply illustrated by the exhibition, on the screen, of a large number of finely-executed photographs of solar and other spectra, the most delicate lines being plainly shown with the aid of the powerful light of the electric lamp. In concluding, the lecturer stated his belief that spectroscopy had now arrived at such a stage that it could not possibly be pursued with advantage in relation to astronomical observation without the aid of photography, since that art gave the only means of satisfactorily registering the results of research in that direction.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

*All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed "To the Editor of the Illustrated London News," &c., and have the word "Chess" legibly written on the outside of the envelope.

C. Temple, V. A. D., Brighton, and Others.—If, in Problem No. 1550, Black play B to Q 5th, instead of taking the Rook, White answers with Q to K 2nd, threatening mate in two ways.

A. C. Weybridge.—The White King would be in check by the Bishop if the Pawn were advanced.

W. H. A.—The second player could have taken the Rook with impunity, we believe.

Sir William.—To what problem does your solution, No. 178, refer?

Frederick.—The first number of a little magazine under the above title has reached us.

This is entirely written by the author of "Fetters Grammar School," a school famous as the place where Isaac Barrow received his early education. A good part of the opening number of the Illustration is devoted to a record of athletic sports; but we are pleased to see a corner given to chess, and to learn that the school contains a large number of players.

J. H. Hewlett, H. R. S. W. F., and G. M.—Your solution of Problem No. 1550 is perfectly right. Be good enough in future to send solutions earlier.

O. Vossler.—Pray spare us the trouble of setting up positions and answering your inquiries until you have thoroughly examined all the variations. The move of 1. Q to Q 5th in problem 1550 will not enable White to effect mate in three moves.

J. C. Paterson, Glasgow.—They have not yet been published in a collected form. We cannot answer such questions by post.

Queen's Knight.—Should send his name and address—not for publication.

G. G.—Yes; substantially you are right, but the secondary version is ambiguous.

W. Lewis Wood.—How can Black avoid the mate if White begins by playing 1. Q to Q 5th?

J. T. Barker, Charkowitz, U. C.—We cannot spare space to give you the information required. You should obtain a treatise on the game and study it.

Observer.—The line of play you suggest Mr. Blackburne should have adopted at the 13th move of his game with Mr. Rosenthal would very probably have enabled him to draw.

We are in receipt of Chess Problems, for which we thank the senders, from C. W. of Sunbury-C. Duke-M. P.—Victor Gorgias—J. W. H.—Queen's Knight—R. D. M.—J. Harder of Hong-Kong.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1551 have been received from A. B. C.—D. A. D.—H. H. H.—J. J. J.—K. K. K.—L. L. L.—M. M. M.—N. N. N.—O. O. O.—P. P. P.—Q. Q. Q.—R. R. R.—S. S. S.—T. T. T.—U. U. U.—V. V. V.—W. W. W.—X. X. X.—Y. Y. Y.—Z. Z. Z.—and many others.

Canterbury—R. M. Clare—Joseph Janion—B. B. C.—P. P. D.—A. A. C.—Fuller—T. W. Bath resident—B. H. M. S. Britannia—W. S. D.—Nured—L. L. C.—G. D. D.—H. D. D.—W. W. V. A. D.—R. Mark—S. T. H. Faverham—J. Sarcastic—An apocryphal—J. Hale of Oley—W. Airey—W. South—W. V. G. D.—Q. Vossler—M. H.—Box and Cox—M. D.—Little—S. P. Q. B. of Bruges—George and Tom—Perry—J. S. D.—Mudge and Geraldine—J. N.—W. B.—Sigma—Fry—Adam—W. W. B.—X. Y. Z.—Maiden and Man Friday—Queen's Knight—A. Wood—H. Silvester—Fergus—Trevor.

Problem No. 1545.—The author of this problem, which some correspondents were confident could be solved by White taking the Pawn for his first move, sends us the following variations to show that mate cannot be effected by that course of play:—

WHITE. BLACK. WHITE. BLACK.
1. P to K 2nd. P to Q 5th. 2. White cannot mate in two more moves.
2. K to K 2nd. P to Q 4th. Black escapes by 2. P to K 2nd.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1552.
1. P to K R 5th. P to K R 5th. 2. K takes P. Any move. becoming a Queen. 3. R to K Kt. 3. Gives mate.

PROBLEM NO. 1553.
By the Rev. H. BOLTON.
BLACK.
1. B to Q 5th. B to Q 5th. 2. B takes Kt. Mate.
2. B to Q Kt 4th (ch). K to B 4th.

WHITE.
White to play, and give mate in four moves.

CLIFTON CHESS CONGRESS.
Game played at the above Meeting between Messrs. GOSSIP and WISKER.
(Algebraic Gambit.)

WHITE (Mr. G.) BLACK (Mr. W.)
1. P to K 4th. P to K 4th.
2. P to K B 4th. P takes P.
3. Kt to K B 3rd. P to K Kt 4th.
4. P to K R 4th. P to K Kt 5th.
5. Kt to K 5th. P to K Kt 2nd.
6. P to Q 4th. Kt to K B 3rd.
7. B to Q 4th. P to Q 4th.
8. P takes P. Castles.
9. Q takes P. Kt takes P.
10. B takes Kt. Q takes B.
11. Castles. P to Q 4th.
12. P to Q B 3rd. Kt to Q B 3rd.
13. Kt takes Kt P. P takes Q P.
14. B to K R 6th.

WHITE (Mr. G.) BLACK (Mr. W.)
15. B takes B. P to K B 4th.
16. Kt to K B 2nd. K takes B.
17. Kt to Q 2nd. P to K B 5th.
18. P takes P. Q R to Q sq.
19. Kt to K B 3rd. Kt takes P.
20. Kt takes Kt. Q takes Kt.
21. Q takes Q. R takes Q.
22. Q R to Q sq. K R to Q sq.
23. R takes R. R takes R.
24. R to Q sq. R takes R (ch).
25. Kt takes R. K to Kt 3rd.
26. K to B 2nd.

A very clever move, since Black can take and the game was declared a drawn battle.

THE CHESS MATCH BETWEEN THE CALCUTTA AND BOMBAY CHESS CLUBS.
(From "Times of India," May 15, 1873.)

BOMBAY VERSUS CALCUTTA. CALCUTTA VERSUS BOMBAY.
WHITE. BLACK. WHITE. BLACK.
1. P to K 4th. P to K 4th.
2. B to Q B 4th. Kt to K B 3rd.
3. P to Q 4th. P takes P.
4. P to K 5th. P to Q 4th.
5. Q takes K P. P takes B.
6. Q takes Q. K takes Q.
7. P takes Kt. P takes P.
8. Kt to K B 3rd. B to K B 4th.
9. Kt to Q 4th. B to K Kt 3rd.
10. Castles.

NOTTINGHAM CHESS TOURNAMENT.—The Nottingham Chess Club held its annual meeting on Friday evening, the 14th inst., at the Mechanics' Institution, when upwards of one hundred members and visitors met to celebrate the event. The Nottingham club is one of the oldest provincial institutions in England. It was established by Samuel Newham, Esq., in conjunction with Thomas Wakefield, Esq., Thomas Hind, Esq., and others, in 1833. The prosperity for many years was due mainly to Mr. Newham, under whose auspices it successfully competed with Cambridge, Huddersfield, and other strong clubs. The proceedings were opened at six o'clock by Mr. Blackburne encountering all comers over the boards, sixteen of which were suitably arranged in the lecture-hall. These sixteen boards were constantly engaged, for as soon as one of the combatants succumbed it was replaced by one of those anxiously waiting to break a lance with the celebrated master of the game. Twenty-seven games were thus played, of which three only were scored against him, being won by Messrs. Hamel, Marriott, and Mellor, after which about sixty of the members adjourned for supper. The chair was occupied by the Mayor (Mr. Howitt), ably supported by the ex-Mayor, the president (Mr. Hamel), and the vice-president (Mr. Thomas Worth). After the usual loyal toasts Mr. Hamel, in a complimentary speech, brought out the health of Mr. Blackburne, whom he considered as best entitled to claim the honour of the British champion on account of the great skill and ability he displayed in winning the first ten matches against all the most celebrated masters Europe could produce at the Vienna Congress.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

The annual distribution of prizes to the 19th Middlesex was held, yesterday week, in Westminster Hall. The prizes, 222 in number, and of the value of several hundred pounds, were arranged on tables on the steps leading to St. Stephen's. Mrs. Stewart Oxley distributed the prizes. The Colonel's challenge cup had been won by Private Chubb and Captain Woodham; the regimental challenge cup by Privates Young and Frome and Lieutenant Bolton; the regimental company challenge cup by D company; the volley prize by H company; the marksmen's prizes by Corporal Roberts, Private Ulrich, Private Frome, and Captain Woodham; the first three of the battalion prizes (series B), by Privates Lloyd, Ivory, and Gutteridge; Mrs. Holland's prizes for first-class men, by Private Frome and Lieutenant Coish; and the shooting captains' prize, by Sergeant Browning. The company-drill challenge cup was awarded to H company. The prizes won in all the company competitions were also presented to the winners. In D and E companies the cup and medal presented by the hon. Colonel, Mr. T. Hughes, M.P., were presented to Private Symmonds; Colonel Oxley's challenge cup and medal to Private Ulrich, and in K company the Colonel's challenge cup was obtained by Corporal Harris. There were also seventeen special prizes for the band.

Private T. Wilson, of the Queen's (Westminster) has won the rifle championship of the county of Middlesex, after two contests at Rainham and Wormwood-scrubbs, in which the skill of nearly 200 of the best shots of the county has been thoroughly tested. The two competitions were held at Queen's distance, and resulted in a tie between the present winner and Private M'Dougall, of the London Rifle Brigade, both of whom scored 130; Bugle-Major Matthews, of the South Middlesex, and Sergeant Brooking, of the Queen's (Westminster), also tying with 128 each for third place. The tie has now been decided by the four competitors shooting over the same distances again, Private Wilson winning the gold champion badge of the Middlesex Rifle Association, Private M'Dougall the silver badge of the association, and Bugle-Major Matthews the bronze badge. The remaining prizes in connection with the contest were won by Corporal Tovey, Queen's; Private H. Bird, South Middlesex; Private Pott, St. George's; Private M'Dougall, London Rifle Brigade; Corporal Clothier and Private Moore, Queen's; Private Wyatt, London Rifle Brigade; Corporal H. R. Wilson and Private T. Wilson, Queen's; Bugle-Major Matthews, South Middlesex; Sergeant Brooking, Queen's; Private Elton, South Middlesex; Lieutenant-Colonel Rimington, 2nd London; Private Gardner, London Rifle Brigade; Lieutenant Tossell, 18th Middlesex; and Corporal Pullman, South Middlesex. Other prizes were also taken by Private Baker, West Middlesex; Private Elton, South Middlesex; Sergeant Young, South Middlesex; Sergeant Wood, 44th Middlesex; Captain Tully, London Irish; and Private Blackford, Queen's.

Among metropolitan regiments the following returns have been issued:—The 36th Middlesex (Paddington) return shows that every man in the regiment is efficient, 559 men earning for the corps £838, which, added to the extra grant for the proficiency of fifty-nine officers and sergeants, makes the total sum earned from the Government £1114. Last year the corps, with 606 efficient, 537 of whom obtained the extra grant of 10s., earned £1022. The 3rd City of London return shows a falling off in numbers as compared with last year, when 935 members were returned efficient out of a total strength of nearly 1000 men. This year there are 854 efficient out of 902 men enrolled. The St. George's has 494 men on the rolls, of whom 455 are efficient.

The annual returns of the Robin Hood Rifles show that, out of an enrolled strength of 1000 men, 994 have rendered themselves efficient in the volunteer year just closed. The corps consists of ten companies of one hundred men each, and the total amount of capitation grant earned, including the extra grant of £2 10s. for the proficiency of sixty-five officers and sergeants, is £1653 10s.

The annual returns of the 1st Derbyshire Administrative Battalion shows that the total strength is 910 members, of whom the large number of 905 are efficient; 28 officers and 41 sergeants received certificates of proficiency and earned the extra grant, and 102 members have qualified as marksmen; 701 members were present at the annual official inspection, and 475 at the Autumn Manœuvres at Cannock Chase. The total amount of capitation grant earned is £1530.

Captain F. W. G. Campbell, late of the Scots Fusilier Guards, has been appointed Lieutenant-Colonel of the 1st Administrative Brigade Banffshire Artillery Volunteers.

The annual returns of the Queen's (Edinburgh) Rifle Brigade for the year show that the enrolled strength on Oct. 31 was 1918. Of this number 1832 of all ranks are returned efficient, which is an increase of eleven as compared with the previous year. Of the seventy-five officers sixty-nine are efficient, and there are only two non-efficients out of the 124 sergeants. The Glasgow Highlanders, another strong regiment, also show a satisfactory return, though their strength has slightly diminished. In 1872 they had an enrolled strength of 869; this year it is forty less, and they have only twenty-three non-efficients—the total number who have earned the Government grant being 797, of whom eighty-nine (officers and sergeants) have received the special grant of £2 10s. for proficiency in their duties. The amount of capitation grant earned by the battalion is £1418. Another battalion belonging to the same county as the Glasgow corps (the 1st Lanarkshire Administrative Battalion), consisting of companies formed in Hamilton, Uddington, Blantyre, Bothwell, Wishaw, Motherwell, East Kilbride, and Strathavon, exhibits an increase in the enrolled strength, but a decrease in the number of efficient, principally attributable to the fact that one of the companies was only formed within a few days of the returns being forwarded to the War Office, and consequently its members, sixty-four in number, were returned as non-efficient. The strength is set down as 806, against 788 last year—an increase of eighteen. The actual number of efficient is 693. Of these fifty-eight officers and sergeants earned the special grant, an increase of three over the previous year; and the total amount earned is £1278, against £1338 in the previous year. The battalion has eighty-five marksmen, of whom the best shot is Sergeant Newlands, of the Motherwell company, who won the rifle and three stars, with 113 points; Sergeant-Major Blaney, of the staff, comes next, with 108; Sergeant Simmons, of Hamilton, with 107; and Sergeant Cameron, of Hamilton, with 104.

The private view of the Winter Exhibition of the Society of Painters in Water Colours takes place to-day (Saturday) at the gallery in Pall-mall East. The exhibition will open to the public on Monday next.

M. Gallait is engaged on nine pictures for the hemicycle of the salle of the Sénat at Brussels. The subjects are:—Charlemagne, Godfrey of Bouillon, Baudouin of Constantinople, Notté, Jean II., Philippe le Noble, Charles V., Albert, and Isabella.

MAPLE and CO.

BRASS and IRON BEDSTEADS.—Five
Thousand to select from. From 12s. to 30s. Handsome Brass Bedsteads, 5s. Bedding of every description manufactured on the premises, and all warranted.

FURNITURE.—MAPLE and CO.—Families who study economy with durability and elegance should visit this establishment before giving their orders. A Ten-roomed House furnished complete in twenty-four hours. An Illustrated Catalogue post-free.—145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road, London.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE.—100 Suites, of various designs, to select from, from 10s. for Suite complete.
Bed-Room Suites, enamelled Siberian Ash, Berlin Wood, Hungarian Ash, Oak, etc., from 15s.—MAPLE and CO., 145, 146, 147, Tottenhamham-court-road.

BED-ROOM SUITES in SOLID ASH, from 30s. to 50s. Bed-Room Suites in Black and Gold, very choice and handsome style, from 40s. to 80s. The largest assortment of Bed-Room Furniture in London to select from.

BED-ROOM SUITES in WHITE ENAMEL and Gold, very elegant and choice in design, from 40s. to 100s.
Bed-Room Suites in Solid Ash, Medival, real inlaid, very handsome, 50s. to 100s.—MAPLE and CO., Tottenham-court-road.

BED-ROOM SUITES in Solid Ash, real ebony mouldings, very handsome, from 60s. All Bedding is made on the premises, and warranted pure. Catalogues free.
MAPLE and CO.

THE BEAUFORT BED-ROOM TOILET
WARE, the greatest novelty of the day, new in shape and design; elegant, colours very choice. The Ware is manufactured expressly for Messrs. Maple and Co., price from 15s. 6d. to 5s. the set. The trade supplied.—MAPLE and CO., Tottenham-court-road.

BEDSTEADS. MAPLE and CO.

BEDSTEADS. MAPLE and CO.

BEDSTEADS. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE. MAPLE and CO.
For BEDSTEADS in Wood, Iron, and Brass, fitted with Furniture and Bedding complete. Suites for Bed-Rooms from 10s.
each. See Illustrated Catalogue.
MAPLE and CO., 145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road; 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, Tottenham-place, London.

FURNISHING EXHIBITION.—Visitors to London should INSPECT THE EXTENSIVE DISPLAY of DECORATIVE ARTICLES of every description for the complete furnishing of a House of any class, with the most artistic taste and combined with utility. The goods are conveniently arranged in separate departments, all communicating, and visitors are conducted through the spacious Show-Rooms and Galleries without the slightest impunity to purchase. Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality.
OTTSMANN and CO., 67, 68, 71, and 73, Hampstead-road (near Tottenham-court-road and Great-street Station). Established 1848.
A detailed Catalogue, the best furnishing guide extant, post-free.
The Establishment is visible from Tottenham-court-road.
OTTSMANN and CO.

ESTIMATES FOR HOUSE FURNISHING.
OTTSMANN and CO.'s System for Estimating the Cost of completely furnishing a House of any class with every requisite superior to any other method. See "A Guide to House Furnishing," sent post-free on application. All goods are very carefully packed free of charge. This system will be found the most advantageous to the purchaser.—OTTSMANN and CO.

AUSTRIAN BENT WOOD FURNITURE.
The wood being bent by a patent process avoids the constant recurrence of joints; the grain of the wood remaining intact throughout the curves combines lightness and elegance of form with great strength and durability.—Agents,
OTTSMANN and CO.—Illustrated Price-List post-free.

OTTSMANN and CO.'S BED-ROOM SUITES in PINE. Polished, Enamelled, and Inlaid imitations of grey maple, satin, walnut, and other woods, from 10s.
Also in Spanish mahogany, walnut, birch, etc. Long Show-Rooms for the above, with Bedsteads and Bedding fitted up complete, always on view.

LODGINGS.—EXTRA BED.
A Strong IRON FOLDING BEDSTEAD, 6 ft. long by 3 ft. 6 in.
wide, with a wool mattress, bolster, and pillow, complete for 21s.
Same items, 3 ft. wide, 25s. complete. Sent carefully packed; forms a portable package. Also, to suit the above, 2 white calico sheets, 1 ditto bolster-case, 1 pillow-case, 2 white flannel blankets, and cotton-socks, for 25s. 6d. the set.—Address order to OTTSMANN and CO.

GREAT SALE OF CARPETS.
OTTSMANN and CO. beg respectfully to solicit an inspection of their present immense Stock of Carpets, their Carpet-buyer having foreseen the probability of the several advances which have taken place in cost of Carpets, purchased largely beforehand, O. and Co.
are therefore in a position to offer the same considerably below market value. The Stock consists of HANDSOME TURKEY CARPETS,
RICH VELVET PILE CARPETS, BEST BRUSSELS CARPETS,
STOUT KIDDERMINSTER CARPETS,
SUPERIOR ROCK DYE FELT CARPETS,
ALL-WOOL DUTCH CARPETS,
IMPERIAL TWILL CARPETS, and every kind of Carpeting manufactured; also an immense Stock of to match the above various kinds, at equally low prices.
SEVERAL THOUSAND HEARTH-RUGS will also be cleared out at a great reduction, the Best Axminster Hearth-rugs, listed page 56 in our Catalogue at 21s., will be sold out at 18s. 6d. each; and other descriptions listed at 18s. 6d. are reduced to 15s. 6d.; the 18s. 6d. to 16s. 6d.; the 16s. 6d. to 14s. 6d.; and other goods in this department are reduced in proportion. An early visit of inspection respectfully solicited.

BLANKETS, FLANNELS, and COUNTERPANS.—Clearing out, at considerable reduction, stout heavy Blankets, coloured wool, 4s. 6d. per pair; good white ditto, 7s. 6d. per pair; heavy ditto, superior quality, best white wool, 21 yards by 3 yards, weight 7 lb., 11s. 6d. per pair; stout Welsh Flannel at 1s. per yard. A large stock of Counterpanes, Sheetings, Tablinoths, Calicoes, Damasks, Reps, etc., at reduced prices. Persons purchasing for charities, public institutions, hotels, or large establishments should write for OTTSMANN and CO.'S Reduced Price List.

VIENNA EXHIBITION PATTERN COAL
VASE, much admired, handsomely japanned, and rich burnished gold ornamentation, with opal handles and improved hand-scoop, strong long lining, a great convenience and saving in wear, price, complete, 21s.; also the "Portland" Coal Vase, excellent style and quality, price 10s. 6d., forwarded, carefully packed, upon receipt of order.—OTTSMANN and CO.

CHINA and GLASS DEPARTMENT.
Superior cut-glass Tumblers, 3s. 6d. per dozen; Wine, 2s. 6d.; richly-cut Decanters, 7s. 6d. per pair; Lustre Vases (the 5s. pair of Vases are a marvel of cheapness and elegance), Marble and Gilt Ornamental Clocks, Brasses, Statuettes, fine Porcelain Figures; elegant Cases of Stuffed Birds, Wax Flowers under glass shades, handsome China Flower Pots, Jardinieres, etc.; China Tea Services, from 5s. 9d.; elegant ditto, 15s. 9d.; Ironstone China Dinner Services, in great variety of patterns, from 17s. 6d. upwards; Desert Services from 11s. 9d. Depot for Wedgwood and Co.'s celebrated Ware; also for best Worcester China. Handsome Toilet Sets, ewer, basin, etc., 6s. 11d. per set; superb ditto, 10s. 6d.—OTTSMANN and CO., 67, 68, 71, 73, Hampstead-road, three minutes' walk from Tottenham-court-road and Gower-street Station, Metropolitan Railway. All Goods sent carefully packed. A detailed Catalogue sent free on application.
OTTSMANN and CO.

EASY-CHAIRS, COUCHES, SOFAS.
Upgrade of 200 different patterns on show. Catalogues free.—FILLMER and SON, Upholsterers and Decorators, 21 and 23, Berners-street, W.

GOOD FLOOR-CLOTH.
Good Materials,
Choice Designs,
TERRAZZO and BONS, 40, Ludgate-hill.

103 to 108, OXFORD-STREET.

November, 1873.
Madam.—Having bought for net cash the Stocks of the following Foreign Manufacturers exhibited in the
VIENNA EXHIBITION,
I shall sell the same at prices considerably under cost of production, on MONDAY, NOV. 24,
and following Days.
These extensive purchases represent the most excellent and highly-commended productions of the looms of ITALY, FRANCE, and AUSTRIA, which were pronounced by the Jury the grandest collections ever exhibited.
Yours, very respectfully,
PETER ROBINSON.

The Stock consists of SILKS, BATINS, AND VELVETS,
from
F. Reichert, of Vienna
(to whom the Diploma of Honour was awarded),
S. Trebitch, of Vienna, Claude Pannos, of Lyons,
Bresal, of Milan and Como, Jambert, of Lyons,
Tapiarier, of Lyons, and J. Guinet, of Lyons.

DRESSES OF STANDARD and NEW FABRICS,
from
C. G. Hornbostel and Co., of Vienna;
Geipel and Jaeger, of Vienna;
SHAWLS, WEANER, AND POLONAISES,
from
Hlawatsch and Isary, of Vienna;
Trecca, Thorel, and Ratierville, of Paris.

SILK POPLIN, VELVET, YOKOHAMA SERGE, CASHMERE, RUSSIAN POPLIN, and other
COSTUMES and POLONAISES,
in perfectly New Styles and of great effect.
PETER ROBINSON.
Silkmercer to Her Imperial and Royal Highness the Crown Princess of Germany and Prussia,
Oxford-street, London.

SPECIAL SILK NOTICE.
Black and Gold Ground Silks, with floral designs, 3s. 3d. per yard.
Chanté Silks, suitable for Dinner
Wear, 2s. 11d. per yard.
Coloured Gros de Seins of the best manufacture, 3s. 9d. per yard.
Grisaille Striped Silks, especially suitable for this season.
The above special lots are unusually cheap.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

REGISTERED NOVELTY FOR LADIES' DRESSES.
RUSSIAN CORDED POPLIN (Wool).
A special purchase of this charming fabric, amounting to 1000 pieces, now ready in all the new shades of Bronze, Violet, etc., at 21s. 6d. the Extra Full Dress.—Patterns free.

ALSO, IN ALL THE ABOVE COLOURS,
THE RUSSIAN POPLIN COSTUME, ready for Wear, 22s. 6d. to 3s., elegantly made, according to the latest Paris Models. Several hundred always in stock.
At PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

FOR WINTER OR TRAVELLING DRESSES.
RUSSIAN and INVERARY TWEEDS.
In rich Heather Mixture, Iron Grey, Reddish, Bronze,
Violet, etc. Alpaca, 2s. from 15s. 6d. to 35s. the Dress.
Patterns free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

FOR WINTER OR TRAVELLING DRESSES.
SILK TERRY POPLIN.
Popeline d'Ivoire, Drap Vigore, Drap d'Italie, and many other Novelties suitable for the present and approaching Season, 21s. to 4s. the Dress.

FOR WINTER DRESSES.
YEDDO POPLIN.—ALL WOOL.
A Special Purchase, amounting to upwards of 2000 pieces, of this charming fabric, beautifully soft, well adapted for the present and approaching season,
15s. 6d. the Dress (Patterns free), in Black and 48 shades of Colour.
Specially prepared for PETER ROBINSON, 103, Oxford-street.

IN WHITE, BLACK, and ALL COLOURS
VELVET—FINISHED VELVETEEN.
Beautifully Soft Velvet Fila, Fast Black, and in Reddish, Bronze, Violet, Brown, Green, etc.,
2s. 6d. to 4s. 9d. per yard, very wide.
Patterns free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London, W.

The "Leather" Make of Reversible
YOKOHAMA SILK, in Winter Colours.
This splendid novelty in White, Black, and all new Colours, including Clair d'Italie, Bleu du Shah, Violet des Alpes, Vert d'Or, Vert de Thé, Gris d'Argent, Ardoise Foncé, etc., is 48 in. wide, 2s. 6d. to 3s. the Dress, being made expressly for, can be obtained only from,
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.
Patterns free.

FOR EVENING, DINNER, OR WALKING DRESSES.
RICH JAPANESE SILKS.
In White, Black, and forty-six Shades of Colour, including the new Reddish, Bronze, Vert de Thé, Violet des Alpes, etc., Crème, Corail, Corail, etc., 2s. 6d. the Dress, or 3s. 4d. per yard.
These goods are all of the highest quality. Patterns free.

TULLE, TABLANTINE, MUSLIN, OR GRENADINE
MADE WEDDING and BALL DRESSES.
Now ready, several hundred Robes, new Designs in White,
Black, and all Colours, from 15s. 6d. to 30s.
The "Ada," a most charming dress, with Faner, Flounces, and ample trained Skirt, 1 guinea—a substantial box included.
All orders, for any number of Dresses, dispatched same day.
The Book of New Illustrations for this Season post-free.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

PETER ROBINSON'S REGISTERED
HOME-SPUN CHEVIOT SERGES, beautifully soft and warm, in all the New Mixtures, 2s. 6d. to 3s. the Dress.

SEVERAL THOUSAND PIECES OF FINE FRENCH MERINOES,
in all the Colours, from 2s. 6d. to 5s. 6d. per yard.
Fancy Shirting Flannels (fast colours), 1s. 9d. to 2s. 3d. per yd.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.—(Patterns free.)

WINTER FASHIONS.
An immense and beautiful Stock of FUR-TRIMMED JACKETS in CLOTH, VELVET, and the new SEAL CLOTH, ready for inspection, from 25s. to 200s.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

RUSSIAN FUR SEAL JACKETS,
at Low Year's Prices.
PETER ROBINSON still continues to sell his beautiful Fur Seal Jackets, both Plain and Trimmed Beaver, without any advance upon the prices of last season. The sizes are from 22 in. to 23 in. in depth, and the prices from 9s. to 30s.

WATERPROOF MANTLES,
thoroughly Waterproofed, and in every way suitable for seaside wear and for travelling, in a variety of New Shapes, and in all the New and Fashionable Tissues, both in plain colours and all the favourite mixtures,
2s. 6d. to 5s.
The GUINOA WATERPROOF, with or without Sleeves, in all the grey mixtures, both light and dark.
PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, London.

500 VIENNA WRAPS, useful as a Shawl,
Travelling-Bag, or covering for Couch, 21s. each.
PETER ROBINSON,
103 to 108, Oxford-street.

1000 BEAUTIFUL MANTLES, called
"The Hyde Park," very suitable for Evening wear, 18s. 6d. each.
PETER ROBINSON,
103 to 108, Oxford-street,
London, W.

LEWIS and ALLENBY beg to announce that, prior to the close of the year, they are now SELLING their SURPLUS STOCK, in all Departments, at greatly reduced Prices.

L. and A. are also giving their Customers the full advantage of the fall in the price of Silk.
5 per cent discount for cash payments.
Regent-street and Conduit-street, London.

THE JAVA CLOTH, a new, useful, and inexpensive Black Dress Material (alike on both sides), pronounced to be the best yet introduced.
21s. 6d. the Full Green Piece.
Made expressly for PETER ROBINSON, and can only be obtained at his Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
204, 205, 206, 207, Regent-street, London.

THE WAVERLEY CLOTH, in Black.
At the request of many of his customers, PETER ROBINSON is reproducing this beautiful and useful Material (first originated by him), it is alike on both sides, and quite inexpensive. Patterns free.
Peter Robinson's General Mourning Warehouse,
204 to 207, Regent-street, W.

BLACK SILKS from VIENNA.
The Stocks of the different Manufacturers and Exhibitors are now being sold at 25 per cent under their value,
at PETER ROBINSON'S Mourning Warehouse,
204 to 207, Regent-street, W.

VIENNESE BLACK CORDED SILK, at 2s. 11d. per yard (48 in. 6d. for 20 yards);
and a cheap Black Gros Grain Silk, at all prices from 3s. 9d. to 12s. 9d. per yard.
These are much under value.

Also,
Black Silk Velvets, Black Satins,
Black Irish Poplins, and Fancy Silks,
at PETER ROBINSON'S Mourning Warehouse,
204 to 207, Regent-street.

GRAPES.—A LARGE STOCK of ALBERT GRAPES, COURTAULDS GRAPES,
and GROU'S GRAPES,
are being sold much under value,
at PETER ROBINSON'S Mourning Warehouse, Regent-street.

ENGRAVINGS FREE
COURT, BALL, EVENING, and DINNER
DRESSES.
A Large Variety of the most novel and recherché description is now being shown at Peter Robinson's
New and Spacious Show-Rooms.
Pretty Tulle and Lace Dresses for Young Ladies at a guinea.
Brussels Net at 2s. 6d. and upwards, fully trimmed.
Materials for Bodices given with all.
Observe the address—
PETER ROBINSON'S Court and General Mourning Warehouse,
204 to 207, Regent-street.

URGENT MOURNING.
"ON RECEIPT OF LETTER or TELEGRAM."
MOURNING GOODS will be forwarded to all parts of England on application, and at the lowest possible price.
with an excellent fitting dressmaker (if required), without extra charge.
PETER ROBINSON'S GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
204, Regent-street, London.

MOURNING FOR FAMILIES,
IN CORRECT TASTE.
can be purchased at PETER ROBINSON'S, of Regent-street,
at a great saving in price.
SKIRTS, in New
Mourning Fabrics, 5s. to 5s. 6d.
trimmed crapes.
Established in Seventeen Hundred and Seventy-nine.

BRIDES and BRIDESMAIDS are invited to inspect,
at CAPPER, SON, and CO.'S
Warehouses, the various qualities and designs in Underclothing,
Silks, Fancy Dress Materials, Costumes, Millinery, Mantles, Shoes, Lingerie, Towelling, Table-linen, Blankets, Quilts, and all similar requisites for personal as well as for household use.
These articles are all made up on the premises, and Ladies can select at the counters their Silks, Linens, Laces, Madras, Worsts, Longcloths, and other fabrics before they are sent to the various workrooms.
Ladies, with Prices,
on application to CAPPER, SON, and CO.,
Gracechurch-street and Fenchurch-street, London, E.C.

EVENING and BALL DRESSES.
Thousands of Beautiful White Washing Striped Grenadines are now offering at 2s. 11d. the Dress, or 4d. per yard. Starred Tulle, at 2s. 11d. the Dress. Patterns free.
JOHN HOOPER, 52, Oxford-street, W.

FRENCH TWILL FLANNELS.—The largest assortment of these beautiful Goods we are now offering at 4d. per yard. Very soft and warm, brilliant colours, finest texture.—JOHN HOOPER, 52, Oxford-street, W.—Patterns free.

WOOL SERGES EXTRAORDINARY.
A MANUFACTURER'S STOCK now selling at little more than half price. Beautiful Winter Colours, wide widths. Price 7d.
per yard. Patterns free.—JOHN HOOPER, 52, Oxford-street, W.

VELVETEENS.—Very Rich Genes Velvet.
Fila, in the choicest shades of colour, very wide, all one price,
2s. 11d. per yard. Brilliant Black Velveteen, 2s. 6d. to 3s. 6d.,
2s. 11d. per yard.—JOHN HOOPER, 52, Oxford-street, W. Patterns free.

WINTER DRESSES, Extraordinarily
Cheap.—The CO-OPERATIVE DRAPERY STORE are now
SELLING OFF A STOCK consisting of All-Wool Satin Cloths,
1s. 6d. to 1s. 2d.; Wool Serges, 10d. to 1s. 4d.; French Merinoes,
1s. 4d. to 1s. 11d.; All-Wool Diagonal Cloths, 10d. to 1s. 2d.;
1s. 4d.; Trench Cloths, 10d.; Inverclyde Tweed, 4d. per Black Velveteen, 1s. 11d. to 2s. 11d.; rich Black Silks, 1s. 9d. to 2s. 11d.; all quite 2d. to 3d. a yard under drapers' prices. Patterns free.—The Drapery Store, 118, 120, Edware-road.

SPENCER, TURNER, and BOLDERO will make their annual SHOW of FANCY GOODS, suitable for Christmas Presents, on MONDAY NEXT, DEC. 1.
They also respectfully intimate that their Establishment will remain CLOSED from Christmas Eve until Monday, Dec. 29.
Mason-grove, London, Nov. 27.

IRISH POPLIN.
H. I. H. GRAND DUCHESS MARIE.
Messrs. O'BRIEN, DUNNE, and CO., Irish Poplin
Manufacturers, have been favoured with an order from her Imperial Highness for a magnificent selection of their beautiful fabrics, which have obtained a world-wide celebrity. Some clan-
"tartans" are included in the selections.—Irish Textiles.
O'BRIEN, DUNNE, and CO., Manufacturers, Dublin.
N.B.—LUSTREOUS BLACK POPLINS as supplied to her Majesty the Queen.
SCOTCH TARTANS FOR CHILDREN.
Patterns post-free. Parcels delivered carriage paid.

WEAR-RESISTING FABRICS
are manufactured in every style of
BOYS' and YOUTHS' CLOTHING.
SAMUEL BROTHERS, 50, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

WEAR-RESISTING FABRICS.
Suit for a Boy 4 ft. in height, O.C. 25s.; Class D, 30s. 6d.
Prices according to or descending according to size. Patterns free.
SAMUEL BROTHERS, 50, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

LADIES' ELASTIC SUPPORTING BANDS, for use before and after Accouchement.
Instructions for measurement and prices on application to POPE and PLANT, 4, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall, London.

WANTED, LEFT-OFF CLOTHES,
Uniforms, Jewellery, Furniture, and Miscellaneous, etc.
Highest value given. Ladies and Gentlemen waited on, by addressing Mr. or Mrs. LEWIS DAVIS, 2, Crawford-street, Baker-street, W.; or, parcel being sent, P.O. orders. Est. 1850. Terms cash.

J. and P. COATS' BEST SOFT SIX-
CORD SEWING COTTON suitable for all Sewing-Machines.

J. and P. COATS' EXTRA GLACE
COTTON.—This cotton, being greatly improved in quality and finish, will be found unsurpassed for Machine or Hand Sewing.
On reels, 100, 200, or 300 yards.

J. and P. COATS' CROCHET or TATTING
COTTON, in skeins or on reels, of the finest quality.
To be had of all Wholesale and Retail Drapers throughout the United Kingdom.

DUTCH FLOWER ROOTS.—DANIELS
BROS.' 40s. CAGE contains 80 Hyacinths, choice named and mixed; 400 Crocus, in four colours; 45 Tulips, double and single;
50 Anemones, choice double and single; 45 Ranunculi, 16 Jonquills,
18 double white sweet Narcissus, 200 Snowdrops, 24 Iris, 24 Polyanthus Narcissus, 10 Scillas, 16 Iris. Half the above quantity, 21s. quarter ditto, 11s. 6d., with full cultural directions. One and package included, and carriage-free on receipt of P.O. order.
Daniel Bros., Seed and Bulb Merchants, Exchange-street, Norwich.

XEREZ.—PALE DINNER SHERRY,
25s. per dozen, 48 per octave, 41s per quarter oak.
Genuine Spanish Wine, with good body and flavour. Carriage paid.
Prices current free.—HENRY BRETT and CO., Holborn, E.C.

COMPAGNIE FRANCAISE (Limited),
Wholesale Manufacturers of and Dealers in CHOCOLATE,
COFFEE (as in France), CONFECTIOINERY, &c.
Thirty Gold and Silver Medals have been awarded.
Five y Article warranted pure, of the best quality, and at the lowest possible prices.
To be obtained of first-class Grocers, Confectioners, and others.
Factories.—Bernardine New-road, London and in Paris.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
E P P S 'S O O O A.
BREAKFAST.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast-tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills."—Civil Service Gazette.
"MANUFACTURER OF COCOA."—We will now give an account of the process adopted by Messrs. James Epps and Co., manufacturers of dietetic articles, at their works in the Euston-road, London."—
See article in Cassell's Household Guide.

Made simply with boiling water or milk.
Sold by Grocers in packets only, labelled,
JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMOEPATHIC CHEMISTS,
43, Throadneedle-street; and 170, Piccadilly.
Works for Dietetic Preparations, Euston-road, London.
EPPS'S Glycerine JUBBERS for Throat Irritation.

THE USE OF
THE GLENFIELD STARCH
ALWAYS SECURES
The Delight of the Landlady,
The Admiration of the Beholder,
And the Comfort of the Waiter.

FIELD'S PATENT "OZOKERIT"
CANDLES.
Improved in Colour.
Improved in Burning.
Made in all Sizes, and
Sold Everywhere.

JUDSON'S DYES.—18 Colours, 6d. each.
RIBBONS, WOOL, SILK, FEATHERS, completely dyed in ten minutes without soiling the hands.
Full instructions supplied. Of all Chemists and Stationers.

CLEAR COMPLEXIONS
for all who use the "UNITED SERVICE" SOAP TABLET, which also imparts a delicious fragrance.
Manufactured by
J. C. and J. FIELD, Patents of the Self-Fitting Candle,
Sold by Chemists, Oil and Italian Warehousemen, and others.
Use no other. See name on each tablet.

FLORILINE.—For the Teeth and Breath.
Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the world; it thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living "anti-malicious," leaving them pearly white, imparting a delightful fragrance to the breath. Price 3s. 6d. per bottle. The Fragrant Floriline removes instantly all odours arising from a foul stomach or tobacco smoke, being partly composed of honey, soda, and extracts of sweet herbs and plants. It is perfectly harmless, and delicious as sherry. Prepared by HENRY C. GALLUP, 483, Oxford-street, London. Retailed everywhere.

PESTACHIO-NUT HAIR OIL.—PIESSE and LUBIN'S.—The beauty of the raven tresses of the Spanish ladies has excited the admiration of every visitor to Madrid. No other hair-dressing fluid is used by the EXPRESSED OIL of PESTACHIO NUT, which is as common here with the mountain peasant as the Court beauty. 2s. 6d. bottles; also the famous Pestachio Nut Toilet Powder, 2s. 6d. a box. Sold by Piesse and Lubin, Perfumery Factors, 4, New Bond-street, London; and by Druggists and Perfumers everywhere.

OPPONAX.—PIESSE and LUBIN'S
NEW PERFUME
Thus I wave my hair kerchieved,
Where unrivalled odours dwell;
Now the subtle essence spreading,
Folds us like an Eastern spell.
Opponax, the Royal Hunt, and the true Jockey Club Perfume, 2s. 6d. each; or the three, 7s.
Laboratory of Flowers, 2, New Bond-street, London.

ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL preserves, strengthens, and beautifies the human Hair, 2s. 6d., 7s., and 10s. 6d., family bottles, equal to four small.
ROWLANDS' KALYDOR cools and refreshes the face and skin, 4s. 6d. per bottle. ROWLANDS' ODORONTO whitens and preserves the Teeth, 2s. 6d. per box. Of all Chemists and Perfumers.

A LADY, HAVING A BOOPE of a most simple nature, that will at once remove SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS, preventing their regrowth, will have pleasure in forwarding it upon application to MRS. BLACKWELL, Verwood Villa, Thornton Heath, Surrey.

SEDADENT.—CURE for TOOTHACHE.
Price 1s. 11d.; post-free, 1s. 6d. Sold by all Chemists; and by the Inventors, Messrs. GARRILL, Dentists, 72, Ludgate-hill, City;
and 54, Harley-street, W.

NEURALINE, the instant Cure for TIO
DOLOUREUX, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Tooth-
ache, Rheumatism, Gout, and all Nerve Pain.

GLYKALINE, the new Cure for all descriptions of Colds, Coughs arising from Colds, Hoarseness, Loss of Voice, and Difficulty of Breathing.—LEATH and BROS.,
Homoepathic Chemists, 4, St. Paul's-churchyard, and 3, Vere-street, London,

THE GOLD COAST AND ASHANTEE WAR.

The recent news from Western Africa, with the official account of Sir Garnet Wolseley's first action in the neighbourhood of Elmina, on the 14th ult., may be taken to signify the real commencement of an important military task, which is likely to prove rather costly to the British taxpayer, but which seems capable of being turned to the profit of commerce and civilisation. It is proposed, however, in these statements and remarks accompanying our series of Illustrations, to describe the actual situation of the Gold Coast, with its European forts and mercantile factories, and their ill-defined relations to the Fantee tribes inhabiting the adjacent country along that shore, but more especially to the powerful native kingdom of Ashantee, with which the British Government at Cape Coast Castle is again brought into collision.

The Gold Coast, as we lately observed when explaining three Maps presented in this Journal on Sept. 27, is a portion of Upper Guinea. The adjacent parts of that region to the westward are called the Grain Coast and the Ivory Coast; to the eastward, the Slave Coast and that of the Mouths of the Niger or Quorra River. Upper Guinea, further including Liberia to the north, and the country between the Cameroons and the Gaboon, to the south of those coasts, is that portion of the African shore which extends, for the most part, from west to east, chiefly between the fourth and sixth degrees of latitude above the Equator, forming on the map the horizontal limb of the huge right-angled bend in the outline of the entire continent as it recedes eastward, for the space of more than 25 deg. of longitude, so far enlarging the breadth of the Atlantic Ocean. The perpendicular line in this immense right angle is the coast of Lower Guinea, including Loango, Angola, and Benguela, down to a point more than 15 deg. south of the Equator. It is usual with geographers to regard the Gaboon river, which is nearly under the Equator, as the dividing line between Upper and Lower Guinea, so as to make the former comprise the Bight of Biafra, which is the inner recess of the great continental bend, with the piece of its shore below the Cameroons trending due south. But the name of Upper Guinea is merely a conventional designation for many territories and nations which have scarcely any natural bond of connection, though it is requisite for us to take account of them together in reviewing the history of European dealings with this region of Western Africa. We may, perhaps, exclude from present notice as belonging to a different region, the British and French settlements on the Gambia and Senegal, far north of Sierra Leone. Again, it will hardly be needful to say much, on this occasion, of the negro republic called Liberia, on the Grain Coast, formed by freed slaves from America, under the patronage of the United States. But Sierra Leone, though on the extreme verge of this geographical division of Upper Guinea, has a political and official importance as the head-quarters of British Government authority in these parts of the world. Nevertheless, we shall have to consider the affairs of the Gold Coast separately, or sometimes in partial connection only with those of the Slave Coast; where a parallel case may be found to Ashantee in the large native kingdom of Dahomey, situated as near to the Slave Coast Settlements as that of Ashantee is to those on the Gold Coast. A third native Power of some weight and force is that of the Houssa confederated tribes, on the banks of the Niger and Tchadda, north-east of Dahomey. The politics of Upper Guinea are controlled by the disposition of these formidable States towards the various populations of the coast, and the more or less effective protectorate ascribed to the European settlements close to the seashore.

The inland territory which these different nations inhabit, with the country of the Mandingoes and Foulahs, behind the Grain and Ivory Coasts, and with Yoruba and the land of the Warrees, at the Bight of Benin, is more than a thousand miles long and three hundred miles wide. It lies between the seacoast and the Kong range of mountains. These extend nearly parallel with the seacoast, and shut off Guinea from the great interior plain of Africa, traversed by the upper stream of the Niger or Joliba in the region of Soudan. The nations of Upper Guinea, including those of Ashantee and Dahomey, are referred by ethnology to five generic races—viz., the Mandingo, the Grebo or Mandoo, the Kwakwa, the Fantee, and the Warree. These speak quite different languages, and have as little affinity with each other as any nations of Europe; but they are all negroes. The Fantees are the people of the Gold Coast, and to this stock belong also the Ashantee and Dahomey nations, whose superior mental and bodily vigour may perhaps be partly due to their living in a healthier climate, upon higher land, than the habitation of the Coast tribes.

The British possessions along the Gold Coast—that is to say, from the mouth of the Assinee river to the mouth of the Volta—consist of the towns and forts, or villages and stations, in some instances, of Cape Coast Castle, Elmina, Accra, Dixcove, Axim, Apollonia, Annamaboe, Cormantine, Commenda, and Brandenburg, Chama, Secondee, Tacorady, Winnebah, and several others. Elmina was founded by the Portuguese, the first discoverers of Guinea, in the fifteenth century. It has belonged during 200 years to the Dutch, who lately handed it over to the British Government, together with Commenda, Chama, Secondee, and Tacorady, Dixcove, Axim, and Apollonia, west of Cape Coast Castle, and several places to the east. There was an essential difference, as we shall see, in the policy which had, before this change, been pursued respectively by the British and Dutch Governments in their relations to the protected Fantee tribes, and to the Kingdom of Ashantee. The Gold Coast forts are now placed collectively under the rule of an official Administrator resident at Cape Coast Castle, who is subordinate to the Governor-General of the British West African settlements, at Sierra Leone.

The British protectorate of the Gold Coast now includes Denkera, Wassaw, Fantee, Assin, Akim, Accra, Aquapim, Kerepong, Aquamo, Adangwe, and Krepe. Each of these territories is again subdivided into tribes, and in each a distinct dialect is spoken. There are, however, only four languages—the Fantee proper, the Accra, the Adangwe, and the Kerepong or Quang. The Fantee language is the most extensively used, being the only one spoken between Secondee and the Seccoom river; a dialect of the Fantee, called Otyi or Otshi, is spoken in Ashantee, as well as in Denkera, Assin, Akim, Aquapim, and Aquamo. East of the Volta river, the Ewé language is spoken, which is the language of Dahomey.

The Ashantee kingdom, with the so-called protected territories, embraces an area of about 95,000 miles. The country may be termed a plateau or tableland of from 1500 ft. to 2000 ft. above the sea-level, rising gradually to the foot of the Kong Mountains. The Aquapim Hills, near Accra, rise to 1500 ft. or 1600 ft.; but the entire district for 200 miles back from the sea is covered with a dense forest, through which flows the river Prah, or Busum Prah, forming in one part the boundary that divides the Ashantee from the Fantee country. The population of Ashantee is estimated at 1,000,000, and the warriors at about one fifth of the whole population. We shall presently give a description of the country and people, but it is convenient first to notice, though briefly, the circumstances which have led to this war. In the early part of the present century the Ashantees conquered the coast, and the English acknowledged their supremacy over the Fantees. At a later period the coast tribes rebelled, were assisted by the English, and, after a long struggle, obtained their independence. This was in 1831. The Ashantees, however, never relinquished their pretensions to a feudal sovereignty over the natives of the coast.

A GIRL SACRIFICED TO JU-JU.

THE GOLD COAST AND ASHANTEE WAR.

CAPE COAST CASTLE, FROM THE ANCHORAGE.

Meanwhile, the Dutch Government, whose chief fortress of Elmina was nine miles distant from Cape Coast Castle, had always adhered to the Ashantee alliance, which the English had abandoned; and the natives living under Dutch rule were allies of the Ashantees. When the Fantees and Ashantees were at war the Elminas always assisted the Ashantees by selling them powder and arms. Thus it came to pass that the people under English rule and the people under Dutch rule were bitter foes to one another. Now, the English and Dutch forts being mixed up confusedly together, it was arranged in 1867 that all forts west of the Sweet River—between Elmina and Cape Coast Castle—should be Dutch, and all the forts east of that river should be English. Among the forts transferred by us to the Dutch was Commenda, and the Commenda people had specially distinguished themselves in the wars against the Ashantees. Suddenly they found themselves living under the Dutch, and therefore transformed into friends and allies of their hereditary foes. They refused to accept the Dutch flag; a Dutch man-of-war bombarded the village; and then the Fantee chiefs arose and blockaded Elmina. The Dutch and English were at peace; but the natives protected by the English were at war with the natives protected by the Dutch.

Such was the state of affairs in 1868. The Elmina people, being blockaded in their town, sent to Ashantee for help, and a chief named Atjiempong led an army from the west, and, in spite of the Fantees, entered Elmina. The blockade still went on, and all trade was stopped. The Dutch Government sent out an officer to arrange terms of peace. The Fantees said that the Elminas were coast people and the Fantees were coast people; they belonged to the same nation; the Elminas must therefore join them in an alliance against the Ashantees. It was, however, considered that the Dutch could not in honour withdraw from the Ashantee alliance. So, as there seemed no possibility of an arrangement being made, the Dutch Government transferred its possessions to the British Crown in 1872. It may be said that this transfer was the cause of the present war.

The Kingdom of Ashantee was founded, about 150 years ago, by a conquering warrior named Sai Tootoo, who established his capital at the town of Coomassie, while his cousin Boitinni, the beginner of a rival Ashantee dynasty, fixed his seat of government at Dwabin. But these Kings and their successors, till the union of the two Crowns by the expulsion of the Dwabin King fifty years ago, were usually the steadfast allies of each other in the wars by which they subdued all the neighbouring territories. Sai Tootoo, having conquered Akim, Assin, and Denkira, was pursuing his martial successes through the Fantee country of the coast, when the Atoas surprised him with a small escort, travelling in his hammock, and killed him on the spot. This was in 1720; his place was taken by his brother Sai Apokoo, who invaded the gold-producing country of Gaman, north-west of Coomassie, and forced its ruler to pay tribute; after which he inflicted a defeat on the King of Dagwumba, now subject to Ashantee, and exchanged compliments with the King of Dahomey. In 1741 he was succeeded by another brother, Sai Aquissi, who also maintained the supremacy of the Ashantees, but without much fighting. The next King was Sai Cudjo, who effected some constitutional reforms, lessening the power of the feudal nobles by raising many of his captains and servants to that rank. He defeated the rebellious Assins and the Wassaws, and conquered the provinces of Aquambo and Aquapim. His grandson, Sai Quamina, became King in 1785, while yet a boy, and it was by the skill and valour of two Generals, named Quatchi Quofi and Odumata, that the power of the State was maintained. This King, being a weak young man, infatuated by the charms of a Princess of Dwabin, the chief men of Coomassie, headed by Appia Danqua, mayor of the palace, induced his mother to consent to his dethronement. Her second son, Sai Apokoo, was proclaimed in his stead, but, dying a few weeks afterwards, was succeeded by his brother, Sai Tootoo Quamina, then a youth of seventeen. It is the singular rule of succession in this kingdom that, upon the death of any monarch, the crown devolves upon his brothers, or even his sister's sons, in preference to his own sons, who come in for it only upon the failure of brothers and nephews. The long reign of Sai Tootoo Quamina, which lasted to 1823, was marked by some events of political and military importance.

In 1807, when some of the Fantee nations had resisted his authority and received two of his fugitive rebellious vassals, this King marched with a great army through the country along the sea-shore. He destroyed the towns and villages, and massacred the people. The Dutch fort of Cormantine was taken by the Ashantees, who next besieged Annamaboe, and killed eight thousand people in the town there, under the walls of the English fort. The Governor, Mr. White, endeavoured to protect the town, in which Cheboo and Apootai, the Ashantee King's two obnoxious rebels, had vainly sought protection. The fort itself was besieged, and must have been captured or surrendered, but Mr. White yielded the point in dispute, owned the sovereignty of Ashantee over the Fantees, and gave up the fugitive chiefs to be put to death in tortures. There was a second Ashantee invasion in 1811, and a third in 1816, when Cape Coast Castle endured a long and distressing blockade. The English African Company, which at that time held by Royal charter, with the aid of a yearly grant of money from our Parliament, the forts and exclusive rights of trade on the Gold Coast, then tried to negotiate with the King of Ashantee. A diplomatic mission was sent to Coomassie in 1817, one of its members being Mr. Edward Bowdich. They met with a friendly reception, and Mr. Bowdich, who, in consequence of some disputes, became head of the mission, wrote a very interesting book describing the Court of Sai Tootoo Quamina, the city of Coomassie, and the laws, manners, and customs of the Ashantee nation.

This book has now been republished by Griffith and Farran, with a preface by Mrs. Hale, daughter of Mr. Bowdich; he died in 1824. We are assured by Mr. Andrew Swanzy, an eminent merchant in the West African trade, who long resided on the Gold Coast, that the book contains most useful and reliable information, "as applicable now," he says, "as it was half a century since, for in the mean time but little change has taken place in the political and social aspect of Ashantee."

It was at the close of the year 1823 that a fresh inroad of this formidable Ashantee Power on the Gold Coast was met by Sir Charles McCarthy, then Governor of Cape Coast Castle, in a campaign which had a most disastrous result. Sir Charles took the field with an apparent good prospect of success; for, besides a strong body of regular troops under his command, he was aided by nearly 30,000 native fighting-men, under the leadership of allied Fantee chiefs. But having, with a division of the army, crossed the river Prah into the Wassaw country, Sir Charles encountered the Ashantees at a great accidental disadvantage, and was deserted by a portion of his auxiliary force. He was not only defeated, but wounded and taken prisoner by the savage enemy, who put him to death. The heart of our gallant countryman was eaten by the Ashantee chieftains, in order, as they imagined, to endow them with a share of his personal courage. His head was borne in triumph to the King's Court at Coomassie, while the flesh and bones of his body were distributed, in many fragments, among the subordinate officers of the Ashantee army. This happened not quite fifty years ago. About the same time King Sai Tootoo Quamina having died, the crown of Ashantee was given to his brother, Sai Akotoo; and he led his army to Cape Coast Castle, threatening to drive the English into the sea. This was in May, 1824; the war continued many months, while the Ashantees lost thousands of their soldiers, not in battle, but from the ravages of smallpox, and from want of food, having laid waste the country and devoured all its produce. At last, in the summer of 1826, a decisive battle took place, twenty-four miles north-east of Accra, where the British Commander and his allies gained a victory, capturing the Ashantee camp and baggage. Negotiations for peace were begun as soon as the Ashantees retired to their own country; but, from delay by various circumstances, it was not until April, 1831, that a definitive treaty was signed. King Sai Akotoo then agreed that one of his infant sons, and a son of his predecessor, Sai Tootoo Quamina, should dwell at Cape Coast Castle six years, as hostages for the performance of conditions stipulated by the treaty, with a deposit, moreover, of six hundred ounces of gold as a further pledge of its fulfilment. The Governor of Cape Coast Castle was then Mr. George Maclean, the husband of "L. E. L.," who died there. At the end of the six years, when the gold was restored to the Ashantee King, Sai Quaco Duah, who had in the meantime succeeded his brother Sai Akotoo, the two young Princes, with the consent of their Royal uncle, were sent to England for their education. They were here brought up as Christians, and received the baptismal names of John and William. Prince John Ansah and Prince William Quantamisah returned to Africa, in 1841, with the Niger expedition, but landed at Cape Coast Castle, and went up to the Ashantee capital with the party that accompanied Messrs. Freeman and Brooking to establish the Wesleyan mission at Coomassie. We have lately heard of Prince John Ansah as a resident at Sierra Leone, having left the Gold Coast since the outbreak of the present Ashantee war.

Our notices of the reign of Sai Quofi Calcalli, the King with whom we are now engaged in active hostilities, are confined almost to what has been related of the transactions preceding this quarrel. Governor Richard Pine, in 1863, had a dispute with the King of Ashantee upon the question of delivering up, as in 1807, two political fugitives from that kingdom who had sought refuge within the British Protectorate. War was declared, and a force of British troops marched to the banks of the Prah. But they were kept loitering about till the unhealthy season of the year, when they suffered from disease such alarming losses, that it was thought necessary to recall them without any actual service against the enemy. Ten years have passed since that abortive campaign. Our responsibilities are now greatly increased.

THE GOLD COAST AND ASHANTEE WAR.

The entire Gold Coast, with its numerous and various native populations, through an extent of territories along the shore measuring nearly three hundred miles, has virtually passed under the British Protectorate, by the cession of all the Danish and Dutch forts to Great Britain. The King of Ashantee still claims to be the suzerain or lord paramount of all the Fantee chiefs, and demands either a tribute from each of them, or else a payment, by way of rent, from the European possessors of those forts and stations which he says were built on their lands. That this claim is unfounded would appear from the historical fact of their ancient foundation, so far back as two, three, or even four centuries ago. It was in 1473 that St. George de Elmina was founded by the Portuguese, and Columbus visited the place in one of his earlier voyages, before he sailed to discover the New World. But with regard to the demands of homage and tribute from some of the western provinces, it may perhaps appear on examination that the Ashantee kingdom has rights acquired by conquest on the one part, and conceded by formal submission on the other, which have been officially recognised in former acts of the British Government. The result, however, of Sir Garnet Wolseley's expected successes may be to effect a complete change in the political situation of the Gold Coast. It is most desirable, not that the Ashantee kingdom should be overthrown, but that the Fantees and others near the Atlantic shore be placed in security from the Ashantee oppressions and aggressions which have so often disturbed this country, and that a safe and free road be opened for European commerce with the interior of Western Africa, a vast region abounding with natural riches.

We now proceed to give some description of the Ashantees and their metropolis, their manners, customs, government, and institutions, and the Court of their Monarch, from the accounts furnished by travellers, Mr. Bowdich and others of more recent times. Next to his narrative came the accounts given a few years later by Mr. Joseph Dupuis and Mr. Hutton, who visited Coomassie on a similar errand of negotiation, and each of whom produced a book on his return to England. But more recent descriptions will be found in the monthly reports of the Wesleyan Missionary Society for January, 1840, and November, 1842, containing the journals and despatches of the Rev. T. B. Freeman, who established a religious mission at Coomassie. There are several narratives and descriptions of later date.

The Ashantee nation are a high-spirited, brave, and intelligent race of negroes, very superior to those along the coast. Both men and women, though as black as any other negroes, are handsomely shaped — often with features of classical regularity, aquiline noses or Grecian foreheads. Persons of the higher class are very cleanly in their habits, bathing every day and washing themselves with warm water and soap. They sometimes ornament their faces with delicate patterns in green or white paint drawn on the cheeks or temples. The ordinary dress is a simple tunic of some coloured cloth or silk manufactured in the native looms; gold ornaments of various designs are worn and strings of aggrary beads, which are made of a pebble like agate or cornelian, much prized in this country. The head-gear of military officers, in full uniform, is adorned with a pair of ram's horns, or a bunch of long feathers.

FANTIE HUTS

Their houses are commonly built of "swish," or plastered clay put in between two frames of stakes and wattles set apart for the thickness of the wall; the wattles are left on each side embedded in the clay, and the wall is very durable. Each end of the house is gabled, with three poles set in a triangular position, supporting at the apex, from end to end, the horizontal ridge-pole upon which is laid the roof sloping to each side; this consists of a thatch of palm-leaves on a bamboo framework. The floor, raised several steps, is of stone or hardened clay, and is daily washed and coloured with a pigment of red ochre. The wooden doors, door-posts, and lintels are ingeniously carved for decoration, and curious geometrical patterns are stamped in the plaster of the internal walls; painting and even gilding are also used to ornament the houses of the rich and noble. The King has a stone-built house of several apartments, erected by Sai Tootoo Quamina, but this is not his usual residence. The Ashantee carpenters, blacksmiths, goldsmiths, potters, weavers, dyers, and tanners were less skilful than the artisans of Dagwumba and the Houssas, but they have improved by the example of foreign workmen, more especially of the Mohammedans who come from Soudan as traders or settlers at Coomassie. Specimens of the native manufactures are to be seen in the British Museum.

These hereditary traditions cause much diversity of manners among the people.

They are fond of dancing, mimicry, narrative speeches, and songs; also of music. Among their instruments of which are the sanko, a kind of guitar; the bentwa, like the jews' harp, held between the teeth and twanged with a short rod; a rude sort of violin, played with a bow; their ivory horns, formed of elephants' tusks pierced with holes for the graduated notes; their drums of hollowed wood having a skin fixed across the open top; and several other instruments, besides gongs and castanets to make an extra noise. The tuneful flourishes upon the horns are known to be associated with the chanting of particular sentences or phrases to the same tune. They serve in this way for signals and orders, or to proclaim the titles and prerogatives of the King and the Princes or great nobles of Ashantee.

This leads us to speak of the Government, laws, and customs of the State. The political constitution is not, as in Dahomey, a mere despotism, but a strong Monarchy somewhat restrained by the privileges of a feudal aristocracy, whose members, entitled Caboceers, are consulted by the King upon foreign affairs, because their co-operation is needful to carry on a war. He does not generally convene either the assembly of Caboceers, or that of captains to debate upon matters of civil government of the kingdom; but in deliberating upon an important judicial sentence or the enactment of a new law he will frequently invite a few chosen counsellors of both those classes to give him their private advice. The remarkable Ashantee law of succession to the throne, or to the stool, as it is called, of Royalty, was described in a former paragraph. The revenues of his Majesty are great for the number of his subjects. He receives monthly or yearly tributes from many fertile provinces, taxes from the numerous crooms or villages throughout his dominion, tolls and customs' due upon trade, the produce of gold-fields in Denkeria Assin, and Akim, with a portion of the gold from the mines of Gaman, the sweepings of gold-dust from the market-place at Coomassie, a tax on all gold ornaments worn by the nobles; and, finally, at the death of every man or woman in Ashantee, all the gold that belonged to the deceased becomes the property of the King. He has therefore always plenty of treasure for the purpose either of rewarding his servants or bribing others, or for the expenses of a war. But very large sums are squandered in displays of barbaric pomp, and in the monstrous orgies that attend each Grand Custom or State Festival, as well as the funeral ceremonies performed on the death of any Prince or relative of the King.

FANTIE HUTS.

THE GOLD COAST AND ASHANTEE WAR.

These Customs and Funerals, both in Ashantee and in the neighbouring Kingdom of Dahomey, are characterised by inconceivable excesses of devilish ferocity and debasing intoxication on a wholesale scale, promoted by the priests of a baneful superstition. They are countenanced by the rulers of the State, probably as convenient means of giving vent safely to the lowest passions of the vulgar, and so diverting the popular mind from affairs of social interest. This policy reminds us very much of that which prescribed the not less horrible exhibitions of slaughter in the capital and other cities of the Roman Empire; while the established religion or Fetish of the Ashantees, though it lacks the adornments of an exquisite poetical fancy and the perfect sculptures of Greek art, is not more irrational or more immoral than that of the ancient heathen world.

The Ashantees are reported to believe in the existence of a Supreme God, but that He has discarded the negro races of mankind from his favour, because their first progenitors on earth made a wrong and silly choice. Three black men with their black wives, and three white couples at the same time, were created by the Almighty Maker. They slept and awoke in the morning, to find a closed box and a folded paper laid upon the ground before them. The Lord bade each party to choose. The negroes took the box, expecting it to contain everything they could want or desire. But it contained only a piece of gold, and some pieces of iron and other metals, which they did not know how to use. The white men chose the paper, which was covered with written knowledge. By this, God taught the white men to build a ship and sail to Europe, where, by the same teaching, they studied and practised the arts and sciences. Now come the white men back, as traders and armed masters, to deal with the black men as they please. But the Ashantee head may have as good brains in it as the European, and his limbs have as good muscle; so that, when he gets the same knowledge, he expects to be able to take care of himself—and let us hope that he will do so.

Meanwhile, till he gets the better knowledge of Christianity, this unhappy black man of Western Africa considers himself an exile from Divine favour, which he measures only by the amount of comfort bestowed upon mankind in their earthly life. The negro, in this general condition, is a slighted or disgraced child of the universal Father. Only the kings, princes, and caboceers or nobles, who are so manifestly privileged with superior happiness by the gift of God here below, will enjoy after their decease, if the funeral rites be duly performed, a renewal of their dignified existence in a future Elysium, which seems to be exactly like that of the Homeric creed. The spirits of the wise and virtuous dead become guardian angels and monitors or mediators for the welfare of those who believe in their beneficial presence. But the souls of inferior men fall into a torpid, dozing, eternal laziness, which the common negro likes better than any other state in life; and it is considered that the majority of white men are to be provided for in the same manner when they have put off their difference of skin by the inevitable doom of mortality.

Such is the religious philosophy of the Ashantees, and of most other nations in Guinea, but combined with a belief, similar to that which prevailed likewise in ancient Greece, Syria, and Italy, concerning the existence of innumerable minor deities. These are of local and special powers, dwelling for instance in particular rivers, woods, or mountains, or managing certain operations of nature, or inspiring an oracle at the venerated shrine, all which, again, is very like the classic superstition of antiquity. Each family of rank has its Lares and Penates, its ancestral and household divinities, to which sacrifices and libations are duly offered. The word fetich denotes every object or influence of religious awe, an idol, a talisman, a charm, an oath, or any prohibition or restriction for fear of the gods. Wizards, soothsayers, and necromancers have much power and profit in Ashantee. They meet, indeed, the competition of a rival class of impostors, the Moors or low Mohammedan strangers, who do a brisk trade in amulets or parchment,

THE COAST, GAMBIA RIVER.

JU-JU HOUSE.

inscribed with Arabic sentences, by which the bearer trusts to be secured against wounds, diseases, losses, and all the ills of life. These are worn by soldiers in battle, and help to fortify their great native courage.

The atrocious practice of offering human sacrifices to the hateful deities of this savage nation, and to the manes or souls of friends recently dead, is the worst feature of the negro character. Not only criminals, political enemies, or prisoners of war, but inoffensive people, and freemen as well as slaves, may be taken indiscriminately for the victims of this dreadful custom.

(To be continued.)

OUR ILLUSTRATIONS.

CAPE COAST CASTLE.

The head British establishment on the Gold Coast is Cape Coast Castle, where the Administrator of the Gold Coast, who acts under the Governor-General resident at Sierra Leone, has his official post and seat of jurisdiction. The fort covers several acres of ground, its walls are twenty to twenty-five feet high, and it mounts above one hundred guns. It was built by the Danes, sold to the Dutch, taken by the English, under Admiral Holmes, in the seventeenth century, and has continued in our hands ever since. The favourite sentimental poetess L. E. L. (Letitia Eliza Landon) is buried here; she was the wife of Mr. George Maclean, Governor of this place at the time of her death, in 1838. Our view of Cape Coast Castle, as seen from the anchorage, is copied from a sketch by Major H. A. Leveson, formerly Acting Governor of Lagos. The other sketches, from which are drawn the Engravings in this Extra Supplement, were contributed by Mr. R. L. Harries, of Tottenham, who also supplies the following notes:—

THE DEVIL'S POINT, GAMBIA RIVER.

The site of the village near the Devil's Point, a few huts of which can be seen in the Illustration, is one of the most weird, strange-looking spots imaginable. The trees, with their gnarled branches and varying colours, present a most grotesque appearance—one tree especially, which, quite denuded of leaves, is laden with birds'-nests of a yellow colour; these in the distance have the appearance of fruit. The natives of the Gambia are of a very warlike character, and would probably make good native soldiers, should the plan of recruiting in this district be carried out.

FANTEE HUTS.

These little drawings are intended to convey a general idea of the dwellings of the natives of the West Coast of Africa, all whose habitations are very similarly constructed. The materials are chiefly palm-leaves plaited together, long grass, or reeds. It is, of course, evident that when dry these huts are very inflammable—indeed, the construction is so light that a native village can at any time be easily destroyed, especially if taken by surprise, when gunpowder is sure to be stored there. Of course, such primitive homes can easily be rebuilt.

A GIRL OFFERED TO JU-JU.

Human sacrifices are still frequent in Western Africa, especially in the neighbourhood of the Bonny river. Ju-Ju is to the tribes somewhat south of Ashantee what fetish is to the natives of the Gold Coast. The victim, generally a girl, is selected from the best and comeliest—we cannot say fairest, though they have shades of colour among them. The unfortunate creature is tied to a stake at low water, if on the seashore for the sharks to eat, or if in the river for the crocodiles to devour. No modern Perseus has yet been heard of to rescue these dusky Andromedas of the nineteenth century. Some culprits, such as incorrigible thieves, are said to be punished with death in a similar manner; but the more general mode of execution is by crucifixion on land, this awful death being accelerated by the wild dogs.

A JU-JU HOUSE.

The Ju-ju house or chapel at Bonny, the interior of which is shown in the last of Mr. Harries' sketches, was a wattle-and-dab shed, oblong in form, and thirty or forty feet in length. At the upper end was a kind of altar, with a canopy or eaves of mat, and with a concave recess at the back. Across the front, underneath the roof, were arranged in two rows, impaled together, a number of fleshless human skulls. Some of these were painted, or otherwise decorated; one had a black imitation beard, which was doubtless a copy from life. Between the two rows of human skulls was a line of goats' heads, also streaked with red and white. An old bar shot, used probably as a club to fell the victims, hung in a corner. Near the ground was fixed a horizontal board, or shelf, which was striped like the relics above. A sweep of loose thatch below this, like a fringe or valance, covered the base of the altar; but left an open space in the middle, where a round hole or basin, with a raised rim of clay, was made to receive libations and the blood of victims. There were spare rows of skulls, and others separate, upon stakes planted against the walls about the room.

[We may refer to the book of Mr. Harries, "Wanderings in Africa, from Liverpool to Fernando Po, by a F.R.G.S.," published by Messrs. Tinsley.]

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1873.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 1788.—VOL. LXIII.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1873.

WITH
EXTRA SUPPLEMENT { SIXPENOE.
By Post, 6d.

OFFICERS AND MEN OF THE 23RD FUSILIERS IN THEIR ORDINARY UNIFORM AND AS EQUIPPED FOR THE GOLD COAST.

For us to attempt any detailed description of the incidents arising out of this frightful disaster would be not only a misplaced but a futile task. We take it for granted that most of our readers have eagerly perused the narratives that have been given to the public in the daily press. They cannot fail to have left upon the mind a most painful impression. Leaving out of sight, for the present, all questions as to who may be the parties upon whom rests the blame of this occurrence, it is difficult, if not impossible, not to be conscious of an increased sense of insecurity in relation to ocean communication. Here is an accident, involving terrible loss of life, which, one would think, might have been, and ought to have been, avoided. Until all the evidence which the case will admit of is submitted to the public judgment, we refrain from pronouncing any confident opinion. But it does seem strange that, on a clear starlight night, in mid-ocean, when, if there had been due precaution observed, all appreciable danger should have been absent, two large vessels should come into collision, one of them, moreover, the steamer, having full power over the direction of her own course. A mystery appears to hang over the fact, which has hitherto remained unsolved. No doubt searching inquiry will be instituted by the proper authorities in France, and, if it be now possible, blame will be apportioned in accordance with the facts. But no explanations of what has taken place, or of how it came to take place, can wholly efface from the mind of the public the unwelcome impression which this collision has made upon it—that the passage to and fro between Europe and America is subject to greater perils than has been customarily supposed.

DR. HANS VON BULOW will give his LAST PIANO RECITAL AT ST. JAMES'S HALL, on WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON NEXT, 12th, 10, at Three O'clock. The programme will include Beethoven's Sonata in F-sharp, Op. 10, No. 3; Chopin's Nocturne in G-flat, Op. 9, No. 3; Liszt's "Les Mephistophélès"; and 32 Variations in C Minor, op. 45, Schubert's "Scherzo" in D-flat, Op. 9, No. 3, and "Scherzo" in G-flat, Op. 10, No. 3. The programme also includes a selection of works from Chopin, Liszt, Brahms, and Rheinberger. Solo Solo, Major, and Captain, will be accompanied by the pianist. Tickets may be obtained of Stanley Lucas, Weaver, 4, 14, New Bond-street; Mitchell, 10, Old Broad-street; or from Messrs. C. 48, 48, Pall Mall. Box Office, Exchange-buildings; Mr. George Dolby, 52, New Bond-street; Ticket Office, St. James's Hall, Piccadilly; and of Chappell and C^o, 50, New Bond-street.

Accidents like that now brought under our notice usually exhibit traits of character by which our emotional feelings of pity or of admiration are powerfully excited. In the case of the Ville du Havre and the Lochean (setting aside for a moment any conjecture as to the cause of the collision) there is not a little in the conduct of both ships which tends to lighten rather than depress the shade thrown upon the minds of observers by their misfortune. One has no right to be surprised that persons roused from slumber in the dead of the night to see before them impending destruction in one of its most fearful forms, should, in the first display of their feelings, show utter bewilderment. Yet, judging from the descriptions which have been given of the painful incidents which occurred on board the mail-steamer after she had been struck—incidents, we are bound to remember, which were crowded into the short space of twelve minutes, and which were inseparably connected with the alternative of life or death—we cannot but think that, on the whole, the moral bearing of the victims was such as to do honour to human nature. The captain, who had scarcely taken an hour's rest since he had left New York, and who had gone down to his berth two or three hours before, fairly worn out by fatigue, was in his place as soon as the accident happened, and calmly exerted his authority to the last. He went down with the vessel, and was saved, only as others were saved, by being picked up from the deep by one of the boats lowered for the occasion. The captain of the sailing-vessel by which the mischief was caused hove to, probably, as soon as it was practicable, and exerted himself with praiseworthy energy to lessen the ill-consequences likely to result from the disaster. The crew of the Ville du Havre showed themselves amenable to discipline in circumstances amid which a prompt and rigid observance of discipline was all but impossible. There was heroism amongst the passengers before the steamer sank—the calmness of resignation in many; the stillness of despair, perhaps, in most; and in some, including both women and children, the magnanimity of faith. One priest there was who tranquilly ministered the consolations of his office, and who, having been amongst the survivors, testifies to the remarkable submission with which most of the passengers confronted their approaching fate.

But whilst the incidents to which we have just adverted somewhat alleviate the terrors of the scene, one cannot but turn from the past to the future, and ask whether it is inevitable that such things should occur. It has been pertinently observed that we are yet but at the beginning of the history of steam navigation across the Atlantic. The track is now but little frequented, as compared with what it may be expected to become before the lapse of another generation. Will nothing more effectual be done than has hitherto been attempted to minimise preventable accidents, and to spare humanity the shock of being made to witness such lamentable occurrences as that now under notice? Possibly, as visible dangers multiply, precautions will more than proportionately increase. Experience will convince even the nautical class that there is no moment when want of vigilance can be unaccompanied by danger, and that the intelligence with which man makes the elements subservient to his needs can never be relied upon for averting peril, save as it is associated with those moral qualities which alone can ensure a faithful fulfilment of appointed duty.

THE COURT.

The Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold, arrived at Windsor Castle shortly before nine o'clock on Saturday morning last from the Highlands. The suite in attendance consisted of the Countess of Erroll, the Hon. Flora Macdonald, Lieutenant-General Viscount Bridport, Major-General H. F. Ponsonby, Mr. Sahl, Mr. Collins, and Dr. Marshall. The Hon. Frances Drummond also attended her Majesty to Perth. The Queen was received at the Windsor railway station by the Mayor, by whose order a Royal salute was fired from Bachelier's Acre, and the bells of St. John's Church were rung upon the arrival of the Court. The Marchioness of Ely arrived at the castle. Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse-Darmstadt, accompanied by Prince Irene, Prince Ernest Louis, and Princess Alix of Hesse, and attended by Colonel von Westerstetter and Dr. Hauffmann, arrived at the castle on a visit to her Majesty. Their Royal Highnesses crossed from Ostend the previous evening on board the special steamer Samphire, Captain Goldsack, and were met upon landing at Dover by the Hon. Mortimer Sackville West, who attended the Royal travellers, on Saturday, to Windsor, they having passed the night at the Lord Warden Hotel. The Hon. Emily Hardinge, Lady in Waiting to Princess Louis of Hesse, arrived at the castle. On Sunday the Queen, Princess Louis of Hesse, and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service in the private chapel of the castle. The Rev. Thomas James Rowse, M.A., officiated. The Very Rev. the Dean of Windsor dined with her Majesty. On Monday Prince Leopold, who has recovered from his indisposition, left the castle for Wykeham House, Oxford, to resume his studies at the University. Major-General and the Hon. Mrs. Ponsonby dined with the Queen. On Tuesday the Right Hon. W. E. and Mrs. Gladstone arrived at the castle, and, with Sir T. M. Biddulph, dined with her Majesty. On Wednesday Count d'Harcourt, French Ambassador, had an audience of the Queen, to present his letter of recall. Count Hohenthal, on a special mission from the King of Saxony, presented a letter to her Majesty from his Sovereign, announcing his accession. Baron de Fabrice, Saxon Minister, also presented his new credentials. The Bishop of Winchester did homage on his appointment. Earl Granville and the Lord Chamberlain were present. The Hon. and Rev. E. S. Keppel, Deputy Clerk of the Closet, was in attendance. The Bishop of Winchester was afterwards invested by the Queen with the insignia of his office as Prelate of the Order of the Garter; after which the Bishop of Winchester made the declaration as Prelate of the order. Princess Beatrice was with her Majesty. The Countess of Erroll, the Lord Chamberlain, the Groom in Waiting, and Sir Albert W. Woods, "Garter," were in attendance. Earl Granville and the Lord Chamberlain had audiences of the Queen. The Premier and Mrs. Gladstone left the castle. Her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Louis of Hesse and Princess Beatrice, has walked and driven out daily. Prince Louis of Hesse, with the gentlemen of the Court, has had good sport shooting. The Hon. Caroline Cavendish and the Hon. Mary Lascelles have succeeded the Hon. Flora Macdonald and the Hon. Frances Drummond as Maids of Honour in Waiting to the Queen. The Hon. Flora Macdonald remained at the castle on a visit. Lord Methuen is the Lord in Waiting; the Hon. Mortimer Sackville West is Groom in Waiting; and Major-General Lord Alfred Paget and Colonel H. Lynedoch Gair are the Equerries in Waiting to her Majesty.

The granite sarcophagus presented by the Queen to the Empress of the French, as a receptacle for the remains of the late Emperor, has arrived at Chiselmurst from Aberdeen, and has been placed in the mortuary chapel. It is similar in appearance to the mausoleum of the Duchess of Kent, and also resembles that of the Prince Consort at Frogmore.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales continue at Sandringham House. Their Royal Highnesses gave a ball yesterday (Friday) week, to which the principal families of the county were invited. The Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, and the other visitors at Sandringham were also present. On Saturday last the Prince and Princess and the Duke of Edinburgh were present at the "meet" of the West Norfolk Hunt at Conham House, the seat of Mr. Robert Elwes. There was a large "field." The Princess attained her twenty-ninth year on Monday. The Duke of Cambridge arrived from London. The day was duly honoured. The children of the schools of Sandringham, West Newton, Dersingham, and Wolferton partook of their customary tea, given in the large room of the Royal mews in celebration of the birthday, and the usual gifts of hats, cloaks, &c., were presented. The Prince and Princess, with their children and their various guests, were present a part of the time. The Prince and Princess will return to Marlborough House early next week, previous to visiting the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough at Blenheim Palace. Major G. H. Grey has succeeded Colonel A. Ellis as Equerry in Waiting to the Prince.

The Duke of Edinburgh arrived on Tuesday at Dillington Hall, Norfolk, on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Tyssen Amherst.

Prince and Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein have passed the week at Canford House, on a visit to Sir Ivor and Lady Cornelia Guest.

His Excellency Count Beust gave a banquet on Tuesday, at the Austrian Embassy, in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Emperor of Austria's accession to the Imperial throne.

His Excellency the German Ambassador and the Countess Olga Münster have returned to the German Embassy from their visit to Ireland. The Countess Marie Münster and the Countess of Roslyn have also returned to the Embassy from Skeffington Vale.

The Duke and Duchess of Athole have left Thomas's Hotel for Dorsetshire.

The Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch and the Ladies Scott arrived at Montagu House, on Saturday last from Scotland.

The Duchess of Northumberland has returned to Alnwick Castle.

The Marquis of Headfort and Ladies Adelaide and Florence Tylour have arrived at the family residence in Grafton-street from Underley Hall.

His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland dined, on Monday, with the members of the Literary Club at the Shelbourne Hotel, Dublin.

The Earl and Countess of Derby arrived at their residence in St. James's-square, on Monday, from Pau.

The Earl of Dalkeith has arrived in town from Scotland.

The Right Hon. Benjamin Disraeli has left town for Ashridge, on a visit to Earl and Countess Brownlow.

TROOPS FOR THE GOLD COAST.

The 42nd Regiment, Royal Highlanders, whose distinctive title is "The Black Watch," under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel John C. McLeod, C.B., embarked, on Wednesday, on board the hired transport steam-ship Sarmatian, at Portsmouth, and sailed next day for Cape Coast Castle, to join the forces under Major-General Sir Garnet Wolseley for the Ashantee War. This regiment is accompanied by 135 volunteers from the 79th, who came, on Wednesday, from Aldershot to embark in the same ship. The rank and file of the 42nd numbering 660, the whole number of troops on board is nearly 800, for whose accommodation this large vessel is well adapted, and has been well fitted up. She is built of iron, by Mr. Steele, of Greenock, and was constructed, three years ago, for the Allan line between Liverpool and Montreal. Her length between perpendiculars is 391 ft., and her breadth 49 ft.; she has a flush deck fore and aft, instead of a deep waist between the poop and forecastle, so that she will be safer in case of a sea breaking over her middle; and there is, below the maindeck, a third deck, where the soldiers' hammocks and mess-tables are placed.

LIFE ON BOARD A TROOP-SHIP.

Two illustrations appeared in our last week's Paper, from sketches by Major W. O. Carlile, of the Royal Artillery. We now present two more of the series. These scenes were sketched on board the Himalaya, on a former occasion. Eating their dinner at noon, the soldiers behave with their usual gallantry and courage, let the weather be smooth or rough. The beef, fresh or salt, or the salt pork, or preserved meat, with rice or potatoes, the meat essence, the preserved vegetables and pease for soup or broth, and the flour, suet, and raisins for pudding, have been in the hands of the cooks for two hours. Each mess-table is crowded by its men, from fifteen to twenty in number, with a sergeant or corporal at their head. The tin can at the upper end of the table holds either soup or porter. The allowance of meat at sea is but ten ounces for each man, instead of one pound, the allowance when on shore. The dinner-tables are daily visited by the orderly officer, to see that the victuals are good and well cooked, and that all is neat and clean. At a quarter before one o'clock the bugle is sounded for grog; when a commissioned officer attends each company to see that every man drinks his allowance of liquor—at least, that he does not keep it or give it to any other person; whatever is not drunk must be thrown overboard. We believe Sir Garnet Wolseley will not let the soldiers have any intoxicating drink whatever during this campaign on the Gold Coast, as he tried the experiment of doing without it in the Red River expedition with admirably good results. Smoking tobacco is allowed at meal-hours—breakfast, dinner, and supper—and after the evening inspection, till a quarter to eight o'clock, when all pipes must be extinguished. The only lawful place for the men smoking is on the upper deck before the mainmast; officers smoke near the mizenmast. The signal for lighting pipes is facetiously called "Commence firing!" and it is given by a blast of the bugle, after the evening inspection. Where the wives and children of soldiers are on board, the scene at their dinner-time is much less agreeable. They are too commonly huddled together in a close atmosphere below, rendered more unpleasant and unwholesome by the want of convenience for washing. While many are sick, others are crying or squabbling, and the voyage is a severe trial to them. A few kind husbands will come down to look after the comforts of their wives and babes. Such men, it is said, are invariably found the bravest soldiers in the field of battle, the most patient and constant in a fatiguing march.

SOLDIERS' DRESS FOR WEST AFRICA.

The dress which has been substituted for ordinary regimental uniforms, in the attire of all the European soldiers ordered to the Gold Coast, was lately described; but it may be seen in our front-page Engraving, contrasted with the uniform of the 23rd Infantry, Royal Welsh Fusiliers; the second battalion of that regiment having gone out to join this expedition. The new dress supplied by Government for the Ashantee campaign is a loose jacket and trousers, made of "Elcho tweed" (of which the uniform of the London Scottish Volunteers is also made), with a pair of brown canvas gaiters, and an Indian helmet, made of pith and canvas. There is a light and portable mosquito curtain, which may be attached to the helmet. The advantage of protection from the annoyance caused by mosquitoes, sandflies, and other insects is too obvious to need comment. It has been proved beyond doubt that a mosquito curtain is almost if not quite as effectual protection against malaria and noxious dew as a respirator, with the additional advantage that it does not, like a respirator, prevent smoking. Those who know the British soldier are well aware that he will run any risk and expose himself to any danger, or even certainty of disease, rather than be deprived of his beloved pipe. The small curtain is of very simple contrivance. It consists of two hoops of light (crinoline) steel, connected by four pieces of webbing a foot long. These hoops can be contracted and expanded at pleasure; they fit on to the helmet above the brim. The curtain is simply a long bag, run with a string at both ends; it is rolled up and twisted round the helmet, forming a "puggaree." When the curtain is required for use the lower hoop is expanded to its full size, the gauze curtain is placed over the helmet, the string at one end is drawn up, and the curtain is complete. Of course, it is not proposed that men should march with this curtain expanded, but it is thought it may be useful for a man on sentry. While, in case of a bivouac in the open, by hanging the helmet to a bush or on a ramrod stuck in the ground, a curtain is at once formed. Major Sydney Millett, second battalion 23rd Fusiliers, is the contriver of this simple apparatus, which has met with great approbation from old campaigners. Its weight is 3½ oz., or 1½ oz. less than the Government puggaree.

THE ROYAL WELSH FUSILIERS.

The second battalion 23rd Royal Welsh Fusiliers is likely to take a prominent part in the Ashantee war. Its history may here be noticed. During the height of the Indian Mutiny the British Army was suddenly augmented by twenty-three new battalions. In April, 1858, a second battalion of the 23rd Royal Welsh Fusiliers was ordered to be raised at Newport, Monmouthshire. Such was the reputation of this regiment that, notwithstanding the unprecedented number of recruits at that time required for the formation of the new battalions and reinforcements for the old ones, by October, 1858, more than 1300 men had been enlisted for the second battalion of the "Royal Welsh." Although this battalion has not yet had the fortune to share any of the campaigns which have taken place since its formation, it has several times been selected for active service. In 1859, when disturbances were expected on the Cape frontier, the "Royal Welsh" received orders to augment the forces in that country; but, more favourable advices having been received, its destination was changed to Malta. In 1861, when war with the United States seemed imminent, the battalion was selected to form part of the force to be dispatched to Canada, but, counter-orders being afterwards received, it was again disappointed. In 1866, when the invasion of the Canadian frontier by Fenians was threatened, the regiment was sent from Gibraltar, where it was stationed, to Montreal, to assist in repelling the invaders, but arrived too late to take part in the proceedings. In the following year the regiment formed part of the column which for some days was kept in hourly readiness to protect the frontier from another invasion by the Fenians. The American Government having interfered, the services of the Royal Welshmen were again not required. They are now, for the fifth time, under orders to join an active expedition. Should an opportunity occur, we doubt not they will add to the long list of honours inscribed on the regimental colours.

At a meeting of the Bank of England directors, held on Thursday morning, the rate of discount was reduced, from 6 per cent, to which it was lowered a week ago, to 5 per cent.]

DR. LYON PLAYFAIR, M.P., THE NEW POSTMASTER-GENERAL

CAPE PALMAS AND HARPER TOWN, WEST COAST OF AFRICA.

AMBAS BAY AND HIGHLANDS OF THE CAMEROONS, WEST COAST OF AFRICA.

SURF-BOAT FOR LANDING TROOPS ON THE GOLD COAST.

THE NEW POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

Dr. Lyon Playfair, who lately accepted the post of her Majesty's Postmaster-General, in succession to Mr. Monsell, is a son of Dr. George Playfair, of St. Andrew's, N.B., by Jessie, daughter of Mr. J. Ross, and nephew of the late Colonel Sir Hugh Lyon Playfair. He was born in 1819. He was educated at St. Andrew's, subsequently studied chemistry at Glasgow, and eventually became a pupil of the late illustrious chemist Liebig. He has been successively Professor of Chemistry in the Royal Institution, a Commissioner on the subject of the sanitary condition of our chief towns, chemist to the Museum of Practical Geology, joint secretary of the Department of Science and Art, Inspector-General of Government Museums and Schools of Science, Professor of Chemistry in the University of Edinburgh, and a member of the Board of Manufacturers of the Board of Fisheries in Scotland. He was one of the committee most actively employed in the early organisation of the first Great Exhibition of 1851, and his labours in the manufacturing districts, which he visited in order to consult with the leading manufacturers as to their contributions to the "world's show," led him into close and confidential relations with the late Prince Consort. He was nominated a Companion of the Bath, civil division, in 1851, in recognition of these services; and he organised the department of jurors in the second Great Exhibition of 1862. Dr. Lyon Playfair is a member of very many learned societies and foreign orders of distinction; and he was chosen the first member for the combined Universities of Edinburgh and St. Andrew's at the last general election.

The portrait is from a photograph by Mr. Caldesi, of Pall Mall East.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

(From our Correspondent in Paris.)

Thursday, Dec. 4.

The reactionary débuts of the new Ministry have been crowned with complete success. The Duc de Broglie has inaugurated his fresh term of office by the introduction of a bill investing the Government with the right of appointing the mayors and adjoints of all the communes of France, and the majority of the Versailles Assembly have virtually accepted the measure by referring its examination to a committee, the Republican members of which have no chance of causing their opinions to prevail. By the terms of this reactionary law—the first attack of the Ministry upon the principle of local self-government—all mayors and adjoints are to be appointed by the Ministers or préfets from the elected members of the municipal councils, the executive authorities reserving, however, the right of removing their nominees at pleasure, and of choosing their successors outside the municipalities if necessary. The police administration is, moreover, to be transferred to the préfets, the municipal authorities being, nevertheless, forced to provide funds for its maintenance. The committee appointed to examine this measure consists of nine Ministerialists and six Republicans, M. de Goulard and Count de Rességuier being among the former, and MM. Christophle and Pascal Dapret among the latter.

Although a week has passed since the Assembly commenced the election of the members of the Constitutional Committee, it is only just on the point of being concluded. The voting has occupied seven successive sittings, owing to but a few of the candidates obtaining the necessary majority to validate their election. This procrastination has proved fatal to several of the Monarchical candidates; still, on the whole, the De Broglie party will command a considerable majority. Among the leading deputies as yet named are the Duc de la Rochefoucauld-Bisaccia, Counts d'Haussonville and Daru, Vicomte de Meaux, MM. Balthie, de Kerdrel, de Larcy, Chenelong, Pradié, d'Andelaire, and Lucien Brun, on the Royalist side; MM. Dufaure, Laboulaye, Waddington, and Keller having been chosen on the Republican. The delay which has taken place is in some measure due to the quarrel between the Extreme Right and the Right Centre since the appointment of the new Ministry, composed for the most part of Orleanist statesmen.

In the course of another fortnight the electors of the Aude, Finistère, and Seine-et-Oise will be called upon to send four deputies to the National Assembly, two vacancies occurring in the first of these departments. The Republican party in the Aude has decided to support MM. Marcon and Bannel, the first Mayor of Carcassonne, the latter Mayor of Narbonne, as a formal protest against the scandalous municipal law lately introduced by the Government. The Republican candidate in the Seine-et-Oise is M. Calmon, Préfet of the Seine under M. Thiers; and in Finistère, M. Swiney, an influential councillor-general.

M. Philippoteaux's motion prohibiting the election of Generals to seats in the National Assembly has eventually been turned over to the Army Committee, by whom it is being considered. General Ducrot has sacrificed himself in order to secure the success of the measure, and has sent his resignation to the President of the Assembly, expressing his opinion that military and legislative functions are incompatible with each other.

M. de Viel-Castel, a rather weak historian, was received as an Academician, in the grand hall of the Institute, on Friday last. M. Thiers was the only one of the "Immortals" absent; and the galleries were filled with ladies of the grand monde in their new winter toilettes. M. de Viel-Castel's address consisted of the customary eulogium of his predecessor, General Count de Segur, while the reply of M. Xavier Marmier was devoted to a sketch of the life and writings of his new colleague.

The long trial of the directors of the Société Industrielle has at length been brought to a close. The Judges have shown themselves extremely merciful, merely inflicting moderate fines upon the accused—Bureau, the manager, who has escaped to America, being alone sentenced to five years' imprisonment. M. Lefebvre-Darulé, the ex-Minister and senator, is fined £500; the Marquis de Coetlogon, £240; and MM. de Radeport Halbronn and Welleley, £120 each—a nominal fine of £20 being inflicted on General Paté, whose non-culpability was established with regard to all the graver charges.

By the time these lines are printed the trial of Marshal Bazaine will probably be at an end. On Monday the last witness was examined, and yesterday General Pourcet delivered his speech on behalf of the prosecution, and to-day Maître Lachaud is expected to commence the defence. Among the last few witnesses were Marshals Canrobert and Lebœuf, and Generals Changarnier, Coffinières, Jarras, and Laveaucoupet, who described the various phases of the negotiations for the capitulation, and whose testimony with regard to the burning of the eagles was most damaging for Marshal Bazaine. Generals Pé de Arros and Picard related that, suspecting the truth, they had the flags of their regiments burnt in their presence; and General Devaux, commander of the Imperial Guard, stated that when his men heard the flags were to be transferred to the arsenal they seized them and burnt them themselves. Colonel Girels, director of the arsenal, stated that on Oct. 23 he burnt such flags as he had received, but scarcely had he done so than he received a counter-order from the Marshal ordering him to defer their destruction.

SPAIN.

Don Carlos has gone into winter quarters at Durango (Biscay). His brother, Don Alphonse, has made an excursion to Paris. It is announced by the official organ of the Carlists that Don Carlos is about to issue a loan in bonds of 100,000 reals each, repayable at the termination of the war. The Pope has invested the Bishop of Urgel with spiritual jurisdiction over the Carlist army. After the victory gained over the Carlist band at Maestrazzo the Captain-General entered Moralla, which town he has completely relieved.

The bombardment of Carthagena continues. On Thursday week the insurgents, through the medium of the foreign Admirals, asked for a two-hours' truce. Fort Don Julian had been silenced, and its commandant, as well as the majority of its officers, killed. There was a cessation of the bombardment from Friday midnight until four a.m., in order to give time for the withdrawal from the town of women, old men, and children. Accounts on Sunday evening state that the insurgents maintained a vigorous fire, but their shells generally fell far short of the besiegers' lines, except, however, the shells from the insurgent frigates, which are armed with Armstrong guns. At one o'clock on Sunday the insurgents made a sortie upon the left of the besiegers' lines, but were brilliantly repulsed. Sixty of the insurgents bombarded in Carthagena were killed and wounded on Monday, and the townhall and two churches were damaged by the shot and shell. The insurgent batteries ceased firing on Monday afternoon. Guitierrez, the late president of the insurgent junta, has escaped from Carthagena. The English, French, and Italian frigates have brought away from Carthagena 700 women and children, and landed them in a place of safety, to which H.M.S. Hart brought a supply of provisions.

It is telegraphed from Madrid that Mr. Layard has had a special conference with Senor Castelar.

Spain having accepted the ultimatum of the United States Government, all risk of war between these countries in consequence of the executions at Santiago may be considered to be averted.

ITALY.

The Duke d'Aosta has been appointed Inspector General of the Army.

The financial statement for 1874, made in the Chamber on Thursday, and approved next day, shows a deficit of 130,000,000 lire. 12,000,000 lire are attributable to a deficiency in the receipts, and 118,000,000 to an increase in the extraordinary expenditure, including 50,000,000 for the construction of railways. With regard to the estimates of the war department, the financial statement announces that the Government desires neither to increase nor accelerate the armaments. The Government trusts that peace will continue. It believes that it is not desirable to propose any new taxes, but hopes to obtain 50,000,000 lire by rendering the present taxes more productive. It consequently proposes various measures concerning personal property, the grist tax, and registration, and suggests that private documents which are not duly registered shall be treated as null and void; while at the same time admitting that contracts entered into for a short period shall only be subjected to a proportionally small duty. It proposes a stamp duty on transactions in securities on the Exchange, and some modifications in the tax on alcohol as well as in that upon the production of chicory. It is further intended to extend the tobacco monopoly to Sicily, and to abolish all exemption from postal duty.

AUSTRO-HUNGARY.

The Emperor Francis Joseph celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his accession on Monday. In receiving the Bishops, his Majesty said he sincerely hoped that God's blessing would attend the labours of the clergy in the mission they had to accomplish, and which should tend to promote among the people the peace which takes its root in religion. His Majesty added that he was convinced the Bishops would not be wanting in the co-operation which their influence enabled them to afford towards achieving this exalted object. An Imperial order was issued creating a commemorative medal to be bestowed upon all those who have taken part in any campaign since his Majesty's accession in 1843. The Emperor, moreover, granted an amnesty to all persons under sentence for offences against his Majesty's person. He, at the same time, ordered a speedy report to be made to him respecting other condemned persons whose conduct warrants leniency being shown them.

From all the towns and villages in Austria (says a despatch to the Daily News) telegrams have been received stating that festivities and illuminations have everywhere taken place to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Emperor's accession. On Monday night the illumination of Vienna was general, spontaneous, and most brilliant, even the humblest streets being lighted up. The public buildings, the embassies, and the private mansions were gay with flags. The Ringstrasse was a sea of light. The Emperor, the Empress, and the Crown Prince drove for two hours through the densely-crowded streets, and were much cheered. Far away on the Alps shone out bonfires from the mountain-tops. At sunrise on Monday morning a salute of 101 guns was fired before the Imperial castle. High mass was celebrated in all the churches. The reception of numberless congratulatory addresses from deputations continued. To the Generals the Emperor said:—"I present to you my son. I wish you to show to him the same fidelity as to me." His Majesty spoke with deep emotion. Many old Generals wept when the Emperor ended by recalling the glorious deeds of the deceased General Radetzky and Admiral Tegethoff. From all the Sovereigns of Europe congratulatory telegrams have arrived. At sunset another salute of 101 guns was fired from the arsenal. The theatres were open free.

A deputation of army officers, with Archduke Albrecht at their head, was received on Tuesday by the Emperor. He thanked them, and through them the whole army and navy, for the fidelity and affection displayed towards his person, both in good and evil days. Next day his Majesty received the Diplomatic Corps. The English, French, and German Ambassadors, and the Ministers of Bavaria, Denmark, and Portugal, presented autograph letters of congratulation from their Sovereigns, which were graciously accepted. The Sultan and the Emperor of Morocco offered their best wishes in autograph letters, and the King of Holland sent a congratulatory telegram.

GERMANY.

Imperial ordinances have been promulgated dissolving the German Parliament, and ordering new elections to be held on Jan. 10, 1874.

The Federal Council has decided to accept the invitation of the United States Government to Germany to take part in the International Exhibition, which is to be held in Philadelphia, in 1876.

RUSSIA.

The Emperor, the Empress, and the Grand Duchess Ma-

Alexandrovna of Russia have left Livadia on their return to St. Petersburg.

The Odessa waterworks were opened, on Wednesday, in the presence of the Governor-General, the Archbishop, the Mayor, and the other authorities, amidst great enthusiasm.

Sharp discipline is being exercised by the Cossacks on the marauding Turcomans. The Zekizen tribe having plundered two caravans and taken prisoner a sick soldier, they were followed by forced marches and overtaken. Only eight persons escaped out of the whole tribe.

AMERICA.

The United States Congress reassembled on Monday. Mr. Blaine was elected Speaker of the House of Representatives. Mr. Stephens, who was Vice-President of the Southern Confederacy, on taking his seat, was received with unusual compliments.

President Grant's Message was read at Tuesday's sitting. The President points out that the revenue has decreased since June, owing to the financial panic, but that the receipts in coin are still in excess of the interest accruing on the national debt. Should they fall below the requirements of the public service, he recommends additional taxation rather than a loan. In connection with this subject, the President urges Congress to make a thorough investigation of the currency question, with a view to return to a specie basis. Adverting to the Virginian question, President Grant says:—"The capture on the high seas of a vessel bearing the American flag, which threatened most serious consequences and agitated the public mind from one end of the country to the other, is now happily in course of satisfactory adjustment in a manner honourable to both nations. . . . The Virginian, with a registered certificate, and sailing under an American flag, was forcibly seized by the Tornado, and carried to Santiago. There some passengers, citizens of the United States, were, without due process of law, put to death. It is an established principle that American vessels on the high seas in time of peace are under the jurisdiction of the country whose flag they bear. Therefore any visitation, molestation, or forcible detention by foreign Powers is a derogation of the sovereignty of the United States. In accordance, therefore, with this principle, the Government has demanded the restoration of the Virginian, the surrender of the survivors, due reparation to the American flag, and the punishment of the authorities guilty of such illegal acts of violence. The Spanish Government has recognised the justice of the demand, and has arranged for the immediate delivery of the vessel and the surrender of the survivors. In addition to this the American flag is to be saluted, the guilty persons punished, and those entitled to be indemnified." In concluding his remarks on this subject President Grant repeats his conviction that the existence of slavery in Cuba is the principal cause of the lamentable condition of the island, and expresses a hope that Congress shares with him the desire that it may soon disappear. Peace and prosperity would follow its abolition, and there would be no more embargoes upon American estates in Cuba and cruelty to American citizens. The United States is not hostile to the Spanish Government, but the murder of prisoners taken in arms and the capture of vessels on the high seas under the United States flag have produced an outburst of indignation threatening war. Pending negotiations the President has given his authorisation to place the navy on a war footing to the extent of the entire annual appropriation to that branch of the public service, and he trusts that the course he has adopted will be justified by public opinion. Among other subjects referred to in the Message are the awards of the mixed commission and the subject of nationality.

Mr. Williams, late Attorney-General, has been appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. He is succeeded by Mr. Bristow, late Solicitor-General.

CANADA.

The recent change of Government appears to be heartily indorsed by the electors. The new Ministers are all being returned by acclamation.

INDIA.

A Times telegram from Calcutta says that the Lieutenant-Governor, presiding at the St. Andrew's festival, on Monday evening, declared that the prospect in Bengal was gloomy; they must trust to the endurance of the people.

Calcutta advices of Wednesday state that there is no improvement in the prospect of the crops; but that, should rain fall, there would still be time for sowing during the cool season.

The Times correspondent at Calcutta telegraphs on Wednesday as follows:—"Sir R. Temple will succeed Sir George Campbell as Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal about April next. There is distress in Sarun and Champaran, and the people are crowding to the relief works in parts of Patna, Dinapore, and Rajshaye, but not yet elsewhere. The Calcutta rainfall is 25 in. short. Sir G. Campbell has admonished the zemindars to give help to their tenantry, and bestows praise upon three large landholders who have done so. The famine is officially reported at Marwar and Jaisalmer. The Viceroy entered Lucknow yesterday (Tuesday), with sixty elephants.

A despatch, dated the 1st inst., has been sent by the Duke of Argyll to the Government of India, in reply to its communication of Oct. 30 on the subject of the impending famine in Bengal. The despatch expresses the approval by her Majesty's Government of the view of the Viceroy, that, instead of prohibiting the export of rice from all Indian ports, the Government should enter the market, either directly or indirectly, as a purchaser, and thus obtain the supplies that may be necessary for the relief of the sufferers.

AUSTRALIA.

Both Houses of the New South Wales Parliament have passed Mr. Lloyd's tariff bill, abolishing ad valorem and thirty-five specific duties after Jan. 1 next. Mr. Butler, the Attorney-General, has resigned, and Mr. Innes has succeeded him in that post. The Assembly has passed a resolution affirming the creation of a Ministry of Justice and Education, but not the appointment of a Solicitor-General.

We are advised from Rome of the speedy conclusion of the negotiations which have been proceeding between the French and Italian Governments for the resumption of the Mont Cenis mail route.

Among its other troubles Manila has experienced a typhoon. Great damage was done to coasting-vessels and to the hemp plantations. Besides a large destruction of property, there has been some loss of life.

Cape news is politically unimportant. From the gold-fields there are encouraging reports of fresh discoveries. Fair-sized nuggets are presenting themselves to alluvial diggers. The biggest weighed 16oz. and 23oz. respectively. Commodore Commerell is improving in health, and is now able to take a little exercise. We also learn that the Challenger has arrived in Simon's Bay. On her voyage from Bahia she touched at Tristan d'Acunha, and made a survey of the group of islands to which it belongs. Two Germans were found who had lived there for a couple of years, and who gladly availed themselves of the opportunity of leaving.

The appointment of Mr. John Bramston to be Attorney-General for Hong-Kong appears in Tuesday's Gazette.

France, Belgium, Switzerland, and Italy have decided to hold a conference in Paris on the 10th inst., with a view to adopt a uniform gold standard.

The deficit in the administration of the Vienna International Exhibition amounts to four million florins. The estimated cost provided for by Parliament was 15,700,000 florins: the actual expense turns out to be 19,700,000.

Some time since a number of learned societies, anxious for another Arctic expedition, requested Mr. Gladstone to receive a deputation, selected to set forth the desirability of that step. They have now been informed (the Daily Telegraph says) that the Government sees no reason to alter the decision arrived at during the present year, not to undertake any further expedition until the Challenger has completed her voyage. It is held that voyages of survey are more likely to benefit commerce and promote international intercourse than voyages of discovery; and that, as many maritime surveys are still incomplete, any additional charge incurred should be applied to them.

The Servian Parliament was opened, on Thursday week, by Prince Milan. In the Speech from the Throne his Highness alluded to the excellent reception given him in Vienna by the Emperor of Austria, and his splendid welcome by Marshal M'Mahon. He said the attitude of the Government towards the Sublime Porte and the guaranteeing Powers was solely guided by the desire to obtain their friendly support. The Prince stated that a fresh examination of the railway question was necessary. The speech was enthusiastically received. M. Karabiberowich has been elected to the post of president. Serbia is about to make a further assertion of her quasi-sovereignty. On the advice of the Finance Minister that the consent of the Sublime Porte was not necessary for the new silver coinage a bill has been passed by the Legislature authorising such coinage.

The Roumanian Chamber was opened on Thursday week. Prince Charles, in the Speech from the Throne, announced that the relations maintained with foreign Powers were friendly. He mentioned the cordial reception he had met with from the Austrian Court on the occasion of his recent visit to Vienna, and the success which had attended the Roumanian department at the Exhibition. The bills announced as about to be submitted to the Chamber include one for modifying the criminal code and one for establishing a bank of discount. In reply to a recent note of the Turkish Government, the Roumanian Government has sent a circular to the great Powers, in which it says that, by the terms of the Treaty of Paris, it is authorised to maintain direct diplomatic relations with foreign countries, and it is determined that this right shall be respected.

The Pall Mall Gazette states that an agreeable relic of the "good old times" has been discovered by a German paper, in the shape of a bill of charges submitted by an executioner at Bonn to the authorities of Cologne in 1688. The following are a few of the items contemplated in his estimate:—"To quartering by means of four horses, 8 thalers; to beheading and burning, 8 thalers; to strangling and burning, 6 thalers; to burning alive, 6 thalers; to breaking on the wheel alive, 8 thalers; to beheading and fastening the body to the wheel, 6 thalers; to beheading, 4 thalers; to beheading, after cutting off one hand, 5 thalers; to cutting off a hand or two fingers, 1 thaler. Tearing with red-hot pincers to be paid for at so much per gripe. Drowning or burying alive not being usual in these parts, the executioner will, in the event of such executions being required, ask as much as for beheading or fastening to the wheel—namely, 6 thalers. To fastening screws on the thumbs and legs, and driving the same, 1 thaler for the first quarter of an hour. For every subsequent quarter of an hour, 1 thaler. The executioner reserves the right of afterwards receiving what may fairly be due to him for his trouble in setting limbs to rights again."

THE LOSS OF THE VILLE DU HAVRE.

One of the most deplorable collisions at sea placed on record has occurred, off the Azores, between the large steamer Ville du Havre and the sailing-ship Lochearn, of Glasgow. The former vessel was of the immense burden of 5100 tons, and was bound from New York for Havre. The Ville du Havre left New York with eighty-nine first-class passengers, nineteen second class, twenty-seven third class, and six stowaways, making a total of 141, besides the crew, which numbered 172 all told. Many of the cabin-passengers were gentlemen with their wives and families, who were leaving America to spend the winter in France—some for pleasure, and others going there for the benefit of their health. Among the survivors are children who have lost their parents, and parents who have lost their children; others their sisters and brothers. From the time of the vessel sailing from New York a thick fog prevailed, which necessitated the most careful attention on the part of the captain and officers. On the night of Thursday, the 20th, the fog began to clear away, and on Friday, a breeze sprang up which raised a somewhat heavy swell. Friday night was a bright starlight night, and passengers and crew, relieved to some extent from the danger which surrounded them during the fog, retired to rest with hopes of a pleasant voyage to France. The captain, who had scarcely quitted the deck since the vessel left New York, went to his cabin about twelve o'clock, leaving the second officer in charge. The passengers were all in bed, and everything seemed going on well. About two o'clock on Saturday all were startled from their slumbers by a dreadful crash, which seemed to shake every part of the vessel. Men, women, and children rushed on deck in their nightdresses, to see the bows of a large vessel projecting over the deck of the Ville du Havre, and to hear the rushing of the water into their own ill-fated vessel. The terror which prevailed among the passengers paralysed their efforts to save themselves. From the force of the collision, the mainmast and mizenmast fell, smashing, in their fall, the two large boats of the steamer and killing numbers of passengers; and from the rapidity with which the vessel went down the crew were only able to launch the whale-boat and the captain's gig. In twelve minutes from the time of the collision the Ville du Havre had sunk.

The Lochearn was seriously injured, but launched her boats and sent them to pick up those who had saved themselves from being engulfed by the sinking of the vessel, and who were floating about clinging to anything that would support their weight. The captain of the Ville du Havre remained at his post until his vessel went down, but managed to keep himself afloat until picked up by one of the boats. An American vessel, the Tremontain, bound for Bristol, hove in sight about noon on the 22nd. The eighty-seven survivors (of whom fifty-three were members of the crew) were put on board her from the Lochearn and taken to Cardiff.

It is impossible as yet to apportion the blame, if blame there be on either side.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Sir Sydney Waterlow has received a letter from the Italian Minister in London stating that the King of Italy has been pleased to grant to the late Lord Mayor the order of the Crown of Italy for his services in connection with the fund for the relief of the sufferers from the Italian inundations last winter.

A meeting was held, last Saturday, at the United Service Institution—the Duke of Wellington presiding—to promote the establishment of the United Service Proprietary College. A provisional contract has been entered into for the purchase of buildings at Westward Ho.

Dr. Frankland reports a marked deterioration in the quality of our water supply during November. The ratio of organic impurity observed in the water of the various companies exceeds 4 per cent in three cases—Southwark, 4.2; Lambeth, 4.7; and Chelsea, 4.9.

Mr. O. E. Parker Rhodes, on Wednesday, read a paper, at the Cavendish Rooms, on "Our Coal Supply in Connection with Domestic Economy." In recommending the peat-coal which is being brought into the market, he estimated the area of the peat-fields of Great Britain at six million acres.

The election of a successor to the late Count de Flavigny as president of the French Society for the Relief of Sick and Wounded Soldiers has taken place. Out of thirty-four votes twenty-four were given to the Duke of Nemours, and his acceptance of the office has given great satisfaction.

The Sacred Harmonic Society's annual Christmas performance of "The Messiah" will take place on Friday next, the 12th inst., at Exeter Hall. Madame Alvsleben, Madame Patey, Mr. Vernon Rigby, and Mr. Santley are the principal soloists; Mr. Harper plays the trumpet obligato, and Sir Michael Costa will direct the performance.

At a meeting of the Court of Common Council, on Thursday, Mr. Deputy Atkins, the chairman of the Improvement Committee, stated that the Prince of Wales had fixed Friday, Jan. 9, for the ceremony of unveiling the equestrian statue of the Prince Consort, and had further honoured the Corporation by intimating his willingness to be present at a déjeuner in the Guildhall on the occasion.

On Saturday last Lady Harriet Ashley distributed the prizes to the London Irish Rifles in Westminster Hall; the Lady Mayoress presented, in the Crystal Palace, the prizes to the successful marksmen of the London Rifle Brigade; and Viscount Ranelagh presided at the annual presentation of prizes to the South Middlesex Volunteers at their head-quarters, Beaufort House, Walham-green.

The total number of paupers in the metropolitan districts last week was 103,242, of whom 35,854 were in workhouses and 67,388 received outdoor relief. Compared with the corresponding weeks in the years 1872, 1871, and 1870, these figures show a decrease of 4564, 17,373, and 35,255 respectively. The number of vagrants relieved on the last day of the week was 561, of whom 408 were men, 132 women, and 21 children under sixteen.

The anniversary meeting of the Royal Society was held on Monday in their new apartments at Burlington House. The usual financial business having been disposed of, the president, Sir George Airy (Astronomer Royal), delivered the anniversary address, in which he took a rapid survey of the progress of science throughout Europe and the United States. At the close he resigned the position of president, which he has held for two years. The medals were presented. The anniversary dinner was held at Willis's Rooms—the new president, Dr. Hooker, in the chair.

Lord Aberdare, on Wednesday, presided at a meeting of the National Union for Improving the Education of Women. He remarked with satisfaction the energy, zeal, moderation, and good sense with which the movement had been conducted, and hoped the objects of the union would receive the pecuniary and moral support which they deserved. The Hon. Lyulph Stanley moved the adoption of the report, which was seconded by Mrs. Arthur Arnold, and unanimously adopted. A subsequent resolution pledged the meeting to increase the number of members and to form branch committees.

Last week 2222 births and 1585 deaths were registered in London, the former having been 99, and the latter 105, below the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. Diseases of the respiratory organs and phthisis caused 603 of the deaths, against 761, 632, and 594 in the three preceding weeks; the corrected average number of deaths from these diseases in the corresponding week of the last ten years is 601. There were 3 deaths from smallpox, 121 from measles, 16 from scarlet fever, 8 from diphtheria, 34 from whooping-cough, 35 from different forms of fever, and 15 from diarrhoea. Thus, to the seven principal diseases of the zymotic class 232 deaths were referred, against 236 and 268 in the two preceding weeks. These 232 deaths were 72 below the average. The mean temperature was 48.0, or 6.8 above the average.

The newly established Temple Club, in Arundel-street, Strand, between Somerset House and St. Clement Danes church, was opened this week. It is a great convenience to gentlemen of the civil service, of the Inns of Court, and of the City, who find Pall-mall rather distant from their places of business. Ample accommodation is here found in a handsome mansion, close to the Strand, built at a cost of more than £20,000. A large dining-room, supplied by a clever cook from a well-provided kitchen, and from a cellar of well-selected wines, a reading and writing room, with all the papers and new books, a billiard-room, with the best furniture and implements, a smoking-room, luxurious and well aired, besides private rooms for dressing, bathing, and dining, will afford much of what helps to make daily life feel easy and pleasant. The club is not political or professional; its committee includes several officers of the Army and Navy, clergymen, and barristers; and it promises to be very successful.

The Scottish Corporation of London held its annual festival, on Monday, in the Freemasons' Tavern, under the presidency of the Lord Mayor (Mr. Alderman Lusk, M.P.). About 500 ladies and gentlemen were present, many of the latter being in Highland costume. In proposing the toast of the evening, the Lord Mayor warmly commended the objects of the society to the consideration of the charitable; and the secretary (Mr. Macrae Moir) then announced subscriptions amounting to nearly £3000. Among them were 100 gs. from her Majesty, and similar sums were given by the Lord Mayor, Sir A. Sassoon, Mr. Peter Reid, and Mr. P. Denny. Lord Chief Justice Coleridge responded for the Bench, and remarked that, though only a Devonshire lawyer, he still had some claim to Scotland, as he had Scottish blood in his veins. When he considered how successful Scotchmen generally were, he felt inclined, like Mr. Lowe, to wish that he had more of the Scottish element in his composition. Mr. Clemens (Mark Twain), who was one of the guests, responded for "The Ladies."

A TIGER WEDDING IN COORG.

The small province of Coorg, in Southern India, is situated among the mountains that separate Mysore from the Malabar coast to the west. Its late Rajah, being guilty of cruel and treacherous misrule, was deposed in 1834, and the Coorgs, being put to the vote, unanimously desired to become subjects of the British Government. In 1852 the deposed Rajah visited England, accompanied by his daughter Gauramma, and paid his former enemies the compliment of seeking for her an English and Christian education. On June 30, 1852, she was baptised, the Queen herself standing sponsor, and giving her the name "Victoria." This Princess Victoria Gauramma, who was a constant visitor to her Majesty at Osborne and Windsor, eventually married an English officer of the name of Campbell. She died in 1864; her tyrant father lies buried in Kensal-green Cemetery.

A good description of Coorg will be found in "Eastern Experiences," by Mr. Lewin Bowring, late Resident or Governor of Mysore. The natives are distinguished for their fine appearance and warlike temper. They are skilful hunters, being trained to this from infancy; at the birth of a boy, the first thing done is to place a little bow and arrow in his hands, and to fire a gun outside the house, thus initiating his career as a huntsman and warrior.

A curious ceremony takes place when a tiger has been shot by a Coorg man. Tigers are not numerous in the country, and this ceremony has only occurred twice within the past four years. On the last occasion, March 9 of this year, the successful huntsman was Mr. Colovanda Carriapah, Head Sheristadar of the Mercara Talook. In this ceremony the man is wedded to the soul of the dead tiger. As shown in the Illustration, he is seated under a canopy in full warrior costume. On each side are placed his weapons and the household emblems of plenty, vessels of rice and milk, and burning lamps, analogous to the Masonic corn, wine, and oil. So he sits, receiving the homage and congratulations of his relatives and friends. Each scatters a few grains of rice over his head, gives him a sip of milk from a brass vessel resembling a teapot, and makes an offering in money, varying in value according to the means of the donor. The hero of the day is afterwards carried in triumph round the tiger, which is suspended to a high bamboo frame in the garden. The officers and ladies of the regiment stationed at Mercara, who reside in the late Rajah's palace, were specially invited to attend.

Mr. Carriapah is a native Coorg gentleman of high merit and distinction. He wears the gold Coorg medal, which was presented by the British Government to his father, for suppressing an insurrection in South Canara. Our correspondent would further testify to Mr. Carriapah's unvarying support of English education among the Coorgs. A wealthy and influential man, he spares neither time nor money in this cause, and has, at his sole expense, erected schools for Coorg girls as well as boys, and has on several occasions received the thanks of the Government of India, as well as of the local Government of Mysore and Coorg.

We are indebted to Captain Belford Cummins, of the Staff Corps at Mercara, for the sketch we have engraved.

As author of the "Spring Chorus," Mr. John Riviere brought an action in the Court of Common Pleas, yesterday week, to recover damages against the proprietors of the Exeter and Plymouth Gazette, for a libel by their London correspondent. An unreserved apology was taken in mitigation of damages, and a verdict of ten guineas was entered for the plaintiff.

The Pall Mall Gazette understands that the committee of which Vice-Admiral the Hon. Sir James Drummond, K.C.B., is chairman have collected from certain naval and marine officers a sum nearly amounting to £1000, with which they have selected a very beautiful present intended for the Grand Duchess of Russia, the bride elect of the Duke of Edinburgh, on the occasion of her approaching marriage.

A herd of pure-bred longhorn cattle, the property of Mr. R. H. Chapman, of Upton, near Nuneaton, is to be sold on the 16th inst. Longhorns have been bred at Upton for more than a hundred years; and animals of this herd have been prize-takers at the Royal, the Birmingham, the Smithfield Club, and other shows, for thirty years. From time to time several of them have been depicted in this paper.

On Monday the elections for Mayors took place throughout Ireland. Mr. Maurice Brooks, a Liberal and a Protestant, was elected Lord Mayor of Dublin. Alderman Nagle, the editor and proprietor of the Cork Herald, was elected Mayor of Cork; Mr. Henderson, proprietor of the Belfast News-Letter, was re-elected Mayor of the capital of Ulster; and Alderman Greene, of the Wexford Independent, was for the sixth time elected Mayor of that town. It will thus be seen that the journalistic class has contributed a fair quota to the ranks of the Irish chief magistracy. Alderman Cleary has been re-elected Mayor of Limerick, and Alderman Cantwell Mayor of Clonmel. At Kilkenny Mr. P. Murphy has been elected; at Waterford, Alderman Cummins; at Sligo, Mr. Conroy; at Drogheda, Mr. Leech; and at Londonderry, Alderman Darcus. In the majority of cases the chief magistrates elected are Liberals and Home Rulers.

Mr. Samuel Laing, the chairman of the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway Company, has addressed to the President of the Board of Trade an elaborate reply to the late circular on railway accidents. He points out that nearly all of the additional precautions suggested are already in operation on his line, and adduces, as proof of their success, its comparative immunity from casualties. Last year it carried 22½ million passengers without killing any of them, or having more than three trifling mishaps—all due to causes beyond the control of the company. Mr. Laing attributes this to a series of improvements which commenced in 1869 with the introduction of the block system, and is now being completed by the interlocking of points and signals. He claims for his company the credit of having anticipated all Captain Tyler's recommendations except the adoption of a continuous brake. This improvement Mr. Laing contends is still only in an experimental stage. He treats at some length the questions of speed and punctuality, vindicating the present system on the ground that our only alternative is the Continental system of running slower trains, with fewer stoppages and less convenience to the public.—A railway accident, in which several passengers were injured, took place yesterday week between Greenock and Glasgow. Early last Saturday morning the mail-train from London to the north, on the Midland Railway, being about half an hour late, and proceeding at a pace of from thirty to forty miles an hour, left the main line at the points near Syston station, and ran into a luggage-train on the branch line to Peterborough. The guard of the mail was killed, and several passengers were injured.—Early on Tuesday morning two goods-trains upon the Cornwall Railway came into collision between the stations of Menheniot and St. Germans. Several of the company's servants were injured, and fourteen trucks were thrown off the line.

A TIGER WEDDING IN COORG, INDIA.

"GRANDMOTHER'S BIRTHDAY," BY SALENTIN.
FROM A PHOTOGRAPH BY THE BERLIN PHOTOGRAPHIC COMPANY.

"GRANDMOTHER'S BIRTHDAY."

The custom of presenting flowers, fruits, or what not on the birthday, or, as the French have it, the jour de fête, of relative or friend obtains all over the Continent. Far more is made of the birthday of anyone than with us. The whole house is often decorated for the occasion, and presents are sent from all quarters; but the prettiest usage of all is that of the children of the family, when, on the morning of the memorable day, they come in procession, if they are numerous enough, bringing their nosegays and other appropriate child-offerings, the eldest, or youngest, of the party often having also a congratulatory address or set speech prepared to deliver in honour of the auspicious day. It is no wonder that so charming a custom should be a favourite theme with Continental artists. Why the custom does not to the same extent prevail here also it is hard to say, unless it be that, as in other things, this is no longer the "Merrie England" of old. In Germany, where life is still primitive, and old-world habits and ceremonies of all kinds are still fondly preserved, the birthday is kept with all honour, as we see in this pleasant picture by Herr Salentin. The picture speaks, however, so well for itself that we need say no more. Only we beg the reader to understand that it is always supposed that grandmother is profoundly ignorant of the preparations in her honour, and that the troop of her progeny of the second generation are treating her to a complete surprise.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

There have been, in the numerous extra-Parliamentary appearances, specimens of young—or, rather, not old—members with missions. Two, perhaps three, are notable and noticeable. Palpably, Mr. Trevelyan was in a state of fervour when he was developing himself to that part of the electors of the Border burghs which is to be found at Hawick. The speech was not a special one, upon the franchise, such as this gentleman has been delivering "on the stump," but an all-round dissertation upon the political situation. He was in a perpetual state of dissatisfaction; whatever was or had been wrong. It was melancholy to look back on the past Session, so every way barren, principally because of the insolent, reckless conduct of that doomed assembly which is known as the House of Lords. In his character as a political prophet, as well as a legislative pioneer, and under the influence of a powerful affluence, Mr. Trevelyan would seem to have been warning the Peers to set their house in order. Positively, he will not much longer bear with them. If they do not sink at once and for ever into a registry for the decrees of the Commons, he will give the word, and reform of the House of Lords will be the popular cry. How angry he is that they and the other sections of the plutocracy are practically exempt from rating, as regards their mansions—mansions which he elegantly describes as within the financial capacity only of Dukes and gin-distillers! Then how denunciatory he was of the law of master and servant, which he almost appears to think ought to be turned topsy-turvy, and made as one-sided for the employed as he says it now is for the employer! There were more topics treated in the same uncompromising manner, with a strength of language which it would not be easy to characterise; and altogether it seemed as if the honourable member had worked himself into a passionate state of mind and feeling in order to give his audience something like a dramatic entertainment.

At Cambridge, the other day, one of the representatives of that borough, Mr. William Fowler, took part in a conversation, for which the local Reform Club was responsible, and at which political speeches were mingled with the tea and ices, the objects of art, virtue, curiosities in little, and the small talk, which go generally to make up what is called a conversation. Mr. Fowler has a peculiar mission, the object of which is one which causes some sensitive member of Parliament to clear the House of "strangers" when he is about to advocate it. Of course on this occasion he did not enter on the subject of his special mission; but he took up another, and a temporary one—that is, he vindicated the Government against Mr. Disraeli's short, epigrammatic, and more elaborate and lengthened recent criticisms, and put it so highly as this, that in all they had done the Ministry were tantamount to the people, of whose opinions and will they were only the executive exponents. As to the future, he was dogmatic, as his manner is on all such questions as assimilation of the franchise, labour and capital, free land, and all that; and no doubt, if the company had only known it, he gave them a very fair, though rather slow and diluted, imitation of the manner and elocution of Mr. Bright, which, consciously or unconsciously, is a peculiarity of his.

Last year, when he met his constituents on their annual foregathering at King's Lynn, Mr. Bourke developed his mission. Instead of pronouncing more or less platitudes on things in general, he gave them a dissertation on the condition—political, social, and moral—of India, supplemented by more or less prophecy and some notions of future policy. In the House last Session, on a certain summer night at nine o'clock, after a morning sitting, he, with a patience, a gentleness which gave force to what he said, paradoxical as that may seem, and an amiable indifference to the fact of a very scanty audience before him, dilated for two hours on an Indian topic, which he reproduced, amongst others, in his discourse recently at Lynn. What may be the prevailing temperaments of the inhabitants of that town one cannot say; but it would seem that they listened with exemplary endurance to a dissertation on subjects which, to say no more, must have been rather abstract to their intelligence, and which would hardly have been made light by Mr. Bourke's elocution, which is sombre and monotonous. It is a pity that Lord Claud Hamilton, their other member, was too much indisposed to be present; for certainly he has a way with him which is in some sort enlivening, if it were only for the self-reliance—not to say cool audacity—which is a distinguishing feature of his rhetorical deliveries.

If one were called upon to say offhand who was the young private member who has made the best speeches in the present Parliament, one could not do better than select Mr. J. D. Lewis, one of the members for Devonport. For point, epigram, humour, illustration, all underlying forcible argument, this gentleman is nearly unrivalled amongst the occupants of the more or less back benches. He is chary, too, of his speeches, and therefore he is the more welcome when he pronounces one of them, which is always curiously and interestingly various, and is made more effective by quietness of delivery and demeanour than if he sought to indulge in declamation, of which an occasional outburst shows him to have some mastery. So far as a judgment can be formed from a very imperfect chronicle of it, a recent address of his to his constituents was more grave and didactic than his Parliamentary addresses, but it contained some imaginative and pointed illustrations. He was alone on this occasion, and that fact leads to an inquiry why his colleague, Mr. Montague Chambers, did not stand by his side? Surely that gentleman can have no misgivings as to having no account to give of his Parliamentary proceedings. It may be said with the utmost verity that no independent member so often and so greatly distinguished himself as he did last Session. To be sure, there are different modes of being distinguished, just as it is a very different thing to be laughed with from being laughed at.

The annual demonstration of a Warwickshire Conservative Association, whose headquarters is at Dunchurch, suffered a severe loss the other day in the absence of Mr. Newdegate, for a cause which everyone would deplore. Therefore his colleague, Mr. Bromley-Davenport, was called upon to multiply himself by two, in the performance of a now chartered act of membership. Possibly there is scarcely one M.P. who is capable of, so to speak, filling a stage as Mr. Davenport. He is so mobile, so glowing, and significant in his manner; so special in his humour, so original in his ideas, that, as he is speaking, come inevitable mental suggestions of a remarkable wit chronicled in the pages of "Ivanhoe," who ministered to the amusement of Cedric the Saxon. In the outset of his prolixity, Mr. Davenport evinced his originality, which in his case is a convertible term for eccentricity. He must have astonished the good Conservatives of Dunchurch by speaking in a way that was the very reverse of approving of the famous "Bath letter" of the chief of his party. First he said that it was "curious," then that he was "aghast at it," and then that he thought it was not in accordance with the terms in which the leader of a great party should have written. But this was only a rhetorical device to set off, by contrast, the glowing praise which he bestowed on the brilliant defence of the epistle which Mr. Disraeli made at Glasgow. However, he was severe upon his leader by implication when he said that, in the government of this country, men of common-sense, and not mere men of genius, were wanted. Does he mean to say that Mr. Disraeli is not a man of genius—or, being so, does he wish that that gentleman shall never again be Prime Minister?

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Buss, Septimus, to be Rector of Wapping.
Cartledge, W. A.; Vicar of St. Helen's, Bilton, Harrogate.
Colville, Agill Horatio; Curate of Sutton-on-the-Hill, Derby.
Foulger, R. W.; Perpetual Curate of Penley Ellesmere, Salop.
Freeman, W. H.; Rector of Hackford, Norfolk.
Garnett, Richard Craven; Rector of Delamere, Chester.
Hinton, G. S.; Curate; Vicar of Upton Cresset, Salop.
Hodson, C. W.; Vicar of St. Saviour's, Croydon.
Johnson, John; Perpetual Curate of Longton.
Kendall, H. P.; Vicar of Loxley, Warwickshire.
Laurence, George; Curate-in-Charge of Earsham, near Bungay.
Loveday, A.; Vicar of Yattendon, Berks.
Lucy, J.; to the Fifth Curial Prebend or Canonry in St. David's Cathedral, Llandaff.
Livingston, T. G.; Vicar of Addingham.
Micklethwait, W.; Vicar of Chapelton; Vicar of Felkirk.
Newham, J.; Vicar of St. James's, Hampstead-road.
Oakley, Edwin; Curate (sole charge) of St. Nicholas's, Ipswich.
Palmour, J.; Vicar of Fullwood, Lancashire.
Potter, James; Perpetual Curate of Tongue, Prestwich, Lancashire.
Rayson, W.; Minor Canon of Worcester Cathedral; Vicar of Lindridge.
Redd, Charles Burton; Vicar of St. Gregory's, Norwich.
Scott, Walter; Vicar of Boughton, Monchalesse.

Mr. James Buist, of Law Park Cottage, St. Andrew's, has contributed £1000 to the funds of the London Missionary Society. This is the third £1000 that has been given or bequeathed to this society from St. Andrew's.

The Church of SS. Peter and Paul, Bradwell, having been closed for some months while undergoing a thorough restoration, under Mr. E. G. Bruton, the architect, was opened, on the 30th ult., by the Bishop of Oxford.

Her Majesty has approved the appointment of the Rev. Charles Waldegrave Sandford, M.A., Christ Church, Oxford, Honorary Canon of Canterbury, and Rector of Bishopscourt, to be Bishop of the see of Gibraltar, in the room of the Hon. and Right Rev. Charles Harris, resigned.

The friends of the Rev. Gordon Calthorpe, Chaplain to the Lord Mayor and Vicar of St. Augustine's, Highbury, have presented him with £300. It is intended to present Mrs. Calthorpe with her husband's portrait, which is to be painted by Mr. J. Edgar Williams.

At St. Paul's, Westminster Abbey, the principal City churches, and at many of those in the suburbs, special services were, on Wednesday, held for the success of Christian missions. Innumerable services were held throughout the country in celebration of the Day of Intercession. It was also observed in many parts of the United States.

At the quarterly meeting of the Bishop of London's Fund committee it was reported that the total receipts to the 22nd ult. were £458,565, and the expenditure £428,783. The total amount promised, and part of it still payable, was £476,171. During the past quarter no consecration of churches in connection with the fund has taken place. It was resolved that the fund be continued as a permanent institution.

At Willis's Rooms, on Tuesday, the public meeting in promotion of the Wilberforce Memorial Fund was of the most fervid character. The Bishop of Chichester presided, and Mr. Gladstone moved the first resolution. Having paid a warm tribute to the late Bishop's sympathy with affliction and to the universal interest he took in things, however great or small, the Premier urged that this should be a national memorial. The Right Hon. Gathorne Hardy moved that the form of memorial recommended by the Lavington committee be approved—a fund for maintaining a body of home missionaries in the diocese of Winchester. Both resolutions were carried with acclamation.

Bishop Claughton delivered his second lecture at St. Paul's Cathedral, on Tuesday, on "Reason in relation to a right belief." He illustrated his argument from instances in his own experience of conviction of the truth of Christianity by reasoning, and pointed out that the least enlightened nations (such as the aborigines of Australia) were the most difficult to convert. He showed how it was the abuse of reason to employ it as infidels do in a Christian land, and drew from the autobiography of Mr. J. S. Mill a picture of the dreariness of life without the hope of religion confirmed by reason. He exhorted his hearers to use all their faculties of reason, sense, and feeling in the worship and love of God, as their reasonable service.

The parish church of St. John the Baptist, Bisley, Surrey, was reopened, after a complete restoration, on the 21st ult., by the Bishop of Winchester. The church, which is about 700 years old, together with the churchyard, had been suffered for some years past to fall into the most dilapidated condition. It consisted originally only of a chancel and nave; the north wall has been pulled down and a new aisle added, the plaster ceiling removed and the old oak rafters shown, the unsightly gallery at the west end taken down, and the former arch into the chancel, only 10 ft. in height, cut away into a lofty one; an organ-chamber and vestry for choir added, and choir-stalls in the chancel replacing a large rector's seat, the forms for the school-children, and the harmonium. A stained-glass east window, representing the Crucifixion in the centre light, with St. John the Baptist and St. Anne in each side light, has been given by Mrs. Eaton, wife of the Rector, and her family, in memory of a sister who died three years ago. The restoration is due mainly to the exertions of the Rector. Mr. Christian was the architect.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The annual elections at Balliol, Oxford, took place on Saturday, as follows:—To an open fellowship, for which candidates belonging to any University in Great Britain who had taken their B.A. were eligible, Mr. W. H. Forbes, scholar of Balliol. Mr. Forbes gained the Dean Ireland Scholarship in 1871, was placed in the first class in Literis Græcis et Latinis, Trinity Term, 1871, at the moderation examination, and also in the first class in Literis Humanioribus at the final examination in Trinity Term, 1873. To two scholarships, value £55 per annum, and tuition free, Messrs. A. J. Ashton, of Manchester Grammar School, and A. Goodwin, of the City of London School. To the scholarship of the value of £60 per annum, tenable for five years, Mr. Godley, from Harrow School. To the four exhibitions value £60 per annum, tenable for five years, Messrs. J. M. Rendel (commoner), Balliol; Haigh, from Leeds Grammar School; Walter Scott, from Christ's Hospital; and Childers, from Harrow School. To the Brackenbury Natural Science Scholarship, value £55 per annum, tenable for four years, tuition free, Mr. Algernon P. Thomas, Manchester Grammar School. To the Brackenbury Scholarship of Modern History, value £55 per annum, &c., Mr. P. L. Gell (commoner), Balliol. To an exhibition for modern history, Mr. Lodge, from Christ's Hospital. Messrs. Pulling, Exeter; Tout, of St. Olave's Grammar School, Southwark; and H. Toynbee, Pembroke, were distinguished in the examination. To the mathematical scholarship, value £55 a year, and tuition free, tenable for four years, Mr. Macdonald, of Aberdeen University. To an exhibition value £40 per annum, tenable for four years, Mr. Costelloe, from Glasgow University. There were about forty candidates for the scholarships and exhibitions, but only three for the fellowship, the two opponents to the successful candidates being also members of Balliol.—Mr. Valentine Richard Tronsdale, from Merchant Taylors' School, has been elected to the vacant Ludwell Exhibition at Oriel. The exhibition is of the annual value of £40, and is tenable for seven years, on condition of residence. Messrs. Charles Eccles, Edmond Williams, scholar, and Henry Malme Price, exhibitioner of this college, have been nominated to exhibitions on the Hulme Foundations at Brasenose.

The Westminster play this year will be the "Phormio" of Terence, which is to be acted on Dec. 11, 16, and 18.

It is stated that the trustees of Rugby School have offered Dr. Hayman the option of voluntary resignation. In the event of his not availing himself of this privilege, it is said to be their intention to give him notice that at the expiration of six months from Christmas next they will consider the head mastership vacant, and appoint some one in his place.

The Bishop of Manchester, yesterday week, distributed the prizes to the successful students at the Manchester centre in the Oxford local examinations. His Lordship passed in review ancient and modern methods of teaching, and did not award unqualified praise to the competitive system of recent invention.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will and codicil of William Barnett, late of Macclesfield, was proved on the 27th ult., at the district registry, Chester, by Edward Woodward and William Robert Barnett, the executors; the personal estate, including leaseholds, being sworn under £90,000. The testator bequeaths £3000 upon trust for his brother Robert for life; £2500 upon trust for his brother Michael for life; and the annual income of the remainder to his wife, Mrs. Harriet Barnett, for her life; at her death he gives considerable legacies to relatives and others; to the Devonshire Hospital and Burton Bath Charity; the Deaf and Dumb Institution, Old Trafford, Manchester; and the Gardeners' Benevolent Institution, London, £1000 each; to the British and Foreign Bible Society, £500; to the Church Pastoral Aid Society and the Macclesfield Certified Industrial Schools, £300 each; and the residue of his property to his nephew, the said William Robert Barnett.

The will, with two codicils, of Robert M'Andrew, late of Isleworth House, was proved, on the 26th ult., by William Edward M'Andrew and James Johnston M'Andrew, the sons, and William M'Andrew, the nephew, the acting executors, the personal estate being sworn under £120,000. Subject to two annuities, testator leaves the annual income of his property to his wife, Mrs. Eliza M'Andrew, for life; at her death hand-some portions are given to his three unmarried daughters, Mary, Antonia, and Margaret Gordon, and the residue to his four sons, William Edward, Robert Alexander, James Johnstone, and George. Testator bequeaths certain of his conchological works and his arranged collections of shells to the University of Cambridge; but if any such shells are sufficiently represented in the University collection they are to be given to the Museum of Science and Art at Edinburgh.

The will, with four codicils, of John Amor Wells, late of Lime-street, City, was proved, on the 7th ult., by John Sloane Sloane, the nephew, and Jonathan Taylor, the acting executors, the personal estate being sworn under £35,000. The testator bequeaths £50 to be distributed by his sister among the poor of Margate, and legacies to his partners, persons in the employ of his firm, and others, and the residue to his sister, Miss Eleanor Wells, for life. At her death he gives £100, free of duty, to each of the following charities:—viz., the Royal Sea-Bathing Infirmary, Margate; the Philanthropic Society, Margate; the Langbourne Ward Charity Schools, in the city of London; the Cheesemongers' Benevolent Institution, Bath-street, Newgate-street; the Commercial Travellers' Schools, the Commercial Travellers' Benevolent Institution; the Hospital for Consumption and Diseases of the Chest, Brompton; the City of London Hospital for Diseases of the Chest, Victoria Park; the Orphan Working School, Haverstock Hill; the Asylum for Idiots, Redhill; the Merchant Seamen's Orphan Asylum; the Infant Orphan Asylum, Wanstead; the London Orphan Asylum, Clapton; the New Fatherless Asylum, Reedham, near Croydon; the Royal School of the St. Anne's Society, Brixton; the National Benevolent Institution; the Hospital for Incurables, the Governesses' Benevolent Institution, the Female Orphan Home, Lambeth, and the School for Indigent Blind. The remainder of his property he gives to his nephew, the said John Sloane Sloane.

The will and six codicils of Mrs. Cooper, of 6, Warrior-square, St. Leonards, the widow of William Cooper, Esq., of Hoebridge-place, near Woking, Surrey, were proved by the executors, Edward Lambert, of 28, York-terrace, Regent's Park; Henry Cooper Gladnow, of Kingston-on-Hull; and her niece, Miss Emily Dresser, on Nov. 6. The testatrix makes the following charitable bequests:—Parochial schools of Woking, £500; Hull Infirmary, £100; Hospital for Consumption and Diseases of the Chest, Brompton, £100; King's College Hospital, £200; North London or University College Hospital, £200; the Vicar of the church of Bishop Hill the Elder, York, for the benefit of the poor, £500; the Cancer Hospital, Brompton, £1000; British Home for Incurables at Clapham-rise, Surrey, £500; the Royal Hospital for Incurables, West-hill, Putney-heath, £500; the Surrey County Hospital, near Guildford, £500; the Hastings and St. Leonards Infirmary, £300; the London City Mission, £300; making a total of £4700. After devising certain real estates to her said niece, she leaves the residue of her real and personal estates for sale, and out of the proceeds thereof bequeaths various legacies to her brother and sisters and their children, and her servants, and gives the ultimate residue for the benefit of her sisters and brother and their children, and two nephews of her late husband and a friend.

The Scotch confirmation of the appointment of Colonel Charles Seton Guthrie, James Smith, James Spence, Robert Luff Peplow, and Dame Margaret Sinclair, the relict, as executors of the will of Sir John Sinclair, Bart., of Dunheath, Caithness-shire, was sealed at the principal registry, London, on the 25th ult. The inventory of the personal estate in Scotland and England amounts to upwards of £40,000.

The will of the undermentioned persons have recently been proved—viz., the Right Hon. Fitzstephen French, under £12,000; James Holbert Wilson, of the Inner Temple and Onslow-square, barrister-at-law, under £30,000; Charles John Bayley, C.B., late of No. 51, Victoria-road, under £14,000; Samuel Turner, of No. 5, Raymonds-buildings, Gray's Inn, barrister-at-law, under £30,000; and John Leach Bennett, of Merton, Surrey, under £30,000.

LAW AND POLICE.

TRIAL OF THE TICHBORNE CLAIMANT FOR PERJURY.

Yesterday week Mr. N. W. Casey, auditor of customs at New Orleans, deposed to having searched the register of vessels entering that port in 1852 and 1853. There were only two Ospreys, one a steamer, another a Liverpool ship. Respecting the Helvetia, which is alleged to have been changed to the Osprey, he stated that she traded to Havre, and in her crew list there was no Jean Luie. John Avery Allen, collector of customs at New Bedford, produced the log-book of the Osprey hailing from that port, and her crew lists. Captain M'Comber, formerly master of the New Bedford Osprey, identified the log-book put in, and described the movements of his vessel during 1854. She had passed down the South American coast, but had never called at Rio, and had picked up no shipwrecked crew. Mr. Duncan, of the United States Bar, testified to the extent of the Custom House jurisdiction of New York, and to the provisions of the American law touching the acquisition of foreign ships by American citizens, their change of names, &c. Captain Hayes, of the steamer Belgium, the only boat that came to London from Ostend on the date given by Luie, denied having seen him on board during that or any other passage. It was proved by other witnesses that his name did not occur in the passenger list or in the alien list sent to the Home Office. This closed the case for the prosecution, whereupon Dr. Kenealy applied for an adjournment to produce rebutting evidence. After hearing him argue the point at great length the Court unanimously decided that no sufficient grounds had been advanced to justify a further adjournment. After the Court had risen Mr. Pollard, one of the solicitors of the Treasury, asked that Luie should be bound over to appear on Monday, as two gentlemen were in court who could swear to having seen him in England in May. The Judges returned, but Mr. Hawkins having declined to take any part in the application, it lapsed.

Monday's sitting was a highly sensational one. Mr. Hawkins having intimated that he would not follow up the action taken by Mr. Pollard with respect to Luie on Friday afternoon, Dr. Kenealy moved for an attachment against the offending solicitor, whose conduct he characterised as one of the worst contempts of court he had ever seen. A remark from the Lord Chief Justice on Luie's affidavit called up Mr. Whalley, who wished, "with the utmost deference and humility," to explain that he was the man. His Lordship inquired if Mr. Whalley knew he was addressing the Court without his gown and wig. Mr. Whalley reiterated that he did not speak as a barrister, but "as one of the"—His attempted explanation was cut short by a peremptory order to sit down. Mr. Hawkins having, after consultation, decided to call the witnesses affecting Luie's antecedents, Mr. Peters deposed that he was chief clerk to Messrs. Hoffman, Schenk, and Co., shipping agents. In March last Luie had called at their office, introducing himself as Captain Sorrenson, and negotiated a charter for a ship of which he said he was master. Subsequently he tried to obtain a loan of £20 from the agents for the pretended purchase of a chronometer. It was found that his ship, Greda, was not known where he represented it to be lying, and he was threatened with a charge of attempting to obtain money by false pretences. John Stettford, a fellow-clerk of Mr. Peters, and Mr. Cobet, the managing partner in the firm, gave confirmatory evidence. Luie was recalled, and in cross-examination by Mr. Hawkins affirmed that he had come to Liverpool by the Circassian in June, had travelled from Liverpool to Folkestone by rail, and then proceeded by steamer to Ostend. He could not say whether or not he had passed through London. Two of the previous witnesses were re-examined as to Luie's voice, and they declared it positively to be the same as Sorrenson's. The Court then called on Luie to enter into his own recognisances in £300 and two sureties in £150 each for his appearance when wanted. Dr. Kenealy pleaded earnestly for an adjournment to obtain rebutting evidence, but the Court would go no further than to promise that if witnesses came forward he might make a special application at a later stage.

Dr. Kenealy began his address on Tuesday, by way of summing up on behalf of the defence. It opened with a vehement appeal to the jury, in which the Divine Spirit was invoked to assist their deliberations, and the learned gentleman went on to state that in all his life he never felt more confident than that the gentlemen whom he addressed were quite prepared with clear consciences to find a verdict for his client. He alluded to the pressure which had been brought against him, and to all the influences against which he had had to contend; but still he felt sure what the result would be. Had the defendant been an impostor, would he not have fled the country? But what had he done? He had gone about England courting investigation in every place, and among all people to whom he was known, and with what result?—that of having almost one and all with whom he came in contact, and who had no interest in denying him his heritage, coming forward to say he was the Roger Tichborne, whom they recognised by his face, by his walk, by his voice, and his sweet, amiable smile. This remark created a smile in court. Counsel then went on to denounce the little rubbish, the trash, and nonsense which had been brought forward by the prosecution—these were things which were only worth his cursory contempt, and were never worth the consideration of any jury. He thought the present prosecution of his client was one of the worst, the most wicked, the most profligate things that had ever disgraced the English courts since the time of the Stuarts. After a passing reference to Jeffreys and Scroggs, and an allusion to the "triple crown" being in the dust, he went on to complain that the witnesses against him were bribed, and also that they had been most unfairly treated by the Court. On this the Lord Chief Justice said that that was not so, and that, had it been so, counsel was failing in his duty to his client not to have claimed the protection of the Court at once; and Mr. Justice Lush, in the most emphatic manner, condemned any such insinuation. In the course of the continuation of the learned counsel's speech he many times brought himself into verbal collision with one or other of the Judges. The Government did not escape censure as partisans in the great Popish plot to keep the heir of Tichborne out of his estates, which in less than twenty years would be worth £50,000 a year. One Cabinet Minister had been put into the box to swear recklessly and rashly, though not willfully, what everyone now must know was untrue. Another Cabinet Minister had conferred a fat appointment on a witness. When the Court adjourned Dr. Kenealy was enlarging on "the great and unseen powers behind the prosecution, who were going against this man for their own purposes." After the rising of the Court Jean Luie, who, in compliance with the regulations of his bail, had been in attendance all day, was sent for to the Judges' private room, and, there being no other security forthcoming but Mr. Whalley, M.P., Jean Luie was not admitted to further bail, but sent to Holloway prison.

In resuming his address on Wednesday, Dr. Kenealy, as on the previous day, severely stigmatised the course pursued by the prosecution. When, in his abuse of the prosecution, he declared that the principle on which it had acted was not the law of England, but might be the law of hell, the Lord Chief Justice "took upon him" to object to language which, "if not blasphemous, was most improper and indecorous." The doctor went on to complain of the ordeal to which his client had been subjected in having his whole previous life brought up against him as a test of his identity. He ridiculed the theory of the prosecution that the defendant had been coached, and reproached it with not having rested its case on some specific points in the evidence, which would have kept the trial within a few days' compass. Respecting Roger Tichborne's residence at Stonyhurst Dr. Kenealy set up a number of hypotheses and battled for them. One was intended to account for the defendant's statement that he had first lived in a cottage outside the gates. Another was used in support of his alleged expulsion from the college immediately on his return in 1849. A high-flown eulogy was bestowed on Bogle, "the faithful African," and stray incidents were cited as inconsistent with the doctrine that he was a co-conspirator.

The address of Dr. Kenealy, on Thursday, was again full of denunciations on those who have charge of the prosecution, and he was repeatedly called to order by the Court. Application was made to the Court by Mr. Hawkins for an order directed to the Governor of Holloway Prison, requiring him to bring up Jean Luie, who is at present confined there, Mr. Stephenson, of the Treasury, having received information respecting him. The application was heard, in the presence of both sides, in the Judges' private room; and, on the return of their Lordships, the Lord Chief Justice said they adjourned the application until the following morning.

Mr. Whalley states that it is not true that he has in any respect withdrawn from the case, or that his views and intentions with reference to it have in any degree changed.

On Saturday, in the Court of Common Pleas, the late box-keeper at St. James's Theatre sought to recover damages for slander uttered by Sir William Fraser, on an occasion when, Sir William's seat having been let to another person, the hon. Baronet was alleged to have used very strong language respecting the conduct of the plaintiff. Sir William Fraser, while admitting that he spoke with warmth, denied the specific allegations of the boxkeeper; and, independent testimony having been called in support of the case for the defence, the jury returned a verdict for Sir William Fraser.

Damages amounting to £1250 were, on Wednesday, awarded the Rev. Edward Armstrong Telfer, a Wesleyan minister, who brought an action at the Manchester Assizes against the London and North-Western Railway Company for compensation for personal injuries sustained in a collision on their line.

At the Middlesex Sessions Charles Henry Hillier, secretary of the Royal Oak Benefit Society, which was founded by his father some years ago, has pleaded guilty to one of six indictments, charging him with embezzling sums of money that amounted to more than £1000; and has been sentenced to imprisonment for twelve calendar months, with hard labour. A severe sentence has been passed upon a man who had long been engaged in the trade of selling indecent books and photographs; he has been ordered to be imprisoned and kept to hard labour for eighteen months, to pay a fine of £200, and to be imprisoned until the money be paid.

Fining a Mr. Walters, of Greenhithe, twenty shillings and costs, for defrauding the South-Eastern Railway Company, by giving his preference to a superior description of carriage after having taken a third-class ticket, the Lord Mayor said it was a shabby and a mean thing to do, and altogether unworthy a gentleman; but, at the same time, his Lordship observed that both this company and the Metropolitan are often very remiss in the matter of excess fares.

Mr. Joseph Minuto, wine merchant, was committed for trial yesterday week by the Lord Mayor, on the charge of having disposed of fifty hogsheds of claret otherwise than in the ordinary way of trade, a short time before the winding up of his affairs under the Bankruptcy Act. Bail, in two sureties of £250 each and himself in £500, was accepted.

A man was convicted at the Marylebone Police Court, on Wednesday, of having offered his services as a conductor to the Camden Town Omnibus Association with forged certificates of his character. He was fined £10, with the alternative of two months' imprisonment, with hard labour.

Prince Bathyan's house at Newmarket was assailed by burglars last Saturday morning; and a policeman named Chamberlain had a rough fight with two men, one of whom he secured after having used the wooden truncheon against a small steel crowbar or "jemmy." The captured housebreaker was brought before the magistrates on Monday and remanded.

A case of personation at Oldham was investigated in the Salford Intermediate Sessions yesterday week. The accused, named French, had personated an elector at the municipal election on the 1st inst., and he was sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment.

Dr. Lyon Playfair, the new Postmaster-General, was, on Wednesday, re-elected without opposition to serve in Parliament for the Universities of Edinburgh and St. Andrew's.

Sir Samuel Baker has recovered from his recent indisposition, and will on Monday next address the Royal Geographical Society upon his adventures in Africa.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, Mayor of Birmingham, and Chairman of the National Education League, has been elected chairman of the new School Board for Birmingham. Mr. J. S. Wright is the new vice-chairman.

THE RUSSIANS IN CENTRAL ASIA.

The pencil of Mr. N. Karasin, the same Russian artist who furnished us with an illustration of the massacre of the liberated Persian slaves by a horde of Turkomans while on their road home after the capture of Khiva, supplies one of our Engravings in this week's paper. It represents an action in the more recent movements of the Russian army against the Tomood Turkomans, who had refused to pay their share of the indemnity stipulated for with the Khan of Khiva. The brigade of Cossacks, under the command of Colonel Block, on July 15, fell upon a Turkoman caravan, which consisted of the families of the warriors, with much cattle and baggage in waggons. The men who resisted were slain, the cattle was taken, but those in the vehicles were allowed to escape. We shall give a few more illustrations of the Russian operations in this part of Asia, from sketches obtained for us by Mr. M'Gahan, special correspondent of the New York Herald, to whom we are indebted for several contributions already used and acknowledged in this Journal.

ROYAL INSTITUTION.

At the general monthly meeting, on Monday last—Mr. George Busk, F.R.S., the treasurer and V.P., in the chair—a letter of condolence to the family of the late president, Sir Henry Holland, Bart., was adopted; and his Grace the Duke of Northumberland was unanimously elected president. Mrs. Walter Fawcett and Mr. C. Craddock Underwood were elected members. The following lecture arrangements for the ensuing season (before Easter) were announced:—

Christmas Lectures (adapted to a juvenile auditory).—Professor Tyndall, D.C.L., LL.D., F.R.S.: Six Lectures on the Motion and Sensation of Sound, on Dec. 27 (Saturday), Dec. 30, 1873; Jan. 1, 3, 6, 8, 1874.

Professor Rutherford, M.D., F.R.S.E.: Eleven lectures on the Nervous System, on Tuesdays, Jan. 13 to March 24.

Professor P. M. Duncan, F.R.S.: Seven lectures on Palæontology, with reference to Extinct Animals and the Physical Geography of their Time, on Thursdays, Jan. 15 to Feb. 26.

Professor W. C. Williamson, F.R.S.: Four lectures on Cryptogamic Vegetation, on Thursdays, March 5 to 26.

Professor G. Croom Robertson, University College, London: Four lectures on Kant, on Saturdays, Jan. 17, 24, 31; Feb. 7.

R. Bosworth Smith, Esq., M.A.: Four lectures on Mohammed and Mohammedanism, on Saturdays, Feb. 14, 21, 28, and March 7.

Charles Thomas Newton, Esq., M.A., Keeper of Greek and Roman Antiquities, British Museum: Three lectures on Ephesus, on Saturdays, March 14, 21, and 28.

The Friday evening meetings will begin on Jan. 16, when Professor Tyndall will give a discourse "On the Acoustical Transparency and Opacity of the Atmosphere."

BOOKS RECEIVED.

Among the books lately sent us by different publishers, and still awaiting leisure for review, are the following, beside some illustrated gift-books and others, to which our attention will be due:—

H. S. King and Co.:—The Gateway to the Polynia, by Captain J. C. Wells, R.N. Mind and Body, by Professor A. Bain; and, The Conservation of Energy, by Professor Balfour Stewart (International Scientific Series). Hester Morley's Promise, by Hesba Stretton. Two Girls, by F. Wedmore. Master Spirits, by Robert Buchanan.

Isbister and Co.:—The Prescotts of Pamphilon, by Mrs. Parr.

Sampson Low, Marston, Low, and Searle:—The Cruise of the Rorario; or, Kidnapping in the South Seas, by Commander Albert Hastings Markham, R.N. Cuba, with Pen and Pencil, by S. Hazard. The Threshold of the Unknown Region, by Clements Markham. The Atmosphere, by Camille Flammarion. The Fur Country, by Jules Verne. Coral and Coral Islands, by James Dana.

Hurst and Blackett:—My Recollections from 1806 to 1873, by Lord William Lennox. Lottie Darling, by J. C. Jenfreson. Monsieur Maurice and Other Tales, by Amelia Edwards. Crown Harden, by Mrs. Fuller. The Exiles at St. Germain, by the Author of "Lady Shakerley."

Smith, Elder, and Co.:—The African Sketchbook, by Winwood Reade. The Borderland of Science, by R. A. Proctor. History of Crime in England, by Luke Owen Pike.

Longmans and Co.:—The Moon, by R. A. Proctor. History of Mary Queen of Scots, by Professor Petit.

Chapman and Hall:—Annie's Story, by the Author of Petite's Romance. Thorneycroft's Model, by Averil Beaumont.

Macmillan and Co.:—Holland House, by Princess Marie Lichtenstein. The Forces of Nature, by Amédée Guillemin. Prose Idylls, New and Old, by the Rev. Canon Kingsley.

Hodder and Stoughton:—Wanderings in Eastern Africa, by the Rev. C. New.

Blackie and Son:—Journey Across South America, by Paul Marcey; fourth half-volume.

W. Blackwood and Son:—History of the Lodge of Edinburgh, and of Freemasonry in Scotland, by David Murray Lyon.

Ancrum House, near Jedburgh, the seat of Sir William Scott, Bart., was on Tuesday night destroyed by fire. Bishopscroft, the residence of Mr. John Partridge, on the borders of Herefordshire and Gloucestershire, caught fire on Saturday at midnight, and was completely destroyed.

A lecture on Chinese Architecture was delivered at the Royal Institute of British Architects, on Monday, by Mr. William Simpson, F.R.G.S., who was the Special Artist lately sent expressly by this Journal to China, Japan, and California, and who has done us good service in Egypt, in Abyssinia, in Palestine, in Turkey, and in the Crimea, as well as in the war between France and Germany, at Metz, at Strasburg, and at Paris. His lecture upon this occasion was illustrated by a series of plans, sketches, photographs, and water-colour drawings, many of which have appeared in our Engravings. The general remarks of Mr. Simpson upon the rules and methods of building adopted in China were instructive, and were the more interesting as he connected them in some instances with the religious ideas of that ancient nation. He gave a minute description of the palaces at Peking, the Temple of Heaven, and the tombs of the Ming dynasty of Emperors, with all which our readers have been made acquainted by his sketches, and by the notes and comments that accompanied them in print. We take this opportunity to mention the recent publication, by Mr. Saunders, of Shanghai, of a series of good photographs of "Chinese Life and Character." These present to view, in a very effective arrangement, many of the scenes, groups, and figures that would be most likely to strike the attention of a traveller in China.

THE KHIVA EXPEDITION: RUSSIAN TROOPS ATTACKING A CARAVAN OF TURKOMANS.

LIFE ON BOARD A TROOP-SHIP: DINNER-TIME.

LIFE ON BOARD A TROOP-SHIP: "COMMENCE FIRING."

Stamp printed exactly by the Act ucking becomes actively hesling. Sold in packets, 6d. and 1s. (by 8 or 15 stamps), labelled JAMES KPPS and CO., Homoeopathic mists, 48, Threadneedle-street, and 170, Piccadilly, London.

NEW MUSIC.

THE MARRIAGE

DUKE OF EDINBURGH.

In anticipation of the above interesting event CHAPPELL and Co. have published a WEDDING ALBUM

OF

DANCE MUSIC,

CONTAINING THE

PRINCESS MARIE GALOP.

CH. D'ALBERT.

CLARENCE WALTZ.

W. H. MONTGOMERY.

ROYAL ALFRED QUADRILLE.

DAN GODFREY.

DUCHESS WALTZ.

ARCH. RAMSDEN.

ST. PETERSBURG QUADRILLE.

CH. D'ALBERT.

STAR OF THE NORTH POLKA

MAZURKA. CH. D'ALBERT.

HANDSOMELY BOUND IN BOARDS, WITH ILLUMINATED GOLD COVER, AND PROOF PORTRAITS

H.R.H. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH

AND THE

PRINCESS MARIE ALEXANDROWNA,

thus forming a charming Souvenir and elegant Musical Present.
Price 10s. 6d., net.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DANCE MUSIC by the celebrated

CHARLES D'ALBERT.
LA VILLE DE MADAME ANGOT LANCERS. By CHARLES D'ALBERT. A beautiful set of Lancers, on favourite Airs from Lecocq's popular Opera. "Will be danced everywhere." Illustrated. 4 0
LA VILLE DE MADAME ANGOT GALOP. By CHARLES D'ALBERT. "Illustrated." 4 0
THE PRINCESS MARIE GALOP. By CH. D'ALBERT. With Portrait of H.R.H. the Princess Marie Alexandrowna of Russia. 3 0
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW AND POPULAR DANCE MUSIC

by DAN GODFREY, Bandmaster Grenadier Guards.
1310RA WALTZ. New Waltz. Beautifully Illustrated. 4 0
PERRAN QUADRILLE. Persian Airs. Illustrated. 4 0
QUEENSTOWN QUADRILLE. Beautifully Illustrated. 4 0
LITTLE NELL WALTZ. Beautifully Illustrated. 4 0
BRIDESMAIDS WALTZ. Beautifully Illustrated. 4 0
NEW CHRISTY MINSTREL LANCERS. 4 0
CHRISTMAS ECHOES QUADRILLE. on Popular Airs. 4 0
KNIGHT OF ST. PATRICK LANCERS. Popular Irish Airs. 4 0
LORD OF LORNE LANCERS. Beautifully Illustrated. 4 0
MERRY TUNES LANCERS QUADRILLE. 4 0
BIRMGHAM WALTZ. Beautifully Illustrated. 4 0
CHRISTINE WALTZ. Beautifully Illustrated. 4 0
MABEL GALOP. Beautifully Illustrated. 4 0
ORPHEUS GALOP. Beautifully Illustrated. 4 0
YOUNG FRIENDS QUADRILLE. Beautifully Illustrated. 4 0
OLD FRIENDS QUADRILLE. Beautifully Illustrated. 4 0
ORPHEUS QUADRILLE. 4 0
MABEL WALTZ. 4 0
BARBE-BLEUE QUADRILLE. 4 0
ROYAL ALFRED QUADRILLE. 4 0
MILDA WALTZ. 4 0
DREAM OF THE BALL WALTZ. 4 0
GUARDS WALTZ. 4 0
BELGIAN QUADRILLE. 4 0
BARBE-BLEUE GALOP. 4 0
BELLE HELENE GALOP. 4 0
Either of the above sent post-free for half price.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DANCE MUSIC, by W. H.

MONTGOMERY.
GARDEN PARTY WALTZ, with capitally Illustrated Title-Page. 3s.
GOING HOME GALOP. Illustrated. 3s.
Post-free for half price.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE CHRISTMAS NUMBER OF

CHAPPELL'S MUSICAL MAGAZINE (No. 105) contains a new Waltz, "Lancers," composed expressly for this Magazine by Dan Godfrey, Bandmaster Grenadier Guards. Also—Echos aus dem Heimathland Waltz. Karl Meyer.
Fasche Geister Waltz. Strauss.
Fontainebleau Quadrille. D'Albert.
Fraises au Champagne Valse. Jules Klein.
Le Juit Errant Quadrille. Charles D'Albert.
And Five other popular Waltzes, &c.
Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 3d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street, and all Music and Book Sellers in the Kingdom.

BERTHOLD TOURS'S NEW SONGS.

SUNSHINE IN THE RAIN. Words by Dr. Waller. 3s.
SO THE CHILDREN SAY. 3s.
WILLIE'S SHIP.
THE STAR'S MESSAGE. 3s.
Post-free for half price.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MEYER LUTZ'S NEW SONGS, &c.

FROM THE MOMENT I MET THEE. For Tenor. Words by R. Reese.
THE CAPTIVE (Tenor). 3s.
DRINK TO WINE (Bass). 3s.
THE WATERSPRITE (Bass). 3s.
FRIENDSHIP ("There is a love on earth"). Duet for Soprano and Contralto.
Post-free for half price.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LITTLE DARLING. Song. Written by

Arthur Mathison; Music by RAMIRO VEGA. "Price 3s.; post-free, 1s. 6d.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street."

NEW BARITONE SONGS.

TRUE TO THE LAST. Stephen Adams. 4s.
A WARRIOR BOLD. Stephen Adams. 4s.
Both the above are sung by Mr. Maybrick, and always redemanded.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

ENGLAND'S GREETING. New Song for

Baritone Voice. Words by J. V. Bridgman; Music by CHARLES SANTLEY. "This Song will become a universal favourite." Price 4s.; post-free, 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

LOUISA GRAY'S NEW SONGS.

SEEK WAYS FOR ME. 4s. Sung by Miss Alice Fairman.
CHANGED. 3s.
BLIND GIRL DREAM. 4s.
IT WAS EARLY IN THE SPRINGTIME. 3s.
Post-free for half price.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BOURREE for the Pianoforte, composed by COTSFORD DICK. Price 3s. "A most charming and original composition."

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW SONGS by COTSFORD DICK.

THE VOICE I LOVED. Words by Louisa Gray. 3s.
"A beautiful song for a tenor voice."
WHEN SHADOWS FLY AWAY. Words by Gordon Campbell.
Post-free for half price.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

W. SMALLWOOD'S NEW PIECES.

SUNRISE GALOP. Illustrated. 2s.
IVY LEAVES. Polka. Illustrated. 2s.
HAWTHORN BLISS. Polka. Illustrated. 2s.
MOONLIT STREET. Morceau de Salon. Illustrated. 2s.
ALPINE ECHOES. Rhapsodie. Illustrated. 2s.
Post-free, 1s. 6d. each.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GOUNOD'S MARCH ROMAINE.

A companion piece to the celebrated "Silver Trumpets." Composed expressly for the Pope. Price, for Piano, Organ (with pedal obbligato), or Harmonium, 2s.; for Piano Duet, 4s. Full Orchestra, 8s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

A NEW WORK FOR THE ORGAN OR HARMONIUM.

ORIGINAL VOLUNTARIES for the ORGAN or HARMONIUM, composed in an easy form for the use of Amateurs by GEORGE FORBES. Price 4s.; post-free 2s. "This work will be found of immense value to all performers on either of the instruments for which it is written."
N.B. A Second Book of Voluntaries, of a similar kind, by the same Composer, will be shortly published.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S SCHOOL-ROOM

PIANOFORTE, in Canadian Walnut or Mahogany Case. Price TWENTY GUINEAS. This instrument combines good quality of tone and excellence of workmanship. It has the merit of standing well in tune, and is capable of enduring hard school practice without going out of order.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S YACHT

PIANINO, with Folding Keyboard, Check Action, Trichord Treble in Solid Mahogany or Black Canadian Walnut Case, THIRTY GUINEAS; or in Maple, THIRTY-FIVE GUINEAS. Constructed for Ships' Cabins, to occupy the smallest possible space, and to stand the damp of a sea voyage; the back is strengthened with iron bars and metallic plates, and the whole of the mechanism is of the best quality.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

DULCIANA ORGAN HARMONIUM, by

Alexandra.—This New Instrument is especially adapted to the Drawing-Room. It has the sweetest tone possible, resembling the soft dulciana stop of the best organs, and, by a new patent air-chest, is free from the slightest harshness. Price, 8 stops, oak, 12 gu.; mahogany, 12 gu.; rosewood, 14 gu.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S HARMONIUMS for SALE, from 5 gu. to 110 gu. Alexandra, Wholesale Agents. Illustrated Catalogue on application.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE ALEXANDRE NEW SEVEN-

GUINIA ORGAN HARMONIUM. Solid Oak Case, Five Octaves, and Two Foot-board.
The ever-increasing demand for instruments of a superior quality to those hitherto manufactured.
The instruments now offered to the public will be found devoted of all that has hitherto been considered objectionable as regards tone. This end has been obtained by using a larger and thicker tongue, and a new system of voicing, which renders the quality rich and organ-like.
Another advantage in the new system is the increased strength of the reeds, and diminished liability to go out of tune by forcing the bellows.
The new system is applied to all the large instruments with still greater effect and without extra cost.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

RECOMMENDED BY ALL THE PROFESSORS.

THE DIGITORIO (a small Dumb Piano-Patent).—This remarkable invention materially assists any person to play and become perfect on the Pianoforte, Organ, or Harmonium, by strengthening and rendering the fingers independent in an incredibly short time; and can now be had price 12s.; or, with every key, 15s. of the Trade Manufacturers, CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CRAMER'S DANCE-MUSIC ALBUM for

1874 (full music size) contains an original set of Quadrilles, Waltz, Polka, and Galop, by MARCEL COOTE, and set of Lancers by GODFREY. Price 2s. 6d. net; post-free, 2s. 8d. "The set of Lancers on Ancient English Melodies is alone worth the whole price of the Album."—"Graphic." A collection of five pieces of dance music. The book is splendidly got up, and would make a handsome present.—"Pictorial." The whole, being printed in an elegant form, makes an agreeable Christmas present.—"Morning Post." "Each morean is well adapted for dancing. In this age of marvels we have seen nothing to surpass this album in excellence, cheapness, and good taste."—"Civil Service Gazette."
CRAMER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

THE NEMESIS QUADRILLES, by FITZGERALD.

THE NEMESIS GALOP, by FITZGERALD.
THE NEMESIS WALTZ, by COOTE.
Solos, 4s. each; 1s. 6d. each, and Galop, 4s. each; Waltzes, 5s. each. The three most popular Dances of the Day.
CRAMER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

KELER BELA'S NEW DANCE MUSIC.

DIE LETZTEN GLUCKESSTUNDEN WALTZ. 4s. "This waltz is one of the most charming of the kind; the time is well marked and the melody soft and pretty."—"Review."
TRAUM GLUCK (Polka mazurka). 4s. Equally pretty and dainty as the waltz.
DIE GLUCKESSTUNDEN (Polka Franzosel). 4s.
J. B. Cramer and Co. have much pleasure in announcing that they have made arrangements with Keler Bela for the publication of his favourite Dance Music in England.
CRAMER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

RENDANO'S CHANT DU PAYSAN. 3s.

Played, "by command," before Her Majesty at Windsor Castle by the talented Composer. A most charming morceau de salon.
CRAMER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

OFFENBACH'S C'EST L'ESPAGNE. 4s.

Transcribed for the Pianoforte by BERTHOLD TOURS.
"A very effective drawing-room morceau."
CRAMER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

OFFENBACH'S C'EST L'ESPAGNE. 3s.

Certainly the most popular and of the day. Sung by Madame Trebelli, Leblanc, Pauline Rita, Osborne Williams, Victoria Bensen, Dolan, &c. Also arranged as Pianoforte Solo, by B. TOURS. 4s.—CHAMER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

TWO SONGS by MAYDA GREYKE.

Published by CHAMER and Co., 301, Regent-street.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and POST-FREE.

The largest and most varied Stock of Music, by all the principal Publishers. CRAMER and Co. undertake to forward, by return of post (on receipt of remittance), all sheet music ordered from them, no matter by whom published, at half price and post-free.
CRAMER and Co., 301, Regent-street, W.

THEMSELIEDER (Songs of the Thames).

J. JOSEPH GUNDEL'S New WALTZES, composed for the Concerts at Covent Garden Theatre, and dedicated by special permission to H.R.H. the Princess of Wales. Price 4s.; post-free half price.
A. HARMOND and Co., 5, Vigo-street, W.

THEMSELIEDER (Songs of the Thames)

WALTZES. By JOSEPH GUNDEL.—This grand national set of Waltzes is pronounced by the entire press to equal, if not to surpass, any of the previous works by the same celebrated Composer. Price 4s.; post-free, half price.—A. HARMOND and Co., 5, Vigo-street, W.

COULON'S HANDBOOK OF DANCING.

The new Edition of this celebrated Treatise is now ready, and is by far the most complete work on the subject, containing 170 pages of Letterpress and upwards of thirty Woodcuts and Diagrams. Price 1s. A. HARMOND and Co., 5, Vigo-street, W.

THE BOY AND THE BROOK. New

Song. By J. L. HATTON; the Words by Longfellow. "One of Mr. Hatton's best compositions, and most become popular." Price 4s.; sent free for 24 stamps.
HARMOND and Co., 5, Vigo-street, Oxford-street.

MARIE ALEXANDROWNA WALTZ.

Dedicated, by special permission, to H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh. By CHARLES GODFREY, Composer of the Waltzes "Princess Beatrice," "Princess Louise," &c. Elegantly Illustrated. Price 4s.—London: ALEXANDER and FARRAR, Hanover-square.

NEW MUSIC.

NOTICE.—THE NEW VOLUME of SACRED SONGS, ANCIENT and MODERN, containing 100 Compositions by the most eminent Writers, ready this day. Price 2s. 6d. paper; 4s. cloth, gilt edges. THE ROYAL EDITION.—BOOSEY and Co.

NOTICE.—ROBERT SCHUMANN'S 75

SONGS, with GERMAN and ENGLISH WORDS, ready this day. Price 2s. 6d. paper; 4s. cloth, gilt edges. THE ROYAL EDITION.—BOOSEY and Co.

HANDSOME CHRISTMAS PRESENTS

IN MUSIC.
THE ROYAL EDITION of NATIONAL SONGS and BALLADS, complete in 4 volumes, each containing from 60 to 150 songs. Price 4s., bound in cloth, gilt edges; or 7s. 6d., half morocco, gilt edges. Also THE ROYAL EDITION of SACRED SONGS, Ancient and Modern, handsomely bound in cloth, gilt edges. 4s. THE ROYAL EDITION of SCHUMANN'S 75 SONGS, with German and English Words, cloth, gilt edges. 4s. THE ROYAL OPERAS, 35 volumes, are now ready, cloth, gilt edges, from 4s. to 7s. 6d. each.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, London.

BOOKS OF PIANOFORTE DUETS.

ROBERT SCHUMANN'S BALL SCENES. 2s. 6d.
ROBERT SCHUMANN'S TWELVE CHARACTERISTICS. 2s. 6d.
ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC, by Gungl, Strauss, and Coote. 3s. 6d.
Each Book contains 70 pages.—BOOSEY and Co.

MADAME ANGOT for PIANOFORTE.

Complete, price 2s. 6d. Also, nearly ready, the Opera, for Voice and Pianoforte, with English and French Words and the whole of the Dialogue, price 7s. 6d.—BOOSEY and Co.

MADAME ANGOT.—The popular Songs, with English Words, price 4s. 6d.

Legend of Madame Angot. Valse Chantante.

MADAME ANGOT.

PIANOFORTE PIECES.
Kube's Fantasia. 4s.
Richard's Compagnons Song. 4s.
Talexy's Mazurka. 2s. 6d.
Rummel's Duo, Facile. 4s.
Watson's Six Easy Pieces. 1s. each.
Cramer's Bouquet of Melodies. 4s.
Bishop's Fantasia. 4s.
Watson's Valse Chantante. 4s.
Watson's Airs as Duets. 5s.
De Villiers's Duo. 5s.

MADAME ANGOT QUADRILLE,

WALTZ, and GALOP, by CHARLES COOTE. Price 4s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

POPULAR SONGS and BALLADS.

SHE WANDERED DOWN THE MOUNTAIN SIDE. By F. CLAY. Twentieth Edition. 4s.

BOOSEY and Co.

A PART. By COMYN VAUGHAN.

Sixth Edition. 2s.—BOOSEY and Co.

ONE HAPPY YEAR AGO. By A. SCOTT

GATTY. 2s. Sung by Mr. Guy.—BOOSEY and Co.

REMEMBER OR FORGET. By

HAMILTON AIDE. 10th Edition. 4s.—BOOSEY and Co.

THEN AND NOW. By LOUISA

GRAY. 6th Edition. 4s.—BOOSEY and Co.

MARY HAMILTON. By J. R.

WILBERFORCE. Words by Whyte Melville. 3s.
BOOSEY and Co.

THE TRYST. By J. L. ROECKEL.

Words by Wetherly. Sung by Mr. Sims Reeves with immense success. Price 4s.—BOOSEY and Co.

NOTICE.—ALL MUSIC at HALF PRICE.

The best editions sent post-free, bound works excepted. Stamps or post-office order in advance. Lists free on application.
Horswood and Craw, 42, New Bond-street.

A CAPITAL COMIC SONG.

AWFULLY JOLLY: or, The Christmas Party. By HARRY CLIFTON. A most amusing sketch, full of fun. 12 stamps.—Horswood and Craw.

PRETTY WALTZES by COOTE. Played by Coote and Timmy's band.

SPRING BLOSSOMS. THYRA WALTZES.
IMITATION. LILIEDER WALTZES.
24 stamps each, Solo; or, Duet, 30s.—Horswood and Craw.

MERRY QUADRILLES, by COOTE.

TWELFTH NIGHT. NAPOLITANA.
PRETTY KITTY. SONG OF SONGS.
24 stamps each, Solo; or, Duet, 30s.—Horswood and Craw.

FAVOURITE LANCERS, by COOTE.

MASQUERADE. FAVOURITE.
LONDON SEASON. NATIONAL.
24 stamps each, Solo; or, Duet, 30s.—Horswood and Craw.

SENATION COMIC SONG.

HAVE YOU SEEN THE SHAH? A most amusing Song, full of fun, sung nightly by Vance; and illustrated with Comic Pictures of the Shah. 12 stamps.
Horswood and Craw, 42, New Bond-street.

GOOD DANCING GALOPS by COOTE.

CHERRY RIPE. FESTIVAL.
JUST OUT. DOLLY VARDEN.
12 stamps each, Solo; or, Duet, 30s.—Horswood and Craw.

NEW COMIC WALTZES by COOTE.

Containing all the Favourite Tunes introduced in the Burlesques and Pantomimes.
COOTE'S AWFULLY JOLLY WALTZES.
COOTE'S NEW BURLESQUE WALTZES.
COOTE'S EXTRA-VA-GANZA WALTZES.
24 stamps each, Solo; or, Duet, 30s.
Horswood and Craw, 42, New Bond-street.

Published to-day,

COOTE'S NEW ALBUM OF DANCE MUSIC, containing a selection of Quadrilles, Waltzes, Lancers, and Galops, composed expressly. Elegantly bound with gold, and superbly illustrated. Price 10s. 6d.—Horswood and Craw.

HOW TO DANCE.—COOTE'S BALL-

ROOM GUIDE, for Home Practice, fully explains how to learn dancing with a Master. Illustrated with the Figures. Post-free, 12 stamps.—Horswood and Craw, 42, New Bond-street.

OPERATIC MUSIC for QUARTET

PARTIES.—HENRY FARMER'S AMATEUR VIOLINIST, containing Selections from the following Operas: NORMA.
ANNA BOLENA.
BEATRICE DI TENDA.
GUSTAVUS.
L'ELISIR D'AMORE.
LUCREZIA BORGIA.
MARIANIELLO.
DON GIOVANNI.
IL BARBIERE.
FIGARO.
DER FREISCHUTZ.
Price: First Violin, 1s.; Pianoforte, 1s.; Second Violin, 6d.; Violoncello, 6d. A complete Set forwarded on receipt of 12 stamps.
London: BARWICK and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

GEORGE LINLEY'S JUVENILE ALBUM

contains Fifty Songs, adapted to Familiar Tunes, and the National Anthem. With Four Illustrations. Elegantly bound for presentation. Price 6s.
London: BARWICK and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

MENDELSSOHN'S LIEDER OHNE

WORTE. The Six Books, with Portrait of the Composer, complete in one volume, superbly bound in cloth, gilt edges, price 10s. 6d.—BARWICK and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

CALLCOTT'S MELODIES OF ALL

NATIONS. For the Piano. In two volumes, handsomely bound, 25s. 6d. Vol. I. contains 500 Melodies of the British Isles; Vol. II. contains 500 Melodies of various nations.
BARWICK and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

HARMONIA DIVINA. By J. T. STONE.

In four volumes, 7s. 6d. each; or, the complete work, four vols. in one, 241 pages, bound in crimson cloth, 41 1s.
London: BARWICK and Co., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

NEW MUSIC.

METZLER and CO.'S NEW LIST.

METZLER and CO.'S CHRISTMAS

MUSICAL LIBRARY, No. 10.
Quadrille, "Long Ago" (on English tunes), C. Godfrey. Galop, "Fleur-de-Lys." C. Godfrey. Polka, "Fleur-de-Lys." Lindholm. Galop, "The Bohemians." W. W. Goodham. "Zon." Kitting. Waltz, "The Bohemians" (from the new opera of Offenbach). Galop, "The Blue." H. W. Goodham. Quadrille, "The Bohemians." Offenbach. New Waltz, "Life in Vienna." Johann Strauss.
Price 1s.; post-free 12 stamps.
METZLER and Co., 27, Great Marlborough-street, London.

THE BRITISH ARMY QUADRILLE. A

New Edition of JULLIEN'S celebrated BRITISH ARMY QUADRILLE, arranged for Piano by E. F. RIMBAULT, is just published. Played nightly at Rivieri's Concerts with enormous success. Price 4s.; post-free for 12 stamps.
METZLER and Co., 27, Great Marlborough-street, W.

W. T. WRIGHTON'S NEWEST SONGS.

METZLER and Co. have the pleasure to announce the publication of the following NEW SONGS by this very popular Composer:—

ONLY WITH THEM MY LITTLE CHILD.
Price 4s. each; post-free, half price.
METZLER and Co., 27, Great Marlborough-street, London.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S NEW SONGS.

LOST. A Contralto Song. 4s.
DAY IS DYING. Words by George Eliot. 4s.
SAD HEART, O TAKE THY REST! (Evangeline) 4s.
ARDEN TOWERS. Words by G. T. Metzler. 4s.
METZLER and Co., 27, Great Marlborough-street, London.

POPULAR BALLADS OF THE SEASON.

THE OLD, OLD SONG. In F and G. 4s.
STAR UPON STAR. Servando. Offenbach. 4s.
LOVE IN YOUTH. Introduced in "Genevieve de Brabant." 4s.
WAITING. Ballad. ("Fleur-de-Lys"). 4s.
THE LOVE THE SPIRIT OF BEAUFORT. ("Fleur-de-Lys") 4s.
HAD I A HUNDRED HEARTS. ("Fleur-de-Lys") 4s.
METZLER and Co., 27, Great Marlborough-street, London.

'TIS SWEET IN THE SHADE OF THE

LOFTY TREE. Vocal Duet. By F

COLONEL M'NEILL, V.C.

We have engraved the portrait of Colonel M'Neill, who was severely wounded in the conflict with the Ashantees at Essaman, near Elmina, on the 14th ult., while serving as second in command on the Gold Coast under Sir Garnet Wolseley. This gallant officer was employed as Aide-de-Camp to Sir Edward Lugard in India during the campaign of 1857-8, and was present at the siege and capture of Lucknow, the engagement at Jaunpore, the relief of Azimghur, and various operations at Jugdespore. For his conduct in these he obtained a medal with clasp and the brevet rank of Major. In 1861 he proceeded with Sir Duncan Cameron to New Zealand as the General's Aide-de-Camp, and served there till 1865. He was present at the engagements on the Katikara river, at the Koeroa, at Rangariri, at the Gate Pah, and in various other encounters with the natives. He was rewarded with the medal and the brevet rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, and he also gained the Victoria Cross for saving the life of his orderly. Colonel M'Neill commanded the Tipperary flying column during the Fenian disturbances in the winter of 1866-7, and was thanked by Lord Strathnairn in general orders for services rendered on that occasion. He served as military secretary to Lord Lisgar during his term of office as Governor-General of Canada, and was employed on the staff of the Red River expedition, under Sir Garnet Wolseley, in 1870; for the latter he was created a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

The Portrait of Colonel M'Neill is from a photograph by Mr. W. Notman, of Montreal.

COLONEL J. C. M'NEILL, V.C., SECOND IN COMMAND OF THE ASHANTEE EXPEDITION.

THE ASHANTEE WAR.

Our Extra Supplement, in continuation from that of last week, completes the historical and descriptive account of Ashantee and the Gold Coast Settlements, which is illustrated by Views of Cape Coast Castle, Accra, and Elmina, and by several Engravings that represent the habits and customs of West African nations. We also present, in this Number of our Journal, views of Harper Town, Cape Palmas, on the Grain Coast, which is a point usually touched at by ships on the voyage to the Gold Coast; and of the highlands above Amba Bay, at the mouth of the Cameroons river. This place is situated much farther along the African coast, in the Bight of Biafra, perhaps eight or nine hundred miles eastward of Cape Coast Castle; but it has been recommended as a sanitarium for British troops who may suffer from the unhealthy climate to which they will be exposed in the ensuing campaign. The neighbouring island of Fernando Po, a Spanish possession, which lies directly opposite the Cameroons, is known as a coaling station for steam-ships, and therefore comes within the range of illustrations designed to show the characteristic incidents of navigation in the Gulf of Guinea. This remark may also be applied to the scene of a native chief and his attendants visiting one of the British ships of war. The difficulty of landing in boats through the tremendous surf that beats on this shore is constantly observed by those who have experienced its very inconvenient and sometimes very dangerous effects; and the surf-boat constructed by Messrs. Forrest and Son, of Limehouse, for the service of the War Department in this instance, is a suitable object for notice on the present occasion. A few particulars on each of the topics here mentioned will be found below. The sketches of Cape Palmas and the Cameroons are by Major H. A. Leveson, "the Old Shekarry," formerly Lieutenant-Governor of Lagos.

CAPE PALMAS.

Cape Palmas is that point of the West African coast where the Gulf of Guinea opens directly to the eastward, so that the shore runs henceforth mainly from west to east, through 18 deg. of longitude, to the coast of Biafra, lying north and south, which forms a right angle with it. This place is in the county of Maryland, the easternmost part of the negro Republic of Liberia, formed, some half century ago, by the American Colonisation Societies, for the benefit of emancipated negroes removed from the United States. Cape Palmas is a rocky peninsula, joined to the mainland by a low, sandy isthmus. The highest part of the cape is 74 ft. above sea level. At the eastern end is Harper Town, founded by an American of that name in 1835, consisting of a stone hospital, a comfortable German missionary establishment, presided over by Mr. Hoffmann, a lighthouse, and half a dozen houses, mostly occupied by Liberian traders. The Palmas river, which is about a hundred yards wide, washes the northern side of the peninsula. There is but little more than three feet of water on the bar, and about a fathom inside. On the south side of Cape Palmas is a small rocky island, covered with grass and shrubs, formerly used as a burial-ground, called Russwurm Island, after an American philanthropist who was buried there. Behind

VISIT OF AN AFRICAN CHIEF AND SUITE TO A SHIP OF WAR.

Cape Palmas, about twenty-five miles, is some elevated ground called Flat Mountain, and to the westward two large native villages—Fish Town and Rock Town—which are much frequented by traders for the purpose of recruiting Kroomen, who are the most athletic and best working men of all the coast tribes. The mail-steamers all call at Cape Palmas, in order to ship gangs of Kroomen for different trading stations on the coast. A full account of these people will be found in "Wanderings on the West Coast of Africa, by a F. R. G. S."

THE HIGHLANDS OF THE CAMEROONS AND AMBAS BAY.

The Engraving represents Amba Bay, with its three islands, and the plateau of the Cameroons, which, being the only table-land close to the seaboard of sufficient elevation to secure immunity from fever, has been recommended to Government as the most suitable site for an hospital and convalescent dépôt for the Gold Coast expedition. These highlands occupy an area of about 200 square miles of magnificently fertile soil, the greater portion of which is covered with luxuriant tree forest or fine grassy land. The highest peak, Mount Victoria—or, as the natives call it, Mongo-ma-loba—which was first ascended by Captain Burton, is said to be 13,729 ft. above the level of the sea, and at this altitude snow falls at times all the year round, the mercury sinking at night below zero at all seasons. On the southern side of the Cameroons plateau is the well-sheltered harbour of Amba Bay, which, from its position and great natural advantages, would make the best naval station and coaling dépôt on the whole West Coast. The anchorage and holding-ground is excellent in all parts of the bay, which is capable of receiving ships of the largest class, and they would be sheltered from tornadoes by the island of Fernando Po, the islands in the bay, and the lofty mountain background. The land rises from the cliffs which form the landward side of the harbour, and attains an elevation of 5000 ft. within five miles of the seaboard. The shore consists of a sandy beach, which at low water is from fifty to one hundred yards in width, and is covered entirely at high tide. Round this beach is a level plain about two miles in extent, from which the land rises gradually. Three streams of pure and wholesome water empty themselves into the bay, and long ridges of rock, which could easily be constructed into piers, run far out into the sea, forming natural breakwaters that much facilitate the landing. The banana, plantain, cassava, yams, and sweet potato grow everywhere luxuriantly; and under the outlying hills are found the cocoa, oil, and wine palms, African cedar, bombax, ironwood, camwood, cotton, cork, and several kinds of wild fruit-trees. There is plenty of stone and timber for building purposes close to the beach. In the interior are fine grassy plains, separated by belts of forest, in which is to be found abundance of game, such as elephants, hippopotami, leopards, the "mniare," or wild cattle, harness-antelope, koodoo, bush-deer, water-hog, bustard, guinea-fowl, and partridges.

COALING STATION, FERNANDO PO.

The plateau of Mount Henry, on which it was proposed to establish the first hospital dépôt, is about 3000 ft. above sea-level, and within three miles of the landing-place. This site is open on all sides to the breeze, and the air is always cool and agreeable; but, if a colder temperature is required for bracing up fever convalescents, a second dépôt might be established at an altitude of 6000 ft. above the sea, and at this elevation the climate is quite European. The adjacent mainland, being devoid of mangrove-swamp and malarious lagoons, is much more healthy than any other part of the coast; and it may be said to teem with the richest natural productions, of which nine-tenths are ungarnered.

Consul Richard Burton says, "There are few spots on the earth's surface where more of grace and grandeur, of beauty and sublimity, are found blended in one noble panorama than at this equatorial approach on the West Coast of Africa. The voyager's eye, fatigued by the low, flat, melancholy shores of Benin and Upper Biafra, rests with inexhaustible delight upon 'a gate,' compared to which Bab-el-Mandeb and the pillars of Hercules are indeed tame. To his right towers Santa Isabel, the peak of Fernando Po, marked in the chart 10,700 feet above sea level; on his left is a geographical feature more stupendous still, where the Cameroons mountain, whose height is popularly laid down at 13,760 feet, seems to spring from the wave, and to cast its shadow half way across the narrow intervening channel, whose minimum breadth does not exceed nineteen miles. As we approach Amba Bay, every five minutes produces a marked change in the appearance of the mountain, which, clothed with magnificent forest and luxuriant tropical vegetation, seems to rise perpendicularly in places from out of the dark surging swell of the Atlantic. At a distance the whole headland seems to be one vast mountain rising from the sea, but by degrees we could easily distinguish 'the little Cameroons,' 'the Botoki Cove,' and sundry other serrated peaks and hummocks, with long valleys, ravines, and intervening bare, brown ridges."

In Amba Bay are three islands—the largest, Mondoleh, a high rocky island, half a mile long, and covered with luxuriant vegetation, Amba island, and Bobya or Pirate's islands. The immense height of the densely wooded background dwarfs these luxuriant-looking islands, which rise out of the sea like patches of rock covered with many-hued foliage.

The West African Barter Company have selected the Cameroons as their trading head-quarters; and, as this lies in the very heart of the palm-oil district, and has inland water communications extending for thousands of miles in the interior, it is likely to become the greatest seat of commerce on the coast; or, as that great African authority, Mr. McGregor Laird, prophesied, "the Singapore of West Africa."

COALING STATION, FERNANDO PO.

There is always a small quantity of coal kept at this island for the use of her Majesty's cruisers. The sheds are situated some little distance from the town. Coaling on the West Coast of Africa would be terrible work were it not for the Kroomen, whose great strength and comparative immunity from the dangers of the climate render them invaluable. In her Majesty's squadron on the West Coast, Kroomen are allowed in the proportion of about fifteen to one hundred white men. This beautiful and luxuriant little island is by no means free from African fever, except, perhaps, in the high region of the interior, where there is a mission. It is said that a padre, after living in perfect health at the mission for a number of years, went down into the town on business or pleasure, and in a few days died of fever. From Fernando Po on a clear day may be seen the high land in the neighbourhood of the Cameroons river, so called by the Spaniards on account of the quantity of prawns (camerones) to be found there. In this high land it is proposed to establish a trading settlement, and perhaps a sanitary station.

THE SURF-BOAT.

The War Department has got a surf-boat, specially designed and constructed by Messrs. Forrest and Son, of Limehouse, for landing troops on the Gold Coast. It may either be rowed with oars by our sailors, or paddled by Fantees or Kroomen—the latter is the method shown in our Illustration. The smaller size of boat is 24 ft. in length, 6 ft. in breadth, and 2 ft. 6 in. deep; the medium size 28 ft. long. The stem and stern are formed by the keel being bent round, all in one piece; and the frame timbers are of steamed wood, in one length from gunwale to gunwale; the planks are likewise in one length, where practicable. All the fastenings are of stout copper, and the points of the nails are clenched on copper washers. The boats are lined inside, and are furnished with head and stern platforms. Each boat is supplied with ten paddles, and with one steering-oar and crutch. The design was carefully prepared, on the suggestions or with the approval of captains trading to the coast.

The martello tower No. 40, near St. Leonards-on-Sea, was demolished on Saturday by means of 200 lb. of gun-cotton.

Chippenhams Agricultural Show, yesterday week, was patronised by a number of members of Parliament, who took part in the presentation of prizes. Mr. Goldney, M.P., addressed the labourers of the district on the improvement in their position during the last ten years, and on the advantages they enjoyed as compared with mechanics.

The annual general meeting of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland was held, on Monday, in their library, Royal Institution, Edinburgh. The first business being the election of office-bearers in room of those retiring, the Duke of Sutherland was elected president, and Sir Joseph Noel Paton one of the vice-presidents; while W. F. Skene, LL.D., Mr. Robert Horn (advocate), and Captain Thomas, R.N., were added to the council, in room of the retiring members. Baroness Burdett-Coutts was elected a lady associate of the society. The treasurer gave a satisfactory statement of the condition of the funds. During the year 250 articles of antiquarian interest have been presented to the museum, and seventy-five volumes of books and pamphlets have been presented to the library. The Sutherland collection of coins has also been acquired by purchase from the Faculty of Advocates.

FINE ARTS.

"THE SHADOW OF DEATH."

At length Mr. Holman Hunt's labour of years is made public in the New British Institution Gallery, Old Bond-street. Rumour, that has been so busy with this work, may now be tested by the reality; and the general conclusion will probably be that "The Shadow of Death" is the most extraordinary picture of our day—we do not say the best; for its merits, or at least the artist's principles, will be hotly disputed. It is certainly far more important than any previous work by Mr. Hunt. The religious sentiment and symbolism, the typical or premonitory signs of Christ's great sacrifice, and the maternal love and sorrow of the Virgin, which severally characterised "The Light of the World," "The Scapegoat," and "The Finding of the Saviour in the Temple," here unitedly reappear as dominant ideas; those ideas are realised with the same conscientious care and patient elaboration of accessories, as well as principles—the same studious search for truth as to material fact in small things as in great, from all available sources, whether in ancient remains or traditional Oriental usage; but the artist's style or mode of expression is more masterly, and his feeling for beauty much higher; while the whole is rendered on the scale of life, which he had not before attempted.

This picture (like others before it, in a less degree) has an autobiographical—we might almost say a psychological—interest which must not be overlooked if we would fairly estimate it relatively to current art. Mr. Holman Hunt is the only painter of mark who has consistently clung to the dogmas of pre-Raphaelitism. One by one the small band of enthusiasts that startled the art-world out of its propriety five-and-twenty years ago has fallen away: Mr. Hunt alone remains staunch. But he has developed the crude notions of the P.R. brotherhood to practical results they hardly dreamt of; while at the same time he has—perhaps unconsciously to himself—gradually dropped the more unpleasant peculiarities of the sect; indeed, it must be admitted that he never possessed them to the same degree as most of the fraternity. To cling, however, so closely through life—though forsaken and unsupported—to principles which not only differ from, but are in their nature a protest against, contemporary precept and practice, and the traditions or accumulated experience of ages, argues (whether those principles are right or wrong) extraordinary depth of conviction and singleness of purpose. It is something like a man erasing from his memory his mother-tongue, and inventing for himself a new language. And there is much other evidence of this artist's romantic, heroic earnestness. Where is another painter who would have encountered the dangers and discomfort of long studying materials for a picture of a dying goat among the desolate salt-incrusted shallows of the Dead Sea? For whole years, too, we believe, did this painter expatriate himself to the far East to prepare another picture. Yet again has he spent three years over the present work in voluntary exile at Jerusalem, Nazareth, and Bethlehem—and for what? Simply to ascertain as far as possible from every discoverable indication—local, traditional, or historical—the probable details of a carpenter's shop about the date of our Saviour's life; the aspect of an effect of sunset within the same; the garments and trinkets worn by a Jewish woman at the same period; and (of necessity still more inferentially) the constituent objects of the Wise Men's offerings. For Mr. Hunt the mission of the painter is to search the world through in the scientific spirit of the geologist or comparative anatomist, in order to present a fact of momentous importance with the utmost attainable veracity; and, peradventure, some faint vestige, some fragment of the dry bones of the past may furnish a new and instructive illustration or commentary. No knight-errant, pilgrim, or crusader was ever more devoted in his quest of love or piety than Mr. Hunt in his search for realistic truth in art. Neither Quentin Matsys in the prosaic cynicism of the individual model of his "Pietà" at Antwerp, nor Fra Angelico in the exalted asceticism of his wall-painting of the Crucifixion at Florence, is more in earnest, than Mr. Hunt; and curiously enough there is much in common between these poles of northern and southern art, and between them and our modern English painter; all three, for instance, depicting the Man of Sorrows as meagre, lithe, and spare. It is to this extreme sincerity that must be attributed the unquestionable originality of Mr. Holman Hunt's work—an invaluable attribute in art, or poetry, or literature. Whoever is original makes a conquest on the wholly unknown or the imperfectly understood. Whoever is original challenges our pre-conceived notions and prejudices; and if he be partially wrong (as we frankly believe Mr. Hunt to be both in the theory and practice of art), or even wholly wrong, yet his influence is most serviceable and salutary, for it absolutely compels thought and the rectification of foregone conclusions. But it is time to describe the work which has called forth such general remarks; and which, therefore, we would approach in no petty or partisan spirit.

The picture is, however, peculiarly interesting from so many points of view that one hardly knows how to commence an analysis. Let us at once discuss its conception or leading ideas. The scene is the interior of the carpenter's shop wherein Christ worked before entering on His public mission. The picture, therefore, relates to a period in the life of the man Jesus, which, although it has been entirely neglected by artists, save in some small early decorative pictures and in some early serial prints of sacred story, has of late been the subject of inquiry by devout believers in as well as doubters of His divinity, and the inquiry has been on both sides undertaken in the searching spirit that Mr. Hunt manifests. The same "Carpenter's Shop" was, it is true, painted by Mr. Millais in his earliest pre-Raphaelite days; but Christ appears in it only as a child, and, although symbolical in some of its details, there were little or no Oriental or archaeological elements in the work—the young artist went no further afield for his materials than did the early Flemish painters.

In Mr. Hunt's picture the shop is flooded with the last ray of sunset. There are only two figures—Jesus and His mother. The incidents represented or indicated are—Jesus at the moment of stretching his arms at the end of a day's manual labour, and Mary half kneeling before the gifts of the Magi, but with her attention attracted to the startling resemblance presented by the shadow of her Son's figure and extended arms, projected against the wall and athwart a horizontal tool-rack, to the appearance of one suspended to a cross. This is the "Shadow of Death." There is a tradition that the mother of Jesus first learned that her Son's kingdom was not to be of this world in a vision of a shadowy cross. Mr. P. R. Morris, another thoughtful religious painter, adapted this tradition some years back in an engraved picture representing the Infant Jesus walking towards His mother with arms outspread to balance himself on His baby feet; the shadow of the figure thrown on the sand by the morning sun resembling the form of a cross. Translated pictorially, the legend is apt to have more analogy to a fanciful conceit in poetry than to nobly imaginative thought. In Mr. Hunt's version the tradition reappears in an entirely new guise, and under far more suggestive conditions, taken in conjunction with the employment of Mary. For us the most beautiful and original conception in the picture is this thoroughly womanly employment of Mary. She has been gloating over long-boarded treasures offered by those masters of the mystic lore of the East. Her Jesus is still the poor carpenter's son; but He has now arrived at manhood, and her heart swells with maternal pride as she thinks that ere long He must wear that golden crown and those robes of richest Persian embroidery; for such were probably among the gifts of the Wise Men, believing, as they did, that they were heralds of a great earthly Sovereign. But what is that fearful shadow, as of one dying the "accursed death of the cross," which arrests her attention as her heart turns from the ivory casket? Many of the things she has "kept in her heart" now rush to her memory; but chiefly, perhaps, the prophecy (inscribed on the frame of the picture) concluding with the dire announcement that "He became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross." The fine drawing of the contours of the figure, the sense of beauty in the lines, and the rich colouring render this technically also the best part of the picture in our eyes. It may be regretted that the face is turned entirely from the spectator, for one could have wished to witness the climax of conflicting emotions therein; but the attitude is so truly expressive that we hardly feel a deficiency. Moreover, by turning away Mary's face the attention settles with less chance of disturbance on the principal figure.

This—the figure of Jesus—is that of a young Syrian, tall and spare, but sinewy, with head and extremities, particularly the hands, smaller than in European races. The head, with its flowing locks and chiselled features, has much refinement, but the torso and limbs are too thin to accord with Western classical ideas of beauty. The figure, which is nude save cloth round the loins, is relieved with extraordinary force, partly owing to the extremely careful anatomical elaboration and powerful scale of the modelling, partly to the intense colour of the flesh, which, glowing to a richer bronze in the sunset ray, has a metallic brilliance that, however true in hue, fails, we confess, to convey to us the softness of human flesh and epidermis. Jesus has risen from stooping over a sawing tressel; the scimitar-shaped saw remains in the half-severed wood. He stretches Himself to His full height, throws His head back, extends His hands above His head and reveres them, some of the fingers, however, retaining the cramped positions acquired in sawing—a natural effort of the extensor muscles of the back and limbs to relieve the over-taxed flexors. The right foot, however, is hardly sufficiently within the medial line of the figure to afford the required poise and purchase; and we do not perceive the muscular tension and energy in the upper part of the figure required by the first extensor act. But doubtless the artist intended to represent a moment later than the first involuntary effort of relief. In the turned eyes and adoring expression we read the ejaculation of prayer and praise at the end of the day's toil. From time immemorial has prayer been offered at sunset in the East. The devout may further read in the expression the Divine consciousness that in thus submitting to the primeval curse by "earning His bread" as a poor working man "by the sweat of His brow," He is "about His Father's business." The lesson of the painter in choosing this incident from a neglected part of Christ's life is obvious. The lesson is to show by a Divine ensample the dignity and sanctity of labour—a lesson most appropriate at the present day. Labore est orare might well be applied as a motto to the principal figure of the picture.

We have yet to speak of that which will produce the most startling, if not also the most lasting, impression; we mean the amazingly vivid, positively dazzling representation of sunset effect. Judging by his practice, Mr. Hunt from the first formed a very definite theory as to the painting of light, as he did regarding other pictorial principles. He would express the brightness of sunlight by aid of the purest unbroken colours, rather than by the illumined tone of the air-medium; his shadows, also, should be the purest complementary blues and purples; reflected and refracted light should be rendered relatively strong, in order to compensate for the artist's inability to approach the force of real direct light with his brightest pigments. This theory of light-painting and colour, which rendered so many pre-Raphaelite pictures of English subjects garish, raw, and crude, is far less misapplied here, where Mr. Hunt had to deal with the blazing sunlight and rarefied atmosphere of Palestine. The last-named peculiarity of the climate accounts for the sharpness of the "Shadow of Death" and other cast shadows in the carpenter's shop, as well for the almost equally definite mountain shadows in the glimpse of landscape seen through the mullioned windows looking south-east from Nazareth—where hill and valley lie tintured with the loveliest hues of gold and orange, lilac and blue. In northern, more humid, climates shadows projected horizontally, and therefore thrown by the sun the moment before he dips below the horizon, would have vague or "blurred" edges, and the colour and strength of the light would be far more affected by the density of the intervening atmosphere. But, however true to climatic phenomena, the fact remains that the general effect of the picture is rather unpleasantly hot and feverish; there is, to a northern eye, an embarrassing difficulty in realising the relative position of objects. This, however, may have arisen partially from the necessity, during the present dark days, of showing the picture under artificial light more or less.

Besides the "Shadow of Death" there are other ingenious symbolic devices, such as the suggestion of a natural number round the head of Christ, and of the star of Bethlehem in the space of sky seen through the arch-headed window, and a star-like perforation above it; in the scarlet fillet fallen from the head of Jesus, which is figured in ancient Egyptian paintings of the Jews being led into captivity, still worn by the Syrian bedawee, and which may suggest the blood-stained crown of thorns; in the traditional blue robe, symbolical of purity, of the Virgin; and in the bruised reed from Jordan—a reed being further, used as a measure, as we learn from the Old Testament. For nearly all the multifarious details of costume, architecture, carpenter's tools, wise men's offerings, Hebrew manuscripts, and so forth, Mr. Hunt produces an authority, as set forth in a pamphlet issued by Messrs. Agnew, who also will publish an engraving of the picture by Mr. Stacpoole. We would only add, as regards the accessories, that the picture contains some of the finest still-life painting we have seen.

To summarise: we think it obviously desirable that a painter of scriptural as of other history should inform himself of any augmented current information relating to costume, climate, and other facts bearing on his subject, though he may easily make an obtrusive, inartistic use of such knowledge, and may certainly produce a work of art of the highest order without any such knowledge whatever. It is absurd to draw any comparison between Mr. Hunt's mode of treatment and that of the old masters, even on the low ground of the adventitious veracities, for the simple reason that they painted as honestly according to their lights. Even the much-abused Renaissance painters of scripture history and tradition adopted classical models and accessories in ignorant sincerity, because they believed them worthier media for rendering the ideas they had to convey. Equally obvious is it that a painter should, like Mr. Hunt, strive to place an event before the spectator with the vividness of reality, provided that accidental and non-essential details do not (as we honestly confess they appear to do in the picture under notice) divide or usurp the attention which should be concentrated on the principal truth. As also the principal truth must be nobly conceived, the question may arise relatively to this picture, but must be answered by each spectator for himself—does this Syrian youth, with his definite individuality, realise the God-Man we adore, with reasonable reference to his probable earthly presence? High art, in short, is free as poetry; it appeals to our deepest emotions and highest thoughts; it is not critical, logical, or even intellectual, in the narrow sense of the word; it is not to be measured by industry, it is not merely a record of external appearances, it does not copy nature like the unthinking camera. Still, we trust we have said enough to show that Mr. Holman Hunt's picture is extremely interesting, exceeding honourable to himself, invaluable as a protest against the shallowness and insincerity of contemporary art, and that it is possessed of rare merits technical and mental.

The winter exhibitions of the Society of Painters in Water Colours and the Society of British Artists opened on Monday last. We are compelled to postpone our notices.

The council of the Art-Union of London has offered two premiums, one of £35 and one of £15, to be competed for by past and present students in schools of art in which painting on pottery is taught. The subject proposed is a design for decoration of a tazza of specified form and dimensions. The designs are to be sent in to the society's house on any day from May 1 to May 7 next.

Mr. E. T. Parris, an artist of considerable reputation in his day, died, on the 27th ult., at the ripe age of eighty-two years. Among his numerous works may be mentioned a picture of the "Coronation of Her Majesty," which was purchased and engraved by the late Sir Francis G. Moon. Mr. Parris executed the gigantic task of restoring the paintings by Sir James Thornhill which decorate the dome of St. Paul's. In this work the artist used a vehicle of his own composition, since known as Parris's marble medium. He also executed the "Panorama of London," which delighted the sight-seers at the Colosseum for so many years.

Workmen are now busy removing the Outram equestrian statue, which has been standing for some months past in Waterloo-place, and which is about to be shipped for Calcutta. We understand that a committee has been formed for promoting the permanent erection of a replica of this fine work, which, it is understood, may be secured at the cost of its reproduction. We sincerely hope that, both on account of the great soldier who forms the subject of the work and its artistic merits, the required funds may be obtained. In thus paying a well-earned tribute to British valour and genius, the country will obtain an art-decoration of the highest order. Communications on the subject may be addressed to G. F. Teniswood, Esq., honorary secretary to the committee, Caton Lodge, Putney.

Mr. E. S. Palmer, of Golden-square, has published, by permission of the Royal Academy, an engraving of the diploma picture, "Prayer in Spain," of the late John Phillip, R.A. The engraver, Mr. T. O. Barlow, A.R.A., has executed his difficult task con amore. Not only is the earnest devotional expression of the principal figure—so touching in its trusting simplicity—successfully rendered; but the fulness of tone, the wonderful technical quality and vigorous handling of the lamented artist, conspicuous in this charming picture, are skilfully reproduced in his translation, wherein keen appreciation of his subject, combined with the rare taste and skill in his own department, manifest throughout, unite in making this offspring of Phillip's genius a work of high standard and a most desirable possession. We learn that the number to be printed is limited to 500, when the plate will be destroyed.

On Tuesday last the annual distribution of the prizes won by students of the Department of Art in the local and national competition of 1873 took place in the lecture theatre of the South Kensington Museum. The prizes were presented by the Lord President of the Council, who made a suitable speech; he was accompanied by Mr. Norman Macleod, Acting Secretary of the Science and Art Department since the resignation of Mr. H. Cole, Mr. Redgrave, R.A., Inspector-General of Art; Mr. Burchett, Head Master National Art-Training School, and other teachers of the department. The following are the recipients of the gold medals in the national competition:—Owen Gibbons's design for centrepiece; William Marshall, design for spandril; Thomas W. Wilson, design for jewellery. The silver medals were thus awarded:—Louisa Cooper, design for lace; Emily Fawcett, head modelled; Edith Hopkins, analysis of flowers; Frances Jones, design for marqueterie; George Clansen, design for cup and tankard; W. F. Randall, design for chimney-breast; E. G. Reuter, historic styles of ornament. We have not space for the names of the winners of bronze medals and minor prizes. A number of prizes offered by City companies and individuals were also distributed.

NEW CALEDONIA AND THE ISLE OF PINES.

The French penal convict settlement in the South Pacific Ocean, formed by the Emperor Napoleon III. in 1855, has latterly become the abode of many of the Paris Communists. Its situation is on the shores and neighbouring islets of New Caledonia, which Captain Cook discovered a hundred years ago, but which now belongs to France. It is just within the Tropic of Capricorn, and lies half way between the Queensland coast of Australia and the Fiji Islands. The capital of this settlement is Nouméa, or Port de France, near the southern extremity of New Caledonia, which is a large island, 250 miles long and fifty broad. It is described by the late Mr. Julius Breachley, in his book relating to the "Cruise of H.M.S. Curacoa Among the South Sea Islands in 1865," a handsome volume, with many beautiful illustrations of natural history, published by Messrs. Longman during the present year.

The island of New Caledonia is mountainous, well wooded, and well watered; the valleys are fertile, and the climate seems to be as good as that of Australia, or rather better, as it is not liable to droughts. The scenery is picturesque, the geological formation being similar to that of Norfolk Island and North New Zealand. The whole of New Caledonia abounds in tokens of past volcanic action—fields of lava, beds of ashes, cones of basalt, ridges of trachyte, and craters of eruption. The coasts are fringed with coral-reefs, affording many safe inner passages and smooth harbours in a region of cyclones and hurricanes. The native race of men are like those of Papua or New Guinea, and do not seem capable of civilisation, but their numbers are rapidly decreasing. This country is altogether a less objectionable place of penal exile than the other French convict settlement at Cayenne; it is not quite so hot or so unhealthy, but mosquitoes, vampires, and snakes are to be found here as well as there, and fever and dysentery are too common here also in certain districts. Port de France is delightfully placed on a peninsula between two bays forming an excellent harbour, with a glorious mountain range behind. Its population, besides the civil and military officials of the French Government, and the troops and convicts, includes some English mercantile agents from Melbourne and Sydney. They have begun to open up the natural wealth of the country, its fine timber, with the resin of the Kauri pine, the mines, and the fisheries. The Isle of Nou, twenty miles in extent, which lies opposite Port de France three miles off, is the chief penitentiary for the convicts under a more severe restraint; while those whose good conduct has deserved some indulgence go to other places, where they may work in the industrial creation of new villages, each protected by a small fort with a detachment of troops.

One of these stations is on the Isle of Pines, thirty miles distant from the south-eastern extremity of New Caledonia. Here is found growing in all its beauty the Araucaria, or Norfolk Island pine, which does not occur in Australia or in New Zealand. From the main island to the Isle of Pines, across the sea, extends a series of rocks and little islets, almost forming a sort of Giants' Causeway to join the one with the other.

The French convict-convicts have a variety of occupations in their new home. They may till the land, raising maize, sugar, cotton, bananas, and rice; or they may fell timber, gather gum, or net fish; but the most profitable thing is to catch and prepare trepang for the Chinese market. This is a gelatinous sort of fish, a cylinder of blubber, a few inches long, with a fringe of tentacles at one end to capture its food. The trepang are boiled in salt water; afterwards they are cut open and smoke-dried; they are sent to Canton, and fetch a high price as the ingredient of a delicious Chinese soup.

Our illustrations are from a set of photographs presented by Dr. Muller.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY VOLUNTEERS.

This rifle corps was formed in July, 1869, and now musters over one thousand strong, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel D. W. Campbell, locomotive superintendent of the East Indian SILVER PRIZE CUP FOR THE EAST INDIAN RAILWAY VOLUNTEER RIFLE CORPS.

Railway. The corps is distributed over twenty-four stations between Calcutta, Jubbulpore, and Delhi—an extent of about 1200 miles. Each station has its own armoury, with rifle-range and drill ground, and a reserve of ammunition always at hand ready for any contingency. In the event of alarm or sudden attack, several hundred volunteers, fully armed and equipped, could be concentrated on any threatened point in a few hours. The working staff consists of a captain and brevet major from the regular army as inspector and adjutant, assisted by fifteen sergeant-instructors on the unattached list, one of them holding the post as sergeant-major of the corps. The late inspector and adjutant was Captain Fitzroy Stephen, of the fourth battalion Rifle Brigade. When he left India with his regiment he was succeeded by Captain, now Brevet Major, A. Le Mesurier, of the 14th Regiment. These able and zealous officers have raised the corps to a high state of efficiency. The Government of India allows a capitation grant annually of 20 rupees for each effective, and an additional sum of 10 per cent of the capitation grant for distribution in prizes for good shooting. The directors of the East Indian Railway have also given two annual grants of 500 rupees for prizes, and Messrs. Bird and Co., contractors, have given two grants of 300 rupees each for the same purpose. These sums, with money and other prizes given by the officers of the corps, have the effect of stimulating a very active competition in target-practice amongst the volunteers. The prize cup, which is of solid silver, stands about 16 in. high, is of Indian workmanship, and about £50 value. It bears the following inscription:—"Presented to Private Lawrence Porter, No. 6 Company, East Indian Railway Volunteers, by the Viceroy and Governor-General of India, as the best shot at 200, 400, and 500 yards, five rounds at each distance; points obtained, 53. 1872-3." The shooting is generally very good; the score of 53 points out of a possible 60 by which Private Porter won the cup was very closely approached by a large number of competitors. The volunteers are armed with the short Snider rifle.

THE LONDON SCHOOL BOARD ELECTIONS.

The returns of the polling on Thursday week in connection with these elections, showing the relative positions of the candidates on the list, were completed on Saturday morning last by that of the Marylebone district. Appended is a complete list of the results:—

THE CITY OF LONDON.—Mr. Alderman Cotton, 5819; Canon Gregory (new member), 5703; Mr. Francis Peek (new member), 5648; Mr. Samuel Morley, 4851. The above were elected. The defeated candidates were: Sir John Bennett, 3522; Mr. Sutton Gover, 3432; Mrs. Burbury, 2136. Mr. Alderman Cotton, Mr. Morley, Sir J. Bennett, and Mr. Gover were former members of the board.

CHELSEA.—Dr. Gladstone (new member), 15,472; Mr. Freeman, 15,118; Canon Cromwell, 9273; Rev. Darby Reade (new member), 7360. The unsuccessful were: Rev. R. MacMullen, 5120; Mrs. Arthur Arnold, 3517. Dr. Gladstone states that he has made a point of advocating unsectarian religious education, and fully approves of the past policy of the board in this respect.

FINSBURY.—This division was uncontested. Sir Francis Lycett and Mr. Hugh Owen (two of the former members) retired, and their places are filled by the Rev. Robert Maguire and Mr. C. H. Lovell. Both gentlemen are in favour of religious education. Of the former members there were returned Mr. Chatfield Clarke, the Rev. John Rodgers, Mr. E. J. Tabrum, and Mr. Benjamin Lucraft, all of whom are Liberal.

GREENWICH.—At the close the poll stood thus:—The Hon. and Rev. Augustus Legge (new member), 19,764; Mr. Henry Gover, 13,907; Mr. J. Macgregor, 13,466; the Rev. Benjamin Waugh, 9971. The unsuccessful candidates were—Mr. Broadhurst, 5535; Miss Emily Guest, 3864.

HACKNEY.—For the five seats allotted to this district there were eight candidates, and they received votes in the following proportions: Rev. T. B. Stephenson, 19,003; Mr. R. Foster, 15,620; Rev. J. G. Pilkington, 15,578; Rev. J. Picton, 14,240; Mr. Charles Reed, M.P., 14,239. The unsuccessful candidates were Mr. J. Jones, 13,299; Mr. J. H. Crossman, 4928; Mr. W. Sargent, 1391. Of these Mr. Picton, Mr. Crossman, and Mr. Charles Reed were members of the former board. Mr. Reed's committee account for his position on the poll by the fact that he refused to employ canvassers or cabs, and urged his friends all through the borough to give partial support to his former colleagues, and not to plump for him.

LAMBETH.—For the five seats there were seven competitors, and the result was as follows: Rev. Evan Daniel, 17,022; Mr. Morgan, 16,092; Mr. E. T. Heller, 14,690; Rev. G. M. Murphy, 12,669; Mr. James Stiff, 11,938. The two who were unsuccessful were—Mr. Hugh Wallace, 10,764; Rev. F. Tugwell, 4201.

MARYLEBONE.—The seven seats for this division were contested by fifteen candidates, who stood on the list thus: Mr. Arthur Mills, 25,999; the Rev. Prebendary Jones, D.D., 16,650; the Rev. Llewellyn Bevan, 14,890; Mr. James Watson, 14,849; Miss Chessar, 12,590; Mr. J. H. Heal, 9486; Mrs. Herbert Cowell, 9336. The following were unsuccessful: The Rev. Dr. Angus, 7833; Mr. L. Mostyn, 7456; Mr. M. Barry, 2189; Mr. Richardson, 2036; Mr. J. T. Hawkins, 1506; Mr. D. Rearden, 510; Mr. J. A. Dyason, 339; Mr. W. Griffiths, 173. Of the seven representatives of this division at the first board, five did not offer themselves for re-election—namely, Mrs. Garrett-Anderson, the Rev. Prebendary Thorold, Mr. E. J. Hutchins, Mr. Hepworth Dixon, and the Rev. L. Davies. Dr. Angus and Mr. J. Watson sought re-election. The former did not succeed.

SOUTHWARK.—In this division, which has four seats at the board, there were seven competitors, and the result was as follows:—Rev. R. M. Martin (new member), 6640; Mr. Alfred Lafone, 4689; Rev. J. Sinclair (new member), 4117; Mr. James Wallace, 3880. In the unsuccessful list were—Mr. T. B. Ingle, 3359; Mr. J. Side, 2497; Mr. W. Hayne, 1877.

TOWER HAMLETS.—Six candidates struggled for the five seats in this constituency, and five of them belonged to the late board. The return was as given here:—Mr. E. H. Currie, 40,264; Rev. J. Bardsley (new member), 22,587; Mr. E. M. Buxton, 19,276; Mr. T. Scrutton, 14,875; Mr. A. Langdale, 14,454. The losing candidate was Mr. W. Pearce, 10,614.

WESTMINSTER.—Two of the representatives of this division at the late board—viz., Lord Mahon, M.P., and Mr. C. E. Mudie—did not seek re-election, and the contest, strictly speaking, was for those two seats. It resulted in the following return:—Mr. W. H. Smith, M.P., 8488; Mr. George Potter (new member), 8114; the Rev. Dr. Rigg, 6433; Lord Napier of Ettrick (new member), 6032; the Rev. Canon Barry, 5999. The non-elected candidate was Mr. G. T. Miller, 5732.

The Duke of Bedford, being desirous of marking his sense of the services of Lord Lawrence and of the board over which his Lordship has presided, has made a donation of £1000 to the "Lawrence Scholarship" fund. This scholarship, which is open to girls as well as boys, is one of five which have now been placed in the hands of the School Board for London, to enable children to pass from the public elementary schools of the metropolis to schools of a higher grade.

Mr. S. G. Rathbone, a Nonconformist, has been elected chairman of the Liverpool School Board. For the office of vice-chairman there were two nominees, but of these Mr. James Whitty (Roman Catholic) withdrew in favour of Dr. Hume (Churchman), who was accordingly elected. At Wolverhampton the Church candidates, through the support of the Roman Catholic member of the board, secured both the chairmanship and the vice-chairmanship. Mr. Herbert Birley (Churchman) was unanimously elected chairman of the Manchester board. There were two proposals for vice-chairman—Mr. Dale (Churchman) and Dr. J. Watts (Unsectarian), but the former was elected by a majority of eight to five.

An extensive addition to the Chesterfield and North Derbyshire Hospital was opened on Monday, in the presence of a large company of the county gentry.

The following officers were installed Military Knights of Windsor, on Monday, at St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle:—Captain Godwin on the Royal foundation, and Captains Donovan and M'Inness on the lower foundation.

The number of sets of plans deposited in the Private Bill Office of the Board of Trade is this year 241. Of these 121 relate to railways, five to tramways, sixty-eight to gas, water, road, harbour, pier, and miscellaneous schemes, while forty-seven are projects in which the promoters elect to proceed by way of provisional orders.

1. PARADE. 2. CONVICTS' HOUSES. 3. GOVERNOR'S HOUSE AND NATIVES.
SKETCHES IN THE ISLE OF PINES, NEW CALEDONIA.

SKETCHES IN JAPAN: THE PAPPENBERG, OR ISLAND OF TAKABOKO.

SKETCHES IN JAPAN.

Our Special Artist lately in China and Japan contributes a view of the Pappenberg, or Island of Takaboko, near Nagasaki. He observes that in the year 1622 this rock was the scene of a fearful tragedy. The Japanese then began a fearful persecution of the Christians in Decima and Nagasaki and its neighbourhood, and led some thousands of them to one of the perpendicular cliffs of the Pappenberg—men, women, and children. A cross was placed on the ground, and each person had the choice of treading on it or of being hurled from the top of the rock. Many hundreds, it is said, chose the fearful alternative, and by their deaths have given to this small island a celebrity of horror. It is situated at the entrance to the harbour of Nagasaki. At the present day it is well wooded; still, its steep, rocky sides may be seen, telling how well adapted it was for the dreadful purpose of death. The Portuguese discovered Japan, some say in 1534, others in 1539; and St. Francis Xavier arrived there in 1549, leading a mission of Jesuits, he being the prominent head of the order in all the ports of India subject to Portugal. His mission was successful, but provoked a fierce persecution. It is stated that the town of Simabara, only a few miles from Nagasaki, was, a few years afterwards, utterly destroyed, and 30,000 Christians were buried in its ruins. Let us hope now that such scenes will belong only to "Old Japan." The Mikado's Government has established the law of full toleration of all religions. The old Shintoo faith is declared to be the State religion; yet Buddhism has not been suppressed, it has only been disconnected with the State. There are English and American missionaries of various kinds in Japan, but their progress is very slow in comparison to that of the Jesuits in former days. An American missionary, indeed, went home the other day, and reported that he had converted the Mikado. He produced a great sensation by this among his own people, but the fact is doubted in Japan, though very extraordinary novelties have recently been introduced there.

HOTA, THE CAPITAL OF LAHIJ, NEAR ADEN.

BY THE WAY.

Contempt is instinctively felt at the cowardly conduct of our ally the Fantee, whom neither prods from the umbrella of an officer nor taunts and blows from an excited spouse can rouse to vengeance any more than the Needy Knife-grinder could be stimulated to action. But cowardice is of no country, or rather is of every country. A flagrant specimen of the British Fantee has been produced in a police-court this week. In one of the lower neighbourhoods a woman was much annoyed by a couple of roughs who stood at her door tossing for money, and using foul language. She asked them to go away, and was jeered at, on which she menaced them with the police. Thereupon they knocked her down, rolled her in the gutter, and kicked her. One of them, wishing to use still stronger arguments against prudishness, went into her room to fetch her poker. But there sat her husband by the fire. He had been ear-witness to the scene and to the cries of his wife. "But," said the poor woman, quite naturally, "he was afraid to come out and help me because the two men were the terror of the neighbourhood." The scoundrels are sent for trial, and we hope that they will have an unusually severe sentence, to which we trust that the soundest flogging may be added—surely the case is of the garotting sort. But what is to be said to the husband, who, with a poker at his hand, sits in his chimney-corner, while his wife is being maltreated. Of course this British artisan's house is his castle, and he has a right to stay in it or leave it at his will. But we cannot think that the other women of the neighbourhood might—of course, without violence or objectionable expressions—interview him and represent to him that such exceeding forbearance from taking the law into his own hand was scarcely compatible with his engagements to his wife, and might intimate that in such a case he might have taken the poker and with a couple of blows have diminished the amount of "terrorism" in that court. However, it will be said in his favour, and doubtless it is a point, that he did not hand his poker to the assailants of his wife. The district should be proud of its Fantee.

"After compliments," as the Chinese begin their letters—that is to say, after observing that we mean no contempt of court by an observation on an incident in a trial—it may be remarked that Lord Chief Justice Cockburn's eyesight is much better than was that of another learned Judge. The latter, being addressed by a counsel without his robes, said, "Mr. Buzfuz, I hear your voice, but I cannot see you. You had better make yourself visible to the eye of the Court." Mr. Whalley, not robed, essayed to speak in the Tichborne case on Tuesday, and the Chief Justice beheld him and demanded what he meant. Thereupon Mr. Whalley proposed to be heard as one of the public; but this idea was received with even more disfavour, and the present member for Peterborough was sternly ordered to sit down—some slight reluctance to obey the order being followed by a still more peremptory mandate. However, Mr. Whalley relieved his mind, later, by giving bail for the appearance of a witness for the defence whom the Court thought ought certainly to be kept within call.

We believe that the remark that it is the busiest men who can always find time for everything, while the semi-engaged man is always making complaints of want of time, may have been heard before. Its revival may be excused by a brilliant illustration. Mr. Gladstone may reasonably be held to have as much upon his mind and his hands as any gentleman in the kingdom. Yet his vocations do not prevent him from finding leisure to compose a letter to one of the higher class of periodicals, setting forth his views on the doctrine, or heresy, called Evolution. The word in its most exalted sense has not found its way into any of the numerous English dictionaries so ably described in an article in the new number of the Quarterly; but Mr. Gladstone understands it as representing the device by which Providence is dismissed from the labour of taking care of the world, which is considered to be bound, hard and fast, by certain immutable laws. It is needless to point out to candid readers, whether Churchmen or seculars, to what issue Evolution would lead; nor has Mr. Gladstone done more than state his complete abhorrence of the theory. We may note, too, that there has been a renewal of the outrageously insolent attempt to fix on Mr. Gladstone the charge of being privately a Roman Catholic. He has condescended to answer, curtly; but we think such accusations may best be treated by him with the contempt which is felt for them by all decent persons.

The eminent painter of "The Derby Day" and of "The Railway Station" merits the thanks of the artistic world for endeavouring to bring a vexed question to a settlement. He, like most other artists, desires to have photographic copies of his works, to keep as refreshment to memory. He orders certain copies from a company, and supposes the negatives to be included in the price he pays. But the company refuse to take this view, and defy him. Now, if the law be not clear on the subject, it should be made clear; and there are several members of Parliament who are deeply interested in art, and whom art might look to to have legislation set straight. Why the makers of photographic copies, prepared for a private purpose, should seek to retain the negatives we do not see, because certainly they have no right to sell a single print to anybody but the artist who employed them. The only plea we can imagine is that the artist might desire other copies, and might employ other persons to work them. To compare very small things with greater, it is very difficult to get your card-plate or monogram-die out of the maker's hands, not because he can use it for anybody else, but because you might take it to another tradesman. On the other hand, it may be contended that an artist asks and pays for copies of his work, not for any part of the mechanical tools by which those copies are obtained. But as an artist is liable (as has been shown this week), by the fraud or failure of the holder of negatives, to have copies of his work improperly sold, conduct which it is difficult and expensive to repress, we suggest that a brief Act declaratory of rights should occupy the House of Commons some night. It would take almost as much time as is wasted on a question and answer about some poacher in gaol being made to eat Australian meat, or some tramp-thief being harshly addressed by a rural justice.

We suggest that the Home-Rulers who talk about "the rich, deep heart of Ireland" being with them should prove the fact by a prosaic but yet a crucial test. "Those who part with money never find it," says an old dramatist. If Ireland has so much confidence in the leaders of Home Rule as to confide to them her future, her honour, her prosperity, surely she will not withhold the testimony of confidence we propose. Let these gentlemen agitators establish a "Home Rule Bank of Ireland," with Mr. Isaac Butt, Mr. Sullivan of Cork, and other distinguished patriots as the trustees. Then let Irishmen be invited to take their money out of all the Saxon banks, savings banks, and the like, and deposit it at the Home Rule establishment, taking, of course, such interest and dividends as will be satisfactory to enthusiastic but thrifty patriots. A few millions carried to such a bank would do more to make England believe that Ireland is for Home Rule than all the blatant orations that could be delivered in the four provinces.

THE ARABS AND TURKS AT ADEN.

The British military station at Aden, in the south-western corner of the Arabian peninsula, near the Strait of Bab-el-Mandeb and the entrance to the Red Sea, has lately been disturbed by a threatened conflict between the forces of the Turkish Empire in Arabia and the native Sultan of Lahej, a district adjacent to Aden and under the virtual protection of Great Britain. This Sultan had been summoned by the Turkish Governor of Yemen, the neighbouring province, to do homage to the Sultan of Turkey, and when he refused to do so a rebellion, led by his two brothers, was excited by Turkish instigation. The Sultan of Lahej fought and defeated the insurgents, upon which his rebel brothers shut themselves up in a fort only a mile from the Sultan's palace at Hota. They sent to the nearest Turkish commander, offering to surrender the whole territory of Lahej to the Turks in return for the assistance they needed. A detachment of Turkish soldiery was thereupon dispatched by night on camels, and was admitted into the fort. The Lahej Sultan, of course, demanded the aid of the British Political Resident at Aden, from whom he receives a yearly subsidy. On Oct. 27 General Schneider sent a force to Lahej consisting of a hundred men of the 105th Light Infantry, 130 of the 2nd Grenadier Bombay Native Infantry, fifty Sappers, two mountain guns, and one 6-pounder Armstrong gun, all under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel J. R. Mackenzie, of the 105th. They marched to Hota, a distance of twenty-six miles, while General Schneider and Captain Hunter, the Resident and Assistant at Aden, also went to Lahej to superintend the course of affairs. In the mean time our Foreign Office, learning by telegraph what had been done, addressed a remonstrance to the Turkish Government at Constantinople, and the result was that the Turkish troops were ordered to be withdrawn from Lahej; the rebel brothers of the Arab Sultan were given up to him, and the fort is to be demolished. We are indebted to Lieutenant-Colonel Stanley Edwards, commanding the 2nd Bombay Native Infantry, for two sketches of the town and fort of Hota, one of which is shown in our Engraving. The palace of the Sultan of Lahej appears to the left hand, and the fort which was held by the Turks for his rebel brothers is on the right hand, seen in the distance. The surrounding country is green and fertile, very unlike that nearer to Aden.

MUSIC.

Mr. Walter Bache's annual evening concert has always a peculiar importance attached to it—first, from the engagement of a numerous and efficient orchestra; next, from the special features included in the programmes. The tenth occasion took place at St. James's Hall, on Thursday week, when Dr. von Bülow conducted. The orchestral pieces performed were Weber's overture to "Euryanthe," Liszt's elaborate and richly-instrumented pieces, "Tasso" and "Orpheus" (from the series entitled Poèmes Symphoniques), and his brilliant march, "Vom Fels zum Meer." All these were splendidly played by a very full band of first-rate performers. Our readers need scarcely be reminded that Mr. Bache is a pianist of the first class, and his own performances are always among the prominent attractions of his concerts. On Thursday week these were heard in Liszt's arrangements, with orchestra, of Schubert's great fantasia in C, and Weber's polonaise in E major (both originally written for pianoforte solo), and in three unaccompanied pieces by Chopin, Raff, and Schumann. In each instance Mr. Bache was greeted with loud and general applause. Among the many specialties of this interesting concert was the admirable declamation of Madame Otto-Alvsleben in the scene of Isolde's death, forming the close of the third act of Wagner's opera, "Tristan und Isolde." The dramatic power of the music, and its fine performance, produced a profound impression, and it had to be repeated. Madame Alvsleben also sang some lieder by Brahms, Rubinstein, and Franz, accompanied by Dr. von Bülow.

